This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

9015 00289 1118

Non-Circulating

University of Michigan Libraries
1817
FLINT COLLEGE

CASES ARGUED AND DECIDED

IN THE

SUPREME COURT

OF THE

UNITED STATES

226, 227, 228, 229, 230, U. S.

BOOK 57,

LAWYERS' EDITION,

CITED "LAW. ED."

COMPLETE WITH HEAD LINES, HEAD NOTES, STATEMENTS OF CASES, POINTS AND AUTHORITIES OF COUNSEL, FOOT NOTES AND PARALLEL REFERENCES.

BY

THE PUBLISHERS' EDITORIAL STAFF

---

THE LAWYERS CO-OPERATIVE PUBLISHING COMPANY,
ROCHESTER, NEW YORK.

COPYRIGHT © 1912 BY THE LAWYERS CO-OPERATIVE PUBLISHING CO.

JUSTICES

OF THE

SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

DURING THE TIME OF THESE REPORTS.

---

CHIEF JUSTICE,

HON. EDWARD DOUGLASS WHITE.

ASSOCIATE JUSTICES,

HON. JOSEPH MCKENNA.
HON. OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES,
HON. WILLIAM R. DAY,
HON. HORACE H. LURTON,
HON. CHARLES EVANS HUGHES,
HON. WILLIS VAN DEVANTER,
HON. JOSEPH RUCKER LAMAR,
HON. MAHLON PITNEY.

ATTORNEY GENERAL,

HON. GEORGE W. WICKERSHAM.
HON. JAMES CLARK MCREYNOLDS.[1]

SOLICITOR GENERAL,

HON. WILLIAM MARSHALL BULLITT.[2]

CLERK,

JAMES HALL MCKENNEY, ESQ.

REPORTER,

HON. CHARLES HENRY BUTLER.

MARSHAL,

JOHN MONTGOMERY WRIGHT, ESQ.

[1] Commission ordered recorded, March 10, 1913.
[2] Commission ordered recorded, October 15, 1912.

ALLOTMENT, ETC., OF THE

JUSTICES OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

March 18, 1912.

TOGETHER WITH THE DATES OF THEIR COMMISSIONS AND COMMENCEMENTS OF SERVICE, RESPECTIVELY.

For Order of Court Making Allotment, see 56 L. ed. Appendix XL., p. 1208.

| Names of Justices, and Whence Appointed. | By Whom Appointed. | Circuits. 1902–1903. | Commissioned. | Sworn in. |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Associate Justice OLIVER WENDELL HOLMES, Massachusetts. | President Roosevelt. | First. Me., N. H., Mass., R. I. | 1902. (Dec. 4.) | 1902. (Dec. 8.) |
| Associate Justice CHARLES E. HUGHES, New York. | President Taft. | Second. Vermont, Conn., New York. | 1910. (May 2.) | 1910. (Oct. 10.) |
| Associate Justice MAHLON PITNEY, New Jersey. | President Taft. | Third. New Jersey, Pa., Del. | 1912. (Mar. 13.) | 1912. (Mar. 18.) |
| Chief Justice EDWARD D. WHITE, Louisiana. | President Taft. | Fourth. Md., Va., N. C., W. Va., S. C. | 1910. (Dec. 12.) | 1910. (Dec. 19.) |
| Associate Justice JOSEPH R. LAMAR, Georgia. | President Taft. | Fifth. Ga., Ala., Fla., Miss., La., Tex. | 1910. (Dec. 17.) | 1911. (Jan. 3.) |
| Associate Justice WILLIAM R. DAY, Ohio. | President Roosevelt. | Sixth. Ky., Tenn., Ohio, Mich. | 1903. (Feb. 23.) | 1903. (Mar. 2.) |
| Associate Justice HORACE H. LURTON, Tennessee. | President Taft. | Seventh. Ind., Ill., Wis. | 1909. (Dec. 20.) | 1910. (Jan. 3.) |
| Associate Justice WILLIS VAN DEVANTER, Wyoming. | President Taft. | Eighth. Minn., Iowa, Mo., Kan., Ark., Neb., Colo., N. D., S. D., Utah, Wyo., Oklahoma, New Mex. | 1910. (Dec. 16.) | 1911. (Jan. 3.) |
| Associate Justice JOSEPH McKENNA, California. | President McKinley. | Ninth. Cal., Or., Nev., Mont., Wash., Idaho, Alaska,* Arizona, Hawaii.* | 1898. (Jan. 21.) | 1898. (Jan. 26.) |

*Territories assigned to circuits by order of the Supreme Court.

GENERAL TABLE OF CASES REPORTED

IN THIS BOOK.

VOLUMES 226, 227, 228, 229, 230.

A.

Abbey, Plested v. ..... 724
Abilene Nat. Bank v. Dolley (228 U. S. 1) ..... 707
Adams, Bugajewitz v. ..... 978
v. Milwaukee (228 U. S. 572) 971
v. Russell (229 U. S. 353) .. 1224
Schwartz v. ..... 680
Weiner v. ..... 980
Adams Express Co. v. Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 631) 1359
v. Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 632) ..... 1359
v. Croninger (226 U. S. 491) 314
v. Davidson (Mem.) (229 U. S. 629) ..... 1358
United States v. ..... 1237
v. Vervaeke (Mem.) (229 U. S. 627) ..... 1357
v. Wright (Mem.) (229 U. S. 629) ..... 1358
A. D. Howe Machine Co. v. Coffield Motor Washer Co. (Mem.) (227 U. S. 677) ..... 700
Adler v. Henkel (Mem.) (227 U. S. 683) ..... 702
Aiken, Riter-Conley Mfg. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1353
Ainsa, Sanford v. ..... 1033
Alexander, Redmond v. (Mem.) .... 702
St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. .... 486
Allen, Crenshaw v. (Mem.) ..... 384
v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. (230 U. S. 553) ..... 1625
v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. (230 U. S. 553) ..... 1625
v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 612) 382
Ambrose, Illinois ex rel., Commercial Life Ins. Co. v. ..... 701
American Bell Teleph. Co., National Telephone Mfg. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 376
American Fidelity Co. v. Velie (Mem.) (226 U. S. 607) 379
American Nat. Bank v. Miller (229 U. S. 517) ..... 1310
American R. Co. v. Didricksen (227 U. S. 145) ..... 456
American Realty Co. v. Thompkins (Mem.) (226 U. S. 624) 386
American Steel Barrel Co., Ex parte (230 U. S. 35) ..... 1379
American Street Flushing Mach. Co. v. St. Louis Street Flushing Mach. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 621) ..... 1355
Anderson v. Connecticut (Mem.) (226 U. S. 603) ..... 377
v. Smith (226 U. S. 439) ..... 289
United States v. ..... 727
Andrews v. Partridge (228 U. S. 479) 929
Aragon, New Mexico ex rel., v. Bd. of County Comrs. ..... 413
Architectural Decorating Co., National Surety Co. v. ..... 221
Arizona Copper Co. v. Gillespie (230 U. S. 46) ..... 1384
Arkansas, Barnhill v. ..... 569
Crenshaw v. ..... 565
Gannaway v. ..... 565
Rogers v. ..... 569
Armstrong, Re (Mem.) (227 U. S. 676) ..... 699
Arnold, Skeele Coal Co. v. (Mem.) 381
Ashon v. Conservation Com. of La. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 606) 1348
Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Chaves de Padilla (Mem.) (226 U. S. 618) ..... 384
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) .... 1571
Knott v. ..... 1571
v. Tack (Mem.) (226 U. S. 615) ..... 383
Athanasaw v. United States (227 U. S. 326) ..... 528
Atlanta, Shaw v. (Mem.) ..... 702
Atlanta Journal Co., United States v. (Mem.) ..... 1348
Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co., Harrington v. (Mem.) ..... 1349

Atwater v. Hassett (Mem.) (227 U. S. 684) ..... 702
Austro-American Steamship Co. v. Ramjak (Mem.) (229 U. S. 627) ..... 1357
A. Wilbert's Sons Shingle & Lumber Co., Wood v. ..... 264

B.

Backus, Calmels v. (Mem.) ..... 384
Diaz de Noya v. (Mem.) ..... 1359
Savart v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
Vinol v. (Mem.) ..... 384
Bacon v. Illinois (227 U. S. 504) 615
Bailey v. Sanders (228 U. S. 603) .. 985
Baker, Lamb v. (Mem.) ..... 385
Swigart v. ..... 1143
v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 615) ..... 1352
Baltimore & O. R. Co., United States v. ..... 1169
Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co., Morse v. (Mem.) ..... 384
United States v. ..... 104
Baltimore Equitable Soc., Pittsburg Steel Co. v. ..... 297
Bamford, Russell v. (Mem.) ..... 386
v. Russell (Mem.) (226 U. S. 623) ..... 386
Bank, Abilene Nat., v. Dolley (228 U. S. 1) ..... 707
American Nat., v. Miller (229 U. S. 517) ..... 1310
Boylston Nat., Studley v. (229 U. S. 523) ..... 1313
Citizens, v. Keys (229 U. S. 179) ..... 1140
Citizens Nat., v. Davisson (229 U. S. 212) ..... 1153
Continental & C. T. & S., v. Chicago Title & T. Co. (229 U. S. 435) ..... 1268
Farmers & M., v. Maines (Mem.) (226 U. S. 610) . 380
First Nat., Ex parte (228 U. S. 516) ..... 946
First Nat., v. Keys (229 U. S. 179) ..... 1140
First Nat., v. Littlefield (226 U. S. 110) ..... 145
Merchants Nat., v. Sexton (228 U. S. 634) ..... 998
Barela, Bond v. ..... 1204
Barnhill v. Arkansas (227 U. S. 401) 569
Barrett v. Indiana (229 U. S. 26) .. 1050
Barron v. McKinnon (Mem.) (229 U. S. 630) ..... 1358
Barry v. United States (229 U. S. 47) 1060
Bartell v. United States (227 U. S. 427) ..... 583
Bauer & Cie. v. O'Donnell (229 U. S. 1) ..... 1041
Baxter v. Buchholz-Hill Transp. Co. (227 U. S. 637) ..... 681
Beach v. United States (226 U. S. 243) ..... 295
Beckwith, Malleable Iron Range Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 700
Bemis Car Box Co., J. G. Brill Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 382
Benedict, Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. ..... 1288
Bennett v. United States (227 U. S. 333) ..... 531
Big Vein Coal Co. v. Read (229 U. S. 31) ..... 1053
Blackburn v. Irvine (Mem.) (229 U. S. 622) ..... 1356
Blackford, Salsburg v. (Mem.) ..... 1351
Blackwell v. Southern P. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 631) ..... 1359
Blair, Farmer's Loan & Trust Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1356
Bledsoe, M. Kahn & Bro. v. (Mem.) .. 384
Block v. Meridian (Mem.) (226 U. S. 607) ..... 379
Blount v. Downs (Mem.) (226 U. S. 609) ..... 380
Board of Chosen Freeholders, New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. 499
Board of County Comrs v. Home Sav. Bank (Mem.) (229 U. S. 610) ..... 1380
New Mexico ex rel. Aragon v. 413
Bogart v. Southern P. Co. (228 U. S. 137) ..... 700
Boise Artesian H. & C. Water Co., Boise City v. ..... 1400
v. Boise City (230 U. S. 84) 1400
v. Boise City (230 U. S. 96) 1409
Boise City, Boise Artesian H. & C. Water Co. v. ..... 1400
v. Boise Artesian H. & C. Water Co. (230 U. S. 84) ..... 1400
Bond v. Barela (229 U. S. 488) .. 1292
Borja, White v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
Bouvier-Iaeger Coal Land Co., Sypher v. (Mem.) ..... 382
Boyd, Camp v. ..... 1317
Northern P. R. Co. v. ..... 981
Boylston Nat. Bank, Studley v. .... 1313
Bradford v. United States (228 U. S. 446) ..... 912
v. United States (230 U. S. 560) ..... 1630
Bradley v. Richmond (227 U. S. 477) 603
Braun v. Russell (Mem.) (226 U. S. 623) ..... 380
Breese v. United States (226 U. S. 1) 97
Briggs, Lewis Blue Point Oyster Cultivation Co. v. ..... 1063
Bright v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 602) 377
Brill Co. See J. G. Brill Co. v. Bemis Car Box Co.

Brooklyn Min. & Mill. Co. v. Miller (227 U. S. 194) ..... 478
Brooks v. Central Sainte Jeanne (228 U. S. 688) ..... 1025
Brown, Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. 1204
Hochstadter v. (Mem.) ..... 1353
Morse v. (Mem.) ..... 1348
v. Powers (Mem.) (226 U. S. 620) ..... 385
v. Powers (Mem.) (226 U. S. 621) ..... 385
v. United States (229 U. S. 53) 1063
v. Washington (Mem.) (229 U. S. 603) ..... 1347
Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co., Rexford v. ..... 864
Bryant Lumber Co., Fourche River Lumber Co. v. ..... 1498
Buchhols-Hill Transp. Co., Baxter v. 681
Buck Stove & Range Co. v. Vickers (226 U. S. 205) ..... 189
Bugajewits v. Adams (228 U. S. 585) 978
Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. v. United States (226 U. S. 548) ..... 345
v. Williams (Mem.) (229 U. S. 611) ..... 1351
Burckett, St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1347
Burden, Houghton v. ..... 780
Burgdorf v. Mayhew (Mem.) (226 U. S. 622) ..... 385
Burleson, Journal of Commerce & C. Bulletin v. ..... 1190
Journal of Commerce & C. Bulletin v. (Mem.) ..... 1347
Burlingham v. Crouse (228 U. S. 459) 920
Burnet v. Desmornes y Alvarez (226 U. S. 145) ..... 159
Butts v. Merchants & M. Transp. Co. (230 U. S. 126) ..... 1422

C.

Calmels v. Backus (Mem.) (226 U. S. 619) ..... 384
Cameron Septic Tank Co. v. Knoxville (227 U. S. 39) ..... 407
Camp v. Boyd (229 U. S. 530) ..... 1317
Campbell v. Northwest Eckington Improv. Co. (229 U. S. 561) 1330
Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. .... 1604
Southern P. Co. v. ..... 1610
Carl, Kansas City S. R. Co. v. ..... 683
Carlisle Packing Co., Deming v. .... 140
Cassidy v. Silver King Coalition Mines Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 611) ..... 381
Castello, Sanchez de Larragoiti v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Cella v. Henkel (Mem.) (227 U. S. 683) ..... 702
Central Lumber Co. v. South Dakota (226 U. S. 157) ..... 164
Central R. Co. of N. J. v. Colasurdo (Mem.) (226 U. S. 617) . 383
Central Saints Jeanne, Brooks v. .. 1025
Central Union Teleph. Co., United States Teleph. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
Central Vermont R. Co. v. Redmond (Mem.) (227 U. S. 682) 702
Chafin, Union Steamboat Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
Chain, Ex parte (Mem.) (227 U. S. 676) ..... 699
Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co., Adams Express Co. v. (Mem.) 1359
Champion Lumber Co., United States ex rel., v. Fisher (227 U. S. 445) ..... 591
Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Co., United States v. ..... 1063
v. United States (229 U. S. 53) 1063
Chan Kam v. Steward (Mem.) (226 U. S. 602) ..... 377
Charlton v. Kelly (229 U. S. 447) .. 1274
Chaves de Padilla, Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. (Mem.) .... 384
Chavez, United States v. ..... 950
Cherry, Gring v. (Mem.) ..... 382
Chesapeake & O. R. Co., Bright v. (Mem.) ..... 377
Clinger v. (Mem.) ..... 376
v. Conley (230 U. S. 513) .. 1597
Chesborough, Wood v. ..... 1018
Chicago, Glos v. (Mem.) ..... 375
Illinois ex rel. Gersch v. ..... 295
Metropolis Theater Co. v. .... 730
v. Munroe (Mem.) (229 U. S. 609) ..... 1350
Preston v. ..... 293
Schmidinger v. ..... 364
Sells v. (Mem.) ..... 1353
Chicago & A. R. Co., Knott v. .... 1595
v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) .. 1595
Chicago & E. R. Co. v. Ebersole (Mem.) (226 U. S. 601) 376
Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Rowlands (Mem.) (229 U. S. 627) .. 1357
Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Cram (228 U. S. 70) ..... 734
v. Hall (229 U. S. 511) .... 1306
Knott v. ..... 1571
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) .... 1571
v. Kyle (228 U. S. 85) ..... 741
v. Miller (226 U. S. 513) .... 323
Chicago Dock & Canal Co. v. Fraley (228 U. S. 680) ..... 1022
Chicago G. W. R. Co., Knott v. .... 1571
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) .... 1571
Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. Hackett (228 U. S. 559) ..... 966
Chicago Junction R. Co. v. United States (226 U. S. 286) .. 226
Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Kiley (Mem.) (226 U. S. 621) 385
Knott v. ..... 1595

Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Brown (229 U. S. 317) ..... 1204
v. Dowell (229 U. S. 102).... 1090
v. Hardwick Farmers Elevator Co. (226 U. S. 426) .... 284
Knott v. ..... 1571
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) .... 1571
v. Schwyhart (227 U. S. 184) 473
Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. v. Latta (226 U. S. 519) .. 328
Chicago Title & T. Co., Continental & C. T. & S. Bank v. .... 1268
Chippewa Indians, United States v... 1299
Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co., Lang v. (Mem.) ..... 701
Chuoco Tiaco v. Forbes. See TIACO v. FORBES.
Citizens Bank v. Keys (229 U. S. 179) 1140
Citizens Nat. Bank v. Davisson (229 U. S. 212) ..... 1153 Citizens Teleph. Co. v. Fuller (229 U. S. 322) ..... 1206
v. Fuller (229 U. S. 335) .... 1215
Citizens Wholesale Supply Co. v. Snyder (Mem.) (229 U. S. 609) ..... 1350
Clarke v. Rogers (228 U. S. 534) .. 953
Clements v. Northrop (Mem.) (227 U. S. 677) ..... 700
Clinger v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 602) 376
Coca Cola Co., Gay-Ola Co. v. (Mem.) 1352
Coffield Motor Washer Co., A. D. Howe Machine Co. v. (Mem.)... 700
Colasurdo, Central R. Co. of N. J. v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Collins v. John W. Danforth Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 629).. 1358
Colorado & N. W. R. Co. v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 605) ..... 1348
Columbian University, Taylor v. .... 152
Commercial Acetylene Co., Fireball Gas Tank & Illuminating Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 700
Commercial Life Ins. Co. v. Illinois ex rel. Ambrose (Mem.) (227 U. S. 681) ..... 701
Compañia de los Ferrocarriles de Puerto Rico v. Rohrer (Mem.) (227 U. S. 681).. 701
Congregación De La Misión de San Vincente de Paul v. Reyes y Mijares (Mem.) (227 U. S. 682) ..... 702
Conley, Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v... 1597
Connecticut, Anderson v. (Mem.) .. 377
Conroy v. Penn Electrical Mfg. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 612) 381
Conservation Com. of La., Ashon v. (Mem.) ..... 1348 Consolidated Turnp. Co. v. Norfolk & O. V. R. Co. (228 U. S. 326) ..... 357
v. Norfolk & O. V. R. Co. (228 U. S. 596) ..... 962
Continental & C. T. & S. Bank v. Chicago Title & T. Co. (229 U. S. 435) ..... 1268
Cook, Ex parte (Mem.) (226 U. S. 600) ..... 375
Cooper v. Pratt (Mem.) (226 U. S. 606) ..... 379
Cordova v. Folgueras y Rijos (227 U. S. 375) ..... 556
Cotton, Cue v. (Mem.) ..... 384
Cram, Chicago B. & Q. R. Co. v..... 734
Cramer v. Hurd (Mem.) (229 U. S. 623) ..... 1356
Cramp & Sons Ship & Engine Bldg. Co. v. International Curtis Marine Turbine Co. See WILLIAM CRAMP & SONS SHIP & ENGINE BLDG. CO. v. INTERNATIONAL CURTIS MARINE TURBINE CO.
Crawford, Hebert v. ..... 800
Creamery Package Mfg. Co., Virtue v. 393
Crenshaw v. Allen (Mem.) (226 U. S. 619) ..... 384
v. Arkansas (227 U. S. 389).. 565
Croninger, Adams Exp. Co. v. ..... 314
Croom, Florida ex rel. Wailes v. .... 235
Crouse, Burlingham v. ..... 920
Cue v. Cotton (Mem.) (226 U. S. 620) ..... 384
Cumberland Teleph. & Teleg. Co., Owensboro v. ..... 1389
Cureton v. Georgia (Mem.) (229 U. S. 630) ..... 1358
v. Georgia (Mem.) (229 U. S. 631) ..... 1358

D.

Dade v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 610) ..... 1351
Dakota Cattle Co. v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 625) 1356
Daniels, Portland Gold Mining Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1351
Dante, Ex parte (228 U. S. 429) .. 905
Velati v. (Mem.) ..... 700
Darnell v. Indiana (226 U. S. 390) 267
Davidson, Adams Express Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
Davis v. Las Ovas Co. (227 U. S. 80) 426
Marks v. (Mem.) ..... 702
v. Smokeless Fuel Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 617) ..... 1353
Davisson, Citizens Nat. Bank v. .... 1153
De Bary v. Louisiana (227 U. S. 108) 441
Degge v. Hitchcock (229 U. S. 162) 1125
De la Fuente, Treat v. ..... 1369

Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. Pedersen v. 1125
Troxell v. ..... 586
Deming v. Carlisle Packing Co. (226 U. S. 102) ..... 140
Denver v. Denver Union Water Co. (229 U. S. 123) ..... 1101
v. New York Trust Co. (229 U. S. 123) ..... 1101
Wheeler v. ..... 1219
Denver Union Water Co., Denver v... 1101
Desmornes y Alvarez, Burnet v. .... 159
Detroit, Detroit United R. Co. v. .... 1056
Detroit F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Federal Ins. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 620) ..... 1354
Detroit Steel Cooperage Co. v. Sistersville Brewing Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 608) ..... 379
Detroit United R. Co. v. Detroit (229 U. S. 39) ..... 1056
Diaz de Noya v. Backus (Mem.) (229 U. S. 631) ..... 1359
Didricksen, American R. Co. v. ..... 456
Dill v. Ebey (229 U. S. 199) ..... 1148
District of Columbia v. Petty (229 U. S. 593) ..... 1343
Dixie Tobacco Co., Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. ..... 980
Dobson v. Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 633) ..... 1359
Dr. Jack Pot Min. Co., Work Min. & Mill. Co. v. (Mem.) .... 380
Dolbear v. Foreign Mines Development Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 621) ..... 1355
Dolley, Abilene Nat. Bank v. ..... 707
Donnelly v. United States (228 U. S. 243) ..... 820
v. United States (228 U. S. 708) ..... 1035
Dowell, Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. 1090
Downs, Blount v. (Mem.) ..... 380
Duffield, San Francisco Chemical Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1350
Dumey v. Hernandez y Bello (227 U. S. 375) ..... 556
Dunlevy & Brother Co. v. Forrest (Mem.) (226 U. S. 607) 379

E.

Earnest, Norfolk & W. R. Co. v... 1096
East Tennessee Teleph. Co., Paducah v. ..... 1286
Eaton, Higgins v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
Ebersole, Chicago & E. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 376
Ebey, Dill v. ..... 1148
Edson, Strang v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
Edwards, Ex parte (228 U. S. 516) 946
St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. 506
Eichel & Weikel, El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. ..... 369
Eisemann, Ex parte (Mem.) (227 U. S. 675) ..... 699
Elliott, Fletcher v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel (226 U. S. 590).. 369
Ensign v. Pennsylvania (227 U. S. 592) ..... 658
Erving, Sweeney v. ..... 815
Ettor v. Tacoma (228 U. S. 148).... 773
Eubank v. Richmond (226 U. S. 137) 156
Evans v. United States (226 U. S. 567) ..... 353
Everett v. Judson (228 U. S. 474) .. 927
Ewing v. Leavenworth (226 U. S. 464) ..... 303
Ex parte American Steel Barrel Co. (230 U. S. 35) ..... 1379
Chain (Mem.) (227 U. S. 676) 699
Cook (Mem.) (226 U. S. 600) 375
Dante (228 U. S. 429) ..... 905
Edwards (228 U. S. 516) .... 946
Eisemann (Mem.) (227 U. S. 675) ..... 699
First Nat. Bank (228 U. S. 516) ..... 946
Force (Mem.) (229 U. S. 608) 1350
King (Mem.) (226 U. S. 606) 379
McGee (Mem.) (227 U. S. 676) 699
Patterson (Mem.) (229 U. S. 608) ..... 1350
United States (226 U. S. 420) 281
Wilcox (Mem.) (229 U. S. 603) 1347

F.

Farmers & M. Bank v. Maines (Mem.) (226 U. S. 610) ..... 380
Farmer's Loan & Trust Co. v. Blair (Mem.) (229 U. S. 624) 1356
Faultless Rubber Co., Star Rubber Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1356
F. B. Williams Cypress Co. v. Louisiana (Mem.) (226 U. S. 603) ..... 377
Federal Ins. Co., Detroit F. & M. Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
Ferry, Michigan Trust Co. v. ..... 867
Fidelity & Casualty Co., Harvey v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
Fidelity Trust Co. v. Gaskell (Mem.) (226 U. S. 616) ..... 383
Fields v. White (Mem.) (229 U. S. 625) ..... 1356
Fireball Gas Tank & Illuminating Co. v. Commercial Acetylene Co. (Mem.) (227 U. S. 677) ..... 700
First Nat. Bank, Ex parte (228 U. S. 516) ..... 946
v. Keys (229 U. S. 179) ..... 1140
v. Littlefield (226 U. S. 110) 145
Fisher, Phillips v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
United States ex rel. Champion Lumber Co. v. ..... 591

Fisher, United States ex rel. Knight v. 709
Fletcher v. Elliott (Mem.) (229 U. S. 627) ..... 1357
Florida ex rel. Wailes v. Croom (226 U. S. 309) ..... 235
Folger v. Putnam (Mem.) (227 U. S. 679) ..... 701
Folgueras y Rijos, Cordova v. ..... 556
Forbes, Gan Tico v. ..... 960
Sy Chang v. ..... 960
Tiaco v. ..... 960
Force, Ex parte (Mem.) (229 U. S. 608) ..... 1350
Foreign Mines Development Co., Dolbear v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
Foreman, United States ex rel., v. Meyer (227 U. S. 452) .. 594
Forrest, Dunlevy & Brother Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 379
Fourche River Lumber Co. v. Bryant Lumber Co. (230 U. S. 316) ..... 1498
443 Cans of Frozen Egg Product v. United States (226 U. S. 172) ..... 174
Fraley, Chicago Dock & Canal Co. v. ..... 1022
Francis v. McNeal (228 U. S. 695) 1029
Frederich De Bary & Co. v. Louisiana. See De Bary v. Louisiana.
Friend v. Talcott (228 U. S. 27) .. 718
Frosch v. Walter (228 U. S. 109).. 750
Fuller, Citizens Teleph. Co. v. ..... 1206
Fuller Co., George A., v. McCloskey. See George A. Fuller Co. v. McCloskey.
Furey, Keatley v. ..... 273

G.

Gaines, Wynkoop H. C. Co. v. ..... 391
Gannaway v. Arkansas (227 U. S. 389) ..... 565
Gan Tico v. Forbes (228 U. S. 549) 960
Gaskell, Fidelity Trust Co. v. (Mem.) 383
Gaynor, Suesskind v. (Mem.) ..... 1359
Gay-Ola Co. v. Coca Cola Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 613) ..... 1352
George, United States v. ..... 712
George A. Fuller Co. v. McCloskey (228 U. S. 194) ..... 795
Georgia, Cureton v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
Loeb v. (Mem.) ..... 384
German Alliance Ins. Co. v. Home Water Supply Co. (226 U. S. 220) ..... 195
German Ins. Co. v. Kentucky use of Louisville School Board (Mem.) (226 U. S. 622) 385
Gersch, Illinois ex rel., v. Chicago (226 U. S. 451) ..... 295
Gilkinson, Western U. Teleg. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 386
Gillespie, Arizona Copper Co. v. ... 1264
Gilsonite Roofing & Pav. Co., St. Louis Fair Asso. v. (Mem.) 385
Gleason v. Thaw (Mem.) (229 U. S. 613) ..... 1361
Glos v. Chicago (Mem.) (226 U. S. 599) ..... 375
Goodrich, Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1349
Gordon, Robertson v. ..... 236
Gorman v. Littlefield (229 U. S. 19) 1047
Gould, Murphy v. (Mem.) ..... 382
Grady v. Wisconsin (228 U. S. 115) 754
Graham, Gutierrez del Arroyo v. ... 472
Graham y Frazer, Rosaly v. ..... 655
Grand Trunk W. R. Co. v. South Bend (227 U. S. 544) ..... 633
Grant v. United States (227 U. S. 74) 423
Grant Bros. Constr. Co., Santa Fe, P. & P. R. Co v. ..... 787
Gray, Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 384
v. Taylor (227 U. S. 51) ..... 413
Great Northern R. Co. v. Sloan (Mem.) (226 U. S. 617) .. 383
Greenwood Grocery Co., Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. ..... 380
Gregorio Sy Quia, Sy Joc Lieng v... 382
Greystoke Castle S. S. Co., Haas v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Grider v. Groff (Mem.) (229 U. S. 611) ..... 1351
Gring v. Cherry (Mem.) (226 U. S. 614) ..... 382
Groff, Grider v. (Mem.) ..... 1351
Guardian Assur. Co. v. Quintana (227 U. S. 100) ..... 437
v. Quintana (Mem.) (229 U. S. 626) ..... 1357
Guasti, Miller v. ..... 173
Guffey v. Smith (Mem.) (227 U. S. 677) ..... 700
Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. McGinnis (228 U. S. 173) ..... 785
v. Thorn (Mem.) (227 U. S. 675) ..... 699
Gustafson, Hanson v. (Mem.) ..... 376
Gustaveson v. Iowa (Mem.) (227 U. S. 681) ..... 701
Gutierrez del Arroyo v. Graham (227 U. S. 181) ..... 472

H.

Haas v. Greystoke Castle S. S. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 617).. 383
Hackett, Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. .. 966
Hackfeld & Co., Shigematsu v. (Mem.) ..... 702
Hall, Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. ..... 1306
v. Huff (Mem.) (227 U. S. 677) ..... 700
v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 622) ..... 382

Hallowell, McLaughlin Bros. v. ..... 835
Hamburg-American Line, North German Lloyd v. (Mem.) .... 1355
Hammond v. Northern Indiana Gas & Electric Co. v. (Mem.) ... 382
Hampton v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. (227 U. S. 456) ..... 596
Hannum v. United States (226 U. S. 436) ..... 287
Hanson v. Gustafson (Mem.) (226 U. S. 600) ..... 376
Hardin v. Union Trust Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 606) ..... 379
Harding, Zimmerman v. ..... 608
v. Zimmerman (227 U. S. 489) 608
Hardwick Farmers Elevator Co., Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v... 284
Haring, Holden v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
Harlan & Hollingsworth, United States Use of, Title Guaranty & Surety Co. v. 969
Harper v. Taylor (Mem.) (226 U. S. 611) ..... 381
v. Victor (Mem.) (229 U. S. 605) ..... 1348
Harriman Bros., Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. ..... 690
Harrington v. Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 607) .. 1349
Harris, Pearson v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
v. United States (227 U. S. 340) .....534
Hart v. Northern P. R. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 609) .....380
Hartford F. Ins. Co., Marquisee v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
Hartford Rubber Works Co. v. Metallic Rubber Tire Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 614) 382
Harty v. Victoria (226 U. S. 12) .... 103
Harvey v. Fidelity & Casualty Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 614) .. 1352
Texas & P. R. Co. v. ..... 852
Harvey Steel Co., Midvale Steel Co. v. ..... 464
United States v. ..... 464
Hassett, Atwater v. (Mem.) ..... 702
Hastings v. Malone (Mem.) (229 U. S. 618) ..... 1353
Hawaii, Toyota v. ..... 180
Hebert v. Crawford (228 U. S. 204) .. 800
Heike v. United States (227 U. S. 131) ..... 450
Henderson Elevator Co., Illinois C. R. Co. v. ..... 290
Henkel, Adler v. (Mem.) ..... 702
Cella, v. (Mem.) ..... 702
McNamara v. ..... 330
Hernandez y Bello, Dumey v. ..... 556
Hernandez y Morales, Ochoa v. ..... 1427
Hesterly, St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. ..... 1031
Heyl, Smoot v. ..... 621
Heyser, St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Hibbs, National Safe Deposit S. & T. Co. v. ..... 1241
Higgins v. Eaton (Mem.) (229 U. S. 622) ..... 1355
Hubbell v. (Mem.) ..... 703
Higson, North River Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Hitchcock, Degge v. ..... 1135
Journal of Commerce & C. Bulletin v. ..... 1190
Maury v. ..... 1135
Smith v. ..... 119
Tousey v. ..... 119
Hochstadter v. Brown (Mem.) (229 U. S. 615) ..... 1353
Hogan v. Keys (229 U. S. 179) ..... 1140
Hoke v. United States (227 U. S. 308) 523
Holden v. Haring (Mem.) (229 U. S. 621) ..... 1355
Home Sav. Bank, Bd. of County Comrs. v. (Mem.) ..... 1350
Home Teleph. & Teleg. Co. v. Los Angeles (227 U. S. 278) ... 510
Home Water Supply Co., German Alliance Ins. Co. v. ..... 195
Houghton v. Burden (228 U. S. 161) 780
Howard, Robertson v. ..... 1174
v. Tacoma 228 U. S. 148) .. 773
v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 626) ..... 1356
Hoy, Johnson v. ..... 497
Hubbell v. Higgins (Mem.) (227 U. S. 684) ..... 703
Hudson County, New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. ..... 499
Huff, Hall v. (Mem.) ..... 700
Hughes, United States v. ..... 1374
v. United States (230 U. S. 24) 1374
Hurd, Cramer v. (Mem.) ..... 1356
Hurst, Monongahela River Consol. Coal & Coke Co. v. (Mem.) 380
Hutchinson v. Valdosta (227 U. S. 303) ..... 520

I.

Illinois, Bacon v. ..... 615
Illinois ex rel. Gersch v. Chicago (226 U. S. 451) ..... 295
Ambrose Commercial Life Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 701
Illinois C. R. Co. v. Henderson Elevator Co. (226 U. S. 441) 290
Indiana, Barrett v. ..... 1050
Darnell v. ..... 287
Ins. Co., Commercial Life, v. Illinois ex rel. Ambrose (Mem.) (227 U. S. 681) ..... 701
Detroit F. & M., v. Federal Ins. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 620) ..... 1354

Ins. Co., German v. Kentucky use of Louisville School Board (Mem.) (226 U. S. 622) .. 385
German Alliance, v. Home Water Supply Co. (226 U. S. 220) ..... 195
Hartford F., Marqusee v. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 621) 1355
New York Life, Slocum v. (228 U. S. 364) ..... 879
North River, v. Higson (Mem.) (226 U. S. 615) ..... 383
Seaboard F. & M., v. Monteleone (Mem.) (226 U. S. 621) ..... 385
Travelers,' Lynch v. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 616) ..... 1353
International Coal Mining Co., Pennsylvania R. Co. v. ..... 1446
International Curtis Marine Turbine Co., William Cramp & Sons Ship & E. Bldg., Co. v.... 1003
Interstate Commerce Commission v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (227 U. S. 88) ..... 431
Omaha & C. B. Street R. Co. v. 1501
Iowa, Gustaveson v. (Mem.) ..... 701
Marshall Dental Mfg. Co. v. .. 300
Irvine, Blackburn v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
Pullman Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 703
Isidore Newman & Son, Lovell v. ..... 577

J.

Jackson v. United States (230 U. S. 1) ..... 1363
Jackson Vinegar Co., Yazoo & M. Valley R. Co. v. ..... 193
Jacob Doll & Sons v. Ribetti (Mem.) (229 U. S. 616) ..... 1353
James v. Stone & Co. (227 U. S. 410) 573
J. F. Rowley Co. v. Rowley (Mem.) (229 U. S. 610) ..... 1350
J. G. Brill Co. v. Bemis Car Box Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 614) .. 382
Johnson v. Hoy (227 U. S. 245) .... 497
v. United States (228 U. S. 457) ..... 919
John W. Danforth Co., Collins v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
Joline, United States v. (Mem.) .... 701
Jones, Missouri-Edison Electric Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
v. Springer (226 U. S. 148) .. 161
Jordan v. Roche (228 U. S. 436) .. 908
v. Ross (228 U. S. 436) ..... 908
Journal of Commerce & C. Bulletin v. Burleson (229 U. S. 288) 1190
v. Burleson (Mem.) (229 U. S. 600) ..... 1347
v. Hitchcock. See JOURNAL OF COMMERCE & C. BULLETIN v. BURLESON.
Judson, Everett v. ..... 927

K.

Kaelin, Meeker v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
Kahn & Bro. v. Bledsoe. See M. KAHN & BRO. v. BLEDSOE.
Kalanianaole v. Smithies (226 U. S. 462) ..... 303
Kansas ex rel. Taggart, Kansas City v. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 599) 375
Kansas City v. Kansas ex rel. Taggart (Mem.) (226 U. S. 599) .. 375
Kansas City, C. & S. R. Co., Knott v. 1571
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) .... 1571
Kansas City S. R. Co. v. Carl (227 U. S. 639) ..... 683
Knott v. ..... 1571
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Keatley v. Furey (226 U. S. 399).... 273
Kelly, Charlton v. ..... 1274
Kennedy, Simpson v. ..... 1511
Kentucky use of Louisville School Board, German Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 385
Kettenbach v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 613) ..... 1352
Keys, Citizens Bank v. ..... 1140
First Nat. Bank v. ..... 1140
Hogan v. ..... 1140
Keystone Land & Cattle Co. v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 626) ..... 1356
Keystone Type Foundry v. National Compositype Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 613) ..... 382
Kharas v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 610) ..... 1350
Kiley, Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 385
King, Ex parte (Mem.) (226 U. S. 606) ..... 379
Shelton v. ..... 1086
Kirkpatrick v. McBride (Mem.) (229 U. S. 612) ..... 1351
Kitchen, St. Louis, & S. F. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Knight, Lutcher & M. Lumber Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 381
United States ex rel., v. Lane (228 U. S. 6) ..... 703
Knott, Atchison T. & S. F. R. Co. v. 1571
v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago & A. R. Co. v. ..... 1595
v. Chicago & A. R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. .. 1571
v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago G. W. R. Co. v. .... 1571
v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. 1595
v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595

Knott, Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. 1571
v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Kansas City, C. & S. R. Co. v. 1571
v. Kansas City, C. & S. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Kansas City S. R. Co. v. .... 1571
v. Kansas City S. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Missouri K. & T. R. Co. v. .. 1571
v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Missouri P. R. Co. v. ..... 1595
v. Missouri, P. R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Quincy O. & K. C. R. Co. v. .. 1595
v. Quincy, O. & K. C. R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Joseph & G. I. R. Co. v. .. 1595
v. St. Joseph, & G. I. R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis & H. R. Co. v. ..... 1571
v. St. Louis & H. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. .. 1571
v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. 1571
v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis, K. C. & C. R. Co. v. 1596
v. St. Louis, K. C. & C. R. Co. (230 U. S. 512) ..... 1596
St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. ... 1595
v. St. Louis S. W. R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Wabash R. Co. v. ..... 1595
v. Wabash R. Co. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Knoxville, Cameron Septic Tank Co. v. 407
Kohler Die & Specialty Co., The Fair v. ..... 716
Kovoloff v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 609) ..... 380
Kyle, Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. .... 741

L.

Lacey, Texas & P. R. Co. v. (Mem.) 1357
Lair v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 609) ..... 1350
Lamb v. Baker (Mem.) (226 U. S. 621) ..... 385
Lane, United States ex rel. Knight v. 709
Lang v. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. (Mem.) (227 U. S. 680) .. 701
Las Ovas Co., Davis v. ..... 426
Latta, Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. v. ..... 328
Lattig, Scott v. ..... 490
Lawrence v. Southern P. Co. See Bogart v. Southern P. Co.
Leavenworth, Ewing v. ..... 303
Leichtman, Zavelo v. (Mem.) ..... 378
Lem Woon v. Oregon (229 U. S. 586) 1340
Lewis Blue Point Oyster Cultivation Co. v. Briggs (229 U. S. 82) ..... 1083
Lewisohn, Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. (Mem.) . 1352
Lewis Pub. Co. v. Morgan (229 U. S. 288) ..... 1190
v. Wyman (228 U. S. 610) .. 989
Lexington Mill & Elevator Co., United States v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
Lieng v. Quia. See Sy Joc Lieng v. Gregorio Sy Quia.
Littlefield, First Nat. Bank v. ..... 145
Gorman v. ..... 1047
Loeb v. Georgia (Mem.) (226 U. S. 618) ..... 384
Long Jim, Starr v. ..... 670
Lord, Munsuri v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
Los Angeles, Home Teleph. & Teleg. Co. v. ..... 510
Louisiana, De Bary v. ..... 441
Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. Swift (Mem.) (227 U. S. 676) ..... 699
Louisiana, F. B. Williams Cypress Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 377
Louisiana Nav. Co. v. Oyster Commission (226 U. S. 99) .. 138
Louisville & N. R. Co., Interstate Commerce Commission v... 431
Wright v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
Louisville School Board, Kentucky use of, German Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 385 Lovell v. Isidore Newman & Son. See Lovell v. Newman.
v. Newman (227 U. S. 412) .. 577
Lucas v. Lucas (Mem.) (229 U. S. 626) ..... 1357
Luke v. Smith (227 U. S. 379) ..... 558
Lundrigan, Robinson v. ..... 468
Lutcher & M. Lumber Co. v. Knight (Mem.) (226 U. S. 610) .. 381
Lyle v. Patterson (228 U. S. 211) .. 804
Lynch, Purity Extract & Tonic Co. v. 184
v. Travelers' Ins. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 616) ..... 1353
Lynchburg Investment Co., Rudolph v. (Mem.) ..... 1354

M.

McBride, Kirkpatrick v. (Mem.) ... 1351
McCabe v. Maysville & B. S. R. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 601) 376
McCloskey, George A. Fuller Co. v. .. 795
McCoach v. Minehill & S. H. R. Co. (228 U. S. 295) ..... 842
McCoach v. Pratt (Mem.) (229 U. S. 614) ..... 1352
McDermott v. Wisconsin (228 U. S. 115) ..... 754

McGee, Ex parte (Mem.) (227 U. S. 676) ..... 699
McGinnis, Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. 785
McGovern v. New York (229 U. S. 363) ..... 1228
McGowan v. Parish (228 U. S. 312) 849
v. Parish (Mem.) (227 U. S. 679) ..... 700
Mackay v. Uinta Development Co. (229 U. S. 173) ..... 1138
McKimmie, Wilkinson v. ..... 1341
McKinnon, Barron v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
McLaughlin Bros. v. Hallowell (228 U. S. 278) ..... 835
McLean v. United States (226 U. S. 374) ..... 260
MacLeod v. United States (229 U. S. 416) ..... 1260
McNamara v. Henkel (226 U. S. 520) 330
McNeal, Francis v. ..... 1029
McWhirter, St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. ..... 1179
Madera, Madera Waterworks v. .... 915
Madera Waterworks v. Madera (228 U. S. 454) ..... 915
Mahoning Valley R. Co. v. O'Hara (Mem.) (226 U. S. 607).. 379
Maines, Farmers & M. Bank v. (Mem.) ..... 380
Maisen v. Weis (Mem.) (227 U. S. 685) ..... 703
Malleable Iron Range Co. v. Beckwith (Mem.) (227 U. S. 678) ..... 700
Malone, Hastings v. (Mem.) ..... 1353
Mansour v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 604) ..... 378
Marian Coal Co. v. Peale (Mem.) (229 U. S. 623) ..... 1355
Marks v. Davis (Mem.) (227 U. S. 682) ..... 702
Marquisee v. Hartford F. Ins. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 621) 1355
Marrone v. Washington Jockey Club (227 U. S. 633) ..... 679
Marshall, United States v. (Mem.) .. 379
Marshall Dental Mfg. Co. v. Iowa (226 U. S. 460) ..... 300
Martin, Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1349
Mason, United States v. ..... 607
Matheson v. United States (227 U. S. 540) ..... 631
Maury v. Hitchcock (229 U. S. 162) 1135
May v. United States (Mem.) (227 U. S. 678) ..... 700
v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 617) ..... 1353
Mayhew, Burgdorf v. (Mem.) ..... 385
Maysville & B. S. R. Co., McCabe v. (Mem.) ..... 376
Medley v. West Virginia (Mem.) (226 U. S. 605) ..... 378
Meeker v. Kaelin (Mem.) (229 U. S. 628) ..... 1357
Mengel v. Mengel (Mem.) (227 U. S. 675) ..... 699
Merchants & M. Transp. Co., Butts v. 1422
Merchants Nat. Bank v. Sexton (228 U. S. 634) ..... 998
Merchant's Trust Co., Wright v. (Mem.) ..... 1359
Meridian, Block v. (Mem.) ..... 379
Mesa, United States v. ..... 953
Metallic Rubber Tire Co., Hartford Rubber Works Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 382
Metropolis Theater Co. v. Chicago (228 U. S. 61) ..... 730
Meyer, United States ex rel. Foreman v. ..... 594
Michigan C. R. Co. v. Vreeland (227 U. S. 59) ..... 417
Michigan Trust Co. v. Ferry (228 U. S. 346) ..... 867
Midvale Steel Co. v. Harvey Steel Co. (227 U. S. 165) ..... 464
Mille Lac Band, United States v. ... 1299
Miller, American Nat. Bank v. ..... 1310
Brooklyn Min. & Mill. Co. v. 478
Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. .. 323
v. Guasti (226 U. S. 170) .. 173
Milwaukee, Adams v. ..... 971
Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Gray (Mem.) (226 U. S. 618).. 384
Minehill & S. H. R. Co., McCoach v. 842
Minnesota Rate Cases. See SIMPSON v. SHEPARD.
Mississippi Valley Fuel Co. v. Watson Coal Co. (Mem.) (227 U. S. 680) ..... 701
Missouri-Edison Electric Co. v. Jones (Mem.) (229 U. S. 615) 1352
Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Goodrich (Mem.) (229 U. S. 607) 1349
v. Harriman Bros. (227 U. S. 657) ..... 690
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) .... 1571
Knott v. ..... 1571
v. United States (Mem.) (227 U. S. 678) ..... 700
v. Wulf (226 U. S. 570) .... 255
Missouri P. R. Co., Knott v. ..... 1595
v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) .... 1595
v. Tucker (230 U. S. 340) .... 1507
Missouri Rate Cases. See KNOTT v. CHICAGO, B. & Q. R. Co.
Mitchell v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 611) ..... 381
Mitchell Coal & Coke Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (230 U. S. 247) ..... 1472
M. Kahn & Bro. v. Bledsoe (Mem.) (226 U. S. 618) ..... 384
Monash-Younker Co., Van Anken v. (Mem.) ..... 381

Monett, Monett Electric Light, P. & I. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 386
Monett Electric Light, P. & I. Co. v. Monett (Mem.) (226 U. S. 624) ..... 386
Monongahela River Consol. Coal & Coke Co. v. Hurst (Mem.) (226 U. S. 608) ..... 380
v. Schinnerrer (Mem.) (226 U. S. 608) ..... 380
Schinnerrer v. (Mem.) ..... 381
Monteleone, Seaboard F. & M. Ins. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 385
Montgomery v. Read (Mem.) (227 U. S. 681) ..... 701
Moore, Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. 907
Morgan, Lewis Pub. Co. v. ..... 1190
Morgan & Wright, Republic Rubber Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 379
Morris, Svor v. ..... 623
Morrisdale Coal Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co. (230 U. S. 304) .. 1494
Morse v. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 619) 384
v. Brown (Mem.) (229 U. S. 604) ..... 1348
v. United States (229 U. S. 208) ..... 1152
Mosler v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 619) ..... 1354
Moyer, Re (228 U. S. 652) ..... 1010
Munroe, Chicago v. (Mem.) ..... 1350
Munsuri v. Lord (Mem.) (229 U. S. 608) ..... 1350
v. Lord (Mem.) (229 U. S. 618) ..... 1354
Murchie, Shaw v. ..... 309
Wheeler v. ..... 309
Murphy v. Gould (Mem.) (226 U. S. 613) ..... 382
Murray v. Pocatello (226 U. S. 318) 239

N.

Nalle v. Oyster (230 U. S. 165) .... 1439
Nash v. United States (229 U. S. 373) 1232
National Compositype Co., Keystone Type Foundry v. (Mem.) 382
National Discount Co., Van Iderstine v. ..... 652
National Home for D. V. S. v. Parrish (229 U. S. 494) ..... 1296
National Safe Deposit S. & T. Co. v. Hibbs (229 U. S. 391) .. 1241
National Surety Co. v. Architectural Decorating Co. (226 U. S. 276) ..... 221
v. Western P. R. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 616) ..... 1353
National Telephone Mfg. Co. v. American Bell Teleph. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 600) 376
Nebraska, United States Exp. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Neiman-Marcus Co., Wells Fargo & Co. v. ..... 600
Nemcof v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 615) ..... 1352
Newcomb v. Washington (Mem.) (227 U. S. 625) ..... 1356
Newman, Lovell v. ..... 577
New Mexico ex rel. Aragon v. Bd. of County Comrs. (227 U. S. 51) ..... 413
Newport News Ship Building & Dry Dock Co. v. The Saratoga (Mem.) (229 U. S. 623) 1355
New York, McGovern v. ..... 1228
Rosenthal v. ..... 212
United States v. (Mem.) .... 384
New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. Board of Chosen Freeholders (227 U. S. 248) ..... 499
v. Hudson County. See New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. Board of Chosen Freeholders.
New York Life Ins. Co., Slocum v. 879
New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. River & Harbor Transp. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 609) ..... 380
New York Trust Co., Denver v. ... 1101
Norfolk & O. V. R. Co., Consolidated Turnp. Co. v. ..... 982
Norfolk & W. R. Co. v. Dixie Tobacco Co. (228 U. S. 593) .. 980
v. Earnest (229 U. S. 114) .. 1096
Northern Commercial Co., United States v. (Mem.) ..... 385
Northern Indiana Gas & Electric Co. v. Hammond (Mem.) (226 U. S. 615) ..... 382
Northern P. R. Co. v. Boyd (228 U. S. 482) ..... 931
Hart v. (Mem.) ..... 380
v. United States (227 U. S. 355) ..... 544
Winfree v. ..... 518
North German Lloyd v. Hamburg-American Line (Mem.) (229 U. S. 622) ..... 1355
North River Ins. Co. v. Higson (Mem.) (226 U. S. 615) ..... 383
Northrop, Clements v. (Mem.) ..... 700
Northwest Eckington Improv. Co., Campbell v. ..... 1330

O.

O'Brien v. Schneider (Mem.) (229 U. S. 629) ..... 1358
Ochoa v. Hernandez y Morales (230 U. S. 139) ..... 1427
O'Donnell, Bauer & Cie v. ..... 1041
O'Hara, Mahoning Valley R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 379

Old Colony Trust Co. v. Omaha (230 U. S. 100) ..... 1410
Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn (Mem.) (229 U. S. 613) .. 1352
Omaha, Old Colony Trust Co. v. .. 1410
Omaha Electric Light & Power Co. v. 1419
Omaha & C. B. Street R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission (230 U. S. 324) .. 1501
Omaha Electric Light & Power Co. v. Omaha (230 U. S. 123) .. 1419
Oregon, Lem Woon v. ..... 1340
Ross v. ..... 458
Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Campbell (230 U. S. 525) ..... 1604
v. Martin (Mem.) (229 U. S. 606) ..... 1349
Orozco, Treat v. (Mem.) ..... 1359
Owensboro v. Cumberland Teleph. & Teleg. Co. (230 U. S. 58) 1389
Oyster, Nalle v. ..... 1439
Oyster Commission, Louisiana Nav. Co. v. ..... 138

P.

Pacific & A. R. & Nav. Co., United States v. ..... 742
Pacific Creosoting Co. v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 619) ..... 1354
Paducah v. East Tennessee Teleph. Co. (229 U. S. 476 ) ..... 1286
Parish, McGowan v. ..... 849
McGowan v. (Mem.) ..... 700
Park Rapids Lumber Co. v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 605) ..... 378
Parrish, National Home for D. V. S. v. ..... 1296
Partridge, Andrews v. ..... 929
Patten, United States v. ..... 333
Patterson, Ex parte (Mem.) (229 U. S. 608) ..... 1350
Lyle v. ..... 804
v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 609) ..... 380
Peale, Marian Coal Co. v. (Mem.) .. 1355
Pearson v. Harris (Mem.) (229 U. S. 619) ..... 1354
Pedersen v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. (229 U. S. 146) ..... 1125
Penn Electrical Mfg. Co., Conroy v. (Mem.) ..... 381
Pennsylvania, Ensign v. ..... 658
Pennsylvania R. Co. v. International Coal Mining Co. (230 U. S. 184) ..... 1446
Mitchell Coal & Coke Co. v. .. 1472
Morrisdale Coal Co. v. ..... 1494
Petty, Dist. of Columbia v. ..... 1343
Phillips v. Fisher (Mem.) (229 U. S. 630) ..... 1358
Phœnix Knitting Works v. Rich (Mem.) (227 U. S. 684) .. 703
Pico v. United States (228 U. S. 225) 312
Pittsburg Steel Co. v. Baltimore Equitable Soc. (226 U. S. 455) 297
Plested v. Abbey (228 U. S. 42) .... 724
Plumley, United States v. ..... 342
v. United States (226 U. S. 545) ..... 342
Pocatello, Murray v. ..... 239
Portland, Southern P. Co. v. ..... 642
Portland Gold Mining Co. v. Daniels (Mem.) (229 U. S. 611) .. 1351
Portland R. L. & P. Co. v. Railroad Commission (229 U. S. 397) ..... 1248
v. Railroad Commission (229 U. S. 414) ..... 1259
Porto Rico, Rodriguez v. (Mem.) .. 1356
v. Rosaly y Castillo (227 U. S. 270) ..... 507
v. Title Guaranty & S. Co. (227 U. S. 382) ..... 561
Post Printing & Pub. Co. v. Shafroth (Mem.) (226 U. S. 602) .. 377
Powers, Brown v. (Mem.) ..... 385
Prater, Texas & P. R. Co. v. ..... 1139
Pratt, Cooper v. (Mem.) ..... 379
McCoach v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
Prentis, United States ex rel. Zimmerspitz v. (Mem.) ..... 1347
Preston v. Chicago (226 U. S. 447) .. 293
Producers Oil Co., Wadkins v. ..... 551
Pullman Co. v. Irvine (Mem.) (227 U. S. 685) ..... 703
Purity Extract & Tonic Co. v. Lynch (226 U. S. 192) ..... 184
Putnam, Folger v. (Mem.) ..... 701

Q.

Quia, Lieng v. ..... 862
Quincy O. & K. C. R. Co., Knott v. .. 1595
v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) .... 1596
Quintana, Guardian Assur. Co. v. .... 437
Guardian Assur. Co. v. (Mem.) 1357

R.

Railroad & Nav. Co., Oregon, v. Campbell (230 U. S. 525) ..... 1604
v. Martin (Mem.) (229 U. S. 606) ..... 1349
Railroad Commission, Portland R. L. & P. Co. v. ..... 1248
v. Texas & P. R. Co. (229 U. S. 336) ..... 1215
Railroad Co., American, v. Didrickson (227 U. S. 145) ..... 456
Baltimore & O., United States v. (229 U. S. 244) ..... 1169

Railroad Co., Baltimore & O. S. W., United States v. (226 U. S. 14) ..... 104
Central of N. J., v. Colasurdo (Mem.) (226 U. S. 617) .. 383
Chicago & E., v. Ebersole (Mem.) (226 U. S. 601) .. 376
Chicago, B. & Q., v. Cram (228 U. S. 70) ..... 734
Chicago, B. & Q. v. Hall (229 U. S. 511) ..... 1306
Chicago, B. & Q. v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago, B. & Q., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago, B. & Q., v. Kyle (228 U. S. 85) ..... 741
Choctaw, O. & G., Lang v. (Mem.) (227 U. S. 680) .. 701
Colorado & N. W., v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 605) ..... 1348
Delaware, L. & W., Troxell v. (227 U. S. 434) ..... 586
El Paso & S. W., v. Eichel & Weikel (226 U. S. 590) .. 369
Illinois C., v. Henderson Elevator Co. (226 U. S. 441) .. 290
Louisville & N., Interstate Commerce Commission v. (227 U. S. 88) ..... 431
Louisville & N., Wright v. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 618) .. 1354
Maysville & B. S., McCabe v. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 601) . 376
Michigan C., v. Vreeland (227 U. S. 59) ..... 417
Minehill & S. H., McCoach v. (228 U. S. 295) ..... 842
Minneapolis & St. L., v. Gray (Mem.) (226 U. S. 618) .. 384
New York C. & H. R., v. Board of Chosen Freeholders (227 U. S. 248) ..... 499
New York, N. H. & H., v. River & Harbor Transp. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 609) .. 380
Pennsylvania, v. International Coal Mining Co. (230 U. S. 184) ..... 1446
Pennsylvania, Mitchell Coal & Coke Co. v. (230 U. S. 247) 1472
Pennsylvania, Morrisdale Coal Co. v. (230 U. S. 304) .... 1494
Quincy, O. & K. C., v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Quincy, O. & K. C., Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis & S. F., v. Heyser (Mem.) (226 U. S. 615) 383
St. Louis & S. F., v. Kitchen (Mem.) (226 U. S. 616) .. 383
St. Louis & S. F., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Railroad Co., St. Louis, & S. F., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
St. Louis, K. C. & C., v. Knott (230 U. S. 512) ..... 1596
St. Louis, K. C. & C., Knott v. (230 U. S. 512) ..... 1596
Southern P., v. United States (228 U. S. 618) ..... 993
Texas & N. O., v. Sabine Tram Co. (227 U. S. 111) ..... 442
Union P., Stuart v. (227 U. S. 342) ..... 535
Union P., United States v. (226 U. S. 61) ..... 124
Union P., United States v. (226 U. S. 470) ..... 306
Wabash, v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Wabash, Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Yazoo & M. V., v. Greenwood Grocery Co. (227 U. S. 1) 389
Yazoo & M. Valley, v. Jackson Vinegar Co. (226 U. S. 217) ..... 193
Railway & Nav. Co., Pacific & A., United States v. (228 U. S. 87) ..... 742
Railway Co., Atchison, T. & S. F., v. Chaves de Padilla (Mem.) (226 U. S. 618) ..... 384
Atchison, T. & S. F., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Atchison, T. & S. F., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Atchison, T. & S. F., v. Tack (Mem.) (226 U. S. 615) 383
Baltimore & O. S. W., Morse v. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 619) . 384
Central Vermont, v. Redmond (Mem.) (227 U. S. 682) .. 702
Chesapeake & O., Bright v. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 602) .. 377
Chesapeake & O., Clinger v. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 602) .. 376
Chesapeake & O., v. Conley (230 U. S. 513) ..... 1597
Chicago & A., v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Chicago & A., Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Chicago & N. W. v. Rowlands (Mem.) (229 U. S. 627) .. 1357
Chicago, B. & Q., v. Miller (226 U. S. 513) ..... 323
Chicago G. W., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago G. W., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago, I. & L. v. Hackett (228 U. S. 559) ..... 666
Chicago Junction, v. United States (226 U. S. 286) .. 228

Railway Co., Chicago, M. & St. P., v. Kiley (Mem.) (226 U. S. 621) ..... 385
Chicago, M. & St. P., Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Chicago, M. & St. P., v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Chicago, R. I. & P., v. Brown (229 U. S. 317) ..... 1204
Chicago, R. I. & P., v. Dowell (229 U. S. 102) ..... 1090
Chicago, R. I. & P., v. Hardwick Farmers Elevator Co. (226 U. S. 426) ..... 284
Chicago, R. I. & P., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago, R. I. & P., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Chicago, R. I. & P., v. Schwyhart (227 U. S. 184) .... 473
Chicago, St. P. M. & O., v. Latta (226 U. S. 519) .. 328
Delaware, L. & W., Pedersen v. (229 U. S. 146) ..... 1125
Detroit United, v. Detroit (229 U. S. 39) ..... 1056
Grand Trunk W., v. South Bend (227 U. S. 544) ..... 633
Great Northern, v. Sloan (Mem.) (226 U. S. 617).. 383
Gulf, C. & S. F., v. McGinnis (228 U. S. 173) ..... 785
Gulf, C. & S. F., v. Thorn (Mem.) (227 U. S. 675).. 699
Kansas City, C. & S., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Kansas City, C. & S., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Kansas City S., v. Carl (227 U. S. 639) ..... 683
Kansas City S., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Kansas City S., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Mahoning Valley, v. O'Hara (Mem.) (226 U. S. 607) .. 379
Missouri, K. & T., v. Goodrich (Mem.) (226 U. S. 607).. 379
Missouri K. & T., v. Harriman Bros. (227 U. S. 657) .... 690
Missouri, K. & T., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Missouri, K. & T., Knott v. (203 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Missouri, K. & T. v. United States (Mem.) (227 U. S. 678) ..... 700
Missouri, K. & T., v. Wulf (226 U. S. 570) ..... 355
Missouri, P., Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Missouri, P., v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
Missouri P., v. Tucker (230 U. S. 340) ..... 1507
Railway Co., Norfolk & O. V., Consolidated Turnp. Co. v. (228 U. S. 326) ..... 857
Norfolk & O. V., Consolidated Turnp. Co. v. (228 U. S. 596) ..... 982
Norfolk & W., v. Dixie Tobacco Co. (228 U. S. 593) ..... 980
Norfolk & W., v. Earnest (229 U. S. 114) ..... 1096
Northern P., v. Boyd (228 U. S. 482) ..... 931
Northern P., Hart v. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 609) ..... 380
Northern P., v. United States (227 U. S. 355) ..... 544
Northern P., Winfree v. (227 U. S. 296) ..... 518
Omaha & C. B. Street, v. Interstate Commerce Commission (230 U. S. 324) ..... 1501
St. Joseph & G. I., v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Joseph, & G. I., Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis, & H., Knott v. (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
St. Louis & H., v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
St. Louis, I. M. & S., Allen v. (230 U. S. 553) ..... 1625
St. Louis, I. M. & S., v. Edwards (227 U. S. 265) .. 506
St. Louis, I. M. & S., Hampton v. (227 U. S. 456) ..... 596
St. Louis, I. M. & S., v. Hesterly (228 U. S. 702) ..... 1031
St. Louis, I. M. & S., Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis, I. M. & S., v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis, I. M. & S., v. McWhirter (229 U. S. 265) .. 1179
St. Louis, S. F. & T., v. Seale (229 U. S. 156) ..... 1129
St. Louis S. W., v. Alexander (227 U. S. 218) ..... 486
St. Louis S. W., Allen v. (230 U. S. 553) ..... 1625
St. Louis S. W., v. Burckett (Mem.) (229 U. S. 603) .. 1347
St. Louis, S. W., v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis S. W., Knott v. (230 U. S. 509) ..... 1595
St. Louis S. W., v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 622) ..... 1355
Sante Fe, P. & P., v. Grant Bros. Constr. Co. (228 U. S. 177) ..... 787
Seaboard Air Line, Allen v. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 612).. 382

Railway Co., Seaboard Air Line, v. Moore (228 U. S. 433) ... 907
Texas & P., v. Harvey (228 U. S. 319) ..... 852
Texas & P., v. Lacey (Mem.) (229 U. S. 628) ..... 1357
Texas & P., v. Prater (229 U. S. 177) ..... 1139
Texas & P., Railroad Commission v. (229 U. S. 336) .. 1215
Texas & P., v. Shipp (Mem.) (229 U. S. 623) ..... 1356
Texas & P., v. Stewart (228 U. S. 357) ..... 875
Western P., v. National Surety Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 616) ..... 1353
Ramjak, Austro-American Steamship Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
Re Armstrong (Mem.) (227 U. S. 676) ..... 699
Moyer (228 U. S. 652) ..... 1010
Scholl (228 U. S. 652)..... 1010
Spencer (228 U. S. 652) .... 1010
Read, Big Vein Coal Co. v. ..... 1053
Montgomery v. (Mem.) ..... 701
Reading Co., United States v. ..... 243
v. United States (226 U. S. 324) ..... 243
v. United States (228 U. S. 158) ..... 779
Redmond v. Alexander (Mem.) (227 U. S. 683) ..... 702
Central Vermont R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 702
Reeves, Zavelo v. ..... 676
United States v. (Mem.) .... 1351
Republic Rubber Co. v. Morgan & Wright (Mem.) (226 U. S. 608) ..... 379
Rexford v. Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. (228 U. S. 339).. 864
Reyes y Mijares, Congregación de la Misión de San Vincente de Paul v. (Mem.) ..... 702
Rhea v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 617) ..... 1353
Ribetti, Jacob Doll & Sons v. (Mem.) 1353
Rich, Phoenix Knitting Works v. (Mem.) ..... 703
Richmond, Bradley v. ..... 602
Eubank v. ..... 156
Riter-Conley Mfg. Co. v. Aiken (Mem.) (229 U. S. 617).. 1353
River & Harbor Transp. Co., New York N. H. & H. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 380
Robertson v. Gordon (226 U. S. 311) 236
v. Howard (229 U. S. 254) .. 1174
Robinson v. Lundrigan (227 U. S. 173) ..... 468
Roche, Jordan v. ..... 908
Rodriguez v. Porto Rico (Mem.) (229 U. S. 625) ..... 1356
Rogers v. Arkansas (227 U. S. 401) 569
Clarke v. ..... 963
Rohrer, Compañia de los Ferrocarriles de Puerto Rico v. (Mem.) 701
Rosaly v. Graham y Frazer (227 U. S. 584) ..... 655
Rosaly y Castillo, Porto Rico v. .... 507
Rosenthal v. New York (226 U. S. 260) ..... 212
Ross, Jordan v. ..... 908
v. Oregon (227 U. S. 150) .... 458
v. Stewart (227 U. S. 530) .. 626
Rowlands, Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
Rowley, J. F. Rowley Co. v. (Mem.) . 1350
Rudolph v. Lynchburg Investment Corp. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 618) ..... 1354
Ruggles, Throckmorton v. (Mem.)... 1356
Russell, Adams v. ..... 1234
Bamford v. (Mem.) ..... 386
v. Bamford (Mem.) (226 U. S. 623) ..... 386
Braun v. (Mem.) ..... 386

S.

Sabine Tram Co., Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. ..... 442
St. Joseph & G. I. R. Co., Knott v... 1595
v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) .... 1595
St. Louis & H. R. Co. v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) ..... 1571
Knott v. ..... 1571
St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Heyser (Mem.) (226 U. S. 615) .. 383
v. Kitchen (Mem.) (226 U. S. 616) ..... 383
v. Knott (230 U. S. 474) .... 1571
Knott v. ..... 1571
St. Louis Fair Asso. v. Gilsonite Roofing & Pav. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 623) ..... 385
St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co., Allen v. 1625
v. Edwards (227 U. S. 265) .. 506
Hampton v. ..... 596
v. Hesterly (228 U. S. 702).. 1031
v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) .... 1595
Knott v. ..... 1595
v. McWhirter (229 U. S. 265) 1179
St. Louis, K. C. & C. R. Co., Knott v. 1596
v. Knott (230 U. S. 512) ... 1596
St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. Seale (229 U. S. 156) ..... 1129
St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Alexander (227 U. S. 218) ..... 486
Allen v. ..... 1625
v. Burckett (Mem.) (229 U. S. 603) ..... 1347
Knott v. ..... 1595
v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) ... 1595
v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 622) ..... 1355

St. Louis Street Flushing Mach. Co., American Street Flushing Mach. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
St. Marys Power Co. v. United States (229 U. S. 53) ..... 1062
Salsburg v. Blackford (Mem.) (229 U. S. 612) ..... 1351
Samuels v. Read. See MONTGOMERY v. READ.
Sanchez, Veve y Diaz v. ..... 201
v. Veve y Diaz (Mem.) (229 U. S. 628) ..... 1357
Sanchez de Larragoiti v. Castello (Mem.) (226 U. S. 617) .. 383
Sanders, Bailey v. ..... 985
Sanford v. Ainsa (228 U. S. 705) .. 1033
San Francisco Chemical Co. v. Duffield (Mem.) (229 U. S. 609) ..... 1350
Santa Fe, P. & P. R. Co. v. Grant Bros. Constr. Co. (228 U. S. 177) ..... 787
Saratoga, The, Newport News Ship Building & Dry Dock Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
Savart v. Backus (Mem.) (229 U. S. 630) ..... 1358
Schinnerrer, Monongahela River Consol. Coal & Coke Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 380
v. Monongahela River Consol. Coal & Coke Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 612) ..... 381
Schmidinger v. Chicago (226 U. S. 578) ..... 364
Schmidt, Southwestern Brewery & Ice Co. v. ..... 170
Schneider, O'Brien v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
Scholl, Re (228 U. S. 652) ..... 1010
Schuyler, Southern P. Co. v. ..... 662
Schwartz v. Adams (228 U. S. 592) 980
Schwyhart, Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. ..... 473
Scott v. Lattig (227 U. S. 229) .... 490
Seaboard Air Line R. Co., Allen v. (Mem.) ..... 382
v. Moore (228 U. S. 433) .... 907
Seaboard F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Monteleone (Mem.) (226 U. S. 621) ..... 385
Seale, St. Louis, S. F. & T. R. Co. v. 1129
Sells v. Chicago (Mem.) (229 U. S. 616) ..... 1353
Selover, B. & Co. v. Walsh (226 U. S. 112) ..... 146
Sexton, Merchants Nat. Bank v. .... 998
Shafroth, Post Printing & Pub. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 377
Shaw v. Atlanta (Mem.) (227 U. S. 683) ..... 702
v. Murchie (226 U. S. 478) .. 309
v. United States (226 U. S. 478) ..... 309
Shelley, United States v. ..... 1167
Shelton v. King (229 U. S. 90) .... 1086
Shepard, Simpson v. ..... 1511
Shigematsu v. Hackfeld & Co. (Mem.) (227 U. S. 684) ..... 702
Shillaber, Simpson v. ..... 1511
Shine v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 613) ..... 382
Shipp v. Texas & P. R. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 623) ..... 1356
Ship-y-Tuck v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 604) ..... 378
Silver King Coalition Mines Co., Cassidy v. (Mem.) ..... 381
v. Silver King Consolidated Mining Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 624) ..... 1356
Silver King Consolidated Mining Co., Silver King Coalition Mines Co. v. (Mem.) .... 1356
Simpson v. Kennedy (230 U. S. 352) 1511
v. Shepard (230 U. S. 352) .. 1511
v. Shillaber (230 U. S. 352) .. 1511
Singer Sewing Machine Co. v. Benedict (229 U. S. 481) .... 1288
Sistersville Brewing Co., Detroit Steel Cooperage Co. v. (Mem.) 379
Skeele Coal Co. v. Arnold (Mem.) (226 U. S. 612) ..... 381
Sloan, Great Northern R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Slocum v. New York Life Ins. Co. (228 U. S. 364) ..... 879
Smith, Anderson v. ..... 289
Guffey v. (Mem.) ..... 700
v. Hitchcock (226 U. S. 53) .. 119
Luke v. ..... 558
Smithies, Kalanianaole v. ..... 303
Smokeless Fuel Co., Davis v. (Mem.) 1353
Smoot v. Heyl (227 U. S. 518) .... 621
Snow, Wilson v. ..... 807
Snyder, Citizens Wholesale Supply Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1350
Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. ..... 611
Société Anonyme des Sucreries de St. Jean v. United States (Mem.) (226 U. S. 600) .. 375
South Amboy, Susquehanna Coal Co. v. ..... 1015
South Bend, Grand Trunk W. R. Co. v. ..... 633
South Dakota, Central Lumber Co. v. 164
Southern P. Co., Blackwell v. (Mem.) 1359
Bogart v. ..... 768
v. Campbell (230 U. S. 537) .. 1610
v. Portland (227 U. S. 559) 642
v. Schuyler (227 U. S. 601) .. 662
v. United States (228 U. S. 618) ..... 993
Southwestern Brewery & Ice Co. v. Schmidt (226 U. S. 162) 170
Spencer, Re (228 U. S. 652) ..... 1010
Springer, Jones v. ..... 161

Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States (226 U. S. 20) .. 107
Starkweather, Williams v. (Mem.) .. 378
Starr v. Long Jim (227 U. S. 613) 670
Star Rubber Co. v. Faultless Rubber Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 624) ..... 1356
Steward, Chan Kam v. (Mem.) .... 377
Yuk Ping v. (Mem.) ..... 377
Stewart, Ross v. ..... 626
Texas & P. R. Co. v. ..... 875
Stone & Co., James v. ..... 573
Strang v. Edson (Mem.) (229 U. S. 612) ..... 1351
Stuart v. Union P. R. Co. (227 U. S. 342) ..... 535
Studley v. Boylston Nat. Bank (229 U. S. 523) ..... 1313
Suesskind v. Gaynor (Mem.) (229 U. S. 632) ..... 1359
Summers v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 614) ..... 1352
Supreme Council Royal Arcanum, Wishart v. (Mem.) ..... 381
Supreme Ruling of the Fraternal Mystic Circle v. Snyder (227 U. S. 497) ..... 611
Susquehanna Coal Co. v. South Amboy (228 U. S. 665) ..... 1015
Svor v. Morris (227 U. S. 524) .... 623
Sweeney v. Erving (228 U. S. 233) 815
Swift, Louisiana & Texas Lumber Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 699
Swigart v. Baker (229 U. S. 187) .. 1143
Sy Chang v. Forbes (228 U. S. 549) 960
Sy Joc Lieng v. Gregorio Sy Quia (228 U. S. 335) ..... 862
Sypher v. Bouvier-Iaeger Coal Land Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 613) ..... 382

T.

Tack, Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 383
Tacoma, Ettor v. ..... 773
Howard v. ..... 773
Taggart, Kansas ex rel., Kansas City v. (Mem.) ..... 375
Talcott, Friend v. ..... 718
Talladega, Williams v. ..... 275
Taylor v. Columbian University (226 U. S. 126) ..... 152
Gray v. ..... 413
Harper v. (Mem.) ..... 381
Temple Iron Co. v. United States (226 U. S. 324) ..... 243
v. United States (228 U. S. 158) ..... 779
Terminal R. Asso. of St. Louis, United States v. (Mem.) ..... 762
Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. (227 U. S. 111) ..... 442
Texas & P. R. Co. v. Harvey (228 U. S. 319) ..... 852
v. Lacey (Mem.) (229 U. S. 628) ..... 1357
v. Prater (229 U. S. 177) .... 1139
Railroad Commission v. ..... 1215
Shipp v. (Mem.) ..... 1356
v. Stewart (228 U. S. 357) .. 875
Thaw, Gleason v. (Mem.) ..... 1351
The Fair v. Kohler Die & Specialty Co. (228 U. S. 22) ..... 716
Thompkins, American Realty Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 386
Thompson v. Thompson (226 U. S. 551) ..... 347
Thorn, Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 699
Throckmorton v. Ruggles (Mem.) (229 U. S. 624) ..... 1356
Tiaco v. Forbes (228 U. S. 549) .... 960
Title Guaranty & S. Co., Porto Rico v. 561
v. United States, use of Harlan & Hollingsworth (228 U. S. 567) ..... 969
Tousey v. Hitchcock (226 U. S. 53) .. 119
Toyota v. Hawaii (226 U. S. 184) .. 180
Travelers' Ins. Co., Lynch v. (Mem.) 1353
Treat v. de la Fuente (Mem.) (229 U. S. 633) ..... 1359
v. Orozco (Mem.) (229 U. S. 633) ..... 1359
Troxell v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. (227 U. S. 434) ..... 586
Tucker, Missouri P. R. Co. v. ..... 1507

U.

Ubeda v. Zialcita (226 U. S. 452) .. 296
Uinta Development Co., Mackay v. .. 1138
Union P. R. Co., Stuart v. ..... 535
United States v. ..... 124
United States v. ..... 306
Union Steamboat Co. v. Chafin (Mem.) (229 U. S. 620) .. 1354
Union Stock Yard & Transit Co., United States v. ..... 226
Union Trust Co., Hardin v. (Mem.) .. 379
v. Westhus (228 U. S. 519) .. 947
United States, Ex parte (226 U. S. 420) ..... 281
v. Adams Express Co. (229 U. S. 381) ..... 1237
v. Anderson (228 U. S. 52) .. 727
Athanasaw v. ..... 528
v. Atlanta Journal Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 605) ..... 1348
Baker v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. (229 U. S. 244) ..... 1169
v. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. (226 U. S. 14) ..... 104
Barry v. ..... 1060
Bartell v. ..... 583
Beach v. ..... 205

United States, Bennett v. ..... 531
Bradford v. ..... 1630
Breese v. ..... 97
Brown v. ..... 1063
Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. v. ..... 345
Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Co. v. ..... 1063
v. Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Co. (229 U. S. 53) ..... 1063
v. Chavez (228 U. S. 525) .... 950
Chicago Junction R. Co. v..... 226
v. Chippewa Indians. See UNITED STATES v. MILLE LAC BAND.
Colorado & N. W. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1348
Dade v. (Mem.) ..... 1351
Dakota Cattle Co. v. (Mem.) .. 1356
Donnelly v. ..... 820
Evans v. ..... 353
443 Cans of Frozen Egg Product v. ..... 174
v. George (228 U. S. 14) ..... 712
Grant v. ..... 423
Hall v. (Mem.) ..... 385
Hannum v. ..... 287
Harris v. ..... 534
v. Harvey Steel Co. (227 U. S. 165) ..... 464
Heike v. ..... 450
Hoke v. ..... 523
Howard v. (Mem.) ..... 1356
v. Hughes (230 U. S. 24).... 1374
Hughes v. ..... 1374
Jackson v. ..... 1363
Johnson v. ..... 919
v. Joline (Mem.) (227 U. S. 680) ..... 701
Kettenbach v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
Keystone Land & Cattle Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1356
Kharas v. (Mem.) ..... 1350
Kovoloff v. (Mem.) ..... 380
Lair v. (Mem.) ..... 1350
v. Lexington Mill & Elevator Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 619) ..... 1354
McLean v. ..... 260
MacLeod v. ..... 1260
Mansour v. (Mem.) ..... 378
v. Marshall (Mem.) (226 U. S. 607) ..... 379
v. Mason (227 U. S. 486) .... 607
Matheson v. ..... 631
May v. (Mem.) ..... 700
v. Mesa (228 U. S. 533) ..... 953
v. Mille Lac Band (229 U. S. 498) ..... 1299
Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 700
Mitchell v. (Mem.) ..... 381
Morse v. ..... 1152
Mosier v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
United States, Nash v. ..... 1232
Nemcof v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
v. New York (Mem.) (226 U. S. 619) ..... 384
v. Northern Commercial Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 622).. 385
Northern P. R. Co. v. ..... 544
v. Pacific & A. R. & Nav. Co. (228 U. S. 87) ..... 742
Pacific Creosoting Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1354
Park Rapids Lumber Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 378
v. Patten (226 U. S. 525) .... 333
Patterson v. (Mem.) ..... 380
Pico v. ..... 812
Plumley v. ..... 342
v. Plumley (226 U. S. 545) .. 342
Reading Co. v. ..... 779
v. Reading Co. (226 U. S. 324) 243
v. Reading Co. (228 U. S. 158) 779
v. Regan (Mem.) (229 U. S. 612) ..... 1351
Rhea v. (Mem.) ..... 1353
St. Louis, S. W. R. Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
St. Marys Power Co. v. ..... 1063
Shaw v. ..... 309
v. Shelley (229 U. S. 239) .... 1167
Shine v. (Mem.) ..... 382
Ship-y-Tuck v. (Mem.) ..... 378
Société Anonyme des Sucreries de St. Jean v. (Mem.) .... 375
Southern P. R. Co. v. ..... 993
Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. 107
Summers v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
Temple Iron Co. v. ..... 243
v. Terminal R. Asso. of St. Louis (Mem.) (227 U. S. 683) ..... 702
v. Union P. R. Co. (226 U. S. 61) ..... 124
v. Union P. R. Co. (226 U. S. 470) ..... 306
v. Union Stock Yard & Transit Co. (226 U. S. 286) .... 226
Walker v. (Mem.) ..... 701
Wheeler v. ..... 309
v. Whitridge (Mem.) (227 U. S. 680) ..... 701
Wilson v. (Mem.) ..... 1348
Wilson Coal Co. v. (Mem.) .. 1359
v. Winslow (227 U. S. 202) .. 481
Winters v. (Mem.) ..... 1352
v. Wright (229 U. S. 226) .... 1160
United States ex rel. Champion Lumber Co. v. Fisher (227 U. S. 445) ..... 591
Knight v. Fisher. See UNITED STATES EX REL. KNIGHT v. LANE.
Knight v. Lane (228 U. S. 6).. 709
Foreman v. Meyer (227 U. S. 452) ..... 594

United States ex rel. Zimmerspitz v. Prentis (Mem.) (229 U. S. 604) ..... 1347
United States use of Harlan & Hollingsworth, Title Guaranty & S. Co. v. ..... 969
United States Exp. Co. v. Nebraska (Mem.) (226 U. S. 616) .. 383
United States Teleph. Co. v. Central Union Teleph. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 620) ..... 1354
United Zinc Cos., Young v. (Mem.).. 382

V.

Valdosta, Hutchinson v. ..... 520
Van Auken v. Monash-Younker Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 610) .. 381
Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. (227 U. S. 575) .... 652
Velati v. Dante (Mem.) (227 U. S. 679) ..... 700
Velie, American Fidelity Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 379
Vervaeke, Adams Express Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
Vere y Diaz v. Sanchez (226 U. S. 234) ..... 201
Sanchez v. (Mem.) ..... 1357
Vickers, Buck Stove & Range Co. v. .. 189
Victor, Harper v. (Mem.) ..... 1348
Victoria, Harty v. ..... 103
Vinol v. Backus (Mem.) (226 U. S. 620) ..... 384
Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., Dobson v. (Mem.) ..... 1359
Virtue v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. (227 U. S. 8) ..... 393
Vreeland, Michigan C. R. Co. v. .... 417

W.

Wabash R. Co., Knott v. ..... 1595
v. Knott (230 U. S. 509) .... 1595
Wadkins v. Producers Oil Co. (227 U. S. 368) ..... 551
Wailes, Florida ex rel., v. Croom (226 U. S. 309) ..... 235
Walker v. United States (Mem.) (227 U. S. 679) ..... 701
Walsh, Selover, B. & Co. v. ..... 148
Walter, Frosch v. ..... 750
Washington, Brown v. (Mem.) .... 1347
Newcomb v. (Mem.) .... 1356
Washington Jockey Club, Marrone v. 679
Watson Coal Co., Mississippi Valley Fuel Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 701
Weiner v. Adams (228 U. S. 592) ... 980
Weis, Maisen v. (Mem.) ..... 703
Welch Mfg. Co. v. Young (Mem.) (229 U. S. 611) ..... 1351
Wells, Fargo & Co. v. Neiman-Marcus Co. (227 U. S. 469) ..... 600
Western P. R. Co., National Surety Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1355
Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Gilkinson (Mem.) (226 U. S. 624) .. 386
Westhus, Union Trust Co. v. ..... 947
West Virginia, Medley v. (Mem.) ... 378
Wheeler v. Denver (229 U. S. 342) 1219
v. Murchie (226 U. S. 478).... 309
v. United States (226 U. S. 478) ..... 309
White v. Borja (Mem.) (229 U. S. 626) ..... 1357
Fields v. (Mem.) ..... 1356
Whitridge, United States v. (Mem.).. 701
Wilcox, Ex parte (Mem.) (229 U. S. 603) ..... 1347
Wilkinson v. McKimmie (229 U. S. 590) ..... 1342
William Cramp & Sons Ship & E. Bldg. Co. v. International Curtis Marine Turbine Co. (228 U. S. 645) ..... 1003
Williams, Bunker Hill & Sullivan, Min. & C. Co. v. (Mem.).. 1351
v. Starkweather (Mem.) (226 U. S. 604) ..... 378
v. Talladega (226 U. S. 404) .. 275
Williams Cypress Co. See F. B. WILLIAMS CYPRESS CO. v. LOUISIANA.
Wilson v. Snow (228 U. S. 217) .... 807
v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 604) ..... 1348
Wilson Coal Co. v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 632) .. 1359
Winfree v. Northern P. R. Co. (227 U. S. 296) ..... 518
Winslow, United States v. ..... 481
Winters v. United States (Mem.) (229 U. S. 614) ..... 1352
Wisconsin, Grady v. ..... 754
McDermott v. ..... 754
Wishart v. Supreme Council Royal Arcanum (Mem.) (226 U. S. 611) ..... 381
Wolf, Zakonaite v. ..... 218
Wood v. A. Wilbert's Sons Shingle & Lumber Co. (226 U. S. 384) ..... 264
v. Chesborough (228 U. S. 672) 1018
Work Min. & Mill. Co. v. Dr. Jack Pot Min. Co. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 610) ..... 380
Wright, Adams Express Co. v. (Mem.) ..... 1358
v. Louisville & N. R. Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 618) .. 1354
v. Merchant's Trust Co. (Mem.) (229 U. S. 633) .. 1359
United States v. ..... 1160
Wulf, Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v..... 355
Wyman, Lewis Pub. Co. v. ..... 989
Wynkoop H. C. Co. v. Gaines (227 U. S. 4) ..... 391

Y.

Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Greenwood Grocery Co. (227 U. S. 1) 389
v. Jackson Vinegar Co. (226 U. S. 217) ..... 193
Young v. United Zinc Cos. (Mem.) (226 U. S. 614) ..... 382
Welch Mfg. Co. v. (Mem.) ... 1351
Yuk Ping v. Steward (Mem.) (226 U. S. 603) ..... 377

Z.

Zakonaite v. Wolf (226 U. S. 272) .. 218
Zavelo v. Leichtman (Mem.) (226 U. S. 605) ..... 378
v. Reeves (227 U. S. 625) .... 676
Zialcita, Ubeda v. ..... 296
Zimmerman, Harding v. ..... 608
v. Harding (227 U. S. 489) .. 608
Zimmerspitz, United States ex rel., v. Prentis (Mem.) (229 U. S. 604) ..... 1347

CASES

ARGUED AND DECIDED

IN THE

SUPREME COURT

OF THE

UNITED STATES

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1912.

---

Vol. 226.

57 L. ed.

REFERENCE TABLE

OF SUCH CASES

DECIDED IN U. S. SUPREME COURT,

OCTOBER TERM, 1912.

AND REPORTED HEREIN,

VOLUME 226,

AS ALSO APPEAR IN

OFFICIAL REPORTER'S EDITION.

| Off. Rep. 226 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | Breese v. United States | 97 |
| 7–10 | " " | 101 |
| 10–11 | " " | 102 |
| 12–13 | Harty v. Victoria | 103 |
| 13–14 | " " | 104 |
| 14 | United States v. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. | 104 |
| 17–19 | " " | 106 |
| 19–20 | " " | 107 |
| 20 | Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States | 107 |
| 34–36 | " " | 112 |
| 36–39 | " " | 113 |
| 39–41 | " " | 114 |
| 41–44 | " " | 115 |
| 44–47 | " " | 116 |
| 47–49 | " " | 117 |
| 49–52 | " " | 118 |
| 52 | " " | 119 |
| 53 | Smith v. Hitchcock | 119 |
| 57–58 | " " | 122 |
| 58–61 | " " | 123 |
| 61 | " " | 124 |
| 61 | United States v. Union P. R. Co. | 124 |
| 79–80 | " " | 130 |
| 80–82 | " " | 131 |
| 82–85 | " " | 132 |
| 85–87 | " " | 133 |
| 87–90 | " " | 134 |
| 90–93 | " " | 135 |
| 93–95 | " " | 136 |
| 95–98 | " " | 137 |
| 98 | " " | 138 |
| 99 | Louisiana Nav. Co. v. Oyster Commission | 138 |
| 100 | " " | 139 |
| 100–102 | " " | 140 |
| 102 | Deming v. Carlisle Packing Co. | 140 |
| 103–105 | " " | 142 |
| 105–107 | " " | 143 |
| 107–110 | " " | 144 |
| 110 | " " | 145 |
| 110–112 | First Nat. Bank v. Littlefield | 145 |
| 112 | Selover, Bates & Co. v. Walsh | 146 |
| 120–122 | " " | 150 |
| 122–124 | " " | 151 |
| 124–126 | " " | 152 |
| 126 | Taylor v. Columbian University | 152 |
| 130–132 | " " | 154 |
| 133–135 | " " | 155 |
| 135–137 | " " | 156 |
| 137 | Eubank v. Richmond | 156 |
| 140 | " " | 157 |
| 140–143 | " " | 158 |
| 143–145 | " " | 159 |
| 145 | Burnet v. Desmornes y Alvarez | 159 |
| 146–148 | " " | 160 |
| 148 | " " | 161 |
| 148 | Jones v. Springer | 161 |
| 153–155 | " " | 163 |
| 155–157 | " " | 164 |
| 157 | Central Lumber Co. v. South Dakota | 164 |
| 159 | " " | 168 |
| 159–161 | " " | 169 |
| 161–162 | " " | 170 |
| 162 | Southwestern Brewery & Ice Co. v. Schmidt | 170 |
| 167 | " " | 172 |
| 167–169 | " " | 173 |
| 170 | Miller v. Guasti | 173 |
| 170–171 | " " | 174 |
| 172 | 443 Cans of Frozen Egg Product v. United States | 174 |
| 177–179 | " " | 177 |
| 179–182 | " " | 178 |
| 182–184 | " " | 179 |
| 184 | " " | 180 |
| 184 | Toyota v. Hawaii | 180 |
| 190–191 | " " | 183 |
| 191–192 | " " | 184 |
| 192 | Purity Extract & Tonic Co. v. Lynch | 184 |
| 197–199 | " " | 186 |
| 199–202 | " " | 187 |
| 202–204 | " " | 188 |
| 204–205 | " " | 189 |

| Off. Rep. 226 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 205 | Buck Stove & Range Co. v. Vickers | 189 |
| 211-213 | " " | 191 |
| 213-216 | " " | 192 |
| 216 | " " | 193 |
| 217 | Yazoo & M. V. R. Co. v. Jackson Vinegar Co. | 193 |
| 218-219 | " " | 194 |
| 219-220 | " " | 195 |
| 220-222 | German Alliance Ins. Co. v. Home Water Supply Co. | 195 |
| 222-223 | " " | 196 |
| 227 | " " | 198 |
| 227-230 | " " | 199 |
| 230-233 | " " | 200 |
| 233-234 | " " | 201 |
| 234 | Veve y Diaz v. Sanches | 201 |
| 235-237 | " " | 202 |
| 237-240 | " " | 203 |
| 240-242 | " " | 204 |
| 242-244 | Beach v. United States | 205 |
| 244-247 | " " | 206 |
| 247-250 | " " | 207 |
| 250-252 | " " | 208 |
| 252-254 | " " | 209 |
| 254-255 | " " | 210 |
| 255-258 | " " | 211 |
| 258-260 | " " | 212 |
| 260 | Rosenthal v. New York | 212 |
| 264-265 | " " | 214 |
| 265-267 | " " | 215 |
| 267-270 | " " | 216 |
| 270-272 | " " | 217 |
| 272 | Zakonaite v. Wolf | 218 |
| 273-275 | " " | 220 |
| 275 | " " | 221 |
| 276 | National Surety Co. v. Architectural Decorating Co. | 221 |
| 278-279 | " " | 223 |
| 279-282 | " " | 224 |
| 282-285 | " " | 225 |
| 285 | " " | 226 |
| 286 | United States v. Union Stockyard & Transit Co. | 226 |
| 295 | " " | 229 |
| 295-297 | " " | 230 |
| 297-300 | " " | 231 |
| 300-303 | " " | 232 |
| 303-305 | " " | 233 |
| 305-308 | " " | 234 |
| 308-309 | " " | 235 |
| 309 | Florida ex rel. Wailes v. Croom | 235 |
| 310 | " " | 236 |
| 311 | Robertson v. Gordon | 236 |
| 312-313 | " " | 237 |
| 313-316 | " " | 238 |
| 316-317 | " " | 239 |
| 316 | Murray v. Pocatello | 239 |
| 323-324 | " " | 242 |
| 324 | United States v. Reading Co. | 243 |
| 327 | " " | 246 |
| 327-340 | " " | 247 |
| 340-342 | " " | 248 |
| 342-345 | " " | 249 |
| 345-348 | " " | 250 |

| Off. Rep. 226 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 348-351 | United States v. Reading Co. | 251 |
| 351-353 | " " | 252 |
| 353-356 | " " | 253 |
| 356-359 | " " | 254 |
| 359-361 | " " | 255 |
| 361-364 | " " | 256 |
| 364-367 | " " | 257 |
| 367-369 | " " | 258 |
| 369-372 | " " | 259 |
| 372-373 | " " | 260 |
| 374 | McLean v. United States | 260 |
| 376-379 | " " | 262 |
| 379-381 | " " | 263 |
| 381-383 | " " | 264 |
| 384 | Wood v. A. Wilbert's Sons Shingle & Lumber Co. | 264 |
| 384-386 | " " | 265 |
| 386-388 | " " | 266 |
| 388-390 | " " | 267 |
| 390 | Darnell v. Indiana | 267 |
| 397-398 | " " | 272 |
| 398 | " " | 273 |
| 399 | Keatley v. Furey | 273 |
| 401-402 | " " | 274 |
| 402-404 | " " | 275 |
| 404 | Williams v. Talladega | 275 |
| 411-413 | " " | 278 |
| 413-415 | " " | 279 |
| 415-418 | " " | 280 |
| 418-419 | " " | 281 |
| 420 | Ex parte v. United States | 281 |
| 421-423 | " " | 283 |
| 423-425 | " " | 284 |
| 426 | Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Hardwick Farmers Elevator Co. | 284 |
| 426-427 | " " | 285 |
| 433 | " " | 286 |
| 433-435 | " " | 287 |
| 436 | Hannum v. United States | 287 |
| 436-438 | " " | 288 |
| 438-439 | " " | 289 |
| 439-440 | Anderson v. Smith | 289 |
| 440-441 | " " | 290 |
| 441 | Illinois C. R. Co. v. Henderson Elevator Co. | 290 |
| 446-447 | " " | 292 |
| 447 | Preston v. Chicago | 293 |
| 449-450 | " " | 295 |
| 451 | Illinois ex rel. Gersch v. Chicago | 295 |
| 451 | " " | 296 |
| 452-453 | Ubeda v. Zialcita | 296 |
| 453-455 | " " | 297 |
| 455 | Pittsburg Steel Co. v. Baltimore Equitable Soc. | 297 |
| 457-458 | " " | 299 |
| 458-459 | " " | 300 |
| 460 | Marshall Dental Mfg. Co. v. Iowa | 300 |
| 460-462 | " " | 302 |
| 462 | " " | 303 |
| 462-463 | Kalanianaole v. Smithies | 303 |
| 464 | Ewing v. Leavenworth | 303 |
| 465-466 | " " | 304 |
| 466-469 | " " | 305 |
| 469 | " " | 306 |

| Off. Rep. 226 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 470–471 | United States v. Union P. R. Co. | 306 |
| 471–474 | " " | 307 |
| 474–477 | " " | 308 |
| 477 | " " | 309 |
| 478 | Wheeler v. United States | 309 |
| 482–485 | " " | 311 |
| 485–487 | " " | 312 |
| 487–490 | " " | 313 |
| 490 | " " | 314 |
| 491 | Adams Exp. Co. v. Croninger | 314 |
| 492–493 | " " | 315 |
| 499–500 | " " | 317 |
| 500–502 | " " | 318 |
| 502–505 | " " | 319 |
| 505–507 | " " | 320 |
| 507–510 | " " | 321 |
| 510–512 | " " | 322 |
| 512–513 | " " | 323 |
| 513 | Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Miller | 323 |
| 517–518 | " " | 327 |
| 518 | " " | 328 |
| 519 | Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. v. Latta | 328 |
| 519 | " " | 329 |
| 519–520 | " " | 330 |
| 520 | McNamara v. Henkel | 330 |
| 523–524 | " " | 332 |
| 524–525 | " " | 333 |
| 525 | United States v. Patten | 333 |
| 534–535 | " " | 338 |
| 535–536 | " " | 339 |
| 537–540 | " " | 340 |
| 540–543 | " " | 341 |
| 543–544 | " " | 342 |

| Off. Rep. 226 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 545 | Plumley v. United States | 342 |
| 545–548 | " " | 344 |
| 548 | " " | 345 |
| 548 | Bunker Hill & S. Min. & C. Co. v. United States | 345 |
| 549–550 | " " | 346 |
| 550 | " " | 347 |
| 551 | Thompson v. Thompson | 347 |
| 557 | " " | 349 |
| 557–560 | " " | 350 |
| 560–562 | " " | 351 |
| 562–565 | " " | 352 |
| 565–567 | " " | 353 |
| 567 | Evans v. United States | 353 |
| 568–569 | " " | 354 |
| 569–570 | " " | 355 |
| 570 | Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Wulf | 355 |
| 571–572 | " " | 361 |
| 572–574 | " " | 362 |
| 574–577 | " " | 363 |
| 577–578 | " " | 364 |
| 578 | Schmidinger v. Chicago | 364 |
| 583–584 | " " | 366 |
| 584–587 | " " | 367 |
| 587–589 | " " | 368 |
| 589–590 | " " | 369 |
| 590 | El Paso & S. W. R. Co. v. Eichel & Weikel | 369 |
| 591–592 | " " | 371 |
| 592–595 | " " | 372 |
| 595–597 | " " | 373 |
| 597–598 | " " | 374 |
| 599–624 | Memorandum Decisions | 375–386 |

THE DECISIONS

OF THE

Supreme Court of the United States

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1912.

---

1]*WILLIAM E. BREESE and Joseph E. Dickerson
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 1-11.)

Indictment — presentment.

1. The presentment of an indictment by the grand jury in a body is not demanded by the requirements of U. S. Const., 5th Amend., governing criminal prosecutions, and the failure so to present it does not go to the jurisdiction of the Federal court.

[For other cases, see Indictment, I., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Criminal law — presentment of indictment — waiver.

2. Any right to have an indictment quashed on motion because the foreman of the grand jury delivered it to the court in the absence of the other grand jurors was lost by the failure to raise the question until after the term, and after the denial of a previous motion to quash on other grounds, in which it was admitted that the indictment had been duly returned into open court by the grand jury, although the plea of not guilty was entered pursuant to an order providing that such plea should not operate to prevent defendants from taking advantage upon motion in arrest of judg-

---

NOTE.—Necessity that grand jury be present when indictment is presented.

To the intimation in BREESE v. UNITED STATES, that the reasons for requiring an indictment to be presented by the grand jury in a body were no longer persuasive, may be opposed several decisions holding that the return of the indictment must be made in the presence of the grand jury. Robinson v. State, 33 Ark. 180; People v. Blackwell, 27 Cal. 65; State v. Gainus, 86 N. C. 632; State v. Bordeaux, 93 N. C. 560.

And in Cachute v. State, 50 Miss. 169, the rule in Mississippi is said to be that the indictment must be brought into court by the grand jury as a body, or through the foreman, accompanied by the other jurors.

And this view is strongly upheld in Renegar v. United States, 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 683, 97 C. C. A. 172, 172 Fed. 646, 19 Ann. Cas. 1117, where the foreman of the grand jury had handed a paper indorsed "A True Bill," to the clerk of the court, when the court was not in session, and when none of the grand jurors, except the foreman, were present. The court held that this was not sufficient to place the accused on trial for an infamous crime under the provision of the Federal Constitution that no person shall be held to answer for such a crime unless by an indictment of the grand jury, and that to constitute a valid indictment, the paper must be brought publicly into court by the grand jury as a body. The court said: "The foreman is not the representative of the grand jury. He is authorized to speak for it in its presence, when called on by the court to say whether the grand jury has any presentments to make. Any other rule would put it in the power of an individual who happened to be foreman of the grand jury, to gratify personal or other malice by presenting in the form of an indictment for an infamous offense a person innocent of all crime, and subject him to the annoyance, expense, and infamy attendant upon such accusation. It is not enough to say that such a thing is improbable; that it is possible is sufficient reason for adhering to those rules which have the sanction of time and immemorial usage. . . . We have been extremely reluctant to set aside the judgment in this case upon grounds which may appear technical, and for that reason have given unusual time to its consideration and to an investigation of ment, or on motion for new trial, of all matters and things which could be taken advantage of by motion to quash, or demurrer.

[For other cases, see Criminal Law, 134-138, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Indictment — formal defect — presentment.

3. The delivery of an indictment to the court by the foreman of the grand jury in the absence of the other jurors, if a defect at all, is "in matter of form only," within the meaning of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1025, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 720, providing that no indictment presented by a grand jury shall be deemed insufficient nor the trial, judgment, or other proceeding thereon be affected by any such defect which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant, it not being disputed but that the indictment was found and returned into court as a true bill.

[For other cases, see Indictment, I., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 476.]

Argued October 15, 1912. Decided October 28, 1912.

ON A CERTIFICATE from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit, presenting questions as to the right to quash an indictment delivered to the court by the foreman of the grand jury in the absence of the other grand jurors. Answered in the negative.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Charles A. Douglas argued the cause, and, with Messrs. John S. Adams, Thomas Ruffin, James H. Merrimon, Gibbs L. Baker, and Hugh H. Obear, filed a brief for Breese and Dickerson:

The entire grand jury must return an indictment in open court; otherwise it is void, and the court has no jurisdiction to try the accused.

(a) This is the common-law doctrine and was the law at the time of the adoption of the Constitution.

1 Chitty, Crim. Law, 324; 4 Bl. Com. 306; 1 Bishop, New Crim. Proc. § 869a; Thomp. & M. Juries, § 696; Com. v. Cawood, 2 Va. Cas. 541; State v. Heaton, 23 W. Va. 778; White v. Com. 29 Gratt. 824; Simmons v. Com. 89 Va. 156, 15 S. E. 387; Price v. Com. 21 Gratt. 846; 22 Cyc. 210; Renegar v. United States, 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 683, 97 C. C. A. 172, 172 Fed. 646, 19 Ann. Cas. 1117; Gardner v. People, 20 Ill. 430; Goodson v. State, 29 Fla. 511, 30 Am. St. Rep. 135, 10 So. 738.

(b) This was the law of the state of North Carolina.

State v. Cox, 28 N. C. (6 Ired. L.) 445; State v. Bordeaux, 93 N. C. 563.

(c) It was the law of North Carolina until the year 1889, when a statute was required to change it.

(d) The crime with which the plaintiffs in error were charged is that of conspiracy, under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 5440, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3676, and is an infamous crime.

2 Fed. Stat. Anno. 247; Mackin v. United States, 117 U. S. 348, 29 L. ed. 909, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 777; Cooley, Principles of Const. Law, 318.

(e) Accordingly, this became the law of the Constitution of the United States by adoption.

Den ex dem. Murray v. Hoboken Land & Improv. Co. 18 How. 272, 275, 279, 15 L. ed. 372, 374, 376; Hagar v. Reclamation the practice in every state where the institution of the grand jury is preserved. Nothing is more clear than that the 'established mode of procedure' is for the grand jury to make its presentments publicly in open court, all of the grand jurors being present and answering to their names. It follows that a paper purporting to be an indictment handed by the foreman to the clerk when the court is not in session, and in the absence of the grand jury, is no indictment. This is not a question of irregularity, but of substantive law, based upon the direct terms of the constitutional guaranty that no man shall be 'held to answer' for an infamous offense except on an indictment by a grand jury. The indictment—and that means, of course, a valid indictment found and presented according to the settled usage and established mode of procedure—is a prerequisite to the jurisdiction of the court to try the person accused, —an indispensable condition and requirement, the absence of which renders the proceedings not simply voidable, but absolutely void."

---

In People v. Herrmans, 69 Misc. 303, 125 N. Y. Supp. 143, an indictment was held not to have been legally found because less than sixteen grand jurors (the number made necessary by law for the transaction of any business) were present in court at the time the indictment was presented.

But it is not essential that all of the grand jurors present an indictment, where it is presented by a larger number than the Constitution requires to concur in an indictment. State v. Griggsby, 117 La. 1046, 42 So. 497.

Statutes exist in some jurisdictions which require that indictments be presented to the court by the foreman in the presence of the grand jurors. Letcher v. State, 159 Ala. 59, 48 So. 805, 17 Ann. Cas. 716; State v. Quarles, 13 Idaho, 252, 89 Pac. 636.

Generally, as to necessity, mode, and record of bringing indictment into court, see note to Renegar v. United States, 26 L.R.A. (N.S.) 683.

Dist. No. 108, 111 U. S. 701, 707, 28 L. ed. 569, 572, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663; Ex parte Wall, 107 U. S. 265, 288, 27 L. ed. 552, 562, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 569; Lowe v. Kansas, 163 U. S. 81–88, 41 L. ed. 78–80, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1031; Lewis v. United States, 146 U. S. 370, 36 L. ed. 1011, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Hopt v. Utah, 110 U. S. 574, 578, 28 L. ed. 262, 264, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 202, 4 Am. Crim. Rep. 417; Schwab v. Berggren, 143 U. S. 442, 36 L. ed. 218, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 525; Cooley, Const. Law, 241; McGehee, Due Process of Law, pp. 1, 51; Hallinger v. Davis, 146 U. S. 314, 322, 36 L. ed. 986, 991, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 105.

(f) And, accordingly, it became a constitutional right or privilege of the accused to be placed on trial only after an indictment presented in open court by at least twelve of the grand jurors.

(g) A North Carolina statute could not affect Federal constitutional law nor the constitutional privilege of the accused.

Erwin v. United States, 2 L.R.A. 229, 37 Fed. 488; Trafton v. United States, 78 C. C. A. 79, 147 Fed. 514; United States v. Reid, 12 How. 361, 13 L. ed. 1023; Logan v. United States, 144 U. S. 263, 299, 36 L. ed. 429, 442, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; Martin v. Hunter, 1 Wheat. 304, 363, 4 L. ed. 97, 111; M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579.

(h) The failure of the grand jury as a body to return the indictment was not "a matter of form only," to be cured by U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1025, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 720; nor could any waiver of accused affect their constitutional right, or confer jurisdiction upon the court.

United States v. Gale, 109 U. S. 65, 27 L. ed. 857, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Joyce, Indictments, § 31; Ex parte McClusky, 40 Fed. 74; Renigar v. United States, 26 L.R.A. (N.S.) 683, 97 C. C. A. 172, 172 Fed. 646, 19 Ann. Cas. 1117; Lewis v. United States, 146 U. S. 370, 36 L. ed. 1011, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Hopt v. Utah, 110 U. S. 574, 578, 28 L. ed. 262, 264, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 202, 4 Am. Crim. Rep. 417.

A motion or plea of the character mentioned in the second question certified by the court may be made at any time before the accused is required to plead in bar.

Crowley v. United States, 194 U. S. 462, 48 L. ed. 1077, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 731; McQuillen v. State, 8 Smedes & M. 587; 12 Cyc. 357.

While in the certificate the court below refers to the pleading as a motion to quash, the point was made in the trial court by plea in abatement; although, under the practice prevailing in the trial court, a motion to quash would have amounted to a plea in abatement, the ancient distinction between the two having been ignored.

Breese v. United States, 74 C. C. A. 388, 143 Fed. 252.

Strictly speaking, a plea based upon the ground that no valid indictment was in court is one to the jurisdiction, for the accused thereby denies the jurisdiction of the court to try him.

Starkie, Crim. Pl. p. 342.

According to the plain terms of the order of the court, found in this case, the plaintiffs in error have the clear right to move in arrest of judgment on account of the failure of the grand jury to present the bill.

Breese v. United States, supra.

The trial court in its discretion would have the right to permit the second plea or motion to be made, either as a new motion or by way of amendment; and having done so in this case, and having found the facts therein raised, and having decided as a matter of law upon those facts that the indictment was valid, the question as to whether it was proper to consider the points so raised has been foreclosed; and the only question left for the appellate court at this time to determine is whether or not, on the facts found, the indictment as a matter of law was valid.

State v. Eason, 70 N. C. 88; State v. Jones, 88 N. C. 671; State v. Sheppard, 97 N. C. 401, 1 S. E. 879; State v. Miller, 100 N. C. 543, 5 S. E. 925; State v. Gardner, 104 N. C. 739, 10 S. E. 146; Mills v. State, 76 Md. 277, 25 Atl. 229; Com. v. Smith, 162 Mass. 508, 39 N. E. 111; Mentor v. People, 30 Mich. 91; People v. Judson, 11 Daly, 47; Com. v. Ramsey, 1 Brewst. (Pa.) 422; Richards v. Com. 81 Va. 110.

Assistant Attorney General Denison argued the cause, and, with Mr. Louis G. Bissell, filed a brief for the United States:

We recognize the fact that the local state practice is not binding on the Federal courts in criminal cases, but it is a matter to which weight may properly be given (United States v. Richardson, 28 Fed. 66), and a court of first instance which adopts it should not be lightly reversed merely because the bulk of other states still continue to follow the ancient English practice.

Especially is it desirable to allow this latitude in adaptation of the Federal district practice to the local state practice, where, as here, the historical reasons for the old English practice have substantially disappeared.

Danforth v. State, 75 Ga. 620, 58 Am. Rep. 480; Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 39 L. ed. 657, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 586.

The objection does not go to the jurisdiction, but is purely technical, and involves no prejudice to the defendant. It is therefore no ground for quashing the indictment, especially in view of the provisions of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1025, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 720.

Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 39 L. ed. 657, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 586; Caha v. United States, 152 U. S. 211, 221, 38 L. ed. 415, 419, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 513; Bram v. United States, 168 U. S. 532, 566–568, 42 L. ed. 568, 581, 582, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 183, 10 Am. Crim. Rep. 547; Ledbetter v. United States, 47 C. C. A. 191, 108 Fed. 52; United States v. Clark, 46 Fed. 638; United States v. Bornemann, 35 Fed. 824; United States v. Molloy, 31 Fed. 19; Crowley v. United States, 194 U. S. 461, 48 L. ed. 1075, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 731; Rodriguez v. United States, 198 U. S. 156, 49 L. ed. 994, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; United States v. McKee, 4 Dill. 10, Fed. Cas. No. 15,687; United States v. Cobban, 127 Fed. 716; United States v. Benson, 31 Fed. 896; United States v. Tuska, 14 Blatchf. 5, Fed. Cas. No. 16,550; United States v. Ewan, 40 Fed. 453; Miller v. Texas, 153 U. S. 535, 537, 38 L. ed. 812, 813, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 874; United States v. Terry, 39 Fed. 364; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Kirk, 111 U. S. 486, 28 L. ed. 481, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 500; Long v. Farmers' State Bank, 9 L.R.A. (N.S.) 585, 77 C. C. A. 538, 147 Fed. 362; Alaska United Gold Min. Co. v. Keating, 53 C. C. A. 655, 116 Fed. 561; Townsend v. Jemison, 7 How. 706, 719, 12 L. ed. 880, 885; Linder v. Lewis, 1 Fed. 380.

It would be queer indeed for a court of equity to destroy an indictment merely because a precaution, intended solely to prevent the destruction, had been omitted. That would be for the court to use the form for the overwhelming of the substance, and thereby greatly to "enhance the abuses of criminal practice."

Holt v. United States, 218 U. S. 245, 54 L. ed. 1021, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 2, 20 Ann. Cas. 1138.

Irrespective, however, of the provisions of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1025, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 720, the motion to quash was properly denied under the thoroughly established general rule that such motions must show some real prejudice to the defendant.

Agnew v. United States, 165 U. S. 36, 44, 41 L. ed. 624, 627, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 235; McInerney v. United States, 77 C. C. A. 411, 147 Fed. 183; United States v. Gale, 109 U. S. 65, 27 L. ed. 857, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; United States v. Tallman, 10 Blatchf. 23, Fed. Cas. No. 16,429; United States v. Reed, 2 Blatchf. 449, Fed. Cas. No. 16,134; State v. Mellor, 13 R. I. 666; Cox v. People, 80 N. Y. 500; People v. Petrea, 92 N. Y. 143; State v. Mertens, 14 Mo. 94; Waukon-chaw-neek-kaw v. United States, Morris (Iowa) 335; Danforth v. State, 75 Ga. 620, 58 Am. Rep. 480.

Renigar v. United States, 26 L.R.A. (N.S.) 683, 97 C. C. A. 172, 172 Fed. 646, 19 Ann. Cas. 1117, and Angle v. United States, 97 C. C. A. 184, 172 Fed. 658, decided by the court below, might with some plausibility be deemed to have involved a jurisdictional question because the indictments there were not presented to the court, but to the clerk. Even those cases seem to us unsound, because in fact and substance the indictments did reach the court, the clerk receiving them officially on its behalf and placing them in its files. A similar line of argument was advanced in Bryan v. Ker, 222 U. S. 107, 56 L. ed. 114, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 26, where it was urged that a writ under which a marshal had seized a vessel was absolutely void, because it had been issued not by the clerk of the court, but by an unofficial person (pp. 112, 113). The court looked through to the substance of the transaction, which was that the writ had issued from the office of the clerk under the authority of the clerk, and bore the seal of the court, and therefore was not void, but at most voidable.

Also especially pertinent from this point of view are Kaizo v. Henry, 211 U. S. 146, 149, 53 L. ed. 125, 126, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 41, and Harlan v. McGourin, 218 U. S. 442, 451, 54 L. ed. 1101, 1106, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 44, 21 Ann. Cas. 849, where the court held that disqualification of grand jurors was not a defect going to the jurisdiction of the trial court; and United States v. McKee, 4 Dill. 9, Fed. Cas. No. 15,687, where Judge Dillon and Judge Treat denied a motion in arrest of judgment, based upon the contention that the circuit court was without jurisdiction because it had tried the defendant, not on the original indictment, but on a certified copy thereof which had been remitted from the district court.

The motion to quash was made too late.

United States v. Breese, 172 Fed. 769; Agnew v. United States, 165 U. S. 36, 44, 45, 41 L. ed. 624, 627, 628, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 235; Hyde v. United States, 225 U. S. 347, 373, 56 L. ed. 1114, 1128, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 793; Lowdon v. United States, 79 C. C. A. 361, 149 Fed. 673; McInerney v. United States, 77 C. C. A. 411, 147 Fed. 183; United States v. Gale, 109 U. S. 65, 27 L. ed. 857, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Kerr v. State, 36 Ohio St. 623, Jinks v. State, 5 Tex. App. 68; Caldwell v. State, 41 Tex. 86; Douglass v. State, 8 Tex. App. 529; State v. Mann, 83 Mo. 592; Patterson v. Com. 86 Ky. 313, 5 S. W. 387; Ex parte Winston, 52 Ala. 421; 1 Bishop, Crim. Proc. § 886; 12 Cyc. 766; State v. Ledford, 133 N. C. 714, 45

S. E. 944; Powers v. United States, 223 U. S. 303, 312, 56 L. ed. 448, 452, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Re Wilson, 140 U. S. 575, 35 L. ed. 513, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 870; Carter v. Texas, 177 U. S. 442, 44 L. ed. 839, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 687; Re Lane, 135 U. S. 443, 34 L. ed. 219, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 760; State v. Gibson, 50 La. Ann. 23, 23 So. 320.

If the order of the court was really intended to relieve the defendant from the rules of law established for imperative reasons of public policy, the order was beyond the power of the court and void.

Kelsey v. Forsyth, 21 How. 85, 16 L. ed. 32; 1 Bishop, Crim. Proc. § 124; Murphy v. People, 3 Colo. 147; Spencer v. State, 34 Tex. Crim. Rep. 238, 30 S. W. 46, 32 S. W. 690; Re Brown, 98 C. C. A. 211, 174 Fed. 339; Spaulding v. Hill, 115 Ky. 1, 72 S. W. 307; Whiskey Cases, 99 U. S. 594, 25 L. ed. 399; United States v. Hinz, 35 Fed. 279; Queenan v. Oklahoma, 190 U. S. 548, 552, 47 L. ed. 1175, 1178, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 762.

The objection did not survive the first motion to quash.

People v. Strauch, 153 Ill. App. 554.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This case comes here on a certificate which may be summed up as follows: The defendants were indicted in 1897 under Rev. Stat. § 5440, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p 3676, for a conspiracy to embezzle funds of a national bank. In the following term, on November 6, 1897, they were ordered to plead, and pleaded not guilty; but the order provided that the plea should not "prevent their taking advantage upon motion in arrest of judgment, or on motion for a new trial, of all matters and things which could be taken advantage of by motion to quash or *]demurrer; upon motion in arrest of *judgment or for a new trial, all such matters and things shall be heard and determined as if the same were being heard upon motion to quash or demurrer." After the trial of another case, this one was called for trial at the May term, 1908. The defendants then pleaded in abatement and moved to quash on the ground of the disqualification of three grand jurors, but the plea and motion were not maintained by the facts. 172 Fed. 761. The case was put down for trial again on June 21, 1909. The defendants again pleaded in abatement and moved to quash on the ground that the foreman of the grand jury delivered the indictment to the judge during the session of the court, but in the absence of the other grand jurors. The court denied the plea and overruled the motion. A jury was sworn, the defendants were tried and found guilty, and after a motion for a new trial had been made on the same ground as above, and overruled, they were sentenced. 172 Fed. 768. The question is whether the last-mentioned plea and motions should have been sustained.

The facts are "that more than twelve grand jurors voted to find the indictment a true bill. That when this action had been taken, the grand jury was in session in a room adjoining the court room, on the same floor, with a door opening into the court room. The foreman left the grand jury, went into the court room with the bill of indictment, and handed it to Judge Purnell, the presiding judge, in person, the judge being then on the bench and the court open, and that the judge looked over the indictment and handed it to the clerk in open court, and that the foreman then returned to the grand jury room and proceeded with the business of the grand jury there assembled; that the grand jury did not accompany him when he brought the bill of indictment into the court room and handed it to the court." The mode of proceeding was the same as that prescribed by the laws of North Carolina. The clerk filed *the[9 indictment and made the following entry: "United States v. W. E. Breese, W. H. Penland, and J. E. Dickerson, Indct.: Conspiracy and embezzlement, Oct. Term, 1897. 'A true bill. J. M. Allen, foreman.' In the above-entitled cause it is ordered by the court, upon motion of the district attorney, that the said cause, together with all the papers therein, be transferred to Asheville, to be there tried at the next term of the said court, to be held on the 1st Monday in November next."

Six questions are certified, which are intended to present in detail whether, in the circumstances stated, the indictment should have been quashed.† It is enough to *say that we are of opinion that the[10 indictment was not void, and that if there ever was anything in the objection to it, the plea and motion came too late.

We do not think it necessary to discuss the contention that the 5th Amendment to the Constitution requires the indictment to be presented by the grand jury in a body, or that their failure so to present it goes to the jurisdiction of the court. See Kaizo

†1. Is such an indictment absolutely void?

2. Should such indictment be quashed on motion of the defendants, first made after the expiration of the term at which the indictment was found, and after the final discharge of the grand jury which found it, the defendants not having, at or before the time of moving to quash, pleaded to said indictment?

3. Should such indictment be quashed on motion of the defendants, first made after

v. Henry, 211 U. S. 146, 149, 53 L. ed. 125, 126, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 41; Harlan v. McGourin, 218 U. S 442, 451, 54 L. ed. 1101, 1106, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 44, 2 Ann. Cas. 849; United States v. McKee, 4 Dill. 1, 9, Fed. Cas. No. 15,687. The reasons for the requirement, if they ever were very strong, have disappeared, at least in part, and we have no doubt that Congress, like the state of North Carolina, could have done away with it, if it had seen fit to do so instead of remaining silent. See Danforth v. Georgia, 75 Ga. 614, 620, 621, 58 Am. Rep. 480; United States v. Butler, 1 Hughes, 457, 461, Fed. Cas. No. 14,700; Frisbie v. United States, 157 U. S. 160, 163, 39 L. ed. 657, 658, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 586. But it would be going far to say that the record does not import an indictment duly presented and "publicly delivered into court" (4 Bl. Com. 306), or that on the findings the indictment was not duly presented in fact, even according to the supposed rule requiring the presence of all the grand jurors. It appears by a certified plan that they could have seen the foreman's actions, if they desired, from at least a part of the room where they were. It fairly is implied that they knew what the foreman was about. We may compare the decisions as to the witnessing of wills. Riggs v. Riggs, 135 11]*Mass. 238, 46 Am. Rep. 464; Mendell v. Dunbar, 169 Mass. 74, 61 Am. St. Rep. 277, 47 N. E. 402.

At all events, objections of this sort are not to be favored when no prejudice to the defendants is shown; and on the contrary, the fact that the indictment was found and presented to the court is not disputed. As the defendants had no constitutional right to the presence of the grand jury, they were bound to take the first opportunity in their power to object to its absence, and by their failure to do so, as heretofore set forth, they lost whatever rights they may have had. United States v. Gale, 109 U. S. 65, 27 L. ed. 857, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Agnew v. United States, 165 U. S. 36, 44, 41 L. ed. 624, 627, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 235; Hyde v. United States, 225 U. S. 347, 373, 56 L. ed. 1114, 1128, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 793. The rule is implied in Crowley v. United States, 194 U. S. 461, 474, 48 L. ed. 1075, 1081, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 731, cited by the defendants. See also Rodriguez v. United States, 198 U. S. 156, 164, 49 L. ed. 994, 997, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617. The order made by the court, saving rights, created no new ones, and the right to this plea was lost irrespective of the plea of not guilty, entered in pursuance of the order of the court. In the first plea it was admitted that the grand jury "returned the said bill of indictment into court as a true bill."

The same result follows from Rev. Stat. § 1025, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 720, providing that no indictment presented by a grand jury shall be deemed insufficient nor the trial, judgment, or other proceeding thereon be affected by any defect in matter of form only, which shall not tend to the prejudice of the defendant. As we already have intimated, this indictment was presented in fact by the grand jury, and the defect, if any, was a defect in the matter of form only. The section should be construed to apply to the case (see Crowley v. United States, 194 U. S. 461, 474, 48 L. ed. 1075, 1081, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 731; Rodriguez v. United States, 198 U. S. 156, 165, 49 L. ed. 994, 997, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; United States v. Molloy, 31 Fed. 19, 23), and, even if it did not, it indicates a policy favoring the conclusion previously expressed that the objection had been waived. We answer the first and sixth questions, "No."

---

the expiration of the term at which the indictment was found, and after the final discharge of the grand jury which found it, and after the overruling of an earlier verified motion to quash, made by the defendants on other grounds, in which said earlier motion to quash they had alleged that said indictment had been duly returned into open court by the grand jury, said second motion to quash having been made before the defendants had otherwise pleaded to the indictment?

4. Should such indictment be quashed on motion of the defendants, first made after the expiration of the term at which the indictment was found, and after the final discharge of the grand jury which found it, and after the defendants had pleaded not guilty to such indictment, but before a jury was sworn upon the issue joined upon such plea?

5. Would the defendants be entitled to have judgment arrested upon a verdict of guilty, returned upon such indictment?

6. Would defendants, who had pleaded not guilty to such an indictment under an order of court, by the terms of which such plea of not guilty should not operate or have the effect to prevent their taking advantage, upon motion in arrest of judgment or on motion for a new trial, of all matters and things which could be taken advantage of by motion to quash or demurrer, be entitled to have such indictment quashed on motion made by them after the expiration of the term at which the indictment had been found, and after the final discharge of the grand jury which found it, and after the denial by the court of a previous motion to quash, made by the defendants on other grounds, in which first motion to quash they had alleged that said indictment had been duly returned into open court by the grand jury?

12] *MGR. JEREMIAH J. HARTY, Appt. and Plff. in Err.,
v.
MUNICIPALITY OF VICTORIA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 12–14.)

Appeal — mode of review.

1. Writ of error, and not appeal, is the only method by which a review may be had in the Federal Supreme Court of a judgment of the supreme court of the Philippine Islands in favor of a municipality in a suit brought against it to recover a tract of land which is declared by that court to constitute the public square or plaza of the town, devoted to public uses, since such suit is like an ordinary action at law.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, II. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — amount in dispute.

2. The value of the real estate in controversy in a suit brought by the archbishop of Manila to recover a square in the municipality of Victoria, in which stand a church and its parish house, is not shown to exceed $25,000, so as to sustain a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands to review a judgment holding the land not occupied by the buildings to constitute the public square, the value of which in itself, it is admitted, does not exceed that sum, by affidavits which proceed upon the theory that the church edifices, valued at $30,000, are deprived of free egress and ingress by the decision.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. f, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — review of facts.

3. A writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the supreme court of the Philippine Islands to review a judgment in favor of the municipality in a suit brought against it to recover a parcel of ground which is declared by that court to constitute the public square or plaza of the town, devoted to public uses, must be dismissed where the evidence is contradictory and there is no question of law involved.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, III. d, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 13.]

Argued October 30, 1912. Decided November 11, 1912.

APPEAL from and in error to the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands to review a judgment which, reversing the judgment of the Court of First Instance of Tarlac, in a suit brought by the archbishop of Manila to recover a square in the municipality of Victoria, in which stand a church and its parish house, held that the land occupied by the buildings constituted the public square or plaza of the town, devoted to public uses. Dismissed.

See same case below, 13 Philippine, 152.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Frederic R. Coudert argued the cause and, with Mr. Henry W. Van Dyke, filed a brief for appellant and plaintiff in error.

Mr. Felix Frankfurter argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee and defendant in error:

The value of the land involved in this action does not exceed $25,000, and the case should therefore be dismissed.

Enriquez v. Enriquez, 222 U. S. 123, 56 L. ed. 122, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 62; Enriquez v. Enriquez, 222 U. S. 127, 56 L. ed. 124, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 64.

In any event the appeal must be dismissed. The case is reviewable only by writ of error, and the disposition of questions of fact by the court below is not open to consideration here.

Cariño v. Philippine Islands, 212 U. S. 449, 53 L. ed. 594, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334; Tiglao v. Philippine Islands, 215 U. S. 410, 54 L. ed. 257, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 129; Jover y Costas v. Philippine Islands, 221 U. S. 623, 635, 55 L. ed. 884, 890, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; Santos v. Holy Roman Catholic & Apostolic Church, 212 U. S. 463, 53 L. ed. 599, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 338; Ker & Co. v. Couden, 223 U. S. 268, 56 L. ed. 432 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This suit was brought by the Archbishop of Manila to recover a square in the municipality of Victoria. The church of the town and its parish house stand in this square, and they are admitted to be church property, but the land not occupied by them was declared by the supreme court to constitute the public square or plaza *of the[13 town, devoted to public uses. The plaintiff brought a writ of error and appealed. The appeal must be dismissed. Jover y Costas v. Philippine Islands, 221 U. S. 623, 635, 55 L. ed. 884, 890, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; Cariño v. Philippine Islands, 212 U. S. 449, 456, 53 L. ed. 594, 595, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334. The suit is like an ordinary action at law, and can be brought to this court only by writ of error, as was done in Santos v. Holy Roman Catholic & Apostolic Church, 212 U. S. 463, 53 L. ed. 599, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 338, and Ker & Co. v. Couden, 223 U. S. 268, 56 L. ed. 432, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284.

There is a motion to dismiss the writ of error also, on the ground that the value of the real estate in controversy does not exceed $25,000. Affidavits to that effect are offered, and the order allowing the writ purports to do so on affidavits of the plaintiff and two others, "notwithstanding the fact that, by admission of counsel for plaintiff, it appears that the value of the parcel of land for which judgment was rendered in favor of the defendant municipality, exclusive of the value of the adjoining parcel of land with the church and convent situated thereon, title to which is recognized to be in the plaintiff, and damages thereto resulting from the aforesaid judgment, does not exceed $25,000." We doubt whether the affidavits do not imply the same admission, and whether the action should not be dismissed on that ground. The affidavit of the plaintiff puts the value of the land in controversy at over $25,000 on the manifestly untenable ground that the church edifices are deprived of free egress and ingress by the decision, and the others seemingly mean that the parcel of land with the church buildings included is worth $30,000, the buildings being valued at $25,000, leaving $5,000 for the land in dispute.

NOTE.—As to appellate jurisdiction of Federal Supreme Court over supreme court of Philippine Islands—see note to Martinez v. International Bkg. Corp. 55 L. ed. U. S. 438.

But the result is the same if we go further. The evidence was contradictory, and although we were invited to consider it on the one side in the light of the relation of the church to the community, and on the other in that of the custom by which 14]the plaza is of the essence of a *town, we can do neither. There is no question of law before us, for it hardly was argued, and could not be with any seriousness, that the supreme court was not authorized to review the evidence under § 497 of the Philippine Code, or that this court can consider whether it was right in finding the preponderance of evidence to be on the defendant's side.

Appeal and writ of error dismissed.

---

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Cincinnati & Columbus Traction Company, and Interstate Commerce Commission, Appts.,

v.

BALTIMORE & OHIO SOUTHWESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY and Norfolk & Western Railway Company.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 14–20.)

Carriers — switch connections — lateral branch line.

1. The words "lateral branch line" in the act to regulate commerce of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3154), § 1, as amended by the act of June 18, 1910 (36 Stat. at L. 539, 547, chap. 309, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288), § 7, requiring carriers subject to the act to establish switch connections with such lines on certain conditions, and permitting owners of such lines, as well as shippers, to make complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission in case of the carrier's failure upon written application, and authorizing such Commission to hear, investigate, and determine whether such conditions exist, and to make an order directing the carrier to comply with the act, do not refer to what the applicant line may become or be made by the order of the Commission, but to what it already is when it applies.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. h, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — switch connections — lateral branch line — electric railway.

2. An interurban electric railway for passengers and some freight, running under a state charter between points in the state through the middle of a diamond-shaped area inclosed by two steam railways, and in its general course parallel to and more or less competing with the steam roads, and working on a different plan, is not a "lateral branch line of railroad," within the meaning of the act to regulate commerce of February 4, 1887, as amended by the act of June 18, 1910, requiring carriers subject to the act to establish switch connections with such lines on certain conditions, and permitting owners of such lines as well as shippers to make complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission in case of the carrier's failure upon written application, and authorizing such Commission to hear, investigate, and determine whether such conditions exist, and to make an order directing the carrier to comply with the act.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. h, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 648.]

Argued October 25 and 28, 1912. Decided November 11, 1912.

APPEAL from the United States Commerce Court to review a decree setting aside an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, directing certain steam railroads to establish switch connections with an interurban electric railway, and to maintain through routes to and from points on that road. Affirmed.

See same case below, 195 Fed. 962.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Charles W. Needham argued the cause and filed a brief for the Interstate Commerce Commission:

The commerce court erred in holding that the traction company was not a lateral branch line railroad, within the meaning of § 1 of the act to regulate commerce.

Keeling v. Griffin, 56 Pa. 305; 1 Wood, Railway Law, § 189; Biles v. Tacoma, O. &. G. H. R. Co. 5 Wash. 509, 32 Pac. 211; Newhall v. Galena & C. U. R. Co. 14 Ill. 273; Chicago & E. I. R. Co. v. Wiltse, 116

Ill. 449, 6 N. E. 49;; Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. v. Baltimore & O. & C. R. Co. 149 Ill. 272, 37 N. E. 91; McAboy's Appeal, 107 Pa. 558; Volmer's Appeal, 115 Pa. 166, 8 Atl. 223; Wheeling Bridge & Terminal R. Co. v. Camden Consol. Oil Co. 35 W. Va. 205, 13 S. E. 369; Greenville & H. R. Co. v. Grey, 62 N. J. Eq. 768, 48 Atl. 568; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Waters, 105 Md. 396, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 326, 66 Atl. 685; Blanton v. Richmond, F. & P. R. Co. 86 Va. 618, 10 S. E. 925; Howard County v. Central Nat. Bank, 108 U. S. 314, 27 L. ed. 738, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 689; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 216 U. S. 531, 537, 54 L. ed. 605, 607, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415.

Assistant Attorney General Denison argued the cause, and, with Mr. Thurlow M. Gordon, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, filed a brief for the United States:

If either of the petitioning roads were attempting to build the line of the traction company under a charter provision permitting it to build lateral branch roads, the construction could not be enjoined as ultra vires.

Newhall v. Galena & C. U. R. Co. 14 Ill. 274; McAboy's Appeal, 107 Pa. 548; Volmer's Appeal, 115 Pa. 166, 8 Atl. 223; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Waters, 105 Md. 396, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 326, 66 Atl. 685; Greenville & H. R. Co. v. Grey, 62 N. J. Eq. 770, 48 Atl. 568; Florida, A. & G. C. R. Co. v. Pensacola & G. R. Co. 10 Fla. 145; Blanton v. Richmond, F. & P. R. Co. 86 Va. 618, 10 S. E. 925.

This broad interpretation of the words "lateral branch line" not only accords with the statutory significance incrusted upon these words at the time of their adoption by Congress, but it is necessary to the accomplishment of the remedial purposes of the act.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 216 U. S. 537, 54 L. ed. 607, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415.

The order is not void because as to the physical condition of the traction company's line, the Commission supplemented the testimony of witnesses by independent investigations.

Cederberg v. Robison, 100 Cal. 93, 34 Pac. 625; Sutherland, Damages, § 441, note, 1; Wigmore, Ev. §§ 1150–1168; People v. Delaware & H. Canal Co. 165 N. Y. 362, 59 N. E. 138; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 48 L. ed. 860, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563; Boston Fruit & Produce Exch. v. New York & N. E. R. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 493, 4 I. C. C. Rep. 664; Missouri & K. Shippers' Asso. v. Missouri, K.

& T. R. Co. 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 483; Origet v. Hedden, 155 U. S. 228, 237, 39 L. ed. 130, 133, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 92; Tang Tun v. Edsel, 223 U. S. 673, 677, 56 L. ed. 606, 608, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 359; Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U. S. 320, 342, 53 L. ed. 1013, 1023, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 671; Den ex dem. Murray v. Hoboken Land & Improv. Co. 18 How. 272, 15 L. ed. 372; Union Bridge Co. v. United States, 204 U. S. 364, 51 L. ed. 523, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 367; Monongahela Bridge Co. v. United States, 216 U. S. 177, 194, 54 L. ed. 435, 442, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 356; Public Clearing House v. Coyne, 194 U. S. 497, 48 L. ed. 1092, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 789; United States ex rel. West v. Hitchcock, 205 U. S. 80, 51 L. ed. 718, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 423; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616.

Mr. C. B. Matthews filed a brief for appellant the Cincinnati & Columbus Traction Company.

Messrs. R. Walton Moore, Edward Barton, and Theodore W. Reath argued the cause and, with Messrs. Joseph I. Doran and F. Markoe Rivinus, filed a brief for appellees:

What other conceivable definition of a lateral branch railroad, as the term is used in the clause, can be adopted than that it is a line of railroad, naturally tributary to the line of the common carrier, and entirely dependent upon it for an outlet to the markets of the country?

See Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 216 U. S. 531, 54 L. ed. 605, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415; Blanton v. Richmond, F. & P. R. Co. 86 Va. 618, 10 S. E. 925.

The order of the Commission is invalid because the foundation of the order was the independent investigation of the Commission, not contemplated or permitted by the commerce act.

Washington ex rel. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Fairchild, 224 U. S. 510, 56 L. ed. 863, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 535; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission 194 Fed. 457; Saratoga Springs v. Saratoga Gas, Electric Light, Heat & P. Co. 191 N. Y. 123, 18 L.R.A.(N.S.) 713, 83 N. E. 693, 14 Ann. Cas. 606; People ex rel. Bath & H. R. Co. v. Public Service Commission, 127 App. Div. 480, 112 N. Y. Supp. 133; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Union P. R. Co. 222 U. S. 541, 547, 56 L. ed. 308, 311, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108.

Mr. Edward Barton also filed a separate brief for the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad Company:

The line of the traction company is strictly within the definition of a parallel and competing road.

Com. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 144 Ky. 324, 138 S. W. 291; East St. Louis Connecting R. Co. v. Jarvis, 34 C. C. A. 639, 92 Fed. 735.

Congress must have had in contemplation as a lateral branch line something different from the ordinary description of railroad.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 216 U. S. 531, 535, 54 L. ed. 605, 606, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. United States, 215 U. S. 481 54 L. ed. 292, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164, 154 Fed. 108, 91 C. C. A. 147, 165 Fed. 113.

Lateral branch lines, which are in many respects only plant facilities, and so rather themselves to be classed as private side tracks than as trunk lines or railroads proper, are common throughout the country, and have been for many years. Their status as shipping facilities rather than common carriers has been recognized by the Interstate Commerce Commission time and again.

Crane R. Co. v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. 15 Inters. Com. Rep. 248; Crane Iron Works v. Central R. Co. 17 Inters. Com. Rep. 514.

The traction company is so organized, constructed, maintained, operated, and equipped under the laws of Ohio as that it cannot be deemed a lateral branch line of railroad with respect to appellees.

Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. v. Hamburg-American Packet Co. 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 266; Re Exchange of Free Transportation, 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 39; Wylie v. Northern P. R. Co. 11 Inters. Com. Rep. 145.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a suit to set aside an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission, directing the appellees to establish switch connections with the road of the appellant, and also through routes to and from points 18]on that road. 20 *Inters. Com. Rep. 486. The commerce court made a decree as prayed (195 Fed. 962), and an appeal was taken to this court. The facts material to our decision are as follows: The Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad and the Norfolk & Western Railway are trunk lines of steam railroads running east and west across the state of Ohio. After almost touching each other at Norwood, a suburb of Cincinnati, they draw apart, the former in a northerly, the latter in a southerly, direction, but come together again at Hillsboro, about 53 miles further to the east. The line of the Traction Company is an "interurban" electric railway, for passengers and some freight, running under a state charter between Norwood and Hillsboro, through the middle of the diamond inclosed by the steam roads, and authorized to go on to Columbus. For a number of miles easterly from Norwood to Stonelick, near Boston, the last-mentioned road is very near and almost parallel to the tracks of one or the other of the steam roads, as it is again for the last 5 miles before reaching Hillsboro. In the intervening space, between Boston and Dodsonville, the towns and villages on the electric line are from 5 to 10 or 12 miles by wagon distant from the nearest station on one of the steam roads. The Traction Company applied to the Commission for switch connections, and they were ordered as we have said.

Some technical objections were raised, but the substantial question is whether the Traction Company is a "lateral branch line of railroad" within the meaning of the 1st section of the act to regulate commerce, amended by act of June 18, 1910, chap. 309, § 7, 36 Stat. at L. 539, 547. That section requires carriers subject to the act to establish switch connections with such lines on certain conditions; and, as amended, permits owners of such lines as well as shippers to make complaint to the Commission in case of the carriers' failure upon written application, and authorizes the Commission to hear, investigate, and *determine whether the conditions exist,[19 and to make an order directing the carrier to comply with the act. It will be seen without much argument that, unless the Traction Company is a lateral, branch line of railroad, the trunk line carriers, the appellees, are not subject to the requirement of the statute, so far as the Traction Company is concerned.

The words "lateral branch line" do not refer to what the applicant may become or be made by order of the Commission, but to what it already is when it applies. The power of the Commission does not extend to ordering a connection wherever it sees fit, but is limited to a certain and somewhat narrow class of lines. The most obvious examples of such lines are those that are dependent upon and incident to the main line,—feeders, such as may be built from mines or forests to bring coal, ore, or lumber to the main line for shipment. We agree with the commerce court that the Traction Company is not within this class. It is an independent venture, in its general course parallel to, more or less competing with, the steam roads, and working on a different plan. Presumably and so far as appears it was built and would have been run without regard to the existence of the steam roads. The cases cited on behalf of the appellants as to the power of railroad companies to construct branch roads under their charter do not apply. There the determination of the company fixes the character of the branch; it builds the branch from the beginning as incident to the purposes of the company. But here, as we have said, this determination of the Commission that the applicants shall be a branch is not enough; the applicant must be a branch before it applies. That is the absolute and reasonable condition. That some shippers would be accommodated by a switch connection is not enough.

The order to maintain through routes was incident to the requirement of switch con-20]nections and falls with it. *We understand that it was based on the assumption that the connections were to be made, and therefore do not go into the question of power under § 15.

It is unnecessary to consider objections to the conclusion of the Commission that it was safe and reasonably practicable, etc., to establish the switch. We remark that it is stated in the Commissioner's report that they base their conclusion more largely upon their own investigation than upon the testimony of the witnesses. It would be a very strong proposition to say that the parties were bound in the higher courts by a finding based on specific investigations made in the case without notice to them. See Washington ex rel. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. v. Fairchild, 224 U. S. 510, 525, 56 L. ed. 863, 868, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 535. Such an investigation is quite different from a view by a jury, taken with notice and subject to the order of a court, and different again from the question of the right of the Commission to take notice of results reached by it in other cases, when its doing so is made to appear in the record, and the facts thus noticed are specified, so that matters of law are saved.

Decree affirmed.

---

STANDARD SANITARY MANUFACTURING COMPANY et al., Appts.,
v.
UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 20–52.)

Monopoly — manufacturers and dealers — patented device.

1. Agreements embracing 85 per cent of the manufacturers of, and 90 per cent of the jobbers in, enameled ironware, which, in addition to a provision against the marketing of "seconds," intended to carry out the ostensible object of the agreements, also provide for regulating prices through the instrumentality of a price and schedule committee, fix preferential discounts, confining them to sales to jobbers only, authorize rebates if the agreements shall be faithfully observed, and forbid all sales to jobbers not in the combination, making a condition of their entry a promise not to resell to plumbers except at the prices determined by the manufacturers, and not to deal in the products of manufacturers not in the combination,—cannot escape condemnation under the Sherman anti-trust act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3,200), because the agreements take the form of licenses from the owner of a patent for a device used in the enameling process.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, 20–23, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — corporation engaged in interstate commerce.

2. A corporation manufacturing its product in New Jersey, and buying also from other manufacturers and jobbers, which ships from there to its warehouses in Massachusetts and New York, from which sales are made in those states and in Connecticut, is engaged in interstate commerce, and as such is subject to the prohibitions of the Sherman anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, against restraints of trade and monopolies.

[For other cases, see Monopolies, II. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — manufacturers or dealers — culpability.

3. The culpability of a party to a combination of manufacturers and jobbers which accomplishes a restraint of trade condemned by the Sherman anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, is not removed because it was restricted in less degree than the other jobbers, enjoying a certain freedom of competition to meet local conditions.

[For other cases, see Monopolies, II. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — discretion below — continuance or adjournment.

4. The trial court did not abuse its discretion in denying a motion by defendants in a civil suit brought by the government under the Sherman anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, for an enlargement of time to take testimony, based upon the ground that they had been prevented by the action of the government in instituting criminal proceedings from properly presenting their defense, in that the government, apprehending that the witnesses for the defense were called to give them immunity from the criminal prosecution then pending, notified them that if they testified, they would do so at their peril, as immunity could only

---

NOTE.—As to what relation a contract or combination must bear to interstate commerce in order to bring it within the scope of the Federal anti-trust act—see note to Loewe v. Lawlor, 52 L. ed. U. S. 488.

As to illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws generally—see note in Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

be claimed by witnesses for the government, whereupon, on the advice of counsel, they refused to testify, leaving the defendants without the benefit of the evidence which they could have given.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. 1, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 554.]

Argued October 15, 16, and 17, 1912. Decided November 18, 1912.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for the District of Maryland to review a decree in favor of the government in a suit to enjoin violations of the Sherman anti-trust act. Affirmed.

See same case below, 191 Fed. 172.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Herbert Noble argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Henry D. Estabrook and Hartwell P. Heath, filed a brief for appellants:

If what was done was legal, the question of motive on the part of anybody is clearly immaterial.

Diamond Match Co. v. Roeber, 106 N. Y. 473, 60 Am. Rep. 464, 13 N. E. 419; McCune v. Norwich City Gas Co. 30 Conn. 521, 79 Am. Dec. 278; Glendon Iron Co. v. Uhler, 75 Pa. 467, 15 Am. Rep. 599; 20 Harvard L. Rev. 253, 345, 429.

The owner of letters patent can control unpatented articles used in connection with the machine embodying his invention.

Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 645, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364; Bloomer v. McQuewan, 14 How. 539, 548, 14 L. ed. 532, 536; United States v. American Bell Teleph. Co. 167 U. S. 224, 42 L. ed. 144, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 809; Rubber Tire Wheel Co. v. Milwaukee Rubber Works Co. 83 C. C. A. 336, 154 Fed. 358; Goshen Rubber Works v. Single Tube Automobile & Bicycle Tire Co. 92 C. C. A. 183, 166 Fed. 431; Indiana Mfg. Co. v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. 83 C. C. A. 343, 154 Fed. 365; United States Consol. Seeded Raisin Co. v. Griffin & S. Co. 61 C. C. A. 334, 126 Fed. 364; Rupp & W. Co. v. Elliott, 65 C. C. A. 544, 131 Fed. 730; New Jersey Patent Co. v. Schaeffer, 101 C. C. A. 540, 159 Fed. 171, 178 Fed. 276; Victor Talking Mach. Co. v. The Fair, 61 C. C. A. 58, 123 Fed. 424; Fonotipia Limited v. Bradley, 171 Fed. 951; National Phonograph Co. v. Schlegel, 64 C. C. A. 594, 128 Fed. 733; Edison Phonograph Co. v. Pike, 116 Fed. 863; Edison Phonograph Co. v. Kaufmann, 105 Fed. 960; The Fair v. Dover Mfg. Co. 92 C. C. A. 43, 166 Fed. 117; Commercial Acetylene Co. v. Autolux Co. 181 Fed. 387; Aeolian Co. v. Harry H. Jacobs Co. 86 C. C. A. 205, 155 Fed. 119; Crown Cork & Seal Co. v. Brooklyn Bottle Stopper Co. 172 Fed. 225; Crown Cork & Seal Co. v. Standard Brewery, 174 Fed. 252; Crown Cork & Seal Co. v. Standard Stopper Co. 69 C. C. A. 519, 136 Fed. 841; Cortelyou v. Lowe, 49 C. C. A. 671, 111 Fed. 1005; Cortelyou v. Carter's Ink Co. 118 Fed. 1022; Cortelyou v. Charles Eneu Johnson & Co. 138 Fed. 110, 76 C. C. A. 455, 145 Fed. 933; Brodrick Copygraph Co. v. Roper, 124 Fed. 1019; A. B. Dick Co. v. Milwaukee Office Specialty Co. 168 Fed. 930; B. V. D. Co. v. Wolf & Co. (Oct. 20, 1911; Cir. Ct. Cinn.); Indiana Mfg. Co. v. Nichols & S. Co. 190 Fed. 579; Automatic Pencil Sharpener Co. v. Goldsmith Bros. 190 Fed. 205; Edison v. Ira M. Smith Mercantile Co. 188 Fed. 925; Waltham Watch Co. v. Keene, 191 Fed. 855; Fuller v. Berger, 65 L.R.A. 381, 56 C. C. A. 588, 120 Fed. 274; Brodrick Copygraph Co. v. Mayhew, 131 Fed. 92, affirmed in 70 C. C. A. 557, 137 Fed. 596.

The agreements in the case at bar are not within the Sherman act. The agreements were purely economic arrangements for the purpose of manufacturing and distributing economically and systematically in strict and normal compliance with modern trade progress, sanitary enameled ironware.

United States v. Winslow, 195 Fed. 592.

They were open upon the same terms to all who chose to take advantage of them.

United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 398, 410, 56 L. ed. 810, 815, 819, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507.

They were, moreover, based upon patents which created a true monopoly, a grant from the sovereign,—the Constitution,—so that to hold that this monopoly was violative of the Sherman act would be judicial legislation and an attack upon the whole patent system.

Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 16, 27, 35, 56 L. ed. 645, 651, 655, 658, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364.

Consequently, it has been held that the Sherman act and the patent laws were passed under separate grants of constitutional power, and do not affect each other.

E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 186 U. S. 70, 91, 46 L. ed. 1058, 1068, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Rubber Tire Wheel Co. v. Milwaukee Rubber Works Co. 83 C. C. A. 336, 154 Fed. 358.

The true construction of the so-called anti-trust act, and one that is not in conflict with any of the decisions, is that it does not condemn a fair and reasonable attempt to avoid loss by means of trade agreements which are intended to prevent nothing but the cutting of rates below the reasonable expense of production and reasonable profit thereon; nor is the monopolization referred to in said anti-trust act simply the complete occupation of a certain field, if that occupation may be fairly accomplished.

Fonotipia Limited v. Bradley, 171 Fed. 951.

United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 168 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540, did not hold that the act applied whether the contract was reasonable or unreasonable.

United States v. Winslow, 195 Fed. 587.

The decision in the Standard Oil Case holds that the test to determine whether or not a given contract or combination is in restraint of interstate trade and commerce is the standard of reason as applied to like contracts at common law.

United Shoe Machinery Co. v. La Chapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289.

Statutes are not to be interpreted to change the common law except so far as a purpose so to do is necessarily implied.

United States v. Winslow, 195 Fed. 578; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 361, 48 L. ed. 679, 710, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 51, 59, 60, 55 L. ed. 641, 644, 645, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734.

While the expressions of opinion during debate upon a bill are not evidence by which the bill is to be construed, still the fact that a bill contains a provision with reference to competition, and is then enacted leaving out all reference to competition, and using phrases which had an ascertained meaning at the time of the enactment of the bill, does bear very materially upon the construction to be given to the act.

United States v. E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. 188 Fed. 127.

The Sherman act has no application, because the agreements were an economic arrangement to meet the demands of the market.

Ibid; United States v. John Reardon & Sons Co. 191 Fed. 454; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; Mogul S. S. Co. v. McGregor, L. R. 23 Q. B. Div. 598, affirmed in [1892] A. C. 25, 61 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 295, 66 L. T. N. S. 1, 40 Week. Rep. 337, 7 Asp. Mar. L. Cas. 120, 56 J. P. 101; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 592, 43 L. ed. 290, 296, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 567, 43 L. ed. 259, 286, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 51, 55 L. ed. 641, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Fonotipia, Limited, v. Bradley, 171 Fed. 959; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 179, 55 L. ed. 663, 693, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540.

Restraint is often mere regulation, or temporary obstruction, for the purpose of clearing out the channel and letting the stream flow at full tide.

United States v. Winslow, 195 Fed. 586.

Both the Standard Oil Case and the Tobacco Case are in accord with all the previous decisions of the court, as will appear from a careful examination of the other decisions in connection with the facts of each case, which were before the court.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 94 C. C. A. 13, 167 Fed. 729; Camors-McConnell Co. v. McConnell, 140 Fed. 412, 72 C. C. A. 681, 140 Fed. 987; Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 454; Prame v. Ferrell, 92 C. C. A. 374, 166 Fed. 702; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 184, 50 L. ed. 428, 432, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Phillips v. Iola Portland Cement Co. 61 C. C. A. 19, 125 Fed. 593; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 433, 52 L. ed. 865, 875, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572.

It is "the dominant purpose" of the parties which determines the character of the agreements.

Darius Cole Transp. Co. v. White Star Line, 108 C. C. A. 165, 186 Fed. 63.

The Sherman act has no application to agreements under the patent law.

E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 186 U. S. 70, 46 L. ed. 1058, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Rubber Tire Wheel Co. v. Milwaukee Rubber Works Co. 83 C. C. A. 336, 154 Fed. 362; Goshen Rubber Works v. Single Tube Automobile & Bicycle Tire Co. 92 C. C. A. 183, 166 Fed. 431; Indiana

Mfg. Co. v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. 83 C. C. A. 343, 154 Fed. 365; Johns-Pratt Co. v. Sachs Co. 176 Fed. 739; Otis Elevator Co. v. Geiger, 107 Fed. 131; National Folding-Box & Paper Co. v. Robertson, 99 Fed. 985; Bonsack Mach. Co. v. Smith, 70 Fed. 383; Strait v. National Harrow Co. 51 Fed. 819; Brown Saddle Co. v. Troxel, 28 Fed. 620; American Soda-Fountain Co. v. Green, 69 Fed. 333; Edison Electric Light Co. v. Sawyer-Man Electric Co. 3 C. C. A. 605, 11 U. S. App. 712, 53 Fed. 592; Columbia Wire Co. v. Freeman Wire Co. 71 Fed. 306; Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 31, 33, 56 L. ed. 645, 657, 658, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364; Davis Electrical Works v. Edison Electric Light Co. 8 C. C. A. 615, 21 U. S. App. 74, 60 Fed. 280; Thomson-Houston Electric Co. v. Kelsey Electric R. Specialty Co. 72 Fed. 1016; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. La Chapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289.

We do not contend here that Mr. Wayman could limit his licensees' power or right to sell an unpatented article. That is a question by itself. What we do claim is that his right to exclude others from using the invention empowers him to prescribe the conditions on which an article made by the use of his invention should be sold, which is an entirely different proposition.

Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 24, 56 L. ed. 645, 654, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364.

Contracts not to disclose trade secrets are valid because the public has no right thereto (Peabody v. Norfolk, 98 Mass. 452, 96 Am. Dec. 664; Jarvis v. Peck, 10 Paige, 118; Vickery v. Welch, 19 Pick. 523; Tode v. Gross, 127 N. Y. 480, 13 L.R.A. 652, 24 Am. St. Rep. 475, 28 N. E. 469; O. & Q. Thum Co. v. Tloczynski, 114 Mich. 149, 38 L.R.A. 200, 68 Am. St. Rep. 469, 72 N. W. 140; Bryson v. Whitehead, 1 Sim. & Stu. 74, 1 L. J. Ch. 42; Harrison v. Glucose Sugar Ref. Co. 58 L.R.A. 915, 53 C. C. A. 484, 116 Fed. 311); which cases are not inconsistent with the decision in Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 55 L. ed. 502, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376, because there it was the sale of the article made by the use of the trade secret, and the distinction analogous to that between the invention and the patented article was recognized.

It may be conceded that there are limitations upon the right of vending and using a patented article if it belongs to a class which, on account of its inherent danger to the public safety or health, cannot be sold or used because prohibited by an exertion of the police power of the state (Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 29, 56 L. ed. 645 656, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364; Patterson v. Kentucky, 97 U. S. 501, 24 L. ed. 1115; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 348, 26 L. ed. 565, 566; Allen v. Riley, 203 U. S. 347, 51 L. ed. 216, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 95, 8 Ann. Cas. 137; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. La Chapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289); but that does not include bath tubs, which the same theory commends, and refers to the article, not the invention, overlooking the distinction pointed out in Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 29, 56 L. ed. 645, 656, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364.

In United States v. Winslow (195 Fed. 594), the court said, referring to the contention that the parties to the combination controlled 90 per cent of the trade, "We do not attach much importance to this percentage because that, standing alone, is like one term of an algebraic equation, which of itself is nonefficient."

The "underlying atmosphere," referred to in his argument by one of the government's counsel below, is what is spoken of by Judge Severens in Darius Cole Transp. Co. v. White Star Line, 108 C. C. A. 165, 186 Fed. 69, as "suspicious, . . . that the parties intended something wrong;" and, as he says, "cannot impeach" a contract if its provisions "are not unlawful, and their due performance is not unduly prejudicial to the public," so long as the proof "does not go to any act or fact extraneous to the contract."

Mr. Robert B. Honeyman argued the cause, and, with Mr. A. Parker Smith, filed a brief for appellant the Colwell Lead Company:

Covenants in partial restraint and ancillary to some principal contract will be upheld when the restraint imposed is necessary or proper to protect a retained business.

John D. Park & Sons Co. v. Hartman, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 135, 82 C. C. A. 158, 153 Fed. 24; Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 55 L. ed. 502, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Re Greene, 52 Fed. 111.

The Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company, as the owner of a patented tool or process of great value in the trade, could license competitors to use it upon such terms as the Standard Company deemed to be for its interest, both for the benefit of the invention as well as of the trade generally, and for the protection of its own business. To deny that the Standard Company had such a right is not only to deny the fundamental right at common law of the owner of property from disposing of it for his own advantage, but is also a denial of the rights secured by the patent laws of the United States. The general right of the owner of a patent to exclude the public or to permit a use upon any terms which he may impose is derived not alone from the common law, but from the statute.

Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 645, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364; United States v. American Bell Teleph. Co. 167 U. S. 249, 42 L. ed. 157, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 809.

A seller's act in delivering merchandise to a common carrier is not any part of the interstate transportation, and does not make the goods the subject of interstate commerce. The fact that the sale is made with a view to the goods being transported after the sale does not make the sale interstate.

Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 346, 2 Intera. Com. Rep. 232, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6; United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50.

Mr. Edwin P. Grosvenor, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, argued the cause, and, with Attorney General Wickersham, filed a brief for appellee:

Applying the rule of reason to the facts of this case, it is manifest that defendants, by means of the license agreements, unduly and unreasonably restrained commerce and attempted to monopolize commerce in enameled ware.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 66, 55 L. ed. 619, 647, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 347, 48 L. ed. 679, 704, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 183, 55 L. ed. 663, 695, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 55 L. ed. 502, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 186 U. S. 70, 46 L. ed. 1058, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 865, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 54 L. ed. 1168, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; United States v. E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. 188 Fed. 127; Union Castle Mail S. S. Co. v. Thomsen, 111 C. C. A. 368, 190 Fed. 536; Steele v. United Fruit Co. 190 Fed. 631; United States v. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. 191 Fed. 172; Steers v. United States, 112 C. C. A. 423 192 Fed. 1.

Wayman incorporated in the license and purported to grant what was not his to convey. He did not own any patented processes, and therefore could not grant a nonexclusive license to practise in the manufacture of sanitary enameled ironware the processes patented in said several patents. Wayman's patent was on a machine; it was not a patent on a process.

Corning v. Burden, 15 How. 252, 267, 14 L. ed. 683, 690; Cochrane v. Deener, 94 U. S. 780, 787, 24 L. ed. 139, 141; Burr v. Duryee, 1 Wall. 531, 570, 17 L. ed. 650, 657; Telephone Cases, 126 U. S. 1, 532–534, 31 L. ed. 863, 988, 989, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 778.

A patentee who grants a license to make and use the patented machine has no control, by virtue of his patent, over the article made with the help of the patented machine.

Keplinger v. De Young, 10 Wheat, 358; 6 L. ed. 341; Merrill v. Yeomans, 94 U. S. 568, 24 L. ed. 235.

New articles of commerce are not patentable as new manufactures unless it appears in the given case that the production of the new article involved the exercise of invention or discovery beyond what was necessary to construct the apparatus for its manufacture or production. (Mr. Justice Clifford in Union Paper Collar Co. v. Van Dusen, 23 Wall. 530, 563, 23 L. ed. 128, 133.) By what principle of law may the owner of the Arrott patent project his monopoly so as to embrace articles upon which letters patent could never have been issued?

The patent laws and the Sherman law are not conflicting, but in their respective domains are mutually exclusive of each other.

United Shoe Machinery Co. v. La Chapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289.

The right conferred by the patent laws is not the right to make, use, and vend the thing patented, for this right exists by virtue of the common law and independently of the patent statutes; this right to make, use, and sell the patented device in a natural right. The only right which the letters patent grant is the right to exclude all other persons from making, using, or vending the thing patented without the permission of the patentee.

Bloomer v. McQuewan, 14 How. 539, 14 L. ed. 532, 536; Patterson v. Kentucky, 97 U. S. 501, 506, 24 L. ed. 1115, 1117.

This right to sell a patented article is subject to the police regulations of the state.

Patterson v. Kentucky, 97 U. S. 501, 505, 24 L. ed. 1115, 1117; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 347, 26 L. ed. 565, 566; Re Brosnahan, 4 McCrary, 1, 18 Fed. 62, 4 Am. Crim. Rep. 16; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. La Chapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289.

By means of their combination, the appellants brought under one ownership three competing patents relating to automatic dredgers; those were the only automatic dredgers on the market. This act of itself was a violation of the Sherman law.

Blount Mfg. Co. v. Yale & T. Mfg. Co. 166 Fed. 555; Strait v. National Harrow Co. 18 N. Y. Supp. 224; National Harrow Co. v. Quick, 67 Fed. 130; National Harrow Co. v. Hench, 76 Fed. 667, 39 L.R.A. 299, 27 C. C. A. 349, 55 U. S. App. 53, 83 Fed. 36, 84 Fed. 226; National Harrow Co. v. Hench, 29 C. C. A. 681, 39 U. S. App. 765, 85 Fed. 991; E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 186 U. S. 70, 46 L. ed. 1058, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Vulcan Powder Co. v. Hercules Powder Co. 96 Cal. 510, 31 Am. St. Rep. 242, 31 Pac. 581; Gamewell Fire Alarm Teleg. Co. v. Crane, 160 Mass. 50, 22 L.R.A. 673, 39 Am. St. Rep. 458, 35 N. E. 98; 1 Page, Contr. 445.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Suit by the government against appellants for a violation by them of the act of July 2, 1890 [26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200], commonly known as the Sherman anti-trust act.

A decree was entered in favor of the government, from which appellants (designated herein as defendants) have prosecuted this appeal. 191 Fed. 172.

There are sixteen corporate and thirty-four individual defendants, the latter, with the exception of Edwin L. Wayman, being the officers, presidents, or secretaries, of the companies.

35] *The corporate defendants were alleged to be the manufacturers of enameled ironware in various places in the United States, manufacturing 85 per cent of such ware, and engaged in interstate commerce in such ware throughout the United States and with foreign countries, in competition with one another and with certain other manufacturers of such ware, and that in 1909, or early in 1910, they entered into and engaged in a combination and conspiracy to restrain such trade and commerce.

The defendants denied the charges against them, Wayman doing so in a separate answer. The Colwell Lead Company denied that it was engaged in interstate commerce.

A great deal of testimony was taken and the case quite elaborately argued, but in the view we take of it it is in comparatively narrow compass, depending upon the application of well-settled principles.

The corporate defendants are manufacturers of sanitary enameled ironware, such as bath tubs, wash bowls, drinking fountains, sinks, closets, etc. The enameling consists in applying opaque white glass to iron utensils, first in the condition of a liquid, and, second, in the form of a powder. The process consists in heating the utensils to a red heat and then sifting upon it the enameling powder. The powder is fused by the high temperature, and forms on the utensil a hard, impenetrable, insoluble, smooth, and glossy surface.

Prior to the invention of James W. Arrott, Jr., covered by letters patent issued September 26, 1899, the enameling powder was applied by a sieve attached to a long handle, which was held by the workman with one hand, and the sieve made to vibrate by the workman striking the handle with his other hand, thereby sifting the powder over the surface of the ironware. The implement was an imperfect one, not easily handled, and by its use the workmen were subjected to intense heat and physical strain. The *flow of the pow-[36 der, beside, was not continuous; it was cast upon the metal in intermittent puffs, causing in many instances an unequal distribution of the powder and producing defective articles which either had to be thrown away or sold as "seconds." With Arrott's invention these evil results are lessened or disappear. The sieve is mechanically vibrated very rapidly, causing, instead of an intermittent flow of the powder as in the hand process, a practically continuous flow. Both hands of the workman may be used to guide and direct the sieve. The advantages of the instrument over the hand process are decided. It is more efficient and more economical. It makes a better article and in less time. There is no waste in defects or "seconds." The workman is relieved to some extent from "fierce heat conditions," to quote from the answers.

At the time of the contracts which are attacked by the government the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company was the owner of the patent and manufacturer of 50 per cent of the ware, and used in its production the patented device. Some of the other manufacturers were infringing and controversies existed. Some yielded to its validity, others contested it. It was sustained by the courts in several cases.

We have gone through this detail to exhibit the conditions, as asserted by defendants, which confronted them and induced their contracts. In further display of it we quote Wayman's answer, as follows:

"For the reasons stated, the art was in a very unsatisfactory condition. No means had been discovered of accomplishing the result produced by the use of the Arrott invention without laying the user of such means open to a suit for infringement, by the owner of the Arrott patent. The manufacturers using the process in use prior to Arrott's invention were unable to successfully compete with those using the Arrott in-37 ]vention, and, moreover, produced a *disproportionate number of defective, unsightly and substantially unsalable articles. The consumer was deceived and defrauded and the use of sanitary enameled ironware lessened and its reputation depreciated by defective articles being palmed off on the consumer as not defective."

On the situation thus asserted to exist, the defendants build their defense, contending that Wayman saw its evils and conceived the way to correct them; and insist that the following facts are established by the evidence: Wayman was familiar, through his connection with another enameling company, called the Seamless Steel Bath Tub Company, with the enamel ware trade, and had become convinced of the advantages, indeed, necessity, of the use of the Arrott invention. He tried to secure it, but the Standard Company seemed unwilling at that time to confer its utility upon other companies, and pending the negotiations the Seamless Company failed and Wayman turned to other plans, one of which resulted in the contracts under review.

As early as 1908, impressed with the importance of the Arrott patent, he endeavored to have the Standard Company grant licenses to other companies in order to improve trade conditions, and to this end he tried to interest other gentlemen in the project. The Standard Company was unwilling to grant, and other manufacturers were equally disinclined to accept, them. He then conceived the idea of a holding company, but this failed also, the Standard still being unyielding, stating by one of its officers that "his company was unwilling either to sell the Arrott patent or to enter into any arrangement which would lessen the advantage which it had by reason of the ownership of the Arrott patent." The plan was therefore abandoned.

In August, 1909 (we are still following the version of the testimony given by counsel for defendants), it was suggested to Wayman by a person connected with one *of the manufacturing companies that[38 he (Wayman) apply for the position of secretary of the Association of Sanitary Enameled Ware Manufacturers which was about to be reorganized. The position, it was said, would give Wayman an excellent opportunity to continue his efforts to buy the Arrott patent, and establish such relation with the manufacturers of enameled ware as would enable him to present in the most favorable manner his ideas in regard to the advantages of patent licenses under the Arrott patent. This association was a pure trade organization, and not formed to control or regulate prices. Wayman applied for and obtained the position, and commenced again negotiations for the Arrott patent, and persisted, against the apparent reluctance of the Standard Company to give up the advantages of the patent. Finally he impressed the manager of the Standard factories with the greater advantages which would come to his company by the elimination of "seconds," and removing them as competitors of the better articles of the Standard, confining the competition to such articles, of which the Standard produced 50 per cent. The manager of the Standard and that company yielded to the representation of these advantages.

These advantages are dwelt on and made much of by counsel and they quote testimony to display their extent. "Seconds," as we have said, were articles of inferior or defective manufacture, and as their inferiority was not apparent, they could be represented and sold as of standard quality. Such deception, it is asserted, was frequently practised, and the articles turning out defective discredited enamel ware, gave it a bad reputation, and there was a growing difficulty to maintain or extend its sale. With "seconds" out of the way, it may be conceded, as it is contended, that only honest articles were available to plumbers, jobbers, and builders.

The Standard Company fixed a price upon the Arrott patent and gave Wayman an option upon it. He, in the *following[39 December, secured also an option from the J. L. Mott Iron Works upon a patent called the Dithridge, and from the L. Wolff Manufacturing Company an option upon the Lindsay patent. These patents were in-registered label (except where otherwise specified) owned by the licensee, and in addition thereto a license tag or label approved by the licensor, placed in a visible position thereon.

The provision for prices was as follows:

"The licensor agrees that he will employ a commission of six persons, of which he is to be one, and to act as chairman thereof, five of whom shall be designated by a majority of the parties holding licenses similar to this license, which commission shall have supervision of all the relations and transactions between the parties hereto under this agreement; but it is understood that where a member of said commission, or his company, shall be directly interested in any question of a violation of the license to be decided by the said commission, said member shall be disqualified and a temporary member shall be appointed in his place by the remaining members of the commission.

"All terms and conditions relative to prices and discounts now established by the 45]licensor and set forth in *the annexed schedules and made a part hereof shall remain in force and effect until other terms, conditions, and preferential discounts are substituted therefor by the licensor, which substitution can only be made by him with the approval of a majority of the members of the commission, hereinbefore prescribed. Notice of such changes and substitutions shall be given from time to time in writing by the licensor to the licensees. The licensee covenants to adhere to and maintain such terms, conditions, regulations, prices, and preferential discounts as may be established by the licensor from time to time, and the licensee further agrees to sell no 'seconds' or 'B's' covered by schedules 4, 4½, 5, and 6." (Italics ours.)

The restrictions as to prices at which the goods were to be sold did not apply to those sold and exported to foreign countries. Such sales were required, however, to be proved to the licensor.

There was a provision for the return of 80 per cent of the royalties paid if the agreement should be complied with. These royalties, called in the agreement "royalty rebates," were forfeited if the provisions of the agreement should be violated in any particular.

The foregoing constitute the essential provisions of the manufacturer's agreements, and it will be observed what little space is given to "seconds," though it is asserted in the argument, as we have seen, that to get rid of the evils of their production and sale was the chief impulse to the agreements. The covenant as to "seconds" was expressed by the words which we have italicized in the provision relating to prices and discounts, quoted above. The schedules referred to are found in the paragraph providing for preferential discounts, and cover all articles but baths, these being described in schedules 1, 2, and 3.

There was also a jobber's license agreement that bore at the top the note that it "must be executed by the purchaser in order to purchase licensed sanitary enameled *ware." It conveyed to the jobber[46 the right to buy and sell such ware, provided for certain discounts and details as to shipments and deliveries, and that the sales were to be made "by the purchasers at prices to be established and prevailing in the various zones into which the goods were shipped, regardless of the point of purchase." There was a provision for the payment of the purchase price at certain rebate periods if the agreement should be complied with. The resale prices as established from time to time were required to be maintained by all jobbers and dealers, and sales could not be made from one jobber to another for any better prices than "established by the sheets," and the purchaser agreed to "observe and strictly maintain . . . the selling prices as they are set forth in the schedules, and observe and adhere to the rules and regulations as embodied in the price sheets," or embodied in price sheets which might be issued by or under the authority of the licensor. Articles might be added to or removed from the schedules at any time. The purchaser also agreed during the life of the contract not to purchase, sell, advertise, or solicit orders for, or in any way handle or deal in, sanitary enameled ironware of any manufacturer not licensed under the letters patent enumerated in the agreement, except with the express written permission of the licensor. A breach of any of the conditions subjected the contract and all unfilled orders to cancelation, the forfeiture of rebates, and the power to obtain the ware manufactured under the letters patent from any of the licensed manufacturers. The purchaser further agreed not to sell any goods on hand manufactured in accordance with the patents, irrespective of by whom manufactured, except in accordance with the prices, conditions, and regulations of sale established by the licensor.

The price list contained a notice to the jobbers' salemen that the agreements executed by their companies *required them[47 to resell the various licensed products at no better prices, terms, or other regulations than therein established. And further, as changes, additions, and eliminations occurred, new sheets would be issued promptly.

These are the main outlines of the agreements, and, as emphasizing them, Wayman directed the manufacturers at the time they sent out the jobbers' agreements to also send with them a letter containing the following: "It is necessary for you [the jobbers] to execute these contracts before we [the manufacturers] can sell you licensed sanitary enameled ware." This provision was enforced, as indicated by letters in the record. It was also the condition expressed by Wayman in his correspondence with other manufacturers whom he tried to induce to accept licenses and become parties to the agreements. In a letter to a jobber Wayman expressed the hope that the jobber could see his way clear to execute the agreement, as it covered "a matter entirely for the jobbers' benefit." He further stated: "The Cedar Rapids Pump Company of your city have executed the agreement, and I hope you will co-operate immediately with your local competitors, which will be much more advantageous than a continuous cut market."

In this statement certain things are prominent. Before the agreements the manufacturers of enameled ware were independent and competitive. By the agreements they were combined, subjected themselves to certain rules and regulations, among others, not to sell their product to the jobbers except at a price fixed not by trade and competitive conditions, but by the decision of the committee of six of their number, and zones of sales were created. And the jobbers were brought into the combination and made its subjection complete and its purpose successful. Unless they entered the combination they could obtain no enameled ware from any manufacturer who was in the combination, and the 48]condition of entry *was not to resell to plumbers except at the prices determined by the manufacturers. The trade was, therefore, practically controlled from producer to consumer, and the potency of the scheme was established by the co-operation of 85 per cent of the manufacturers, and their fidelity to it was secured not only by trade advantages, but by what was practically a pecuniary penalty, not inaptly termed in the argument, "cash bail." The royalty for each furnace was $5, 80 per cent of which was to be returned if the agreement was faithfully observed; it was to be "forfeited as a penalty" if the agreement was violated. And for faithful observance of their engagements the jobbers, too, were entitled to rebates from their purchases. It is testified that 90 per cent of the jobbers in number and more than 90 per cent in purchasing power joined the combination.

The agreements clearly, therefore, transcended what was necessary to protect the use of the patent or the monopoly which the law conferred upon it. They passed to the purpose and accomplished a restraint of trade condemned by the Sherman law. It had, therefore, a purpose and accomplished a result not shown in the Bement Case. There was a contention in that case that the contract of the National Harrow Company with Bement & Sons was part of a contract and combination with many other companies and constituted a violation of the Sherman law, but the fact was not established, and the case was treated as one between the particular parties, the one granting and the other receiving a right to use a patented article with conditions suitable to protect such use and secure its benefits. And there is nothing in Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 645, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364, which contravenes the views herein expressed.

The agreements in the case at bar combined the manufacturers and jobbers of enameled ware very much to the same purpose and results as the association of manufacturers *and dealers in tiles com-[49 bined them in W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307, which combination was condemned by this court as offending the Sherman law. The added element of the patent in the case at bar cannot confer immunity from a like condemnation, for the reasons we have stated. And this we say without entering into the consideration of the distinction of rights for which the government contends between a patented article and a patented tool used in the manufacture of an unpatented article. Rights conferred by patents are indeed very definite and extensive, but they do not give any more than other rights a universal license against positive prohibitions. The Sherman law is a limitation of rights,—rights which may be pushed to evil consequences, and therefore restrained.

This court has had occasion in a number of cases to declare its principle. Two of those cases we have cited. The others it is not necessary to review or to quote from except to say that, in the very latest of them, the comprehensive and thorough character of the law is demonstrated and its sufficiency to prevent evasions of its policy "by resort to any disguise or subterfuge of form," or the escape of its prohibitions "by any indirection." United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 181, 55 L. ed. 663, 694, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632. Nor can they be evaded by good motives.

The law is its own measure of right and wrong, of what it permits or forbids, and the judgment of the courts cannot be set up against it in a supposed accommodation of its policy with the good intention of parties, and, it may be, of some good results. United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 62, 52 L. ed. 681, 684, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428.

The Colwell Lead Company asserts the legality of the license agreements as the other defendants do, and, besides, urges that it was not engaged in interstate commerce, but that it only sold to plumbers, and that none of the price restrictions was 50]applicable to it, nor was it *at any time in any relations whatsoever with the other defendants. It asserts that it was itself a jobber, and therefore had no occasion to deal with jobbers, and that it was not present nor represented at any of the meetings preceding the license agreements.

It does appear, however, that the company was a member of the association of manufacturers,—an association which, we have seen, passed the first resolution in regard to the license agreement,—and the president of the company, when addressed on the subject of the agreement, expressed an appreciation of it provided all manufacturers should "sign up." He, however, reserved final judgment until he could go over the matter in detail with Wayman, who had addressed him, and declared that he would "be greatly influenced by what other manufacturers do."

There is a letter in the record, about which, however, there is some dispute, purporting to have been written by the president of the company to Wayman, in which the latter's interpretation of a previous letter was said to be "entirely correct," and which contained the following: "We will not require any preferentials below the lowest price made by the Standard Sanitary Manufacturing Company." There can be little doubt of the genuineness of the letter, and it is certain that the company asserted on the 25th of May, 1910. Its license, however, was modified in order that it might meet local competition in New York, its business being, it is contended, mostly local.

It appears from the testimony that the company was a manufacturer and a jobber, manufacturing about one half of what it sold. As a jobber it bought goods from other manufacturers, but it denies there was an agreement as to prices with such manufacturers.

The testimony as to the state or interstate character of its business is that it manufactures at Elizabeth, New Jersey, *and buys also from other manufactur-[51 ers and jobbers. It ships from there to its warehouses in New York, Worcester, Massachusetts, and Brooklyn. The trade of its Worcester branch covers about 200 miles around Worcester, its efforts being to localize its business. It is doubtful, it is testified, if the trade goes beyond Massachusetts, the trade there being circumscribed. Sales in Connecticut are made through the New York office from the warerooms.

It is manifest that the Colwell Company was a party to the combination and was also engaged in interstate commerce. The fact that its trade was less general than that of the other manufacturers and jobbers does not take from it the character of an interstate trader. The fact that it was restricted in less degree than the other jobbers, given a certain freedom of competition to meet local conditions in New York, diminishes only the degree of culpability, but does not entirely remove it. Indeed, it may be said that such freedom does not even diminish culpability. It is a concession which may be made a means of crushing competition where it is most formidable.

Error is assigned on the action of the circuit court in not granting a motion made by defendants for an enlargement of time to take testimony, on the ground that they had been prevented, by the action of the government in instituting criminal proceedings, from properly presenting their defense.

The question arose upon the action of witnesses who were subpœnaed and called by the Colwell Lead Company, they being officers of some of the other manufacturers. The government apprehending, and as it now contends, that the witnesses were called to give them immunity from a criminal prosecution which was then pending in Michigan, notified them that if they testified they would do so at their peril, as immunity could only be claimed by *wit-[52 nesses for the government. The witnesses thereupon, upon the advice of counsel, refused to testify, leaving, as it is contended, the Colwell Company particularly, and the other defendants as well, without the evidence such witnesses could have given, and which, it is said, they did give subsequently in the criminal trial.

Whether the testimony, if given, would have conferred immunity, we are not called upon to determine. The only question is as to the extent of the court's discretion in such circumstances. The Sherman act provides for a criminal proceeding to punish violations, and suits in equity to restrain such violations, and the suits may be brought simultaneously or successively. The order of their bringing must depend upon the government; the dependence of their trials cannot be fixed by a hard-and-fast rule, or made imperatively to turn upon the character of the suit. Circumstances may determine and are for the consideration of the court. An imperative rule that the civil suit must await the trial of the criminal action might result in injustice or take from the statute a great deal of its power. Besides a suit by the government, there may be an action for damages by a "person injured by reason of anything forbidden by the act." Must it also wait? Indeed, the reasons urged for the rule, if logically extended, would compel the postponement of the enforcement of the civil remedies until the exhaustion of criminal prosecutions or their expiration by lapse of time. Until either event occurs, the danger of incrimination cannot be said to have passed. It is manifest, therefor, that the most favorable view which can be taken of the rights of defendants in such situation is that they depend upon the discretion of the court in the particular case. We find no abuse of such discretion in the case at bar.

Decree affirmed.

---

52] *ORMOND G. SMITH, George C. Smith, and Cora A. Gould, Trading under the Firm Name of Street & Smith, Appts.,

v.

FRANK H. HITCHCOCK, Postmaster-General of the United States. (No. 31.)

FRANK TOUSEY, Publisher, a Corporation, Appt.,

v.

FRANK H. HITCHCOCK, Postmaster-General of the United States. (No. 32.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 53–61.)

Postoffice — second-class postal rates — periodicals or books.

1. Books, being expressly embraced in mail matter of the third class by the act of March 3, 1879 (20 Stat. at L. 359, chap. 180, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2648), § 17, cannot be removed from that class and given the benefit of second-class postal rates accorded by § 14 to periodical publications, by the simple device of publishing them in a series, at regular intervals of time, whether such publications be reprints of well-known works or new matter.

[For other cases, see Postoffice, V., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Postoffice — second-class postal rates — periodicals or books.

2. Weekly *32-page publications, each containing a single story, complete in itself, which are generally by the same author, and carry the same character through the series, and leave the reader to expect further tales, but which contain nothing else except a roll of honor, some laudatory letters with insignificant comment, and a page or two containing answers to inquiries, are not "periodical publications" entitled to second-class postal rates, under the act of March 3, 1879, § 14, but are "books," which, by § 17, take the higher third-class rate.

[For other cases, see Postoffice, V., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Postoffice — revoking second-class privileges — hearing.

3. Persons whose second-class mail privileges have been revoked on the ground that their publications were not periodicals, but books, have no cause to complain as to the sufficiency of the hearing before the Department, although, beyond the submission and acceptance of a printed brief upon the question, which was purely one of law, nothing further was done, the Department assigning no reasons for its ruling, and evincing no desire to discuss the matter, where not even by manner or indirection was the offer of any material evidence prevented.

[For other cases, see Postoffice, V., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 31 and 32.]

Argued November 5 and 6, 1912. Decided November 18, 1912.

APPEALS from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review decrees which reversed decrees of the Supreme Court of the District, enjoining the Postmaster-General from revoking certain second-class mail privileges. Affirmed.

See same case below, No. 31, 34 App. D. C. 521; No. 32, 34 App. D. C. 535.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. J. J. Darlington and H. H. Glassie argued the cause and filed a brief for appellants:

There was not "a hearing," in the sense of the statute.

Lewis Pub. Co. v. Wyman, 152 Fed. 787; Weybridge v. Addison, 57 Vt. 569; Payne v. United States, 20 App. D. C. 581; United States ex rel. Wedderburn v. Bliss, 12 App. D. C. 485; Garfield v. United States, 32 App. D. C. 154.

The relegation of appellants' publications from the second to the third class postage rate (whereby they are indirectly destroyed) cannot be justified upon the pretext of a personal literary and moral censorship unknown to the law.

Where it appears that Congress knew how certain terms in the previous law had been construed, the repetition of those same terms in a subsequent statute indicates that the construction was adopted along with the terms, and that "a like construction was intended, and was expected, to be given" to them. Repetitio verborum indicat acceptationem in eodem sensu.

Mason v. Fearson, 9 How. 248, 258, 13 L. ed. 125, 129; Reiche v. Smythe, 13 Wall. 162, 164, 20 L. ed. 566, 567; The Abbotsford, 98 U. S. 440, 444, 25 L. ed. 168, 169; Claflin v. Commonwealth Ins. Co. 110 U. S. 90, 93, 28 L. ed. 79, 80, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 401, 402, 50 L. ed. 515, 525, 526, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; United States v. G. Falk & Bro. 204 U. S. 143, 152, 51 L. ed. 411, 414, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 191; United States v. Cerecedo Hermanos y Compañia, 209 U. S. 337, 339, 52 L. ed. 821, 822, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532; White-Smith Music Pub. Co. v. Apollo Co. 209 U. S. 1, 14, 52 L. ed. 655, 660, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 319, 14 Ann. Cas. 628; Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. United States, 220 U. S. 94, 103, 55 L. ed. 384, 387, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 368.

Just as in the case of previous judicial construction, a known construction made by the officers charged with the enforcement of the statute is treated as if read in the subsequent statute.

New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 401, 402, 50 L. ed. 515, 525, 526, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; United States v. G. Falk & Bro. 204 U. S. 143, 152, 51 L. ed. 411, 414, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 191.

But in the case at bar we have something more than mere conscious repetition. We have, in the first place, an attempt to amend the law into the effect or sense in which it is now sought to be construed, and a deliberate rejection of that amendment. This should be conclusive.

United States v. Press Pub. Co. 219 U. S. 1, 10, 55 L. ed. 65, 67, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 212, 21 Ann. Cas. 942.

This court has never failed to take into consideration "the genesis and development of the legislation" which the act in question embodies. It seeks to place itself in the light of "the situation as it existed and as it was pressed upon the attention of the legislative body." Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 463, 36 L. ed. 229, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 511. In so doing the amendments to which an act has been subjected before it reached its final legislative form are deemed to afford "a specially efficacious means for discerning its intent and purpose."

United States v. Press Pub. Co. 219 U. S. 1, 11, 13, 55 L. ed. 65, 67, 68, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 212, 21 Ann. Cas. 942; Chesapeake & P. Teleph. Co. v. Manning, 186 U. S. 238, 242, 46 L. ed. 1144, 1146, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 881; Church of the Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 457, 463, 464, 36 L. ed. 226, 229, 230, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 511; Coosaw Min. Co. v. South Carolina, 144 U. S. 559, 561, 36 L. ed. 541, 542, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 689; Platt v. Union P. R. Co. 99 U. S. 48, 64, 25 L. ed. 424, 429; Blake v. National City Bank, 23 Wall. 307, 319, 23 L. ed. 119, 120.

We have, in the second place, the additional fact that the words as repeated in the new act of 1879 were immediately given the same construction as under the prior law, by the officers charged with their enforcement, notwithstanding that these officers had themselves endeavored to have the law changed. This is a contemporary interpretation of the most forcible nature. This practical exposition is too strong and obstinate to be shaken or controlled.

Schell v. Fauché, 138 U. S. 562, 572, 34 L. ed. 1040, 1043, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; United States v. Hill, 120 U. S. 169, 180, 182, 183, 30 L. ed. 627, 631, 632, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 510; Hahn v. United States, 107 U. S. 402, 406, 27 L. ed. 527, 528, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 494; Butterworth v. United States, 112 U. S. 50, 67, 68, 28 L. ed. 656, 661, 662, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. Philbrick, 120 U. S. 52, 59, 30 L. ed. 559, 561, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 413; Bate Refrigerating Co. v. Sulzberger, 157 U. S. 1, 44, 45, 39 L. ed. 601, 614, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 508; United States v. Healey, 160 U. S. 136, 141, 145, 40 L. ed. 369, 371, 372, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Hewitt v. Schultz, 180 U. S. 139, 157, 45 L. ed. 463, 472, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 309; Midway Co. v. Eaton, 183 U. S. 602, 609, 46 L. ed. 347, 352, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261; United States v. Finnell, 185 U. S. 236, 244, 46 L. ed. 890, 893, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633.

An expression of opinion in debate is not appropriate evidence of legislative intent.

United States v. Union P. R. Co. 91 U. S. 72, 79, 23 L. ed. 224, 228; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 293, 318, 41 L. ed. 1011, 1019, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540.

The refusal of Congress to accept the repeated recommendation of the Postoffice Department to restrict the second-class mailing privileges was equivalent to affirmative action in maintaining the status quo.

Chiles v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 218 U. S. 71, 76, 54 L. ed. 936, 938, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 667, 20 Ann. Cas. 980; Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. 275, 282, 23 L. ed. 347, 350.

If, as we submit, the action of Congress shows conclusively what it intended the term to include, it would seem to follow that the decision in Houghton's Case, infra, cannot be taken in subsequent cases as authoritatively ascertaining the intent of Congress to be the reverse.

Barden v. Northern P. R. Co. 154 U. S. 288, 322, 38 L. ed. 992, 1000, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1030; Kilbourn v. Thompson, 103 U. S. 176, 196, 199, 200, 26 L. ed. 388, 389, 390; Legal Tender Cases, 12 Wall. 457, 554, 20 L. ed. 287, 313.

In any event, the decision in Houghton v. Payne, 194 U. S. 88, 48 L. ed. 888, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 590, should be rigidly limited to the precise facts of that case, and should not be extended by analogies to cases not strictly within its scope.

Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 291, 49 L. ed. 739, 761, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 574, 39 L. ed. 759, 816, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673.

Self-completeness is no bar to periodical character, and it would be mere stultification for the Postmaster General so to assert, in view of the publications admitted by him as periodicals without question.

The positive authority of a decision is coextensive only with the facts on which it is made.

Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat. 213, 233, 6 L. ed. 606, 612; Pollock v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 157 U. S. 429, 574, 39 L. ed. 759, 816, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Brooks v. Marbury, 11 Wheat. 78, 91, 6 L. ed. 423, 426; Carroll v. Carroll, 16 How. 275, 287, 14 L. ed. 936, 941; Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. Price County, 133 U. S. 496, 509, 33 L. ed. 687 694, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341; Hans v. Louisiana, 134 U. S. 1, 20, 33 L. ed. 842, 849, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 504; Cross v. Burke, 146 U. S. 82, 87, 36 L. ed. 896, 898, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 22; United States v. Wong Kim Ark, 169 U. S. 649, 679, 42 L. ed. 890, 901, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 456; Downes v. Bidwell, 182 U. S. 244, 259, 45 L. ed. 1088, 1095, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 770; Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 291, 49 L. ed. 739, 761, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

Such a discrimination as is here sought to be made by mere administrative officers, between things substantially alike, would be even beyond the power of Congress itself.

Public Clearing House v. Coyne, 194 U. S. 497, 507, 48 L. ed. 1092, 1098, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 789.

The right of a citizen to post his mail matter at the rates established by Congress is a fixed legal right which he cannot be deprived of by the act of an administrative officer.

Payne v. United States, 20 App. D. C. 597; Smith v. Powdich, 1 Cowp. 182; Stock v. Harris, 5 Burr. 2711; Rowning v. Goodchild, 2 Wm. Bl. 907, 3 Wils. 413; Barnes v. Foley, 4 Burr. 2149; Jones v. Walker, Cowp. pt. 2, p. 624; Teal v. Felton, 12 How. 284, 13 L. ed. 990; American School v. McAnnulty, 187 U. S. 94, 47 L. ed. 90, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33; Payne v. United States, 20 App. D. C. 581.

The Postoffice Department is not, in strictness, a political department.

Public Clearing House v. Coyne, 194 U. S. 497, 506, 48 L. ed. 1092, 1097, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 789.

Any discretion, therefore, which may remain to the officials of the postal service in the classification of the mail, is not analogous in any way to the political discretion lodged in the head of the political department as such.

Payne v. United States, 20 App. D. C. 581.

In so far as the judgment rests simply upon a comparison of the publications themselves with the requirements of the statute, that is a question of law.

Bates & G. Co. v. Payne, 194 U. S. 106, 107, 110, 48 L. ed. 894, 895, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595.

While there may be a discretion in an administrative officer to determine the existence and weight of matters of fact upon which his judgment may depend (all requirements as to hearing being, of course, complied with), there is no discretion to misconstrue the terms of a statute, or to amend it by reading into it limitations not already there.

Payne v. United States, 20 App. D. C. 581; Morrill v. Jones, 106 U. S. 466, 467, 27 L. ed. 267, 268, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 423; Teal v. Felton, 12 How. 284, 291, 13 L. ed. 990, 992; American School v. McAnnulty, 187 U. S. 109, 47 L. ed. 96, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33; Sanford v. Sanford, 139 U. S. 642, 647, 35 L. ed. 290, 291, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Quinby v. Conlan, 104 U. S. 420, 426, 26 L. ed. 800, 802; Moore v. Robbins, 96 U. S. 530, 535, 24 L. ed. 848, 850; Shepley v. Cowan, 91 U. S. 330, 340, 23 L. ed. 424, 427; Johnson v. Towsley, 13 Wall. 72, 20 L. ed. 485; Silver v. Ladd, 7 Wall. 219, 19 L. ed. 138.

It is Congress, and not the Postmaster General, who determines what shall constitute second-class matter and what third-class matter.

Payne v. United States, 20 App. D. C. 597.

The citizen and the court are both entitled to require the administrative officer to state the rule of law which he is acting on, in order to compare that rule with the statute on which it purports to be based.

American School v. McAnnulty, 187 U. S. 109, 47 L. ed. 96, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33.

The mere fact that any officer must read the law, and therefore, in a certain sense, construe it, in order to form a judgment from its language as to the duty it directs, does not give the officer a discretion to read the statute as he pleases.

Roberts v. United States, 176 U. S. 221, 231, 44 L. ed. 443, 447, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; United States ex rel. West v. Hitchcock, 19 App. D. C. 333; Payne v. United States, 20 App. D. C. 581; Garfield v. United States, 211 U. S. 249, 261, 262, 53 L. ed. 168, 174, 175, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 62.

The definition of a word of common speech used as a statutory term is a pure question of laaw.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 413, 418, 4 L. ed. 579, 603, 604; State v. Stevens, 69 Vt. 413, 38 Atl. 80; Taylor v. Horst, 52 Minn. 303, 54 N. W. 734; Com. v. Sullivan, 146 Mass. 142, 15 N. E. 491; Marvel v. Merritt, 116 U. S. 11, 12, 29 L. ed. 550, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207.

Solicitor General Bullitt argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee:

The decision of the Postmaster General is conclusive and should not be reviewed.

Bates & G. Co. v. Payne, 194 U. S. 106, 48 L. ed. 894, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595.

A mere compliance with the statutory requirements does not make the publication a periodical.

Houghton v. Payne, 194 U. S. 88, 48 L. ed. 888, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 590; Bates & G. Co. v. Payne, 194 U. S. 106, 48 L. ed. 894, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595; Smith v. Payne, 194 U. S. 104, 48 L. ed. 893, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595.

The contents of the publication determine whether or not it is a periodical.

Ibid.

The reprinting feature was not the determining factor in Houghton v. Payne and Smith v. Payne, supra.

Former Solicitor General Lehmann also filed a brief for appellee:

The notice given and the hearing accorded the complainants fulfilled the requirements of the law.

Den ex dem. Murray v. Hoboken Land & Improv. Co. 18 How. 272, 15 L. ed. 372; Reetz v. Michigan, 188 U. S. 505, 47 L. ed. 563, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390; Japanese Immigrant Case, 189 U. S. 86, 47 L. ed. 721, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611.

The issues of "Tip Top Weekly" are books, and not periodicals.

Houghton v. Payne, 194 U. S. 88, 48 L. ed. 888, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 590; Bates & G. Co. v. Payne, 194 U. S. 106, 48 L. ed. 894, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

These are bills to restrain the Postmaster General from revoking orders according second-class mail privileges to the several plaintiffs,—in the first-named case in respect of a series of publications issued under the name of the Tip Top Weekly; in the second, in respect of a similar one entitled Work and Win. The ground of the bills is that the privileges were annulled without granting the hearing required by the act of March 3, 1901, chap. 851, 31 Stat. at L. 1099, 1107, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2655, and that the publications are periodical publications within the meaning of the act of March 3, 1879, chap. 180, §§ 7, 10, 14, 20 Stat. at L. 358, 359, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2646, and therefore must be carried as second-class matter, by the very terms of the law.

We will take up the second question first. The facts are not in dispute and are alike in the two cases. The publications are weekly, each containing a single story complete in itself, but the same character is carried through the series, and the reader is led by announcements to expect further tales after the one before him. Most of the stories are by the same author. The element of sequence may be indicated by a few of the titles in the Tip Top Weekly: Frank Merriwell in Arizona; or, the Mysteries of the Mine. Frank Merriwell's Friend; or, Muriel the Moonshiner. Frank Merriwell's Double; or, Fighting for Life. Frank Merriwell Meshed; or, the Last of the Danites. Frank Merriwell's Magic; or, the Pearl of Tangier. Frank Merriwell in London; or, The Grip of Doom, etc., etc. There is nothing else in a number except a roll of honor or list of some of those who have *endeavored to increase the circu-[58 lation of the series, laudatory letters with insignificant comments, and a page or two of inquiries as to physical culture, purporting to come from readers, with short replies, all more or less incident to the muscular tenor of the tales. The publications measure about 11 by 8 inches on the outside, are said to contain about thirty thousand words, have thirty-two pages, including a page of advertisement, and exclusive of the cover, of which twenty-six are filled by the story. The front cover bears a colored illustration of some incident narrated within.

Thus a question of law is raised, although, as suggested in Bates & G. Co. v. Payne, 194 U. S. 106, 108, 48 L. ed. 894, 895, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595, we should not interfere with the decision of the Postmaster General unless clearly of opinion that it was wrong. Id. 110. American School v. McAnnulty, 187 U. S. 94, 106, 47 L. ed. 90, 95, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33; Public Clearing House v. Coyne, 194 U. S. 497, 509, 48 L. ed. 1092, 1098, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 789. We have no such clear opinion, as the decision is pretty nearly if not wholly sustained by Houghton v. Payne, 194 U. S. 88, 48 L. ed. 888, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 590, and Smith v. Payne, 194 U. S. 104, 48 L. ed. 893, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595. Indeed, the latter case dealt with The Medal Library, which was a periodical publication of several issues of the Tip Top Weekly, bound together; as the principal plaintiff now puts it, in book form, and it is true, reprinted in a different size and shape. Some attempt was made to reargue the law of the decisions just cited, but we do not feel called upon to reopen the discussion in that part of the appellants' brief.

It must be taken as established that not every series of printed papers published at definite intervals is a periodical publication within the meaning of the law, even if it satisfies the conditions for admission to the second class, set forth in § 14. Houghton v. Payne, 194 U. S. 88, 96, 48 L. ed. 888, 889, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 590. It is established by the same authorities that books that are expressly embraced in mail matter of the third class by § 17, and so made liable to a higher rate of postage, 59] *cannot be removed from that class and brought into the second by the simple device of publishing them in a series at regular intervals of time. It was suggested, to be sure, that the distinction was between reprints of well-known works and new matter, but we can see nothing in that; neither do we find much weight in the identity of authorship, the retention of the name of the hero through successive tales, or the ever-renewed promise of further wonders in the next. All these might co-exist and yet each number might be a book, and if so, it goes into the third class. "Mail matter of the third class shall embrace books." § 17.

The noun "periodical," according to the nice shade of meaning given to it by popular speech, conveys at least a suggestion, if not a promise, of matter on a variety of topics, and certainly implies that no single number is contemplated as forming a book by itself. But we can approach the question more profitably from the other end, and shall have gone as far as we need when we decide whether the numbers exhibited constitute so many books. The word "book," also, of course, has its ambiguities, and may have different meanings according to the connection in which it is used. For purposes of copyright the common monthly magazines may be books, yet they are not so under the present § 17. As books are not turned into periodicals by number and sequence, the magazines are not brought into the third class by having a considerable number of pages stitched together. Without attempting a definition, we may say that generally a printed publication is a book when its contents are complete in themselves, deal with a single subject, betray no need of continuation, and, perhaps, have an appreciable size. There may be exceptions, as there are other instances of books. It hardly would be an exception if, where the object is information and the subject-matter is a changing one, a publication periodically issued, giving information for *the time, should be held to fall into[60 the second class. From this point of view the Tip Top Weekly and Work and Win are books. They are large enough to raise no doubt on that score; each volume is complete in itself and betrays no inward need of more, notwithstanding that, as in the highwayman stories of an earlier generation, further adventures to follow are promised at the end.

The decision that these weeklies are books shortens what needs to be said as to the sufficiency of the hearing. The parties were notified that they would be granted a hearing at the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster General, Washington, District of Columbia, at a fixed day and hour, to show cause why the admission to the second-class should not be revoked and the third-class rate of postage charged, on the ground that the issues were not periodical publications, but were books. They sent a representative to Washington who left a printed response in advance, asking for further opportunity for argument if the authorities were not satisfied, and who called at the appointed time. He was referred to the Chief of the Classification Division,—the proper person. Rev. Stat. § 161, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 80; Postal Laws and Regulations, 1902 ed. §§ 6, 19, subsec. 1, 8. He saw him and asked if the brief had been received, was answered yes, and then asked if the other had any questions to ask, and was answered no. He presented a pamphlet, "The Influence of the Dime Novel," and departed, offering no further argument, seemingly somewhat aggrieved at not having seen the Third Assistant Postmaster General in person. Subsequently, the Assistant Attorney General for the Postoffice Department was consulted by the officials, and in accordance with his opinion the order was issued which the plaintiffs seek to restrain.

The matter was argued to us with some feeling, and it is not impossible that the interview gave an impression of official indifference. But the plaintiffs allege in their bills that the question was a pure question of law; it was a question *that[61 they had a right to have reviewed and have had reviewed in this court; it was clearly defined; the official was not called on to state reasons or to discuss,—his only duty was to hear; and beyond offering the printed brief, the plaintiffs' representatives showed no desire to be heard. This is not a case in which even by manner or indirection, the plaintiffs were prevented from offering material evidence. The facts and the question were as plain then as now. The conclusion reached was right; and in the circumstances disclosed, we are of opinion that the plaintiffs had no cause to complain.

Decrees affirmed.

---

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appt.,
v.
UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 61–98.)

Monopoly — combination by carriers — stock control.

1. A combination which places railroads engaged in interstate commerce in such a relation as to create a single dominating control in one corporation whereby natural and existing competition in interstate commerce is unduly restricted or suppressed constitutes a restraint of interstate commerce forbidden by the Sherman anti-trust act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), whether accomplished through a holding company or through a direct transfer of a dominating stock interest from one company to the other.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — combination by carriers — stock control.

2. A purchase by one railway company of a dominating stock interest in another, though legal in the state where made, and within corporate powers conferred by state authority, cannot escape condemnation under the Sherman anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, if it contravenes the prohibitions of that statute against combinations and conspiracies in restraint of trade, enacted by Congress in the exercise of its supreme authority over interstate commerce.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — combination by carriers — stock control.

3. The acquisition by the Union Pacific Railroad Company, then operating a line from Missouri river points to Portland, and thence to San Francisco by steamship connection, of 46 per cent of the outstanding capital stock of the Southern Pacific Company, with the intent and result, not only of securing the California connection at Ogden over the Central Pacific line, and thus effecting such a continuity of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific lines from the Missouri river to San Francisco, as was contemplated by the acts of July 1, 1862 (12 Stat. at L. 489, chap. 120), July 2, 1864 (13 Stat. at L. 356, chap. 216), and June 20, 1874 (18 Stat. at L. 111, chap. 331, U. S. Comp Stat. 1901, p. 3577), but of obtaining the dominating control of the entire Southern Pacific system, consisting of lines by water and rail, together forming a transportation system from New York and other Atlantic ports to San Francisco and Portland and other Pacific coast points, with various branches and connections, besides a steamship line from San Francisco to Panama, and from San Francisco to the Orient, and a half interest in another line between the two latter points, which system was actively competing with the purchasing road for interstate business, large in volume, though small in comparison with the total traffic carried, creates, contrary to the act of July 2, 1890, a combination in restraint of interstate trade.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Injunction — against monopolies — scope of relief.

4. The Federal district court, in relieving against a combination in restraint of interstate trade, created contrary to the act of July 2, 1890, by the acquisition by the Union Pacific and Central Pacific lines from inant stock interest in the Southern Pacific Company, a competing railway system, should, by its decree, provide against the right to vote such stock while in the ownership or control of the Union Pacific Railroad Company, or any corporation owned by it, or while held for it by any corporation or person, and forbid any transfer or disposition thereof in such wise as to continue its control, and should enjoin the payment of dividends on the stock while so held, except to a receiver appointed by the court to collect and hold such dividends until disposed of by its decree.

[For other cases, see Injunction, I. g, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — remanding for further hearing — dissolution of monopoly.

5. Any plan for the disposition of the shares of stock of the Southern Pacific Company, found by the Federal Supreme Court to have been acquired by the Union Pacific Railroad Company, contrary to the act of July 2, 1890, prohibiting combinations in the restraint of interstate trade, must be such as effectively to dissolve the unlawful combination, and must be subject to the approval and decree of the district court, which shall proceed, upon the presentation of any plan, to hear the government and the defendants, and may bring in any

---

NOTE.—As to what relation a contract or combination must bear to interstate commerce in order to bring it within the scope of the Federal anti-trust act—see note to Loewe v. Lawlor, 52 L. ed. U. S. 488.

As to illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws generally—see note to Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

additional parties whose presence may be necessary to a final disposition of the stock in conformity to the views of the Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 5403-5406, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — remanding for further hearing — dissolution of monopoly.

6. Nothing in the decision of the Federal Supreme Court that the acquisition by the Union Pacific Railroad Company of a dominant stock interest in the Southern Pacific Company constitutes a restraint of interstate commerce forbidden by the act of July 2, 1890, should be construed as preventing the government or any party in interest, if so desiring, from presenting to the district court a plan for permitting the Union Pacific Company to retain the California connection at Ogden over the Central Pacific line, and thus effect such a continuity of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific lines from the Missouri river to San Francisco as was contemplated by the acts of July 1, 1862, July 2, 1864, and June 20, 1874, or as preventing the court from adopting and giving effect to any such plan so presented.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 5403-5406, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — remanding for further hearing — dissolution of monopoly.

7. Plans for dissolving a combination created by the purchase by the Union Pacific Railroad Company of a dominant stock interest in the Southern Pacific Company, which the Federal Supreme Court finds to constitute a restraint of interstate commerce forbidden by the act of July 2, 1890, should be presented to the Federal district court within three months from the receipt of the mandate of the Supreme Court, failing which, or upon the rejection by the court of plans submitted within that period, the court shall proceed by receivership and sale, if necessary, to dispose of such stock in such wise as to dissolve the unlawful combination.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 5403-5406, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 446.]

Argued April 19, 22, and 23, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Utah to review a decree dismissing the bill in a suit to enforce the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust act against certain alleged conspiracies and combinations in restraint of interstate commerce. Reversed in part, the District Court to retain jurisdiction to see that the decree outlined is made effectual.

See same case below, 188 Fed. 102.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Attorney General Wickersham and Messrs. Cordenio A. Severance and Frank B. Kellogg, Special Assistants to 57 L. ed.

the Attorney General, argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

The Sherman law, as construed by the courts, is directed against all attempts to suppress competition among interstate carriers or to monopolize interstate commerce.

National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 49 L. ed. 689, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; United States v. Standard Oil Co. 173 Fed. 177; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540.

The courts have recognized and enforced the policy, both under statutory and constitutional provisions, and also in the absence of such provisions.

Central R. Co. v. Collins, 40 Ga. 582; Clarke v. Central R. & Bkg. Co. 15 L.R.A. 683, 50 Fed. 338; Com. v. South Pennsylvania R. Co. 1 Pa. Co. Ct. 214; Continental Securities Co. v. Interborough Rapid Transit Co. 165 Fed. 945; Currier v. Concord R. Corp. 48 N. H. 322; East St. Louis Connecting R. Co. v. Jarvis, 34 C. C. A. 639, 92 Fed. 735; East Line & R. River R. Co. v. State, 75 Tex. 434, 12 S. W. 690; Edwards v. Southern R. Co. 66 S. C. 277, 44 N. E. 748; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404, 1 L.R.A. 849, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 335, 13 Am. St. Rep. 815, 10 S. W. 81; Hamilton v. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. 49 Fed. 412; Langdon v. Branch, 37 Fed. 449; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com. 97 Ky. 675, 31 S. W. 476; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 677, 40 L. ed. 849, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 714; Morrill v. Boston & M. R. Co. 55 N. H. 531; Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 646, 40 L. ed. 838, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Com. 3 Sadler (Pa.) 100, 7 Atl. 368; State v. Vanderbilt, 37 Ohio St. 590; Stockton v. Central R. Co. 50 N. J. Eq. 52, 17 L.R.A. 97, 24 Atl. 964; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Southern P. R. Co. 41 La. Ann. 970, 17 Am. St. Rep. 445, 6 So. 888; Yazoo & M. Valley R. Co. v. Southern R. Co. 83 Miss. 746, 36 So. 74.

It is immaterial that one of two competing roads may be organized under the laws of another state, or situated beyond the borders of the state having the prohibition.

Currier v. Concord R. Corp. 48 N. H. 322; Re Consolidation & Combinations of Carriers, 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 305; Morrill v. Boston & M. R. Co. 55 N. H. 531; Union P. R. Co. v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. 199 U. S. 160, 50 L. ed. 134, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 188 Fed. 121.

Prior to the acquisition of the stock of the Southern Pacific Company by the Union Pacific, the lines of those two systems were competitive; and such acquisition, having eliminated such competition, was therefore in restraint of trade and in violation of the anti-trust act.

East St. Louis Connecting R. Co. v. Jarvis, 34 C. C. A. 639, 92 Fed. 735; East Line & R. River R. Co. v. State, 75 Tex. 434, 12 S. W. 690; East Line & R. River R. Co. v. Rushing, 69 Tex. 306, 6 S. W. 834; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. State, 72 Tex. 404, 1 L.R.A. 849, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 335, 13 Am. St. Rep. 815, 10 S. W. 81; Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. ed. 739, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Kimball v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 46 Fed. 888; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com. 97 Ky. 675, 31 S. W. 476; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 677, 40 L. ed. 849, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 714; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 646, 40 L. ed. 838, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Com. 3 Sadler (Pa.) 100, 7 Atl. 368; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 67, 55 L. ed. 619, 648, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; State ex rel. Nolan v. Montana R. Co. 21 Mont. 221, 45 L.R.A. 271, 53 Pac. 636; State v. Vanderbilt, 37 Ohio St. 590; Stockton v. Central R. Co. 50 N. J. Eq. 52, 17 L.R.A. 97, 24 Atl. 964; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Southern P. R. Co. 41 La. Ann. 970, 17 Am. St. Rep. 445, 6 So. 888; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 302, 41 L. ed. 1007, 1014, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548, 24 L.R.A. 73, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 443, 7 C. C. A. 15, 19 U. S. App. 36, 58 Fed. 64; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 188 Fed. 110.

The clause in the Pacific Railroad act authorizing the Central Pacific and the Union Pacific to consolidate their lines gave the Union Pacific no right to buy the Southern Pacific.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 677, 40 L. ed. 849, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 714; Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 646, 40 L. ed. 838, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; Union P. R. Co. v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. 199 U. S. 160, 50 L. ed. 134, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19.

The acquisition of the controlling interest in the Southern Pacific system by the Union Pacific tended to suppress competition, and therefore was in restraint of trade; also tended to monopoly, and is in violation of the Sherman act.

Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. ed. 739, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Com. 3 Sadler (Pa.) 100, 7 Atl. 368; Stockton v. Central R. Co. 50 N. J. Eq. 52, 17 L.R.A. 97, 24 Atl. 964; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

The ownership by the Union Pacific of less than a majority of the stock in the Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Northern Pacific, Great Northern, and San Pedro lines tended to suppress competition and create a monopoly, and is inhibited by the Sherman act.

Central R. Co. v. Collins, 40 Ga. 582; Gibbs v. Consolidated Gas Co. 130 U. S. 408, 32 L. ed. 984, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 553; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 677, 40 L. ed. 849, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 714; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 646, 40 L. ed. 838, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Com. 3 Sadler (Pa.) 100, 7 Atl. 368; People ex rel. Peabody v. Chicago Gas Trust Co. 130 Ill. 268, 8 L.R.A. 497, 17 Am. St. Rep. 319, 22 N. E. 798; Central Ohio Salt Co. v. Guthrie, 35 Ohio St. 666; Stockton v. Central R. Co. 50 N. J. Eq. 52, 17 L.R.A. 97, 24 Atl. 964; United States v. Standard Oil Co. 173 Fed. 179, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548.

The fact that the Union Pacific has, since the commencement of this suit, sold the balance of its stock in the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, and in the Santa Fe, is no reason why an injunction should not be granted.

United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. St. Rep. 548.

The control of the San Pedro road under the circumstances of this case tended to suppress competition and is void, although that line was not completed at the time of the acquisition of the stock therein.

Com. v. Beech Creek, C. & S. W. R. Co. 1 Pa. Co. Ct. 223; Farrington v. Stucky, 91 C. C. A. 311, 165 Fed. 325; Hamilton v. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. 49 Fed. 412; Hartford & N. H. R. Co. v. New York & N. H. R. Co. 3 Robt. 411; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Philadelphi & R. R. Co. 123 Fed. 969; Langdon v. Branch, 37

Fed. 449; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Com. 3 Sadler (Pa.) 100, 7 Atl. 368; State v. Hartford & N. H. R. Co. 29 Conn. 538; Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail S. S. Co. 92 C. C. A. 315, 166 Fed. 251; United States v. Patterson, 59 Fed. 280; United States v. Standard Oil Co. 173 Fed. 177, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734.

The combination of steamship lines between American and foreign ports, for the purpose of suppressing competition, is within the inhibitions of the Sherman act.

Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail S. S. Co. 92 C. C. A. 315, 166 Fed. 251.

Mr. P. F. Dunne argued the cause and filed a brief for the appellees:

The restriction of competition at which the anti-trust act is leveled must be direct in its nature, not remote; substantial, not incidental or relatively unimportant; undue and unreasonable, if any restriction there be. The union of two connecting lines, making for better service and better administration,—for the expansion of commerce and the welfare of communities,—could rarely, if ever, be accomplished in this country under legislation like the anti-trust act, if that legislation were not given a reasonable construction. Some incidental restriction of competition in a spot or in spots, existing, it may be, only in possibility, not in fact, is seldom absent from the inter-relations of railroad carriers in a country traversed and intersected by railroad lines as this country is; some competition in some sense, more or less limited, becomes visible if sufficiently looked for,—however characteristic and substantial the relations of two carriers may be as natural connecting lines.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 67, 55 L. ed. 619, 648, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 458; Phillips v. Iola Portland Cement Co. 61 C. C. A. 19, 125 Fed. 594; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 568, 43 L. ed. 287, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 615, 616, 43 L. ed. 305, 306, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 228, 44 L. ed. 142, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; State v. Central of Georgia R. Co. 109 Ga. 716, 48 L.R.A. 351, 35 S. E. 37; Kimball v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 46 Fed. 890; Rogers v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. 33 C. C. A. 517, 62 U. S. App. 49, 697, 91 Fed. 318.

The Southern Pacific was not a competitor on California business of its own connecting lines, whether at the Ogden or New Orleans terminus or the El Paso junction.

Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 50 L. ed. 585, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330.

Does the expression, as used in the Pacific Railroad acts, "one continuous line," import a traffic agreement, for a joint rate, or does it mean that the roads—physical things—shall be operated and used in travel and transportation as an unbroken mechanical line, without interruption or breach of continuity, as they have been operated and as they are being operated through Ogden to this day? Certainly the expression is a familiar one in state legislation authorizing the consolidation of continuous and connecting lines, and its implication has always been physical.

Mackintosh v. Flint & P. M. R. Co. 34 Fed. 615.

Uniformity of rate per ton per mile, or per passenger per mile, as well as uniformity of gauge in the physical track, between points on the one continuous line, was the thing that Congress had in mind. Through rates on transcontinental traffic between points off the continuous line on the Atlantic seaboard or in the interior, upon the one hand, and in California, upon the other, were not in mind and were not intended.

Oregon Short Line & U. N. R. Co. v. Northern P. R. Co. 51 Fed. 475; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Osborne, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 257, 3 C. C. A. 347, 10 U. S. App. 430, 52 Fed. 914; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 26 L.R.A. 192, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 854, 11 C. C. A. 417, 27 U. S. App. 380, 63 Fed. 778.

There is no machinery in these Pacific Railroad acts for the ascertainment of through joint freight tariffs, and beyond that, for the apportionment of the through joint rate between the two connecting lines at Ogden. If the Southern Pacific, for example, refuses to make joint through rates with the Union Pacific, it is not competent for a court to make the contract and prescribe the terms, nor, having decreed what the through joint rate shall be, to go on and rule how it shall be apportioned between the parties. This is not a judicial function.

Prentis v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 211 U. S. 226, 53 L. ed. 158, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 682, 28 L. ed. 297, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Express Cases, 117 U. S. 28, 29, 29 L. ed. 802, 803, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 542, 628.

The contracts forbidden by the anti-trust act, as stated and reiterated in Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 229, 44 L. ed. 143, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96, are those which directly and substantially, and not merely indirectly, remotely, incidentally, and collaterally, regulate to a greater or less degree commerce among the states.

And in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases, the more comprehensive generalization and criterion has been evolved, historically and analytically, of the rule of reason, guided by the established law and by the plain duty to enforce the prohibitions of the act, and thus the public policy which its restrictions were obviously enacted to subserve.

Two independent lines cannot be said to be competing in the direct sense, as distinguished from some indirect and "limited" sense, unless they are related by common termini.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 682, 40 L. ed. 850, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 714; Burke v. Cleveland, C. C. & I. R. Co. 10 Ohio Dec. Reprint, 529.

An incidental and remote effect upon interstate commerce, to use the terms of the Addyston Case,—of all the cases, from the Trans-Missouri Case down,—is not the thing that the statute is concerned with.

Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 184, 50 L. ed. 432, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 458.

The anti-trust act deals with agreements in undue restraint of existing competitive conditions, and prohibits the continuing or entering into such an agreement for the future.

United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540.

It does not prohibit an undertaking between two men or two corporations, having no actual competitive relation, having in contemplation a business existing only in idea,—not to speak of competition which could come only as a sequel,—from joining prudentially and making the enterprise a common one.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734.

The formation of corporations for business or manufacturing purposes has never, to our knowledge, been regarded in the nature of a contract in restraint of trade or commerce. The same may be said of the contract of partnership.

United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

The Union Pacific did not purchase the properties of the Southern Pacific. Those properties are still in the same corporate proprietorship,—in the Southern Pacific Company as the owner and depositary of the title and control, with an equity over of participation in its stockholders.

Pullman's Palace Car Co. v. Missouri P. R. Co. 115 U. S. 587, 29 L. ed. 499, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 194; Porter v. Pittsburg Bessemer Steel Co. 120 U. S. 649, 670, 30 L. ed. 830, 838, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1206.

Its holding of Southern Pacific stock, as having always been that of a minority stockholder, is one of the actual circumstances in this case of legal import and consequence.

Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 671, 40 L. ed. 846, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; United States v. Northern Securities Co. 120 Fed. 726; Noyes, Intercorporate Relations, § 294.

The acquisition and ownership by the Union Pacific of the Huntington stock by out-and-out sale to it by a stockholder in the market is not, as such, within the power of Congress to regulate, under the commerce clause of the Constitution.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 11, 13, 39 L. ed. 328, 329, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat, 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Union Nat. Bank v. Matthews, 98 U. S. 628, 25 L. ed. 190; St. Louis, V. & T. H. R. Co. v. Terre Haute & I. R. Co. 145 U. S. 407, 408, 36 L. ed. 754, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 953; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 19 L. ed. 357; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Ashley v. Ryan, 153 U. S. 436, 38 L. ed. 773, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 664, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 865; Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 646, 40 L. ed. 838, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 677, 40 L. ed. 849, 16 Sup. St. Rep. 714; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 391, 48 L. ed. 722, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Mississippi, 210 U. S. 187, 202, 52 L. ed. 1016, 1023, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 650.

The disposition here will be to construe the statute not merely so as to sustain its constitutionality, but so as to avoid a succession of constitutional doubts, so far as candor permits.

Harriman v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 211 U. S. 407, 421, 53 L. ed. 253, 264, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 115.

An out-and-out sale or conveyance is quite distinguishable from the collateral stipulation or covenant which may or may not run with the sale, and which goes by the name, "contract in restraint of trade,"—a term "of well-known meaning at common law or in the law of this country."

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U.

S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Maine, Ancient Law, p. 305; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 567, 568, 43 L. ed. 259, 286, 287, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Diamond Match Co. v. Roeber, 106 N. Y. 483, 60 Am. Rep. 464, 13 N. E. 419; Bancroft v. Union Embossing Co. 72 N. H. 407, 64 L.R.A. 298, 57 Atl. 97; Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208.

The law, certainly since Mitchel v. Reynolds, 1 P. Wms. 181, has recognized these collateral covenants in restraint of trade. It has, however, annexed the qualification that they must be reasonable. But the term "reasonable" in law and good sense, like many other expressions,—like the term "substantial," so often found in qualification of that other term, "restraint of competition," in the decisions of the Supreme Court, since the Trans-Missouri Case,—is measured and applied relatively to the subject-matter.

Oregon Steam Nav. Co. v. Winsor, 20 Wall. 64, 22 L. ed. 315; Diamond Match Co. v. Roeber, 106 N. Y. 473, 60 Am. Rep. 464, 13 N. E. 419; Nordenfelt v. Maxim Nordenfelt Guns & Ammunition Co. [1894] A. C. 535, 63 L. J. Ch. N. S. 908, 11 Reports, 1, 71 L. T. N. S. 489, 6 Eng. Rul. Cas. 413.

The sale of the Huntington stock certainly has none of the features of combination or conspiracy. The parties to a combination or conspiracy do not answer to that conception unless they combined together,—unless they conspired together,—unless they are acting in co-operation after the manner of a partnership.

United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 54 L. ed. 1168, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; Davis v. A. Booth & Co. 65 C. C. A. 269, 131 Fed. 37.

Something more than the acquisition of a competing property is necessary to bring the purchaser and seller within the Federal statutes.

Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 185, 50 L. ed. 433, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 434, 52 L. ed. 875, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; United States Chemical Co. v. Provident Chemical Co. 64 Fed. 950; Trenton Potteries Co. v. Oliphant, 58 N. J. Eq. 507, 46 L.R.A. 255, 78 Am. St. Rep. 612, 43 Atl. 723; Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 646, 40 L. ed. 838, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436.

Nor is a sale made criminal or innocent by the statute, according as it is larger or not so large. The test is not size.

Re Greene, 52 Fed. 115.

And combinations themselves are not necessarily and universally unlawful.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; Central Shade Roller Co. v. Cushman, 143 Mass. 364, 9 N. E. 629; Oakdale Mfg. Co. v. Garst, 18 R. I. 484, 23 L.R.A. 639, 49 Am. St. Rep. 784, 28 Atl. 973; Herriman v. Menzies, 115 Cal. 19, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 318, 56 Am. St. Rep. 81, 44 Pac. 660, 46 Pac. 730; Collins v. Locke, L. R. 4 App. Cas. 674, 48 L. J. P. C. N. S. 68, 41 L. T. N. S. 292, 28 Week. Rep. 189; Skrainke v. Scharringhausen, 8 Mo. App. 522; Leslie v. Lorillard, 110 N. Y. 519, 1 L.R.A. 456, 18 N. E. 363; Cohen v. Berlin & J. Envelope Co. 38 App. Div. 499, 56 N. Y. Supp. 588; Kellogg v. Larkin, 3 Pinney (Wis.) 123, 56 Am. Dec. 164; Dolph v. Troy Laundry Machinery Co. 28 Fed. 554; Matthews v. Associated Press, 136 N. Y. 333, 32 Am. St. Rep. 741, 32 N. E. 981; United States Vinegar Co. v. Foehrenbach, 148 N. Y. 58, 42 N. E. 403; Macauley Bros. v. Tierney, 19 R. I. 255, 37 L.R.A. 455, 61 Am. St. Rep. 770, 33 Atl. 1; Bohn Mfg. Co. v. Hollis (Bohn Mfg. Co. v. Northwestern Lumbermen's Asso.) 54 Minn. 233, 21 L.R.A. 337, 40 Am. St. Rep. 319, 55 N. W. 1119; Cote v. Murphy, 159 Pa. 420, 23 L.R.A. 135, 39 Am. St. Rep. 686, 28 Atl. 190; Continental Ins. Co. v. Fire Underwriters, 67 Fed. 317; National Protective Asso. v. Cumming, 170 N. Y. 315, 58 L.R.A. 135, 88 Am. St. Rep. 648, 63 N. E. 369; Vegelahn v. Guntner, 167 Mass. 92, 35 L.R.A. 722, 57 Am. St. Rep. 443, 44 N. E. 1077.

Contracts and acts are unreasonably restrictive of competitive conditions when they proceed by unlawful means and methods. What is the definition of "fair competition?" Lord Bramwell asked pertinently in Mogul S. S. Co. v. McGregor [1892] A. C. 25, in the House of Lords, p. 47; and he answered his own question with another—"What is unfair that is neither forcible nor fraudulent?" Lord Morris said, in the same case, p. 49: "It is not illegal for a trader to aim at driving a competitor out of trade, provided the motive be his own gain by appropriation of the trade, and the means he uses be lawful weapons." In Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 459, it was said that an attempt by each competitor to monopolize a part of interstate commerce is the very root of all competition therein. "Competition," remarked the court in Bonsack Mach. Co. v. Smith, 70 Fed. 388, "it is often said, is the life of trade. But the effort of all competition is to drive out other competitors."

Individual stockholders may lawfully own a controlling interest in each of two competing companies.

Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 167 Fed. 704.

Mr. N. H. Loomis also argued the cause and filed a brief for appellees:

The Southern Pacific was not bound to agree to joint tariffs.

Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Denver & N. O. R. Co. 110 U. S. 667, 28 L. ed. 291, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. East Tennessee, V. & G. R. Co. 3 I. C. C. Rep. 1, 6, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 456; Express Cases, 117 U. S. 1–28, 29 L. ed. 791–803, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 542, 628; Oregon Short Line & U. N. R. Co. v. Northern P. R. Co. 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 249, 51 Fed. 474; Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 192 U. S. 568–571, 48 L. ed. 565–570, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 339; Little Rock & M. R. Co. v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 26 L.R.A. 192, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 854, 11 C. C. A. 417, 27 U. S. App. 380, 63 Fed. 775; Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 553, 50 L. ed. 585, 593, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Osborne, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 257, 3 C. C. A. 347, 10 U. S. App. 430, 52 Fed. 915.

The want of legal power on the part of the Union Pacific to compel the Southern Pacific to recognize the usual incidents of a through route, and the discretion possessed by the Southern Pacific to do as its own welfare might dictate with respect to through rates, gave to that company additional advantages, and made it possible for the Southern Pacific more effectively to control the situation.

A railroad is not a competitor of its connections.

Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 536, 50 L. ed. 585, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 80, 55 L. ed. 619, 653, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734.

The Union Pacific was not a competitor of the Southern Pacific's Sunset Route.

Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 539, 50 L. ed. 587, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 330.

In order to bring the competition within the inhibition of the Sherman act, it must be direct and substantial.

United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 568, 43 L. ed. 259, 287, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604–615, 43 L. ed. 300–306, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211–229, 44 L. ed. 138–143, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 55 L. ed. 619, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Kimball v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 46 Fed. 888; State v. Central of Georgia R. Co. 109 Ga. 716, 48 L.R.A. 351, 35 S. E. 37; Rogers v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. 33 C. C. A. 517, 62 U. S. App. 49, 91 Fed. 299.

Messrs. H. F. Stambaugh and D. T. Watson filed a brief for appellee Henry C. Frick.

Mr. Paul D. Cravath filed a brief for appellees Jacob H. Schiff and Otto H. Kahn.

Mr. James M. Beck filed a brief for appellee James Stillman.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

The case was begun in the United States circuit court for the district of Utah to enforce the provisions of the so-called Sherman anti-trust act of 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp Stat. 1901, p. 3200) against certain alleged conspiracies and combinations in restraint of interstate commerce. The case in its principal aspect grew out of the purchase by the Union Pacific Railroad Company in the month of February, 1901, of certain shares of the capital stock of the Southern Pacific Company from the devisees under the will of the later Collis P. Huntington, who had formerly owned the stock. Other shares of Southern Pacific stock were acquired at the same time, the holding of the Union Pacific amounting to 750,000 shares, or about 37½ per cent (subsequently increased to 46 per cent) of the outstanding stock of the Southern Pacific Company. The stock is held for the Union Pacific Company by one of its proprietary companies, the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company. The government contends that the domination over and control of the Southern Pacific Company given to the Union Pacific Company by this purchase of stock brings the transaction within the terms of the anti-trust act. A large amount of testimony was taken and the case heard before four circuit judges of the eighth circuit, resulting in a decree dismissing the bill. 188 Fed. 102.

Prior to the stock purchase in 1901 the Union Pacific *system may briefly be de-[80 scribed as a line of railroad from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast; namely, from Omaha, Nebraska, or perhaps more strictly from Council Bluffs, Iowa; and from Kansas City, Missouri, to Ogden, Utah, and Portland, Oregon, with various branches and connections and a line of steamships from Portland to San Francisco, California, and from Portland to the Orient; and a line of steamships from San Francisco to the Orient (the Occidental & Oriental Steamship Company), in which the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific each owned a half interest. The main line from Council Bluffs to Ogden, a little over 1,000 miles in length, with the branch from Kansas City, through Denver, Colorado, to Cheyenne, Wyoming, on the main line, was owned and operated by the Union Pacific; the line from Granger, Wyoming, on the main line of the Union Pacific, to Huntington, Oregon, was owned and operated by the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company, the capital stock of which was owned by the Union Pacific; and the line from Huntington to Portland was owned and operated by the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company, the stock ownership of which was in the Oregon Short Line The boat line from Portland to San Francisco and to the Orient, the Portland & Asiatic Steamship Company, was organized early in 1901, its stock being owned by the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company.

The Southern Pacific Company, a holding company of the state of Kentucky, also engaged in operating certain lines of railroad under lease, controlled a line of railroad extending from New Orleans through Louisiana, Texas, New Mexico, Arizona, California, and Oregon to Portland, reaching Los Angeles and San Francisco, with several branch lines and connections extending into tributary territory. A line of boats running between New York and New Orleans was also owned and operated by the Southern Pacific, and later the same ships *81]entered the port of Galveston, *where also the Southern Pacific reached tidewater, and it had branches extending to various points in northern Texas, connecting with other lines of road. The Southern Pacific also operated, under lease, the railroad of the Central Pacific Railway Company, all the stock of which is owned by the Southern Pacific. The lines of the Central Pacific consisted of the road from San Francisco to Ogden, about 800 miles, in length, and connecting at the latter place with the Union Pacific and the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company's line. It also had various branches in and about California, aggregating in mileage about 500 miles. The Southern Pacific also owned a majority of the stock of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, which operated a line of steamships plying to ports in the Orient and running between San Francisco and Panama, which, with the Panama Railroad and its boats, constituted the so-called Panama Route.

The contention of the government is that, prior to the stock purchase, the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific were competing systems of railroad engaged in interstate commerce, and acted independently as to a large amount of such carrying trade, and that since the acquisition of the stock in question the dominating power of the Union Pacific has eliminated competition between these two systems, and that such domination makes the combination one in restraint of trade, within the meaning of the 1st section of the act of Congress of July 2, 1890, and the transaction an attempt to monopolize interstate trade within the provisions of the 2d section of the act.

In view of the recent consideration of the history and meaning of the act (Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, and 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632, respectively), it would be superfluous to enter upon any general consideration of its origin and scope. In certain aspects the law has been thoroughly considered and its construction authoritatively settled, and in determining the present controversy we need but *briefly[82 restate some of the conclusions reached. The act applies to interstate railroads as carriers conducting interstate commerce, and one of the principal instrumentalities thereof. United States v Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep 25. The act is intended to reach combinations and conspiracies which restrain freedom of action in interstate trade and commerce, and unduly suppress or restrict the play of competition in the conduct thereof. United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. supra. In that case an agreement between competing interstate railroads for the purpose of fixing and maintaining rates was condemned.

"It is," said the court (p. 571), "the combination of these large and powerful corporations, covering vast sections of territory, and influencing trade throughout the whole extent thereof, and acting as one body in all matters over which the combination extends, that constitutes the alleged evil, and in regard to which, so far as the combination operates upon and restrains interstate commerce, Congress has power to legislate and to prohibit."

In the Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep 436, this court dealt with a combination differing in character from that considered in the Trans-Missouri and Joint Traffic Cases, and it was there held that the transfer to a holding company of the stock of two competing interstate railroads, thereby effectually destroying the power which had theretofore existed to compete in interstate commerce, was a restraint upon such commerce, and Mr. Justice Harlan, announcing the affirmance of the decree of the circuit court, said (p. 337):

"In all the prior cases in this court the anti-trust act has been construed as forbidding any combination which, by its necessary operation, destroys or restricts free competition among those engaged in inter-83]state commerce; in *other words, that to destroy or restrict free competition in interstate commerce was to restrain such commerce. Nor, can this court say that such a rule is prohibited by the Constitution, or is not one that Congress could appropriately prescribe when exerting its power under the commerce clause of the Constitution? Whether the free operation of the normal laws of competition is a wise and wholesome rule for trade and commerce is an economic question which this court need not consider or determine."

Mr. Justice Brewer, who delivered a concurring opinion, while expressing the view that the former cases were rightly decided, said that they went too far in giving the reasons for the judgments, and declared his view that Congress only intended to reach and destroy those contracts which were in direct restraint of trade, unreasonable, and against public policy. He was nevertheless emphatic in condemning the combination effected by the Northern Securities Company and the transfer of stocks to it, which policy, he declared, might be extended until a single corporation with stocks owned by three or four parties would be in practical control of both roads; or, viewing the possibilities of combination, the control of the whole transportation system of the country; and, in concluding his concurring opinion, said (p. 363):

"It must also be remembered that under present conditions a single railroad is, if not a legal, largely a practical, monopoly, and the arrangement by which the control of these two competing roads was merged in a single corporation broadens and extends such monopoly. I cannot look upon it as other than an unreasonable combination in restraint of interstate commerce,—one in conflict with state law, and within the letter and spirit of the statute and the power of Congress."

Of the Sherman act and kindred statutes, this court, speaking by Mr. Justice McKenna, said in National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 129, 49 L ed. 689, 694, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379:

*"According to them, competition, not[84 combination, should be the law of trade. If there is evil in this, it is accepted as less than that which may result from the unification of interest, and the power such unification gives And that legislatures may so ordain this court has decided. United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276."

In the recent discussion of the history and meaning of the act in the Standard Oil and Tobacco Cases this court declared that the statute should be given a reasonable construction, with a view to reaching those undue restraints of interstate trade which are intended to be prohibited and punished; and in those cases it is clearly stated that the decisions in the former cases had been made upon an application of that rule, and there was no suggestion that they had not been correctly decided. In the Tobacco Case, after referring to the previous decision in the Standard Oil Case and the Decisions in the Trans-Missouri and Joint Traffic Cases, the doctrine was tersely summarized by the Chief Justice, speaking for the court, as follows (p. 179):

"Applying the rule of reason to the construction of the statute, it was held in the Standard Oil Case that, as the words 'restraint of trade' at common law and in the law of this country at the time of the adoption of the anti-trust act only embraced acts or contracts or agreeements or combinations which operated to the prejudice of the public interests by unduly restricting competition, or unduly obstructing the due course of trade, or which, either because of their inherent nature or effect, or because of the evident purpose of the acts, etc., injuriously restrained trade, that the words as used in the statute were designed to have and did have but a like significance. It was therefore pointed out that the statute did not forbid or restrain *the power to[85 make normal and usual contracts to further trade by resorting to all normal methods, whether by agreement or otherwise, to accomplish such purpose. In other words, it was held not that acts which the statute prohibited could be removed from the control of its prohibitions by a finding that they were reasonable, but that the duty to interpret which inevitably arose from the general character of the term 'restraint of trade' required that the words 'restraint of trade' should be given a meaning which would not destroy the individual right to contract, and render difficult, if not impossible, any movement of trade in the channels of interstate commerce,—the free movement of which it was the purpose of the statute to protect."

We take it, therefore, that it may be regarded as settled, applying the statute as construed in the decisions of this court, that a combination which places railroads engaged in interstate commerce in such relation as to create a single dominating control in one corporation, whereby natural and existing competition in interstate commerce is unduly restricted or suppressed, is within the condemnation of the act. While the law may not be able to enforce competition, it can reach combinations which render competition impracticable. Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276.

Nor do we think it can make any difference that instead of resorting to a holding company, as was done in the Northern Securities Case, the controlling interest in the stock of one corporation is transferred to the other. The domination and control, and the power to suppress competition, are acquired in the one case no less than in the other, and the resulting mischief, at which the statute was aimed, is equally effective whichever form is adopted. The statute in its terms embraces every contract or combination, in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or com-86]merce. This court has repeatedly *held this general phraseology embraces all forms of combination, old and new. "In view of the many new forms of contracts and combinations," said the Chief Justice in the Standard Oil Case (p. 59), "which were being evolved from existing economic conditions, it was deemed essential by an all-embracing enumeration to make sure that no form of contract or combination by which an undue restraint of interstate or foreign commerce was brought about could save such restraint from condemnation." A more effectual form of combination to secure the control of a competing railroad than for one road to acquire a dominating stock interest in the other could hardly be conceived. If it is true, as contended by the government, that a stock interest sufficient for the purpose was obtained in the Southern Pacific Company, with a view to securing the control of that company and thus destroying or restricting competition with the Union Pacific in interstate trade, the transaction was, in our opinion, within the terms of the statute.

That the purchase was legal in the state where made, and within corporate powers conferred by state authority, constitutes no defense, if it contravenes the provisions of the anti-trust act, enacted by Congress in the exercise of supreme authority over interstate commerce. Northern Securities Co v. United States, 193 U. S. 334, 48 L. ed. 699, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 68, 55 L. ed. 648, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 183, 55 L. ed. 695, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

It is said, however, and this was the view of the majority of the circuit judges, that these railroads were not competing, but were engaged in a partnership in interstate carriage as connecting railroads; and it was further said that the Southern Pacific, because of its control of the line from Ogden to San Francisco and other California points, was the dominating partner. A large amount of the testimony in this voluminous record was given by railroad men of wide experience, business men and shippers, who, with *practical unanimity, expressed the[87 view that, prior to the stock purchase in question, Union Pacific and Southern Pacific systems were in competition, sharp, well-defined, and vigorous, for interstate trade. To compete is to strive for something which another is actively seeking and wishes to gain. The Southern Pacific, through its agents, advertisements, and literature, had undertaken to obtain transportation for its "Sunset" or southerly route across the continent, while the Union Pacific had endeavored in the same territory to have freight shipped by way of its own and connecting lines, thus securing for itself about 1,000 miles of the haul to the coast.

To preserve from undue restraint the free action of competition in interstate commerce was the purpose which controlled Congress in enacting this statute, and the courts should construe the law with a view to effecting the object of its enactment.

Competition between two such systems consists not only in making rates, which, so far as the shipper was concerned, the proof shows, were by agreement fixed at the same figure whichever route was used, and then apportioned among the connecting carriers upon a basis satisfactory to themselves, but includes the character of the service rendered, the accommodation of the shipper in handling and caring for freight, and the prompt recognition and adjustment of the shipper's claims. Advantages in these respects were the subjects of representation and the basis of solicitation by many active, opposing agencies. The maintenance of these by the rival companies promoted their business and increased their r enues. The inducement to maintain these points of advantage—low rates, superiority of service and accommodation— did not remain the same in the hands of a single dominating and common ownership as it was when they were the subjects of active promotion by competing owners whose success depended upon their accomplishment. 88] *The consolidation of two great competing systems of railroad engaged in interstate commerce by a transfer to one of a dominating stock interest in the other creates a combination which restrains interstate commerce within the meaning of the statute, because, in destroying or greatly abridging the free operation of competition theretofore existing, it tends to higher rates (United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 577, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25). It directly tends to less activity in furnishing the public with prompt and efficient service in carrying and handling freight and in carrying passengers, and in attention to and prompt adjustment of the demands of patrons for losses, and in these respects puts interstate commerce under restraint. Nor does it make any difference that rates for the time being may not be raised and much money be spent in improvements after the combination is effected. It is the scope of such combinations and their power to suppress or stifle competition or create monopoly which determines the applicability of the act. Pearsall v. Great Northern R. Co. 161 U. S. 646, 676, 40 L. ed. 838, 848, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 705; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. supra.

It is urged that this competitive traffic was infinitesimal when compared with the gross amount of the business transacted by both roads, and so small as only to amount to that incidental restraint of trade which ought not to be held to be within the law; but we think the testimony amply shows that, while these roads did a great deal of business for which they did not compete, and that the competitive business was a comparatively small part of the sum total of all traffic, state and interstate, carried over them, nevertheless such competing traffic was large in volume, amounting to many millions of dollars. Before the transfer of the stock, this traffic was the subject of active competition between these systems; but by reason of the power arising from such transfer it has since been placed under a common control. It was by no 89]means a *negligible part, but a large and valuable part, of interstate commerce which was thus directly affected

The fact that the Southern Pacific had a road of its own from the Gulf to the Pacific coast did not prevent competition for this traffic. The Union Pacific and its connections were engaged in the same carrying trade, and as a matter of fact were competing for that trade by all the usual means of competition resorted to by rival railroad systems. As this court said, speaking by Mr. Justice Holmes, in Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 398, 49 L. ed. 525, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276: "Commerce among the states is not a technical legal conception, but a practical one, drawn from the course of business." That commerce, as conducted from the East to the Pacific coast, was, in a substantial part, the subject-matter of rivalry and competition between these two systems. Since the stock transfer the companies have common officers, and the rival soliciting agencies have been, for the most part, abandoned.

It is contended that the Union Pacific was but a connecting road and really had no line to San Francisco, but was dependent upon the Southern Pacific for such terms as it could make over the old Central Pacific line from Ogden to San Francisco. The facts disclose, as we have already said, that the Union Pacific had a line to Portland by way of the Oregon Short Line and the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company, and thence to San Francisco by steamboat connection It may be admitted that this was a much longer route than by way of the Ogden connection, and that, as a practical matter, nearly all of the freight intended for San Francisco and nearby points went over the Ogden route; nevertheless, the Portland route was a factor in rate making to the coast, and the testimony shows that the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific, up to the time of the sale of the stock, had been working for many years under a satisfactory arrangement as to rates. It is going too far to say that the Union Pacific was entirely at the *mercy[90 of the Southern Pacific in making rates for freight by way of the Ogden connection, because the latter company controlled the old Central Pacific line to San Francisco. It certainly would have been very detrimental to the Southern Pacific to have declined an arrangement for the carriage of freight received from the Union Pacific and its connections for transportation to California by way of the Ogden route. The traffic manager of the Southern Pacific testified that the division of the through rate from Omaha to San Francisco has been the same since 1870; that he thought it unfair to the Southern Pacific, but that it was the best that could be obtained at the time. One of the reasons for the Central Pacific leasing its lines to the Southern Pacific, as set forth in the lease, was that the Union Pacific had secured control of the Oregon Short Line, and thereby obtained an outlet to the Pacific, other than over the Central Pacific, "and thus in that respect placed itself in opposition to the interests of the Central Pacific," and that it was "not only to the best interests of, but absolutely necessary that, the Central Pacific Railroad Company, in order to maintain itself against these diversions (of the Union Pacific and others), should be operated in connection with a friendly through line to the waters of the Atlantic."

Nor do we think it can be justly said that, because of the connection with the Rio Grande road at Ogden, the Southern Pacific was in position to discriminate at will against the Union Pacific in such wise as to greatly impair the latter road's carrying trade upon eastbound freight. In this connection it is said that since the consolidation, notwithstanding the former published rates are maintained, the favoring attitude of the Southern Pacific to the Union Pacific practically destroyed the carrying trade from Ogden to the East for the Rio Grande system, and necessitated the construction by the latter road of a new connection for California points, and that 91] *such would have been the fate of the Union Pacific upon disagreement as to rates with the Southern Pacific. In reference to this point we think it is pertinent to consider the acts of Congress known as the Pacific Railroad acts. These acts required the two roads, the Central Pacific and Union Pacific, to be "operated and used for all purposes of communication, travel, and transportation, so far as the public and government are concerned, as one connected, continuous line" (12 Stat. at L. 489, 495, act of July 1, 1862, § 12, chap. 120), and in such operation and use "to afford and secure to each equal advantages and facilities as to rates, time, and transportation, without any discrimination of any kind in favor of the road or business of any or either of said companies or adverse to the road or business of any or either of the others. . . ." (31 Stat. at L. 356, 362, act of July 2, 1864, § 15, chap. 216). They also authorized the consolidation of the roads. These acts, it is said, are only intended to secure the permanent physical connection of the roads, and to provide for equal accommodations upon the basis of independent carriage, and outline no method by which the two roads can be compelled to make a joint through rate, and that at the time of the stock transfer there was no such provision in the interstate commerce acts. Therefore, it is said that the Union Pacific, no less than the Rio Grande, would have been practically at the mercy of the Southern Pacific in the favorable or unfavorable treatment which might have been accorded to it in the matter of through business to be transported eastwardly. The purpose of Congress to secure one permanent road to the coast, so far as physical continuity is concerned, is apparent; but we do not think the acts stop with that requirement. It is provided that facilities as to rates, time, and transportation shall be without any discrimination of any kind in favor of either of said companies, or adverse to the road or business of any or either of the others; and the purpose of Congress *to[92 secure a continuous line of road, operating from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast as one road, is further emphasized in the act of Congress of June 20, 1874 (18 Stat. at L. 111, chap. 331, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p 3577), making it an offense for any officer or agent of the companies authorized to construct the roads, or engaged in the operation thereof, to refuse to operate and use the same for all purposes of communication, travel, and transportation, so far as the public and government are concerned, as one continuous line, and making it a misdemeanor to refuse, in such operation and use, to afford and secure to each of said roads equal advantages and facilities as to rates, time, and transportation, without any discrimination of any kind in favor of or adverse to any or either of said companies. Such practices of systematic and preconcerted discrimination as are said to have destroyed the Rio Grande's carrying trade as a connection for the East for business at Ogden would have violated the statute as discriminations adverse to the Union Pacific, and be equally violative of the letter and spirit of the acts of Congress Certainly such discriminations could be restrained by the courts (Union P. R. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 163 U. S. 564, 603, 604, 41 L. ed. 265, 279, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1173), and might possibly have resulted in a forfeiture of all rights under the acts of Congress The obligation to keep faith with the government continued, as did the legislative power of Congress concerning these roads, notwithstanding changed forms of ownership and organization. Union P. R. Co. v. Mason City, & Ft. D. R. Co. 199 U. S. 160, 50 L. ed. 134, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19

It is further contended that the real purpose in acquiring the stock was not to obtain the control of the Southern Pacific as a system, but to secure the California connection via Ogden, and to avoid the situation which has been termed the "bottling up" of the Union Pacific at that point. That process, we have undertaken to show, might have been detrimental to the Southern Pacific business *in California, as it[93 is apparent that much of it would not have gone over the "Sunset" route of the Southern Pacific. It may be conceded, as is undoubtedly the fact, that the connection at Ogden was a valuable one, the one practically and largely, if not exclusively, used in the transportation of freight to and from the state of California; but this case is not to be decided upon the theory that only so much of the Southern Pacific system as operates between Ogden and San Francisco has been acquired. Conceding for this purpose that it might have been legitimate, had it been practicable, to acquire the California connection at Ogden over the old Central Pacific line, we must consider what was in fact done; and that was the purchase of the controlling interest in the entire Southern Pacific system, consisting of ocean and river lines with a mileage of about 3,500 miles, and railroad lines aggregating over 8,000 miles, together forming a transportation system from New York and other Atlantic ports to San Francisco and Portland and other Pacific Coast points, with various branches and connections, besides a steamship line from San Francisco to Panama and from San Francisco to the Orient, and a half interest in another line between the two latter points. The purchase may be judged by what it in fact accomplished, and the natural and probable consequences of that which was done. Because it would have been lawful to gain, by purchase or otherwise, an entrance into California over the old Central Pacific, does not render it legal to acquire the entire system, largely engaged in interstate commerce in competition with the purchasing road.

In determining the validity of this combination, we have a right to look also to the intent and purpose of those who conducted the transactions from which it arose, and to the objects had in view. (Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 396, 49 L ed. 524, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 395, 56 L. ed. 810, 813, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507.) It appears that at the time the Union Pacific 94]was *about to raise the means to effect the Southern Pacific stock purchase it authorized the issuance of $100,000,000 of bonds "for the purpose of meeting present and future financial requirements of the company," provision being made for the use of the proceeds from $40,000,000 of this amount in the purchase of the Southern Pacific stock, with no designation whatever as to the purpose to which the balance, $60,000,000, should be applied. It is said that the remaiding $60,000,000 were intended to be used in the acquisition of a part interest in the railroad system of the Chicago, Burlington, & Quincy Railway Company, in view of the imminent probability of the purchase of that system by the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company. As a matter of fact, the Northern Pacific and Great Northern having each secured a half interest in the Burlington, the Union Pacific did acquire a large amount of the Northern Pacific stock with this $60,000,000. The failure to secure control of the Northern Pacific by acquiring a majority of its common stock resulted in the formation of the Northern Securities Company, terminating in the litigation of the Northern Securities Case and the judgment of this court, reported in 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436. When that combination was declared illegal, the Union Pacific interests undertook to compel a return of the Northern Pacific stock which they had turned over to the Northern Securities Company, and opposed a distribution among the stockholders of the latter company of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company, which had been put into the combination. That attempt was dealt with in Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 49 L ed. 739, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493, and of the effect of the return of the Northern Pacific stock to the Union Pacific interests instead of the distribution of the stock and assets of the Northern Securities Company among its stockholders, this court said (p. 297):

*"It is clear enough that the delivery[95 to complainants of a majority of the total Northern Pacific stock, and a ratable distribution of the remaining assets to the other Securities stockholders, would not only be in itself inequitable, but would directly contravene the object of the Sherman law and the purposes of the government suit.

"The Northern Pacific system, taken in connection with the Burlington system, is competitive with the Union Pacific system, and it seems obvious to us, the entire record considered, that the decree sought by complainants would tend to smother that competition."

In view of the testimony, we think the evident purpose of issuing the $100,000,000 of bonds was to acquire a fund to be used for the acquisition of the stock of the Southern Pacific, a great competitive system, and also of the stocks of other competing roads.

After acquiring the Southern Pacific stock, Mr. Harriman, who dominated in the affairs of the Union Pacific, became president and chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific Company, with the same ample power which he had in like positions in the Union Pacific Company and the companies owned and controlled by it. These facts cannot be lost sight of in determining the object and scope of the transaction in question, which resulted, as we have said, in that unified control which has in its power the suppression of competition.

But it is said that no such control was in fact obtained; that at no time did the Union Pacific acquire a majority of the stock of the Southern Pacific, and that at first it acquired but thirty-seven and a fraction per cent, which was afterwards somewhat increased and diminished until about 46 per cent of the stock is now held. In any event, this stock did prove sufficient to obtain the control of the Southern Pacific. It may be true that in small corporations the holding of less than a majority of the stock would not amount to control, but the testimony in this case is 96] *ample to show that, distributed as the stock is among many stockholders, a compact, united ownership of 46 per cent is ample to control the operations of the corporation. This is frankly admitted in the testimony of Mr. Harriman, the prime mover in the purchase of the Southern Pacific. It was purchased, he declared, for the purpose of getting a dominating interest in the Southern Pacific Company, and, he added, the Union Pacific did thus acquire such interest.

Reaching the conclusion that the Union Pacific thus obtained the control of a competing railroad system and thereby effected a combination in restraint of trade, within the meaning of the Sherman act, the question remains, What should be the relief in such circumstances? The remedies provided in the statute, generally speaking, were said by this court in the Standard Oil Case, supra, to be twofold in character (p. 78):

"1st. To forbid the doing in the future of acts like those which we have found to have been done in the past which would be violative of the statute. 2d The exertion of such measure of relief as will effectually dissolve the combination found to exist in violation of the statute, and thus neutralize the extension and continually operating force which the possession of the power unlawfully obtained has brought and will continue to bring about."

In applying this general rule of relief we must deal with each case as we find it; and in the present one the object to be attained is to restrain the operation of and effectually terminate the combination created by the transfer of the stock to the Union Pacific Company. In that view the decree to be entered in the district court shall provide an injunction against the right to vote this stock while in the ownership or control of the Union Pacific Company, or any corporation owned by it, or while held by any corporation or person for the Union Pacific Company, and forbid any transfer or disposition thereof in such wise as *to continue its control, and shall[97 provide an injunction against the payment of dividends upon such stock while thus held, except to a receiver to be appointed by the district court to collect and hold such dividends until disposed of by the decree of the court.

As the court below dismissed the government's bill, it was unnecessary there to consider the disposition of the shares of stock acquired by the Union Pacific Company, which acquisition, we hold, constituted an unlawful combination in violation of the anti-trust act. In order to effectually conclude the operating force of the combination, such disposition shall be made subject to the approval and decree of the district court, and any plan for the disposition of this stock must be such as to effectually dissolve the unlawful combination thus created. The court shall proceed, upon the presentation of any plan, to hear the government and defendants, and may bring in any additional parties whose presence may be necessary to a final disposition of the stock in conformity to the views herein expressed.

As to the suggestion made at the oral argument by the Attorney General, in response to a query from the court as to the nature of the decree, that one might be entered which, while destroying the unlawful combination in so far as the Union Pacific secured control of the competing line of road extending from New Orleans and Galveston to San Francisco and Portland, would permit the Union Pacific to retain the Central Pacific connection from Ogden to San Francisco, and thereby to control that line to the coast, thus effecting such a continuity of the Union Pacific and Central Pacific from the Missouri river to San Francisco as was contemplated by the acts of Congress under which they were constructed, it should be said that nothing herein shall be considered as preventing the government or any party in interest, if so desiring, from presenting to the district court a plan for accomplishing *this re-[98 sult, or as preventing it from adopting and giving effect to any such plan so presented.

Any plan or plans shall be presented to the district court within three months from the receipt of the mandate of this court; failing which, or, upon the rejection by the court of plans submitted within such time, the court shall proceed by receivership and sale, if necessary, to dispose of such stock in such wise as to dissolve such unlawful combination.

The government has appealed from th decree, which is a general one, dismissing the bill. So far as concerns the attempt to acquire the Northern Pacific stock and the stock of the Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe Railway Company, afterwards abandoned, and a certain interest in the San Pedro, Los Angeles, & Salt Lake Railroad Company, and other features of the case which were dealt with and disposed of by the decree and opinion of the court below, it is sufficient, without going into these matters in detail, to say that as to them we find no reason to disturb the action of the court below, but for the reasons stated the decree should be reversed, and one entered in conformity to the views herein expressed, so far as concerns the acquisition of the Southern Pacific stock.

Reversed in part, the District Court to retain its jurisdiction to see that the decree above outlined is made effectual.

Mr. Justice Van Devanter took no part in the hearing or determination of this case.

---

99] *LOUISIANA NAVIGATION COMPANY, Limited, Plff. in Err.,
v.
OYSTER COMMISSION OF LOUISIANA et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 99–102.)

Error to state court — final judgment.

1. A judgment of the highest court of a state, which reversed a judgment below, dismissing a petition because it stated no cause of action, and remanded the cause for further proceedings, is not final for the purpose of a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 296–313, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — final judgment.

2. The finality of the judgment of the highest court of a state is to be tested by the form of the judgment, and the Federal Supreme Court cannot, for the purpose of determining whether its reviewing power exists, resort to the state law for the purpose of converting a judgment not on its face final into one final in character.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 246–313, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review.

3. The rule which excludes the right to review questions arising in a cause depending in a state court until a final judgment is rendered by such court involves as a necessary correlative the power and the duty in the Federal Supreme Court, when a final judgment in form is rendered and the cause is brought there for review, to consider and pass upon all the Federal controversies in the cause, irrespective of how far it may be that by the state law such questions were concluded during the litigation, and before a final judgment susceptible of review was rendered.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2070–2256, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 40.]

Argued November 6, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana to review a judgment which reversed a judgment of the Civil District Court for the Parish of Orleans, in that state, dismissing a petition because it stated no cause of action, and remanded the cause for further proceedings. Dismissed for want of final judgment.

See same case below, 125 La. 740, 51 So. 706.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Thomas Gilmore and Edward N. Pugh argued the cause, and, with Mr. J. C. Gilmore, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The judgment below was a final one.

Keystone Manganese & Iron Co. v. Martin, 132 U. S. 91, 33 L. ed. 275, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 32; Cary v. Richardson, 35 La. Ann. 508; Hunstock v. Hunstock, 43 La. Ann. 375, 8 So. 922; State ex rel. Ikerd v. Eighth Dist. Judge, 35 La. Ann. 213; Wheeling & B. Bridge Co. v. Wheeling Bridge Co. 138 U. S. 290, 34 L. ed. 968, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301; 1 Rose, Code Fed. Proc. p. 210, § 38; Tippecanoe County v. Lucas, 93 U. S. 113, 23 L. ed. 824; Forgay v. Conrad, 6 How. 204, 12 L. ed. 405; Winthrop Iron Co. v. Meeker, 109 U. S. 180, 27 L. ed. 898, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111; Union Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Kirchoff, 160 U. S. 378, 40 L. ed. 463, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 318; Lodge v. Twell, 135 U. S. 232, 34 L. ed. 153, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 745; McGourkey v. Toledo & O. R. Co. 146 U. S. 545, 36 L. ed. 1083, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 170; Houston v. Moore, 3 Wheat. 433, 4 L. ed. 428; Davis v. Crouch, 94 U. S. 517, 24 L. ed. 282.

The finality vel non of the judgment appealed from is to be settled and determined by the effect given to it under the law of Louisiana and the established procedure thereunder, as laid down and expounded by the supreme court of Louisiana.

Wheeling & B. Bridge Co. v. Wheeling Bridge Co. 138 U. S. 290, 34 L. ed. 968, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301; Southern R. Co. v. Postal Teleg. Co. 179 U. S. 643, 45 L. ed. 356, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249.

The test of the finality of a judgment is whether or not the matters decided can be again raised or questioned. Applying this test to the judgment rendered by the supreme court of Louisiana, it is self-evident that, as to the issues dismissed by the lower court and affirmed by the supreme court, plaintiff can never, in any shape, manner, or form, dispute the correctness of that judgment. Those issues have passed into the domain of res judicata, and are forever foreclosed and ended. This question has, however, been passed on and decided by the supreme court of Louisiana, and the principle laid down that the fact that only part of the demand is dismissed does not prevent the plaintiff appealing from the judgment so dismissed in part.

State ex rel. Ikerd v. Eighth Dist. Judge, 35 La. Ann. 213.

The court declined to hear Mr. Ruffin G. Pleasant, Attorney General of Louisiana, who filed a brief for the Conservation Commission:

The judgment of the supreme court of Louisiana, sought to be reviewed herein, is not a final judgment. The defendants in the civil district court filed exceptions of no cause of action, which were sustained, and an appeal was taken to the supreme court of Louisiana, and that court, on appeal, reversed the judgment, and decreed "that the judgment appealed from be set aside, and that this cause be remanded to the district court, to be there proceeded with in accordance with the views expressed in this opinion, the costs of appeal to be paid by defendant, and those of the district court to await the final judgment." Hence, this court will not review the judgment of the supreme court of Louisiana under these conditions.

Haseltine v. Central Bank, 183 U. S. 130, 46 L. ed. 117, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 49; Schlosser v. Hemphill, 198 U. S. 173, 49 L. ed. 1000, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 654; Missouri & K. I. R. Co. v. Olathe, 222 U. S. 185, 56 L. ed. 155, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 46.

The court declined to hear Mr. John Dymond, Jr., who filed a brief for E. C. Joullian Canning Company and Dunbars, Lopez, & Dukate Company.

Mr. Walter Guion, former Attorney General of Louisiana, and Mr. John C. Wickliffe filed a brief for the Oyster Commission of Louisiana:

A judgment which orders a new trial, or any further proceedings, cannot be thus reviewed.

Houston v. Moore, 3 Wheat. 433, 4 L. ed. 428; Parcels v. Johnson, 20 Wall. 653, 22 L. ed. 410; Rankin v. Tennessee, 11 Wall. 380, 20 L. ed. 175; McComb v. Knox County, 91 U. S. 1, 23 L. ed. 185; Bostwick v. Brinkerhoff, 106 U. S. 3, 27 L. ed. 73, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 15; Gibbons v. Ogden, 6 Wheat, 448, 5 L. ed. 302; Meagher v. Minnesota Thresher Mfg. Co. 145 U. S. 608, 36 L. ed. 834, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876; Cincinnati Street R. Co. v. Snell, 179 U. S. 395, 45 L. ed. 248, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 205.

A writ of error will not issue to a judgment of the highest court of a state, remanding a suit to an inferior court for a new trial, or for other proceedings in equity.

Johnson v. Keith, 117 U. S. 199, 29 L. ed. 888, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 669; Winn v. Jackson, 12 Wheat. 135, 6 L. ed. 577; Mayberry v. Thompson, 5 How. 121, 12 L. ed. 78; Holcombe v. McKusick, 20 How. 552, 15 L. ed. 1020; Zeller v. Switzer, 91 U. S. 487, 23 L. ed. 366; Baker v. White, 92 U. S. 176, 23 L. ed. 480; Davis v. Crouch, 94 U. S. 514, 24 L. ed. 281; Smith v. Adams, 130 U. S. 167, 32 L. ed. 895, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 566; Brown v. Baxter (Brown v. Marion) 146 U. S. 619, 36 L. ed. 1106, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 260; Union Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Kirchoff, 160 U. S. 374, 40 L. ed. 461, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 318.

A decree which in part sustained and in part overruled a demurrer, but which did not dismiss the petition, was held not final, and not reviewable on appeal.

Great Western Teleg. Co. v. Burnham, 162 U. S. 339, 40 L. ed. 991, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 850; De Armas v. United States, 6 How. 103, 12 L. ed. 361.

Where a state statute permitted the amendment of a pleading after a demurrer had been sustained, it was held that a judgment of a state court sustaining a demurrer to a petition was not a final judgment until it appeared that the plaintiff's right to amend had been abandoned or taken away.

Clark v. Kansas City, 176 U. S. 114, 44 L. ed. 392, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284; Clark v. Kansas City, 172 U. S. 334, 43 L. ed. 467, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

The supreme court of Louisiana in this case reviewed the judgment of a trial court which dismissed the petition of the plaintiff because it stated no cause of action. The plaintiff in error here was plaintiff in the trial court and appellant in the court below. The suit was based on an alleged right to recover damages for slander of the title of plaintiff to described lands. Under the law of Louisiana, for the purpose of passing upon the exception of no cause of action, the case in substance became one petitory in its character,—that is, one to try title to land. Treating the action as of that nature, the court below elaborately reviewed the averments of the petition, and expressed the opinion that in some respects a cause of action was stated,—that is, that there was allegation of title as to some of the land, and that there was no title alleged to other of the land involved. The court concluded as follows:

"We think, therefore, that plaintiff should be again afforded an opportunity to amend its petition . . . by setting forth specifically the particular places or portions of its property upon which the alleged trespass has been committed, together with the time and manner of the trespass."

The judgment was as follows:

"It is therefore ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the judgment appealed from be set aside, and that this case be remanded to the district court, to be there proceeded with in accordance with the views expressed in this opinion . . . " [125 La. 755, 756, 51 So. 706.]

Upon the theory that Federal questions 101 were involved *within the cognizance of this court, this writ of error to the judgment thus rendered was sued out. But as the judgment of the court below on its face is not a final one, it follows that a motion to dismiss must prevail. Haseltine v. Central Nat. Bank, 183 U. S. 130, 46 L. ed. 117, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 49; Schlosser v. Hemphill, 198 U. S. 173, 49 L. ed. 1001, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 654; Missouri & K. I. R. Co. v. Olathe, 222 U. S. 185, 56 L. ed. 155, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 46.

The contention, however, is that the judgment below is final for the purpose of review by this court, because, when the opinion of the supreme court of Louisiana is carefully weighed, it will be found that that court practically finally disposed adversely to the title of the plaintiff of the substantial part of the lands involved in the suit, and hence that the court, in remanding the cause for further proceedings, did so only as to other lands. But conceding this to be true, it does not justify the claim based on it. In the first place, it is settled that this court may not be called upon to review by piecemeal the action of a state court which otherwise would be within its jurisdiction, and in the second place, the rule established by the authorities to which we have referred is that, on the question of finality, the form of the judgment is controlling, and hence that this court cannot, for the purpose of determining whether its reviewing power exists, be called upon to disregard the form of the judgment in order to ascertain whether a judgment which is in form not final might, by applying the state law, be treated as final in character. Indeed, it has been pointed out that the confusion and contradiction which inevitably arose from resorting to the state law for the purpose of converting a judgment not on its face final into one final in character was the dominating reason leading to the establishment of the principle that the form of the judgment was controlling for the purpose of ascertaining its finality. Norfolk & S. Turnp. Co. v. Virginia, 225 U. S. 264, 268, 56 L. ed. 1082, 1085, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 828.

The suggestion that the right to review by this court will be lost if it does not disregard the form of the judgment, *and [102 review the action of the court below concerning the title to land as to which the court below expressed opinions which, as the law of the case, will hereafter be binding upon it and upon other courts of the state of Louisiana, is without merit. We say this because the contention is but illustrative of the misconception which the argument involves, which we have already pointed out. The rule which excludes the right to review questions arising in a cause depending in a state court until a final judgment is rendered by such court involves as a necessary correlative the power and the duty of this court when a final judgment in form is rendered and the cause is brought here for review, to consider and pass upon all the Federal controversies in the cause, irrespective of how far it may be that by the state law such questions were concluded during the litigation, and before a final judgment susceptible of review here was rendered. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. McCabe, 213 U. S. 207, 214, 53 L. ed. 765, 768, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 430.

Of course, for the purpose of disposing of the motion to dismiss upon the ground of the want of finality of the judgment, we have taken it for granted, for the sake of the argument, that the case otherwise involved Federal questions within our power to review.

Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

---

E. B. DEMING, Deming-Gould Company, and Pacific American Fisheries, Plffs. in Err.,

v.

CARLISLE PACKING COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 102–110.)

Error to state court — frivolous Federal question — removal of causes.

1. The asserted right to remove to a Federal court for an alleged fraudulent joinder of parties defendant an action for a breach of contract, in which a resident citizen was made a joint defendant with two nonresident corporations, and in which there was a joint answer by the defendants, such assertion proceeding upon the assumption that if the evidence in the case was properly weighed and the legal principles applicable were correctly applied, the individual defendant could not be held personally liable on the contract, is too unsubstantial and frivolous to serve as the basis of a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to a state court.

NOTE.—As to error to state court where removal to Federal court was sought—see note to Williams v. First Nat. Bank, 54 L. ed. U. S. 625.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 1110–1127, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — prosecution for delay.

2. The conclusion that a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to a state court has been prosecuted for delay is the necessary inference from an order of dismissal because of the unsubstantial and frivolous character of the only asserted Federal question.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VII. i, 6, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — dismissal — damages for delay.

3. The power to award damages for delay which U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1010, U. S. Comp. Stat 1901, p. 715, confers in cases "where, upon a writ of error, judgment is affirmed in the Supreme Court," gives the authority to exert that power where in form there is no judgment of affirmance, but only an order for the dismissal of a writ of error to a state court because of the unsubstantial and frivolous character of the asserted Federal right.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, IX. h, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 511.]

Submitted November 4, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Washington to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Superior Court for the County of Whatcom, in that state, in favor of plaintiff in an action for a breach of contract. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction, with damages for delay.

See same case below, 62 Wash. 455, 114 Pac. 172.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. James A. Kerr submitted the cause for plaintiff in error. Mr. E. S. McCord was on the brief:

Deming was fraudulently and wrongfully made a party to the case without cause and without right, and for the fraudulent purpose of depriving the Federal court of jurisdiction.

Weeker v. National Enameling & Stamping Co. 204 U. S. 176, 51 L. ed. 430, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 184, 9 Ann. Cas. 757.

Regardless of whether the opinion in express language evaded the decision of the Federal question, the judgment in effect did pass upon the question, and denied the right of the petitioners to have the case removed, and denied them the right granted to them by the act of Congress.

The mere fact that a joint answer is filed is not an admission of joint liability.

Hayden v. Nott, 9 Conn. 367; 31 Cyc. 138; Livesay v. First Nat. Bank, 36 Colo. 526, 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 598, 118 Am. St. Rep. 120, 86 Pac. 102.

Messrs. Aldis B. Browne and Charles W. Dorr submitted the cause for defendant in error. Messrs. S. M. Bruce and Hiram E. Hadley were on the brief:

The decision of a state court that a Federal right has been waived does not, under the settled practice of this court, raise a Federal question, for the simple reason that such a decision does not involve the denial of a Federal right, but admits the existence of the Federal right, which, however, because of the action or inaction of a party, is held to have been lost, and for the further reason that such a holding is based upon a finding of fact, and not of law. Whether the decision of the state court to the effect that there has been a waiver of the Federal right claimed is well founded or not makes no difference, and creates no Federal question reviewable in this court.

Beaupre v. Noyes, 138 U. S. 397, 401, 34 L. ed. 991, 992, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 296; Eustis v. Bolles, 150 U. S. 361, 369, 370, 37 L. ed. 1111, 1113, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 131; Rutland R. Co. v. Central Vermont R. Co. 159 U. S. 630, 640, 40 L. ed. 284, 289, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 113; Gillis v. Stinchfield, 159 U. S. 658, 660, 40 L. ed. 295, 296, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 131; Seneca Nation v. Christy, 162 U. S. 283, 289, 40 L. ed. 970, 972, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 828; Pierce v. Somerset R. Co. 171 U. S. 641, 648, 650, 43 L. ed. 316, 319, 320, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 64; Leonard v. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. 198 U. S. 416, 422, 423, 49 L. ed. 1108, 1111, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 750.

Even admitting that the supreme court of Washington denied to plaintiffs in error a right claimed under a Federal statute, nevertheless, inasmuch as the record clearly shows that plaintiffs in error did in fact waive whatever right to remove they may have had, and inasmuch as this alone is sufficient to sustain the decision of that court, there is no Federal question involved in the case; for it is well settled that in order to sustain the jurisdiction of this court, it must appear that the decision of the Federal question claimed to be involved in the case was necessary to the determination of the cause.

Mississippi & M. R. Co. v. Rock, 4 Wall, 177 180, 181, 18 L. ed. 381–383; Murdock v. Memphis, 20 Wall. 590, 634, 635, 22 L. ed. 429, 443, 444; Johnson v. Risk, 137

U. S. 300, 307, 309, 34 L. ed. 683, 686, 687, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111; Cook County v. Calumet & C. Canal & Dock Co. 138 U. S. 635, 651, 34 L. ed. 1110, 1115, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 435; Eustis v. Bolles, 150 U. S. 361, 366, 367, 37 L. ed. 1111, 1112, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 131.

The decision of the court that Deming was a real party to the contract sued on, and in negotiating the same did not act merely as the agent of the other plaintiffs in error, was a finding of law, but of the law of Washington, the locus celebrationis of the contract, and involved no Federal question. Under these circumstances there is no reviewable question in the case.

Merced Min. Co. v. Boggs, 3 Wall. 304, 310, 18 L. ed. 245, 247; Eilers v. Boatman, 111 U. S. 356, 28 L. ed. 454, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 432, 15 Mor. Min. Rep. 471; Crary v. Devlin, 154 U. S. 619, 23 L. ed. 510, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1199; Telluride Power Transmission Co. v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. 175 U. S. 639, 645-647, 44 L. ed. 305, 308, 309, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 245; Telluride Power Transmission Co. v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. 187 U. S. 569, 579, 47 L. ed. 307, 311, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 178; McMillen v. Ferrum Min. Co. 197 U. S. 343, 347, 49 L. ed. 784, 787, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533.

Admitting, for purposes of argument, that a Federal question is involved in the case, that question is so wholly devoid of merit, and has been so explicitly foreclosed by the decisions of this court, as to leave no room for real controversy in the matter. To warrant this court in assuming jurisdiction of a case, the Federal question asserted to be involved therein must be "a real, substantive question."

Millingar v. Hartupee, 6 Wall. 258, 261, 18 L. ed. 829, 830; New Orleans v. New Orleans Waterworks Co. 142 U. S. 79, 87, 35 L. ed. 943, 946, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142; St. Joseph & G. I. R. Co. v. Steele, 167 U. S. 659, 662, 42 L. ed. 315, 316, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; Wilson v. North Carolina, 169 U. S. 586, 595, 42 L. ed. 865, 871, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 435; New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana, 185 U. S. 336, 344-346, 46 L. ed. 936, 941, 942, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 691; Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308, 311-315, 47 L. ed. 190, 192, 193, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; Hamblin v. Western Land Co. 147 U. S. 531, 532, 37 L. ed. 267, 268, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 353.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

The Carlisle Packing Company, a corporation of the state of Washington, sued in a court of that state Deming and the two corporations who, with him, are the plaintiffs in error on this record. Deming was a citizen and resident of the state of Washington, and the corporations were *alleged [104 to be citizens of states other than Washington. The defendants were sued jointly for a violation by them of a contract alleged to have been jointly made for the purchase of salmon. There was a joint answer by the defendants, putting at issue the material allegations of the complaint. There was a jury trial. When the Carlisle Company rested, motions for nonsuit were separately made on behalf of each of the defendants and were overruled.

After the defendants had offered their proof and the case was ripe for submission, the counsel for the two corporate defendants presented a petition and bond for the removal of the cause to the proper Federal court, and asked that the bond be approved and further proceedings be stayed. The asserted right to remove proceeded upon the assumption that Deming had been fraudulently joined as a defendant for the purpose of preventing the two nonresident defendants from removing the case. This was supported by the contention that the proof as offered left no doubt that Deming had made the contract declared on merely as the agent of the two corporations, and was therefore not personally bound. In denying the petition to remove, the trial judge directed attention to the fact that the motion made at the close of the plaintiff's proof for a nonsuit in favor of Deming had been denied because the court was of opinion that there was evidence to go to the jury on the question of the liability of that defendant, and further observed that the situation in this respect had not been altered by the testimony introduced for the defendants. The cause was submitted to the jury upon instructions which, among other things, left it open to find against less than all of the defendants if the jury believed that the contract had not been made with all. There was a verdict for the plaintiff against all the defendants, and a judgment entered thereon was affirmed by the supreme court of the state. 62 Wash. 455, 114 Pac. 172. The appellate court, among other things decided that no *error had been committed [105 in overruling the motions for nonsuit and in denying the petition to remove, and in substance held that the plaintiff had the right to join Deming as a party defendant.

The prosecution of this writ of error is based upon the assumption that a Federal question was involved in the refusal to grant the petition for removal. In view, however, of the well-settled and, indeed, now elementary doctrine that although a record may present in form a Federal question, a motion to dismiss will be allowed where it plainly appears that the Federal question is of such an unsubstantial character as to cause it to be devoid of all merit, and therefore frivolous, we think it is our duty to grant a motion to dismiss which has been here made. We reach this conclusion because the case was not a removable one when it was called for trial. Not being removable before trial, the plaintiff had the right to have the issues of fact and law raised determined in the state court which had jurisdiction over the cause. This power could not be destroyed by the mere act of the defendants, or one of them, in asking a removal based upon the assumption that if the evidence in the case was properly weighed and the legal principles applicable were correctly applied there would result a condition from which a right to remove would arise. On its face the assertion of such a right involved two propositions, whose unsubstantial character is made manifest by their mere statement: (a) That the state court had jurisdiction over the cause, but had no right to exercise that jurisdiction; (b) that a Federal court could endow itself with jurisdiction over a cause to which its authority did not extend by disregarding the pleadings and wrongfully assuming the right to revise the decision of the state court on matters of an absolutely non-Federal character which that court had the right to decide. Nor is there force in the suggestion that the right to remove under the circumstances stated finds [106]support in the ruling *in Powers v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 169 U. S. 92, 42 L. ed. 673, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 264, since in that case a separable controversy on the face of the record arose at the opening of the trial, consequent on the discontinuance by the plaintiff of his action as against the resident defendant whose joinder had, up to that time, made the action nonremovable. The difference between that case, and the one here presented is apparent, and, at the time the petition for removal was presented and this writ of error was sued out, had been pointed out in decisions of this court. Whitcomb v. Smithson, 175 U. S. 635, 44 L. ed. 303, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 248; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 217, 50 L. ed. 441, 447, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161, 4 Ann. Cas. 1147; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Sheegog, 215 U. S. 308, 54 L. ed. 208, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 101.

Dismissing the writ of error, as we shall therefore do for the reasons stated, it remains to consider whether we should grant a prayer for damages for delay which has been made. That the unsubstantial and frivolous character of the only Federal question relied upon of necessity embraces the conclusion that the writ was prosecuted for delay is, in our opinion, indubitable. Does the power to award damages for delay exist where a writ of error is dismissed because of the unsubstantial and frivolous character of the asserted Federal right and the conclusive inference that the writ was prosecuted for mere delay, which arises from sustaining such ground for dismissal? is then the question. That the comprehensive text of rule 23, embracing, as it does, "all cases" where a writ of error shall appear to have been sued out for mere delay, brings this case within its purview, is obvious. But as the power which the rule expresses depends upon Rev. Stat. § 1010 (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 715), we must consider the subject in the light of the statute. The power conferred is to impose damages for delay in cases "where, upon a writ of error, judgment is affirmed in the supreme court. . . ."

It has been decided that where there was no power on a motion to dismiss, to consider whether a case was prosecuted for delay only, that a prayer for dismissal on such *ground could not be allowed and dam-[107 ages could not be awarded. Amory v. Amory, 91 U. S. 356, 23 L. ed. 436. But the mere statement of the doctrine demonstrates that it rested upon the obvious proposition that a decree would not be made to embrace subjects which the court was not empowered to consider in determining whether the relief asked for should be awarded. This doctrine has no application here, since, by a line of cases announced subsequent to the decision in Amory v. Amory, it has come to be settled that on a motion to dismiss, it is the duty of the court to consider whether an asserted Federal question is devoid of merit and unsubstantial, either because concluded by previous authority, or because of its absolutely frivolous nature, and if it is found to be of such character, to allow a motion to dismiss. This being true, as the conclusion that a writ of error has been prosecuted for delay is the inevitable result of a finding that it has been prosecuted upon a Federal ground which is unsubstantial and frivolous, it follows that the question of delay is involved in and requires to be considered in passing upon a motion to dismiss because of the frivolous character of the Federal question. The decisions of this court also leave it no longer open to discussion that where it is found that a Federal question upon which a writ of error is based is unsubstantial and frivolous, the duty to affirm results.

We have, then, this situation: the finding that a particular ground—that is, the frivolity of the Federal question—exists indifferently justifies either a judgment of affirmance or an order of dismissal. Chanute v. Trader, 132 U. S. 210, 33 L. ed. 345

10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Richardson v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 169 U. S. 128, 42 L. ed. 687, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 268; Blythe v. Hinckley, 180 U. S. 338, 45 L. ed. 561, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390; New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana, 185 U. S. 336, 345, 46 L. ed. 936, 941, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 691; Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308, 47 L. ed. 190, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123. The want of substantial difference between the two, as well as the rule which should determine the practice to be followed in awarding, in such a case, one or 108] *the other, either affirmance or dismissal, was pointed out in the Equitable Case. Thus, the court said (187 U. S. 314):

"From the analysis just made, it results that although a Federal question was raised below in a formal manner, that question, when examined with reference to the averments of fact upon which it was made to depend, is one which has been so explicitly decided by this court as to foreclose further argument on the subject, and hence to cause the Federal question relied upon to be devoid of any substantial foundation or merit. . . . It is likewise also apparent from the analysis previously made that even if the formal raising of a Federal question was alone considered on the motion to dismiss, and therefore the unsubstantial nature of the Federal questions for the purposes of the motion to dismiss were to be put out of view, the judgment below would have to be affirmed. This follows, since it is plain that as the substantiality of the claim of Federal right is the matter upon which the merits depend, and that claim being without any substantial foundation, the motion to affirm would have to be granted under the rule announced in Chanute v. Trader, 132 U. S. 210, 33 L. ed. 345, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Richardson v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 169 U. S. 128, 42 L. ed. 687, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 268 and Blythe v. Hinckley, 180 U. S. 338, 45 L. ed. 561, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 390. This being the case, it is obvious that on this record either the motion to dismiss must be allowed or the motion to affirm granted, and that the allowance of the one or the granting of the other as a practical question will have the like effect, to finally dispose of this controversy. . . . As this is a case governed by the principles controlling writs of error to state courts, it follows that the Federal question upon which the jurisdiction depends is also the identical question upon which the merits depend, and therefore the unsubstantiality of the Federal question for the purpose of the motion to dismiss and its unsubstantiality for the purpose of the motion to affirm are one and the same thing, —that is, the two questions are therefore absolutely coterminous. Hence, *in[109 reason, the denial of one of the motions, necessarily involves the denial of the other, and hence, also, one of the motions cannot be allowed except upon a ground which also would justify the allowance of the other."

Stating that in such a case the determination whether a judgment of affirmance would be awarded or an order of dismissal be allowed involved nothing whatever of substance, but mere form of statement, as the two were the equivalent one of the other, it was observed that the better practice, where the question was not inherently Federal, was to adopt the form of allowing a motion to dismiss; the court, on the subject of the inherently Federal question, referring to Swafford v. Templeton, 185 U. S. 487, 493, 46 L. ed. 1005, 1008, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 783.

The inquiry, then, narrows itself to this: Does the power to award the damages for delay which the statute confers in cases of affirmance give the authority to exert the power where, in form, there is no judgment of affirmance, but only an order of dismissal? To say that the duty to impose the statutory damage in such a case did not exist would require us to hold that things which were one and the same must be held to be different, and that the statute did not extend to and include that which in substance it embraced, because, by adhering blindly to mere form of words, the statute might be treated as not extending to an authority embraced within its spirit and purpose. No more cogent demonstration of the truth of this view could be given than by pointing out that if the proposition were not true, it would follow that in no case could this court, without operating injustice, grant a motion to dismiss because of the frivolous and unsubstantial nature of the alleged Federal ground. This would be the case, since, if greater right would be conferred by affirming on such ground, the duty would arise to follow that practice instead of the practice of dismissing. Indeed, the subject is further aptly illustrated by directing attention to the fact that it is not questioned that the power here obtains *to direct[110 the imposition of the penalty if the result of our conclusion that the Federal ground was frivolous be followed by an affirmance instead of an order of dismissal. Because of the absolute coincidence between a dismissal on account of the frivolous and unsubstantial character of the Federal question relied upon and an affirmance upon the same ground, we are of opinion that the statutory authority to impose the penalty obtains in either case. In stating the reasoning which has led us to this conclusion we have not been unmindful of, although we have not reviewed, a line of cases concerning the nature and extent of the power to impose costs in the case of a dismissal for want of jurisdiction. See Citizens' Bank v. Cannon, 164 U. S. 319, 323, 41 L. ed. 451, 453, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 89, and cases cited. We have not deemed it necessary to do so because nothing in the reasoning of those cases tends to affect the substantial identity which exists between a decree of dismissal and one of affirmance where the ground upon which one is placed equally justifies either form of decree.

In consequence of the conclusion which we have reached as above stated, we direct the imposition of a penalty, in addition to interest, of 5 per cent on the amount of the judgment recovered below and the taxation of costs as upon an affirmance. Writ of error dismissed with damages, etc.

---

FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF PRINCETON, ILLINOIS, et al., Appts.,

v.

CHARLES E. LITTLEFIELD, Trustee, etc.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 110-112.)

Appeal — review of facts — concurrent findings.

The concurrent findings of the two lower courts that the claimants against the bankrupt estate of a firm of stockbrokers had failed to trace into the hands of the receiver in bankruptcy any of the proceeds of stock purchased by the bankrupts with the claimants' money, and wrongfully converted by the bankrupts, will not be disturbed by the Federal Supreme Court on appeal, where not manifestly erroneous.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4931-4959, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 572.]

Submitted November 4, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit to review a decree which, on a second appeal, affirmed a decree of the District Court for the Southern District of New York, disallowing claims to property in the hands of a receiver in bankruptcy. Affirmed.

See same case below on first appeal, 99 C. C. A. 345, 175 Fed. 769; on second appeal, 113 C. C. A. 348, 193 Fed. 24.

Mr. Thorndike Saunders submitted the cause for appellants.

Mr. Daniel P. Hays submitted the cause for appellee.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

Albert O. Brown and others, members of a firm known as A. O. Brown & Company, stockbrokers in New York city, were adjudicated bankrupts. The National Bank of Princeton and four other claimants petitioned to have the receiver in bankruptcy return certain sums of money to which they asserted ownership, because the amounts claimed had been sent to the firm to buy shares of stock for account of the claimants, and the stock had never been delivered to them. The special master, to whom the matter was referred, reported in favor of the claimants. The district court, however, disapproved the conclusion of the master and rejected the claims. The circuit court of appeals reversed. 99 C. C. A. 345, 175 Fed. 769. It was held that as the stock bought with the moneys of the claimants and for their account belonged to them, they were entitled as owners, the stock having been wrongfully converted by the bankrupts, to take out of the bankrupt estate so much of the avails of their wrongfully converted stock as they might be able to trace into the hands of the receiver. Upon amended pleadings a further hearing was had before the special master, who reported against the claimants because it was found as a matter of fact that there was a failure to trace any of the proceeds of the converted *stock into the hands of [112 the receiver. The report of the master was confirmed by the district court (189 Fed. 432, 442), and the action of that court was in all respects affirmed by the circuit court of appeals (113 C. C. A. 348, 193 Fed. 24). This appeal was then taken, and the claim of the Princeton Bank has been specially presented, under an agreement that the decision as to that claim will govern as to the others.

All the contentions relied upon in various forms simply assert that the master and the two courts erred in their appreciation of the facts. But the burden of proof was upon the claimant to establish its ownership of the fund,—a burden which it cannot in reason be said was sustained in view of the concurrent adverse action of the master and the courts below. Indeed, as the settled rule is that the concurrent action of two courts upon questions of fact will not be disturbed except in a case of manifest error,—a condition which we are of the opinion after an examination of the record does not here obtain,—it follows that the judgment below must be and it is affirmed.

SELOVER, BATES, & COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
ELLA T. WALSH.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 112–126.)

Constitutional law — due process of law — regulating cancelation of land contracts.

1. The vendor in an executory contract made and to be performed within the state for the sale of land in another state is not deprived of his property without due process of law by applying, in an action against him for his refusal to perform, the provision of Minn. Laws 1897, chap. 223, that a vendor in a contract for the sale of land shall have no right to cancel, terminate, or declare a forfeiture of the contract except upon thirty days' written notice to the vendee, who shall have that time in which to perform.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 591–604, 870–876, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Conflict of laws — extraterritorial operation of statute — regulating cancelation of land contract.

2. An extraterritorial effect is not given to the provisions of Minn. Laws 1897, chap. 223, that a vendor in a contract for the sale of land shall have no right to cancel, terminate, or declare a forfeiture of the contract except upon thirty days' written notice to the vendee, who shall have that time in which to perform, by applying them to an action by the vendee in an executory contract made and to be performed within the state for the sale of land in another state, to recover damages from the vendor for his refusal to perform.

[For other cases, see Conflict of Laws, I., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — regulating cancelation of land contract.

3. The equal protection of the laws is not denied to the vendor in an executory contract made and to be performed within the state for the sale of land in another state by applying, in an action against him for damages for his refusal to perform, the provisions of Minn. Laws 1897, chap. 223, that a vendor in a contract for the sale of land shall have no right to cancel, terminate, or declare a forfeiture of the contract except upon thirty days' written notice to the vendee, who shall have that time in which to perform, since the vendor is not treated differently from any other seller of land in his situation.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 203–208, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — questions not raised below.

4. Federal questions not raised in the court below cannot be reviewed in the Federal Supreme Court on writ of error to a state court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2164–2174, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — privileges and immunities — corporations.

5. A corporation cannot claim the protection of the clause of U. S. Const., 14th Amend., which secures the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States against abridgment or impairment by the laws of a state.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 243–247, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 22.]

Submitted October 29, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of the Fourth Judicial District, awarding damages to a vendee for a breach by the vendor of an executory contract for the sale of land in another state. Affirmed.

See same case below, 109 Minn. 136, 123 N. W. 291.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Arthur W. Selover submitted the cause for plaintiff in error:

The lex loci rei sitæ applies to all matters with reference to the transfer of lands, including contracts for the purchase and sale thereof.

Brine v. Hartford F. Ins. Co. 96 U. S. 627, 24 L. ed. 858; Dicey, Confl. L. 573; Story, Confl. L. p. 591, § 424; Re Kellogg, 113 Fed. 120; Bendey v. Townsend, 109 U. S. 665, 27 L. ed. 1065, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 482; Orvis v. Powell, 98 U. S. 176, 25 L. ed. 238; Swift v. Smith, 102 U. S. 442, 26 L. ed. 193; Mason v. Northwestern Mut. L. Ins. Co. 106 U. S. 163, 27 L. ed. 129, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165; Parker v. Dacres, 130 U. S. 43, 32 L. ed. 848, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 433; Rorer, Inter-State Law, pp. 167, 190–207, 208, § 11; p. 209, § 1; Watkins v. Holman, 16 Pet. 26–57, 10 L. ed. 874–886; United States v. Fox, 94 U. S. 315–320, 24 L. ed. 192, 193; Lyon v. McIlvaine, 24 Iowa, 9; Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311–314, 11 L. ed. 143, 144; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 75–84, 5 L. ed. 565–568; Tillotson v. Prichard, 60 Vt. 107, 6 Am. St. Rep. 95, 14 Atl. 302.

Under the common law, parties have the right to contract as they will respecting time being of the essence of such a contract, and as to the conditions and circumstances under which said contract shall terminate; and the courts will respect and carry out such stipulations to the letter.

Cheney v. Libby, 134 U. S. 68–77, 33 L. ed.

NOTE.—Corporations as persons entitled to benefit of constitutional guaranty of equal privileges and immunities—see note to Bacon v. State Tax Comrs. 60 L.R.A.

818–823, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 498; Mackey v. Ames, 31 Minn. 103, 16 N. W. 541; Schumann v. Mark, 35 Minn. 379, 28 N. W. 927; Dana v. St. Paul Invest. Co. 42 Minn. 194, 44 N. W. 55; Paget v. Park, 50 Minn. 186, 52 N. W. 532; Joslyn v. Schwend, 85 Minn. 130, 88 N. W. 410; Schwab v. Baremore, 95 Minn. 295, 104 N. W. 10; Tingue v. Patch, 93 Minn. 437, 101 N. W. 792; Chrisman v. Miller, 21 Ill. 235; Heckard v. Sayre, 34 Ill. 142; Apking v. Hoefer, 74 Neb. 325, 104 N. W. 177; Iowa R. Land Co. v. Mickel, 41 Iowa, 402; St. Louis Trust Co. v. York, 81 Mo. App. 342; Coughran v. Bigelow, 9 Utah, 260, 34 Pac. 51; Woodruff v. Semi-Tropic Land & Water Co. 87 Cal. 275, 25 Pac. 354; Axford v. Thomas, 160 Pa. 8, 28 Atl. 443; Murphy v. McIntyre, 152 Mich. 591, 116 N. W. 197; Gilbert v. Union P. R. Co. 79 Neb. 160, 112 N. W. 359.

Any attempt on the part of the state of Minnesota to authorize the foreclosure of such a contract would be, if effective to any degree as against the nonresident vendee, a taking of his property without due process of law, and would deny him the equal protection of the laws.

Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. ed. 565.

The means of enforcement of a contract is the breath of its vital existence, and is inseparable from the right.

Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U. S. 595, 24 L. ed. 793; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 87, 3 L. ed. 162; Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 5 L. ed. 547; Sturges v. Crowinshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 4 L. ed. 529; Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat. 213, 6 L. ed. 606; Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143; McCracken v. Hayward, 2 How. 608, 11 L. ed. 397; Curran v. Arkansas, 15 How. 304, 14 L. ed. 705; Freeman v. Howe, 24 How. 450, 16 L. ed. 749; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 18 L. ed. 403; Hawthorne v. Calef, 2 Wall. 10, 17 L. ed. 776; White v. Hart, 13 Wall. 646, 20 L. ed. 685; Gunn v. Barry, 15 Wall. 610, 21 L. ed. 212; Walker v. Whitehead, 16 Wall. 314, 21 L. ed. 357.

The state of Minnesota was without power to authorize, either by a direct action in equity or by substituted service, the foreclosure of such a contract when neither the person to be affected nor the thing itself was at any time within the territorial jurisdiction of the state.

Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143; Watts v. Waddell, 6 Pet. 389, 8 L. ed. 437; Kendall v. United States, 12 Pet. 524, 9 L. ed. 1181; Boswell v. Otis, 9 How. 336, 13 L. ed. 164; Harris v. Hardeman, 14 How. 334, 14 L. ed. 444; Tennessee v. Sneed, 96 U. S. 69, 24 L. ed. 610; Allis v. Northwestern Mut. L. Ins. Co. 97 U. S. 145, 24 L. ed. 1008; Orvis v. Powell, 98 U. S. 176, 25 L. ed. 238; Schley v. Pullman's Palace Car Co. 120 U. S. 575, 30 L. ed. 789, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Langdon v. Sherwood, 124 U. S. 74–76, 31 L. ed. 344, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424; Bacon v. Northwestern Mut. L. Ins. Co. 131 U. S. 258, 33 L. ed. 128, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 787; McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 662–694, 34 L. ed. 304–314, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972; Goldey v. Morning News, 156 U. S. 521, 39 L. ed. 518, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 559; Barnitz v. Beverly, 163 U. S. 127, 41 L. ed. 99, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1042; De Vaughn v. Hutchinson, 165 U. S. 570, 41 L. ed. 829, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461; Dull v. Blackman, 169 U. S. 243–247, 42 L. ed. 733, 734, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 333; Caledonian Coal Co. v. Baker, 196 U. S. 444, 49 L. ed. 545, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 375; Ex parte Young, 209 U. S. 123, 52 L. ed. 714, 13 L.R.A. (N.S.) 932, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441, 14 Ann. Cas. 764; Fall v. Eastin, 215 U. S. 1–8, 54 L. ed. 65–69, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3, 17 Ann. Cas. 853; Kuhn v. Fairmont Coal Co. 215 U. S. 349, 367, 369, 372, 54 L. ed. 228, 237, 238, 239, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Benedict v. St. Joseph & W. R. Co. 19 Fed. 176; Singer Mfg. Co. v. McCollock, 24 Fed. 669; Union Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Union Mills Plaster Co. 3 L.R.A. 90, 37 Fed. 292; Central Trust Co. v. Charlotte, C. & A. R. Co. 65 Fed. 259; Southern R. Co. v. Bouknight, 30 L.R.A. 823, 17 C. C. A. 181, 25 U. S. App. 415, 70 Fed. 446; Deck v. Whitman, 96 Fed. 874; Nelson v. Potter, 50 N. J. L. 326, 15 Atl. 375; Lindley v. O'Reilly, 50 N. J. L. 643, 1 L.R.A. 79, 7 Am. St. Rep. 802, 15 Atl. 379; Second Ward Sav. Bank v. Schranck, 97 Wis. 262, 39 L.R.A. 569, 73 N. W. 31; Griffin v. Griffin, 18 N. J. Eq. 107; Jackson ex dem. M'Crea v. Dunlap, 1 Johns. Cas. 114, 1 Am. Dec. 100; Jackson ex dem. Lowell v. Parkhurst, 4 Wend. 369; Rockwell v. Hobby, 2 Sandf. Ch. 9; Story, Confl. L. 754, § 539; Wharton, Confl. L. p. 64, §§ 288, 289; Boswell v. Otis, 9 How. 336–348, 13 L. ed. 164–169; United States v. Fox, 94 U. S. 315–320, 24 L. ed. 192, 193; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714, 24 L. ed. 565; Freeman v. Alderson, 119 U. S. 185–187, 30 L. ed. 372, 373, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165; Arndt v. Griggs, 134 U. S. 316–320, 33 L. ed. 918, 919, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557; Dewey v. Des Moines, 173 U. S. 193–204, 43 L. ed. 665–668, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379; Overby v. Gordon, 177 U. S. 214–222, 44 L. ed. 741–744, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603; Old Wayne Mut. Life Asso. v. McDonough, 204 U. S. 8, 21–22, 51 L. ed. 345, 350, 351, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 236; Eliot v. McCormick, 144 Mass. 10, 10 N. E. 705; Cooper v. Reynolds, 10 Wall. 308, 19 L. ed. 931; Eastman v. Wadleigh, 65 Me. 251, 20 Am. Rep. 695; Easterly v. Goodwin, 35 Conn. 277.

Strictly speaking, the contract was not made in Minnesota, and the holding of the court below that it was is against the great weight of authority. The contract became effective upon its acceptance and signature by the vendee in North Dakota.

Kileen v. Kennedy, 90 Minn. 414, 97 N. W. 126; Stockham v. Stockham, 32 Md. 196; Milliken v. Pratt, 125 Mass. 374, 28 Am. Rep. 241; Brauer v. Shaw, 168 Mass. 198, 60 Am. St. Rep. 387, 46 N. E. 617; Abbott v. Shepard, 48 N. H. 14; Haas v. Myers, 111 Ill. 421, 53 Am. Rep. 634; Crandall v. Willig, 166 Ill. 233, 46 N. E. 755; Patrick v. Bowman, 149 U. S. 411–424, 37 L. ed. 790–795, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 811, 866; McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Richardson, 89 Iowa, 525, 56 N. W. 682; Cooper v. Lansing Wheel Co. 94 Mich. 272, 34 Am. St. Rep. 341, 54 N. W. 39; John A. Tolman Co. v. Reed, 115 Mich. 71, 72 N. W. 1104; 2 Kent, Com. 47; 1 Parson, Contr. 475; 1 Story, Contr. 490; Hilliard, Sales, § 20; Benjamin, Sales, § 73; Bascom v. Zediker, 48 Neb. 380, 67 N. W. 148; Gay v. Rainey, 89 Ill. 221; 31 Am. Rep. 76; Eliason v. Henshaw, 4 Wheat. 225, 4 L. ed. 556; M'Intyre v. Parks, 3 Met. 207; Buchanan v. Drovers' Nat. Bank, 5 C. C. A. 83, 6 U. S. App. 566, 55 Fed. 223; Western Transp. & Coal Co. v. Kilderhouse, 87 N. Y. 430; Wharton, Confl. L. p. 886, §§ 421, 422; Emerson Co. v. Proctor, 97 Me. 360, 54 Atl. 849; Northampton Mut. Live Stock Ins. Co. v. Tuttle, 40 N. J. L. 476; Hill v. Chase, 143 Mass. 129, 9 N. E. 30; Morehouse v. Terrill, 111 Ill. App. 460; Born v. Home Ins. Co. 120 Iowa, 299, 94 N. W. 849; Lawson v. Tripp, 34 Utah, 28, 95 Pac. 520; Rickard v. Taylor, 122 Fed. 931; Galloway v. Standard F. Ins. Co. 45 W. Va. 237, 31 S. E. 969; Newlin v. Prevo, 90 Ill. App. 515; Central of Georgia R. Co. v. Gortatowsky, 123 Ga. 366, 51 S. E. 469; Waldron v. Ritchings, 9 Abb. Pr. N. S. 359; Aultman, M. & Co. v. Holder, 68 Fed. 467; Perry v. Mt. Hope Iron Co. 15 R. I. 380, 2 Am. St. Rep. 902, 5 Atl. 632; Cobb v. Dunlevi, 63 W. Va. 398, 60 S. E. 384; First Nat. Bank v. Doeden, 21 S. D. 400, 113 N. W. 81; Bank of Yolo v. Sperry Flour Co. 141 Cal. 314, 65 L.R.A. 90, 74 Pac. 855.

Liberty of contract is subject to reasonable police regulation by the state, but only with respect to a subject-matter over which it has jurisdiction. To prohibit the making of a certain kind of contract respecting the transfer of land in another state is to deprive the citizen of his liberty of contract.

Mathews v. People, 202 Ill. 389, 63 L.R.A. 73, 95 Am. St. Rep. 241, 67 N. E. 28; Gillespie v. People, 188 Ill. 176, 52 L.R.A. 283, 80 Am. St. Rep. 176, 58 N. E. 1007; Ritchie v. People, 155 Ill. 98, 29 L.R.A. 79, 46 Am. St. Rep. 315, 40 N. E. 454; Frorer v. People, 141 Ill. 172, 16 L.R.A. 492, 31 N. E. 395; State v. Julow, 129 Mo. 163, 29 L.R.A. 257, 50 Am. St. Rep. 443, 31 S. W. 781; Cleveland v. Clements Bros. Constr. Co. 67 Ohio St. 197, 59 L.R.A. 775, 93 Am. St. Rep. 670, 65 N. E. 885; State ex rel. McKell v. Robins, 71 Ohio St. 290, 69 L.R.A. 427, 73 N. E. 470, 2 Ann. Cas. 485; Kuhn v. Detroit, 70 Mich. 534, 38 N. W. 470; Andrews v. Beane, 15 R. I. 451, 8 Atl. 540; Powers v. Shepard, 1 Abb. Pr. N. S. 129, 45 Barb. 524; Shaver v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 931; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 Ann. Cas. 764; Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 832, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427.

The abolishment of all remedy is objectionable to the Constitution, in that it deprives the citizen of his property without due process of law.

Black, Constitutional Prohibitions, §§ 146–171; Sutherland, Stat. Constr. pp. 1206, 1208, §§ 5, 8; Butz v. Muscatine, 8 Wall. 575, 19 L. ed. 490.

It is unthinkable that a transfer or a right to transfer immovable property should be subject to regulations at the same time by two different and distinct sovereignties. In so far as the state of Minnesota penalizes its resident owner because he has obeyed the law of the state or country wherein the land is situated,—the law which he must be subject to,—just so far does it exceed its powers and deny to its citizen the equal protection of the laws.

Price v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 113 U. S. 218, 28 L. ed. 980, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Allen v. St. Louis Nat. Bank, 120 U. S. 27, 30 L. ed. 573, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 460; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 544, 46 L. ed. 683, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Massie v. Cessna, 239 Ill. 352, 28 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1108, 130 Am. St. Rep. 234, 88 N. E. 152; Cincinnati Street R. Co. v. Snell, 193 U. S. 30, 48 L. ed. 604, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 319; Ex parte Hollman, 79 S. C. 9, 21 L.R.A. (N.S.) 242, 60 S. E. 19, 14 Ann. Cas. 1105; Ex parte Hawley, 22 S. D. 23, 15 L.R.A. (N.S.) 138, 115 N. W. 93; American De Forest Wireless Teleg. Co. v. Superior Court, 153 Cal. 533, 17 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1117, 126 Am. St. Rep. 125, 96 Pac. 15; Re Van Horne, 74 N. J. Eq. 600, 70 Atl. 986; Greene v. State, 83 Neb. 84, 131 Am. St. Rep. 626, 119 N. W. 6; Lively v. Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. 102 Tex. 545, 120 S. W. 852; Hoxie v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 82 Conn. 352, 73 Atl. 754, 17 Ann. Cas. 324; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463–501, 52 L. ed. 297–310, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Railway Commission, 155 Fed.

792; Board of Education v. Alliance Assur. Co. 159 Fed. 994; Phipps v. Wisconsin C. R. Co. 133 Wis. 153, 113 N. W. 456.

By this decision the court below refused to give full faith and credit to the acts and records of Colorado.

Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Wiggins Ferry Co. 119 U. S. 622, 30 L. ed. 522, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 398; National Mut. Bldg. & L. Asso. v. Brahan, 193 U. S. 647, 48 L. ed. 828, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532; Minnesota v. Northern Securities Co. 194 U. S. 72, 48 L. ed. 881, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 598.

Such legislation and the holding therein of the court below make and enforce a law which abridges the privileges and immunities of plaintiff in error as a citizen of the United States.

Ex parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 347, 25 L. ed. 679, 3 Am. Crim. Rep. 547; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Chicago, 166 U. S. 234, 41 L. ed. 983, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Missouri v. Dockery, 191 U. S. 170, 48 L. ed. 133, 63 L.R.A. 571, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 53; Huntington v. New York, 118 Fed. 686.

Messrs. A. B. Choate and George W. Buffington submitted the cause for defendant in error:

Even if it could be technically held that the contract was made in Dakota, which is not conceded, the general principle in relation to contracts made in one place, to be performed in another, is well settled. They are to be governed by the law of the place of performance.

Andrews v. Pond, 13 Pet. 65, 78, 10 L. ed. 61, 67.

Assuming that the default clauses of this contract were valid by the law of some other state, the Minnesota courts would not enforce them if they contravened the laws of Minnesota.

Oscanyan v. Winchester Repeating Arms Co. 103 U. S. 261, 277, 26 L. ed. 539, 546; Teal v. Walker, 111 U. S. 242, 252, 28 L. ed. 415, 419, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 420.

If this obnoxious condition for forfeiture was void under Minnesota statutes, then, being a Minnesota contract, it was void everywhere; and it is immaterial what the law of any other state is, whether for the foreclosure of such contracts or for other remedy.

Andrews v. Pond, 13 Pet. 65, 78, 10 L. ed. 61, 67.

Every possible presumption is in favor of the validity of a statute, and this continues until the contrary is shown beyond a rational doubt.

Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 718, 25 L. ed. 496, 501.

Until the supreme court of Minnesota shall construe the statute in question as requiring the plaintiff in error to do some impossible thing, application to this court is premature. This court will not so construe it if it is capable of a construction to the contrary.

New York ex rel. Lieberman v. Van De Carr, 199 U. S. 552, 562, 50 L. ed. 305, 310, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 144; Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 412, 50 L. ed. 246, 250, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66.

When a statute makes a certain fact prima facie evidence of another fact, the prima facie evidence is neither necessary nor exclusive of other evidence.

State ex rel. Cunningham v. District Ct. 29 Minn. 67, 11 N. W. 133; Easton v. Childs, 67 Minn. 242, 69 N. W. 903; Perkins v. Gibbs, 108 Minn. 151, 121 N. W. 605.

Until other proof of nonresidence is refused by the state court, this court should not be asked to hold that the statute requires a sheriff's return.

Hinde v. Vattier, 5 Pet. 398, 8 L. ed. 168; Clement v. Packer, 125 U. S. 309, 322, 31 L. ed. 721, 726, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 907.

The rules of property and of evidence established by the state tribunals furnish the guides and rules of decision in those of the Union in all cases where they apply.

Hinde v. Vattier, 5 Pet. 398, 400, 8 L. ed. 168, 169.

The 14th Amendment was not designed to interfere with the police power of the state.

Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 28 L. ed. 923, 924, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357.

The state government is supreme and exclusive in its own domain. There is no divided sovereignty in the exercise of the police power. Jurisdiction is entirely vested either in the state or the nation, and not divided between them.

Re Heff, 197 U. S. 488, 505, 49 L. ed. 848, 855, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 506; York v. Miln, 11 Pet. 102, 138, 9 L. ed. 648, 662.

In the exercise of the police power a wide discretion is necessary.

License Cases, 5 How. 504, 592, 12 L. ed. 256, 296.

No constitutional right has been invaded in the case at bar, and the fears of plaintiff in error of some future injury due to what it deems ill-advised or unjust legislation in the exercise of the police power of the state are immaterial.

Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 704, 26 L. ed. 238, 242.

This court will not override the judgment and discretion of the state of Minnesota because corporations who are creatures of that state cannot afford to do a certain class of business unless permitted to violate the state laws. Plaintiff in error has no vested right to sell land in another state, which can limit the state in the exercise of its police power.

Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470, 493, 48 L. ed. 525, 534, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 349.

The legislature may classify subjects of legislation, and legislate for the classes separately.

Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 29, 32 L. ed. 585, 586, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 28 L. ed. 923, 924, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357.

The judgment complained of is not an attempt to exercise extraterritorial jurisdiction.

De Wolf v. Johnson, 10 Wheat. 368, 382, 383, 6 L. ed. 343, 347.

The contract clause of the Constitution of the United States has reference only to a statute of a state enacted after the making of the contract whose obligation is alleged to have been impaired; it does not apply to laws enacted prior to the contract, the obligation of which is asserted to be impaired.

Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat. 213, 303, 6 L. ed. 606, 637; Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U. S. 595, 603, 24 L. ed. 793, 797.

The record in this case fails to show that the supreme court of Minnesota ever had the existence of any act of Colorado brought to its attention in any manner.

Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Wiggins Ferry Co. 119 U. S. 615, 622, 30 L. ed. 519, 522, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 398.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Error to the supreme court of Minnesota to review a judgment of that court awarding damages to defendant in error for a breach by plaintiff in error of an executory contract for the sale of land situated in the state of Colorado.

The contract was made by one Bates for plaintiff in error at the office of the latter, in the city of Minneapolis, he being one of its officers, with P. D. Walsh, the husband of defendant in error. Walsh, however, actually signed the contract at his residence in North Dakota. He subsequently assigned his interest to her, as Bates did to plaintiff in error.

Plaintiff in error, asserting that Walsh had made default of the terms of the contract, canceled it and subsequently sold the land to other parties. This action was then brought by defendant in error, resulting in a judgment for her which was affirmed by the supreme court. 109 Minn. 136, 123 N. W. 291.

By the contract, Bates, the assignor of plaintiff in error, covenanted to convey the land to Walsh, the assignor of defendant in error, reserving certain mining rights therein. Payments were to be made in installments at the office of plaintiff in error in Minneapolis, punctually, and it was stipulated "that time and punctuality" were "material and essential ingredients" of the contract. It was covenanted that in case of failure to make the payments *"punc-[121 tually and upon the strict terms and times" limited, and upon default thereof or in the strict and literal performance of any other covenant, the contract, at the option of the party of the first part (Bates), should become utterly null and void, and the rights of the party of the second part (Walsh) should, "at the option of the party of the first part, utterly cease and determine" as if "the contract had never been made." There was forfeiture of the sums paid and a reversion of all rights conveyed, including the right to take immediate possession of the land "without process of law," and it was covenanted that no court should "relieve the party of the second part upon failure to comply strictly and literally" with the contract.

The default of Walsh consisted in the failure to pay taxes, and plaintiff in error elected to terminate the contract, and gave notice of such election to him in writing in the state of North Dakota. Against the effect of such default and notice, defendant in error opposed chapter 223, Laws of Minnesota, 1897, which provides that a vendor in a contract for the sale of land shall have no right to cancel, terminate, or declare a forfeiture of the contract except upon thirty days' written notice to the vendee, and that the latter shall have thirty days after service of such notice in which to perform the conditions or comply with the provisions upon which default shall have occurred.

The trial court and the supreme court held the statute applicable, and judgment went, as we have said, for defendant in error. This ruling is attacked on the ground that, as so applied, the statute offends against the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States in that it deprives plaintiff in error of its property without due process of law and of the equal protection of the laws.

With the ruling of the court as to the applicability of the statute to the contract we have nothing to do. We are *only[122 concerned with the contention that, as so applied, it violates the 14th Amendment. Of this the supreme court said:

"There can be no serious question as to the constitutionality of the statute. It in effect prescribes a period of redemption in contracts of this character, and was within the power and authority of the legislature. Defendants' principal contention on this branch of the case is not so much that the statute is unconstitutional, as that it should not be construed to apply to contracts made in Minnesota for the sale of land in another state. There is force in this contention, but within the rule of the Finnes Case (102 Minn. 334, 113 N. W. 883), which a majority of the court do not feel disposed to reconsider, the action does not involve the title to the land, is purely personal, and the rights of the parties are controlled by the laws of this state. Under the decision in that case, defendants had no right arbitrarily to declare the contract at an end and refuse to perform it, and are liable for such damages as their refusal caused plaintiff. Following the Finnes Case, we have no alternative but to affirm the action of the court below."

This excerpt clearly presents the ground of the court's decision, and we may put in contrast to it the contention of plaintiff in error. Its contention is that the contract itself provided for the manner of its termination, and made exact punctuality the essence of its obligation, and that the statute of the state, as it exempts from such obligation, deprives plaintiff in error of its property without due process of law. The argument to support the contention is somewhat confused, as it mingles with the right of contract simply a consideration of the state's jurisdiction over the land which was the subject of the contract. As to the contract simply, we have no doubt of the state's power over it, and the law of the state, therefore, constituted part of it. It is elementary that the obligation of a contract is the law under which it was made, and 123]we are *not disposed to expend much time to show that the Minnesota statute was a valid exercise of the police power of the state. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 55 L. ed. 328, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 259; Brodnax v. Missouri, 219 U. S. 285, 55 L. ed. 219, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 238. Whether it had extraterritorial effect is another question. The contention is that the statute, as applied, affected the transfer of land situated in another state, and outside of, therefore, the jurisdiction of the state of Minnesota. In other words, it is contended that the law of Colorado, the situs of the property, is the law of the contract. The principle is asserted in many ways and with an affluent citation of cases. The principle cannot be contested, but plaintiff in error pushes it too far. Courts in many ways, through action upon or constraint of the person, affect property in other states (Fall v. Eastin. 215 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 65, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 924, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3, 17 Ann. Cas. 853) and in the case at bar the action is strictly personal. It in no way affects the land or seeks any remedy against it. The land had been conveyed to another by plaintiff in error, and it was secure in the possession of the purchaser. Redress was sought in a Minnesota court for the violation of a Minnesota contract, and, being such, the law of Minnesota gave the right and measure of recovery.

In Polson v. Stewart, 167 Mass. 211, 36 L.R.A. 771, 57 Am. St. Rep. 452, 45 N. E. 737, a contract made in North Carolina between a husband and wife, who were domiciled there, by which he covenanted to surrender, convey, and transfer all of his rights to lands owned by her in Massachusetts, was declared to be a North Carolina contract and enforceable in Massachusetts, notwithstanding that under the law of the latter state husband and wife were incapable of contracting with each other. To the objection that the laws of the parties' domicil could not authorize a contract between them as to land in Massachusetts, it was answered: "Obviously this is not true. It it true that the laws of other states canot render valid conveyances of property within our borders which our laws say are void, for the *plain[124 reason that we have exclusive power over the res. . . . But the same reason inverted establishes that the lex rei sitæ cannot control personal covenants, not purporting to be conveyances between persons outside the jurisdiction, although concerning a thing within it. Whatever the covenant, the law of North Carolina could subject the defendant's property to seizure on execution, and his person to imprisonment, for a failure to perform it. Therefore, on principle, the law of North Carolina determines the validity of the contract." Precedents against the view were noted and contrasted with those supporting it.

The case at bar is certainly within the principle expressed in Polson v. Stewart. The Minnesota supreme court followed the prior decision in Finnes v. Selover, B. & Co. 102 Minn. 334, 113 N. W. 883, in which it said that, upon repudiation of a contract by the seller of land, two courses were open to the purchaser: "He might stand by the contract and seek to recover the land, or he could declare upon a breach of the contract, and recover the amount of his damages." If he elected the former, it was further said, the courts of Colorado alone could give him relief; if he sought redress in damages, the courts of Minnesota were open to him. And this, it was observed, was in accordance with the principle that the law of the situs governs as to the land, and the law of the contract as to the rights of the parties in the contract.

Plaintiff in error bases a contention upon the difficulty of complying with the provisions of the statute with regard to giving notice. Written notice is, as we have seen, necessary to be given of any default, and the time when the cancelation of the contract shall take effect, which must not be less than thirty days after the service; and it is provided that the notice must be served in the manner provided for service of summons in the district court if the vendee resides in the county where the real estate covered by the contract is situated. 125] If the vendee is not *within the county where the real estate is situated, then notice must be served by publication in a weekly newspaper within the county, or, if there is none in the county, then in a newspaper published at the capital of the state. And it is provided that the vendee shall have thirty days after service to perform the conditions or comply with the provisions. The contention is that these provisions cannot be complied with, either in Minnesota or Colorado; and that plaintiff in error is brought to the dilemma of not being able to cancel the contract, whatever be the default.

The dilemma was not presented to the supreme court of the state for resolution, as plaintiff in error had made no attempt to comply with the statute in any way. As that court held the statute applicable to contracts such as that under review, it will, no doubt, in a proper case, so construe the statute as to make it effective. We are not called upon to anticipate its ruling.

It is manifest from these views that plaintiff in error was not, by the enforcement of the Minnesota statute, deprived of its property without due process of law.

It is further contended that the Minnesota statute denies plaintiff in error the equal protection of the laws and is therefore void. In specification of the way in which this is done, plaintiff in error says: "In so far as the state of Minnesota penalizes its resident owner because he has obeyed the laws of the state or country wherein the land is situated,—the law which he must be subject to,—just so far does it exceed its powers and deny to its citizens the equal protection of the laws." This manifestly is but another way of presenting the argument, which we have answered, that the law of Colorado controls the contract, and not the law of Minnesota. Discrimination is not made out by saying that resident owners of Minnesota land are given a right to foreclose their contracts, and that residents of Minnesota owning land in other states are not given the same right, even if this were true. The plaintiff 126] *in error is not treated differently from any other seller of land in his situation. This is the test of the application of the equal protection clause of the Constitution of the United States.

Plaintiff in error further charges that the supreme court of the state refused to give full faith and credit to the acts and records of Colorado. The contention was not made in the court below and cannot be made here. The same comment is applicable to the contention that privileges and immunities of plaintiff in error as a citizen of the United States are abridged. We may say of the contentions that they are but a repetition of the view that the law of Colorado, and not that of Minnesota, governs the contract. And we may say further, it is well settled that a corporation cannot claim the protection of the clause of the 14th Amendment which secures the privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States against abridgment or impairment by the law of a state. Western Turf Asso. v. Greenberg, 204 U. S. 359, 51 L. ed. 520, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 384.

Judgment affirmed.

The Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Van Devanter dissent.

---

BROOKE P. TAYLOR, Nannie M. McCormick, Rosalie McCormick, et al., Appts.,
v.
COLUMBIAN UNIVERSITY (Now Known in Law as George Washington University) and Johns Hopkins University.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 126-137.)

Charities — uncertainty — incapacity of execution.

1. A valid charitable trust, not open to the objection of uncertainty or incapacity of execution, apparent upon its face, was created under the will of a retired Navy officer by which, after stating his desire to make some contribution to the Navy, he devised real property to an educational institution in trust to provide for the free education of young men to fit them for admission to the United States Naval Academy, or for positions as mates or masters in the "merchant marine service of the United States," or for appointment from civil life to the steam engineer department of the Navy.

[For other cases, see Charities, I. b; I. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Charities — failure to accomplish object.

2. A charitable trust for the free education of young men to fit them for admission to the United States Naval Academy cannot be said to fail in its execution to accomplish in some degree the charitable object, where at least two out of twenty-four of those who availed themselves of its benefits entered such Academy.

---

Note.—As to certainty of purpose or beneficiaries of charitable bequest—see note to Hadley v. Forsee, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 84, 116.

[No. 41.]

Argued November 6, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a decree which, on a second appeal, affirmed a decree of the Supreme Court of the District, dismissing the bill in a suit to declare void a testamentary trust. Affirmed.

See same case below, 35 App. D. C. 68.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Henry E. Davis argued the cause, and, with Mr. J. K. M. Norton, filed a brief for appellants:

The bequest does not come under the broadest definition of charitable bequests.

2 Words & Phrases, p. 1075.

If it does not appear from the instrument that the donor intended a general public charity, it will not be carried out at all, if, by reason of its uncertainty or otherwise, it cannot be so carried out as to accomplish the object specified by the donor.

Kain v. Gibboney, 101 U. S. 362, 25 L. ed. 813; Stratton v. Physio-Medical College, 5 L.R.A. 35, note; People v. Powers, 147 N. Y. 104, 35 L.R.A. 502, 41 N. E. 432; Norris v. Thomson, 19 N. J. Eq. 307; Perry, Trusts, § 709; Re Randell, L. R. 38 Ch. Div. 213, 57 L. J. Ch. N. S. 899, 58 L. T. N. S. 626, 36 Week. Rep. 543; Re Prison Charities, L. R. 16 Eq. 129, 42 L. J. Ch. N. S. 748; Story, Eq. Jur. § 1182.

If the devise be held to be a charitable trust, it is yet too uncertain and indefinite to be carried out. Under the devise it is uncertain what young men are to partake of the benefit; no method nor plan for the selection of the beneficiaries is prescribed or provided.

Norcross v. Murphy, 44 N. J. Eq. 522, 14 Atl. 903; Tilden v. Green, 130 N. Y. 29, 14 L.R.A. 33, 27 Am. St. Rep. 487, 28 N. E. 880; Stratton v. Physio-Medical College, 5 L.R.A. 33, note; Fairfield v. Lawson, 50 Conn. 513, 47 Am. Rep. 669; Beardsley v. Bridgeport, 53 Conn. 489, 55 Am. Rep. 152, 3 Atl. 557; Hughes v. Daly, 49 Conn. 34; White v. Fisk, 22 Conn. 53; Grimes v. Harmon, 35 Ind. 198, 9 Am. Rep. 690; Dutch Church v. Mott, 7 Paige, 77; Goodell v. Union Asso. 29 N. J. Eq. 32; Atty. Gen. v. Jolly, 1 Rich. Eq. 90, 42 Am. Dec. 349; Gibson v. M'Call, 1 Rich. L. 174; Johnson v. Johnson, 92 Tenn. 571, 22 L.R.A. 179, 36 Am. St. Rep. 104, 23 S. W. 114; Maught v. Getzendanner, 66 Md. 529, 57 Am. Rep. 352, 57 L. ed.

5 Atl. 471; Dulany v. Middleton, 72 Md. 67, 19 Atl. 146; Methodist Episcopal Church v. Smith, 56 Md. 362; Dashiell v. Atty. Gen. 5 Harr. & J. 392, 9 Am. Dec. 572, 6 Harr. & J. 1; Yingling v. Miller, 77 Md. 104, 26 Atl. 491; Rizer v. Perry, 58 Md. 112; Needles v. Martin, 33 Md. 609; Wheeler v. Smith, 9 How. 55, 13 L. ed. 44; Trinity M. E. Church v. Baker, 91 Md. 539, 46 Atl. 1020; Pratt v. Sheppard & E. P. Hospital, 88 Md. 610, 42 Atl. 51; Gambell v. Trippe, 75 Md. 252, 15 L.R.A. 235, 32 Am. St. Rep. 388, 23 Atl. 461; Barnum v. Baltimore, 62 Md. 292, 50 Am. Rep. 219; Long v. Gloyd, 25 Wash. L. Rep. 50; Coltman v. Moore, 1 MacArth. 197; Speer v. Mosher, 31 Wash. L. Rep. 630.

The court declined to hear Mr. Walter C. Clephane, who filed a brief for appellees:

This is undoubtedly a charitable trust.

Jackson v. Phillips, 14 Allen, 539; Vidal v. Girard, 11 L. ed. 205, note; 3 Pom. Eq. Jur. § 1025; Speer v. Colbert, 24 App. D. C. 187, affirmed in 200 U. S. 130, 50 L. ed. 403, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 201; Smith v. Gardiner, 36 App. D. C. 485; Ould v. Washington Hospital, 95 U. S. 303, 24 L. ed. 450; Jones v. Habersham, 107 U. S. 174, 27 L. ed. 401, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 331; University of London v. Yarrow, 23 Beav. 159; Marsh v. Means, 3 Jur. N. S. 790; Tatham v. Drummond, 11 L. T. N. S. 325; Barnum v. Baltimore, 62 Md. 275, 50 Am. Rep. 219.

When property is devoted to a charitable use, the heirs at law of the donor can never recover, but the cy près doctrine will be applied.

2 Story, Eq. Jur. § 1177; Russell v. Allen, 107 U. S. 163, 27 L. ed. 397, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 327; Fontain v. Ravenel, 17 How. 369, 15 L. ed. 80; Church of Jesus Christ, L. D. S. v. United States, 136 U. S. 1, 34 L. ed. 478, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 792; Moggridge v. Thackwell, 7 Ves. Jr. 39, 6 Revised Rep. 76; Atty. Gen. v. Ironmongers' Co. 2 Myl. & K. 576, 3 L. J. Ch. 11, 2 Beav. 313, Craig & Ph. 208, 10 L. J. Ch. N. S. 201, 10 Clark & F. 908; Bloomfield v. Stowe-market (1619) Duke, Charitable Uses, 624; Atty. Gen. v. Guise, 2 Vern. 266; Atty. Gen. v. Baliol College 9 Mod. 407; Atty. Gen. v. Glasgow College, 2 Colly. Ch. Cas. 665, 1 H. L. Cas. 800; Atty. Gen. v. Hicks, 3 Bro. Ch. 166, note; Highmore, Mortmain, 336, 354; Jackson v. Phillips, 14 Allen, 539; Adams Female Academy v. Adams, 65 N. H. 225, 6 L.R.A. 785, 18 Atl. 777, 23 Atl. 430; Cincinnati v. McMicken, 6 Ohio C. C. 188, 3 Ohio C. D. 409; Weeks v. Hobson, 150 Mass. 377, 6 L.R.A. 147, 23 N. E. 215; Potter v. Thornton, 7 R. I. 252; McIntire v. Zanesville, 17 Ohio St. 352; Crerar v. Williams, 145 Ill. 625, 21 L.R.A. 454, 34 N. E.

467; Ingraham v. Ingraham, 169 Ill. 432, 48 N. E. 561, 49 N. E. 320.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Suit by appellants as heirs of Levin M. Powell, to declare void a trust created by his will, and to recover certain real estate held by the George Washington University, the legal successor of the Columbian University.

Levin M. Powell was, when he made his will, an admiral in the United States Navy, on the retired list. The clause which creates the trust is as follows:

"Item: Fifth, it being my wish and desire to make some contribution to the Navy of the United States, of which I have been for so many years, I hope, a worthy member, and so in a measure to pay off the debt I feel I owe the honorable profession I have pursued through a long lifetime, and to that end to establish in the Columbian University in the District Columbia, in a manner most conducive for that purpose, a means for the education of such young men as may be willing to profit therefrom in the branches of education best fitted to prepare them for officers of the line in the Navy of the United States, or for the places of mates or captains in the merchant 131]marine *service of the United States. I do hereby give, devise, and bequeath to the said Columbian University and its successors all those certain pieces or parcels of ground situate and lying in said city of Washington, . . . in trust for the purposes following, and for no other purpose whatever,—that is, in trust to create an endowment to be known as the Admiral Powell endowment, and with that view to take the said property, and the same to rent from year to year, or to lease for a term of years, as to the trustees and overseers of said University shall seem best; and the rents, issues, and profits arising therefrom, after first paying out of the same the taxes, insurance, repairs, and other expenses, to devote as far as the same will go, under such regulations as to the said trustees and overseers may seem best, to the free education of such young men as may desire to take advantage of the said endowment by way of their preparation for entrance into the Naval Academy at Annapolis, Maryland, or such as may fit them to become mates or masters in the merchant marine service of the United States, such preparation to be confined in the case of each young man so embracing the advantages of the said endowment to one year, and to include principally the studies following, that is to say: arithmetic, geometry, trigonometry, and astronomy, with the use of astronomical instruments, the construction of charts, and the application of this knowledge to hydrographical survey by latitude and longitude, and if possible such study as will give to such young men a knowledge of scientific voyages of discovery, and other matters relating to war and commerce on the high seas; and it is further my desire that this endowment shall, if possible, embrace in its benefits such apprentices as, having filled their time in the great steam manufactory establishments of the country, may apply for appointment from civil life in the steam engineer department of the United States Navy, to such I would like to have a year's *education afforded under such regula-[132 tions as the president and faculty of the University may think proper. And should it at any time for any reason be impossible to carry into effect the trusts, provisions, and conditions having relation to and herein imposed upon this bequest by me made for the creation of the endowment described on the part of the said Columbian University, or should it be made manifest at any time that the said trust is not being administered in accordance with my wishes and desires, and in conformity with the conditions specified, then and in such case it is my will and desire that the said endowment shall be placed in other hands, and to that end and upon happening of the contingency mentioned, I do hereby give, devise, and bequeath the said property to the Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore, in the state of Maryland, and its successors, to be taken and held by the said University or the officers thereof proper for that purpose, upon the trusts and for the purposes hereinbefore particularly set forth in the bequest of said property to the Columbian University, in such manner that the purposes of the said endowment as by me indicated may be fully carried into effect."

The bill alleges that the Columbian University, supposing it had the right to execute the trust, took possession of the property, and has let it to various tenants, and for more than sixteen years has issued a catalogue publishing its classes, the names of all of its students, instructors, and officers, and the many and various schools of education it maintains, and that the catalogue is widely circulated throughout the United States. The University has, it is alleged, for a like period advertised "The Powell Scholarship," and notwithstanding the wide circulation of the advertisement, the University has been unable to execute the trust.

It is alleged that the devise is so indefinite and the trust intended to be created so uncertain of its objects and subjects

133] *that it is impossible of execution by the Columbian University, or by the Johns Hopkins University, and has in no wise been executed by either of them; and that therefore the trust is wholly void and of no effect. The collection of the rents and profits by the Columbian University is alleged. It was prayed that the trust be declared void and that the Columbian University be required to account for the rents and profits collected by it.

A demurrer to the bill was overruled, which ruling was sustained by the court of appeals. 25 App. D. C. 124.

The court of appeals held that the devise created a special charitable trust, and that it was not void for uncertainty or incapacity of execution apparent upon its face. The court, however, held that the nineteenth paragraph of the bill, which alleged that the impossibility of the execution of the trust had been demonstrated, stated a cause of action, and remanded the case for further proceedings. Upon the return of the case to the supreme court, the University answered, by which it traversed the allegations of the bill, and alleged in effect that it undertook the trust and has ever since efficiently executed it. It further alleged that its codefendant, the Johns Hopkins University, is able, ready, and willing to accept and administer the trust at any time, if for any reason it should be impossible for it, the Columbian University, to administer the same, or "should fail to carry out the trust in that regard reposed in it."

Testimony was taken, and the trial court found from the facts proved the following:

"First. From the testimony adduced by plaintiffs upon this point, it appears that beginning with the scholastic year 1885-86 (the will of Powell was probated in 1885), the defendant Columbian University published in its annual catalogues that, under the terms of the Admiral Powell Endowment, free scholarships would be given to a 134]limited *number of pupils who were preparing for admission to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. This notice was in some issues of the catalogue more explicit, giving in greater detail the terms of the trust, and in other issues courses of study were given from which the special course contemplated by the terms of the trust might be selected. It further appears from the records of the University that beginning with the scholastic year 1891-92 twenty-four young men actually took a course of study under the Powell Scholarships, in some cases the same man being permitted to pursue the course for more than one year. Of this number at least two entered the Naval Academy. I find nothing in the evidence showing the net income derived by the University from the trust property, but there is nothing to show that the full net income thereof was not applied to the administration of the trust. I am of the opinion that the evidence adduced is not sufficient to demonstrate the 'incapacity' of the execution of the trust."

Second. Granting that the testimony was sufficient to demonstrate the inability of the Columbian University to execute the trust, it did not appear that the Johns Hopkins University might not be able to do so, and that until it "has tried and failed, the court would certainly not be justified in frustrating the intention of the testator by bestowing the property upon" the plaintiffs, "related so remotely to him."

The court of appeals practically affirmed these conclusions. The court said that while the testimony did not show that the expectations of the testator have been fully answered, and that it had failed "to show that the entire net proceeds of the trust property have been devoted exclusively to the purposes of the trust, and none other, it was sufficient to show that the trust can be executed, as well as that, in some measure, it is being executed." The court said further that it was unimportant to consider *defects of execution of the trust by [135 the Columbian University, as that possibility was contemplated by the testator, and the Johns Hopkins University appointed as an alternate trustee, and as its ability to execute the trust was asserted and not denied, "it must be taken as true." These conclusions, so far as they depend upon the testimony, not being manifestly erroneous, we must accept, being the decisions of two courts.

The legal proposition, however, which determined the ruling upon the demurrer and the first decision of the court of appeals, is open for consideration. That court, as we have seen, decided that the will created a special charitable trust, and that the trust was not void for uncertainty or incapacity of execution apparent upon its facts. These propositions are contested. It is contended, first, that the "object of the testator must be clearly charitable; and, second, the thing he directs to be done must, in its execution, accomplish the charitable object, in some degree, at least." It is argued that these conditions are not fulfilled by the devise because, it is said, "the testator had no idea of assisting either of the universities named, or of assisting anyone merely to get an education," and, further, that "his sole purpose, as he himself stated, was 'to make some contribution to the Navy of the United States.'"

The devise, we think, satisfies the testa-

The object of the testator was not "to make some contribution to the Navy of the United States." Such contribution was but an incidental effect, or rather, the mere inducement to the testator's benefaction. The testator's special object was, so far as his property would accomplish it, to give to young men not having the pecuniary ability to prepare themselves, the opportunity to do so. Preparatory training was necessary; he made it available, to the extent of his means, to young men who otherwise could not bear the expense. And he 136]knew the conditions of appointment, *in whom it rested, and the contingencies upon which it depended. If the field of candidacy was limited, he knew that he was helping some to aspire and qualify to succeed. The knowledge and help were definite. He certainly could not designate the individuals. That could be done, and necessarily was left to be done, by his trustees, one or the other of them. The purpose of the testator has not been disappointed. In other words, the charitable object has been accomplished, "in some degree, at least,"—the test which appellants apply. The finding is that at least two out of twenty-four of those who availed themselves of the scholarships instituted by the Columbian University entered the Naval Academy. We can suppose a better result from a better administration of the trust.

The testator had in view another career for young men besides the Navy, which could be attained by the same means; that is, "the places of mates or captains in the merchant marine service of the United States." But it is said that "there is no such thing" as the merchant marine service "known to the law," and that "wherefore the meaning of the testator in this behalf is left open to ascertainment outside of the testator's language and the provision of the will." The criticism is too exact. The merchant marine was and is a very definite and substantial thing, and had unmistakable definition in general, if not in legal, nomenclature. The meaning of a testator is not required to be found in law lexicons; the usages of popular speech may furnish a guide to it. Besides, the words "merchant marine" receive certain meaning from their context, and it is easy to put one's self in the place of the sailor testator and appreciate his impulse and purpose. His relatives were remote, his property not large, and he had been an officer in the United States Navy. He desired to assist others to become also officers in that service or in a cognate service. He knew the equipment necessary and he prescribed it. 137]He chose proper educational *instruments to confer the equipment and to select and qualify the candidates for the designated services. The purpose of the testator was worthy, and there is nothing in reason or authority which requires us to pronounce it legally insufficient.

Decree affirmed.

---

J. E. EUBANK, Plff. in Err.,
v.
CITY OF RICHMOND.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 137-145.)

Constitutional law — police power — establishing building line.

An unconstitutional infringement of the guaranties of U. S. Const., 14th Amend., which cannot be upheld as an exercise of the police power, results from a municipal ordinance passed under the authority of Va. Laws 1908, p. 623, which requires the committee on streets, upon request of the owners of two thirds of the abutting property, to establish a building line on the side of the square on which such property abuts, not less than 5 nor more than 30 feet from the street line.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 500-522, 861-869, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 48.]

Argued November 12 and 13, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of Appeals of the State of Virginia to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Hustings Court of the City of Richmond, affirming a judgment of the police justice of that city, imposing a fine for an alleged violation of a municipal ordinance establishing a building line. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 110 Va. 749, 67 S. E. 376, 19 Ann. Cas. 186.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. S. S. P. Patteson argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The establishment of a building line on residential private property, without compensation to the owner, is unlawful.

Lewis, Em. Dom. 2d ed. p. 433, § 227; Chicago v. Pittsburg, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 244 Ill. 220, 135 Am. St. Rep. 316, 91 N. E. 422; State ex rel. Davis-Smith Co. v. Clausen, 65 Wash. 156, 37 L.R.A.(N.S.)

---

NOTE.—As to power to establish building line—see note to report of this case in 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1123.

Exercise of police power for esthetic purposes—see note to Haller Sign Works v. Physical Culture Training School, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 99?

466, 117 Pac. 1101; May v. Craig, 13 Cal. App. 368, 109 Pac. 842; St. Louis v. Hill, 116 Mo. 527, 21 L.R.A. 226, 22 S. W. 861; People ex rel. Dilzer v. Calder, 89 App. Div. 503, 85 N. Y. Supp. 1017; Byrnes v. Riverton, 64 N. J. L. 210, 44 Atl. 857; Haller Sign Works v. Physical Culture Training School, 249 Ill. 436, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1004, 94 N. E. 920.

Mr. H. R. Pollard argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The police power resident in every state embraces regulations designed to promote the public convenience or general prosperity, as well as regulations designed to promote the public health, the public morals, or the public safety.

Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 311, 51 L. ed. 499, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 592, 50 L. ed. 596, 609, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 Ann. Cas. 1175.

Statutory restrictions upon the height of buildings are a proper and valid exercise of the police power.

People ex rel Kemp v. D'Oench, 111 N. Y. 359, 18 N. E. 862; Welch v. Swasey, 193 Mass. 364, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1160, 118 Am. St. Rep. 523, 79 N. E. 745, 214 U. S. 91, 53 L. ed. 923, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567. See also Rochester v. West, 164 N. Y. 510, 53 L.R.A. 548, 79 Am. St. Rep. 659, 58 N. E. 673.

Under proper grant of power, ordinances may establish, on certain streets, building lines, and provide that a certain class or character of buildings shall be erected in such district.

McQuillin, Mun. Ord. § 32.

Building lines fixed by lawful authority must be observed by an abutting owner. The right to build up to the (street) line is subject to the police power of the municipality, under which a building line back from the street may, for sufficient cause, be established by reasonable ordinance, on due notice.

29 Cyc. 859.

Probably the most pronounced declaration of this court of its reluctance to reverse the finding of state courts in the matter of police regulation, or considered by the state authorities, legislative and judicial, as a matter of police regulation, was made in case of Laurel Hill Cemetery v. San Francisco, 216 U. S. 358, 54 L. ed. 515, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301. See also Hudson County Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 349, 355, 52 L. ed. 828, 831, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 529, 14 Ann. Cas. 560.

Prima facie, every act of a legally constituted legislative body is constitutional, and the person who assails an act on that account must clearly establish his contention.

Sinking Fund Cases, 99 U. S. 700, 718, 25 L. ed. 496, 501; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 684, 32 L. ed. 253, 256, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257.

What the legislature distinctly says may be done cannot be set aside by the courts because they may deem it to be unreasonable or against sound policy.

Dill. Mun. Corp. 5th ed. § 600; State v. Clarke, 54 Mo. 36, 14 Am. Rep. 471; District of Columbia v. Waggaman, 4 Mackey, 328; Danville v. Hatcher, 101 Va. 532, 44 S. E. 723; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 710, 28 L. ed. 1147, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Wabash R. Co. v. Defiance, 167 U. S. 102, 42 L. ed. 93, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 748; United States ex rel. Strasburger v. District of Columbia, 5 Mackey, 389.

There is nothing in the record as hereinbefore set out to sustain the contention that the general assembly of Virginia enacted the statute for esthetic considerations only.

Quong Wing v. Kirkendall, 223 U. S. 59, 56 L. ed. 350, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192.

The failure of the statute to make provision for compensation to the lot owner on account of depriving him of the right to occupy his entire lot with buildings does not invalidate the act.

Watertown v. Mayo, 109 Mass. 318, 12 Am. Rep. 694.

In order to justify the rejection of the statute as unconstitutional, it must be wholly, not partially, for esthetic purposes.

Varney & Green v. Williams, 155 Cal. 318, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 743, 132 Am. St. Rep. 88, 100 Pac. 867; Cockran v. Preston, 108 Md. 220, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1163, 129 Am. St. Rep. 432, 70 Atl. 113, 15 Ann. Cas. 1048; Haller Sign Works v. Physical Culture Training School, 249 Ill. 436, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1003, 94 N. E. 920.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

In error to review a judgment of the hustings court of the city of Richmond, affirming a judgment of the police court of the city, imposing a fine of $25 on plaintiff in error for alleged violation of an ordinance of the city fixing a building line. The judgment was affirmed by the supreme court of the state. 110 Va. 749, 67 S. E. 376, 19 Ann. Cas. 186.

Plaintiff in error attacks the validity of the ordinance and the statute under which it was enacted on the ground that they infringe the Constitution of the United States, in that they deprive plaintiff in error of his property without due process of law, and deny him the equal protection of the laws.

The statute authorized the councils of cities and towns, among other things, "to 141]make regulations concerning the *building of houses in the city or town, and in their discretion, . . . in particular districts or along particular streets, to prescribe and establish building lines, or to require property owners in certain localities or districts to leave a certain percentage of lots free from buildings and to regulate the height of buildings." Acts of 1908, p. 623, 4.

By virtue of this act the city council passed the following ordinance: "That whenever the owners of two thirds of property abutting on any street shall, in writing, request the committee on streets to establish a building line on the side of the square on which their property fronts, the said committee shall establish such line so that the same shall not be less than 5 feet nor more than 30 feet from the street line. . . . And no permit for the erection of any building upon such front of the square upon which such building line is so established shall be issued except for the construction of houses within the limits of such line." A fine of not less than $25 nor more than $500 is prescribed for a violation of the ordinance.

The facts are as follows: Plaintiff in error is the owner of a lot 33 feet wide on the south side of Grace street, between Twenty-eight and Twenty-ninth streets. He applied for and received a permit on the 19th of December, 1908, to build a detached brick building to be used for a dwelling, according to certain plans and specifications which had been approved by the building inspector, dimensions of the building to be 26x59x28 feet high.

On the 9th of January, 1909, the street committee being in session, two thirds of the property owners on the side of the square where plaintiff in error's lot is situated, petitioned for the establishment of a building line, and in accordance with the petition a resolution was passed establishing a building line on the line of a majority 142] *of the houses then erected, and the building inspector ordered to be notified. This was done, and plaintiff in error given notice that the line established was "about fourteen (14) feet from the true line of the street, and on a line with the majority of the houses." He was notified further that all portions of his house, "including Octagon bay, must be set back to conform to" that line. Plaintiff in error appealed to the board of public safety, which sustained the building inspector.

At the time the ordinance was passed, the material for the construction of the house had been assembled, but no actual construction work had been done. The building conformed to the line, with the exception of the octagon bay window referred to above, which projected about 3 feet over the line.

The supreme court of the state sustained the statute, saying that it was neither "unreasonable nor unusual," and that the court was "justified in concluding that it was passed by the legislature in good faith and in the interest of the health, safety, comfort, or convenience of the public, and for the benefit of the property owners generally who are affected by its provisions; and that the enactment tends to accomplish all, or, at least, some, of these objects." The court further said that the validity of such legislation is generally recognized and upheld as an exercise of the police power.

Whether it is a valid exercise of the police power is a question in the case, and that power we have defined, as far as it is capable of being defined by general words, a number of times. It is not susceptible of circumstantial precision. It extends, we have said, not only to regulations which promote the public health, morals, and safety, but to those which promote the public convenience or the general prosperity. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Illinois, 200 U. S. 561, 50 L. ed. 596, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341, 4 Ann. Cas. 1175. And further, "It is the most essential of powers, at times the most insistent, and *always one of the least[143 limitable of the powers of government." District of Columbia v. Brooke, 214 U. S. 138, 149, 53 L. ed. 941, 945, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 560. But necessarily it has its limits and must stop when it encounters the prohibitions of the Constitution. A clash will not, however, be lightly inferred. Governmental power must be flexible and adaptive. Exigencies arise, or even conditions less peremptory, which may call for or suggest legislation, and it may be a struggle in judgment to decide whether it must yield to the higher considerations expressed and determined by the provisions of the Constitution. Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S. 104, 55 L. ed. 112, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1062, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186, Ann. Cas. 1912A, 487. The point where particular interests or principles balance "cannot be determined by any general formula in advance." Hudson County Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 349, 355, 52 L. ed. 828, 831, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 529, 14 Ann. Cas. 560.

But in all the cases there is the constant admonition, both in their rule and examples, that when a statute is assailed as offending against the higher guaranties of the Constitution, it must clearly do so to justify the courts in declaring it invalid. This condition is urged by defendant in error, and attentive to it we approach the consideration of the ordinance.

It leaves no discretion in the committee on streets as to whether the street line shall or shall not be established in a given case. The action of the committee is determined by two thirds of the property owners. In other words, part of the property owners fronting on the block determine the extent of use that other owners shall make of their lots, and against the restriction they are impotent. This we emphasize. One set of owners determines not only the extent of use, but the kind of use which another set of owners may make of their property. In what way is the public safety, convenience, or welfare served by conferring such power? The statute and ordinance, while conferring the power on some property holders to virtually control and dispose of the 144]property rights of others, creates *no standard by which the power thus given is to be exercised; in other words, the property holders who desire and have the authority to establish the line may do so solely for their own interest, or even capriciously. Taste (for even so arbitrary a thing as taste may control) or judgment may vary in localities, indeed, in the same locality. There may be one taste or judgment of comfort or convenience on one side of a street and a different one on the other. There may be diversity in other blocks; and, viewing them in succession, their building lines may be continuous or staggering (to adopt a word of the mechanical arts) as the interests of certain of the property owners may prompt against the interests of others. The only discretion, we have seen, which exists in the street committee or in the committee of public safety, is in the location of the line, between 5 and 30 feet. It is hard to understand how public comfort or convenience, much less public health, can be promoted by a line which may be so variously disposed.

We are testing the ordinance by its extreme possibilities to show how in its tendency and instances it enables the convenience or purpose of one set of property owners to control the property right of others, and property determined, as the case may be, for business or residence,—even, it may be, the kind of business or character of residence. One person having a two-thirds ownership of a block may have that power against a number having a less collective ownership. If it be said that in the instant case there is no such condition presented, we answer that there is control of the property of plaintiff in error by other owners of property, exercised under the ordinance. This, as we have said, is the vice of the ordinance, and makes it, we think, an unreasonable exercise of the police power.

The case requires no further comment We need not consider the power of a city to establish a building line or regulate the structure or height of buildings. The cases *which are cited are not apposite to[145 the present case. The ordinances or statutes which were passed on had more general foundation and a more general purpose, whether exercises of the police power or that of eminent domain. Nor need we consider the cases which distinguish between the esthetic and the material effect of regulations the consideration of which occupies some space in the argument and in the reasoning of the cases.

Judgment reversed and case remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

---

AUGUSTO BURNET, Appt.,
v.
JOSEFA AND ISABEL DESMORNES Y ALVAREZ.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 145-148.)

Pleading — statutes of limitation.

1. Prescription of an action to claim filiation under the limitations imposed by Porto Rico Civ. Code 1889, art. 137, and Porto Rico act of March 1, 1902, § 199, must be pleaded to be available as a defense, even though the statutes extinguish the right if suit be not brought in time, and therefore establish a condition precedent.

[For other cases, see Pleading, III. g, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — discretion below.

2. The failure of the Porto Rican Supreme Court, when reversing a decree in favor of defendant in an action to claim filiation, because the bar of prescription had not been pleaded, to send the case back to the lower court to permit the defendant to cross-examine the claimants, should not be revised by the Federal Supreme Court, the question being only one of discretion, and not of power.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. i, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 11.]

Submitted October 30, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from the Supreme Court of Porto Rico to review a decree which reversed a decree of the District Court for the Judicial District of Humacao in favor of defendant in an action to claim filiation, because the bar of prescription had not been pleaded. Affirmed.

See same case below, 13 P. R. R. 18.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

---

NOTE.—Review by Federal Supreme Court of discretionary action of court below—see note to Barrow v. Hill, 14 L. ed. U. S. 48.

Mr. Willis Sweet submitted the cause for appellant:

The decision in the case at bar has, in principle, been several times reversed by the supreme court of Porto Rico, and the contention of the appellant sustained.

Gual v. Bonafoux, 15 P. R. R. 545; Puente v. Puente, 16 P. R. R. 556; Calaf v. Calaf, 17 P. R. R.; Armsterdam v. Puente, 16 P. R. R. 527.

A remedial statute controls and directs the manner and method of the remedy, but does not affect the right. But a remedial statute may be changed or modified at any time, and the procedure goes with it.

Pritchard v. Norton, 106 U. S. 124-130, 27 L. ed. 104-106, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 102; Bank of United States v. Donnally, 8 Pet. 361, 8 L. ed. 974.

The witnesses should have been subjected to cross-examination, or at least the privilege should have been extended. This is especially true under the extraordinary statements contained in the testimony of witness Isabel Desmornes.

Mollan v. Torrance, 9 Wheat. 538, 6 L. ed. 154; Garland v. Davis, 4 How. 132, 11 L. ed. 907.

No appearance for appellees.

146] *Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This was a proceeding by the appellees, as illegitimate children of Adolfo Desmornes, deceased, to be adjudged his recognized children. The appellant answered that he was the nephew and heir of Desmornes, and denied that the appellees were his children or ever were recognized as such. The district court held that the action had prescribed under the limitations imposed upon actions of this class by the Civil Codes of 1889 and 1902. This decision was reversed by the supreme court on the ground that the bar to the action had not been pleaded, and a decree was entered for the appellees upon a consideration of the evidence taken below.

The case was argued in this court on behalf of the appellant only, and we shall content ourselves with discussing the argument made by him. By the Civil Code of 1889, art. 137, actions of this kind "can be instituted only during the life of the presumed parents," with certain exceptions. It appears by the complaint that Desmornes died on November 2, 1905, before this suit was brought. By the statute of Porto Rico approved March 1, 1902, § 199, under which the appellant says that the appellees proceed, "An action to claim filiation may be filed at any time within two years after the child shall become of age," etc. It appeared in evidence that the appellees became of age more than two years before this action was filed. It is urged that the words of both statutes are jurisdictional and constitute a condition precedent. It is said further that the supreme court of Porto Rico in later decisions has shown an inclination to recede from the doctrine of the present one; but as this case has not been overruled in terms, we shall do no more than indicate why we think the decision right.

*Whether prescription goes only to[147 the remedy or extinguishes the right, it affects the jurisdiction no more than any other defense. When a court has general jurisdiction to try the question whether an alleged right exists, the rules that determine the existence of the right ordinarily govern the duty only of the court, not its power. Its judgment that the right is established cannot be impeached collaterally by proof that the judgment was wrong. For instance, a common-law court ought not to give judgment for the plaintiff upon a parol promise without consideration, but if it does so the judgment is not open to collateral attack. Even words in a statute that might seem to affect the power of the court, such as "no action shall be brought," in the statute of frauds, are assumed without question merely to fix the law by which the court should decide, as is explained in Fauntleroy v. Lum, 210 U. S. 230, 235, 52 L. ed. 1039, 1041, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641. We see no reason why the ordinary rule should not apply to this case.

But it is said that, whether the statutes go to the jurisdiction or not, they establish a condition precedent. Of course, all defenses disclose conditions precedent to the successful maintaining of the action; but more than that must be meant, and we take the argument to be that the statute extinguishes the right if the suit is not brought in time, and therefore creates a condition precedent to the right of the appellees. But that abstract proposition does not decide the case. The question before us is a question of pleading, and not every matter that may affect the existence of the right at the time of bringing suit must be dealt with by the plaintiff in stating his cause of action. A release under seal destroys a right as fully as prescription could, yet a plaintiff does not have to deny a release in his declaration. Usually, if facts have arisen since the cause of action accrued, that take it away, it is more convenient and it is required that the defendant should allege them, rather than that the plaintiff should be called *on to[148 deny in the first place all possible matters of that sort. Sawyer v. Boston, 144 Mass.

470, 472, 11 N. E. 711. "For if he should do so, the declaration would be more prolix than was convenient." Hawkings v. Billhead, Cro. Car. 404. "The mere fact that the time of bringing suit goes in some sense to the jurisdiction of the court does not necessarily take the case out of the general rules of pleading." Sawyer v. Boston, supra. It would seem, as observed by the court below, that the defendant was free to renounce the objection if he saw fit. We know of no public policy that would prevent his permitting the appellees to acquire rights that earlier they were entitled to. So that on this ground as well as on that of convenience, we are of opinion that the general rule of pleading applies.

The only matter remaining to be mentioned is a suggestion that the supreme court should have sent the case back to the lower court to give the appellant an opportunity to cross-examine the appellees; but there being no question of the power of the supreme court, we should be slow to control its discretion on this point.

Judgment affirmed.

---

FRANK H. JONES, Trustee in Bankruptcy of the Oro Dredging Company, Appt.,
v.
CHARLES SPRINGER.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 148–157.)

Bankruptcy — ouster of state jurisdiction — sale under attachment.

1. The pendency of proceedings in bankruptcy, unknown to any of the parties concerned, or to the court, does not prevent a territorial court having custody of perishable property through its receiver appointed under an attachment levied before the petition in bankruptcy was filed, from ordering a sale on a finding that, in the words of N. M. Comp. Laws 1897, § 2716, "the interests of both plaintiff and defendant will be promoted by the sale," but such sale is valid, and the claim of the trustee in bankruptcy is transferred to the proceeds.

[For other cases, see Bankruptcy, 53–59, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — from territorial court — construction of local statute.

2. The ruling of the territorial supreme court that a judicial sale was within the terms of N. M. Comp. Laws 1897, § 2716, governing the sale of attached property of a perishable nature when the interests of the parties will be promoted by the sale, will ordinarily be followed by the Federal Supreme Court on appeal.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. m, 1; Courts, VII. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 23.]

Argued October 30 and November 4, 1912.
Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from the Supreme Court of the Territory of New Mexico to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the District Court for the County of Colfax, in that territory, denying the title of the trustee in bankruptcy to a mining dredge formerly the property of the bankrupt, but sold under an attachment levied before the petition in bankruptcy was filed. Affirmed.

See same case below, 15 N. M. 98, 103 Pac. 265.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Elmer E. Studley and J. E. MacLeish argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Frank H. Scott and Edgar A. Bancroft, filed a brief for appellant:

After the petition in bankruptcy was filed, the assets of the bankrupt were in custodia legis, and the jurisdiction of the bankruptcy court to sell the same was exclusive. The sale to Charles Springer was had subsequent to the order of adjudication in bankruptcy, and he was charged with notice of the pendency of the bankruptcy proceedings, and could obtain no title superior to that of the trustee.

(a) No title passed to the purchaser of the dredge because the proceedings to sell and the sale were had subsequent to the entry of the order of adjudication in the bankruptcy proceedings.

Conner v. Long, 104 U. S. 228, 231, 232, 26 L. ed. 723, 724, 725; Acme Harvester Co. v. Beekman Lumber Co. 222 U. S. 300, 307, 56 L. ed. 208, 213, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; International Bank v. Sherman, 101 U. S. 403, 406, 25 L. ed. 866, 867; Mueller v. Nugent, 184 U. S. 1, 14, 46 L. ed. 405, 411, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 269; New Lamp Chimney Co. v. Ansonia Brass & Copper Co. 91 U. S. 656, 661, 23 L. ed. 336, 338; Re Granite City Bank, 70 C. C. A. 316, 137 Fed. 818; State Bank v. Cox, 74 C. C. A. 285, 143 Fed. 91.

(b) The proviso to § 67f of the bankruptcy act of 1898, protecting the title of an innocent purchaser for value, is no protection to appellee, as the same does not apply to the sale made in this case, nor does it, under any circumstances, contemplate a purchase subsequent to an adjudication in bankruptcy.

International Bank v. Sherman, 101 U. S. 403, 406, 25 L. ed. 866, 867; Mueller v. Nugent, 184 U. S. 1, 14, 46 L. ed. 405, 411, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 269; Acme Harvester Co. v. Beekman Lumber Co. 222 U. S. 300, 306, 307, 56 L. ed. 208, 213, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Clarke v. Larremore, 188 U. S. 486, 47 L. ed. 555, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 363.

(c) The sale in this case was not had in a proceeding to enforce a pre-existing lien, and the jurisdiction of the territorial court ended, although not appearing upon its own record, when the adjudication was entered in the bankruptcy proceedings.

Conner v. Long, 104 U. S. 228, 239, 240, 26 L. ed. 723, 727, 728; Re Watts, 190 U. S. 1, 27, 30, 47 L. ed. 933, 941, 942, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 718, 14 Am. Crim. Rep. 48; Eyster v. Gaff, 91 U. S. 521, 23 L. ed. 403; Doe v. Childress, 21 Wall. 642, 22 L. ed. 549.

(d) Subsequent to adjudication, perishable property, like all other property of the bankrupt, must be sold in the bankruptcy court.

Conner v. Long, 104 U. S. 228, 26 L. ed. 723; Acme Harvester Co. v. Beekman Lumber Co. 222 U. S. 300, 306, 56 L. ed. 208, 213, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Re Watts, 190 U. S. 1, 27, 30, 47 L. ed. 933, 941, 942, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 718, 14 Am. Crim. Rep. 48.

Assuming that the jurisdiction of the territorial court to sell perishable property was concurrent with that of the bankruptcy court,

(a) The dredge was not perishable property within the meaning of those words as contemplated by the sale of perishable property in bankruptcy proceedings, in that the dredge was in the custody of the bankruptcy court and could have been conserved, and the same was not destroyed, or expensive to keep, in the sense that it ought to have been sold.

Bryan v. Bernheimer, 181 U. S. 188, 45 L. ed. 814, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557.

(b) The dredge was not perishable property within the meaning of the statute of the territory of New Mexico relating to sales of property of a perishable nature, and liable to be lost before final adjudication.

Mosher v. Bay Circuit Judge, 108 Mich. 579, 66 N. W. 478; Oneida Nat. Bank v. Paldi, 2 Mich. N. P. 221; Newman v. Kane, 9 Nev. 234; Goodman v. Moss, 64 Miss. 303, 1 So. 241; Weis v. Basket, 71 Miss. 771, 15 So. 659.

Mr. Ernest Knaebel argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Charles A. Spiess, Aldis B. Browne, Alexander Britton, and Evans Browne, filed a brief for appellee:

Appellee, Charles Springer, purchased the dredge at a sale ordered by the judge of the district court of Colfax county, the district court of Colfax county directing the sale thereof in the rightful exercise of conceded jurisdiction, without knowledge on the part of the court or on the part of Springer of the pendency of the bankruptcy proceedings in Illinois, and he therefore obtained a perfect title to the dredge.

Eyster v. Gaff, 91 U. S. 521, 23 L. ed. 403; Doe v. Childress, 21 Wall. 642, 22 L. ed. 549; Kent v. Downing, 44 Ga. 116; Re Davis, 1 Sawy. 260, Fed. Cas. No. 3,620; Re Fuller, 1 Sawy. 243, Fed. Cas. No. 5,148; Brackett v. Dayton, 34 Minn. 219, 25 N. W. 348; Revere Copper Co. v. Dimmock, 90 N. Y. 33; Muser v. Kern, 55 Fed. 916; Morning Teleg. Pub. Co. v. S. B. Hutchinson Co. 146 Mich. 38, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1232, 109 N. W. 42; York Mfg. Co. v. Cassell, 201 U. S. 344, 352, 50 L. ed. 782, 785, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481; Re Rathman, 106 C. C. A. 253, 183 Fed. 913; Jaquith v. Rowley, 188 U. S. 620–625, 47 L. ed. 620–623, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 369; Hiscock v. Varick Bank, 206 U. S. 28, 51 L. ed. 945, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Conner v. Long, 104 U. S. 228, 26 L. ed. 723.

Springer's title to the dredge is in nowise dependent upon the validity of the attachment proceedings, nor does it in anywise depend upon the question of whether or not the title became vested in the trustee in bankruptcy as of the date of the filing of the petition. He purchased the dredge at a sale ordered by the New Mexico court in a proceeding in rem, having for its purpose the transmutation of perishable property, or property liable to be lost or diminished in value, into imperishable money.

Young v. Kellar, 94 Mo. 581, 4 Am. St. Rep. 406, 7 S. W. 293; Betterton v. Eppstein, 78 Tex. 443, 14 S. W. 861.

The proceeds of the sale simply take the place of the attached property, and do not interfere with prior liens.

State ex rel. Block v. Civil Dist. Judge, 44 La. Ann. 87, 10 So. 405; Pollard v. Baker, 101 Mass. 259; Taylor v. Thurman, — Tex. —, 12 S. W. 614; Welsh v. Lewis, 71 Ga. 387.

The object of the statute permitting sale of property expensive to keep or perishable, before judgment, is for the benefit of both parties or any third party who claims it.

Pollard v. Baker, 101 Mass. 259; Oeters v. Aehle, 31 Mo. 380; York v. Sanborn, 47 N. H. 403.

The correctness of an order for the sale of the attached property before judgment, or the determining the propriety of such sale, will not be reviewed, nothing appearing affirmatively impeaching it, but the propriety thereof will be presumed.

McCreery v. Berney Nat. Bank, 116 Ala. 224, 67 Am. St. Rep. 105, 22 So. 577; Runner v. Scott, 150 Ind. 441, 50 N. E. 479; Dunn v. Salter, 1 Duv. 342; Re Le Vay, 125 Fed. 990.

The term "perishable" should receive a liberal rather than a narrow construction, and will embrace property the keeping of which may render it of no value in the end to satisfy the claims, and in this sense almost any property subject to attachment may be sold as perishable.

McCreery v. Berney Nat. Bank, 116 Ala. 224, 67 Am. St. Rep. 105, 22 So. 577; Young v. Davis, 30 Ala. 213; Schumann v. Davis, 26 Abb. N. C. 125, 13 N. Y. Supp. 575; Southern R. Co. v. Sheppard, 42 S. C. 543, 20 S. E. 481; Anonymous, 18 N. J. L. 26; Mosher v. Bay Circuit Judge, 108 Mich. 579, 66 N. W. 478.

Springer is a bona fide purchaser for value of the dredge, and his title is recognized and protected by the very provisions of the bankruptcy act which opposing counsel contend have destroyed or prevented the acquisition by him of his title.

Clark v. Larremore, 188 U. S. 486, 47 L. ed. 555, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 363; Re Franks, 95 Fed. 635.

A bona fide purchaser is one who buys property without notice that some third party has a right to, or interest in, such property, and pays a full and fair price for the same at the time of such purchase, or before he has notice of the claim or interest of such other in the property.

Spicer v. Waters, 65 Barb. 227; Perry, Trusts, p. 218; Alden v. Trubee, 44 Conn. 455.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This case comes here upon appeal from a judgment denying the title of the appellant, as trustee in bankruptcy, to property formerly belonging to the bankrupt and sold in this suit by order of the local court. The facts are these. The property in question is a mining dredge. It was attached on February 27, 1906, and a receiver was appointed on March 19. On May 1, a petition was filed for an order directing the dredge to be sold on the ground that it was "of a perishable nature, and liable to be lost or diminished in value before [154] the final adjudication of the "case" within the Compiled Laws of New Mexico, 1897, § 2716, and an order to that effect was made on the same day. The ground of the finding on which the sale was ordered was that the dredge was anchored in an embanked pond fed by a mountain stream subject to heavy floods, and was liable to damage from that source. The sale took place on June 26, and the dredge was bought in good faith and without notice of the defendant's insolvency, at a price of $5,000, paid into court by the appellee, Springer. The sale was confirmed on July 17. But on March 12, 1906, a petition in bankruptcy had been filed in the northern district of Illinois against the Oro Dredging Company, the defendant in this suit. On April 23, the company was adjudged a bankrupt. On July 9, the appellant was appointed trustee, and on July 19 qualified. On August 2, he first appeared in this cause, that being the first notice of the adjudication received by the parties concerned or the court. He filed an intervening petition praying that the order of sale be set aside, the attachment dissolved, and the property turned over to him. The petition, so far as it affects the dredge, was denied, the judgment was affirmed by the supreme court of the territory, and the trustee appealed.

The main ground of the appeal is that by § 70 of the bankruptcy act the title of the trustee related back to the date of the adjudication of bankruptcy, and that, as matter of law, Springer could not be a bona fide purchaser within the proviso of § 67f, saving the title of a bona fide purchaser for value who shall have acquired the property by the attachment without notice or reasonable cause for inquiry. It is argued that filing the petition in bankruptcy was a caveat to all the world (Mueller v. Nugent, 184 U. S. 1, 14, 46 L. ed. 405, 411, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 269, and that the above proviso can have effect only when the judgment and sale took place before the petition was filed.

We have no occasion to consider the last proposition in order to decide this case, or what effect, if any, the proviso "has [155] upon some language in Conner v. Long, 104 U. S. 228, 26 L. ed. 723, relied upon by the appellant (see Clarke v. Larremore, 188 U. S. 486, 488, 47 L. ed. 555, 557, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 363), the proceeding not having been one to enforce the lien of the attachment, but simply an order made on a finding that, in the language of the New Mexico statute, "the interests of both plaintiff and defendant will be promoted by the sale of the property." But the proposition quoted from Mueller v. Nugent must be taken with reference to the facts then before the court, and not as applicable to all intents and purposes. York Mfg. Co. v. Cassell, 201 U. S. 344, 353, 50 L. ed. 782, 785, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481; Hiscock v. Varick Bank, 206 U. S. 28, 41, 51 L. ed. 945, 953, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Re Rathman, 106 C. C. A. 253, 183 Fed. 913, 924, 925. It is true that the estate is regarded as in custodia legis from the date of the petition, as against a subsequent attachment. Acme Harvester Co. v. Beekman Lumber Co. 222 U. S. 300, 306, 307, 56 L. ed. 208, 213, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96. But in a case like the present, where, under an attachment levied before the petition was filed, the property had been put into the hands of a receiver, without notice of the petition, it is not true that all power and jurisdiction of the local court were ended before notice of the bankruptcy proceedings. Eyster v. Gaff, 91 U. S. 521, 524, 525, 23 L. ed. 403-405; Scott v. Ellery, 142 U. S. 381, 384, 35 L. ed. 1050, 1051, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Jaquith v. Rowley, 188 U. S. 620, 626, 47 L. ed. 620, 623, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 369; Frank v. Vollkommer, 205 U. S. 521, 529, 51 L. ed. 911, 915, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 596; Revere Copper Co. v. Dimock, 90 N. Y. 33.

The jurisdiction of the territorial court not having been avoided, and that court having the actual custody of the res, it had the power to preserve the subject-matter of the controversy that necessarily is incident to such conditions. An illustration, although not a perfect analogy, is to found in United States v. Shipp, 203 U. S. 563, 573, 51 L. ed. 319, 323, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165, 8 Ann. Cas. 265. An appeal had been taken to this court on a petition for habeas corpus, where a prisoner was held under sentence of a state court, and pending the appeal this court had ordered the custody of the appellant to be retained. Shipp was charged with contempt for having 156]been party *to a conspiracy that ended in lynching the prisoner. It was strongly argued that neither the circuit court that refused the writ, nor this court, had any jurisdiction of the case, but it was held that, whether it had jurisdiction or not, until the question was decided, this court had authority from the necessity of the case to preserve the subject of the petition. A similar authority existed in the territorial court until the trustee saw fit to intervene, which, so far as would have appeared at the time of the sale, had anyone known of the bankruptcy proceedings, he might never do. According to Marshall, Ch. J., "a right to order a sale is for the benefit of all parties, not because the case is depending in that particular court, but because the thing may perish while in its custody, and while neither party can enjoy its use." Jennings v. Carson, 4 Cranch, 2, 26, 2 L. ed. 531, 539. The recognition of a power springing from necessity is of old standing in English law. Eyston v. Studd, 2 Plowd. 459, 466; 2 Co. Inst. 168; Baker v. Baker, 1 Vent. 313. See further Young v. Kellar, 94 Mo. 581, 4 Am. St. Rep. 406, 7 S. W. 293; Betterton v. Eppstein, 78 Tex. 443, 14 S. W. 861; Re Le Vay, 125 Fed. 990, 992.

It is argued that if a sale was necessary, the court of bankruptcy could have directed it under general order 18, 3, and that its power was exclusive. But such a rule would much impair the usefulness of the principle. The trustee, if appointed, may not know the condition of the property, or be prepared to decide. The court having the actual custody of the res does not know of the bankruptcy proceedings. There is a necessity for immediate action and no one is ready to act. If the local court, in its ignorance, directs a sale and the purchaser is chargeable with notice that there may be somewhere a petition filed that will destroy his title, the doubt affects the price that he will give, and if the sale turns out effective, the goods have been sacrificed. The very reason of the rule that permits a good title to be given by an authority that has *none contradicts the limitation sup-[157 posed. We are of opinion that the power of the territorial court remained. "For necessity (which is excepted out of the law) the sale in that case is good." 2 Co. Inst. 168. The proceeding is in rem, against all the world, the sale stands, and the claim of the trustee is transferred to the proceeds, which ordinarily must be presumed to represent the fair value of the goods and take their place.

Finally it is argued that the court of bankruptcy must decide whether the property is perishable or not, and that this property was not within the power conferred by the statute of New Mexico. The first proposition is little more than the one last discussed in another form. But assuming that for any reason we could go behind the findings on which the case comes here, we see no reason for doing so, if the sale was within the terms of the local act. On that question, as usual, we follow the ruling of the supreme court of the territory unless there are stronger reasons to the contrary than are shown here. Fox v. Haarstick, 156 U. S. 674, 39 L. ed. 576, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 457; Albright v. Sandoval, 216 U. S. 331, 339, 54 L. ed. 502, 508, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 318. The act as construed, though possibly broader than general order 18, 3, does not go beyond the principle of necessity, at least, as applied to this case.

Judgment affirmed.

---

CENTRAL LUMBER COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

STATE OF SOUTH DAKOTA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 157-162.)

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — prohibiting unfair competition — police power.

1. Punishing the selling of goods at a

NOTE.—As to forbidding the sale of a commodity in a particular locality at a lower rate than elsewhere, for the purpose of stifling competition—see note to State v. Central Lumber Co. 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 804.

lower rate in one place than in another, for the purpose of destroying the competition of any regular established dealer in such commodity, or to prevent the competition of any person who, in good faith, intends and attempts to become such dealer, as is done by S. D. Laws 1907, chap. 131, does not deny the equal protection of the laws because it affects only those selling goods in two or more places in the state, nor because the protection of the statute is not extended to those making only a transitory incursion into the business.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. a, 5; IV. c, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — freedom to contract — prohibiting unfair competition — police power.

2. Liberty to contract is not abridged, contrary to U. S. Const. 14th Amend., by the provision of S. D. Laws 1907, chap. 131, punishing the selling of goods at a lower rate in one place than in another, for the purpose of destroying the competition of any regular established dealer therein, or to prevent the competition of any person who, in good faith, intends and attempts to become such dealer.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 7 b; IV. c, 3 a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 51.]

Argued November 13 and 14, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of South Dakota to review a judgment which affirmed a conviction in the Circuit Court of McPherson County, in that state, of unfair competition in trade. Affirmed.

See same case below, 24 S. D. 136, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 804, 123 N. W. 504.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. David F. Simpson argued the cause, and, with Messrs. L. L. Brown, William A. Lancaster, and Milton D. Purdy, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

A law may be partial and discriminatory, in that it only operates in favor of or to protect a particular class of the public, and not other classes similarly situated.

Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Westby, — L.R.A.(N.S.)—, 102 C. C. A. 65, 178 Fed. 619.

It is just as incompetent for a state to grant or give unequal rights or privileges or exemptions to one class as it is to impose unequal burdens or liabilities upon another class.

Ibid.

The fact that the language from Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 370, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064, with reference to those absolute and inalienable rights of the individual citizen, should be quoted with approval by the supreme court of Nebraska in State v. Drayton, 82 Neb. 254, 23 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1287, 130 Am. St. Rep. 671, 117 N. W. 768, and by the supreme court of South Dakota in the present case, as supporting the power of the respective states in the particular legislation complained of, shows a startling misconception of the real issue in these two cases.

This act is partial and discriminatory legislation, and violates the equal protection clause of the 14th Amendment, for two reasons:

(1) Because it attempts to make certain acts an offense when committed by one class of persons, and no offense when committed by other classes.

(2) Because it is not the exercise of the so-called police power for the benefit of the public generally, but only for the benefit of a particular and limited class; to wit, the "regular established dealer."

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 370, 30 L. ed. 226, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 314, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; VanZant v. Waddel, 2 Yerg. 260; State v. Fire Creek Coal & Coke Co. 33 W. Va. 188, 6 L.R.A. 359, 25 Am. St. Rep. 891, 10 S. E. 288; State v. Goodwill, 33 W. Va. 179, 6 L.R.A. 621, 25 Am. St. Rep. 863, 10 S. E. 285; Re Jacobs, 98 N. Y. 114, 50 Am. Rep. 636; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Lavallee v. St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co. 40 Minn. 249, 41 N. W. 974; State ex rel. Wyatt v. Ashbrook, 154 Mo. 375, 48 L.R.A. 265, 77 Am. St. Rep. 765, 55 S. W. 627; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 137, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 195 U. S. 223, 49 L. ed. 169, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18; People ex rel. Phillips v. Raynes, 136 App. Div. 417, 120 N. Y. Supp. 1053; Webb v. Downes, 93 Minn. 457, 101 N. W. 966; Ballard v. Mississippi Cotton Oil Co. 81 Miss. 507, 62 L.R.A. 407, 95 Am. St. Rep. 476, 34 So. 533; Frorer v. People, 141 Ill. 177, 16 L.R.A. 492, 31 N. E. 395; Imboden v. People, 40 Colo. 142, 90 Pac. 623; Atchison & N. R. Co. v. Baty, 6 Neb. 37, 29 Am. Rep. 356; Low v. Rees Printing Co. 41 Neb. 127, 24 L.R.A. 702, 43 Am. St. Rep. 670, 59 N. W. 362; Lancashire Ins. Co. v. Bush, 60 Neb. 116, 82 N. W. 313; Ozan Lumber Co. v. Union County Nat. Bank, 76 C. C. A. 218, 145 Fed. 344, 7 Ann. Cas. 390; Peonage Cases, 123 Fed. 671; Sellers v. Hayes, 163 Ind. 422, 72 N. E. 119; McKinster v. Sager, 163 Ind. 671, 68 L.R.A. 273, 106 Am. St. Rep. 268, 72 N. E. 854; State ex rel. Star

Pub. Co. v. Associated Press, 159 Mo. 410, 51 L.R.A. 151, 81 Am. St. Rep. 368, 60 S. W. 91; Miller v. Crawford, 70 Ohio St. 207, 71 N. E. 631, 1 Ann. Cas. 558; Lappin v. District of Columbia, 22 App. D. C. 68; State v. Whitcom, 122 Wis. 110, 99 N. W. 468; Ex parte Jentzsch, 112 Cal. 468, 32 L.R.A. 664, 44 Pac. 803; Bessette v. People, 193 Ill. 334, 56 L.R.A. 558, 62 N. E. 215; Re Aubrey, 36 Wash. 308, 104 Am. St. Rep. 952, 78 Pac. 900, 1 Ann. Cas. 927; Montgomery v. Kelly, 142 Ala. 552, 70 L.R.A. 209, 110 Am. St. Rep. 43, 38 So. 67; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; Grainger v. Douglas Park Jockey Club, 78 C. C. A. 199, 148 Fed. 513, 8 Ann. Cas. 997; Ferd Heim Brewing Co. v. Belinder, 97 Mo. App. 64, 71 S. W. 691; Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 454; Smiley v. MacDonald, 42 Neb. 5, 27 L.R.A. 540, 47 Am. St. Rep. 684, 60 N. W. 355; Luman v. Hitchens Bros. 90 Md. 14, 46 L.R.A. 393, 44 Atl. 1051; Huber v. Merkel, 117 Wis. 355, 62 L.R.A. 589, 98 Am. St. Rep. 933, 94 N. W. 354; Black v. State, 113 Wis. 205 90 Am. St. Rep. 853, 89 N. W. 522.

Where there are two dealers in a particular community, in the same kind of commodities, each may be reasonably supposed to be competing for the same trade. This is called competition, and competition necessarily implies strife for a common object. To say that one dealer is seeking to destroy the competition of his competitor is, in effect, saying no more than that he is seeking to secure the other's trade; and, as long as he seeks to secure that trade by competition, either in the quality of the goods sold, or the service furnished, or the prices named, any damage to the competitor which may result from that competition is necessarily damnum absque injuria.

Passaic Print Works v. Ely & W. Dry Goods Co. 62 L.R.A. 673, 44 C. C. A. 426, 105 Fed. 163.

Both the supreme court of Nebraska and the supreme court of South Dakota seem to treat the acts denounced by the statute as malicious injuries at common law. This, however, is clearly unsound, according to all the decisions.

Tuttle v. Buck, 107 Minn. 145, 22 L.R.A. (N.S.) 599, 131 Am. St. Rep. 446, 119 N. W. 946, 16 Ann. Cas. 807; State ex rel. Durner v. Aikens, 110 Wis. 189, 62 L.R.A. 700, 85 N. W. 1046, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 332, 195 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 154, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3.

The distinction which the supreme court of South Dakota has attempted to draw between classifications of persons committing the offense, and of the acts constituting the offense, finds no support in any of the decided cases.

Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 17 Ann. Cas. 1247; State ex rel. Mudeking v. Parr, 109 Minn. 147, 134 Am. St. Rep. 759, 123 N. W. 408; State ex rel. Greenwood v. Ramage, 109 Minn. 302, 123 N. W. 823; State ex rel. Luria v. Wagener, 69 Minn. 206, 38 L.R.A. 677, 65 Am. St. Rep. 565, 72 N. W. 67; Kellyville Coal Co. v. Harrier, 207 Ill. 624, 99 Am. St. Rep. 240, 69 N. E. 927; State v. Walsh, 136 Mo. 400, 35 L.R.A. 231, 37 S. W. 1112; State v. Miksicek, 225 Mo. 561, 135 Am. St. Rep. 597, 125 S. W. 507; Gillespie v. People, 188 Ill. 176, 52 L.R.A. 283, 80 Am. St. Rep. 176, 58 N. E. 1007; Toledo, St. L. & W. R. Co. v. Long, 169 Ind. 316, 124 Am. St. Rep. 226, 82 N. E. 757; State v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. 124 Tenn. 1, 135 S. W. 773, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 805; Re Grice, 79 Fed. 627; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 307, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; Louisville v. Weikel, 137 Ky. 784, 127 S. W. 147, 128 S. W. 587; Harding v. People, 160 Ill. 459, 32 L.R.A. 445, 52 Am. St. Rep. 344, 43 N. E. 624.

The act in question unreasonably interferes with the right to contract and to hold, use, and dispose of property, and thus deprives the plaintiff in error of its property without due process of law.

Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 74, 50 L. ed. 652, 665, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Live Stock Dealers & Butchers' Asso. v. Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. 1 Abb. (U. S.) 388, Fed. Cas. No. 8,408, 111 U. S. 746, 28 L. ed. 585, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 652; Ex parte Virginia, 100 U. S. 366, 25 L. ed. 686, 3 Am. Crim. Rep. 547; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Niagara F. Ins. Co. v. Cornell, 110 Fed. 816; Allgeyer v. Louisiana, 165 U. S. 578, 41 L. ed. 832, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 427; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133; Gibbs v. Tally, 133 Cal. 373, 60 L.R.A. 815, 65 Pac. 970; Wynehamer v. People, 13 N. Y. 378; Humes v. Little Rock, 138 Fed. 929; Thomas v. Hot Springs, 34 Ark. 558, 36 Am. Rep. 24; People v. Gillson, 109 N. Y. 389, 4 Am. St. Rep. 465, 17 N. E. 343; Long v. State, 74 Md. 565, 12 L.R.A. 425, 28 Am. St. Rep. 268, 22 Atl. 4; Ex parte Hutchinson, 137 Fed. 949; Ex parte McKenna, 126 Cal. 429, 58 Pac. 916; People ex rel. Madden v. Dycker, 72 App. Div. 308, 76 N. Y. Supp. 111; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; Young v. Com. 101 Va. 853, 45 S. E. 327; Com. v. Moorhead, 7 Pa. Co. Ct. 513; State v. Ramseyer, 73 N. H. 31, 58 Atl. 958, 6 Ann. Cas. 445; Montgomery v. Kelly, 142 Ala. 552, 70 L.R.A. 209, 110 Am. St. Rep. 43, 38 So. 67; Com. v. Emerson, 165 Mass. 146, 42 N. E. 559; Com. v. Sisson, 178 Mass. 578, 60 N. E. 385; Winston v. Beeson, 135 N. C. 271, 65 L.R.A. 167, 47 S. E. 457; Hewin v. Atlanta, 121 Ga. 723, 67 L.R.A. 795, 49 S. E. 765, 2 Ann. Cas. 296; State v. Dodge, 76 Vt. 197, 56 Atl. 983, 1 Ann. Cas. 47; Gillespie v. People, 188 Ill. 176, 52 L.R.A. 283, 80 Am. St. Rep. 176, 58 N. E. 1007; Coffeyville Vitrified Brick & Tile Co. v. Perry, 69 Kan. 297, 66 L.R.A. 185, 76 Pac. 848, 1 Ann. Cas. 936; State v. Julow, 129 Mo. 163, 29 L.R.A. 257, 50 Am. St. Rep. 443, 31 S. W. 781; State ex rel. Zillmer v. Kreutzberg, 114 Wis. 530, 58 L.R.A. 748, 91 Am. St. Rep. 934, 95 N. W. 1098; National Protective Asso. v. Cumming, 170 N. Y. 315, 58 L.R.A. 135, 88 Am. St. Rep. 648, 63 N. E. 369; Jacobs v. Cohen, 183 N. Y. 207, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 292, 111 Am. St. Rep. 730, 76 N. E. 5, 5 Ann. Cas. 280; Re Jacobs, 98 N. Y. 107, 50 Am. Rep. 636; People v. Marx, 99 N. Y. 377; 52 Am. Rep. 34, 2 N. E. 29; State v. Dalton, 22 R. I. 77, 48 L.R.A. 775, 84 Am. St. Rep. 818, 46 Atl. 234; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 136, 38 L. ed. 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; State ex rel. Wyatt v. Ashbrook, 154 Mo. 375, 48 L.R.A. 265, 77 Am. St. Rep. 765, 55 S. W. 627; Chicago v. Netcher, 183 Ill. 104, 48 L.R.A. 261, 75 Am. St. Rep. 93, 55 N. E. 707; Frorer v. People, 141 Ill. 171, 16 L.R.A. 492, 31 N. E. 395; Ramsey v. People, 142 Ill. 380, 17 L.R.A. 853, 32 N. E. 364; Braceville Coal Co. v. People, 147 Ill. 66, 22 L.R.A. 340, 37 Am. St. Rep. 206, 35 N. E. 62; People ex rel. Tyroler v. Warden, 157 N. Y. 116, 43 L.R.A. 264, 68 Am. St. Rep. 763, 51 N. E. 1006; Aikens v. Wisconsin, 195 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 154, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3; Adair v. United States, 208 U. S. 161, 52 L. ed. 436, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277, 13 Ann. Cas. 764; Cooley, Torts, p. 278; Passaic Print Works v. Ely & W. Dry Goods Co. 62 L.R.A. 673, 44 C. C. A. 426, 105 Fed. 163; Low v. Rees Printing Co. 41 Neb. 127, 24 L.R.A. 702, 43 Am. St. Rep. 670, 59 N. W. 362; Slaughter-House Cases, 16 Wall. 106, 21 L. ed. 418; San Francisco Lumber Co. v. Bibb, 139 Cal. 325, 73 Pac. 864; Snell v. Bradbury, 139 Cal. 379, 73 Pac. 150; Ex parte Quarg, 149 Cal. 79, 5 L.R.A.(N.S.) 183, 117 Am. St. Rep. 115, 84 Pac. 766, 9 Ann. Cas. 747; Cody v. Dempsey, 86 App. Div. 335, 83 N. Y. Supp. 899; State v. Goodwill, 33 W. Va. 179, 6 L.R.A. 621, 25 Am. St. Rep. 863, 10 S. E. 285; Republic Iron & Steel Co. v. State, 160 Ind. 379, 62 L.R.A. 136, 66 N. E. 1005; State v. Fire Creek Coal & Coke Co. 33 W. Va. 188, 6 L.R.A. 359, 25 Am. St. Rep. 891, 10 S. E. 288; Ex parte Dickey, 144 Cal. 234, 66 L.R.A. 928, 103 Am. St. Rep. 82, 77 Pac. 924, 1 Ann. Cas. 428; Leep v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 58 Ark. 407, 23 L.R.A. 264, 41 Am. St. Rep. 109, 25 S. W. 75; State v. Missouri Tie & Lumber Co. 181 Mo. 536, 65 L.R.A. 588, 103 Am. St. Rep. 614, 80 S. W. 933, 2 Ann. Cas. 119; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 307, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; Com. v. Perry, 155 Mass. 117, 14 L.R.A. 325, 31 Am. St. Rep. 533, 28 N. E. 1126; Godcharles v. Wigeman, 113 Pa. 431, 6 Atl. 354; Millett v. People, 117 Ill. 294, 57 Am. Rep. 869, 7 N. E. 631; Ritchie v. People, 155 Ill. 98, 29 L.R.A. 79, 46 Am. St. Rep. 315, 40 N. E. 454; Block v. Schwartz, 27 Utah, 387, 76 Pac. 22, 65 L.R.A. 308, 101 Am. St. Rep. 971, 1 Ann. Cas. 550; Shaver v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 931; Wright v. Hart, 182 N. Y. 330, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 338, 75 N. E. 404, 3 Ann. Cas. 263; People v. Williams, 189 N. Y. 131, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1130, 121 Am. St. Rep. 854, 81 N. E. 778, 12 Ann. Cas. 798.

The court declined to hear Mr. Royal C. Johnson, Attorney General of South Dakota and Mr. Samuel W. Clark, who, with Mr. James M. Brown, filed a brief for defendant in error:

Legislation prohibiting unfair competition and discrimination is not confined to the states of South Dakota and Nebraska alone.

State ex rel. Young v. Standard Oil Co. 111 Minn. 85, 126 N. W. 527; State v. Bridgeman & R. Co. 117 Minn. 186, 134 N. W. 496; State v. Fairmont Creamery Co. 153 Iowa, 702, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 821, 133 N. W. 895.

The act in question is a police regulation and clearly within the powers of the state.

House v. Mayes, 219 U. S. 270, 55 L. ed. 213, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 546, 53 L. ed. 319, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 317, 51 L. ed. 502, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S. 104, 55 L. ed. 112, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1062, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186; Camfield v. United States, 167 U. S. 518, 42 L. ed. 260, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 864; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 55 L. ed. 328, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 259; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Com. v. Alger, 7 Cush. 53; Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 L. ed. 643, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 Ann. Cas. 765.

There is no such classification as to render the act repugnant to the 14th Amendment.

McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 5

L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Walston v. Nevin, 128 U. S. 578, 32 L. ed. 544, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Beckwith, 129 U. S. 26, 32 L. ed. 585, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Tinsley v. Anderson, 171 U. S. 106, 43 L. ed. 96, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 805; Fidelity Mut. Life Asso. v. Mettler, 185 U. S. 325, 46 L. ed. 932, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 662; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Tenement House Dept. v. Moeschen, 179 N. Y. 325, 103 Am. St. Rep. 910, 70 L.R.A. 704, 72 N. E. 231, 1 Ann. Cas. 439, affirmed in 203 U. S. 583, 51 L. ed. 328, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 781; Batchel v. Wilson, 204 U. S. 41, 51 L. ed. 360, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246; Heath & M. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 354, 52 L. ed. 243, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 106, 43 L. ed. 913, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 293, 42 L. ed. 1042, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 561, 43 L. ed. 554, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Bacon v. Walker, 204 U. S. 318, 51 L. ed. 502, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 50 L. ed. 246, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66; Kidd, D. & P. Co. v. Musselman Grocer Co. 217 U. S. 461, 54 L. ed. 839, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 606; St. George v. Hardie, 147 N. C. 88, 60 S. E. 921; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 397, 42 L. ed. 792, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 130, 49 L. ed. 694, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Field v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co. 194 U. S. 618, 48 L. ed. 1142, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784.

The act is not discriminating legislation.

State v. Fairmont Creamery Co. 153 Iowa, 702, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 821, 133 N. W. 895; State ex rel. Young v. Standard Oil Co. 111 Minn. 85, 126 N. W. 527.

The act in question does not unreasonably interfere with the right of contract.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 55 L. ed. 328, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 259; Hopper v. Stack, 69 N. J. L. 562, 56 Atl. 1; Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 24 L. ed. 77; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Williams v. Arkansas, 217 U. S. 79, 54 L. ed. 673, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493, 18 Ann. Cas. 865; Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 L. ed. 643, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 Ann. Cas. 765; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 212 U. S. 86, 53 L. ed. 417, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 220, 19 Tex. Civ. App. 1, 44 S. W. 996; Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Spurr v. Travis, 145 Mich. 721, 116 Am. St. Rep. 330, 108 N. W. 1090, 9 Ann. Cas. 250; McDaniels v. J. J. Connelly Shoe Co. 30 Wash. 549, 60 L.R.A. 947, 94 Am. St. Rep. 889, 71 Pac. 37; Neas v. Borches, 109 Tenn. 398, 97 Am. St. Rep. 851, 71 S. W. 50; Walp v. Mooar, 76 Conn. 515, 57 Atl. 277; John P. Squire & Co. v. Tellier, 185 Mass. 18, 102 Am. St. Rep. 322, 69 N. E. 312.

The sale and distribution of lumber and builders' material in the state of South Dakota is internal commerce of the state, and as such is subject to the police power of the state, and may be regluated by law.

Moore v. American Transp. Co. 24 How. 39, 16 L. ed. 681; Covington & C. Bridge Co. v. Kentucky, 154 U. S. 210, 38 L. ed. 965, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 649, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1087; Com. v. Strauss, 191 Mass. 550, 11 L.R.A.(N.S.) 968, 78 N. E. 136, 6 Ann. Cas. 842; Geer v. Connecticut, 161 U. S. 519, 40 L. ed. 793, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 600; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. ed. 652, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370.

The internal commerce of a state—that is, the commerce which is confined within its limits—is as much under its control as foreign or interstate commerce is under the control of the general government.

Sands v. Manistee River Improv. Co. 123 U. S. 295, 31 L. ed. 149, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 113.

The plaintiff in error here is a corporation—a foreign corporation—doing business in this state under a permit granted to it by the state, and a much different rule obtains as to it.

McGuire v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 131 Iowa, 340, 33 L.R.A.(N.S.) 706, 108 N. W. 902; Hammond Packing Co. v. Arkansas, 212 U. S. 322, 53 L. ed. 530, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 378, 15 Ann. Cas. 645; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 177 U. S. 28, 43, 44 L. ed. 657, 663, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 518; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 19 L. ed. 357.

There can be no reasonable doubt but that the legislature enacted this law for the purpose of supplementing the anti-trust and anti-monopoly laws already upon our statute books, so as to reach a method of creating a monopoly not within the purview of the former laws.

State v. Fairmont Creamery Co. 153 Iowa, 702, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 821, 133 N. W. 895; State ex rel. Young v. Standard Oil Co. 111 Minn. 85, 126 N. W. 527; State v. Central Lumber Co. 24 S. D. 136, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 804, 123 N. W. 504.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

The plaintiff in error was found guilty of unfair discrimination under Session Laws of South Dakota for 1907, chap. 131, and was sentenced to a fine of $200 and costs. It objected in due form that the statute was contrary to the 14th Amendment, but on appeal the judgment of the trial court was sustained. 24 S. D. 136, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 804, 123 N W. 504. By the statute anyone "engaged in the production, manufacture, or distribution of any commodity in general use, that intentionally, for the purpose of destroying the competition of any regular established dealer in such commodity, or to prevent the competition of any person who in good faith intends and attempts to become such dealer, shall discriminate between different sections, communities, or cities of this state, by selling such commodity at a lower rate in one section . . than such person . . . charges for such commodity in another section, . . . after equalizing the distance from the point of production," etc., shall be guilty of the crime and liable to the fine.

The subject-matter, like the rest of the criminal law, is under the control of the legislature of South Dakota, by virtue of its general powers, unless the statute conflicts, as alleged, with the Constitution of the United States. The grounds on which it is said to do so are that it denies the equal protection of the laws, because it affects the conduct of only a particular 160]class,—those selling goods in *two places in the state,—and is intended for the protection of only a particular class,—regular established dealers; and also because it unreasonably limits the liberty of people to make such bargains as they like.

On the first of these points it is said that an indefensible classification may be disguised in the form of a description of the acts constituting the offense, and it is urged that to punish selling goods in one place lower than at another in effect is to select the class of dealers that have two places of business for a special liability, and in real fact is a blow aimed at those who have several lumber yards along a line of railroad, in the interest of independent dealers. All competition, it is added, imports an attempt to destroy or prevent the competition of rivals, and there is no difference in principle between the prohibited act and the ordinary efforts of traders at a single place. The premises may be conceded without accepting the conclusion that this is an unconstitutional discrimination. If the legislature shares the now prevailing belief as to what is public policy, and finds that a particular instrument of trade war is being used against that policy in certain cases, it may direct its law against what it deems the evil as it actually exists without covering the whole field of possible abuses, and it may do so none the less that the forbidden act does not differ in kind from those that are allowed. Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 220 U. S. 61, 81, 55 L. ed. 369, 378, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 337, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 160; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 127 U. S. 205, 32 L. ed. 107, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1161.

That is not the arbitrary selection that is condemned in such cases as Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 19 Ann. Cas. 1247. The 14th Amendment does not prohibit legislation special in character. Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 294, 42 L. ed. 1037, 1043, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594. It does not prohibit a state from carrying out a policy that cannot be pronounced purely arbitrary, by taxation or penal laws. Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 562, 43 L. ed. 552, 554, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Quong Wing v. Kirkendall, 223 U. S. 59, 62, 56 L. ed. 350, 351, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192. If a class is deemed to present *a conspicuous example of what[161 the legislature seeks to prevent, the 14th Amendment allows it to be dealt with, although otherwise and merely logically not distinguishable from others not embraced in the law. Carroll v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 199 U. S. 401, 411, 50 L. ed. 246, 250, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66. We must assume that the legislature of South Dakota considered that people selling in two places made the prohibited use of their opportunities, and that such use was harmful, although the usual efforts of competitors were desired. It might have been argued to the legislature with more force than it can be to us that recoupment in one place of losses in another is merely an instance of financial ability to compete. If the legislature thought that that particular manifestation of ability usually came from great corporations whose power it deemed excessive and for that reason did more harm than good in their state, and that there was no other case of frequent occurrence where the same could be said, we cannot review their economics or their facts. That the law embodies a widespread conviction appears from the decisions in other states. State v. Drayton, 82 Neb. 254, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1287, 130 Am. St. Rep. 671, 117 N. W. 768; State ex rel. Young v. Standard Oil Co. 111 Minn. 85, 126 N. W. 527; State v. Fairmont Creamery Co. 153 Iowa, 702, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 821, 133 N. W. 895; State v. Bridgeman & R. Co. 117 Minn. 186, 134 N. W. 496.

What we have said makes it unnecessary to add much on the second point, if open, that the law is made in favor of regular established dealers, but the short answer is simply to read the law. It extends on its face also to those who intend to become such dealers. If it saw fit not to grant the same degree of protection to parties making a transitory incursion into the business, we see no objection. But the supreme court says that the statute is aimed at preventing the creation of a monopoly by means likely to be employed, and certainly we should read the law as having in view ultimately the benefit of buyers of the goods. 162] *Finally, as to the statute's depriving the plaintiff in error of its liberty because it forbids certain class of dealings, we think it enough to say that as the law does not otherwise encounter the 14th Amendment, it is not to be disturbed on this ground. The matter has been discussed so often in this court that we simply refer to Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 567, 568, 55 L. ed. 328, 338, 339, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 259, and the cases there cited to illustrate how much power is left in the states. See also Grenada Lumber Co. v. Mississippi, 217 U. S. 433, 442, 54 L. ed. 826, 831, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 535; Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 496, 53 L. ed. 295, 300, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 609, 47 L. ed. 323, 327, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168.

Judgment affirmed.

---

SOUTHWESTERN BREWERY & ICE COMPANY, Don J. Rankin, Henry Loebs, and Otto Dieckmann, Plffs. in Err.,

v.

JOSEPH SCHMIDT.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 162–169.)

Trial — special findings — judgment.

1. A master is not entitled to judgment on the special findings in an action by a servant for personal injuries alleged to be due to a defective appliance because one finding was that such appliance was not at the time in such a bad condition that a man of ordinary prudence would not have used it, where another finding was that the master did not use ordinary care in furnishing the appliance and in having it repaired, and another, that the master promised the servant that the appliance should be repaired, as an inducement for him to continue using it, since it is evident that the first above finding meant only that the servant was not negligent in remaining at work.

[For other cases, see Trial, X., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Master and servant — safe place for work — continuing in employment after complaint — promise to repair.

2. A master may remain liable for a certain time for a failure to use reasonable care in furnishing a safe place in which to work, notwithstanding the servant's appreciation of the danger, if he induces the servant to keep on by a promise that the source of trouble shall be removed.

[For other cases, see Master and Servant, 82, 83, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — discretion below — leading questions.

3. The discretion of the trial court in allowing somewhat leading questions will not ordinarily be reversed by the Federal Supreme Court,—especially where the witness was of foreign birth and did not well understand the questions put to him.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4438–4453, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Trial — question for jury — sufficiency of evidence.

4. Whether there is credible evidence to sustain the verdict is a question for the jury, and not for an appellate court.

[For other cases, see Trial, 95–107, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — assumption contrary to fact — instruction omitted from bill of exceptions.

5. The Federal Supreme Court will not assume, on writ of error to a territorial supreme court, that the trial court refused to give a pertinent instruction because it is not contained in the bill of exceptions, where the territorial supreme court took notice that such instruction was in fact given.

Trial — instructions — damages.

6. The jury were properly instructed as to the measure of damages in an action by a servant against a master for personal injuries, where they were told that they might consider the servant's loss of time with reference to his ability to earn money, the impairment, whether temporary or permanent, of such ability, his disfigurement and pain, past, or reasonably certain to be suffered in the future, and that they should deduct from the amount, if any, the disbursements made under a release which the finding of the jury set aside, although a part of the disbursements were wages during the servant's disability.

[For other cases, see Trial, 602–623, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 55.]

Argued and submitted November 14 and 15, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the Territory of New Mexico to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court for the County of Bernalillo, in that territory, in favor of plaintiff in an action by a servant against his master for personal injuries. Affirmed.

---

NOTE.—As to continuing work on master's promise to remove a specific cause of danger —see note to Illinois Steel Co. v. Mann, 40 L.R.A. 781.

See same case below, 15 N. M. 232, 107 Pac. 677.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Francis E. Wood argued the cause, and, with Mr. O. N. Marron, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

The law imposed on the defendant in this case only the obligation to use reasonable and ordinary care and diligence in keeping the cooker in a reasonably safe condition for use. It did not make him an insurer of the condition of the cooker or of the safety of the plaintiff. To make the defendant liable, it must appear that it knew, or should have known, by a reasonable inspection and examination of the cooker, that it was unsafe for use, and was likely to break and cause damage, and that a reasonably prudent and careful man would not have used it, or supplied it for use. The care necessary to be exercised by the defendant in determining whether or not the cooker was safe to use was such as a reasonably prudent man would exercise if his own person were exposed to the danger.

20 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law 74; Shearm. & Redf. Neg. 4th ed. § 189; Probst v. Delamater, 100 N. Y. 266, 3 N. E. 184; Brymer v. Southern P. Co. 90 Cal. 496, 27 Pac. 371.

This rule applies as well to inspection and repair as to furnishing the original instrument.

26 Cyc. 113–168; Labatt, Mast. & S. § 110; Moore v. Wabash, St. L. & P. R. Co. 85 Mo. 588; Bailey v. Rome, W. & O. R. Co. 139 N. Y. 302, 34 N E. 918.

A promise to change conditions the existence of which is not negligence gives no right of action if injury results from such condition while the promise remains unfulfilled.

Sweeney v. Berlin & J. Envelope Co. 101 N. Y. 520, 54 Am. Rep. 722, 5 N. E. 358; Shearm. & Redf. Neg. § 186.

It is the original negligence of the defendant that is the base of the cause of action, and not the promise to repair.

Coin v. John H. Talge Lounge Co. 25 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1179, note; Andrecsik v. New Jersey Tube Co. 73 N. J. L. 664, 4 L.R.A. (N.S.) 913, 63 Atl. 719, 9 Ann. Cas. 1006; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Williams, 82 Tex. 342, 18 S. W. 700; Dunkerley v. Webendorfer Mach. Co. 71 N. J. L. 60, 58 Atl. 94; Obanhein v. Arbuckle, 80 App. Div. 465, 81 N. Y. Supp. 133; Bodie v. Charleston & W. C. R. Co. 61 S. C. 468, 39 S. E. 715; Reiser v. Southern Planing Mill & Lumber Co. 114 Ky. 1, 69 S. W. 1085.

Unless the promise to repair was the procuring or inducing cause of his continuing to use the cooker, the servant could not be excused from assuming the risk incident to its use.

Lewis v. New York & N. E. R. Co. 153 Mass. 73, 10 L.R.A. 513, 26 N. E. 431; Southern P. Co. v. Leash, 2 Tex. Civ. App. 68, 21 S. W. 563; Brewer v. Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. 97 Tenn. 615, 37 S. W. 549; Harris v. Bottum, 81 Vt. 346, 70 Atl. 560; Hollis v. Widener, 221 Pa. 72, 70 Atl. 287; Holloran v. Union Iron & Foundry Co. 133 Mo. 470, 35 S. W. 260.

The rule that leading questions are within the discretion of the trial court to permit is subject to the exception that the allowance of such a question, if apparent abuse of discretion, may amount to reversible error.

Rangel v. State, 22 Tex. App. 642, 3 S. W. 788; Mathis v. Buford, 17 Tex. 152; Tinsley v. Carey, 26 Tex. 350; Wigmore, Ev. § 357.

It was error for the trial court to refuse to charge that the burden was on the plaintiff to establish by a preponderance of evidence that he was incompetent to make a binding contract at the time the release was executed.

Jackson ex dem. Cadwell v. King, 4 Cow. 207, 15 Am. Dec. 354; Jones v. Jones, 137 N. Y. 613, 33 N. E. 479; Taylor v. Buttrick, 165 Mass. 547, 52 Am. St. Rep. 530, 43 N. E. 507; Myatt v. Walker, 44 Ill. 485; Artrip v. Rasnake, 96 Va. 277, 31 S. E. 4; note to State v. Scott, 36 L.R.A. 731.

The judge's charge has no place in the record proper, and is not properly a part of the record. The document appearing in the record and purporting to be the charge cannot be considered by this court, because in no manner authenticated.

Clune v. United States, 159 U. S. 593, 40 L. ed. 270, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 125.

Instructions to the jury do not become a part of the record unless included within the bill of exceptions; and, where merely filed in the cause, cannot be considered by the appellate court for any purpose.

Territory v. McGrath, 16 N. M. 202, 114 Pac. 364.

The measure of damages for loss of earning capacity is the difference between what was earned before the injury, and what he would be able to earn thereafter (Braithwaite v. Hall, 168 Mass. 38, 46 N. E. 398); and the injured party is required to use all reasonable efforts to reduce the damages.

4 Sutherland, Damages, § 1255.

If the party has received compensation or wages between the time of the injury and the trial, he can recover nothing for loss of such wages.

4 Sutherland, Damages, § 1249; Drinkwater v. Dinsmore, 80 N. Y. 390, 36 Am. Rep. 624; Montgomery & E. R. Co. v. Mallette, 92 Ala. 209, 9 So. 363.

Wherever the plaintiff has been able to earn as much since as before the injury, the jury should not consider the item of impairment of earning capacity.

8 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 654; Kane v. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. 85 Ga. 858, 11 S. E. 493; Mexican C. R. Co. v. Mitten, 13 Tex. Civ. App. 653, 36 S. W. 282; Drinkwater v. Dinsmore, 80 N. Y. 390, 36 Am. Rep. 624.

The evidence to justify a recovery of damages for future pain and suffering must be so certain and definite that its existence is not left to the mere imagination or guesswork of the jury.

Shultz v. Griffith, 103 Iowa, 150, 40 L.R.A. 117, 72 N. W. 445; Illinois Iron & Metal Co. v. Weber, 196 Ill. 526, 63 N. E. 1008; Carter v. Nunda, 55 App. Div. 501, 66 N. Y. Supp. 1059; 6 Thomp. Neg. 2794.

Messrs. Francis E. Wood, O. N. Marron, Aldis B. Browne, Alexander Britton, and Evans Browne filed a separate brief for plaintiffs in error.

Mr. Neill B. Field submitted the cause for defendant in error:

The special findings are harmonious with each other and with the general verdict.

Hough v. Texas & P. R. Co. 100 U. S. 213, 25 L. ed. 612, New Jersey & N. Y. R. Co. v. Young, 1 C. C. A. 428, 1 U. S. App. 96, 49 Fed. 723; Gowen v. Harley, 6 C. C. A. 190, 12 U. S. App. 574, 56 Fed. 973; Detroit Crude-Oil Co. v. Grable, 36 C. C. A. 94, 94 Fed. 73; Chicago Drop Forge & Foundry Co. v. Van Dam, 149 Ill. 337, 36 N. E. 1024; Breckenridge Co. v. Hicks, 94 Ky. 362, 42 Am. St. Rep. 361, 22 S. W. 554; Lutz v. Atlantic & P. R. Co. 6 N. M. 496, 16 L.R.A. 819, 30 Pac. 912; Kane v. Northern C. R. Co. 128 U. S. 91, 32 L. ed. 339, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 16; 2 Bailey, Mast. & S. § 3073; Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. v. McDade, 191 U. S. 64, 48 L. ed. 96, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 24; Crookston Lumber Co. v. Boutin, 79 C. C. A. 368, 149 Fed. 680.

The jury saw the witnesses and heard their testimony; and although the defendant in error was contradicted by the testimony of the doctor, the lawyer, and the general manager of the plaintiff in error, the jury accepted the testimony of the defendant in error as to all matters of conflict.

Northern P. R. Co. v. Urlin, 158 U. S. 271, 39 L. ed. 977, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 840; Resurrection Gold Min. Co. v. Fortune Gold Min. Co. 64 C. C. A. 180, 129 Fed. 668; Eli Min. & Land Co. v. Carleton, 47 C. C. A. 166, 108 Fed. 24.

It is not necessary in a civil case in the territory of New Mexico to have the instructions and the decision of the court granting or refusing them, and the motion for a new trial, incorporated in the bill of exceptions, but when they are in the transcript, the court can consider them.

Schofield v. Territory, 9 N. M. 526, 56 Pac. 306.

On a question of practice based upon local statutes and procedure, this court habitually follows the local court.

Sweeney v. Lomme, 22 Wall. 208, 22 L. ed. 727; Fox v. Haarstick, 156 U. S. 674, 39 L. ed. 576, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 457; Armijo v. Armijo, 181 U. S. 558, 45 L. ed. 1000, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 707; Copper Queen Consol. Min. Co. v. Territorial Bd. of Equalization, 206 U. S. 474, 51 L. ed. 1143, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 695; Lewis v. Herrera, 208 U. S. 309, 52 L. ed. 506, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 412; English v. Arizona, 214 U. S. 359, 53 L. ed. 1030, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 658; Santa Fé County v. New Mexico, 215 U. S. 296, 54 L. ed. 202, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111.

The trial court, in its discretion, might have refused to charge the jury as to the burden of proof, and such refusal would not have constituted error.

Chicopee Bank v. Seventh Nat. Bank, 8 Wall. 641, 19 L. ed. 422; J. M. Robinson, N. & Co. v. Tuscaloosa Mills, 106 C. C. A. 306, 183 Fed. 966; Union P. R. Co. v. Harris, 158 U. S. 326, 39 L. ed. 1003, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 843.

The charge upon the measure of damages is amply supported by authority.

4 Sutherland, Damages, 3d ed. §§ 1241, 1242, 1246, 1251; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. De Clow, 61 C. C. A. 34, 124 Fed. 142; Union P. R. Co. v. Jones, 1 C. C. A. 282, 4 U. S. App. 115, 49 Fed. 343; Swensen v. Bender, 51 C. C. A. 627, 114 Fed. 1; Kliegel v. Aitken, 94 Wis. 432, 35 L.R.A. 249, 59 Am. St. Rep. 900, 69 N. W. 67; Washington & G. R. Co. v. Harmon, 147 U. S. 571, 37 L. ed. 284, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Lindeman, 75 C. C. A. 18, 143 Fed. 946.

The jury found specially every fact necessary to fix the liability of the plaintiff in error.

Emerson v. Metropolitan L. Ins. Co. 185 Mass. 318, 70 N. E. 200; Germaine v. Muskegon, 105 Mich. 213, 63 N. W. 78; Tesch v. Milwaukee Electric R. & Light Co. 108 Wis. 593, 53 L.R.A. 618, 84 N. W. 823.

Messrs. Neill B. Field, Joseph W. Cox, and John A. Kratz, Jr., filed a separate brief for defendant in error.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action by a servant for personal injuries. The declaration alleged that it was the plaintiff's duty to cook brewer's mash in a cooker; that the cooker was so out of repair that the plaintiff was unwilling to use it, but that the defendant requested him to go on until it could be repaired, and promised that it should be 168]within a very *short time; that the plaintiff did go on, relying upon the promise, that the cooker gave way, and the plaintiff was badly scalded. The defendant denied the allegations and pleaded plaintiff's contributory negligence and a release. In a replication the plaintiff denied his mental capacity at the time the release was made. There was a verdict for the plaintiff, subject to special findings which by the law of New Mexico control (Walker v. New Mexico & S. P. R. Co. 165 U. S. 593, 41 L. ed. 837, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 421), the defendant alleged exceptions. These were overruled by the supreme court of the territory and the judgment affirmed.

The first point argued is that the defendant was entitled to judgment on the special findings, because the fourth was that the cooker at the time was not in such a bad condition that a man of ordinary prudence would not have used the same. But the eleventh was that the defendant did not use ordinary care in furnishing the cooker and in having it repaired, and the sixth, that the defendant promised the plaintiff that the cooker should be repaired as an inducement for him to continue using it. So it is evident that the fourth finding meant only that the plaintiff was not negligent in remaining at work. Whatever the difficulties may be with the theory of the exception (1 Labatt, Mast. & S. chap. 22, § 423), it is the well-settled law that for a certain time a master may remain liable for a failure to use reasonable care in furnishing a safe place in which to work, notwithstanding the servant's appreciation of the danger, if he induces the servant to keep on by a promise that the source of trouble shall be removed. Hough v. Texas & P. R. Co. 100 U. S. 213, 25 L. ed. 612.

Next it is argued that the judgment should be set aside because the court allowed somewhat leading questions to be asked to bring out the plaintiff's reliance upon the defendant's promise. If this matter is open, it is enough to say that the plaintiff is a German, and seemingly did 169]not *understand the questions put to him very well, and that it would require a very much stronger case than this to induce an appellate court to revise the discretion of the trial court, and grant a new trial upon such a ground. Northern P. R. Co. v. Urlin, 158 U. S. 271, 273, 39 L. ed. 977, 980, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 840. The next point, that there was no credible evidence to sustain the verdict, so far as it does not rest on the preceding one, was for the jury, not for this court.

Fourthly, it is argued that the court erred in refusing to instruct the jury that the burden was on the plaintiff to prove his incompetence at the time of making the release. It seems from the record that an instruction to that effect was given, but that it was omitted from the bill of exceptions. The supreme court of the territory took notice of the fact, and we certainly should not go behind their decision upon a matter of local practice in order to reverse a judgment upon a technicality and an assumption contrary to the fact. Santa Fé County v. New Mexico, 215 U. S. 296, 54 L. ed. 202, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111.

Finally it is said that the instructions as to the measure of damages were wrong. The court instructed the jury that they might consider the plaintiff's loss of time with reference to his ability to earn money, the impairment of his capacity to earn money, whether temporary or permanent, disfigurement, and pain, past or reasonably certain to be suffered in the future, and that they should deduct from the amount, if any, the disbursements made under the release which the finding of the jury set aside. It is objected that a part of the disbursements were wages during the plaintiff's disability; but it did not matter whether they were or not if the transaction was rescinded. With regard to future pain, etc., the judge did not go beyond the conservative rule laid down in such cases as Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Lindeman, 75 C. C. A. 18, 143 Fed. 946, 950. The rest of the argument is a discussion of evidence, with which we have nothing to do.

Judgment affirmed.

---

*TOBIAS MILLER, Plff. in Err.,[170

v.

SECONDO GUASTI and Juan A. Bernard.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 170, 171.)

Error to state court — scope of review — finding of fact.

1. A finding of the highest court of the state that the evidence sustained the finding below that a bankrupt had actual knowledge of the residence and postoffice address of certain judgment creditors who had no knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings until long after the discharge is binding on the NOTE.—As to review of questions of fact on writ of error to a state court—see notes to Smiley v. Kansas, 49 L. ed. U. S. 546, and Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L.R.A. 577.

Federal Supreme Court, on writ of error to the state court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2175-2208, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Bankruptcy — discharge — schedule and notice to creditors.

2. Debts owing to judgment creditors were not properly scheduled as required by the bankrupt act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 544, chap. 541, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3418), §§ 7, 17, in order to be released by the discharge, where the residence of such judgment creditors, though known, was not stated, as required by the statute, and they did not have actual knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings until long after their termination.

[For other cases, see Bankruptcy, 388-390, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 478.]

Submitted October 15, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of New York to review a judgment entered pursuant to the mandate of the Court of Appeals of that state, which affirmed a judgment of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, First Department, which had in turn affirmed an order of the Supreme Court for the County of New York at Special Term, refusing to cancel a judgment because of a discharge in bankruptcy Affirmed.

See same case below in court of appeals, 203 N. Y. 259, 96 N. E. 416.

Mr. William C. Rosenberg submitted the cause for plaintiff in error. Mr. Jesse S. Epstein was on the brief.

Mr. Albert M. Yuzzolino submitted the cause for defendants in error.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Justice Day:

Tobias Miller, plaintiff in error herein, obtained a discharge in bankruptcy in the district court of the United States for the southern district of New York. Among his liabilities was a judgment rendered in the city court of New York April 16, 1895, in favor of the defendants in error, Guasti and Bernard. Miller applied at a special term of the supreme court of the county of New York for an order canceling the judgment under § 1268 of the Code of Civil Procedure, because of the discharge in bankruptcy. The supreme court held that he was not entitled to have the judgment canceled. The order was affirmed by the appellate division, and its order was affirmed by the court of appeals. 203 N. Y. 259, 96 N. E. 416. That order being entered in the supreme court, this writ of error was sued out. A motion is made here to affirm the judgment of the state court.

*From the facts found in the court of [171 appeals, it appears that Miller, in his bankruptcy schedules, set forth that the residence and occupation of Guasti and Bernard, holders of the judgment, were "Unknown.—California." The court further found that Guasti and Bernard knew nothing of the proceedings in bankruptcy until long after the discharge, and first learned of them August 23, 1910. The court of appeals further found that the affidavits filed sustained the finding of the special term that Miller had actual knowledge of the residence and postoffice address of Guasti and Bernard. Such finding of fact is binding upon this court, and is, moreover, amply sustained by the record.

The bankruptcy act provides, § 17:

"A discharge in bankruptcy shall release a bankrupt from all of his provable debts, except such as . . . have not been duly scheduled in time for proof and allowance, with the name of the creditor, if known to the bankrupt, unless such creditor had notice or actual knowledge of the proceedings in bankruptcy." [30 Stat. at L. 550, chap. 541, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1496.]

Section 7 of the bankruptcy act requires a bankrupt to file in court a schedule, made under oath, containing, among other things, "a list of his creditors, showing their residences, if known; if unknown, that fact to be stated," etc It therefore appears that the bankruptcy act does not extend the protection of the discharge to debts not duly scheduled in time for proof and allowance.

In view of the facts found, it is manifest that the debt of Guasti and Bernard was not scheduled as it should have been in order to make the discharge operative as to it. Their residence, though found to be known, was not stated, as required by the act, and the creditor did not have actual knowledge of the bankruptcy proceedings until long after their termination. We think the correctness of the judgment is so plain as not to require further argument.

Affirmed.

---

*FOUR HUNDRED AND FORTY-[172 THREE CANS OF FROZEN EGG PRODUCT, H. J. Keith Company, Claimant, Appt. and Plff. in Err.,

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 172-184.)

Appeal — mode of review — seizures under pure food act.

1. A decree of a Federal district court dismissing, after a trial without a jury, a libel having for its object the condemnation of food products seized upon land under the pure food act of June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 768, chap. 3915, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1354), is reviewable in the circuit court of appeals by writ of error, and not by appeal, notwithstanding the provision of § 10 of that act that the "proceedings of such libel cases shall conform as near as may be to the proceedings in admiralty, except that each party may demand trial by jury of any issue of fact joined," since such provision cannot be deemed to intend to liken such proceedings to those in admiralty beyond the seizure of the property by process in rem, then giving the case the character of an action at law with trial by jury if demanded, and with the review already obtaining in actions at law

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, II. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — mode of review — consent.

2. Writ of error being the proper mode of reviewing in the circuit court of appeals a decree of a district court dismissing, after trial without a jury, a libel seeking the condemnation of food products seized upon land under the pure food act of June 30, 1906, neither the action of the court nor the consent of the parties could confer jurisdiction of an appeal.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — judgment — remanding for dismissal.

3. The Federal Supreme Court, having acquired appellate jurisdiction of a decree of a circuit court of appeals which had proceeded without jurisdiction to revise on appeal a decree of a district court which was in fact reviewable only by writ of error, will reverse the judgment of the circuit court of appeals, and remand the case to that court, with instructions to dismiss the appeal for want of jurisdiction.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 5481–5494, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 590.]

Argued October 24 and 25, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from and IN ERROR to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit to review a decree which reversed on appeal a judgment of the District Court for the District of New Jersey, dismissing a libel seeking the condemnation of food products seized under the pure food act. Reversed and remanded, with instructions to dismiss the appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the want of jurisdiction.

See same case below, 113 C. C. A. 457, 193 Fed. 589.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Ralph S. Rounds argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant and plaintiff in error:

An information under the provisions of the pure food act for the condemnation of property is, like an information for forfeiture under the confiscation act and under the revenue laws, a common-law proceeding.

The Sarah, 8 Wheat. 391, 5 L. ed. 644; Morris's Cotton (Morris v. United States) 8 Wall. 507, 19 L. ed. 481; Armstrong's Foundry, 6 Wall. 766, 769, 18 L. ed. 882, 884; St. Louis Street Foundry, 6 Wall. 770, 18 L. ed. 884; United States v. Emholt, 105 U. S. 414, 26 L. ed. 1077; United States v. Bales of Cotton, 154 U. S. 556, and 18 L. ed. 889, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1212; Union Ins. Co. v. United States, 6 Wall. 759, 18 L. ed. 879.

The objection that the case was not properly before the circuit court of appeals on appeal is jurisdictional and could not be waived.

Brooks v. Norris, 11 How. 204, 13 L. ed. 665; Barry v. Mercein, 5 How. 103, 12 L. ed. 70; United States v. Curry, 6 How. 106, 12 L. ed. 363; Jones v. La Vallette, 5 Wall. 579, 18 L. ed. 550; Sarchet v. United States, 12 Pet. 143, 9 L. ed. 1033; Ballance v. Forsyth, 21 How. 389, 16 L. ed. 143; Kelsey v. Forsyth, 21 How. 85, 16 L. ed. 32; The Lucy, 8 Wall. 307, 19 L. ed. 394; United States v. Emholt, 105 U. S. 414–416, 26 L. ed. 1077, 1078; Stevens v. Clark, 10 C. C. A. 379, 18 U. S. App. 584, 62 Fed. 321; De Lemos v. United States, 46 C. C. A. 196, 107 Fed. 121; Nelson v. Huidekoper, 13 C. C. A. 658, 30 U. S. App. 88, 66 Fed. 616; Taylor, Jurisdiction, § 119.

The practice followed by this court in cases where the trial court or intermediate appellate court is without jurisdiction is to reverse the decree and to direct the inferior court to dismiss the proceeding.

Mordecai v. Lindsay, 19 How. 199, 15 L. ed. 624; Stickney v. Wilt, 23 Wall. 150, 162, 23 L. ed. 50, 54; United States v. Huckabee, 16 Wall. 414, 435, 436, 21 L. ed. 457, 465.

Unless a jury is waived, a proceeding of condemnation under the pure food act, being a common-law proceeding, must be tried before a jury, unless the provisions of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 566, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 461, have been modified or repealed by the provisions of that act.

Knickerbocker Ins. Co. v. Comstock, 16 Wall. 258, 269, 21 L. ed. 493, 498.

There is no express provision that in seizure cases under the pure food act trial of issues of fact may be had without a jury; and considering the constitutional provision and the history of similar legislation in connection with the wording and structure of the statute, there is no reasonable in plication that the pure food act was meant to modify or repeal § 566 of the Revised Statutes.

Voorhees v. Jackson, 10 Pet. 449, 471, 9 L. ed. 490, 499; Minis v. United States, 15 Pet. 423, 445, 10 L. ed. 791, 799; White v. United States, 191 U. S. 545, 551, 48 L. ed. 295, 297, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 171; Wood County v. Lackawana Iron & Coal Co. 93 U. S. 619, 624, 23 L. ed. 989, 991; Cope v. Cope, 137 U. S. 682, 686, 34 L. ed. 832, 833, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 222; Morris's Cotton (Morris v. United States) 8 Wall. 507, 19 L. ed. 481; Union Ins. Co. v. United States, 6 Wall. 759, 18 L. ed. 879; Rosencrans v. United States, 165 U. S. 257, 262, 41 L. ed. 708, 710, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 302.

There was no statute in existence which provided for a trial in the district court without a jury, although, the parties having waived a jury, the judgment after trial by the district court was not erroneous.

Kearney v. Case, 12 Wall. 275, 20 L. ed. 395; Campbell v. Boyreau, 21 How. 223, 16 L. ed. 96; Rogers v. United States, 141 U. S. 548, 35 L. ed. 853, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91.

The reason is twofold: First, because a trial by the court in a common-law case without a jury is a proceeding unknown to the common law, and the judge in such case acts as a judicial arbitrator, and not as a court.

Kearney v. Case, 12 Wall. 275, 283, 20 L. ed. 395, 397; Campbell v. Boyreau, 21 How. 223, 16 L. ed. 96; Rogers v. United States, 141 U. S. 548, 35 L. ed. 853, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91.

Second, because, being a common-law proceeding, appeal will not lie, and error will only lie to review the verdict of a jury as to matters of law; and there is no method provided by the statutes of the United States to review a judgment of the district court where trial is had without a jury.

Campbell v. Boyreau, 21 How. 223, 16 L. ed. 96; Rogers v. United States, 141 U. S. 548, 35 L. ed. 853, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91; Boogher v. New York L. Ins. Co. 103 U. S. 90, 98, 26 L. ed. 310, 312; United States v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 94 C. C. A. 441, 169 Fed. 74; United States v. Cleage, 88 C. C. A. 249, 161 Fed. 86; Dirst v. Morris, 14 Wall. 484, 20 L. ed. 722; Mercantile Mut. Ins. Co. v. Folsom, 18 Wall. 237, 21 L. ed. 827; Cooper v. Omohundro, 19 Wall. 65, 22 L. ed. 47; Martinton v. Fairbanks, 112 U. S. 670, 28 L. ed. 862, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321; Wilson v. Merchants' Loan & T. Co. 183 U. S. 121, 46 L. ed. 113, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 55; Distilling & Cattle Feeding Co. v. Gottschalk Co. 13 C. C. A. 618, 24 U. S. App. 638, 66 Fed. 609; Hill v. Walker, 92 C. C. A. 633, 167 Fed. 241; Bond v. Dustin, 112 U. S. 604, 28 L. ed. 835, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 296; Dundee Mortg. & Trust Invest. Co. v. Hughes, 124 U. S. 157, 31 L. ed. 357, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 377; Spalding v. Manasse, 131 U. S. 65, 33 L. ed. 86, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 649.

The phrase "shall conform as near as may be" requires only such conformity as is reasonable and convenient under the circumstances.

Indianapolis & St. Louis R. Co. v. Horst, 93 U. S. 291, 300, 301, 23 L. ed. 898, 901; Phelps v. Oaks, 117 U. S. 236, 239, 29 L. ed. 888, 889, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 714; Shepard v. Adams, 168 U. S. 618, 625, 626, 42 L. ed. 602, 604, 605, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214.

The word "proceedings" obviously refers only to the mode of proceeding, and not to the extent of the jurisdiction or power of the supreme court to review circuit courts of appeals' judgments.

Bronson v. Schulten, 104 U. S. 410, 417, 26 L. ed. 797, 799; St. Joseph Mfg. Co. v. Harrington, 53 Iowa, 382, 5 N. W. 568.

In the somewhat analogous case of the conformity statutes, by which Congress has provided that procedure at law in the Federal courts shall conform to the state practice, it is uniformly held by this court that the statutes do not apply to proceedings for review.

Parsons v. Bedford, 3 Pet. 433, 444, 7 L. ed. 732, 736; Ex parte Chateaugay Ore & Iron Co. 128 U. S. 544, 553, 32 L. ed. 508, 511, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 150.

It is undisputed that a pure food case is not "an admiralty case."

Ex parte Graham, 10 Wall. 541, 19 L. ed. 981; Ex parte Waples, 154 U. S. 579, and 38 L. ed. 1088, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1214.

Lack of jurisdiction cannot be waived even by participating in a trial.

Perez v. Fernandez, 202 U. S. 80, 100, 50 L. ed. 942, 949, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 561.

Assistant Attorney General Adkins argued the cause, and, with Mr. Louis G. Bissell, filed a brief for appellee and defendant in error:

The parties have the right to waive a jury trial.

Parsons v. Armor, 3 Pet. 413, 7 L. ed. 724.

And where the parties avail themselves of this right, there is nothing to prevent Congress authorizing the review of the case by appeal.

Hecht v. Boughton, 105 U. S. 235, 26 L. ed. 1018; Story v. Black, 119 U. S. 235, 30 L. ed. 341, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 176; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 105 U. S. 263, 26 L. ed. 1021; Grayson v. Lynch, 163 U. S. 468, 41 L. ed. 230, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Apache County v. Barth, 177 U. S. 538, 44 L. ed. 878, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 718; William W. Bierce v. Hutchins, 205 U. S. 340, 51 L. ed.

828, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; Elliott v. Toeppner, 187 U. S. 327, 334, 335, 47 L. ed. 200, 203, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 133.

The word "proceedings" covers all steps taken in a case, from its inception; including those necessary to remove the case to a higher court for review.

O'Dea v. Washington County, 3 Neb. 118.

It is well settled, and the doctrine was reaffirmed at the last term in Campbell v. United States, 224 U. S. 99, 56 L. ed. 684, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 398, that in suits at common law, in the district courts, the waiver of the jury trial deprives the parties of the right to review the judgment, either upon the facts or the law, except for such questions of law as are presented by the pleadings. Since proceedings under the food and drugs act are to be instituted in the district courts, this doctrine would apply to them. It is incredible that Congress, after plainly inviting the claimant to waive his right to trial by jury, meant to deprive him of the right of appeal. This imputation of bad faith is completely met by giving to the words used their plain meaning. It follows that while Congress deemed trial by the court desirable, it was intended to provide for the review of such trials as in admiralty by appeal.

United States v. 779 Cases of Molasses, 98 C. C. A. 197, 174 Fed. 327.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

This case is here on both writ of error to and appeal from a decree of the circuit court of appeals for the third circuit, reversing the judgment of the United States district court for the district of New Jersey, dismissing a libel brought by the United States which had for its object the 178]condemnation of 443 *cans of frozen egg product seized under the pure food act of June 30, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 768, chap. 3915, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1354).

The United States filed its libel alleging that 443 cans of frozen egg product, in the possession of the Merchants' Refrigerating Company at Jersey City, New Jersey, consisted in whole or in part of a "filthy, decomposed, and putrid animal, to wit, egg substance," and praying for their condemnation. At the trial the issues were narrowed so as to exclude filthy and putrid substances, leaving the charge to stand as to decomposed substance. Three hundred and forty-two cans were seized. The H. J. Keith Company appeared and claimed the goods, denying the charges concerning them. The case was tried without a jury, to the district judge, who entered a decree dismissing the libel. The United States took an appeal to the circuit court of appeals, and, after consideration in that court, the decree dismissing the libel was reversed, and. upon the facts, a decree of condemnation in favor of the government was entered. (113 C. C. A. 457, 193 Fed. 589.) The claimant, the H. J. Keith Company, thereupon appealed to this court, and also sued out this writ of error to the same decree.

We are met at the outset with a question of jurisdiction. Section 10 of the pure food act provides:

"That any article of food . . . that is adulterated or misbranded within the meaning of this act, and is being transported from one state . . . to another for sale, . . . shall be liable to be proceeded against in any district court of the United States within the district where the same is found, and seized for confiscation by a process of libel for condemnation. . . . The proceedings of such libel cases shall conform, as near as may be, to the proceedings in admiralty, except that either party may demand trial by jury of any issue of fact joined in any such case, and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the United States."

*It will be observed that the last[179 sentence of the section provides that "the proceedings of such libel cases shall conform, as near as may be, to the proceedings in admiralty, except that either party may demand trial by jury of any issue of fact joined in any such case, and all such proceedings shall be at the suit of and in the name of the United States." The contention of the government upon this question of jurisdiction is, that the words, "conform, as near as may be, to the proceedings in admiralty," mean, except in cases where jury trial is demanded, to include appellate proceedings, as well as original proceedings in the district court, and therefore the review of the judgments of the district court would be by appeal to the circuit court of appeals, as in admiralty cases under the circuit court of appeals act (26 Stat. at L. 826, chap. 517, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 488), and under the Judicial Code (36 Stat. at L. 1087, 1133, sec. 128, chap. 231, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, pp. 128, 193). If that is a proper construction of the statute, then the circuit court of appeals had the right to review the case upon the facts and enter a final decree, which, under the circuit court of appeals act and Judicial Code, would be reviewable here only upon writ of certiorari.

The appellant, also plaintiff in error, contends that the seizure being upon land, the proceeding was at law, and reviewable only upon writ of error in the circuit court of appeals; that the attempted appeal did not give the circuit court of appeals jurisdiction, and that upon the writ of error here this court should reverse the judgment and remand the case to that court, with directions to dismiss the appeal.

The determination of this controversy requires some examination of previous legislation, and of the decisions of this court, interpreting such legislation, as to the nature and extent of the jurisdiction of the district courts of the United States in seizure cases.

The judiciary act of 1789 (1 Stat. at L. 76, § 9, chap. 20) gave to the district courts:

180] *"Exclusive original cognizance of all civil causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, including all seizures under laws of impost, navigation, or trade of the United States, where the seizures are made on waters which are navigable from the sea by vessels of ten or more tons burthen, within their respective districts as well as upon the high seas; saving to suitors, in all cases, the right of a common-law remedy, where the common law is competent to give it; and . . . also have exclusive original cognizance of all seizures on land, or other waters than as aforesaid, made, and of all suits for penalties and forfeitures incurred, under the laws of the United States."

In the case of The Sarah, 8 Wheat. 391, 5 L. ed. 644, a libel was filled against 422 casks of wine, alleging a forfeiture by false entry. It appearing in the course of the trial that the seizure was made on land, it was held that his court could not review the case save upon writ of error. Chief Justice Marshall, delivering the opinion of the court, said (p. 394):

"By the act constituting the judicial system of the United States, the district courts are courts both of common law and admiralty jurisdiction. In the trial of all cases of seizure on land, the court sits as a court of common law. In cases of seizure made on waters navigable by vessels of 10 tons burthen and upwards, the court sits as a court of admiralty. In all cases at common law, the trial must be by jury. In cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction, it has been settled, in the cases of United States v. La Vengeance (reported in 3 Dall. 297, 1 L. ed. 610), United States v. The Sally (in 2 Cranch, 406, 2 L. ed. 320), and United States v. The Betsy (in 4 Cranch, 443, 2 L. ed. 673), that the trial is to be by the court.

"Although the two jurisdictions are vested in the same tribunal, they are as distinct from each other as if they were vested in different tribunals; and can no more be blended than a court of chancery with a court of common law."

A statute, practically the same, with some slight changes, was embodied in § 563 of the Revised Statutes, *subdivision 8[181 (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 457), giving the district courts jurisdiction "of all civil causes of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction . . . and of all seizures on land and on waters not within admiralty and maritime jurisdiction," the subdivision mentioned omitting the provision found in the section of the judiciary act of 1789, to which we have referred, as to seizures "within their respective districts," and including cases of "seizures on land and on waters not within the admiralty and maritime jurisdiction." Under this statute it has been uniformly held that the district court, as to seizures on land, proceeds as a court of common law, with trial by jury, and not as a court of admiralty. United States v. Winchester, 99 U. S. 372, 25 L. ed. 479.

Questions analogous to the one here came before this court in construing the confiscation acts enacted in 1861 [12 Stat. at L. 255, 319, chaps. 3, 60, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 3615, 3614] and 1862 [12 Stat. at L. 589, chap. 195, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3623]. This court, in Union Ins Co. v. United States, 6 Wall. 759, 18 L. ed. 879, construed the act of Congress of August 6, 1861, entitled, "An Act to Confiscate Property Used for Insurrectionary Purposes." That act provided for the seizure of such property and its condemnation in the district or circuit court having jurisdiction of the amount, or in admiralty in any district in which the property might be seized, and authorized the Attorney General to institute proceedings of condemnation. In that case it was held that in the condemnation of real estate or property on land the proceedings were to be shaped in general conformity to the practice in admiralty, but in respect to trial by jury and exceptions to evidence the proceedings should conform to the course of proceeding by information on the common-law side of the court. It was held that where proceedings for the forfeiture of real estate were had in conformity with the practice in courts of admiralty, they could not be reviewed in this court by appeal, and that the case could come here only for the purpose of reversing the decree and directing a new trial.

In the case of Morris's Cotton (Morris v. United States) 8 Wall. 507, 19 L. ed. 481, this court *had under considera-[182 tion the acts of 1861 and of July 17, 1862, which act provided (12 Stat. at L. 589, 591, § 7, chap. 195, U. S. Comp Stat. 1901, p. 3623) for the institution of proceedings in the name of the United State in any district court, etc., where the property might be found, etc., "which proceedings shall conform as nearly as may be to proceedings in admiralty or revenue cases." In the Morris Case it was said:

"Where the seizure is made on navigable waters, within the 9th section of the judiciary act, the case belongs to the instance side of the district court; but where the seizure was made on land, the suit, though in the form of a libel of information, is an action at common law, and the claimants are entitled to trial by jury.

"Seizures, when made on waters which are navigable from the sea by vessels of 10 or more tons burden, are exclusively cognizable in the district courts, subject to appeal, as provided by law; but all seizures on land or on waters not navigable, and all suits instituted to recover penalties and forfeitures incurred, except for seizures on navigable waters, must be prosecuted as other common-law suits, and can only be removed into this court by writ of error."

This jurisdiction of the district court was known to Congress at the time it passed the pure food act, as were the decisions of this court construing the former acts of Congress; and it declared that such proceedings shall conform to those in admiralty, as near as may be, giving to either party, however, the right to demand a trial by jury in case of issues of fact joined. We think this act must be held to have been passed not to confer a new jurisdiction upon the district court, but in recognition of the jurisdiction already created in seizures upon land and water. The act makes no reference, in conforming the proceedings as near as may be to those in admiralty, to appellate procedure. It leaves that to be determined by the nature of the case and the statutes already in force. It is true that the right of trial by jury is 183]preserved, where demanded *by either party. We think Congress inserted this provision with a view to removing any question as to the constitutionality of the act. It was held under the confiscation acts, although no such specific provision is contained, that the action provided was one at common law, with a right to trial by jury. The 7th Amendment to the Constitution preserves the right of trial by jury in suits at common law involving more than $20, and provides that no fact tried by a jury shall be reviewed otherwise than according to the rules of the common law. Having in mind these provisions, and, as well, the construction of the previous acts, we think it was the purpose of Congress to leave no doubt as to the right of trial by jury in the law proceeding for condemnation which the act intended to provide.

These proceedings for the seizure and condemnation of property which is impure or adulterated are intended to be, in a sense, summary, and yet the statute, as we have construed it, gives the owner a right to a hearing in a court of record, with a right of review upon questions of law by writ of error in the circuit court of appeals; and, where more than $1,000 is involved, finally in this court (§ 6 of the circuit court of appeals act). It is to be noted in this connection that where the examination of specimens of food or drugs, made by the Department of Agriculture, shows that the articles are adulterated or misbranded, the parties from whom the specimens were obtained are (§ 4 of the act) given a hearing before the matter is certified to the district attorney by the Secretary of Agriculture.

We do not think it was intended to liken the proceedings to those in admiralty beyond the seizure of the property by process in rem, then giving the case the character of a law action, with trial by jury if demanded, and with the review already obtaining in actions at law. It is true that, if the action is tried in the district court without a *jury, the circuit court of[184 appeals is limited to a consideration of such questions of law as may have been presented by the record proper, independently of the special finding. Campbell v. United States, 224 U. S. 99, 56 L. ed. 684, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 398. But the party on jury trial may reserve his exceptions, take a bill of exceptions, and have a review upon writ of error in the manner we have pointed out.

It is insisted for the government that inasmuch as the hearing in the circuit court of appeals upon appeal was without objection by the claimant, the jurisdictional objection was waived. We cannot take that view As we construe the statute, the circuit court of appeals had no jurisdiction upon the appeal, and neither the action of the court nor the consent of the parties could give it. Leo Lung On v. United States, 86 C. C. A 513, 159 Fed. 125; Jones v. La Vallette, 5 Wall. 579, 18 L. ed. 550; United States v. Emholt, 105 U. S. 414, 26 L. ed. 1077; Perez v. Fernandez, 202 U. S. 80, 100, 50 L. ed. 942, 949, 26 Sup Ct. Rep. 561.

As the Circuit Court of Appeals, in our opinion, proceeded without jurisdiction by reason of the appeal, this court, having acquired jurisdiction, should reverse the judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals, and remand the case to that court, with instructions to dismiss the appeal for want of jurisdiction. Union & Planters' Bank v.

Memphis, 189 U. S. 71, 47 L. ed. 712, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 604.

Judgment accordingly.

---

TOYOTA, Plff. in Err.,
v.
TERRITORY OF HAWAII.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 184–192.)

Error to Hawaiian supreme court — scope of review — Federal question.

1. The ruling of the Hawaiian supreme court that daily sales of fish in basket lots to the highest bidder were sales at public auction, within the meaning of Haw. Rev. Laws, § 1343, prescribing a license fee, although bids were accepted only from retail dealers or persons conducting fish tables at the market, presents no Federal question which, under the act of April 30, 1900 (31 Stat. at L. 141, chap. 339), § 86, can be reviewed on a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, III. d, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — classification — license fee.

2. The discrimination between the district of Honolulu and other districts in the amount of the fee imposed by Haw. Rev. Laws, § 1343, for a license to make sales at auction, which is $600 for the district of Honolulu, and $15 for each other taxation district, is not so arbitrary or unreasonable as to render the statute unconsti-

---

Note.—As to questions reviewable by United States Supreme Court on writ of error—see note to Parks v. Turner, 13 L. ed. U. S. 883.

As to limit of amount of license fees—see note to State ex rel. Toi v. French, 30 L.R.A. 415.

Gradation of license fees according to volume of business or capital employed—see note to Salt Lake City v. Christensen Co. 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 898.

As to discrimination with respect to occupation tax based on classification of municipalties—see note to Hager v. Walker, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 195.

Appellate jurisdiction of Federal Supreme Court over Hawaiian courts.

The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of the United States to review judgments of the courts of the territory of Hawaii was, under the act of April 30, 1900 (31 Stat. at L. 141, chap. 339), § 86, to be measured by the power conferred upon the former court to review judgments of state courts. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308, 47 L. ed. 190, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123.

The failure of the record to show that any Federal question was raised or suggested before the assignment of error in the Federal Supreme Court precludes the maintenance of a writ of error from that court under this statute, to review a judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court. Honolulu Rapid Transit & Land Co. v. Wilder, 211 U. S. 144, 53 L. ed. 124, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 46.

The dismissal on motion of a writ of error to the supreme court of the territory of Hawaii, which is governed by the principles controlling writs of error to state courts, will be ordered, instead of granting a motion to affirm, where the subject-matter of the controversy is not inherently Federal, and the only Federal question raised has been so explicitly decided by the Supreme Court of the United States in accordance with the ruling of the lower court as to foreclose further argument on the subject. Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308, 47 L. ed. 190, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123.

The reader will find it helpful to consider in this connection the note to Apex Transp. Co. v. Garbade, 62 L.R.A. 513, on what adjudications of state courts can be brought up for review in the Supreme Court of the United States by writ of error to those courts, also the note to Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. McGrew, 63 L.R.A. 33, on how and when questions must be reased and decided in a state court in order to make a case for a writ of error from the Supreme Court of the United States.

No order of the Supreme Court of the United States, assigning the territory of Hawaii to a judicial circuit under the act of March 3, 1891, could give a right of appeal inconsistent with the provision of the act of April 30, 1900, § 86, restricting appeals from the courts of the territory of Hawaii to cases in which appeals are allowable to the courts of the United States from the courts of the several states. Ex parte Wilder's S. S. Co. 183 U. S. 545, 46 L. ed. 321, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225.

But the jurisdiction under consideration was enlarged by the amendatory act of March 3, 1905 (33 Stat. at L. 1035, chap. 1465), § 3, to embrace in addition "all cases where the amount involved, exclusive of costs, exceeds the sum or value of five thousand dollars." Harrison v. Magoon, 205 U. S. 501, 51 L. ed. 900, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 577.

A writ of error directed on its face to the supposed judgment of the supreme court of the territory of Hawaii, disposing of exceptions on non-Federal grounds, prior to the act of March 3, 1905, enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court over the territorial courts, cannot be sustained on the theory that a final judgment in the case was not rendered until after the passage of that act, when judgment on the verdict was entered in the trial court in connection with a nunc pro tunc entry, since such judgment must necessarily have been entered after the judgment which the writ seeks to review. Notley v. Brown, 206 U. S. 429, 52 L. ed. 559, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 385.

Jurisdiction of a writ of error directed, on its face, to a supposed judgment of the supreme court of the territory of Hawaii, dis-tutional, as denying the equal protection of the laws.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. a, 5, e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 49.]

Submitted November 13, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the Territory of Hawaii to review a judgment which affirmed a conviction in the District Court of Honolulu, in that territory, of the offense of selling goods at auction without a license. Affirmed.

See same case below, 19 Haw. 651.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. D. W. Burchard and A. L. C. Atkinson submitted the cause for plaintiff in error. Mr. Ralph P. Quarles was on the brief:

Section 1343 of the Revised Laws of Hawaii, which imposes upon a person engaged in the occupation of auctioneer in the district of Honolulu a license forty times as great as in Hilo and other districts within the territory of Hawaii, violates the 5th Amendment to the Constitution, in that it takes from such person his property without due process of law, and violates the 14th Amendment in that it makes an arbitrary classification, and discriminates between persons engaged in the same occupation in the territory of Hawaii, posing of exceptions on non-Federal grounds prior to the act of March 3, 1905, enlarging the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court over the territorial court, cannot be taken by treating the writ as addressed to a later judgment of that court, quashing a writ of error to the trial court, which judgment was not formally entered until long after the writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court was sued out, where to regard the entry as relating back to the time when the opinion of the court was announced would, if the same rule be applied to the nunc pro tunc entry of the judgment of the trial court, require an affirmance of the judgment of the territorial supreme court on the ground that the writ of error to the trial court was not sued out in time. Ibid.

A writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the supreme court of the territory of Hawaii, which would not lie when final judgment was entered, cannot be sustained as an exercise of the appellate jurisdiction conferred by the act of March 3, 1905, § 3, amending the act of April 30, 1900, § 86, because a petition for rehearing which the territorial supreme court entertained and acted upon was not denied by that court until after the later statute went into effect. Harrison v. Magoon, supra.

But a judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court did not become final before the enactment of the act of March 3, 1905, and hence not reviewable in the Federal Supreme Court under that act, where, although the opinion was filed prior to that enactment, a petition for rehearing was duly filed and entertained by the court, and was not denied until after the passage of such statute. William W. Bierce v. Waterhouse 219 U. S. 320, 55 L. ed. 237, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 241.

A writ of error to review a judgment of the supreme court of Hawaii in an action of ejectment will not be dismissed on the ground that the value of the land in dispute is less than $5,000, where the contrary sufficiently appears by affidavits in the record and in the Federal Supreme Court. Spreckels v. Brown, 212 U. S. 208, 53 L. ed. 476, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 256.

The owners of real property are not estopped by their tax returns under oath, valuing such property at less than $5,000, from asserting that such property has that value, in order to sustain the jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court of a writ of error to review a judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court in an action of ejectment. Ibid.

A writ of error from the Supreme Court of the United States to the Hawaiian supreme court to review a judgment sustaining an assessment for taxation will not lie under the act of March 3, 1905, § 3, where the amount of the tax assessed is less than the jurisdictional amount prescribed by that section. Honolulu Rapid Transit & Land Co. v. Wilder, 211 U. S. 144, 53 L. ed. 124, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 46.

A property owner and taxpayer has no such personal interest in a suit brought by him to restrain territorial officers from exchanging certain public lands of the territory of Hawaii for other lands as will sustain a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to review a judgment of the territorial supreme court, denying the relief sought, where the suit is grounded on the theory that the proposed exchange is illegal under the territorial laws because the lands sought to be exchanged are under lease and are in parcels of mere than 1,000 acres. McCandless v. Pratt, 211 U. S. 437, 53 L. ed. 271, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 144.

There is no final judgment below to sustain an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from the supreme court of the territory of Hawaii in a case in which the latter court has pursued the usual course upon exceptions, and has not entered or directed a judgment. Hutchins v. William W. Bierce, 211 U. S. 429, 53 L. ed. 267, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 122.

And the mere entry upon the minutes by the clerk of the supreme court of the territory of a decision overruling exceptions taken under Haw. Rev. Laws 1905, § 1862 et seq., which did not bring up the whole case, and called upon the reviewing court merely to pass upon specific questions raised by the bill, does not make such decision a final judgment, so as to be subject to review in the Federal Supreme Court. Cotton and denies the plaintiff in error the equal protection of the law.

Ho Ah Kow v. Nunan, 5 Sawy. 552, Fed. Cas. No. 6,546; State v. Mitchell, 97 Me. 66, 94 Am. St. Rep. 481, 53 Atl. 887; State v. Shedroi, 75 Vt. 277, 63 L.R.A. 179, 98 Am. St. Rep. 825, 54 Atl. 1081, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 129; Ex parte Deeds, 75 Ark. 542, 87 S. W. 1030; Re Yot Sang, 75 Fed. 983; Cope's Estate, 191 Pa. 1, 45 L.R.A. 316, 71 Am. St. Rep. 749, 43 Atl. 79; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 704, 28 L. ed. 1145, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Ex parte Jentzsch, 112 Cal. 468, 32 L.R.A. 664, 44 Pac. 803; Luman v. Hitchens Bros. Co. 90 Md. 14, 46 L.R.A. 393, 44 Atl. 1051; Evansville v. State, 118 Ind. 426, 4 L.R.A. 93, 21 N. E. 267; State v. Cadigan, 73 Vt. 245, 57 L.R.A. 666, 87 Am. St. Rep. 714, 50 Atl. 1079; State v. Wiggin, 64 N. H. 508, 1 L.R.A. 56, 15 Atl. 128; Sayre v. Phillips, 148 Pa. 482, 16 L.R.A. 49, 33 Am. St. Rep. 842, 24 Atl. 76; State ex rel. Hoadley v. Insurance Comrs. 37 Fla. 564, 33 L.R.A. 288, 20 So. 772; Rossmiller v. State, 114 Wis. 169, 58 L.R.A. 93, 91 Am. St. Rep. 910, 89 N. W. 839; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; State v. Loomis, 115 Mo. 307, 21 L.R.A. 789, 22 S. W. 350; Stratton Claimants v. Morris Claimants (Dibrell v. Lanier) 89 Tenn. 497, 12 L.R.A. 70, 15 S. W. 87; Bell's Gap R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Territory v. McDonald, 17 Haw. 389; South & North Ala. R. Co. v. Morris, 65 Ala. 193; Chicago, St. L. & N. O. R. Co. v. Moss, 60 Miss. 641; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Williams, 49 Ark. 492, 5 S. W. 883; Jolliffe v. Brown, 14 Wash. 155, 53 Am. St. Rep. 868, 44 Pac. 149; Grand Rapids Chair Co. v. Runnels, 77 Mich. 104, 43 N. W. 1006; San Antonio & A. P. R. Co. v. Wilson, 4 Tex. App. Civ. Cas. (Willson) 565, 19 S. W. 910; Atchison & N. R. Co. v. Baty, 6 Neb. 37, 29 Am. Rep. 356; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 195 U. S. 223, 49 L. ed. 169, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18; San Mateo County v. Southern P. R. Co. 13 Fed. 722; Santa Clara County v. Southern P. R. Co. 118 U. S. 394, 30 L. ed. 118, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1132; Territory v. Pottie, 19 Haw. 99; Raymond v. Chicago Union Traction Co. 207 U. S. 20, 52 L. ed. 78, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 7, 12 Ann. Cas. 757; Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Simon, 56 Fla. 545, 20 L.R.A.(N.S.) 126, 47 So. 1001, 16 Ann. Cas. 1234; Charles J. Off & Co. v. Morehead, 235 Ill. 40, 20 L.R.A.(N.S.) 167, 126 Am. St. Rep. 184, 85 N. E. 264, 14 Ann. Cas. 434; Cooley, Const. Lim. 4th ed. pp. 744, 745; Cooley, Taxn. 2d ed. 169, 170.

Mr. Charles R. Hemenway submitted the cause for defendant in error. Messrs. Alexander Lindsay, Jr., Attorney General of Hawaii, and E. W. Sutton, Deputy Attorney General of Hawaii, were on the brief:

The Hawaiian statute requiring a higher license fee for auctioneers in Honolulu than elsewhere is clearly constitutional, for the difference in license fee is based upon a difference not only in population, but in the amount of business transacted in different places.

---

v. Hawaii, 211 U. S. 162, 53 L. ed. 131, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 85.

But a judgment of the supreme court of Hawaii on a writ of error, overruling exceptions to a verdict and judgment in ejectment, and affirming the judgment, is final for the purpose of a review in the Supreme Court of the United States. Spreckels v. Brown, supra.

The order of the Hawaiian supreme court, reversing the order of the court below, granting a new trial, cannot be reviewed by the Federal Supreme Court on a writ of error directed alone to a later decision in the same case, overruling exceptions, the record of which cannot be regarded as embracing the proceedings had below in respect to the matter of a new trial. Cotton v. Hawaii, supra.

But the entire case is open for the consideration of the Federal Supreme Court on a writ of error to the Hawaiian supreme court, to review a judgment of that court, which, on a second writ of error, affirmed a judgment below, entered pursuant to its mandate, issued on the first writ of error. William W. Bierce v. Waterhouse, supra.

Errors assigned in the supreme court of Hawaii, but passed by it without decision, are open for review in the Federal Supreme Court on writ of error, if that court finds that the former court erred in reversing the judgment of the trial court upon the single error considered. Ibid.

Concurrent findings of the two lower courts on the question as to what is the correct English translation of a will written in the Hawaiian language will be followed by the Supreme Court of the United States on appeal from the Hawaiian supreme court. Gray v. Noholoa, 214 U. S. 108, 53 L. ed. 931, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 571.

The question whether the original judgment creditors alone can sue on a judgment rendered in favor of a trustee and the beneficiary, where a new trustee has since been appointed successor in the trust, and the former trustee has assigned the judgment to him, is a pure matter of form, on which the Federal Supreme Court, when reviewing a judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court, will not go behind the local practice. Kalanianaole v. Smithies, 226 U. S. 462, post, 303, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 6th ed. 479–481; Giozza v. Tiernan, 148 U. S. 657, 661, 37 L. ed. 559, 601, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 721; Soon Hing v. Crowley, 113 U. S. 703, 28 L. ed. 1145, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 71, 30 L. ed. 578, 580, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; State v. O'Hara, 36 La. Ann. 93; State v. Schlier, 3 Heisk. 281; O'Hara v. State, 121 Ala. 28, 25 So. 622; Texas Banking & Ins. Co. v. State, 42 Tex. 636; East St. Louis v. Wehrung, 46 Ill. 392; W. W. Cargill Co. v. Minnesota, 180 U. S. 452, 45 L. ed. 619, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 423; Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 338, 354, 52 L. ed. 236, 243, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Bachtel v. Wilson, 204 U. S. 36, 51 L. ed. 357, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Bell's Gap. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 134 U. S. 232, 33 L. ed. 892, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533; Strange v. Grant County, 173 Ind. 640, 91 N. E. 242; State v. Mitchell, 97 Me. 70, 94 Am. St. Rep. 481, 53 Atl. 887; Missouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22, 25 L. ed. 989; First American Sav. & T. Co. v. Campbell, 19 Haw. 263.

Whether the judgment of the legislature as to the amount of difference in the rate of charge was unwise or even possibly oppressive in the opinion of this court, that of itself would not be sufficient cause for declaring the statute passed pursuant to such judgment violative of the equal protection clause of the Constitution. It is not sufficient ground for holding such a statute unconstitutional that it may possibly be arbitrary and unreasonable, but it must be as a matter of fact actually arbitrary and unreasonable.

Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 338, 52 L. ed. 236, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Bachtel v. Wilson, 204 U. S. 36, 51 L. ed. 357, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; First American Sav. & T. Co. v. Campbell, 19 Haw. 262; Ozan Lumber Co. v. Union County Nat. Bank, 207 U. S. 251, 52 L. ed. 195, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 89; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 42 L. ed. 1037, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 578, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Missouri v. Lewis (Bowman v. Lewis) 101 U. S. 22, 25 L. ed. 989; Clark v. Kansas City, 176 U. S. 114, 119, 44 L. ed. 392, 397, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284.

The construction placed upon the Hawaiian statute by the supreme court of Hawaii, upon the facts involved and the meaning of the statute, although not decisive, is entitled to great consideration, and should be followed by this court unless manifest error appear.

Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 586, 43 L. ed. 1093, 1096, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Illinois, 163 U. S. 142, 152, 41 L. ed. 107, 110, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1096; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 134 U. S. 418, 456, 33 L. ed. 970, 980, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 209, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 462, 702; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 97, 43 L. ed. 910, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Dower v. Richards, 151 U. S. 658, 672, 38 L. ed. 305, 310, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 452, 17 Mor. Min. Rep. 704; Egan v. Hart, 165 U. S. 193, 41 L. ed. 682, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 300; Copper Queen Consol. Min. Co. v. Territorial Bd. of Equalization, 206 U. S. 474, 479, 51 L. ed. 1143, 1146, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 695; Kealoha v. Castle, 210 U. S. 149, 154, 52 L. ed. 998, 1001, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 684.

Mr. Justice Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

The plaintiff in error was convicted in the district court of Honolulu, Hawaii, of the offense of selling goods at auction, in Honolulu, without an auctioneer's license, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $600 and costs. The supreme court affirmed the conviction and the case comes here on error.

In order to obtain a license for auction sales it was necessary to pay the fee prescribed by § 1343 of the Revised Laws of the territory of Hawaii, which provides:

"The annual fee for a license to sell goods, wares, and merchandise or other property at auction shall be $600 for the district of Honolulu, and $15 for each other taxation district."

An agreed statement of facts showed that the plaintiff in error was the agent of the corporation known as the "Hawaiian Fisheries, Limited," which handled fish daily for a large number of fishermen. The catch was brought to the market in Honolulu, where the plaintiff in error offered it in basket lots, each basket containing from 70 to 100 pounds, to the retail dealers of fish only, the one bidding the highest price becoming the purchaser.

The plaintiff in error contended in the territorial court that he did not sell at auction within the meaning of the statute, and further, that the statute, if it was applicable, denied to him the equal protection of the laws, contrary to the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States, because of the discrimination between the *district of Honolulu and [191 other districts in the amount of the license fees imposed.

The supreme court of Hawaii assumed, as the plaintiff in error argues, that the word "auction" in § 1343 means public auction. This conclusion was reached in the light of the requirement of § 1345, that the bond to be given by the person receiving the license should contain a provision that he will not sell "except at public auction;" and the court ruled that the sales conducted by the plaintiff in error were sales at public auction within the contemplation of the statute, although bids were accepted only from the retail dealers or the persons conducting fish tables at the market. This ruling presents no Federal question, and hence is not reviewable here, as only such questions are before us upon this writ of error as could be raised upon a writ of error to a state court. Act of April 30, 1900, chap. 339, § 86, 31 Stat. at L. 141, 158; Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308, 309, 47 L. ed. 190, 191, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep 123; Notley v. Brown, 208 U. S. 429, 440, 52 L. ed. 559, 563, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 385. In view of the amount involved, the case cannot in any view come within the amendment made by the act of March 3, 1905, chap. 1465, § 3, 33 Stat. at L. 1035; Honolulu Rapid Transit & Land Co. v. Wilder, 211 U. S 144, 53 L. ed. 124, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 46.

The remaining contention, urged in various forms by the assignments of error, comes to the single point that the statute created an arbitrary classification. It cannot be said, however, that there was no reasonable basis for a distinction between Honolulu and other districts. And it was the province of the legislature to decide upon the amount of the fees which should be charged. It must be assumed that in so deciding it took into account varying conditions in the respective localities; as, for example, in the amount of business transacted and in the corresponding value of such licenses. Necessarily, as was said in Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 294, 42 L. ed 1037, 1043, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594, the power of classification "must have a wide range of discretion." It is not reviewable "unless palpa-192]bly *arbitrary." Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 562, 43 L. ed. 552, 554, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Melton, 218 U. S. 36, 52–55, 54 L. ed. 921, 927–929, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; Engel v. O'Malley, 219 U. S. 128, 55 L. ed. 128, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep 190; Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 220 U. S. 61, 78, 55 L. ed. 369, 377, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 337, Ann. Cas. 1912 C, 160; Mutual Loan Co. v. Martell, 222 U. S. 225, 235, 56 L. ed. 175, 179, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 74. With its intimate knowledge of local conditions, the supreme court of the territory said upon this point: "The great bulk of the business of the territory is done in Honolulu. It is not for us to say whether we would make the difference in the amount of license fees in this case as large as the legislature has made it. It is sufficient that we cannot say that the difference is unreasonable, or that the statute is unequal or arbitrary in its operation." [19 Haw. 651.] We find no ground for a different conclusion.

Judgment affirmed.

---

PURITY EXTRACT & TONIC COMPANY and the United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, Plffs. in Err.,

v.

C. C. LYNCH.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 192–205.)

Commerce — state regulation — sales — malt liquors.

1. The decision of a state court sustaining the defense of illegality, under Miss. Laws 1908, chap. 115, prohibiting the sale of malt liquors, to a suit brought by a nonresident manufacturer of a beverage to recover the amount which a local dealer agreed to pay for the exclusive right to make local sales, does not involve the denial of any right incident to interstate commerce, where such agreement contained no suggestion that the contemplated resales were to be made in the original imported packages, but was broad enough to include other sales, and hence encountered the local statute as applied to transactions outside the protection accorded by the Federal Constitution to interstate commerce.

[For other cases, see Commerce, IV. b, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — original packages — malt liquors — bottle.

2. Each separate bottle shipped into the state by a manufacturer to a local dealer under a contract by the terms of which the agreed prices were per cask containing 10 dozen bottles, and per case containing 6 dozen bottles, cannot be considered an original package, so as to save the local sales from the interdiction of Miss. Laws 1908, chap. 115, prohibiting sales of malt liquors.

[For other cases, see Commerce, IV. b, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — police power — prohibiting sales of malt liquors.

3. Local sales of malt liquors, whether intoxicants or not, may be forbidden by the state in the exercise of its police power, as is done by Miss. Laws 1908, chap. 115,

---

NOTE.—As to the original package doctrine generally—see note to Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Adams, 39 L. ed. U. S. 311.

As to what constitutes an original or unbroken package—see note to State v. Maire, 39 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1051.

Power to prohibit or regulate the sale of "soft" drinks—see note to Tolliver v. Blizzard, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 890.

without infringing the prohibition of U. S. Const., 14th Amend., against taking liberty or property without due process of law.
[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 479–481, 895–903, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 464.]

Submitted October 28, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Mississippi to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Hinds County, in that state, sustaining the defense of illegality under a state law to a suit brought by a nonresident manufacturer of malt liquor to recover the amount which a local dealer agreed to pay for the exclusive right to make local sales. Affirmed.

See same case below, 100 Miss. 650, 56 So. 316.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Marcellus Green submitted the cause for plaintiffs in error. Messrs. G. W. Green and Marcellus Green, Jr., were on the brief:

Chapter 113, § 1, as interpreted by the supreme court of the state of Mississippi, in so far as it regulates the movement of "Poinsetta" in interstate commerce, violates the Federal Constitution.

Leisy v. Hardin, 135 U. S. 100, 34 L. ed. 128, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 36, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Bowman v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 125 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 700, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 823, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 869, 1062; Re Rahrer, 140 U. S. 545, 35 L. ed. 572, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 865; Brennan v. Titusville, 153 U. S. 289, 38 L. ed. 719, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 658, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Scott v. Donald, 165 U. S. 95, 41 L. ed. 643, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Vance v. W. A. Vandercook Co. 170 U. S. 441, 42 L. ed. 1102, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 674; Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; Schollenberger v. Pennsylvania, 171 U. S. 1, 43 L. ed. 49, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 757; Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. v. Philadelphia, 190 U. S. 160, 47 L. ed. 999, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 817; American Exp. Co. v. Iowa, 196 U. S. 133, 49 L. ed. 417, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 182; Pabst Brewing Co. v. Crenshaw, 198 U. S. 21, 49 L. ed. 927, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 552; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Foppiano v. Speed, 199 U. S. 504, 50 L. ed. 289, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 461, 50 L. ed. 269, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 Ann. Cas. 737; Rearick v. Pennsylvania, 203 U. S. 508, 51 L. ed. 295, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 159; Adams Exp. Co. v. Kentucky, 214 U. S. 218, 53 L. ed. 972, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. F. W. Cook Brewing Co. 223 U. S. 81, 56 L. ed. 357, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 189.

The statute as interpreted by the supreme court of the state of Mississippi, in so far as it deprives plaintiff in error of the right to sell "Poinsetta," is in conflict with the 14th Amendment, in that thereby it attempts to deprive plaintiff in error of its property and liberty without due process of law.

Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 56, 49 L. ed. 941, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133; Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 662, 39 L. ed. 303, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Hudson County Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 355, 52 L. ed. 831, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 529, 14 Ann. Cas. 560; Welch v. Swasey, 214 U. S. 103, 53 L. ed. 929, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 567.

Mr. George D. Lancaster also submitted the cause for plaintiffs in error.

Mr. Edward Mayes submitted the cause for defendant in error. Messrs. Robert B. Mayes and James R. M'Dowell were on the brief:

The state did not exceed its police powers in attempting to prohibit the sale of malt liquors which are nonintoxicating.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 55 L. ed. 328, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 259; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Ah Sin v. Wittman, 198 U. S. 500, 49 L. ed. 1142, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 756; Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Kidd, D. & P. Co. v. Musselman Grocer Co. 217 U. S. 461, 54 L. ed. 839, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 606; Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Fuller v. Jackson, 97 Miss. 237, 30 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1078, 52 So. 877; Feibelman v. State, 130 Ala. 122, 30 So. 384; Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. pp. 150, 201, 849; Black, Intoxicating Liquors, § 34; Monroe v. Lawrence, 44 Kan. 607, 10 L.R.A. 520, 24 Pac. 1113; Pennell v. State, 141 Wis. 35, 123 N. W. 115; State ex rel. George v. Aiken, 42 S. C. 222, 26 L.R.A. 345, 20 S. E. 221; Stone v. Mississippi, 101 U. S. 814, 25 L. ed. 1079; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 660, 31 L. ed. 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Barbier v. Connolly 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357.

The object of the Wilson act was to aid, and not to hamper, the states in enforcing their prohibition laws.

17 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. 293, 294; Black, Intoxicating Liquors, §§ 34, 76–78; Tinker v. State, 90 Ala. 638, 8 So. 814; Re Rahrer, 140 U. S. 545, 35 L. ed. 572, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 865; Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664.

When the court is called upon to construe the Wilson act, and to determine what it meant, it will say that the Wilson act meant to make all classes of liquors, whether intoxicating or not, the sale of which was prohibited by a state statute, to come within the provisions of the Wilson act.

See Pabst Brewing Co. v. Crenshaw, 198 U. S. 17, 49 L. ed. 925, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 552.

The container or box in which these bottles are packed is the original package.

17 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. 294, 295, and notes; Black, Intoxicating Liquors, § 75; Harrison v. State, 91 Ala. 62, 10 So. 30; Keith v. State, 91 Ala. 2, 10 L.R.A. 430, 8 So. 353; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233.

Mr. Justice Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action for breach of contract. The Purity Extract & Tonic Company (plaintiff below), a Tennessee corporation, is the manufacturer of a beverage called "Poinsetta;" and in November, 1910, it made an agreement with the defendant. Lynch, for the purchase of the article by him on stated terms during the period of five years. The agreement contemplated resales by the defendant in Hinds county, Mississippi, to the making of which he was to devote his best efforts. It was provided that he was to sell only in that county, where he was to have the exclusive right of sale, for which he was to pay to the plaintiff the sum of $500 within five days after the making of the contract. It was to recover this amount that the action was brought, the defendant having repudiated the agree 198]ment at the outset, *upon the ground that, on coming to Mississippi, he found it to be unlawful to sell "Poinsetta" in that state. The trial court sustained the defense of illegality, and its judgment was affirmed by the supreme court of Mississippi. 100 Miss. 650, 56 So. 316.

The statute which the agreement has been held to violate is chapter 115 of the Laws of Mississippi of 1908, § 1, which includes in its prohibition the sale of malt liquors.

The case was tried upon an agreed statement of facts in which the characteristics of "Poinsetta" are set forth at length. In substance, the statement is that it is composed of pure distilled water to the extent of 90.45 per cent, the remaining 9.55 per cent being solids derived from cereals, "which are in an unfermented state, and are wholesome and nutritious;" that "it contains 5.73 per cent of malt, and is sold as a beverage;" that it does not contain either alcohol or saccharine matter, being manufactured in such a manner under a secret formula obtained from German scientists as to bring neither into its composition; that it is not intoxicating; that its taste and odor are distinctive; that its appearance is such that "it would not probably be mistaken for any intoxicating liquor;" and that it "cannot be employed as a subterfuge for the sale of beer, because it is bottled in a distinctive way, and its name blown in each bottle which contains the beverage." It is further agreed that "the United States government does not treat Poinsetta as within the class of intoxicating liquors, and does not require anything to be done with reference to its sale."

The state court, following its decision in Fuller v. Jackson, 97 Miss. 237, 30 L.R.A (N.S.) 1078, 52 So. 873, construed the statute as prohibiting the sale of all malt liquors, whether in fact intoxicating or not, and this construction of the state law is binding here. The court said: "Poinsetta may or may not be an intoxicant, but it is a malt liquor, and as such *is prohibited[199 from being sold in this state. The prohibition law cannot be made effective unless it excludes all subterfuges." (100 Miss. 650, 657, 56 So. 316.)

The agreed statement of facts also contained the following: "Poinsetta is put up in bottles at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and is shipped in bottles, each separate and apart from the other, placed in a case to which they are in no way attached, and which is done merely to prevent breakage of the bottles in transit. The case is not fastened with nails or other device, but merely closed. The bottles so contained are shipped in interstate commerce from Chattanooga, Tennessee, and are to be received under the contract by the consignee in Mississippi in the same condition as when bottled, and are to be sold as each several package. There is to be no retail sale under such right by said Lynch in the state of Mississippi, but all shipments are to be made direct either to said Lynch, or to other persons who shall desire to purchase said drink, and are to be delivered to said purchasers of said bottles in precisely the same shape as prepared in Tennessee, and said Poinsetta is still contained in the original package at the time it will be offered for sale in Mississippi by the purchaser thereof in the original package, which was sent from Tennessee through Alabama into Mississippi."

The plaintiff brings this writ of error, assailing the validity of the statute, as construed by the state court, (1) as an unconstitutional interference with interstate commerce and (2) as depriving the plaintiff of its liberty and property without due process of law.

First. We do not find that the decision of the state court involves a denial of any right incident to interstate commerce. The contract, it is true, provided for purchases by the defendant from the plaintiff, the deliveries to be made at Chattanooga, Tennessee, for transportation to the defendant at Jackson, Mississippi. So far as appears, however, there were no purchases and no de-[200]liveries. The *reason obviously is that the agreement looked to resales by the defendant in Hinds county. Finding that such sales would be against the local law, he refused performance in limine. The state court did not deny to the plaintiff the right to sell to the defendant, or to have its article transported and delivered to the defendant in interstate commerce. (Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664, Louisville & N. R. Co. v. F. W. Cook Brewing Co. 223 U. S. 70, 82, 56 L. ed. 355, 358, 32 Sup. Ct Rep. 189.) It had no such question before it. This suit was brought to recover the amount which the defendant promised to pay for the exclusive right of making sales in Hinds county. In this aspect, the validity of the contract under the state law was to be judged by its provisions for sales within the state. The contract contained no suggestion that these sales were to be limited to those made in the original packages imported. Its provisions were broad enough to include other sales, and hence encountered the local statute as applied to transactions outside the protection accorded by the Federal Constitution to interstate commerce.

Nor is the contention of the plaintiff aided by the agreed statement of facts. This statement, in one of its clauses, says that there was to be "no retail sale" by the defendant. Whatever this may mean in the light of the words of the contract, which contained no such limitation, it is clear that the defendant was not debarred from selling the bottles separately. On the contrary, the argument for the plaintiff is that "each bottle," brought into the state in cases as described, constitutes "an original package." As to this, it is to be noted that by the terms of the contract the agreed prices on the purchases by the defendant from the plaintiff were per cask containing 10 dozen bottles and per case containing 6 dozen bottles, respectively. In short, the plain purpose was that the defendant was to buy in casks and cases, and in the light of the transactions thus contemplated, and. [201]as they would *be normally conducted, between the plaintiff as manufacturer and the defendant as local dealer, it cannot be said that each separate bottle which he might sell in Hinds county must be considered as an original package, so as to save the sale from the interdiction of the state law. May v. New Orleans, 178 U. S 496, 44 L. ed. 1165, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 976; Austin v. Tennessee, 179 U. S. 343, 45 L. ed. 224, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Cook v Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233. We are therefore not called upon to consider whether or not the Wilson act (August 8, 1890, chap. 728, 26 Stat. at L. 313, U. S. Comp Stat. 1901, p. 3177) governs in the case of such an article as "Poinsetta," and, confining ourselves to the issue presented, we express no opinion upon that point.

Second. Treating the matter, then, as one of local sales, the question is whether the prohibitory law of the state, as applied to a beverage of this sort, is in conflict with the 14th Amendment.

That the state, in the exercise of its police power, may prohibit the selling of intoxicating liquors, is undoubted. Bartemeyer v. Iowa, 18 Wall. 129, 21 L. ed. 929; Boston Beer Co. v. Massachusetts, 97 U. S. 25, 24 L ed. 989; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 346, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 232, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6; Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 86, 34 L. ed. 620, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13. It is also well established that, when a state exerting its recognized authority, undertakes to suppress what it is free to regard as a public evil, it may adopt such measures having reasonable relation to that end as it may deem necessary in order to make its action effective. It does not follow that because a transaction, separately considered, is innocuous, it may not be included in a prohibition the scope of which is regarded as essential in the legislative judgment to accomplish a purpose within the admitted power of the government. Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct Rep. 425; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Ah Sin v. Wittman, 198 U. S. 500, 504, 49 L. ed. 1142, 1144, 25 Sup. Ct Rep. 756; New York ex rel. Silz v. Hesterberg, 211 U. S. 31, 53 L ed. 75, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10; Murphy v. California, 225 U. S. 623, 56 L. ed. 1229, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 697. With the wisdom of the exercise of that judgment the court has no concern; and unless it clearly appears that *the enactment has no substantial re-[202]lation to a proper purpose, it cannot be said that the limit of legislative power has been transcended To hold otherwise would be to substitute judicial opinion of expediency for the will of the legislature,—a notion foreign to our constitutional system.

Thus, in Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425,

46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425, the defendant was convicted under a statute of that state which made it a criminal offense to give an option to buy grain at a future time. It was contended that the statute, as interpreted by the state court, was "not directed against gambling contracts relating to the selling or buying of grain or other commodities, but against mere options to sell or buy at a future time without any settlement between the parties upon the basis of differences, and therefore involving no element of gambling." The argument was that it directly forbade the citizen "from pursuing a calling which, in itself, involves no element of immorality." This court, in sustaining the judgment of conviction, said: "If, looking at all the circumstances that attend, or which may ordinarily attend, the pursuit of a particular calling, the state thinks that certain admitted evils cannot be successfully reached unless that calling be actually prohibited, the courts cannot interfere, unless looking through mere forms and at the substance of the matter, they can say that the statute enacted professedly to protect the public morals has no real or substantial relation to that object, but is a clear unmistakable infringement of rights secured by the fundamental law." It must be assumed, it was added, that "the legislature was of opinion that an effectual mode to suppress gambling grain contracts was to declare illegal all options to sell or buy at a future time;" and the court could not say that the means employed were not appropriate to the end which it was competent for the state to accomplish. (Id. pp. 429, 430 )

The same principle was applied in Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 47 L. ed. 323, 23 203]Sup. Ct. Rep. 168, *which dealt with the provision of the Constitution of California that all contracts for the sale of shares of the capital stock of any corporation, on margin, or to be delivered at a future day, should be void, and that any money paid on such contracts might be recovered. The objection urged against the provision in its literal sense was that the prohibition of all sales on margin bore no reasonable relation to the evil sought to be cured; but the court upheld the law, being unwilling to declare that the deep-seated conviction on the part of the people concerned as to what was required to effect the purpose could be regarded as wholly without foundation. (Id. pp. 609, 610.),

A strong illustration of the extent of the power of the state is found in New York ex rel. Silz v. Hesterberg, 211 U. S. 31, 53 L. ed. 75, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10. The state of New York, by its forest, fish, and game law, prohibited the possession of certain game during the close season. The statute covered game coming from without the state. It appeared that Silz was charged with the possession of plover and grouse which had been lawfully taken abroad during the open season and had been lawfully brought into the state; that these game birds were varieties different from those known as plover and grouse in the state of New York; that, although of the same families, in form, size, color, and markings, they could readily be distinguished from the latter; and that they were wholesome and valuable articles of food. This court affirmed the conviction, saying: "It is insisted that a method of inspection can be established which will distinguish the imported game from that of the domestic variety, and prevent confusion in its handling and selling. That such game can be distinguished from domestic game has been disclosed in the record in this case, and it may be that such inspection laws would be all that would be required for the protection of domestic game. But, subject to constitutional limitations, the legislature of the state is authorized to pass measures for the protection of the *people of the[204 state in the exercise of the police power, and is itself the judge of the necessity or expediency of the means adopted." It was pointed out that the prohibition in question had been found to be expedient in several states, "owing to the possibility that dealers in game may sell birds of the domestic kind under the claim that they were take in another state or country."

It was competent for the legislature of Mississippi to recognize the difficulties besetting the administration of laws aimed at the prevention of traffic in intoxicants. It prohibited, among other things, the sale of "malt liquors." In thus dealing with a class of beverages which, in general, are regarded as intoxicating, it was not bound to resort to a discrimination with respect to ingredients and processes of manufacture which, in the endeavor to eliminate innocuous beverages from the condemnation, would facilitate subterfuges and frauds and fetter the enforcement of the law. A contrary conclusion, logically pressed, would save the nominal power while preventing its effective exercise The statute establishes its own category. The question in this court is whether the legislature had power to establish it. The existence of this power, as the authorities we have cited abundantly demonstrate, is not to be denied simply because some innocent articles or transactions may be found within the proscribed class. The inquiry must be whether, considering the end in view, the statute passes the bounds of reason and assumes the character of a merely arbitrary fiat.

That the opinion is extensively held that a general prohibition of the sale of malt liquors, whether intoxicating or not, is a necessary means to the suppression of trade in intoxicants, sufficiently appears from the legislation of other states and the decision of the courts in its construction. State v. O'Connell, 99 Me. 61, 58 Atl. 59; State v. Jenkins, 64 N. H. 375, 10 Atl. 699; State v. York, 74 N. H. 125, 127, 65 Atl. 685, 13 Ann Cas. 116; State ex rel. Guil-205]bert v. Kauffman, 68 Ohio *St. 635, 67 N. E. 1002; Luther v. State, 83 Neb. 455, 20 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1146, 120 N. W. 125; Pennell v. State, 141 Wis. 35, 123 N. W 115. We cannot say that there is no basis for this widespread conviction.

The state, within the limits we have stated, must decide upon the measures that are needful for the protection of its people, and, having regard to the artifices which are used to promote the sale of intoxicants under the guise of innocent beverages, it would constitute an unwarrantable departure from accepted principle to hold that the prohibition of the sale of all malt liquors, including the beverage in question, was beyond its reserved power.

Judgment affirmed.

---

BUCK STOVE & RANGE COMPANY et al., Plffs in Err.,
v.
C. C. VICKERS et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 205-216.)

Statutes — revision — separation of parts of existing section.

1. The separation in the Revised Statutes of the United States of the several parts of a section of an existing statute according to an arrangement adopted for purposes of convenience only did not work any change in their purpose or meaning, in the absence of some substantial change in phraseology.

[For other cases, see Statutes, II. k, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — ruling on plea in abatement.

2. The power of the Federal Supreme Court upon a writ of error to a state court, to review a ruling of such state court upon a plea in abatement, is not affected by the provision of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1011, U. S. Comp. Stat 1901, p. 715, that there shall be no reversal in the Supreme Court of the United States for error in ruling any plea in abatement other than a plea to the jurisdiction of the court, but this enactment was intended to embrace only writs of error to the Federal circuit and district courts.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2209-2226, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — state regulation — foreign corporations.

3. The right of foreign corporations to do a purely interstate business within the state cannot, consistently with the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution, be restricted, as is attempted by Kan. Gen. Stat. 1905, § 1358, which requires such corporations, as a condition of their right to prosecute such business, to make and file with the secretary of state a complete and detailed statement exhibiting their financial condition, and provides that the obtaining of the certificate of the secretary of state that such statement has been properly made shall be a condition precedent to the right of the corporation to maintain an action in the Kansas courts.

[For other cases, see Commerce, IV., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 10.]

Argued December 19, 1911. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Kansas to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of Morris County in that state, sustaining pleas in abatement and dismissing suits brought by foreign corporations doing an interstate business for failure to comply with the Kansas laws. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 80 Kan 29, 101 Pac. 668.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Seneca N. Taylor and Malcolm B. Nicholson argued the cause, and, with Mr. William J. Pirtle, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

There is no misjoinder of plaintiffs in error.

Kansas City v. King, 65 Kan. 65, 68 Pac. 1093; Werner v. Hatton, 54 Kan. 250, 38 Pac. 279.

These plaintiffs in error having been engaged exclusively in interstate commerce, the application of the corporation laws of Kansas to them is repugnant to the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States, and such application cannot lawfully be made.

Stockard v. Morgan, 185 U. S. 27, 46 L.

---

NOTE.—For exclusion or conditional admission of foreign corporation as interference with interstate commerce—see note to Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Tuggart, 60 L.R.A. 677.

As to recognition or exclusion of foreign corporations generally—see note to Cone Export & Commission Co. v. Poole, 24 L.R.A. 289.

ed. 785, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat, 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 347; Robbins v. Taxing Dist. 120 U. S. 489, 30 L. ed. 694, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 592; Cooper Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson, 113 U. S. 727, 28 L. ed. 1137, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 739.

State statutes requiring foreign corporations to comply with certain conditions before doing business in the state have frequently been held inapplicable to a foreign corporation whose only business in the state is selling through traveling agents and delivering goods manufactured outside of the state, since any other construction of the statute would render it void as an interference with interstate commerce.

Havens & G. Co. v. Diamond, 93 Ill. App. 557; Coit & Co. v. Sutton, 102 Mich. 324, 25 L.R.A. 819, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 768, 60 N. W. 690; W. B. Mearshon & Co. v. Pottsville Lumber Co. 187 Pa. 12, 67 Am. St. Rep. 560, 40 Atl. 1019; Toledo Commercial Co. v. Glen Mfg. Co. 55 Ohio St. 217, 45 N. E. 197; Bateman v. Western Star Mill Co. 1 Tex. Civ. App. 90, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 260, 20 S. W. 931; Davis & R. Bldg. & Mfg. Co. v. Dix, 64 Fed. 406; Woessner v. H. J. Cottam & Co. 19 Tex. Civ. App. 611, 47 S. W. 678; Ft. Scott v. Pelton, 39 Kan. 764, 18 Pac. 954; New Orleans Gaslight Co. v. Louisiana Light & H. P. & Mfg. Co. 115 U. S. 650, 29 L. ed. 516, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 252.

These plaintiffs in error had a vested right to maintain and prosecute the suits to judgment.

Osborn v. Nicholson, 13 Wall. 654, 20 L. ed. 689; Fitzgerald v. Weidenbeck, 76 Fed. 695; Martindale v. Moore, 3 Blackf. 275; Root v. Sweeney, 12 S. D. 43, 80 N. W. 149; Elston v. Piggott, 94 Ind. 14; Maguiar v. Henry, 84 Ky. 1, 4 Am. St. Rep. 182; Yeatman v. Day, 79 Ky. 186; 8 Cyc. 932, Williams v. Bruffy, 96 U. S. 176, 24 L. ed. 716; Westerly Waterworks v. Westerly, 75 Fed. 181.

Mr. Stephen H. Allen argued the cause, and, with Mr. Robert Stone, filed a brief for defendants in error:

A joint assignment of error which cannot be sustained as to all who join therein is bad as to all.

2 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 933; 2 Cyc. 1003; Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. Hillmon, 145 U. S. 285, 36 L. ed. 706, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 909.

The statute, as construed by the supreme court of Kansas, and also by the circuit court of appeals, merely defeats the particular suit which is being prosecuted without compliance with it, and does not debar the plaintiff from commencing at some other time or in some other way.

State v. American Book Co. 69 Kan. 1, 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1041, 76 Pac. 411, 2 Ann. Cas. 56; Hamilton v. Reeves & Co. 69 Kan. 844, 76 Pac. 418; John Deere Plow Co. v. Wyland, 69 Kan. 255, 76 Pac. 863, 2 Ann. Cas. 304; Ryan Live-stock & Feeding Co. v. Kelly, 71 Kan. 874, 81 Pac. 470; Vickers v. Buck Stove & Range Co. 70 Kan. 586, 79 Pac. 160; Bostwick v. Brinkerhoff, 106 U. S. 3, 27 L. ed. 73, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 15; Grant v. Phœnix Mut. L. Ins. Co. 106 U. S. 429, 27 L. ed. 237, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 414; Benjamin v. Dubois, 118 U. S. 46, 30 L. ed. 52, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925; Harrington v. Holler (Crawford v. Haller) 111 U. S. 796, 28 L. ed. 602, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 697; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Wiswall, 23 Wall. 507, 23 L. ed. 103; Glencove Granite Co. v. City Trust, S. D. & Surety Co. 55 C. C. A. 212, 118 Fed. 386; Blodgett v. Lanyon Zinc Co. 58 C. C. A. 79, 120 Fed. 893.

The order of the court dismissing the action for failure to comply with the statute is therefore in substance and effect an order ruling a plea in abatement, and not subject to review in this court.

Robertson v. Coulter, 16 How. 106, 14 L. ed. 864; Stephens v. Monongahela Nat. Bank, 111 U. S. 197, 28 L. ed. 399, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 336.

A judgment for the costs which had accrued in the fruitless action does not amount to a final judgment which will support the jurisdiction of this court.

Internal Improv. Fund v. Greenough, 105 U. S. 527, 26 L. ed. 1157; Bostwick v. Brinkerhoff, 106 U. S. 3, 27 L. ed. 73, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 15; 13 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 34.

The right of a foreign corporation to exercise its corporate powers within a state other than that of its creation depends solely upon the will of such other state.

Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 177 U. S. 28, 44 L. ed. 657, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 518; New York v. Roberts, 171 U. S. 658, 43 L. ed. 323, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 19 L. ed. 357; Ducat v. Chicago, 10 Wall. 410, 19 L. ed. 972; Horn Silver Min. Co. v. New York, 143 U. S. 305, 36 L. ed. 164, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 57, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 403.

As this is the only question in fact presented by the record, we respectfully submit that it fails to present any question which this court has jurisdiction to determine, and that the writ of error herein should therefore be dismissed.

Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 212 U. S. 112, 53 L. ed. 431, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 227.

A state has a right to its own public policy, and may impose on foreign corporations the same restrictions it imposes on domestic ones.

Hooper v. California, 155 U. S. 648, 39 L. ed. 297, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 610, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Diamond Glue Co. v. United States Glue Co. 187 U. S. 611, 47 L. ed. 328, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

The act deals exclusively with the exercise of corporate powers,—a subject over which the power of the legislature is absolute.

Osborne v. Florida, 164 U. S. 650, 41 L. ed. 586, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214; Pullman Co. v. Adams, 189 U. S. 420, 47 L. ed. 877, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 494; Allen v. Pullman's Palace Car Co. 191 U. S. 171, 48 L. ed. 134, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 39; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 177 U. S. 28, 44 L. ed. 657, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 518; New York v. Roberts, 171 U. S. 658, 43 L. ed. 323, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58.

In Security Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Prewitt, 202 U. S. 246, 257, 50 L. ed. 1013, 1018, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 619, 6 Ann. Cas. 317, the power of the state to revoke all authority to do business in the state for a clearly unconstitutional reason was upheld by this court. In the case now before the court the exercise of one corporate power only is suspended until the law is complied with. All corporations, domestic as well as foreign, are subject to the same disability under the same circumstances. The requirement of the law for which the exclusion is made is not unreasonable or unusual in the legislation of the states, and but for the decision in the case of International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A. (N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481, 18 Ann. Cas. 1103, could hardly be said to be clearly invalid or unconstitutional. 19 Cyc. 1298.

Mr. Justice Van Devanter delivered the opinion of the court:

By suits begun in the district court of Morris county, Kansas, and consolidated for purposes of trial and judgment, seven judgment creditors of one Vickers sought to set aside, as fraudulent, a conveyance by him, [212] and to subject the land included therein to the satisfaction of their several judgments. The plaintiffs were corporations organized under the laws of states other than Kansas, and four of them were doing a purely interstate business in that state, but without complying with its laws presently to be mentioned. The defendants set up this noncompliance by an answer in the nature of a plea in abatement, and the court sustained the plea and dismissed the suits as to the four plaintiffs. As to the other three plaintiffs, relief was denied for other reasons, which need not be stated. The judgment was affirmed by the supreme court of the state, against the contention that the laws of Kansas under which the plea in abatement was sustained are violative of the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States (80 Kan. 29, 101 Pac. 668), and then the case was brought here.

Some minor questions of appellate practice were urged upon our attention, but their statement and consideration have become unnecessary through the concession of counsel for plaintiffs in error, made during the oral argument and acted upon at the time, that the writ of error might be dismissed as to the Aultman and Miller Buckeye Company, the Consolidated Steel & Wire Company, and the Galveston Rope Company. Therefore, attention need be given only to the ruling upon the plea in abatement.

Our power to review this ruling is challenged, because of the statutory provision that there shall be no reversal in this court upon a writ of error "for error in ruling any plea in abatement, other than a plea to the jurisdiction of the court." Rev. Stat. § 1011, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 715. This provision has been part of the judiciary acts from the beginning, and often has been applied upon writs of error to the circuit and district courts, but never to a case coming here from a state court. Piquignot v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 16 How. 104, 14 L. ed. 863, and Stephens v. Monongahela Nat. Bank, 111 U. S. 197, 28 L. ed. 399, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 336, illustrate its application in cases brought here from circuit [213] courts, and International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A. (N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481, 18 Ann. Cas. 1103, and International Textbook Co. v. Lynch, 218 U. S. 664, 54 L. ed. 1201, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225, are cases in which it was not applied upon writs of error to state courts This difference in the treatment of the two classes of cases has not been inadvertent, but deliberate, and the reason for it is at once apparent when § 22 of the original judiciary act (1 Stat. at L. 84, chap. 20) is examined. The provision originated in that section and was there associated with other provisions which unmistakably show that it was intended to embrace only writs of error to the circuit and district courts. At the time of the revision in 1873, § 22 was divided into several shorter sections and included in the revision according to an arrangement, adopted for purposes of convenience only, whereby the several parts of the original section became more or less separated; but that, in the absence of some substantial change in phraseology, did not work any change in their purpose or meaning. Rev. Stat. § 5600, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3751; Hyde v. United States, 225 U S. 361, 56 L. ed. 1123, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 793; McDonald v. Hovey, 110 U. S. 619, 28 L. ed. 269, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 142. This is a writ of error to a state court, and so our power to review the ruling upon the plea in abatement is not affected by § 1011.

The statute of Kansas under which the plea was sustained is embodied in the General Statutes of 1905, and provides, in §§ 1332-1336, that to entitle a corporation organized under the laws of another state to do business in Kansas it must (a) make application to, and obtain the permission of, the charter board of the state, (b) accompany its application with a fee of $25, (c) file with the secretary of state its irrevocable consent that process against it may be served upon that officer, (d) be organized for a purpose for which a domestic corporation may be organized, (e) pay to the state treasurer, for the benefit of the permanent school fund, a specified per cent of its authorized capital, and (f) file with the secretary of state a certified copy of its 214]charter. And by § 1358 the *statute provides that each corporation for profit, doing business in the state, except banking, insurance, and railroad corporations, shall annually prepare and deliver to the secretary of state a complete and detailed statement, exhibiting: "1st. The authorized capital stock. 2d. The paid-up capital stock. 3d. The par value and the market value per share of said stock. 4th. A complete and detailed statement of the assets and liabilities of the corporation. 5th. A full and complete list of the stockholders, with the postoffice address of each, and the number of shares held and paid by each. 6th. The names and postoffice addresses of the officers, trustees, or directors and manager elected for the ensuing year, together with a certificate of the time and manner in which such election was held." This section further provides that a failure to file such statement by any corporation doing business in the state, and not organized under its laws, shall work a forfeiture of the right or authority to do business in the state, and that "no action shall be maintained or recovery had in any of the courts of this state by any corporation doing business in this state without first obtaining the certificate of the secretary of state that statements provided for in this section have been properly made."

The four corporations against which the plea was sustained were corporations for profit, organized under the laws of states other than Kansas, were not banking, insurance, or railroad corporations, were doing business in Kansas,—a purely interstate business,—and had not complied with the statute just described. There can be no doubt, therefore, that if the statute, especially § 1358, is valid as against such corporations, the plea was rightly sustained; otherwise, it should have been overruled. So, the question for decision is whether, consistently with the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States, a state may thus restrict and burden the right to do interstate business within its limits. This precise *question was presented to this court[215 and decided in the negative in the case of International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481, 18 Ann. Cas. 1103,—a case in which the supreme court of Kansas had applied the provisions of § 1358 (§ 1283, Gen. Stat. 1901) to a corporation of another state, doing an interstate business in Kansas. And the decision of this court in that case was shortly thereafter followed in the similar case of International Textbook Co. v. Lynch, 218 U. S. 664, 54 L. ed 1201, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225, brought here on error to the supreme court of Vermont. It is due to the supreme court of Kansas to observe that this court's decision in the Pigg Case had not been made when that court's decision in the present case was given; but in saying this we would not be understood as implying that this case announced any new doctrine in the Pigg Case, for it but reiterated and applied principles which were already well recognized, as was shown in the earlier cases of Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 182, 19 L. ed. 357, 360; Cooper Mfg. Co. v. Ferguson, 113 U. S. 727, 734, 28 L. ed. 1137, 1139, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 739, and Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47, 56, 35 L. ed. 649, 652, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851.

As accurately reflecting what was held in the Pigg Case, we excerpt the following from the opinion of the court, delivered by Mr. Justice Harlan (pp. 109, 112):

" 'To carry on interstate commerce is not a franchise or a privilege granted by the state; it is a right which every citizen of the United States is entitled to exercise under the Constitution and laws of the United States; and that the accession of mere corporate facilities, as a matter of convenience in carrying on their business, cannot have the effect of depriving them of such right, unless Congress should see fit to interpose some contrary regulation on the subject'

. . . . . .

"How far a corporation of one state is entitled to claim in another state, where it is doing business, equality of treatment with individual citizens in respect of the right *to sue and defend in the courts,[216 is a question which the exigencies of this case do not require to be indefinitely decided. It is sufficient to say that the requirement of the statement mentioned in § 1283 [§ 1358, Gen. Stat. 1905] of the statute imposes a direct burden on the plaintiff's right to engage in interstate business, and therefore is in violation of its constitutional rights. It is the established doctrine of this court that a state may not, in any form or under any guise, directly burden the prosecution of interstate business. But such a burden is imposed when the corporation of another state, lawfully engaged in interstate commerce, is required, as a condition of its right to prosecute its business in Kansas, to make and file a statement setting forth certain facts which the state, confessedly, could not control by legislation It results that the provision as to the statement mentioned in § 1283 [§ 1358, Gen. Stat. 1905] must fall before the Constitution of the United States, and with it—according to the established rules of statutory construction—must fall that part of the same section which provides that the obtaining of the certificate of the secretary of state that such statement has been properly made shall be a condition precedent to the right of the plantiff to maintain an action in the courts of Kansas."

Following the decision in that case, we held that the statute upon which the plea in abatement was rested is unconstitutional and void, and that the plea should not have been sustained, but overruled.

The judgment is reversed as to the remaining plaintiffs in error, and the case is remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

Reversed.

Mr. Justice Pitney did not hear the argument or participate in the decision of this case.

---

217] *YAZOO & MISSISSIPPI VALLEY RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

JACKSON VINEGAR COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 217–220.)

Constitutional law — due process of law — equal protection of the laws — statutory penalty.

1. Neither due process of law nor the equal protection of the laws is denied to a carrier by the imposition under Miss. Laws 1908, chap. 196, of a penalty of $25 for the failure to settle a claim for damages to an intrastate shipment between two points on the carrier's line within sixty days from the giving of notice of the claim, where, upon the trial, the actual damages were assessed at the sum stated in the notice.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 279–284, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — who may assail validity.

2. A carrier, penalized under Miss. Laws 1908, chap. 196, for its failure to make reasonably prompt settlement of a claim which the judgment in the suit finds to be just in every respect, cannot urge that such statute is unconstitutional, in that it equally penalizes the failure to accede to an excessive or extravagant claim

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. d, 8, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 57.]

Submitted November 13, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of Hinds County, in the State of Mississippi, to review a judgment imposing a penalty upon a carrier for its failure to make prompt settlement of a claim for damages. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Edward Mayes and Charles N. Burch submitted the cause for plaintiff in error:

The constitutionality of a law is to be tested not by what has been done under it, in the specific instance, but by what may be done under it as a general rule.

Southern R. Co. v. Com. 107 Va. 771, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 364, 60 S. E. 70; Stuart v. Palmer, 74 N. Y. 191, 30 Am. Rep. 289; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. State, 26 Okla. 62, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 137, 107 Pac. 929; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Wynne, 224 U. S. 354, 56 L. ed. 799, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 102, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Sully v. American Nat. Bank, 178 U. S. 289, 299, 300, 44 L. ed. 1072, 1076, 1077, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 935; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 501, 52 L. ed. 297, 310, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Ballard v. Mississippi Cotton Oil Co. 81 Miss. 573, 62 L.R.A. 407, 95 Am. St. Rep. 476, 34 So. 533.

Mr. William H. Watkins submitted the cause for defendant in error:

It is a mistake to assume that the duty of a carrier ends merely with the delivery of the property intrusted to it for transportation. It owes to the parties in interest the duty not only to transport within a reasonable time, but to transport safely and without damage; and in the event loss or damage is had to the property during the transportation, then it becomes the duty of the carrier to compensate the injured party, and the duty to make compensation is just as high and just as binding on the carrier

NOTE.—As to constitutionality of statute imposing penalty or added liability for failure of carrier to pay claim—see note to Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Brandon, 42 L.R.A. (N.S.) 106.

Who may raise objection that a statute contains an unconstitutional discrimination —see note to Pugh v. Pugh, 32 L.R.A. (N.S.) 954.

after the loss or damage as any other duty incident thereto.

Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Seegers, 207 U. S. 73, 52 L. ed. 108, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Mazursky, 216 U. S. 122, 54 L. ed. 411, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 378.

It is the duty of this court to so construe a state statute, if possible, that the same will not be in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

Presser v. Illinois, 116 U. S. 252, 29 L. ed. 615, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 580; Marshall v. Grimes, 41 Miss. 31.

It may be that a legislative enactment on its face might be in violation of the fundamental law, but if it should appear that the supreme court of the state, in construing the act, had put such a construction upon it as would restrain its operation within constitutional boundaries, then such a construction would be binding upon the Supreme Court of the United States, although a literal construction of the statute would lead to a different result.

Kehrer v. Stewart, 197 U. S. 60, 49 L. ed. 663, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 403; Osborne v. Florida, 164 U. S. 650, 41 L. ed. 586, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214.

Railroad companies need not be, and will not be, liable for the penalty if they will simply comply with the spirit and purpose of the statute; that is to say, make a sincere and honest effort to ascertain the extent of the damage and make compensation for the same.

Mobile & O. R. Co. v. Brandon, 98 Miss. 461, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 106, 53 So. 957.

The question as to the justice of the claim cannot. of course, be raised by this court. The state court found that the claim was a correct claim for the full amount, and such finding is conclusive upon this court.

Chrisman v. Miller, 197 U. S. 313, 49 L. ed. 770, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 468; Hedrick v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 167 U. S. 673, 42 L. ed. 320, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 922; Thayer v. Spratt, 189 U. S. 346, 47 L. ed. 845, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Israel v. Arthur, 152 U. S. 355, 38 L. ed. 474, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; Quimby v. Boyd, 128 U. S. 488, 32 L. ed. 502, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 147.

218] *Mr. Justice Van Devanter delivered the opinion of the court:

This was an action to recover damages from a railway company for the partial loss of a shipment of vinegar carried over the company's line from one point to another in the state of Mississippi. This case originated in a justice's court and was taken on appeal to the circuit court of Hinds county, where the plaintiff recovered a judgment for actual damages and $25 as a statutory penalty. That being the highest court in the state to which the case could be carried, it was then brought here. The position of the railway company, unsuccessfully taken in the state court and now renewed, is that the Mississippi statute providing for the penalty is repugnant to the due process of law and equal protection clauses of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The statute reads:

"Railroads, corporations, and individuals engaged as common carriers in this state are required to settle all claims for lost or damaged freight which has been lost or damaged between two given points on the same line or system, within sixty days from the filing of written notice of the loss or damage with the agent at the point of destination; and where freight is handled by two or more roads or systems of roads, and is lost or damaged, claims therefor shall be settled within ninety days from the filing of written notice thereof, with the agent by consignee at the point of destination. A common carrier failing to settle such claims as herein required shall be liable to the consignee for $25 damages in each case, in addition to actual damages, all of which may be recovered in the same suit: Provided that this section shall only apply when the amount claimed is $200 or less." Laws 1908, 205, chap. 196

The facts showing the application made of the statute are these: The plain-[219 tiff gave notice of its claim in the manner prescribed, placing its damages at $4.76, and, upon the railway company's failure to settle within sixty days, sued to recover that sum and the statutory penalty. Upon the trial the damages were assessed at the sum stated in the notice, and judgment was given therefor, with the penalty. Thus, the claim presented in advance of the suit, and which the railway company failed to settle within the time allotted, was fully sustained.

As applied to such a case, we think the statute is not repugnant to either the due process of law or the equal protection clause of the Constitution, but, on the contrary, merely provides a reasonable incentive for the prompt settlement, without suit, of just demands of a class admitting of special legislative treatment. See Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Seegers, 207 U. S. 73, 52 L. ed. 108, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28; St Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Wynne. 224 U. S. 354, 56 L. ed. 799, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 102, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

Although seemingly conceding thus much, counsel for the railway company urge that the statute is not confined to cases like the present, but equally penalizes the failure to accede to an excessive or extravagant claim; in other words, that it contemplates the assessment of the penalty in every case where the claim presented is not settled within the time allotted, regardless of whether, or how much, the recovery falls short of the amount claimed. But it is not open to the railway company to complain on that score. It has not been penalized for failing to accede to an excessive or extravagant claim, but for failing to make reasonably prompt settlement of a claim which, upon due inquiry, has been pronounced just in every respect. Of course, the argument to sustain the contention is that, if the statute embraces cases such as are supposed, it is void as to them, and, if so void, is void in toto. But this court must deal with the case in hand, and not with imaginary ones. It suffices, therefore, 220]to *hold that, as applied to cases like the present, the statute is valid. How the state court may apply it to other cases, whether its general words may be treated as more or less restrained, and how far parts of it may be sustained if others fail, are matters upon which we need not speculate now. New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U S. 152, 160, 51 L. ed. 415, 422, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 Ann. Cas. 736; Lee v. New Jersey, 207 U. S. 67, 70, 52 L. ed. 106, 107, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 22; Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S 524, 534, 54 L. ed. 868, 871, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Collins v. Texas, 223 U. S. 288, 295, 56 L. ed. 439, 443, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 286; Standard Stock Food Co. v. Wright, 225 U. S. 540, 550, 56 L. ed 1197, 1201, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784.

The judgment is accordingly affirmed.

---

GERMAN ALLIANCE INSURANCE COMPANY, Petitioner,
v.
HOME WATER SUPPLY COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 220-234.)

Waters — contract for fire protection — breach — action by taxpayer.

1. A contract by a city with a water company for a water supply will not sustain an action against the company for a breach of its contractual obligations to furnish water for fire protection, brought by a taxpayer whose property was destroyed by fire as the result of such breach.

[For other cases, see Waters, III. a; Parties, I. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

NOTE.—As to liability of water company in tort for loss to one sustaining no contract relation with it, because of its failure to comply with its contract with the municipality—see notes to Mugge v. Tampa Waterworks Co. 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1171, and Hone v. Presque Isle Water Co. 21 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1021.

Waters — duty of water company to furnish fire protection — breach — action by taxpayer.

2. An action ex delicto cannot be maintained against a water company by a taxpayer whose property has been destroyed by fire in consequence of the company's failure to comply with its contract with the municipality to furnish water for fire protection.

[For other cases, see Waters, III. a; Parties, I. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 19.]

Argued April 26, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

ON WRIT of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court for the District of South Carolina, sustaining a demurrer to and dismissing the complaint in an action by an insurance company to recover from a water company because of its failure to furnish water for fire protection. Affirmed.

See same case below, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1005, 99 C. C. A. 258, 174 Fed. 764.

Statement by Mr. Justice Lamar:

"The Spartan Mills" owned a number of houses in Spartanburg, South Carolina. They were damaged by fire on March 25, 1907. The German Alliance Company, which had insured the buildings, paid $68,000, the amount of the loss, took from the mills an assignment "of all claims and demands against any person arising from or connected with the loss or damage," and brought suit, in the United States court for the district of South Carolina, against the Home Water Supply Company, on the ground that the fire could easily have been extinguished and the damage prevented if the water company had complied with its contract and duty to furnish the inhabitants of the city with water for fire protection.

The complaint alleged that on February 14, 1900, the city council adopted an ordinance, ratifying a contract, previously prepared, between the city and the water company, by which the latter was empowered, for a term of thirty-three years, to lay and maintain pipes in the streets and operate waterworks with which "to supply the city and its inhabitants with water suitable for fire, sanitary, and domestic purposes." The city agreed to use the hydrants *for the extinguishment of[222 fires and sprinkling purposes only; to make good any injury which might happen to them when used by its fire department; to pay rent for said fire protection, for the term of ten years, at the rate of $40 per year for each hydrant, and annually to levy a tax sufficient to pay what should become due under the contract.

The company agreed to lay at least 6 miles of pipe, but on sixty days' notice from the city would lay additional pipes and install hydrants, not less than ten to the mile, for each of which the city was to pay $40 per year.

The company agreed to keep all hydrants supplied with water for fire protection, and to maintain a height of at least 70 feet of water in the standpipe. If any hydrant remained out of order for more than twenty-four hours, after notice, the company was to pay the city $7 per week while each hydrant was unfit for use.

It was further alleged that in 1905 and 1906 the city ordered the company to "put in certain hydrants with connecting pipes," "which order, if obeyed, would have carried water protection to within about 200 feet of the building which first caught fire on March 25, 1907, instead of 650 feet, which was the distance of the nearest hydrant to the said fire on said day; that in violation of its duty and obligation to adequately protect the property from fire, and in defiance of the order of council, the defendant failed to make such extensions, and as a direct result there was no plug near enough to furnish water to extinguish said fire,—all due to the defendant's culpable and wilful negligence and disregard of duty and obligations to said city and its inhabitants."

Other breaches were charged, in laying 4-inch instead of 6-inch pipe; in neglecting to install the electric cut-off; and "in failing absolutely to furnish water with which to extinguish such fire and prevent its spreading to other houses."

The defendant made no question as to 223]the right of the *insurance company to maintain the action if the Spartan Mills could have done so, but filed a general demurrer which was sustained July 14, 1908. That judgment was affirmed November 4, 1909, by the circuit court of appeals (42 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1005, 99 C. C. A. 258, 174 Fed. 764), and the case was brought here by writ of certiorari.

Mr. Hartwell Cabell argued the cause, and, with Mr. Stanyarne Wilson, filed a brief for petitioner:

As to the bondholders, the decision in the supreme court of North Carolina in Fisher v. Greensboro Water Supply Co. 128 N. C. 375, 38 S. E. 912, created no estoppel, and therefore the question whether the facts relied upon by Fisher as a cause of action were such as satisfied the definition of the legal term "tort," as it is used in the statute, so as to entitle him to a preference, was open for decision by the Federal courts.

Brooks v. Burlington & S. W. R. Co. 101 U. S. 443, 25 L. ed. 1057; Hassall v. Wilcox, 130 U. S. 493, 32 L. ed. 1001, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 590.

If this contention be correct, it would follow that the conclusion reached both by the United States circuit court and by this court, that the facts found by the jury in Fisher v. Greensboro Water Supply Co. were sufficient to sustain a judgment for a tort, was germane to the issues, and that the case involved the decision of a question which had to be decided by the Federal courts in the affirmative in order to allow the judgment lien of Fisher a preference over the mortgage liens.

Mugge v. Tampa Waterworks Co. 52 Fla. 371, 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1171, 120 Am. St. Rep. 207, 42 So. 81; Ancrum v. Camden Water, Light & Ice Co. 82 S. C. 284, 21 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1029, 64 S. E. 151; Knuth v. Butte Electric R. Co. 148 Fed. 73.

The previous cases in North Carolina allowing recoveries against private water companies under similar circumstances (Gorrell v. Greensboro Water Supply Co. 124 N. C. 328, 46 L.R.A. 513, 70 Am. St. Rep. 598, 32 S. E. 720; Jones v. Durham Water Co. 135 N. C. 553, 47 S. E. 615) proceeded upon the theory of the right of the party aggrieved to recover in an action upon the contract with the municipality, holding that the contract had been entered into for the benefit of the inhabitants, and that therefore they were entitled to maintain an action thereon. There was therefore no "rule of property" in North Carolina arising out of numerous adjudications upon the construction of N. C. Code, § 1255, which Federal courts would feel inclined to follow.

Moreover, in Fisher v. Greensboro Water Supply Co. 128 N. C. 375, 38 S. E. 912, the supreme court of North Carolina did not undertake to construe or apply § 1255. As to Fisher's rights under that law, they refused to commit themselves, the bondholders not being before them, and that question not being raised by the record. They contented themselves by declaring that the facts found constituted a tortious injury, as that term is to be understood at common law.

But, even had they undertaken to construe the statute, this court could not have been bound by such construction in a case involving the rights of parties against whom there was no estoppel of record.

Swift v. Tyson, 16 Pet. 1, 10 L. ed. 865; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Baugh, 149 U. S. 368, 37 L. ed. 772, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 914; Venice v. Murdock, 92 U. S. 494, 501, 23 L. ed. 583, 585; Pleasant Twp. v. Ætna L. Ins. Co. 138 U. S. 67, 34 L. ed. 864, 11 Sup.

Ct. Rep. 315; Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 20, 34, 27 L. ed. 359, 365, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10.

The English courts from early times have held that when an individual or a private corporation, for valuable consideration, has contracted to render services of a public nature, such individual or corporation by operation of law becomes charged with a duty to the public, and may be held liable for the negligent discharge of that duty to any member of the public who may be injured thereby.

Lyme Regis v. Henley, 3 Barn. & Ad. 77; 5 Bing. 91; Payne v. Partridge, 1 Shower, K. B. 255; Lynn v. Turner, Cowp. pt. 1, p. 86; Mersey Docks v. Gibbs, 11 H. L. Cas. 686, 35 L. J. Exch. N. S. 225, L. R. 1 H. L. 93, 12 Jur. N. S. 571, 14 L. T. N. S. 677, 14 Week. Rep. 872.

The same doctrine has received general recognition in the courts of this country. The liability of railroad companies, electric light and gas companies, and other and similar quasi public corporations, for their negligence, irrespective of contract, is too well settled to require citation of authorities. Many other callings of a public nature have been held to be within the same rule of responsibility.

Robinson v. Chamberlain, 34 N. Y. 389, 90 Am. Dec. 713; Fulton F. Ins. Co. v. Baldwin, 37 N. Y. 648; Little v. Banks, 85 N. Y. 258; Lampert v. Laclede Gaslight Co. 14 Mo. App. 376; Appleby v. State, 45 N. J. L. 161.

The right of a private citizen to recover as for a tort against a water company whose failure to furnish adequate water for fire protection has caused damage has been sustained in a number of cases.

Paducah Lumber Co. v. Paducah Water Supply Co. 89 Ky. 340, 7 L.R.A. 77, 25 Am. St. Rep. 536, 12 S. W. 554, 13 S. W. 249; Griffin v. Goldsboro Water Co. 122 N. C. 206, 41 L.R.A. 240, 30 S. E. 319; Fisher v. Greensboro Water Supply Co. 128 N. C. 375, 38 S. E. 912; Mugge v. Tampa Waterworks Co. 52 Fla. 371, 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1171, 120 Am. St. Rep. 207, 42 So. 81.

It is well known that when a company undertakes to supply a town with water, the ordinary methods to obtain water to extinguish fires are abandoned by the people; and under such circumstances it would be gross negligence in the company to permit the supply of water to be intermitted or diminished to any considerable extent, and thus endanger the property within the town.

State, Olmsted, Prosecutor, v. Morris Aqueduct, 46 N. J. L. 495.

The assumption that water for fire purposes is furnished to the city, and not to its inhabitants, and that therefore the company is not engaged in a public service, is untenable.

Planters' Oil Mill v. Monroe Waterworks & Light Co. 52 La. Ann. 1250, 27 So. 684; Ferris v. Carson Water Co. 16 Nev. 44, 40 Am. Rep. 485; Bonaparte v. Camden & A. R. Co. Baldw. 223, Fed. Cas. No. 1,617; Kiernan v. Metropolitan Constr. Co. 170 Mass. 378, 49 N. E. 648; Washington v. Washington Water Co. 70 N. J. Eq. 254, 62 Atl. 390; Public Service Corp. v. American Lighting Co. 67 N. J. Eq. 122, 57 Atl. 482.

Some courts have held that in furnishing a supply of water for fire purposes, the water company is acting as a governmental agency,—a delegate of the municipality; and since the city cannot be held liable for failure to supply water for such purposes, even when it has undertaken to do so, neither can a water company be held liable.

Britton v. Green Bay & Ft. H. Waterworks Co. 81 Wis. 48, 29 Am. St. Rep. 856, 51 N. W. 84; Nichol v. Huntington Water Co. 53 W. Va. 348, 44 S. E. 290; Akron Waterworks Co. v. Brownless, 10 Ohio C. C. 620, 5 Ohio C. D. 1.

The conclusion reached in these cases is due to a confusion of ideas which should have been kept quite distinct. When governmental functions are delegated to a municipality, the immunity of the sovereign from suits by its subjects accompanies their exercise by the municipality. The individual property owner is without a remedy against the city, simply because the city, in providing fire protection, exercises the sovereign power of the state, and hence cannot be sued. As the court of appeals of New York said in Springfield F. & M. Ins. Co. v. Keeseville, 148 N. Y. 46, 30 L.R.A. 660, 51 Am. St. Rep. 667, 42 N. E. 405, if the defendant (the municipality) assumes a governmental function, then it comes under the sanction of the rule which exempts governments from suits by citizens.

But it is a non sequitur to say that because a municipality is not liable to individuals, a private water company which undertakes to perform the same acts is also not liable. When a municipal corporation does these acts it is a discretionary agent of the state, performing a function of sovereignty, and simply cannot be sued; while the water company does not represent the state, and enjoys no such exemption.

People ex rel. Mills Waterworks Co. v. Forrest, 97 N. Y. 97.

To hold, as the cases cited above do hold, that the exemption of the municipality from suit by individuals is due to the public and general character of the beneficiary, and that therefore the water company, which serves the same purpose, is also exempt, is to overlook the very basis of municipal nor liability. The question is not one of beneficiaries at all, but of a technical exemption from suit, granted on grounds of public policy to cities and other municipal corporations, but denied to private corporations.

Mr. I. A. Phifer argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Ralph K. Carson and Thomas Ruffin, filed a brief for respondent:

A water company is not liable in tort for loss to one sustaining no contract relation with it, by its failure to comply with its contract with the municipality.

Note to Mugge v. Tampa Waterworks Co. 6 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1171; 3 Michigan L. Rev. 501–507.

The complaint does not allege the existence of an ordinance in effect in the city of Spartanburg under which the water company was acting, which provided that the water company should be responsible for any or all damage sustained by the city or any individual from the negligence of the company in either the construction or operation of the plant; whereas, the existence of such an ordinance did appear in the opinion in the Fisher Case, and while the existence of this ordinance was not stressed in the Supreme Court of the United States, such fact could well have formed the basis of the judgment when it was first rendered in the North Carolina court.

And while it was a rule of law in North Carolina when judgment was rendered, that the taxpaying property owner was the real party in interest to a contract by a municipality which acted as its agent with a water company for a supply for fire purposes (Gorrell v. Greensboro Water Supply Co. 124 N. C. 328, 46 L.R.A. 513, 70 Am. St. Rep. 598, 32 S. E. 720), no such rule of law prevails in South Carolina (Black v. Columbia, 19 S. C. 412, 45 Am. Rep. 785; Ancrum v. Camden Water, Light & Ice Co. 82 S. C. 284, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1029, 64 S. E. 151).

The courts of the United States have always looked askance at anyone who has attempted to treat the municipality as his agent, or as being directly answerable to him in the conduct of its affairs, and have stated in substance that "no citizen can be heard to contend that the laws and ordinances under which a municipal water supply has been created and regulated are invalid because his individual and personal views have not been formally obtained and considered."

Parsons v. District of Columbia, 170 U. S. 45, 42 L. ed. 943, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 521.

This court has expressly stated, in the case of St. Tammany Waterworks Co. v. New Orleans Waterworks Co. 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 565, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 405, in speaking of whose province it was to determine whether or not the public health would be better protected or the public comfort subserved in the matter of furnishing water, that "these are matters which neither the appellant nor individual citizens may determine for the constituted authorities."

This court has no disposition or tendency to engraft new, strange, and radical principles on the body of our well-established law, under the false guise of progress to meet the spirit of the age. Principles which reason has established and long experience has sanctioned are very apt to be the best that legislative and judicial wisdom can devise, and the safest criterion of judicial action.

Britton v. Green Bay & Ft. H. Waterworks Co. 81 Wis. 48, 29 Am. St. Rep. 856, 51 N. W. 84.

Mr. Justice Lamar, after making the foregoing statement of facts, delivered the opinion of the court:

In Ancrum v. Camden Water, Light, & Ice Co. 82 S. C. 284, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1029, 64 S. E. 151, the supreme court of South Carolina, construing a contract much like the one here involved, held that a taxpayer could not maintain an action against a water company for damage due to its failure to furnish water as required by such an agreement with the city. The plaintiff, however, contends that although the present suit is for damage to property located in South Carolina, that decision is not of controlling authority, because it was rendered two years after this action was begun. Relying on Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 20, 27 L. ed. 359, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10, it insists that when the contract was made, February, 1900, there was no settled state law on the subject, and therefore the Federal courts must decide for themselves, as matter of general law, the much controverted question as to a water company's liability to a taxpayer for failure to furnish fire protection, according to the terms of its contract with the city.

The courts have almost uniformly held that municipalities are not bound to furnish water for fire protection. Such was the unquestioned rule when they relied, as some still do, on wells and cisterns as a source of supply; nor was there any increase of liability with the gradual increase of facilities; though, with the introduction of reservoirs, standpipes, pumping stations, and steam engines, cities were frequently sued for damages resulting from an inadequate supply or insufficient pressure. But the city was under no legal obligation to furnish the water; and if it voluntarily undertook to do more than the law required, it did not thereby subject itself to a new or great-or liability. It acted in a governmental 228]capacity, and was *no more responsible for failure in that respect than it would have been for failure to furnish adequate police protection.

If the common law did not impose such duty upon a public corporation, neither did it require private companies to furnish fire protection to property reached by their pipes. And there could, of course, be no liability for the breach of a common-law, statutory, or charter duty which did not exist. It is argued, however, that even if, in the first instance, the law did not oblige the company to furnish property owners with water, such a duty arose out of the public service upon which the defendant entered. But if, where it did not otherwise exist, a public duty could arise out of a private bargain, liability would be based on the failure to do or to furnish what was reasonably necessary to discharge the duty imposed. The complaint proceeds on no such theory. It makes no allegation that the defendant failed to furnish a plant of reasonable capacity, or neglected to extend the pipes where they were reasonably required. Nor is it charged that what the company actually did was harmful in itself or likely to cause injury to others, so as to bring the case within the principle applicable to the sale of unwholesome provisions, or misbranded poisons, which, in their intended use, would be injurious to purchasers from the original vendee. So that, notwithstanding numerous charges of culpable, wanton, and malicious neglect of duty, this suit—whether regarded as ex contractu or ex delicto—is for breach of the provisions of the contract of February 14, 1900, which must, therefore, be the measure of plaintiff's right and of the defendant's liability.

Whether a right of action arises out of such a contract, in favor of a taxpayer, is a matter about which there has been much discussion and some conflict in decisions. Although for nearly a century it has been common for private corporations to supply 229]cities with water under this *sort of agreement, we find no record of a suit like this prior to 1878, when the supreme court of Connecticut, in a brief decision (Nickerson v. Bridgeport Hydraulic Co. 46 Conn. 24, 33 Am. Rep. 1), held that the property owner was a stranger to the agreement with the municipality, and therefore could not maintain an action against the company for a breach of its contract with the city. Since that time similar suits, some in tort and some for a breach of the contract, have been brought in many other states. In view of the importance of the question, the subject has been examined and re-examined. the contract subjected to the most critical analysis, and many elaborate opinions have been rendered. They are cited in 3 Dill. Mun. Corp. § 1340, and in the Ancrum Case, supra.

From them it appears that the majority of American courts hold that the taxpayer has no direct interest in such agreements, and therefore cannot sue ex contractu. Neither can he sue in tort, because, in the absence of a contract obligation to him, the water company owes him no duty for the breach of which he can maintain an action ex delicto. A different conclusion is reached by the supreme courts of three states, in cases cited and discussed in Mugge v. Tampa Waterworks Co. 52 Fla. 371, 6 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1171, 120 Am. St. Rep. 207, 42 So. 81. They hold that such a contract is for the benefit of taxpayers, who may sue either for its breach, or for a violation of the public duty which was thereby assumed.

The plaintiff presses these decisions to their logical conclusion and sues not for negligence in operating the plant, but for breach of the contract of construction. The complaint charges that as a direct consequence of the refusal to lay the pipes, as provided by the contract, there was no plug near enough to extinguish the fire. The other allegations as to putting in 4-inch instead of 6-inch pipe, and failing to install the electric cut-off, are immaterial, except on the theory that if the property owner was indeed a beneficiary, it, after acceptance, would be entitled *to all the rights of[230 the original promisee, and if not otherwise injured, might at least recover nominal damages for any breach. By the same reasoning it, with the other members of the class, might release the company from liability already incurred, or even discharge it altogether from the duty of carrying out the agreement in the future. If this did not entirely substitute the taxpayer for the municipality, it would at least subject the promisor to liability to many, where it only had contracted with one. Dow v. Clark, 7 Gray, 201.

In many jurisdictions a third person may now sue for the breach of a contract made for his benefit. The rule as to when this can be done varies in the different states. In some he must be the sole beneficiary. In others it must appear that one of the parties owed him a debt or duty, creating the privity necessary to enable him to hold the promisor liable Others make further conditions. But even where the right is most liberally granted, it is recognized as an exception to the general principle, which proceeds on the legal and natural presumption that a contract is only intended for the benefit of those who made it. Before a stranger can avail himself of the exceptional privilege of suing for a breach of an agreement to which he is not a party, he must, at least, show that it was intended for his direct benefit. For, as said by this court, speaking of the right of bondholders to sue a third party who had made an agreement with the obligor to discharge the bonds, they "may have had an indirect interest in the performance of the undertakings . . . but that is a very different thing from the privity necessary to enable them to enforce the contract by suits in their own names." Second Nat. Bank v. Grand Lodge, F. & A. M. 98 U. S. 124, 25 L. ed. 76. Cf. Hendrick v. Lindsay, 93 U. S. 149, 23 L. ed. 857; National Sav. Bank v. Ward, 100 U. S. 202, 205, 25 L. ed. 623, 625.

Here the city was under no obligation to furnish the manufacturing company with 231]fire protection, and this *agreement was not made to pay a debt or discharge a duty to the Spartan Mills, but, like other municipal contracts, was made by Spartanburg in its corporate capacity, for its corporate advantage, and for the benefit of the inhabitants collectively. The interest which each taxpayer had therein was indirect,—that incidental benefit only which every citizen has in the performance of every other contract made by and with the government under which he lives, but for the breach of which he has no private right of action.

He is interested in the faithful performance of contracts of service by policemen, firemen, and mail contractors, as well as in holding to their warranties the vendors of fire engines. All of these employees, contractors, or vendors are paid out of taxes. But for the breaches of their contracts the citizen cannot sue, though he suffer loss because the carrier delayed in hauling the mail, or the policeman failed to walk his beat, or the fireman delayed in responding to an alarm, or the engine proved defective, resulting in his building being destroyed by fire. 1 Beven, Neg. 3d ed. 305; Pollock, Torts, 8th ed. 434, 547; Davis v. Clinton Waterworks Co. 54 Iowa, 61, 37 Am. Rep. 185, 6 N. W. 126.

Each of these promisors of the city, like the water company here, would be liable for any tort done by him to their persons. But for acts of omission and breaches of contract, he would be responsible to the municipality alone. To hold to the contrary would unduly extend contract liability, would introduce new parties with new rights, and would subject those contracting with municipalities to suits by a multitude of persons for damages which were not and, in the nature of things, could not have been, in contemplation of the parties.

The result is that plaintiff cannot maintain this action, and though based upon the general principle that the parties to a contract are those who are entitled to its rights, *is in accordance with the par-[232 ticular intent of those who made this agreement.

If the company had, indeed, made a valid contract for the benefit of a third person, the amount of the damages for which it might be liable would be immaterial. Yet, where there is no such express agreement, and liability to a taxpayer is sought to be raised by implication, it is proper to test the correctness of the proposed construction by noting the results to which it would lead. The contract was made in February, 1900. By its terms the city was, during a period of ten years, to pay $40 per annum for each hydrant. During that time the property subject to damage by fire might double or quadruple in value. The failure to provide that the water rent of $40 per hydrant should rise or fall with the increase or decrease in such values indicates that liability for damage to that property was not in the contemplation of the parties, and that no payment therefor was included in the price for each hydrant. Otherwise the amount of payment would naturally have varied with the risk assumed.

In some states it is held that, in the absence of a statute, a city can neither directly nor indirectly make a contract with a water company that the latter should pay private individuals for fire damage, since that would involve the use of public money to secure a private benefit to the owner of private property. Hone v. Presque Isle Water Co. 104 Me. 217, 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1021, 71 Atl. 769. In the Ancrum Case, supra, the South Carolina court held that the amount paid per hydrant was so insignificant by comparison with the enormous risk involved, as clearly to indicate that neither the city nor the water company intended that the latter should be liable to the taxpayer for a breach of the company's contract with the city.

This conclusion deprives the property owner of no right, for if the city had owned the works, and had been guilty of the same acts as are charged against the water company *here, no suit could have been[233 maintained against the municipality. There was no creation of a right to fire protection if, instead of doing so itself, the city contracted with a private company to furnish water. It bought the citizen no new right of action, and did not bargain to secure for him an indemnity against loss by fire, but left him to protect himself against that hazard by insurance, paying the premium direct to an insurance company instead of indirectly, through taxation. When, in pursuance of such precaution, the Spartan Mills insured the houses, and the plaintiff later settled the fire loss, there was no right of action in favor of the manufacturing company against the water company to which the insurance company could be subrogated.

The plaintiff urges that, whatever the rule elsewhere, it is entitled to recover under the decision in Guardian Trust & D. Co. v. Fisher, 200 U. S. 57, 50 L. ed. 367, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 186. But the facts there differ from those in this record. There the water company had an exclusive right to use the streets in the city of Greensboro, under an ordinance which, among other things, provided that "said water company shall be responsible for all damage sustained by the city, or any individual or individuals, for any injury sustained from the negligence of the said company, either in the construction or operation of their plant." 58. Buildings were destroyed as a result of the negligent failure of the company to furnish sufficient water while operating its plant. The owner brought suit against the water company in the courts of North Carolina, where it had previously been settled that such actions could be maintained. He recovered a judgment "for the tortious injury and damage done to the plaintiff by the negligence of the defendant." 128 N. C. 375, 38 S. E. 912, 115 Fed. 187. Execution issued, but no levy could be made, because the property of the water company was in possession of a receiver, appointed in foreclosure proceedings 234]pending in the United States *court. The plaintiff intervened therein, claiming that he was entitled to be paid before the bondholders by virtue of the North Carolina statute, which provided that "judgments for corporate torts" should take priority over older mortgages.

It was urged, among other things, by the bondholders, that the suit in the state court was really for breach of contract, and that entering the judgment as for a tort did not change the nature of the action so as to entitle the plaintiff to the benefits of the North Carolina statute.

It was that question alone, as to the character of the suit and judgment, which was before this court. What was said in the opinion must be limited, under well-known rules, to the facts and issues involved in the particular record under investigation. The Fisher Case could not have decided the primary question as to the right of the taxpayer to sue, for that issue had been finally settled by the state court. It raised no Federal question and was not in issue on the hearing in this court. Neither did the Fisher Case overrule the principle announced in Second Nat. Bank v. Grand Lodge, F. & A. M. 98 U. S. 124, 25 L. ed. 76, that a third person cannot sue for the breach of a contract to which he is a stranger unless he is in privity with the parties and is therein given a direct interest. The judgment of the Circuit Court of Appeals is affirmed.

---

CONCEPCION VEVE Y DIAZ, José Sastrano Belaval, Her Husband, et al., Plffs. in Err.,

v.

JOSÉ AVALO SANCHEZ.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 234–242.)

Boundaries — calls for quantity — locative calls.

1. A mortgagor who conveyed in unambiguous terms a single body of land with definitely described continuous exterior boundaries cannot prevail in an action of ejectment for a tract embraced within those boundaries, but alleged not to be covered by the mortgage, brought by him against the mortgagee, who was also the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, on the theory of the inapplicability to Porto Rico of the rule that calls for quantity must yield to the more certain and locative lines of the adjoining owners.

[For other cases, see Boundaries, IV. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Evidence — parol to vary writing — description.

2. The mortgagor cannot prove by parol in an action of ejectment brought by him against the mortgagee who was also the purchaser at the foreclosure sale, that a lot in the center of a single body of land conveyed by the mortgagor in unambiguous terms with definitely described continuous exterior boundaries was not covered by the mortgage.

[For other cases, see Evidence, 1471–1475, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908]

Evidence — parol to vary writing — applicability to Porto Rico.

3. The rule prohibiting the varying of written contracts by parol is applicable to a mortgage executed in Porto Rico in 1885.

[For other cases, see Evidence, VI. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Estoppel — by deed — after-acquired title.

4. A statement in a mortgage, following the descriptive clause, that the mortgagor was the owner of the land, coupled with a provision in the judicial deed made in pursuance of the foreclosure sale, that the mortgagor "remains bound under the present sale to guarantee the title in accordance with law," estops the mortgagor, who after-

NOTE.—As to estoppel by recitals in deed —see note to Carver v. Jackson, 7 L. ed. U. S. 761.

wards acquires title to a parcel embraced in the description, from denying that he had the right to dispose of all the property which the mortgage purported to convey. [For other cases, see Estoppel, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 42.]

Argued November 7, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to review a judgment in favor of plaintiff in an action of ejectment. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, on motion for new trial, 5 Porto Rico Fed. Rep. 366.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Charles Hartzell argued the cause, and, with Mr. Manuel Rodriguez Serra, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error.

Mr. José R. F. Savage argued the cause, and, with Mr. Hector H. Scoville, filed a brief for defendant in error.

Mr. Justice Lamar delivered the opinion of the court:

In 1885, José Avalo Sanchez mortgaged to Doña Maria Diaz y Siaca a sugar plantation in Porto Rico, known as Bello Sitio, described as containing 400 cuerdas, and bounded on the north, south, east, and west by the colindantes, or adjoining landowners, whose names were given. Suit to foreclose was instituted in 1889, and at the end of three years the mortgagee obtained a decree 236 which, however, *instead of ending the controversy, was the beginning of litigation in the Spanish courts which is said to have been the most protracted and bitter in the history of the island of Porto Rico.

The record of the various proceedings is involved and complicated, but it appears that Mrs. Diaz purchased at the foreclosure sale, and apparently in accordance with Spanish custom (Graham v. United States, 4 Wall. 261, 18 L. ed 333), was put in possession on October 30, 1891. But before she received the judicial deed, attachments were levied on Bello Sitio, on a lot afterward called Sauri, "in the center of the same," and on certain personalty, as the property of Sanchez. About the same time a concurso of creditors, in the nature of bankruptcy proceeding, was begun against him. The trustee apparently went through the form of taking possession of all property of Sanchez, including Bello Sitio, though without actually evicting Mrs. Diaz. Sanchez himself later instituted proceedings to cancel the mortgage and judicial deed under which Mrs. Diaz claimed title. He failed in this suit, but the other branches of the litigation continued for sixteen years, and, after the death of Mrs. Diaz, finally terminated in 1907, when the supreme court of the island held that the attachment should be released, the bankruptcy proceedings dismissed, and all the property returned to Sanchez, except Bello Sitio, which was to remain at the disposal of the heirs of Mrs. Diaz.

Both parties seem to have considered this a decision in their favor,—the plaintiff claiming that it adjudged to him everything that was not Bello Sitio, and the defendants that it restored to them all that was included in the mortgage.

In the meantime Sanchez (in 1906) filed a bill in the United States court for Porto Rico, in which, as appears from statements in the opinion of the court, he attacked all of the proceedings in the Spanish tribunals as fraudulent, and asked that the mortgage foreclosure be set *aside and himself [237 declared to be the owner of Bello Sitio. Whether any issue was therein presented, or legally involved, as to the boundaries of the land, cannot, in the absence of a copy of the pleadings, be determined. On demurrer this bill was dismissed for laches and want of equity.

Sanchez then brought the present suit for the recovery of 134 cuerdas of land (lying within the exterior limits of Bello Sitio) and $60,000 as damages for improvements destroyed, crops removed, and mesne profits, from 1891 to 1907, during which time, he alleges, that the defendants and their ancestor, Mrs. Diaz, had usurped the premises, by means of false and fraudulent claims instituted in the Porto Rican courts. On demurrer the court held that the suit should be treated solely as an action in ejectment.

The defendants plead res judicata, title by prescription, and title under the mortgage foreclosure. We need only consider the question presented by the claim in the answer, "that the 400 cuerdas, known as the Hacienda Bello Sitio, includes the several parcels of land described in the plaintiff's complaint."

On the first hearing there was a mistrial. On the second, plaintiff offered evidence to show that between 1878 and 1880, he purchased three small lots forming a part of the tract mentioned in the complaint; that on January 5, 1880, he bought Bello Sitio from Monserrate Garcia, at the same time occupying, as lessee, the lot called Sauri. He admitted that "the land for which he is now suing was in the middle of what was formerly Bello Sitio," but claimed that Mrs. Diaz knew, or ought to have known, that the mortgage, dated May 28, 1885, did not convey Sauri, because he did not then own that place, and did not purchase it until June 15, 1885, three weeks later. There was evidence that, in 1892, during the bankruptcy, a survey was made with a view to marking the lines between Bello Sitio and the land now sued for; that the agent of 238] *Mrs. Diaz was present and assented to the correctness of the survey. But if his admissions at that time could have bound the principal, or if he had authority to establish a new line by parol, the agreement was never executed by any change in possession, the complaint itself alleging that Mrs. Diaz and her heirs had been in possession since 1891. Plaintiff also relied on the records in the Spanish courts, which showed that from the time Mrs. Diaz took possession, in 1891, he, his creditors and the trustee in bankruptcy, had persistently claimed that Sauri and the other land now sued for formed no part of Bello Sitio, and was not included in the mortgage On the other hand, the defendants insisted that a single, not a divided, tract, was conveyed by the mortgage, which, as translated, described the land as being "a sugar cane plantation known as Bello Sitio . . . composed of 400 cuerdas of land, equivalent to 157 hectares, 21 areas, and 59 centiares, and its buildings . . . and other appurtenances used in its cultivation. Said land being bounded on the north by the property of Isabel Siaca and by lands of the plantation 'Convento,' belonging to Pilar Becerril y Torres; on the east by land of Nicolas Telemaco and by lands of Benigno and Sebastian de Santiago; on the south by the property called 'Ausubal' belonging to the Succession of Alejandrina Becerril y Torres, with lands belonging to Concepcion Lopez, and by the property belonging to the Successors of Alberto Western and the Luquillo-Fajardo road; and on the west by land belonging to Enrique Garcia and those of Nicolas Perez and of Gervasio Rivera."

A plat of Bello Sitio, made in 1907, showed that it contained exactly 415 cuerdas, and the defendants contended that if the 134 sued for were excluded, only 279 would be left, although the mortgage purported to convey 400 cuerdas. The plaintiff denied that the plat made in 1907 correctly represented the land which he had conveyed in 1885, insisting that, excluding Sauri, he 239]bought 400 cuerdas *from Monserrate Garcia, and had conveyed that quantity to Mrs. Diaz. He claimed that if there was any present deficiency, it was due to encroachments by the adjoining landowners He did not, however, establish what, if any, change had been made, while the surveyor testified that he followed the boundaries of Bello Sitio as indicated by ditches, fences, trees, stakes, and the documents of the adjoining landowners, all of whom were present when the survey was made and assented to its correctness. The landowners were also examined. Some of them had known the property from the date of the mortgage, and others, who were younger, for a shorter time. But all testified that they knew of no change in the lines.

The jury found a verdict for the plaintiff A motion for a new trial was overruled. The case is here on assignments which relate to rulings in admitting and excluding testimony, in charging and refusing to charge the jury, and in failing to direct a verdict for the defendants.

The plaintiff's testimony established that he was in possession of Bello Sitio as owner, and of Sauri as lessee, when he made the mortgage on May 28, 1885. Three weeks later, he purchased Sauri and established a title on which he was entitled to recover, unless it, and the other three lots sued for, were included in the mortgage which described the property by name (Bello Sitio), by quantity (400 cuerdas) and by colindancias or adjoiners, on the north, east, south, and west.

A tract may be so well known by name that it can be described and conveyed without other designation. And there are cases where, in the sale of a ranch, or of an island, or of a well-known plantation, the limits described by name have prevailed when there was a discrepancy between it and other descriptive terms set out in the same deed. Lodge v. Lee, 6 Cranch, 237, 3 L. ed. 210.

Ordinarily, however, designation by name will yield to the more definite description by metes and bounds. In *this case[240 there was nothing to show that "Bello Sitio" was understood to mean or describe a hacienda of clearly defined limits; and there was no basis for a charge as to the conditions on which such designation could prevail over the other calls in the mortgage. No instruction on that subject was given, but the court did charge the jury as to the effect of a description by quantity, telling them that they might consider the terms of the mortgage and all documents referred to in it, the condition of the property and circumstances surrounding the transaction, and if they found that, at the time the mortgage was signed, the plaintiff did not own 400 cuerdas, and afterwards acquired sufficient to make up what Mrs. Diaz believed and had reason to believe was included in the mortgage, then the law will hold that such land is included, and they must find for the defendants so as to make up the full quantity of land. Conversely, they were instructed that "if, when Sanchez made the mortgage, he was in possession of a tract bought from Monserrate Garcia that contained 400 cuerdas, then they must find, under the language of the descriptive clause of the mortgage, that he did not convey to her any of the tracts he now sues for."

This makes the construction of the mortgage depend not upon its language, but upon the quantity of land the mortgagor owned at the date of its execution, and required the jury to make designation by cuerdas prevail over description by specific boundaries. This is contrary to the rule that calls for quantity must yield to the more certain and locative lines of the adjoining owners. Such lines are certain, or they can be made certain, and may be platted so as to show the exact course and distance. They are treated as a sort of natural monument, and must prevail over the more general and less distinct designation by quantity. Bartlett Land & Lumber Co. v. Saunders, 103 U. S. 316, 26 L. ed. 546; Whiting v. Dewey, 15 241]Pick. 434; Cox v. McGowan, 116 *N. C. 135, 21 S. E. 108; Reed v. Locks & Canals, 8 How. 289, 12 L ed. 1083; Leonard v. Forbing, 109 La. 220, 33 So. 203.

2. It was argued that this rule was not applicable to Porto Rican deeds, made at a time when loose and indefinite methods of describing land were used. Doolan v. Carr, 125 U. S. 632, 31 L. ed 849, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1228. But we find nothing in this case to warrant a departure from a rule long established and necessary to the protection of titles. The mortgage adopted a common method of bounding land. If there had been any error in describing what had been conveyed, it became manifest when Mrs. Diaz took possession in 1891. If there was a mutual mistake, proceedings could have been brought to reform the mortgage, and on such trial most of the evidence upon which plaintiff now relies might have been relevant. But in this action of ejectment he must recover on the strength of his own title, and cannot prevail against those who hold under an instrument signed by him, and which, in unambiguous terms, conveyed not two separate tracts, but a single body of land with definitely described continuous exterior boundaries. To permit a grantor, on the claim that an ambiguity existed, to prove by parol that a lot in the center of such a tract had not been conveyed, would make every grantee liable to have what had been conveyed in writing taken away by word of mouth.

3. The rule prohibiting written contracts from being varied by parol is not confined to the common law, but was of force in Porto Rico when this mortgage was made, and its enforcement in construing the descriptive clause according to accepted rules governing boundaries preserves the rights of the parties here. Sanchez was in possession of Sauri, as lessee, when the mortgage was made. That possession was itself a prima facie indication of title. He conveyed 400 cuerdas bounded by the adjoining land lines. There is a claim, not established proof, that these lines had been changed. The slight excess of 15 *cuerdas,[242 shown by a later and accurate survey, is not inconsistent with defendants' right to 400 cuerdas, but confirmatory of their contention (P. R. Civ. Code, art. 1471), while if plaintiff recovers the defendants will be left in possession of only 279 cuerdas, when the mortgage conveyed their ancestor 400.

4. Following the descriptive clause in the mortgage was a statement that Sanchez was the owner of the land. In addition to this recital, which, according to Van Rensselaer v. Kearney, 11 How. 322-326, 13 L. ed 713-715, would be equivalent to a covenant of warranty and ownership, it was claimed that, under the laws of Porto Rico (P. R. Civ. Code 1474), a warranty was implied in all conveyances of real estate. Apparently, in accordance with this view, the judicial deed, made in pursuance of the foreclosure sale, contained a provision that "the debtor, José Avalo Sanchez, remains bound under the present sale to guarantee the title in accordance with law." These facts estopped Sanchez from denying that he had the right to dispose of all the property which the mortgage purported to convey. For, having received the money on the faith of the statement that he was the owner of the property, he was bound to repay that sum; or, failing that, to perfect the title on which the money had been advanced So that when he acquired what is now called Sauri, but which had been originally included in the land conveyed by the mortgage, the title inured to the benefit of his vendee. Amonett v. Amis, 16 La. Ann. 225; Lee v. Ferguson, 5 La. Ann. 533; Stokes v. Shackleford, 12 La. 172; New Orleans v. Riddell, 113 La. 1051, 37 So. 966; Partida, Book 5, tit. 5, law 51; Ib. tit. 13, law 50; Van Rensselaer v. Kearney, 11 How. 322-326, 13 L. ed. 713-715; Bush v. Person, 18 How. 85, 15 L. ed. 274; Moore v. Crawford, 130 U. S. 122, 32 L. ed. 878, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 447.

The judgment is reversed and the case remanded for further proceedings in conformity with this opinion.

243] *JAMES W. BEACH, Appt.,
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 243-260.)

Appeal — from court of claims — findings.

1. The findings of the court of claims upon a claim for the purchase price, arising out of the alleged use by the Postoffice Department of claimant's patented device for pneumatic transportation, are not open to the objection that they constitute a mere recital of the evidence instead of an ascertainment of the ultimate facts, where the court has set forth the documents upon which alone must rest claimant's contention of an express contract, and the history of the transaction from which, if at all, an agreement must be implied if there was no express contract, and has expressly found that the evidence does not establish that the letters patent were conveyed or delivered to the Postmaster-General, and has made similar negative findings respecting the claim of priority in invention, and the claim that the inventions or devices used by the government are those covered by claimant's patents

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, V. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Claims — contract — express or implied — government use of patent.

2. The lack of statutory authority on the part of the Postmaster-General to contract on behalf of the government for the purchase of pneumatic transportation devices, or of patented inventions relating thereto, is fatal to a claim asserting a purchase by the Postmaster-General of claimant's inventions and patents pertaining to pneumatic transportation, whether such claim be rested upon an express or implied contract.

[For other cases, see Claims, 122-127, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Claims — contract — express or implied — government use of patent.

3. The Postmaster-General was not given the authority to contract in behalf of the United States for the purchase of devices for pneumatic transportation or patented inventions relating thereto, the lack of which would be fatal to a claim founded upon such asserted purchase, either by the provisions of the postoffice appropriation act of July 13, 1892 (27 Stat. at L. 145, chap. 165), § 6, looking toward an investigation and report by the Postmaster-General as to pneumatic transportation of the mails, nor by U. S. Rev. Stat. § 3965, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2708, empowering that official to provide for carrying the mail as often as he may think proper, nor by the various appropriations for pneumatic transportation of the mail made by statutes which were enacted long after the last transaction between the claimant and the Postmaster-General, out of which any contract, express or implied, could arise, and which make no reference to any such transactions.

[For other cases, see Claims, 122-127, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Claims — express contract — government use of patent.

4. The retention by the Postmaster-General of a proposal by the patentee of an invention for pneumatic transportation without in terms rejecting it does not amount to a purchase under an express agreement to pay the sum mentioned as consideration, where such proposal was submitted in response to an advertisement which plainly stated that proposals were desired for purposes of investigation and estimate merely, and that the Postmaster-General had no authority to contract for the expenditure of money for the use or purchase of any such invention, and where such proposal was not, either in form or substance, an assignment in præsenti of the inventions and patents, but manifestly contemplated that something should be done on each side before they should in fact become the property of the United States, and contained four several propositions, acceptance of either of which involved rejection of the remaining three.

[For other cases, see Claims, 122-127, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 7.]

Argued and submitted October 30, 1912.
Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from the Court of Claims to review a judgment dismissing a petition seeking a recovery of the purchase price arising out of the alleged use by the Postoffice Department of patented devices for pneumatic transportation. Affirmed.

See same case below, 41 Ct. Cl. 110.

Statement by Mr. Justice Pitney:

This is an appeal from a judgment of the court of claims, dismissing the petition of claimant (now appellant), whereby he sought to recover the sum of twenty millions of dollars for certain inventions and letters patent pertaining to pneumatic transportation, alleged to have been sold and transferred by him to the United States in the year 1893, by agreement, express or implied, made between the claimant and the Postmaster-General. 41 Ct. Cl. 110.

The following is a sufficient outline of the findings of facts in that court:

Prior to July 26, 1892, the claimant, James W. Beach, had been granted certain letters patent for inventions or improvements relating to pneumatic transportation; to wit, letters patent No. 267,318, dated November 14, 1882, and letters patent No. 444,038, dated January 6, 1891, the object being to provide a continuous current of air, moving at high velocity through a tube or other conduit, and thereby to transport the mails and all suitable commodities through such tube or conduit. Ten prior patents had been issued to other par-lease to the United States for mail purposes only, as aforesaid, a right or rights, and upon reasonable and equitable terms, and for a reasonable consideration to be paid to me, the undersigned, my heirs, executors, administrators, or assigns therefor, by the United States, the amount thereof to be agreed upon by the United States and the undersigned James W. Beach (either by mutual agreement or by arbitration), a right or rights as aforesaid to construct and operate within said entire United States, or either of them (save and excepting therefrom said states of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Michigan, and the District of Columbia), one or more of said pneumatic conveyors or devices, said consideration to be based upon the mileage of the pneumatic tubes to be used, or upon a small percentage of the total (present) annual cost of the transportation of the United States mails within said United States.

This proposal is made upon condition and the same shall not be binding upon the undersigned unless the United States shall by the Postmaster-General accept said propositions, or one of said propositions, and shall notify me, the undersigned, of said acceptance on or before the 1st day of August, A. D. 1893

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and seal at Chicago, Illinois, this 30th day of August, A. D. 1892.

James W. Beach. [Seal.]

In presence of—
Edward J. Quenny (?)
Jacob H. Hopkins.

251] *This proposal was accompanied with a description of the several devices described in letters patent No. 267,318 and No. 444,-038, and with a written offer: "At our own expense to demonstrate in a positive and convincing manner that the said pneumatic devices will, when in operation, do and perform all that is claimed in the accompanying 'Description' of said devices . . . The undersigned is prepared to enter into a contract with the United States to construct or cause to be constructed (and operated, if so desired) one or more lines of said pneumatic devices in any city of the United States, or between any cities or towns in the United States (whether near or far apart), upon terms and for a consideration to be mutually agreed upon, and upon executing the said contract the undersigned will secure the performance of any undertaking which he may so enter into by a good and sufficient bond."

Seven other persons or companies answered the advertisement of the Postmaster-General for bids, and on September 15, 1892, he appointed a commission of three expert postal officials to examine into the merits of the pneumatic tubes and other systems so advertised for, and that commission reported to the Postmaster-General in writing on September 29, 1892, embodying in its report a brief schedule of the several propositions, and stating the general conditions or terms upon which the owners would place their respective devices at the disposal of the government, or submit the same to its experimental test. Among these were:

"No. 3. Pneumatic Transit Company of New Jersey. Pneumatic. Will put down line between main postoffice in Philadelphia and substation at Third and Chestnut streets, without cost to government and without obligation to purchase or lease. After one year's trial will lease or will sell at cost if desired by government."

"No. 8. James W. Beach and the Beach Pneumatic Conveyor Company, Chicago. Will make contract to *construct ex-[252 perimental line for a consideration to be mutually agreed upon. Will sell or lease. Experimental line to be in readiness in from four to twelve months from October 1, 1892"

The report contained the following specific recommendation:

"The offer known as 'No. 3,' submitted by the Pneumatic Transit Company of New Jersey, is to put down in the streets of Philadelphia, between the postoffice and the East Chestnut street branch postoffice, pneumatic tubes to connect these two offices, without expense to the Department, and without charge for one year's use of the same, and without liability thereafter. This offer is the best that has been received, and it is believed to be highly advantageous to the Department, because it will enable it to make an immediate and practical test of the pneumatic system. Your committee, therefore, desire to make the copy of the proposition No. 3, hereto attached, a part of this report, and they recommend prompt acceptance of the offer, that the test may be made without delay.

"It is worth while to add that in our judgment the placing of a line unconditionally at the disposal of the Department for practical, everyday use will go far towards demonstrating, in a general way, the extent to which it may be made possible to substitute a tube system for the existing manner of performing transfer service within large cities, where time enters so largely into the necessities of the people.

"The committee desire, as well, to emphasize that in making recommendation that an arrangement be made with the Pneumatic Transit Company of New Jersey for the construction of an experimental line in Philadelphia, it does not wish to be understood as passing upon the merits of the system itself, that being a matter for consideration hereafter; in like manner it will be our purpose to give consideration to each one of the systems that have been submitted."

253] *Pursuant to this report, the Postmaster-General, on October 20, 1892, entered into a contract with the Pneumatic Transit Company of New Jersey, providing for the installation by that company at its own expense of a line of pneumatic tubes in the city of Philadelphia, connecting the main postoffice with the subpostoffice, and its operation for a period of one year after completion in such practical tests as the postmaster of Philadelphia and the Postmaster-General might see fit to conduct; the tests to be made without cost to the United States beyond the use of surplus steam from the boilers in the postoffice building. The agreement provided that at the expiration of the year the Transit Company would lease said pneumatic tubes to the United States year by year, or would sell the same to the United States at cost, and would authorize the use by the United States of all the patented inventions in the said pneumatic tubes and devices connected therewith, by license, sale, or assignment, as might then be agreed upon.

Similar contracts were entered into by the Postoffice Department for like transportation of United States mail at Philadelphia, New York, Brooklyn, and Boston.

The Pneumatic Transit Company, which was incorporated under the laws of the state of New Jersey in 1892, had in its employ as an engineer one Birney C. Batcheller. He designed some of the terminal apparatus that was first used in Philadelphia; and a system of tubes and devices which carried mails pneumatically was constructed under his direction and supervision. While in the employ of said Company, said Batcheller extensively investigated the subject of pneumatics, and subsequently applied for and was granted letters patent for various improvements in pneumatic tube delivery devices. Ten of such patents were granted before the filing of Beach's petition in the court of claims, and they were used, applied, and operated by the Pneumatic Transit Company.

254] Twenty of such *patents were granted to Batcheller subsequent to the filing of Beach's petition, and these likewise were used, applied, and operated by the Pneumatic Transit Company.

Among the specific findings of the court of claims are the following:

6. The evidence does not establish to the satisfaction of the court that plaintiff's letters patent were conveyed or delivered to the Postmaster-General.

9. The evidence does not establish to the satisfaction of the court that James W. Beach, the claimant herein, was the first inventor of the devices for pneumatic transportation used, operated, and conducted for the transportation of mail matter by persons contracting with the United States or by the agents of the United States.

10. The evidence does not establish to the satisfaction of the court that the letters patent issued to the claimant, James W. Beach, covered the same devices actually put into practical operation and used by the corporation which, under an act of Congress, contracted with the Postmaster-General for transmitting mail matter through pneumatic conveyors.

Upon the foregoing findings of fact the court of claims decided as a conclusion of law that the claimant was not entitled to recover, and that his petition should therefore be dismissed.

Mr. James W. Beach, in propria persona, argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

Action was taken by appellee, on the proposal, and this makes a binding contract.

Wharton, Contr. § 13, p. 33.

Even though the proposal is not signed by appellee, it is deemed to have assented and is bound (appellee signed the advertisement, —the request).

Forthman v. Deters, 206 Ill. 159, 99 Am. St. Rep. 145, 69 N. E. 97; Old Jordan Min. & Mill. Co. v. Société Anonyme des Mines, 164 U. S. 261, 41 L. ed. 427, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 113; 1 Page, Contr. § 50, p. 88.

A contract implied in law arises where some pecuniary inequality exists upon which the law operates by creating a debt to the amount of the required compensation.

Leake, Contr. 38; Moses v. Macferlan, 2 Burr. 1005, 1 W. Bl. 219; Lewis v. Campbell, 8 C. B. 541, 19 L. J. C. P. N. S. 130, 14 Jur. 396.

The conduct of the parties distinctly indicates a meeting of the minds.

United States v. Société Anonyme des Anciens Etablissements Cail, 224 U. S. 309, 56 L. ed. 778, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 479.

Where a party receives and retains an instrument, the legal presumption is that he assented.

2 Enc. Ev. 9.

Where one accepts a paper which he knows contains the terms of an offer, he is bound.

American Ins. Co. v. Neiberger, 74 Mo

167; Fennell v. Zimmerman, 96 Va. 197, 31 S. E. 22; 9 Cyc. 391, 392.

The contract with Pneumatic Transit Company of New Jersey was not a rejection of appellant's proposal. On the contrary, it was a contract by which the transit company agreed to furnish work, labor, and materials, and to build the device in question for the appellee for its sole use and benefit.

Millar v. Fitzgibbons, 9 Daly, 505.

In the case at bar no tort was committed in making or using the device, and therefore the case is unlike Schillinger's Case. In Schillinger's Case a tort was committed.

Schillinger v. United States, 155 U. S. 163, 39 L. ed. 108, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 85.

The findings are, in large measure, a mere recital of evidence, and they are not a statement of ultimate fact nor a special verdict, and the conclusion of law and judgment are premature.

Burr v. Des Moines R. & Nav. Co. 1 Wall. 102, 17 L. ed. 562.

Assistant Attorney General Thompson submitted the cause for appellee. Mr. Walter H. Pumphrey was on the brief:

There being "no authority in law" at the time, no contract could have been entered into by the Postmaster General which would bind the government.

Chase v. United States, 155 U. S. 489–502, 39 L. ed. 234–238, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Hooe v. United States, 43 Ct. Cl. 245, 218 U. S. 322, 54 L. ed. 1055, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 85; Whiteside v. United States, 93 U. S. 247, 23 L. ed. 882.

An offer to sell imposes no obligations until accepted according to its terms.

Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Columbus Rolling Mill, 119 U. S. 149, 30 L. ed. 376, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Tilley v. Cook County, (Tilley v. Chicago) 103 U. S. 155, 26 L. ed. 374.

The advertisement by the postoffice department, and the appellant's bid or proposal in relation thereto, constitute no agreement on the part of the government to pay appellant anything, and the correspondence between the parties discloses no such agreement.

South Boston Iron Co. v. United States, 118 U. S. 37–42, 30 L. ed. 69–70, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 928.

No man can thrust a contract upon another. There must be agreement, or something from which agreement can be inferred, —request, acquiescence, knowledge, or the retention of a consideration which can be returned. A contract cannot be implied from the voluntary acts of only one party.

Monroe v. United States, 35 Ct. Cl. 199.

If appellant's proposal without a seal was not a "deed of conveyance," the addition of the seal did not make it one. If intended to transfer patents, the seal did not give it any additional force or effect.

Gottfried v. Miller, 104 U. S. 521, 26 L. ed. 851.

In Fletcher v. United States, 11 Ct. Cl. 748, affirmed by this court (131 U. S. Appx. cxcvii. and 26 L. ed. 156), substantially the same state of facts will be found to appear as in this case.

Mr. Justice Pitney, after stating the case as above, delivered the opinion of the court:

The appellant, by his amended petition, asked for a recovery against the government in the sum of twenty *million[255 dollars and interest, as the purchase price upon an alleged assignment and transfer in the year 1893 of certain inventions pertaining to pneumatic transportation for which letters patent had been theretofore issued to him as mentioned in the findings. His first insistence was and is that these inventions and patents had been purchased by the Postmaster-General under an express agreement to pay him the sum mentioned as consideration In the alternative he insisted and now insists that at least the government, with his consent, entered into the use and enjoyment of his devices and letters patent in the year 1893, and has ever since then used and enjoyed them, and ought to pay him their fair value, which he places at twenty million dollars. The facts from which the alleged contract of purchase (express or implied) is sought to be deduced are set forth in the findings of fact above referred to. These findings are criticized by the appellant on the ground that they constitute a mere recital of the evidence, instead of an ascertainment of the ultimate facts. This criticism, under the circumstances of the present case, is captious. The court has set forth the documents upon which alone must rest appellant's contention of an express contract, if that contention have any substantial basis; and has likewise set forth the history of the transactions from which, if at all, an agreement must be implied, if there was no express contract. At the same time the court has expressly found that "the evidence does not establish to the satisfaction of the court that plaintiff's letters patent were conveyed or delivered to the Postmaster-General;" and has made a similar negative finding respecting the appellant's claim to be the first inventor of the devices for pneumatic transportation used, operated, and conducted for the transportation of mail matter by persons contracting with the United States or by the agents of the United States; and a similar negative finding respecting his claim that his letters 256]patent "covered the *same devices actually put into practical operation and use by the corporation which, under an act of Congress, contracted with the Postmaster-General for transmitting mail matter through pneumatic conveyors."

A fundamental obstacle stands in the way of appellant's claim, whether it be rested upon an express or an implied purchase of pneumatic devices, or of patented inventions relating thereto. We refer to the lack of power on the part of the Postmaster-General to contract in behalf of the government of the United States for such a purchase. Sec. 6 of the postoffice appropriation act of July 13, 1892 (27 Stat. at L. 145, chap. 165), provided merely "that the Postmaster-General is hereby authorized and directed to examine into the subject of a more rapid despatch of mail matter between large cities and postoffice stations and transportation terminals located in large cities, by means of pneumatic tubes or other systems, and make report upon the expense, cost, and advantages of said systems when applied to the mail service of the United States, and the sum of ten thousand dollars is hereby appropriated therefor."

Manifestly the appropriation was intended for the purpose of investigation and report, and did not extend to authorizing such a purchase as that which the appellant alleges.

Of this limitation upon the authority of the Postmaster-General the appellant had plain notice at the inception of his dealings with that official. Not only did the advertisement of July 26, 1892, begin by referring to the above-recited clause of the appropriation act, but it contained, near its close, this express declaration: "The Postmaster-General has no authority in law to contract for the expenditure of money for the use of or purchase of any such invention, nor is there any existing appropriation out of which the cost of the same could be paid"

Appellant insists that under other acts of 257]Congress the *Postmaster-General had authority to purchase the inventions and devices in question. Reference is made to § 3965, Rev. Stat. U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2708, enacting that "the Postmaster-General shall provide for carrying the mail on all postroads established by law, as often as he, having due regard to productiveness and other circumstances, may think proper." This is one of the sections that prescribe the general duties of the Postmaster-General, and cannot be fairly treated as authority for making the alleged contract of purchase. Successive appropriation acts are referred to. Act of June 9. 1896 (29 Stat. at L 315, chap. 386, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2724), authorizing the Postmaster-General, in his discretion, to use not exceeding $35,000 in the transportation of mail by pneumatic tube or other similar devices, contains no authorization of purchase. Act of March 3, 1897 (29 Stat. at L. 646, chap. 385), authorizes the use of not exceeding $150,000 in the transportation of mail by pneumatic tube or other similar devices, "by purchase or otherwise." But this was enacted more than four years after the last transactions (so far as the record shows) between the appellant and the Postmaster-General, out of which it could possibly be claimed that any contract, express or implied, had arisen. For like reasons, subsequent statutes that are referred to (act of June 13, 1898, 30 Stat. at L. 442, chap. 446, U. S. Comp Stat. 1901, p. 2720; act of March 1, 1899, 30 Stat. at L. 963, chap. 327; act of June 2, 1900, 31 Stat. at L. 258, chap. 613; act of July 1, 1898, 30 Stat. at L. 615, chap. 546; act of March 3, 1899, 30 Stat. at L. 1092, chap. 424) must be rejected. They indicate that pneumatic tube service was in operation in Philadelphia, New York City, Brooklyn, Boston, and perhaps elsewhere; but they have no reference to any transactions between the Postmaster-General and the appellant.

But if the obstacle arising out of the actual and avowed want of authority on the part of the Postmaster-General could be overcome, the appellant's case is still fatally *weak upon the question whether any[258 contract was in fact made, either expressly or by implication from the conduct of the parties.

The contention that there was an express contract rests upon the fact that the Postmaster-General retained the appellant's proposal without in terms rejecting it. The argument is untenable for several reasons, some of which may be stated.

First, it ignores the fact that the proposal was submitted in response to an advertisement which plainly stated that the proposals were desired for the purpose of investigation and estimate merely, and that the Postmaster-General had no authority to contract for the expenditure of money for the use or purchase of any such invention.

Secondly, it treats the appellant's proposal as an assignment in præsenti of his inventions and patents to the United States, and nothing else. It was not, either in form or substance, an assignment, but (so far as it had reference to a sale) merely purported to state the terms upon which Beach proposed and offered to sell, and manifestly contemplated that something should be done on each side before the inventions should in fact become the property of the United States. It is significant that one of the terms of the proposal was: "This proposal is made upon condition, and the same shall not be binding upon the undersigned unless the United States shall, by the Postmaster-General, accept said propositions or one of said propositions, and shall inform me, the undersigned, of said acceptance on or before the 1st day of August, 1893."

Thirdly, the proposal was not a mere offer to sell the inventions and patents. It contained for several propositions, acceptance of either one of which involved rejection of the remaining three; that is to say, Beach offered (a) to invest in the United 259]States all of his rights under *the patents in all states and territories excepting Maine, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Michigan and the District of Columbia, in consideration of $800,000 per annum, this offer being without limit as to the use to which the patented devices should be put; (b) to assign and transfer to the United States all rights in the patents in all the states and territorities saving those just mentioned for twenty million dollars (this, of course, contemplated an absolute sale); (c) to invest in the United States all his rights under the two patents ("the said pneumatic devices or conveyors to be used solely and only for the purpose of collecting and transmitting the United States mails, and for no other purpose") in the entire United States excepting the states already mentioned and the District of Columbia, in consideration of an annual payment of $354,580.20; and (d) to "license or lease to the United States for mail purposes only" the right to construct and operate his pneumatic conveyors anywhere in the United States, excepting the states already mentioned and the District of Columbia, "upon reasonable and equitable terms, and for a reasonable consideration to be paid to me . . . the amount thereof to be agreed upon by the United States and the undersigned James W. Beach (either by mutual agreement or by arbitration) . . . said consideration to be based upon the mileage of the pneumatic tubes to be used, or upon a small percentage of the total (present) annual cost of the transportation of the United States mails within said United States." It is evident that a retention of the proposal without dissent could not be deemed an acceptance of proposition (b) any more than of (a), or of (c), or of (d); and so the act of retention (if there were no obstacle arising out of the want of authority on the part of the Postmaster-General) cannot be treated as an acceptance of either one of the four several propositions.

For these and other reasons, the court of claims was *clearly right in holding[260 that the evidence did not establish that the letters patent were conveyed or delivered to the Postmaster-General.

The theory of implied contract is likewise untenable. In the first place, the want of statutory authority on the part of the Postmaster-General to represent the government in making an express contract is equally fatal to the theory of an implied contract. For it is fundamental that he who is without authority to bind his principal by an express contract cannot be held to have done so by implication.

Another and sufficient answer is that the appellant has failed to show any use by the Postmaster-General or his successors of the patented inventions or devices of the appellant, or to show that the contractors or agents of the government have made any use of them. His case here fails because he does not show that the inventions or devices used are those covered by his patents.

Therefore the Court of Claims correctly held that the appellant had not made out a case of contract.

Judgment affirmed.

---

BENJAMIN ROSENTHAL, Plff. in Err.,
v.
PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF NEW YORK.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 260-272.)

Constitutional law — privileges and immunities — regulating junk dealers.

1. Privileges and immunities of citizens of the United States are not unconstitutionally abridged by the provisions of N. Y. Laws 1903, chap. 326, amending Pen. Code, § 550, which, as construed by the highest court of the state, make it a criminal offense for a dealer in or collector of junk, metals, or secondhand materials, to buy or receive any stolen wire, cable, copper, lead, solder, iron, or brass used by or belonging to a railroad, telephone, telegraph, gas, or electric light company, without making diligent inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether the person selling or delivering it has a legal right to do so.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. a, 1, 5, 8, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — liberty of contract — police regulation of junk dealers.

2. No unconstitutional interference with

---

NOTE.—As to power to regulate traffic in junk—see note to Com. v. Malatsky, 24 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1168.

Who may raise objection that a statute contains an unconstitutional discrimination—see note to Pugh v. Pugh, 32 L.R.A. (N.S.) 954.

the liberty of contract is made by the provisions of N. Y. Laws 1903, chap. 326, amending Pen. Code, § 550, which, as construed by the highest court of the state, make it a criminal offense for a dealer in or collector of junk, metals, or secondhand materials, to buy or receive any stolen wire, cable, copper, lead, solder, iron, or brass used by or belonging to a railroad, telephone, telegraph, gas, or electric light company, without making diligent inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether the person selling or delivering it has a legal right to do so, but such legislation is well within the legitimate bounds of the police power of the state.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 7, b; IV. c, 8, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — classification — junk dealers.

3. Junk dealers are not denied the equal protection of the laws by the provisions of N. Y. Laws 1903, chap. 326, amending Pen. Code, § 550, which, as construed by the highest court of the state, make it a criminal offense for a dealer in or collector of junk, metals, or secondhand materials, to buy or receive any stolen wire, cable, copper, lead, solder, iron, or brass used by or belonging to a railroad, telephone, telegraph, gas, or electric light company, without making diligent inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether the person selling or delivering it has a legal right to do so.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. a, 5, 8, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — who may assail validity.

4. A junk dealer cannot invoke the equal protection of the laws clause of the Federal Constitution to invalidate the provisions of N. Y. Laws 1903, chap. 326, amending Pen. Code, § 550, which, as construed by the highest court of the state, make it a criminal offense for a dealer in or collector of junk, metals, or secondhand materials, to buy or receive any stolen wire, cable, copper, lead, solder, iron, or brass used by or belonging to a railroad, telephone, telegraph, gas, or electric light company, without making diligent inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether the person selling or delivering it has a legal right to do so, because of the failure of the legislature to extend the protection of the act to the like kinds of property when owned by manufacturers of equipment for railroads, telephone, and telegraph lines, or to include the owners of blast furnaces and brass foundries, or other classes who are liable to losses by theft of articles of like kinds

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. d, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — question not raised below.

5. A point not raised in the court below nor covered by the assignments of errors in the Federal Supreme Court cannot be considered on a writ of error to a state court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2164–2174, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Argued and submitted November 5, 1912.
Decided December 2, 1912.

IN ERROR to the County Court of Monroe County, in the State of New York, to review a judgment entered pursuant to the mandate of the Court of Appeals of that state, which affirmed a judgment of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, Fourth Department, which had in turn affirmed a conviction in the County Court of receiving stolen property. Affirmed.

See same case below in court of appeals, 197 N. Y. 394, 46 L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 90 N. E. 991.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Percival Dewitt Oviatt argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The New York laws relating to criminally receiving stolen property, as they existed prior to 1903, were adequate to protect against the evils involved.

People v. Wilson, 151 N. Y. 403, 45 N. E. 862; People v. Dowling, 84 N. Y. 485.

The statute applies only to dealers in metals, etc., and is class legislation, based upon illogical and arbitrary distinctions.

Re Jacobs, 98 N. Y. 106, 50 Am. Rep. 636; People v. Marx, 99 N. Y. 377, 52 Am. Rep. 34, 2 N. E. 29; People ex rel. Madden v. Dycker, 72 App. Div. 308, 76 N. Y. Supp. 111; Schnaier v. Navarre Hotel & Importation Co. 182 N. Y. 83, 70 L.R.A. 722, 108 Am. St. Rep. 790, 74 N. E. 561; Wright v. Hart, 182 N. Y. 330, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 338, 75 N. E. 404, 3 Ann. Cas. 263; Buffalo v. Linsman, 113 App. Div. 584, 98 N. Y. Supp. 737; Frank L. Fisher Co. v. Woods, 187 N. Y. 90, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 707, 79 N. E. 836; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 56, 49 L. ed. 937, 941, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133; People v. Williams, 189 N. Y. 131, 12 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1130, 121 Am. St. Rep. 854, 81 N. E. 778, 12 Ann. Cas. 798; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 107, 46 L. ed. 92, 108, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 369, 30 L. ed. 220, 226, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 294, 42 L. ed. 1037, 1043, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Josma v. Western Steel Car & Foundry Co. 249 Ill. 508, 94 N. E. 945; Chicago v. Lowenthal, 242 Ill. 404, 90 N. E. 287; People v. Hawkins, 157 N. Y. 1, 42 L.R.A. 490, 68 Am. St. Rep. 736, 51 N. E. 257; People ex rel. Phillips v. Raynes, 136 App. Div. 417, 120 N. Y. Supp. 1053; People v. Beattie, 96 App. Div. 383, 89 N. Y. Supp. 193.

The statute is solicitous concerning the property of only railroad, telephone, gas, and electric companies, and is class legislation based upon illogical and arbitrary distinctions.

Wright v. Hart, 182 N. Y. 330, 2 L.R.A. (N. S.) 338, 75 N. E. 404, 3 Ann. Cas. 263; Shaver v. Pennsylvania Co. 71 Fed. 931; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 56, 49 L. ed. 937, 941, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 109, 46 L. ed. 92, 109, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; People ex rel. Phillips v. Raynes, 136 App. Div. 417, 425, 120 N. Y. Supp. 1053; People v. Marcus, 110 App. Div. 255, 97 N. Y. Supp. 322; People ex rel. Appel v. Zimmerman, 102 App. Div. 103, 92 N. Y. Supp. 497; People v. Beattie, 96 App. Div. 383, 392, 89 N. Y. Supp. 193; Re Van Horne, 74 N. J. Eq. 600, 70 Atl. 986.

The accident of who owned the property can have no bearing upon the guilt or innocence of the purchaser. If the property is of such a nature that it is peculiarly susceptible to theft, it is the nature of the property, and not the owner of it, which constitutes the fundamental and logical distinction.

People v. Hawkins, 157 N. Y. 1, 42 L.R.A. 490, 68 Am. St. Rep. 736, 51 N. E. 257.

The statute required the plaintiff in error to determine a legal question, not as to whether the property had been stolen, but as to the legal right of the seller to sell it.

Lawton v. Steele, 119 N. Y. 226, 7 L.R.A. 134, 16 Am. St. Rep. 813, 23 N. E. 878; Cotting v. Kansas City Stock Yards Co. (Cotting v. Godard) 183 U. S. 79, 46 L. ed. 92, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 23 L. ed. 563; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Ellis, 165 U. S. 150, 41 L. ed. 666, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; People ex rel. Rodgers v. Coler, 166 N. Y. 1, 52 L.R.A. 814, 82 Am. St. Rep. 605, 59 N. E. 716; Board of Excise v. Merchant, 103 N. Y. 148, 57 Am. Rep. 705, 8 N. E. 484; People v. Gillson, 109 N. Y. 389, 400, 4 Am. St. Rep. 465, 17 N. E. 343.

A criminal statute should be clear; and it is apparent from the literal reading of the statute involved, that the interpretation placed upon it by the court of appeals is an injection into the statute of circumstances not therein expressed. The court of appeals thought it necessary judicially to amend the statute in an effort to save it.

United States v. Capital Traction Co. 34 App. D. C. 592, 19 Ann. Cas. 68; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Com. 99 Ky. 132, 33 L.R.A. 209, 59 Am. St. Rep. 457, 35 S. W. 129; Czarra v. Medical Supers. 25 App. D. C. 443; United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 23 L. ed. 563; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 49 L. ed. 937, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133.

When this defendant pleaded guilty, he had a right to rely upon the principle expressed in Lewis's Sutherland on Statutory Construction, 2d ed. vol. 1, p. 176, to the effect that "the law is to be tested not by what has been done under it, but what may be done under it."

The situation is such that this court is permitted to interpret the statute for itself.

Yick Wo. v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 355 356, 366, 30 L. ed. 220, 225, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064; Baldwin v. Franks, 120 U. S. 680, 30 L. ed. 766, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 656, 763; Burgess v. Seligman, 107 U. S. 21, 27 L. ed. 359, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 10; Douglass v. Pike County, 101 U. S. 679, 25 L. ed. 968; Piqua State Bank v. Knoop, 16 How. 369, 14 L. ed. 977; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Louisville Trust Co. v. Cincinnati, 22 C. C. A. 334, 47 U. S. App. 36, 76 Fed. 296; Loeb v. Columbia Twp. 91 Fed. 37.

Mr. Freeman F. Zimmerman submitted the cause for defendant in error. Mr. John W. Barrett was on the brief:

The statute under consideration is not unconstitutional, as interpreted by the court of appeals of the state of New York.

Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Hayes v. Missouri, 120 U. S. 68, 30 L. ed. 578, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383.

The construction placed upon this statute by the court of appeals of the state of New York is conclusive.

Morley v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 146 U. S. 162, 36 L. ed. 925, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54; Nobles v. Georgia, 168 U. S. 398, 42 L. ed. 515, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 87; Bergemann v. Backer, 157 U. S. 655, 39 L. ed. 845, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727.

Mr. Justice Pitney delivered the opinion of the court:

The plaintiff in error pleaded guilty to an indictment charging him with "the crime of criminally receiving stolen property," in that he, being a dealer in and collector of junk, metals, and secondhand materials, did feloniously *buy and re-[265 ceive, from persons named, certain copper wire, "the same then and there consisting of copper wire used by and belonging to a telephone company, to wit, used by and being the goods, chattels, and personal property of the Bell Telephone Company, of Buffalo, . . . then lately stolen, taken, and carried away from the possession of the said Bell Telephone Company, . . . without ascertaining by diligent inquiry that the said persons so selling and delivering the same had a legal right to do so."

The indictment was founded upon chap. 326 of the Laws of 1903 of the state of New York, amending § 550 of the Penal Code. The section, as amended, reads as follows:

"Sec. 550. Criminally receiving property.—A person who buys or receives any stolen property, or any property which has been wrongfully appropriated in such a manner as to constitute larceny according to this chapter, knowing the same to have been stolen or so dealt with, or who corruptly, for any money, property, reward, or promise, or agreement for the same, conceals, withholds, or aids in concealing or withholding, any property, knowing the same to have been stolen, or appropriated wrongfully in such a manner as to constitute larceny under the provisions of this chapter, if such misappropriation has been committed within the state, whether such property were so stolen or misappropriated within or without the state [or who, being a dealer in or collector of junk, metals, or secondhand materials, or the agent, employee, or representative of such dealer or collector, buys or receives any wire, cable, copper, lead, solder, iron, or brass used by or belonging to a railroad, telephone, telegraph, gas or electric light company without ascertaining by diligent inquiry that the person selling or delivering the same has a legal right to do so], is guilty of criminally receiving such property, and is punishable, by imprisonment in a state 266] prison for not more than *five years, or in a county jail for not more than six months, or by a fine of not more than $250, or by both such fine and imprisonment."

The words inclosed in brackets were added by the amendment of 1903, which made no other change in the section. The section as amended was re-enacted in the Penal Law as § 1308.

Having pleaded guilty, the plaintiff in error moved in arrest of judgment, upon the ground of the unconstitutionality of the amendment of 1903, and this motion having been denied, sentence of fine and imprisonment was imposed, whereupon he took an appeal to the appellate division, and from an adverse ruling in that court he appealed to the court of appeals, which court sustained the statute against the constitutional objections, and affirmed the judgment of conviction. 197 N. Y. 394, 46 L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 90 N. E. 991.

The record having been remitted to the county court, the present writ of error was taken. The errors relied upon are that the courts of the state of New York erred, because they ought to have decided that the amendment of 1903 to § 550 of the Penal Code was in conflict with the 14th Amendment, in that (a) it abridged the privileges and immunities of the plaintiff in error; (b) deprived him of his liberty and property without due process of law; and (c) denied to him the equal protection of the laws.

No serious argument was made to support the contention that the act in any way abridged the privileges or immunities of the plaintiff in error as a citizen of the United States. This part of the prohibition of the 14th Amendment refers only to such privileges and immunities as pertain to citizenship of the United States, as distinguished from state citizenship. Slaughter House Cases, 16 Wall. 36, 74, 80, 21 L. ed. 394, 408, 409. We are unable to see that the statute under consideration, or its enforcement in the case at hand, even if the act be fairly open to any or all of the criticisms that are made upon it, abridges in the *least any privilege or immunity[267 that arises out of the national citizenship of the plaintiff in error.

The argument is thus narrowed to a consideration of the statute in the light of the "due process of law" and "equal protection" clauses.

The New York court of appeals in the present case construed the amendment of 1903 as applying only to stolen property, and as putting upon the dealer in junk, metal, or secondhand materials, not the burden of ascertaining at his peril that the person selling or delivering the wire or other property specified has a legal right to do so, but only the duty of making diligent inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining whether the person selling or delivering it has such legal right.

Counsel for the plaintiff in error argues, first, that the act in question is unconstitutional even as thus interpreted; and this on the grounds that the previous laws relating to criminally receiving stolen property were adequate to protect against the evils involved, and that the act of 1903 is unreasonable and oppressive, and an undue interference with the liberty of contract; that since the act applies only to dealers in metals, etc., it is class legislation, based upon arbitrary distinctions; and that the statute protects the property only of railroad, telephone, gas, and electric companies, and for this reason likewise is based upon arbitrary distinctions.

In support of this argument, counsel points out that, without the amendment of 1903, the Penal Code provides that anyone who buys or receives property, knowing it to be stolen, is guilty of a felony; that anyone who conceals or withholds or aids in the concealment or withholding of such property is guilty of a felony; that the decisions of the courts of New York hold that actual knowledge of the fact that the property is stolen is unnecessary, and that anything in the circumstances that would put an honest or prudent man upon inquiry is 268]sufficient to warrant *a conviction. People v. Dowling, 84 N. Y. 478, 485; People v. Wilson, 151 N. Y. 403, 45 N. E. 862. It is also pointed out that chapter 308 of the Laws of 1903 compels every junk dealer (except in cities of the first class) to obtain a license, provides that when such a dealer purchases any pig iron, pig metal, copper wire, or brass car journals, he shall cause a statement to be subscribed by the seller as to when, where, and from whom he obtained the property, which statement must be filed with the chief of police; and that when a junk dealer purchases the property described, he must keep such purchase absolutely separate and distinct, without change or mutilation, for a period of five days after the purchase, and must tag it with a tag bearing the particulars of the purchase. And that all cities of the first class have dealt with the subject-matter through the means of local ordinances at least as comprehensive as the statute just mentioned.

Counsel, indeed, concedes the abundant right of the legislature to regulate the junk business, and admits that such regulations as those just referred to are quite within the legislative power of the state.

This concession is, we think, very properly made; and, this being so, there is little ground left for an attack upon the amendment of 1903 because of its alleged unreasonable and arbitrary requirement that a dealer in or collector of junk, metals, or secondhand materials, who buys or receives any stolen wire, cable, copper, lead, solder, iron, or brass, used by or belonging to a railroad, telephone, telegraph, gas, or electric light company, shall make diligent inquiry to ascertain that the person selling or delivering it has a legal right to do so.

When it is conceded that such a dealer may be properly subjected to punishment as a criminal if he receives stolen property without actual knowledge that it has been stolen, and merely because charged with notice of circumstances such as would have 269]put an honest or prudent *man upon inquiry, it needs little argument to vindicate legislation with respect to particular kinds of personal property that the legislature in its wisdom presumably deemed to be more susceptible of theft than other property, when that legislation but adds the further requirement of diligent inquiry by the dealer with respect to the right of the seller.

It is urged as a criticism that the statute directs the junk dealer's inquiry to the question of the legal right of the seller to sell, rather than to the question of an original larceny. It ought to be unnecessary to say that if goods have in fact been stolen, a diligent inquiry into the right of the present possessor to make sale or delivery of them will very surely tend to disclose the larcenous origin of his title. Indirect questions in such a case will very probably bring out the truth as readily and as surely as the plump inquiry—"Did you steal these goods?" Or, at least, the legislature might so presume. For, of course, all such matters rest in legislative discretion.

Counsel suggests that diligent inquiry by a junk dealer respecting the legal right of one offering certain wire or other goods for sale might lead to perplexing questions that only a court of last resort could properly determine. The obvious answer is that a method of inquiry that would bring to light, in rare instances, even the occult and doubtful point in a vendor's title, would, if systematically adhered to, be reasonably sure in a greater number of instances to develop the fact that the goods under investigation had been acquired by theft.

We have said enough to indicate the character of the arguments employed in the effort to show that the act of 1903 is wholly arbitrary and constitutes so groundless an interference with the citizen's liberty of contract as to bring it within the denunciation of the due process of law clause of the 14th Amendment. It seems to us that the object of the legislation is well within the *legitimate bounds of the police power[270 of the state, and sustainable upon the principles discussed in Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 661, 31 L. ed. 205, 210, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273, etc., of which more recent applications are to be found in Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 429, 46 L. ed. 623, 626, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425, and Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174. See also Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 568, 55 L. ed. 328, 338, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 259.

Nor can the act in question be deemed to conflict with the "equal protection" clause because it places junk dealers, etc., in a class by themselves. The argument under this head is that if property of the kinds mentioned in the act is peculiarly susceptible of theft, there is no reason that all persons should not be subjected to the same rules with reference to its purchase. This needs no answer beyond a reference to the well-known fact, alluded to by the New York court of appeals in its opinion herein, that junk dealers provide an important market for stolen merchandise of the kinds mentioned, and that because of their experience they are peculiarly fitted to detect whether property offered is stolen property. Plainly it cannot be said that the classification rests on no reasonable basis. It is unnecessary to rehearse the grounds upon which rests the authority of the states to resort to classification for purposes of legislation. The citation of a few recent illustrative cases will obviate extended discussion. Magoun v. Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank, 170 U. S. 283, 293, 42 L. ed. 1037, 1042, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Orient Ins. Co. v. Daggs, 172 U. S. 557, 562, 43 L. ed. 552, 554, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 281; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Melton, 218 U. S. 36, 52, 54 L. ed. 921, 927, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 220 U. S. 61, 78, 55 L. ed. 369, 377, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 337, Ann. Cas. 1912 C, 160.

The fact that the act of 1903 has reference to the property of only railroad, telephone, gas, and electric companies furnishes no ground for the plaintiff in error to invoke the "equal protection" clause of the 14th Amendment. The failure of the legislature to extend the protection of the act to the like kinds of property when owned by manufacturers of equipment for railroads, telephone, and telegraph lines, as well 271 ]as when owned by the *companies operating such lines; or the failure to include the owners of blast furnaces and brass foundries, or other classes who, as claimed by counsel, are liable to losses by theft of articles of the like kinds,—affords no footing for an attack by plaintiff in error upon the constitutionality of the act, for the reason that he does not bring himself within any of the classes that, according to the argument, are peculiarly susceptible to losses of the kind that the statute is designed to prevent, nor does he show that he has suffered any injury by reason of the failure of the legislature to extend the protection of the act to other classes of owners. Tyler v. Registration Ct. Judges, 179 U. S. 405, 409, 45 L. ed. 252, 254, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Hooker v. Burr, 194 U. S. 415, 419, 48 L. ed. 1046, 1050, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 706; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 160, 51 L. ed. 415, 422, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 Ann. Cas. 736; Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 524, 534, 54 L. ed. 868, 871, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Standard Stock Food Co. v. Wright, 225 U. S. 540, 550, 56 L. ed. 1197, 1201, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784.

So far, therefore, as plaintiff in error is concerned, the legislature has simply not extended the scope of the act so far as it might properly have done. The argument under this head concedes, and must concede, that the act is beneficial as far as it goes, the complaint being that it does not go far enough. But the Federal Constitution does not require that all state laws shall be perfect, nor that the entire field of proper legislation shall be covered by a single enactment.

The court of appeals, in the case before us, said with respect to this topic: "The legislature is presumed to have been familiar with current history and the decisions of the courts, which show that property of a certain kind, such as copper, brass, iron, etc., is frequently stolen from railroad, telegraph, and similar corporations, which cannot adequately protect it because it is scattered through the country along extensive lines of transportation or communication, and which is exposed to view and caption by the evil minded, who find their best market in the shops of certain junk dealers."

*If the act required any defense[272 against the criticism now under consideration, this expression would suffice.

It remains only to notice the second principal contention of plaintiff in error, which is that the construction placed upon the act of 1903 by the court of appeals is clearly erroneous, and that the situation is such that this court ought not to hold itself bound by that construction.

It is ingeniously argued that since the statute had never been judicially construed until the decision of the court of appeals in this case, and since that court (erroneously, it is asserted) injected into the act by construction two elements that are said not to be apparent from a literal reading,—to wit, that the statute applies only to stolen property, and that the dealer need not ascertain the legal right of the seller, but need only make diligent inquiry to ascertain the same, the plaintiff in error is aggrieved by what is called the "judicial amendment" of the statute.

Although not distinctly invoking the prohibition of ex post facto laws, as contained in art. 1, § 10, cl. 1 of the Federal Constitution, the argument, if it have any basis, must be rested upon that prohibition.

It is sufficient to say that no such point appears to have been raised in the court below, although it might have been raised by an application for rehearing. Nor is any such point covered by the assignments of error in this court.

Judgment affirmed.

URSZULIA ZAKONAITE, Appt.,
v.
CASPER J. WOLF, Jailor of the City of St. Louis.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 272–275.)

Courts — deportation of alien — judicial review of findings.

1. The findings of fact upon which were based an order of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor for the deportation, conformably to the act of February 20, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 898, chap. 1134, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p 499), § 3, of an alien found to be practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States, are not subject to review by the courts, if the evidence was adequate to support the Secretary's conclusions, and the alien was given a fair hearing.

[For other cases, see Courts, 243–245, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Aliens — deportation — power of Congress.

2. Congress, in the exercise of its authority to prohibit the admission of aliens into the United States and to regulate their entrance, could constitutionally provide, as is done by the act of February 20, 1907, § 3, for the deportation of any alien found practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States.

[For other cases, see Aliens, VI., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Jury — constitutional right — deportation of alien.

3. Proceedings had conformably to provisions of the act of February 20, 1907, § 3, for the deportation of any alien found practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States, are not criminal, within the meaning of the guaranty of U. S. Const., 6th Amend., that in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed.

[For other cases, see Jury, I. b, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — due process of law — deportation of alien.

4. Life, liberty, or property are not taken without due process of law, contrary to U. S. Const, 5th Amend., by proceedings under the act of February 20, 1907, § 3, resulting in the deportation of an alien found to be practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States, although the inquiry devolves upon the Department of Commerce and Labor, or subordinate officials thereof, and their findings of fact, after a fair though summary hearing, are made conclusive.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b, 8, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Criminal law — offenses against different sovereignties — deportation of alien.

5. The police power of the state cannot be said to be unconstitutionally interfered with by the provisions of the act of February 20, 1907, § 3, for the deportation of an alien found to be practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States, because it vests in the Federal authorities the power to try an immigrant for a violation of the penal laws of the state of which she has become a resident.

[For other cases, see Criminal Law, IV., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — executive exercise of judicial power — deportation of alien.

6. Judicial powers are not unconstitutionally vested in the executive branch of the government by the provisions of the act of February 20, 1907, for the deportation of an alien found to be practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States, although the inquiry under that statute devolves upon the Department of Commerce and Labor, or subordinate officials thereof, and their findings of fact, after a fair though summary hearing, are made conclusive.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, III. a, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Habeas corpus — constitutional right — deportation of alien.

7. The constitutional guaranty of the privilege of habeas corpus is not violated by the provisions of the act of February 20, 1907, for the deportation of an alien found to be practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States, although the inquiry under that statute devolves upon the Department of Commerce and Labor, or subordinate officials thereof, and their findings of fact, after a fair though summary hearing, are made conclusive.

[For other cases, see Habeas Corpus, I. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 53.]

Argued November 14, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri to review a judgment which affirmed an order dismissing a writ of habeas corpus to inquire into a detention of an alien immigrant under warrants of arrest and deportation. Affirmed.

Mr. Leander G. Pope argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Charles F. Joy and Henry B. Davis, filed a brief for appellant:

The constitutional guaranties that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, and that the accused, in all criminal prosecutions, shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, extend to an alien, lawfully admitted into the United States.

Sprung v. Morton, 182 Fed. 330; United States ex rel. Huber v. Sibray, 178 Fed. 144;

Beavers v. Henkel, 194 U. S. 83, 48 L. ed. 886, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 605.

These guaranties are applicable to even a technically criminal prosecution, and cover an offense like that charged against appellant in the case at bar.

United States v. Zucker, 161 U. S. 481, 40 L. ed. 779, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641; United States ex rel. Huber v. Sibray, 178 Fed. 144.

The 6th Amendment was intended to be restrictive of the powers of Congress, and was designed to prevent interference with the rights of the states.

Davis v. Texas, 139 U. S. 653, 35 L. ed. 302, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 675; Eilenbecker v. District Court, 134 U. S. 35, 33 L. ed. 803, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424; Barron v. Baltimore, 7 Pet. 243, 8 L. ed. 672; United States ex rel. Huber v. Sibray, 178 Fed. 144.

The act approved February 20th, 1907, regulating the immigration of aliens into the United States, in so far as it attempts to confer jurisdiction upon a tribunal sitting outside of the state in which an offense is alleged to have been committed, to hear and determine such offense, is unconstitutional, and plainly in contravention of the provisions of the 5th and 6th Amendments to the Constitution.

Beavers v. Henkel, 194 U. S. 83, 48 L. ed. 886, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 605.

The provisions of the immigration act in question, vesting in the Federal authorities the power to try an immigrant, lawfully admitted into the United States, for a violation of the penal laws of the state of which he has become a resident, constitute an interference with the police powers, which are matters reserved for regulation by the states, and not within any powers delegated to Congress by the Constitution.

Davis v. Texas, 139 U. S. 653, 35 L. ed. 302, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 675; Eilenbecker v. District Court, 134 U. S. 35, 33 L. ed. 803. 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424; Barron v. Baltimore, 7 Pet. 243, 8 L. ed. 672; Keller v. United States, 213 U. S. 138, 139, 53 L. ed. 737, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 470, 16 Ann. Cas. 1066; Ullman v. United States, 213 U. S. 138, 139, 53 L. ed. 737, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 470, 16 Ann. Cas. 1066; United States ex rel. Huber v. Sibray, 178 Fed. 144, 150.

The immigration act in question, in making the findings of fact of the Department of Commerce and Labor conclusive, and not reviewable by the courts, in a proceeding like the one under discussion, is violative of the Constitution, which inhibits the suspension or abridgment of the writ of habeas corpus, excepting in the cases mentioned in the Constitution.

Sprung v. Morton, 182 Fed. 330; Chin Yow v. United States, 208 U. S. 11, 52 L. ed. 369, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 201.

The district court committed error in holding that said district court was precluded by the findings of fact of the Department from passing on the facts in the case, and in ruling out the evidence offered by the petitioner to show that she was illegally deprived of her liberty.

Davies v. Manolis, 103 C. C. A. 310, 179 Fed. 818; Sprung v. Morton and Chin Yow v. United States, supra.

Conceding, for the purpose of argument, that the Department of Commerce and Labor had been legally invested with judicial powers, and, by due process of law, acquired jurisdiction over the person of appellant, and the subject-matter of the action, the record unmistakably shows that the trial was conducted in contravention of the provisions of the Constitution, requiring the accused to be confronted with the witnesses against her; to have compulsory process for obtaining witnesses in her favor; and to have the assistance of counsel for her defense. Refusal of all these rights at the first hearing, at which the alleged damaging admissions were extracted from the accused, forming the basis for finding appellant guilty, as charged, constitutes the order made by the department oppressive, unjust, and illegal.

United States ex rel. Huber v. Sibray, 178 Fed. 144; Sprung v. Morton, 182 Fed. 330.

Where an accused alien, to whom the safeguards of the Constitution have accrued and properly appertain, is forcibly, and without her consent, and against her will, removed from the state of Illinois, of which she was an inhabitant at the time, and carried into the state of Missouri, and arraigned, tried, and convicted before a tribunal in the latter state, of an offense against the penal laws of the land, alleged to have been committed in the state from which she was removed, she is unquestionably deprived of her liberty, without due process of law, and most clearly denied her constitutional rights, and the courts should unhesitatingly order her release and discharge.

United States ex rel. Huber v. Sibray, 178 Fed. 144; Davies v. Manolis, 103 C. C. A. 310, 179 Fed. 818.

Assistant Attorney General Harr argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee:

Constitutional provisions relating to the trial of crimes have no application to deportation proceedings.

Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U. S. 698, 730, 37 L. ed. 905, 919, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1016; United States ex rel. Turner v. Williams, 194 U. S. 279, 289–290, 48 L. ed. 979, 983, 984, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 719; Keller v. United States, 213 U. S. 138, 143, 53 L. ed. 737, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 470, 16 Ann. Cas.

1066; Low Wah Suey v. Backus, 225 U. S. 460, 468, 56 L. ed. 1165, 1168, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 734; United States v. Zucker, 161 U. S. 481, 40 L. ed. 780, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641.

It is only when punishment by way of fine or imprisonment for a violation of law is sought to be imposed upon an alien in connection with his deportation that the matter becomes criminal, and a judicial trial is required.

Wong Wing v. United States, 163 U. S. 228, 237, 41 L. ed. 140, 143, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 977.

The findings of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor were conclusive.

Low Wah Suey v. Backus, 225 U. S. 460, 468, 56 L. ed. 1165, 1168, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 734; Tang Tun v. Edsell, 223 U. S. 673, 56 L. ed. 606, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 359; Chin Yow v. United States, 208 U. S. 8, 52 L. ed. 369, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 201.

The plenary authority of Congress to expel aliens is no longer open to question.

Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U. S. 698, 37 L. ed. 905, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1016; Wong Wing v. United States, 163 U. S. 228, 237, 41 L. ed. 140, 143, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 977.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Justice Pitney:

The appellant, having been arrested and held in custody under warrants of arrest and deportation issued by the Acting Secretary of Commerce and Labor under the immigration act of February 20, 1907 [34 Stat. at L. 898, chap. 1134, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 499], sought to be discharged upon habeas corpus issued out 274]of the district *court, and that court having upon hearing ordered the dismissal of the writ, she prosecutes this appeal.

From the return and supplemental return of the respondent it appears that the appellant is an alien, and that as the result of a hearing and rehearing conducted in compliance with rule 35, paragraph E of the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Commerce and Labor, she was found to be in the United States in violation of § 3 of the act referred to, and subject to deportation, in that she was a prostitute, and had been found practising prostitution within three years after her entry into the United States.

In her behalf it was contended in the court below, and is here contended, first, that there was no evidence before the Secretary of Commerce and Labor sufficient to warrant the findings of fact upon which the order of deportation was based; and, secondly, that § 3 of the act of February 20, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 898, 899, chap. 1134, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, pp. 499, 502), which provides that "any alien woman or girl who shall be found an inmate of a house of prostitution or practising prostitution, at any time within three years after she shall have entered the United States, shall be deemed to be unlawfully within the United States, and shall be deported as provided by sections twenty and twenty-one of this act,"—is unconstitutional because violative of the guaranties that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property without due process of law, and that in all criminal prosecutions the accused shall enjoy the right to a speedy and public trial by an impartial jury of the state and district wherein the crime shall have been committed, as contained in the 5th and 6th Amendments.

As to the first point, an examination of the evidence upon which the order of deportation was based convinces us that it was adequate to support the Secretary's conclusion *of fact. That being so, and the[275 appellant having had a fair hearing, the findings are not subject to review by the courts.

With respect to the second point little more need be said. It is entirely settled that the authority of Congress to prohibit aliens from coming within the United States, and to regulate their coming, includes authority to impose conditions upon the performance of which the continued liberty of the alien to reside within the bounds of this country may be made to depend; that a proceeding to enforce such regulations is not a criminal prosecution within the meaning of the 5th and 6th Amendments; that such an inquiry may be properly devolved upon an executive department or subordinate officials thereof, and that the findings of fact reached by such officials, after a fair though summary hearing, may constitutionally be made conclusive, as they are made by the provisions of the act in question. Fong Yue Ting v. United States, 149 U. S. 698, 730, 37 L. ed. 905, 919, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1016; United States v. Zucker, 161 U. S. 481, 40 L. ed. 779, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641; Wong Wing v. United States, 163 U. S. 228, 237, 41 L. ed. 140, 143, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 977; United States ex rel. Turner v. Williams, 194 U. S. 279, 289, 48 L. ed. 979, 983, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 719; Chin Yow v. United States, 208 U. S. 8, 11, 52 L. ed. 369, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 201; Tang Tun v. Edsell, 223 U. S. 673, 675, 56 L. ed. 606, 607, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 359; Low Wah Suey v. Backus, 225 U. S. 460, 468, 56 L. ed. 1165, 1167, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 734.

The appellant raises some other constitutional objections, viz.: that the immigration act vests in the Federal authorities the power to try an immigrant for a violation of the penal laws of the state of which he has become a resident, and so interferes with the police power of the state; that the act vests judicial powers in an executive branch of the government; that it violates the constitutional guaranty of the privilege of the writ of habeas corpus, and the like. These are without substance, and require no discussion.

Final order affirmed.

---

276] *NATIONAL SURETY COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

ARCHITECTURAL DECORATING COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 276–285.)

Constitutional law — impairing contract obligations — change in remedy.

1. The existing remedy for the breach of the obligation of a contract may be changed without violating the contract clause of the Federal Constitution, so long as a substantial and efficacious remedy remains, even though the contract, so far as pertains to its obligation, may be of statutory origin.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 1475–1496, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — impairing contract obligations — change in remedy — condition precedent.

2. A change in the remedy without substantial modification of the obligation of the contract is all that is effected by applying to an action upon the bond of a public contractor, conditioned for the benefit of persons doing the work or furnishing the materials therefor, the provision of Minn. Gen. Laws 1909, chap. 413, changing the requirements of Rev. Laws 1905, § 4539, which were in force when the bond was executed and delivered, so as to require the notice of claim to be given within ninety days "after the completion of the contract and acceptance of the building by the proper public authorities," instead of within ninety days "after performing the last item of work, or furnishing the last item of skill, tools, machinery, or materials," and the action to be begun within one year "after the service of such notice," instead of within one year "after the cause of action accrues."

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 1475–1580, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 425]

Submitted October 28, 1912. Decided December 2, 1912.

---

NOTE.—As to constitutionality of change in period of limitation—see note to Wheeler v. Jackson, 34 L. ed. U. S. 659.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of St. Louis County in that state, in favor of plaintiff in an action upon the bond of a public contractor. Affirmed.

See same case below, 115 Minn. 382, 132 N. W. 289.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Jed L. Washburn submitted the cause for plaintiff in error. Messrs. W. D. Bailey and Oscar Mitchell were on the brief:

By the common law, as interpreted by the Minnesota supreme court at the time the bond in question was given, no action could have been maintained by the Decorating Company against plaintiff in error on the bond sued on. The right of action given is statutory in its origin, and was conditioned on giving the proper notice.

Breen v. Kelly, 45 Minn. 352, 47 N. W. 1067; Park Bros. & Co. v. Sykes, 67 Minn. 153, 69 N. W. 712; Eidsvik v. Foley, 99 Minn. 468, 109 N. W. 993.

The statutes in force at the time the bond was executed and delivered, in so far, at least, as they conditioned the surety's liability, became a part of the plaintiff in error's contract, including the requirement for notice therein, as fully in all respects as if such requirement for notice had been set out at length therein.

Grant v. Berrisford, 94 Minn. 45, 101 N. W. 940, 1133; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 18 L. ed. 403; Walker v. Whitehead, 16 Wall. 314, 21 L. ed. 357; Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U. S. 595, 24 L. ed. 793; McCracken v. Hayward, 2 How. 608, 11 L. ed. 397; Barnitz v. Beverly, 163 U. S. 118, 41 L. ed. 93, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1042; Bradley v. Lightcap, 195 U. S. 1, 49 L. ed. 65, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 748; Harrison v. Remington Paper Co. 3 L.R.A.(N.S.) 954, 72 C. C. A. 405, 140 Fed. 385, 5 Ann. Cas. 314.

The requirement for notice in the statute at the time the bond was executed and delivered became a part of the contract thereafter existing between the plaintiff in error and the Decorating Company, and was a condition precedent to liability, and no part of the remedy.

Grant v. Berrisford, 94 Minn. 45, 101 N. W. 940, 1133; The Harrisburg, 119 U. S. 199, 30 L. ed. 358, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Selma, R. & D. R. Co. v. Lacey, 49 Ga. 106; Hamilton v. Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. 39 Kan. 56, 18 Pac. 57; Boyd v. Clark, 8 Fed. 849; Lambert v. Ensign Mfg. Co. 42 W. Va. 813, 26 S. E. 431; Theroux v. Northern P. R. Co. 12 C. C. A. 52, 27 U. S. App. 508, 64 Fed. 84; Northern P. R. Co. v. Babcock, 154 U. S. 190, 38 L. ed. 958, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep 978; Slater v. Mexican Nat. R. Co. 194 U. S

120, 48 L. ed. 900, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; Simerson v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 97 C. C. A. 618, 173 Fed. 612; Pohlman v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 105 C. C. A. 36, 182 Fed. 492; Lange v. Union P. R. Co. 62 C. C. A. 48, 126 Fed. 338; Veginan v. Morse, 160 Mass. 143, 35 N. E. 451; Healey v. George F. Blake Mfg. Co. 180 Mass. 270, 62 N. E. 270; McRae v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 199 Mass. 418, 85 N. E. 425, 15 Ann. Cas. 489; Dolenty v. Broadwater County, 45 Mont. 261, 122 Pac. 919; Hudson v. Bishop, 32 Fed. 519; Hudson v. Bishop, 35 Fed. 820; United States use of Watson-Flagg Engineering Co. v. Winkler 162 Fed. 397; United States use of Gibson Lumber Co. v. Boomer, 106 C. C. A. 164, 183 Fed. 726; Pittsburg, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Hine, 25 Ohio St. 629; Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Wagner, 92 C. C. C. 527, 167 Fed. 75; Christie-Street Commission Co. v. United States, 126 Fed. 996.

It is elementary law that the obligation of the surety cannot be extended or increased or varied without its consent.

Miller v. Stewart, 9 Wheat. 680, 6 L. ed. 189; United States v. Freel, 186 U. S. 309, 46 L. ed. 1177, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 875; Governor v. Lagow, 43 Ill. 141; People v. Tompkins, 74 Ill. 487; Grocers Bank v. Kingman, 16 Gray, 476; Schuster v. Weiss, 114 Mo. 171, 19 L.R.A. 182, 21 S. W. 438; King County v. Ferry, 5 Wash. 554, 19 L.R.A. 500, 34 Am. St. Rep. 880, 32 Pac. 538.

It is clear that the change made by the act of the legislature in this case had the effect of extending the surety's liability to a class not covered by the bond by the law in force at the time it was written.

Green v. Biddle, 8 Wheat. 1, 84, 5 L. ed. 547, 568; Planters' Bank v. Sharp, 6 How. 326, 12 L. ed. 458.

By the contract which plaintiff in error made, it was under no obligation to indemnify any person who did not give it notice as therein required. The legislature, by attempting to impose such liability where the notice was not given, or not given until a different time, impaired its obligation.

Golden v. Prince, 3 Wash. C. C. 313, Fed. Cas. No. 5,509; Louisiana v. New Orleans, 102 U. S. 203, 26 L. ed. 132.

Mr. Arcadius L. Agatin submitted the cause for defendant in error:

The distinction between the obligation of a contract and the remedy given by the legislature to enforce that obligation exists in the nature of things. Without impairing the obligation of the contract, the remedy may certainly be modified as the wisdom of the nation shall direct.

Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 4 L. ed. 529.

The legislation, to be objectionable, must affect the contract directly, and not incidentally or only by consequence.

Van Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 553, 18 L. ed. 409; Oshkosh Waterworks Co. v. Oshkosh, 109 Wis. 208, 95 Am. St. Rep. 870, 85 N. W. 376, affirmed in 187 U. S. 437, 47 L. ed. 249, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234.

Over mere remedies the power of the legislature is absolute; laws regulating remedies involve the consideration of public convenience and welfare to such an extent that individuals cannot be conceded vested rights therein.

Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 51 L. ed. 1163, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755.

It is only in the event of a surety's breach of its express obligation to pay, that the statute in question comes into operation, and gives rise to a new right, for the enforcement of the obligation, which is purely a remedial right.

Pom. Rem. & Rem. Rights, §§ 1, 2.

In order to invoke the protection of the Constitution, as is sought here, it is not enough for the plaintiff in error to show an impairment of its remedial rights, but it must further satisfy the court that its substantive rights have been actually and directly affected by the offending statute.

Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 4 L. ed. 529; Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat. 213, 6 L. ed. 606; Story, Const. §§ 1381, 1385.

The obligation of a contract is not something shifting, existing at one time and absent at another, but is coeval with the undertaking to perform it, and continues until it is fully performed, while the remedy operates merely upon the broken contract, and enforces a pre-existing obligation.

State ex rel. Hahn v. Young, 29 Minn. 532, 9 N. W. 737; Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 51 L. ed. 1163, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755.

The most that the surety can claim here is an impairment of a remedial right, which in reality is in the nature of a technical defense to an action to enforce the contract. But it is settled that any defense resting upon inability to enforce a contract as made may be taken away by the legislature.

15 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 1053, note 3.

So, a defense of usury can be taken away.

Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 151, 27 L. ed. 685, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 408; Gross v. United States Mortg. Co. 108 U. S. 488, 27 L. ed. 798, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 940.

There is no vested right in a defense based on informalities not affecting substantive equities.

Danforth v. Groton Water Co. 178 Mass. 477, 86 Am. St. Rep. 495, 59 N. E. 1033; Farnsworth Loan & Realty Co. v. Commonwealth Title Ins. & T. Co. 84 Minn. 62, 86 N. W. 877; Foster v. Essex Bank, 16 Mass. 245, 8 Am. Dec. 135; Campbell v. Holt, 115 U. S. 620, 29 L. ed. 483, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 209; Cooley, Const. Lim. p. 378.

There is no vested right in any particular remedy. It is well settled that the legislature may prescribe new remedies to enforce rights under contracts, or may alter the form of administering right or justice.

Straw & E. Mfg. Co. v. L. D. Kilbourne Boot & Shoe Co. 80 Minn. 137, 83 N. W. 36; Henley v. Myers, 76 Kan. 736, 17 L.R.A. (N.S.) 779, 93 Pac. 168, affirmed in 215 U. S. 373–385, 54 L. ed. 240, 246, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148; Doehla v. Phillips, 151 Cal. 488, 91 Pac. 330; Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 51 L. ed. 1163, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; 8 Cyc. 910–918.

One who engages by contract to do a certain thing cannot claim that the obligation he has assumed is impaired by legislation designed only to enforce the performance of his obligation.

New Orleans City & Lake R. Co. v. Louisiana, 157 U. S. 219–224, 39 L. ed. 679, 681, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581.

Conditions precedent to an action to enforce a contract or other right may be modified, enlarged, limited, or taken away.

8 Cyc. 911, 917, 918; Oshkosh Waterworks Co. v. Oshkosh, 187 U. S. 437, 47 L. ed. 249, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234.

The repeal of a law regulating the manner in which notice of protest of promissory notes shall be given does not impair the obligation of a contract.

Levering v. Washington, 3 Minn. 323, Gil. 227.

Even where a contract expressly provides for a particular remedy, the abolishment of it by legislation does not impair its obligation.

Conkey v. Hart, 14 N. Y. 22; Worsham v. Stevens, 66 Tex. 89, 17 S. W. 404.

The enforcement of a mechanics' lien is probably more nearly analogous to the enforcement of the bond in this case, said bond being a substitute for mechanics' liens. It is everywhere held that while the rights of the parties under mechanics' lien laws are to be ascertained and fixed by the law in force when the contract was made, yet such rights are to be established and enforced by the law existing at the bringing of the suit.

Phillips, Mechanics' Liens, 3d ed. § 24; Bardwell v. Mann, 46 Minn. 285, 48 N. W. 1120.

The position of the surety in this case is that of a debtor; and what it really seeks is to avoid its obligation, merely because the change in the remedy affords better facilities for compelling it to perform its engagement. This cannot be done.

Henley v. Myers, 76 Kan. 736, 17 L.R.A. (N.S.) 779, 93 Pac. 168, 215 U. S. 373–385, 54 L. ed. 240, 246, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148.

Mr Justice Pitney delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action to recover damages for the breach of a bond made by the plaintiff in error as surety together with one Henricksen as principal, given to a certain school district of the state of Minnesota, conditioned that Henricksen should pay all just claims for work, materials, etc., furnished for the completion of a school building, for the construction of which he had made a contract with the district; the bond being given, according to its own recitals, for the use of the school district and of all persons doing work or furnishing materials under the contract. The contract and bond were made in the year 1908. The bond was executed and delivered pursuant to the provisions of the Minnesota statutes found in Rev. Laws *(Minn.) 1905, §§ 4535 to[279 4539, inclusive, which in effect require every public corporation of the state, on entering into a contract for the doing of any public work, to take a bond for its own use and for the use of all persons furnishing labor or material under or for the purpose of the contract, and which entitle any person so furnishing labor or material to maintain an action upon the bond, under certain conditions.

The defendant in error, during the months of July and August, 1909, performed certain services and furnished certain materials to Henricksen for use in carrying out his contract, for which a sum exceeding $1,000 remained due and unpaid, and to recover the amount so due this action was brought.

By § 4539, above referred to, which was in force at the time the contract for building the school was made and the bond given, it was enacted that—"no action shall be maintained on any such bond unless within ninety days after performing the last item of work, or furnishing the last item of skill, tools, machinery, or material, the plaintiff shall serve upon the principal and his sureties a written notice specifying the nature and amount of his claim and the date of furnishing the last item thereof, nor unless the action is begun within one year after the cause of action accrues."

On April 22, 1909, this section was amended by chap. 413, Gen. Laws 1909, so as to require the notice of claim to be given within ninety days "after the completion of the contract and acceptance of the building by the proper public authorities," instead of within ninety days "after performing the last item of work or furnishing the last item of skill, tools, machinery, or material," and further amended by requiring the action to be begun within one year "after the service of such notice," instead of within one year "after the cause of action accrues."

It will be observed that this change in the 280]law went *into effect before the defendant in error performed the services and furnished the materials upon which the present action is based.

Defendant in error did not give notice to plaintiff in error in time to comply with § 4539, Rev. Laws 1905, but did give such notice in time to comply with the amended act, if that be the applicable law.

The supreme court of the state of Minnesota in the present case held that the act of 1909 controlled, although passed after the bond in question was given, overruling the contention of plaintiff in error that the statute as so construed impairs the obligation of the contract contained in the bond, and is therefore contrary to § 10 of art. 1 of the Federal Constitution. 115 Minn 382, 132 N. W. 289.

The only question that need be here considered is whether the act of 1909, as thus construed, does impair the obligation of the contract.

Sections 4535–4539, Rev. Laws 1905, originated in chap. 354 of the General Laws of 1895 and chap. 307 of the General Laws of 1897. Prior to this legislation the supreme court of Minnesota had held in Breen v. Kelly (1891) 45 Minn. 352, 47 N. W. 1067, that although a municipal corporation, having authority to cause certain public work to be done and to make contracts for the doing of it, probably had implied authority to take security for its own protection, it had no authority to take security for third persons, nor capacity to act as trustee in a contract made for their benefit, without express legislative authority; and that such a bond, although voluntarily given, was void. The same principle was adhered to in Park Bros. & Co. v. Sykes (1897) 67 Minn 153, 69 N. W. 712.

By chap. 354 of the Laws of 1895, which first created the statutory right of action in favor of third persons upon such a bond, no notice by the third person to the principal or sureties was required as a condition precedent to his right to sue. He 281]was merely obliged to bring his *action within one year after the cause of action accrued. Notice by the plaintiff to the principal and sureties was first required by chap. 307 of the Laws of 1897, the 3d section of which contained the same provisions that were afterwards embodied in the Revision of 1905 as § 4539, above quoted.

The supreme court of Minnesota, in the year 1904, in Grant v. Berrisford, 94 Minn. 45, 49, 101 N. W. 940, 1133, construed Gen. Laws 1897, chap. 307, § 3, as follows: "The provision in the general law requiring notice within ninety days after the last item of labor or materials is done or performed, before bringing an action on the bond, is not analogous to a statute of limitations, but it is a condition precedent which must be performed before the right to bring an action on the bond accrues. Or, in other words, it is a condition or burden placed upon the beneficiaries of the bond, which they must perform or remove before they can avail themselves of its benefits. It is as much so as would be the case if this provision of the general statute was set out as a proviso in the bond."

The argument for plaintiff in error is to the effect that since the right of action by a third party upon such a bond is of statutory origin, and since the statute in force at the time the bond in suit was given required a preliminary notice given to the obligors within a certain time, which notice (under Grant v. Berrisford) constituted a condition precedent to the action as much as if it had been set out as a proviso in the bond, a subsequent act of legislation dispensing with such notice, or changing the time within which it was required to be given, impairs the validity of the contract, within the meaning of § 10 of art. 1 of the Constitution

The argument rests at bottom upon the proposition that because it required legislation to render such a bond actionable in behalf of third parties, the obligation of the bond as a contract is of statutory origin. But this *is not entirely clear.[282 Treating the bond as voluntarily made, and aside from the statute, it is, in its essence, a contract between the obligors (including the Surety Company), on the one hand, and "all persons doing work or furnishing materials" for the construction of the school building (including the Decorating Company as one of those persons), on the other hand. The circumstance that the obligee in the bond as written was a public corporation named as trustee for the workman and materialmen affects the form, and not the substance, of the obligation. The decision in Breen v. Kelly, denying the third party's right of action, and holding such a bond void as to him, was not based upon any illegality or want of consideration in the contract, nor upon any incapacity of the obligors to make it; nor, indeed, upon any incapacity on the part of the real obligees to accept and rely upon such an undertaking. It proceeded wholly upon the ground of the legal incapacity of the municipal corporation to act as trustee for the persons beneficially interested.

But where parties have, in good faith and for a valuable consideration, entered into an engagement that is not contrary to good morals, and is invalid only because of some legal impediment, such as the incapacity of a nominal party or the omission of some merely formal requirement, there is ground for maintaining that the legislature may, by subsequent enactment, provide a legal remedy, and thus give vitality to the obligation that the parties intended to create. Cooley, Const. Lim. 293, 374; Sutherland, U. S. Const. 428, 429; Ewell v. Daggs, 108 U. S. 143, 151, 27 L. ed. 682, 685, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 408; Gross v. United States Mortg. Co. 108 U. S. 477, 488, 27 L. ed. 795, 798, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 940.

Nevertheless, granting, for the sake of the argument, the contention of the plaintiff in error that the contract in suit, so far as pertains to its obligation, is of statutory origin, it by no means follows that the provision respecting a preliminary notice to 283]the obligors, as a condition *precedent to suit thereon, although contained in the law as it stood at the time the bond was given, cannot be constitutionally modified by subsequent legislation. The decision must turn, we think, upon the familiar distinction between a law which enlarges, abridges, or modifies the obligation of a contract, and a law which merely modifies the remedy, by changing the time or the method in which the remedy shall be pursued, without substantial interference with the obligation of the contract itself.

As Chief Justice Marshall observed in Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat. 213, 349, 6 L. ed. 606, 653, the obligation and the remedy originate at different times: "The obligation to perform is coeval with the undertaking to perform; it originates with the contract itself, and operates anterior to the time of performance. The remedy acts upon a broken contract, and enforces a pre-existing obligation."

The distinction was well expressed by Mr. Justice Harlan, speaking for this court, as follows: "It is well settled that while, in a general sense, the laws in force at the time a contract is made enter into its obligation, parties have no vested right in the particular remedies or modes of procedure then existing. It is true the legislature may not withdraw all remedies, and thus in effect destroy the contract; nor may it impose such new restrictions or conditions as would materially delay or embarrass enforcement of rights under the contract, according to the usual course of justice as established when the contract was made. Neither could be done without impairing the obligation of the contract. But it is equally well settled that the legislature may modify or change existing remedies, or prescribe new modes of procedure, without impairing the obligation of contracts, provided a substantial or efficacious remedy remains or is given, by means of which a party can enforce his rights under the contract" Oshkosh Waterworks Co. v. Oshkosh, 187 U. S. 437, 439, 47 L. ed. 249, 250, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234, citing many previous cases.

*In Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U.[284 S. 516, 51 L. ed. 1163, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755, this court held that a statute of Minnesota, enacted for the purpose of giving a more efficient remedy to enforce the contractual liability of stockholders to creditors, by enabling a receiver to maintain an action for the benefit of creditors outside of the jurisdiction of the court appointing him,—a remedy that, by the laws of Minnesota, was not available at the time the stock liability in question arose,—did not impair the obligation of the contract. Mr. Justice Day, speaking for the court, said (at p. 530): "Is there anything in the obligation of this contract which is impaired by subsequent legislation as to the remedy, enacting new means of making the liability more effectual? The obligation of this contract binds the stockholder to pay to the creditors of the corporation an amount sufficient to pay the debts of the corporation which its assets will not pay, up to an amount equal to the stock held by each shareholder. That is his contract, and the duty which the statute imposes, and that is his obligation. Any statute which took away the benefit of such contract or obligation would be void as to the creditor, and any attempt to increase the obligation beyond that incurred by the stockholder would fall within the prohibition of the Constitution. But there was nothing in the laws of Minnesota undertaking to make effectual the constitutional provision to which we have referred, preventing the legislature from giving additional remedies to make the obligation of the stockholder effectual, so long as his original undertaking was not enlarged. There is a broad distinction between laws impairing the obligation of contracts and those which simply undertake to give a more efficient remedy to enforce a contract already made."

Again, in Henley v. Myers, 215 U. S. 373, 54 L. ed. 240, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148, where defendants became stockholders in a Kansas corporation at a time when, by the laws of that state, the stockholders of an insolvent corporation were liable to pay for the *benefit of creditors an amount equal[285 to the par value of their stock, and the stock of the corporation was transferable only on the books of the corporation in such manner as the law prescribed; and afterwards, and before defendants sold their stock, the previous statute was amended so as to require the officers of a corporation, as soon as any transfer of stock was made upon its books, to at once file a statement thereof with the secretary of state, and so that no transfer of stock should be legal or binding until such statement was made; and defendants, before insolvency of the corporation, transferred their stock upon the books of the corporation, but did not procure a statement of the transfer to be filed with the secretary of state, and were therefore held liable in the state court to an action in favor of the receiver for the benefit of creditors,—this court held that the act requiring stock transfers to be noted upon the public records, and providing that no transfer of stock should otherwise be legal or binding, did not impair the obligation of the contract under which the defendants acquired their stock.

In the case now before us, we agree with the Minnesota supreme court in the view that the requirement of a preliminary notice to the obligors as a condition precedent to an action upon the bond affects the remedy, and not the substantive agreement, of the parties. And although the statute as it stood when the bond was given (Rev. Laws 1905, § 4539) must, under Grant v. Berrisford, be treated as if written into the contract, it still imposed a condition not upon the obligation, but only upon the remedy for breach of the obligation. Therefore, the subsequent statute (Gen. Laws 1909, chap. 413) effected merely a change in the remedy, without substantial modification of the obligation of the contract.

Judgment affirmed.

---

286] *UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, upon the Application of the Attorney General, at the Request of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Appt.,

v.

UNION STOCK YARD & TRANSIT COMPANY OF CHICAGO et al. (No. 621.)

CHICAGO JUNCTION RAILWAY COMPANY, Appt.,

v.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, upon the Application of the Attorney General, at the Request of the Interstate Commerce Commission. (No. 622.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 286-309.)

Interstate carriers — what are — Federal regulation — filing tariffs.

1. A railway company operating as lessee upon the basis of a division of profits the railroad system owned by a stock yard company for the transportation of cars to and from trunk lines in the course of their transportation from beyond the state, and to points outside of the state, is an interstate carrier within the meaning of the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1284), and as such is obliged to file its tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission, as required by § 6 of that act.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. b, III. g, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Interstate carriers — what are — stock yard company — Federal regulation — filing tariffs.

2. A corporation organized for the purpose of maintaining a stock yard, with the usual facilities of such yards as to loading and unloading and caring for freight, which lawfully owns and operates a railroad system for the transportation of cars to and from trunk lines, in the course of their transportation from beyond the state and to points outside of the state, is an interstate railway carrier, within the meaning of the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887, and as such is obliged to file its tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission, as required by § 6 of that act.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. b; III. g, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Interstate carriers — what are — stock yard company — Federal regulation — filing tariffs.

3. A stock yard company owning and operating under its charter a railway system for the transportation of cars to and from trunk lines in the course of their transportation from beyond the state and to points outside of the state did not cease to be an interstate railway carrier within the meaning of the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887, and as such obliged to file its tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission, as required by § 6 of that act, by leasing its railway and equipment to another corporation upon the basis of a division of profits, both companies being under a common stock ownership, with its consequent control.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. b; III. g., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Injunction — against discrimination by carrier — power of commerce court.

4. In the absence of objection to the manner and form of invoking jurisdiction the commerce court may entertain and grant the relief sought by a bill to enjoin the performance of a contract which offends against the provisions of the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887, § 2, and the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288), § 2, intended to prevent undue advantages or unlawful discrimination.

[Power of Federal courts to issue injunction, see Courts, V. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — discrimination — bonus.

5. An undue advantage and an unlawful discrimination, forbidden by the interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887, § 2, and the act of June 29, 1906, § 2, are accorded by a contract between a packing house firm and a stock yard company operating, through its lessee, a railway system carrying on interstate commerce, by which such company agreed to pay a bonus of $50,000 to the packers, provided they would erect their new plant in Chicago adjacent to the stock yard, instead of in Kansas City, as was proposed, and would maintain and operate the plant for fifteen years, and buy and use in their business such live stock only as moves through such stock yard, and pay the regular charges on live stock not so bought, as if the same had moved into the stock yard and had there been purchased.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 621 and 622.]

Argued October 24, 1912. Decided December 9, 1912.

CROSS APPEALS from the United States Commerce Court to review a decree which granted only as to a railway company the relief sought by a bill to require a stock yard company, a railway company, and a holding company to file tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and to restrain the performance of a contract alleged to accord an undue advantage and unlawful discrimination. Reversed on the government's appeal, and affirmed on the cross appeal.

See same case below, 192 Fed. 330.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Assistant Attorney General Adkins and Mr. William E. Lamb, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant in No. 621 and appellee in No. 622:

Property is in interstate commerce from its delivery to the carrier for shipment into another state until it is there delivered to the consignee.

Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. 557, 19 L. ed. 999; Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 271, 23 L. ed. 548; Wabash, St. L. & P. R. Co. v. Illinois, 118 U. S. 557, 30 L. ed. 244, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 31, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 4; Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; Heyman v. Southern R. Co. 203 U. S. 270, 51 L. ed. 178, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 104, 7 Ann. Cas. 1130.

Both companies are engaged in transportation. Their activities are within both the judicial and legislative definitions.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Wichita Wholesale Grocery Co. 55 Kan. 525, 40 Pac. 899; Peoria & P. Union R. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 109 Ill. 135, 50 Am. Rep. 605; United States v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 157 Fed. 619; Moran v. New Orleans, 112 U. S. 69, 28 L. ed. 653, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 38.

Such transportation is wholly by railroad and from one state to another.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. 162 U. S. 184, 40 L. ed. 935, 59 Inters. Com. Rep. 391, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 700; Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498, 55 L. ed. 310, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 279; United States v. Colorado & N. W. R. Co. 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 167, 85 C. C. A. 27, 157 Fed. 321, 13 Ann. Cas. 893; Leonard v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 573; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 103 C. C. A. 172, 179 Fed. 614; Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 195 Fed. 968.

Both the Stock Yard Company and the Junction Company are common carriers.

(a) Definition of common carriers.

The Niagara v. Cordes, 21 How. 7, 22, 16 L. ed. 41, 46; Redfield, Carriers & Bailments, 1; Dwight v. Brewster, 1 Pick. 50, 11 Am. Dec. 133; Wiggins Ferry Co. v. East St. Louis Union R. Co. 107 Ill. 450; Gordon v. Hutchinson, 1 Watts & S. 285, 37 Am. Dec. 464; Myrick v. Michigan C. R. Co. 107 U. S. 106, 27 L. ed. 326, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425.

(b) Under their charters and by reason of their activities both corporations come within these definitions.

Randolph County v. Post, 93 U. S. 502, 23 L. ed. 957; Kentucky Improv. Co. v. Slack, 100 U. S. 648, 25 L. ed. 609; Union Trust Co. v. Kendall, 20 Kan. 515; Union Stockyards Co. v. United States, 94 C. C. A. 626, 169 Fed. 406.

The courts have held stock yards to be common carriers engaged in interstate commerce.

United States v. Union Stock Yards Co. 161 Fed. 919, affirmed in 94 C. C. A. 626, 169 Fed. 404; United States v. Sioux City Stock Yards Co. 162 Fed. 556; Belt R. Co. v. United States, 168 Fed. 542, 22 L.R.A.(N.S.) 582, 93 C. C. A. 666; McNamara v. Washington Terminal Co. 37 App. D. C. 384; Covington Stock-Yard Co. v. Keith, 139 U. S. 128, 35 L. ed. 73, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461; Walker v. Keenan, 19 C. C. A. 668, 34 U. S. App. 691, 73 Fed. 755; United States v. Illinois Terminal R. Co. 168 Fed. 546.

The Stock Yard Company and Junction Company are in reality partners, and are but one system in the eyes of the law.

Meehan v. Valentine, 145 U. S. 623, 36 L. ed. 841, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972; Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498, 55 L. ed. 310, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 279; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed.

679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; United States v. Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit Co. 142 Fed. 247, 145 Fed. 1007; Kendall v. Klapperthal Co. 202 Pa. 596, 52 Atl. 92.

The payment under the Pfaelzer contract would constitute a rebate, concession, and unlawful discrimination.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Reichmann, 145 Fed. 235; Thomas v. United States, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 720, 84 C. C. A. 477, 156 Fed. 897; United States v. Milwaukee Refrigerator Transit Co. 142 Fed. 247, 145 Fed. 1007; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. United States, 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 551, 84 C. C. A. 324, 156 Fed. 558; United States v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 152 Fed. 269; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. United States, 95 C. C. A. 446, 170 Fed. 250; Wight v. United States, 167 U. S. 512, 42 L. ed. 258, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 822; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 398, 50 L. ed. 524, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 71, 52 L. ed. 690, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428.

Mr. Ralph M. Shaw argued the cause and filed a brief for appellees other than Louis Pfaelzer & Sons in No. 621, and for appellant in No. 622:

A common carrier by railroad wholly within one state can so transact its business as not to subject itself to the provisions of the act to regulate commerce.

Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 184, 191, 40 L. ed. 935, 937, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 391, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 700.

The Chicago Junction Railway Company, otherwise known as "The Junction Company," is not a common carrier subject to the provisions of the act to regulate commerce, because it is not engaged in the transportation of passengers or property from one state to another.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Bellaire, Z. & C. R. Co. 77 Fed. 942; United States ex rel. Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago, K. & S. R. Co. 81 Fed. 783; Gracie v. Palmer, 8 Wheat. 605, 5 L. ed. 696.

The relation of the Junction Company to freight cars loaded with interstate commerce, which it hauls with its own motive power from receiving tracks in Illinois to unloading platforms in Illinois, is analogous to and identical with the relationship of a tugboat to an incoming steamer. A tugboat is not a common carrier.

The Webb (The William H. Webb v. Barling) 14 Wall. 406, 414, 20 L. ed. 774, 775; The Margaret, 94 U. S. 494, 24 L. ed. 146; The L. P. Dayton, 120 U. S. 337, 30 L. ed. 669, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 368; The Burlington, 137 U. S. 386, 34 L. ed. 731, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 138; The J. P. Donaldson, 167 U. S. 599, 603, 42 L. ed. 292, 294, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 951.

The Union Stock Yard & Transit Company of Chicago, otherwise known as the "Stock Yard Company," is not subject to the provisions of § 1 of the act to regulate commerce because: (a) It is not a common carrier; (b) it is not engaged in the transportation of property or passengers from any point in one state to any point either in or without a state.

Kentucky & I. Bridge Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 2 L.R.A. 289, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 351, 37 Fed. 567; Cattle Raisers' Asso. v. Ft. Worth & D. C. R. Co. 7 Inters. Com. Rep. 536.

When an act of Congress has been construed by the courts, and thereafter the act is amended or re-enacted, and the amendments do not affect in any way whatsoever the provisions so construed, thereafter the courts will assume that Congress has approved and adopted the judicial interpretation placed upon its language; also

When a statute has been officially interpreted by the body charged with its execution, and thereafter the act is amended, and the amendments of Congress do not in any respect change the particulars so interpreted, the courts will assume that Congress has approved and adopted such interpretation irrespective of what the courts might have originally determined to be the correct interpretation.

United States v. Mooney, 116 U. S. 104, 106, 29 L. ed. 550, 551, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 304; Kepner v. United States, 195 U. S. 100, 124, 49 L. ed. 114, 122, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 797, 1 Ann. Cas. 655; The Abbotsford, 98 U. S. 444, 25 L. ed. 170; Diaz v. United States, 223 U. S. 442, 454, 56 L. ed. 500, 505, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 250; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 59, 55 L. ed. 619, 644, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 401, 402, 50 L. ed. 515, 525, 526, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Copper Queen Consol. Min. Co. v. Territorial Bd. of Equalization, 206 U. S. 474, 479, 51 L. ed. 1143, 1147, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 695; United States v. G. Falk & Bro. 204 U. S. 143, 152, 51 L. ed. 411, 414, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 191; United States v. Cerecedo Hermanos y Compañia, 209 U. S. 337, 52 L. ed. 821, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 532.

Irrespective of what the decision of the court may be either as to the "Stockyard Company" or as to "The Junction Company," the mere fact that "The Investment Company" owns shares of stock of the two companies does not destroy its identity, or merge it into the identity of either of the other two companies.

United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 53 L. ed. 836, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; Coal Belt Electric R. Co. v. Peabody Coal Co. 230 Ill. 164, 13 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1144, 120 Am. St. Rep. 282, 82 N. E. 627.

When the jurisdiction of a court of equity is invoked in good faith, the court will decide all of the questions presented by the case, even though it decides the jurisdictional question against the person invoking the jurisdiction.

Siler v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 213 U. S. 175, 53 L. ed. 753, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 451; Michigan R. Tax Cases, 138 Fed. 223; Burton v. United States, 196 U. S. 283, 49 L. ed. 482, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 243; Williamson v. United States, 207 U. S. 425, 52 L. ed. 278, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 163; Hopkins v. Grimshaw, 165 U. S. 342, 41 L. ed. 739, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401; Ober v. Gallagher, 93 U. S. 199, 23 L. ed. 829; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 160 U. S. 1, 40 L. ed. 319, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 180; 2 Current Law, pp. 623, 624.

The assailed contract is not illegal. It is made for the purpose of maintaining a desirable customer at the live stock market at the stock yards. (a) It is not made by a common carrier or on behalf of a common carrier with a shipper. (b) It is not based upon the transportation of any property whatsoever. (c) It has nothing to do with the rates charged or paid for the transportation of any property.

Willoughby v. Chicago Junction R. & Union Stockyards Co. 50 N. J. Eq. 656, 25 Atl. 277.

The interstate commerce act should be interpreted in pari materia with the anti-trust act. It should be held that a contract, not made by a common carrier subject to the act to regulate commerce, is not prohibited by law if its main purpose and chief effect is to promote the lawful business of the parties making it.

Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 167 Fed. 704; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

Messrs. Willard M. McEwen and Joseph Weissenbach filed a brief for Louis Pfaelzer & Sons, appellees in No. 621:

Discrimination backed by a sound reason (as distinguished from motive) in a matter where an individual has no right to demand the privilege as a public service undertaken to be furnished by a carrier, as such, to all alike, and which deprives him of nothing which he is entitled to, or subjects him to no disadvantage in the public service rendered to him, is not forbidden by the law.

Memphis Freight Bureau v. Ft. Smith & W. R. Co. 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 1; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 73 Fed. 409; Central Yellow Pine Asso. v. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. 10 Inters. Com. Rep. 193; United States v. Wells-Fargo Exp. Co. 161 Fed. 606; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 21 C. C. A. 51, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 685, 41 U. S. App. 453, 74 Fed. 715; Cole v. Rowen, 88 Mich. 219, 13 L.R.A. 848, 50 N. W. 138; Donovan v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 199 U. S. 279, 50 L. ed. 192, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91; Gamble-Robinson Commission Co. v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 21 L.R.A.(N.S.) 982, 94 C. C. A. 217, 16 Ann. Cas. 613, 168 Fed. 164; United States ex rel. Northwestern Warehouse Co. v. Oregon R. & Nav. Co. 159 Fed. 982; Central Stock Yards Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 63 L.R.A. 213, 55 C. C. A. 63, 118 Fed. 113, 192 U. S. 568, 48 L. ed. 565, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 339; Harp v. Choctaw, O. & G. R. Co. 118 Fed. 169; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Nebraska, 164 U. S. 404, 41 L. ed. 489, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 130; Northern P. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 58 Wash. 360, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1021, 108 Pac. 938; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 42 L. ed. 414, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Behlmer, 175 U. S. 648, 44 L. ed. 309, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 209.

What a donation is depends both upon its (1) effect as to all concerned, and (2) the intention of the parties as to its application. These are the elements of the discrimination, and are questions of fact to be proved by the petitioner.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 73 Fed. 409; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 170, 42 L. ed. 414, 424, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Root v. Long Island R. Co. 114 N. Y. 300, 4 L.R.A. 331, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 576, 11 Am. St. Rep. 643, 21 N. E. 403; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 162 U. S. 197, 40 L. ed. 940, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 405, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 666; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 192, 43 Fed. 37, affirmed in 145 U. S. 263, 36 L. ed. 699, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 92, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 844.

The presumption is in favor of fairness and legality.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 209 U. S. 108, 52 L. ed. 705, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

These are appeals from a decree entered by the commerce court in an action begun by the United States on the application of the Attorney General, at the request of the Interstate Commerce Commission, against the Union Stock Yard & Transit Company of Chicago, an Illinois corporation (hereinafter called the "Stock Yard Company"), the Chicago Junction Railway Company, an Illinois corporation (hereinafter called the "Junction Company"), and the Chicago Junction Railways & Union Stock Yards Company, a New Jersey Corporation (hereinafter called the "Investment Company"), and David Pfaelzer, Abe Pfaelzer, and Jones L. Pfaelzer, a copartnership doing business under the firm name and style of Louis Pfaelzer & Sons. The bill sought to enjoin violations of §§ 2, 6, and 20 of the interstate commerce act (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1284; 34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288; 36 Stat. at L. 539, chap. 309), and of § 1 of the Elkins law (32 Stat. at L. 847, chap. 708, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1309). Its prayer was that an injunction should issue to restrain the Stock Yard Company and the Junction Company from further engaging in interstate commerce until they had filed tariffs, as required by § 6 of the act, and to restrain the performance of a certain contract with the Pfaelzers, and that the Stock Yard Company and the Junction Company be required to file the statements and reports provided by § 20 of the 296]act. *The commerce court held that neither the Stock Yard Company nor the Investment Company was a common carrier, and that it had no jurisdiction to determine whether the contract would amount to an unlawful discrimination or advantage, or rebate, and dismissed the bill as to the Stock Yard Company and the Investment Company and as to the Pfaelzers. As to the Junction Company, it held that it was a common carrier subject to the interstate commerce act, and obliged to file its tariffs as required by the statute. It further held that, since there was no allegation in the bill that the Interstate Commerce Commission had by general or special order required the Stock Yard Company or the Junction Company to file statements and reports under § 20, it could not issue mandamus to make such statements and reports. 192 Fed. 330.

The government appealed from the dismissal of the bill as to the Stock Yard Company, the Investment Company, and the Pfaelzers, which is case No. 261. It, however, makes no contention against the holding of the commerce court as to the construction of § 20. The Junction Company appealed from the decision of the commerce court as to it, which appeal is case No. 622.

The correctness of the decision and decree of the commerce court is submitted upon facts which are practically undisputed. The Stock Yard Company was incorporated under a special act of the legislature of Illinois, February 13, 1865, which authorized it to locate, construct, and maintain near the southerly limits of the city of Chicago:

" . . . All the necessary yards, inclosures, buildings, structures, and railway lines, tracks, switches, and turnouts, aqueducts, for the reception, safe-keeping, feeding, and watering, and for the weighing, delivery, and transfer of cattle and live stock of every description, and also dead and undressed animals that may be at or passing *through or near the city of[297 Chicago, and for the accommodation of the business of a general union stock yard for cattle and live stock, including the erection and establishment of one or more hotel buildings, and the right to use the same; . . . to make advances of money upon such cattle and live stock for freight or other purposes as may become expedient . . . ."

The charter further provided:

"That said company shall construct a railway, with one or more tracks, as may be expedient, from the grounds which may be selected for its said yards, so as to connect, outside of the city of Chicago, the same with the tracks of all the railroads which terminate in Chicago, the lines of which enter the city on the south between the lake shore and the southwest corner of said city, . . . and to make connections with such suitable sidetracks, switches, and connections as to enable all of the trains running upon said railroads easily and conveniently to approach the grounds selected for said yards, and may make such arrangements or contracts with such railroad companies, or either of them, for the use of any part or portion of the track or tracks of such company or companies which now is or hereafter may be constructed, for the purposes aforesaid, as may be agreed upon between the parties; . . . and to transport and allow to be transported thereon between said railroads and cattle yards, all cattle and live stock and persons accompanying the same to and from said yards, and may also transport and allow to be transported between the railroads entering said city, . . . freight and property of every kind as well as stock and cattle . . . "

After its creation it acquired real estate, constructed and operated stock yards, with a stock market, built a hotel for the accommodation of its patrons, and constructed in the stock yards district about 300 miles of railroad track, consisting of main 298]lines connecting with the *trunk lines entering Chicago, and a large number of switches to the various industries which had been established adjacent to such tracks.

Prior to December 15, 1897, the Stock Yard Company carried on the stock yards and railroad business, and, although it had regular charges for the services it performed, it filed no tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission and concurred in none. On December 15, 1897, the Stock Yard Company leased all of its railroad tracks and equipment for a term of fifty years to a corporation known as the Chicago & Indiana State Line Company (hereinafter called the "State Line Company"), retaining for itself the loading and unloading platforms and facilities used in connection with its stock yards business. This lease covered all its railroad and railroad tracks, switches, etc.; roundhouse, repair shops, machine shops, coal shutes, etc., then in existence or theretofore used by the Stock Yard Company in connection with its railroad; and all and singular the equipment and the telegraph lines, instruments, and appurtenances owned or possessed by the Stock Yard Company and used by it in conducting its railroad business. By the terms of the lease, the State Line Company was given the right in the future to maintain and operate upon the lands of the Stock Yard Company additional side tracks and switch tracks and other appurtenances necessary to reach industrial plants.

Afterwards the State Line Company consolidated with the Chicago, Hammond, & Western Railroad Company, and the consolidated company became known as the Chicago Junction Railway Company (defendant herein), and, in addition to the railroad leased from the Stock Yard Company, operated a belt line around the city of Chicago. In November, 1907, the Junction Company sold the belt line to the East Chicago Belt Railroad Company, retaining the tracks which had been leased by the Stock Yard Company. The equipment 299]operated by the Junction *Company, consisting of locomotives and rolling stock, is owned by the Stock Yard Company, but the Junction Company employs its own engineers and crews.

The tracks of the Junction Company are frequently used by the trunk lines to connect the eastern and western systems and to deliver shipments originating without the state to the platforms of the Stock Yard Company, for which service they pay the Junction Company a trackage charge of a fixed sum per car. Large numbers of carload lots of dead freight from points without the state are placed on the receiving tracks of the Junction Company, bearing transfer cards showing the destination of the cars, and the Junction Company delivers the cars either to the consignee, if situated on its tracks, or to the receiving track of the forwarding carrier. It is paid by the trunk lines a fixed charge for this service, which the latter absorb. The Junction Company, upon the order of the trunk lines, places cars for loading by shippers in the stock yards district, and after they are loaded hauls them to the receiving tracks of the trunk lines, and it receives from the trunk lines a fixed amount for this service, which is absorbed by the latter. Less than carload lot freight is delivered at the freight depot known as the Union Freight Station, and placed in cars by the Junction Company, which transports them to the receiving tracks of trunk lines, and for this service the trunk lines pay the Junction Company 5 cents per hundredweight. Sometimes such freight is hauled from the industries in the stock yards district to the Union Freight Station by the Junction Company and distributed in the cars. The Junction Company receipts for the less than carload lot freight in the name of the trunk lines, such receipts being exchangeable for bills of lading at the office of the trunk lines, and all charges paid to the Junction Company are receipted for in the name of the trunk lines and remitted to them. The Junction Company has an arrangement with the Baltimore *&[300 Ohio Railroad Company whereby it performs a like service for such company as to the less than carload lot freight brought by it to the Union Freight Station and destined to points beyond the state. Shipments of horses are transported by the trunk lines to the loading platforms of the Stock Yard Company, and there picked up by the Junction Company and hauled to the unloading chutes for horses, and the Junction Company receives, besides the trackage charge, a certain amount per car for this service. A large part of the service thus performed by the Junction Company is in connection with interstate shipments. The Junction Company does not issue any bills of lading with respect to any kind of freight.

After leasing its railroad property to the Junction Company, the Stock Yard Company continued to operate its stock yard facilities for loading and unloading cattle and other live stock bound for and coming from points outside the state, and to feed and water live stock in transit over the lines of trunk line carriers, and also to feed, bed, and water live stock shipped to cor signees doing business in the stock yards district.

The employees of trunk lines bringing live stock to the stock yards turn over the waybills accompanying such shipments, with what are called "live stock stubs" attached, to the employees of the Stock Yard Company, who use the waybills in unloading and counting the stock, and the waybills and stubs are then sent to the auditor of the Stock Yard Company (being also the auditor of the Junction Company), who retains the stubs and forwards the waybills to the local agents of the trunk lines. The Stock Yard Company advances the charges on such shipments to the trunk lines and collects from the consignees, usually commission men doing business at the stock yards, the moneys it has so advanced for their accommodation.

The Junction Company publishes tariffs showing the charges which it exacts for its [301] services, such tariffs being *in general circulation in Chicago, especially about the stock yards district, but they were not filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission. Prior to 1907, the Junction Company, while owning railroad facilities in Indiana, had filed tariffs with the Interstate Commerce Commission, but upon the sale of such properties canceled the tariffs. It was the belief of the government and of the Junction Company that all tariffs and concurrences had been canceled, but it is shown by a stipulation which the parties have filed that since the issues were made up it has been discovered that one particular concurrence, through inadvertence, was not canceled.

The Investment Company is a holding company and owns over 90 per cent of the shares of the Stock Yard Company and practically all of the shares of the Junction Company.

As to the contract with the Pfaelzers: They were members of a copartnership (since incorporated) engaged in the slaughtering business, their plant being located in the vicinity of the tracks operated by the Junction Company and the cattle pens of the Stock Yard Company. They purchased cattle from time to time outside the city of Chicago and in states other than Illinois, and shipped them to the partnership at the stock yards, where they were handled as hereinbefore stated for delivery to the consignee. The freight charges on such business averaged for the five years prior to the filing of the Pfaelzers' answer about $2,800 annually. The amount of freight consigned to the Pfaelzers tends to increase the business of the Stock Yard Company and the Junction Company, and therefore the revenue of each.

In 1906 the Department of Agriculture required the Pfaelzers to make changes in their plant; in 1908 it directed them to erect a new plant; and in 1909 they were notified that the government would deny to them further inspection of the products of their plant. They then proposed *to locate in Kansas City, Missouri, [302] but upon negotiation with the Stock Yard Company made the contract under consideration here. This contract provided that upon the erection by the Pfaelzers of a modern slaughtering, packing, and canning plant adjacent to the stock yards in Chicago, costing a certain sum and having a required capacity, the Stock Yard Company would pay them $50,000, and the Pfaelzers agreed that all live stock slaughtered or canned by them within a radius of 200 miles would either be purchased at such stock yards or pass through and use them, the customary yardage, tolls, and charges to be paid thereon, or that the Pfaelzers would pay full tolls and charges on live stock the same as if it had been sent to the stock yards for sale and had there been bought by them; and that for fifteen years they would conduct all their slaughtering, packing, and canning business at such plant, and not interest themselves directly or indirectly in any other plant or in any other stock yards. The Investment Company guaranteed the performance of the contract by the Stock Yard Company.

It is stated in the answer of the Stock Yard Company and stands admitted in the case that there are other competitive stock yards in the United States which have built up their business in competition with it by offering and giving inducements, either in the shape of land or money, to packing houses and other industries to locate at or near their yards.

From this statement it is apparent that the Stock Yard Company was organized for the purpose of maintaining a stock yard, with the usual facilities of such yards as to loading and unloading and caring for freight, and it was authorized to and did own and operate a railroad system, transporting cars to and from trunk lines in the course of their transportation from beyond the state and to points outside of the state. This service, so far as the railroad *and its operation is concerned, is now [303] performed by the Junction Company. The Stock Yard Company still continues to perform the customary stock yard operations, but by means of the lease to the Junction Company it has devested itself of the operation of the railroad system which it was authorized by its charter to construct and operate, and which for many years before the lease it did in fact operate. The Stock Yard Company, under the lease, still gets, however, two thirds of the profits received by the Junction Company for performing the service in connection with the railroad transportation. This joint service now takes the place of the single service formerly rendered by the Stock Yard Company. The stock of both these companies is held in common ownership by the Investment Company, and it appears that the Investment Company guarantees the contracts, or at least some of them, of the Stock Yard Company.

In view of this continuity of operation, the manner of compensation and the performance of services in connection with interstate transportation by railroads such as are described, are the Stock Yard Company and the Junction Company subject to the terms of the act to regulate commerce, and bound to conform to its requirements?

The interstate commerce act, as amended by the Hepburn act (34 Stat. at L. 584, § 1, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1285), applies to common carriers engaged in the transportation of persons or property from state to state wholly by railroad, and the term "railroad" is defined to include "all switches, spurs, tracks, and terminal facilities of every kind, used or necessary in the transportation of the persons or property designated herein, and also all freight depots, yards, and grounds used or necessary in the transportation or delivery of any of said property;" and transportation is defined to include "cars and other vehicles and all instrumentalities and facili-304]ties of shipment or carriage, *irrespective of ownership or of any contract, express or implied, for the use thereof, and all services in connection with the receipt, delivery, elevation, and transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration or icing, storage, and handling of property transported."

That the service is performed wholly in one state can make no difference if it is a part of interstate carriage. "The transportation of live stock," said this court in Covington Stock-Yards Co. v. Keith, 139 U. S. 128, 35 L. ed. 73, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461, in treating of the duties of common carriers, irrespective of the act to regulate commerce, "begins with their delivery to the carrier to be loaded upon its cars, and ends only after the stock is unloaded and delivered, or offered to be delivered, to the consignee." In this connection see Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498, 55 L. ed. 310, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 279.

The fact that the performance of the service is distributed among different corporations having common ownership in a holding company which controls an interstate system was held in Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, supra, to make no difference, where the service to be performed was a part of the carriage of freight by railroad in interstate commerce. Nor does it make any difference that neither the Junction Company nor the Stock Yard Company issues through bills of lading. It is the character of the service rendered, not the manner in which goods are billed, which determines the interstate character of the service. Ibid.; Railroad Commission v. Worthington, 225 U. S. 101, 56 L. ed. 1004, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 653.

Together, these companies, as to freight which is being carried in interstate commerce, engage in transportation within the meaning of the act, and perform services as a railroad when they take the freight delivered at the stock yards, load it upon cars, and transport it for a substantial distance upon its journey in interstate commerce, under *a through rate and bill[305 furnished by the trunk line carrier, or receive it while it is still in progress in interstate commerce upon a through rate which includes the terminal services rendered by the two companies, and complete its delivery to the consignee. They are common carriers because they are made such by the terms of their charters, hold themselves out as such, and constantly act in that capacity, and because they are so treated by the great railroad systems which use them. In Union Stock Yards Co. v. United States, 94 C. C. A. 626, 169 Fed. 404, Mr. Justice Van Devanter (while a circuit judge), speaking for the court of appeals, said (406):

"Its [the Stock Yards Company's] operations . . . include the maintenance and use of railroad tracks and locomotives, the employment of a corps of operatives in that connection, and the carriage for hire over its tracks of all live stock destined to or from the sheds or pens, which, in effect, are the depot of the railroad companies for the delivery and receipt of shipments of live stock at South Omaha. The carriage of these shipments from the transfer track to the sheds or pens, and vice versa, is no less a part of their transit between their points of origin and destination than is their carriage over any other portion of the route. True, there is a temporary stoppage of the loaded cars at the transfer track, but that is merely incidental, and does not break the continuity of the transit any more than does the usual transfer of such cars from one carrier to another at a connecting point. And it is of little significance that the stock yards company does not hold itself out as ready or willing generally to carry live stock for the public, for all the railroad companies at South Omaha do so hold themselves out, and it stands ready and willing to conduct, and actually does conduct, for hire, a part of the transportation of every live stock shipment which they accept for carriage to or from that point, including such shipments as are interstate."

306] *We think that these companies, because of the character of the service rendered by them, their joint operation and division of profits, and their common ownership by a holding company, are to be deemed a railroad within the terms of the act of Congress to regulate commerce, and the services which they perform are included in the definition of transportation as defined in that act. It is the manifest purpose of the act to include interstate railroad carriers, and by its terms the act excludes transportation wholly within a state. In view of this purpose, and so construing the act as to give it force and effect, we think the Stock Yard Company did not exempt itself from the operation of the law by leasing its railroad and equipment to the Junction Company, for it still receives two thirds of the profits of that company, and both companies are under a common stock ownership, with its consequent control. We therefore think the commerce court was right in holding that the Junction Company should file its rates with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and that it should also have held the Stock Yard Company subject to the provisions of the interstate commerce acts.

As to the contract, both parties concede the authority of the commerce court to pass upon this subject, and no objection was made as to the manner and form in which the jurisdiction of that court was invoked. There being no objection taken to the method of proceeding, we think, if this contract is within the prohibitions of the act, that the commerce court had the right to entertain the bill and to enjoin the performance of the contract. (Sections 2 and 3 of the Elkins Act.) It is contended that this contract is violative of certain features of the act to regulate commerce and of the Elkins act. Section 2 of the former and § 2 of the latter provide:

"Sec. 2. That if any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall, directly or indirectly, by any special rate, rebate, drawback, or other device, charge, 307] *demand, collect, or receive from any person or persons a greater or less compensation for any service rendered, or to be rendered, in the transportation of passengers or property, subject to the provisions of this act, than it charges, demands, collects, or receives from any other person or person for doing for him or them a like and contemporaneous service in the transportation of a like kind of traffic under substantially similar circumstances and conditions, such common carrier shall be deemed guilty of unjust discrimination, which is hereby prohibited and declared to be unlawful."

Sec. 2. . . . It shall be unlawful for any person, persons, or corporation to offer, grant, or give, or to solicit, accept, or receive any rebate, concession, or discrimination in respect to the transportation of any property in interstate or foreign commerce by any common carrier subject to said act to regulate commerce and the acts amendatory thereof, whereby any such property shall, by any devise whatever, be transported at a less rate than that named in the tariffs published and filed by such carrier, as is required by said act to regulate commerce and the acts amendatory thereof, or whereby any other advantage is given or discrimination is practised. . . . "

This court has had frequent occasion to comment upon the purpose of Congress in the passage of these laws to require equal treatment of all shippers and to prohibit unjust discrimination in favor of any of them. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 52 L. ed. 681, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 55 L. ed. 297, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. Kirby, 225 U. S. 155, 56 L. ed. 1033, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 648.

By § 2 of the act to regulate commerce the carrier is guilty of unjust discrimination, which is prohibited and declared unlawful, if by any rebate or other device it charges one person less for any service rendered in the *transportation of prop-[308 erty than it does another for a like service. The Elkins act makes it an offense for any person or corporation to give or receive any rebate, concession, or discrimination in respect to the transportation of property in interstate commerce whereby any such property shall be transported at a rate less than that named in the published tariff, or whereby any other advantage is given or discrimination is practised. By the very terms of the contract it is evident that the interest of the Stock Yard Company and also of the Junction Company is in the profit to be made in receiving and delivering, handling and caring for and transporting live stock, shipments of which, to the extent stated, are made in interstate commerce. The contract provides that if the Pfaelzers construct a packing plant adjacent to the stock yards of the Stock Yard Company they shall receive $50,000, and it obligates them to maintain and operate the plant for a period of fifteen years, and buy and use in their slaughtering business such live stock only as moves through such stock yards, and if not so brought, to pay the regular charges thereon as if the same had moved into the stock yards and had been there purchased by them. In other words, this plant in effect may pay for the services of the Stock Yard Company, up to the sum of $50,000, with the bonus given to the Pfaelzers for the location of their plant in juxtaposition to the stock yards. The only interest which the Stock Yard Company has in Pfaelzer & Sons' interstate business is compensation for its services in handling their freight and its share of the profits realized by the Junction Company in rendering its service. Any other company with which it has made no contract would be compelled to pay the full charge for the services rendered, without any rebate or concession. Another company might have a contract for a larger or smaller bonus, and thereby receive different treatment. Certainly as to the company which 309]receives no such bonus, there has *been an undue advantage given to and an unlawful discrimination practised in favor of Pfaelzer & Sons. If these companies had filed their tariffs, as we now hold they should have filed them, they would have been subject to the restrictions of the Elkins act as to departures from published rates,—and we must consider the case in that light,—and this preferential treatment, as we have said, would have been in violation of that act. It is the object of the interstate commerce law and the Elkins act to prevent favoritism by any means or device whatsoever, and to prohibit practices which run counter to the purpose of the act to place all shippers upon equal terms. We think the commerce court should have enjoined the carrying out of this contract.

It follows that in case No. 621 the judgment of the Commerce Court should be reversed and the case remanded for the entry of a decree in conformity to this opinion. In No. 622 the judgment of the Commerce Court should be affirmed.

STATE OF FLORIDA ON THE RELATION OF SIDNEY I. WAILES, Plff. in Err.,

v.

A. C. CROOM, Comptroller of the State of Florida.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 309, 310.)

Abatement — action against public official — death.

The death of the state comptroller, against whom in his official character an action in mandamus had been instituted, precludes the suing out of a writ of error to review a decree denying the writ.

[For other cases, see Abatement and Revival, 26–29, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 646.]

Submitted December 2, 1912. Decided December 16, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of Florida to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Leon County, in that state, denying a writ of mandamus directed to the state comptroller. Dismissed.

See same case below, 62 Fla. 284, 57 So. 420.

Mr. Fred Beall submitted the cause for plaintiff in error.

Messrs. W. S. Jennings, E. J. L'Engle, and Park M. Trammell submitted the cause on the motion to dismiss:

This cause abated by the death of defendant in error while in office.

United States ex rel. Bernardin v. Butterworth, 169 U. S. 600, 42 L. ed. 873, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441; The Secretary v. McGarrahan (Cox v. United States) 9 Wall. 298, 19 L. ed. 579; Warner Valley Stock Co. v. Smith, 165 U. S. 28, 41 L. ed. 621, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225.

In the absence of statutory provision to the contrary, mandamus against a public officer abates on the death of defendant.

United States ex rel. Bernardin v. Butterworth, 169 U. S. 600, 42 L. ed. 873, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 441; People ex rel. Hatch v. Lantry, 88 App. Div. 583, 85 N. Y. Supp. 193; 26 Cyc. 420.

This rule applies as well after judgment, and pending appeal therefrom, as before.

26 Cyc. 421; Seymour v. Nelson, 11 App. D. C. 58; Warner Valley Stock Co. v. Smith, 165 U. S. 28, 41 L. ed. 621, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225.

There is nothing in the state laws or decisions to prevent this court from following the rule of the Federal courts.

State ex rel. Williams v. Bloxham, 42 Fla. 501, 28 So. 762.

No brief was filed in opposition.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

This is an action in mandamus. The party proceeded against in the state court was A. C. Croom, sued in his official character as comptroller of the state of Florida. On January 16, 1912, the supreme court of Florida affirmed a judgment denying the writ. On April 11, 1912, this writ of error was sued out by the relator below, and Croom, comptroller, was named as defendant in error. Citation was served by delivering a copy to the attorney general of the state of Florida. The attorneys who represented the defendant in the state courts, acting as friends of the court, have placed upon the files evidence establishing that A. C. Croom died on February 7, 1912, and that William V. Knott was thereafter appointed and duly qualified as comptroller of the state of Florida, and has been acting as such since February 17, 1912. Under the circumstances thus detailed it results that the writ of error was improvidently sued out, and it must therefore be dismissed.

Writ of error dismissed.

---

311]*FREDERICK C. ROBERTSON, Appt.,

v.

HUGH M. GORDON, Marion Butler, and Josiah M. Vale, Individually and as Partners under the Firm Name and Style of Butler & Vale.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 311–317.)

Attorneys — contract for division of fees — construction.

1. A sum allowed by the court of claims conformably to an act of Congress, for services rendered by lawyers in the prosecution of an Indian claim, was comprehended by the terms of an agreement between two of such lawyers to share equally in all moneys appropriated by Congress or allowed by the Interior Department as attorney fees growing out of the rendition of such services.

[For other cases, see Attorneys, III. a; Claims, I. d, 2, d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Attorneys — contract for division of fees — change or extinguishment.

2. An agreement between two of several attorneys interested in the prosecution of an Indian claim to share equally in all moneys appropriated by Congress or allowed by the Interior Department as attorney fees for their services was not superseded by subsequent contracts entered into with the other attorneys with reference to the distribution of such fees in the event of certain contingencies which never in fact happened.

[For other cases, see Attorneys, III. a; Claims, I. d, 2, d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Attorneys — contract for division of fees — construction.

3. An adjudication by the court of claims on a quantum meruit under a subsequent act of Congress does not satisfy the condition of an agreement between the attorneys interested in the prosecution of an Indian claim to submit their respective claims for services to the conference committee of the Senate and House of Representatives on a quantum meruit, and to abide by any award which should be made.

[For other cases, see Attorneys, III. a; Claims, I. d, 2, d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Claims — attorneys' fees — jurisdiction.

4. Jurisdiction to decide the respective rights as between themselves of the attorneys entitled to share in the fees allowed for their services in prosecuting an Indian claim was not conferred upon the court of claims by the act of June 21, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 325, chap. 3504), authorizing that court to render judgment in favor of two of such attorneys for all services by all lawyers to the Indians, the amount to be paid out of the fund, and to be apportioned among such lawyers by agreement among themselves.

[For other cases, see Claims, 216–230, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 56.]

Argued November 15, 1912. Decided December 16, 1912.

APPEAL from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the Supreme Court of the District, dismissing the bill in a suit on a contract for the division of attorneys' fees. Reversed.

See same case below, 34 App. D. C. 539.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. George H. Lamar argued the cause, and, with Mr. George H. Patrick, filed a brief for appellant:

An appropriation was made, within the meaning of the contract, for the payment of counsel.

Brashear v. Mason, 6 How. 99–101, 12 L. ed. 360, 361; Reeside v. Walker, 11 How. 287, 291, 13 L. ed. 699, 701; Hart v. United States, 118 U. S. 62, 30 L. ed. 96, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 961; State ex rel. Norfolk Beet-Sugar Co. v. Moore, 50 Neb. 88, 61 Am. St. Rep. 538, 69 N. W. 373; 1 Words & Phrases, p. 71; Felton v. Hamilton County, 38 C. C. A. 432, 97 Fed. 823; People ex rel. McCauley v. Brooks, 16 Cal. 11; Proll v. Dunn, 80 Cal. 220, 22 Pac. 143; Henderson v. State Soldiers' & Sailors' Monument, 129 Ind. 92, 13 L.R.A. 169, 28 N. E. 127.

A judgment or decree set up as a bar by plea or relied on as evidence by way of estoppel, to be conclusive must have been made (1) by a court of competent jurisdiction, upon the same subject-matter; (2) between the same parties; and (3) for the same purpose.

Aspden v. Nixon, 4 How. 467, 497, 498, 11 L. ed. 1059, 1073, 1074.

Even if the court of claims had undertaken to determine the comparative right of appellant and appellee, as between themselves, which it did not do, any such action would have been and should be treated by this court as a nullity, as beyond the power and jurisdiction of that court.

Hickey v. Stewart, 3 How. 750, 762, 11 L. ed. 814, 819.

The court of claims could not determine any controversy between the appellant and the appellee, based upon said contracts, because the same were not involved in any issue before that court.

Reynolds v. Stockton, 140 U. S. 254, 35 L. ed. 464, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 773; Munday v. Vail, 34 N. J. L. 418.

The defense that the contract was predicated wholly upon the condition that the appellant should secure a new contract with the Indians is contrary to the terms of the written instrument itself, which cannot be attacked by oral testimony under the pleadings, and was not sustained by the evidence.

9 Enc. U. S. Sup. Ct. Rep. 14–17; Walden v. Skinner, 101 U. S. 577–585, 25 L. ed. 963, 966; De Witt v. Berry, 134 U. S. 306, 33 L. ed. 896, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 536; 17 Cyc. 596–598; Simpson v. United States, 172 U. S. 372, 43 L. ed. 482, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 212; Simpson v. United States, 199 U. S. 397, 50 L. ed. 245, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54; Brawley v. United States, 96 U. S. 168–173, 24 L. ed. 622–624; Gavinzel v. Crump, 22 Wall. 308, 319, 22 L. ed. 783, 785; Sprigg v. Bank of Mt. Pleasant, 14 Pet. 201–206, 10 L. ed. 419–421; Brown v. Slee, 103 U. S. 828, 834–838, 26 L. ed. 618, 620–622.

The original contract was not superseded by subsequent contracts or proceedings.

Uhlig v. Barnum, 43 Neb. 584, 61 N. W. 749; McDaniels v. Robinson, 26 Vt. 317, 340, 62 Am. Dec. 574, 4 Enc. U. S. Sup. Ct. Rep. 577; Utley v. Donaldson, 94 U. S. 29, 49, 24 L. ed. 54, 57; Murray v. Harway, 56 N. Y. 347; Robinson v. Page, 3 Russ. Ch. 122 27 Revised Rep. 26; Howard v. Carpenter, 22 Md. 249; Darnley v. London C & D. R. Co. L. R. 2 H. L. 60, 36 L. J. Ch. N. S. 404, 16 L. T. N. S. 217, 15 Week. Rep. 817; United States Coal Co. v. Pinkerton, 95 C. C. A. 34, 169 Fed. 536.

Mr. Henry E. Davis argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee Gordon.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a suit upon the following contract:

March 28, 1906.

This agreement made between F. C. Robertson and Hugh H. Gordon witnesseth, that they shall share equally in all monies appropriated by Congress, or allowed by the Interior Department, which may accrue to said Gordon or said Robertson as attorney fees, growing out of the rendition of services to the Colville tribe of Indians, whether allowed under the Maish-Gordon contract with said tribes, or on any other theory whatsoever, which said interest is to inure to either party, no matter in whose name such allowance is made. Both parties hereto to mutually labor to secure such allowance. Out of said Robertson's share he agrees to compensate R. D. Gwydir by a reasonable compensation. The fees to be divided between said Robertson and said Gordon, as herein provided, shall be the net sum accruing to said Gordon, after settling with other attorneys under contracts heretofore made by said Gordon.

F. C. Robertson.
Hugh H. Gordon.

There is also a claim upon a receipt signed by Gordon for $150, given by Robertson to Gordon "with which to pay expenses of trip to Washington, District of Columbia, to look after the interests of Gordon, Gwydir, & Robertson in the matter of the claim of the Indians of the Colville Reservation against the U. S. government. In case we succeed in collecting said claim, I agree that out of my share of the *profits, I will repay to said Robert-[313 son the said $150." This was dated March 21, 1906, a few days earlier than the one first set forth.

By an act of June 21, 1906, chap. 3504, 34 Stat. at L. 325, 377, 378, a million and a half dollars were set aside by Congress for payment to the Indians in respect of the matter as to which the contract contemplated that services would be rendered to them. This statute also gave jurisdiction to the court of claims to render a judgment in favor of Butler and Vale, attorneys, for all services by all lawyers to the Indians; the amount to be paid out of the fund, and to be apportioned among such lawyers by agreement among themselves. One fifth of the fund was paid over to the Indians under an act of March 1, 1907 [34 Stat. at L. 1015, chap. 2285]. By an act of April 30, 1908, chap. 153, 35 Stat. at L. 70, 96, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 90, another fifth was directed to be paid over in pur suance of the statute of 1906. Meantime Butler and Vale had brought their suit in the court of claims, and on May 25, 1908, the court gave judgment for a total of $60,000 of which it undertook to apportion $14,000 to Gordon and $2,000 to the plaintiff and appellant. 43 Ct. Cl. 497, 525. Thereafter, in August, 1908, this bill was filed to secure payment out of the Indian fund, and to establish the plaintiff's right to an equal share in the amount allotted to Gordon, and a lien upon that amount for such share and for the $150 additional advanced as above set forth.

The controversy is wholly between Robertson and Gordon, and it is unnecessary to refer to the other parties or other aspects of the case. The Maish-Gordon contract with the Indians had expired at the time of the agreement in suit, and one of the defenses is that the agreement was made upon the implied understanding and condition that Robertson should get a new contract with the Indians, which never came to pass. The other defenses are that the matter is concluded by the judgment of the court of 314] *claims, and that the agreement was superseded by two other agreements of a little later date, made when the matter of an appropriation for the Indians was pending in Congress. The first of these, dated April 3, 1906, and signed by Gordon, Robertson, Butler, and Vale, was that the parties would submit to the conference committee of the Senate and House their respective claims for services, on a quantum meruit, and would abide by any award that should be made, "and in case no award shall be made the rights of the said parties shall remain unaffected." The second agreement, dated April 12, 1906, between Marion Butler and R. W. Nuzum, each on behalf of himself and others not named, and Gordon and Robertson, was that, provided the sum of $150,000 was allowed for payment of attorneys representing the Indians, $18,750 should be paid to Nuzum, $9,375 to Gordon, and $9,375 to Robertson; the remainder to be distributed by Butler as he elected. "Should the appropriation be less, then this agreement is to be the basis of distribution, sharing pro rata in such diminished sum, as the percentage is thereby diminished." Both of the last two defenses seem to have been sustained by the court of appeals. 34 App. D. C. 539. See for details not material here, Butler v. Indian Protective Asso. 34 App. D. C. 284; Gordon v. Gwydir, 34 App. D. C. 508.

We are of opinion that the decree must be reversed and that the plaintiff is entitled to prevail. He starts with a contract of definite meaning. We perceive no ground for the doubt suggested in the court of first instance whether this agreement applies to a sum allowed by the court of claims. That court merely rendered certain the amount appropriated in terms by Congress out of the Indian fund. The argument that there was a condition precedent that a new contract should be made with the Indians, although no doubt such a contract was hoped and worked for, is irreconcilable with the instrument as it stands, and appears*[315 to us not to be supported by the evidence, if that evidence were admissible without even a cross bill. Sprigg v. Bank of Mt. Pleasant, 14 Pet. 201, 206, 10 L. ed. 419, 421; Brown v. Slee, 103 U. S. 828, 26 L. ed. 618; Simpson v. United States, 172 U. S. 372, 43 L. ed. 482, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 212. Again, there is no doubt that Robertson did some work, whether more or less does not matter, so that there was no failure of consideration, according to the common rather inaccurate phrase. The only questions, then, are those concerning the effect of the later contracts and the decree of the court of claims.

The contract of April 3, proposing to submit all claims to the conference committee of the Senate and the House, came to nothing, because the parties were informed that the committee would not undertake to settle disputes between lawyers. By the express terms of this instrument, therefore, no rights were affected. It appears to us wholly unpermissible to bring in the subsequent attempt of the court of claims to adjudicate on a quantum meruit under an act of Congress that had not then been passed, as satisfying the conditions of the contract, and binding the parties by virtue of the agreement, if not by its own proper force.

The second contract was not made until nine days later,—not improbably on the footing that the attempt of April 3 had failed. This contemplated a fixing of the attorney's fees by Congress,—again a different course from that taken by events. We see no reason for supposing that it was intended to change the relations between Robertson and Gordon. Primarily they were on one side of the agreement against Butler and associates on the other. Secondarily they were recognized as entitled to equal shares. Neither do we see reason for connecting this with the contract of April 3, as alternatively intended to cover the whole ground and to supersede that of March 28 in suit. These later contracts were on their face successive; the earlier one applied only to an event that has *not happened, and the latter, if ap-[316 plicable in any degree, does not help the defendants' case. It is not to be supposed that it tacitly overrode the agreements of the parties in March to pay certain other lawyers out of their respective shares, and if not, the March contract remained on foot.

Finally, as to the defense of res judicata, the short answer is that the court of claims had no jurisdiction of either the subject-matter or the parties. Of course, jurisdiction could not be claimed unless the special act of June 21, 1906, heretofore mentioned, conferred it. That act authorized the court to "render final judgment in the name of Butler and Vale . . . for the amount of compensation which shall be paid to the attorneys who have performed services as counsel on behalf of said Indians in the prosecution of the claim of said Indians for payment for said land, and in determining the amount of compensation for such services the court may consider all contracts or agreements heretofore entered into by said Indians with attorneys who have represented them in the prosecution of said claim, and also all services rendered by said attorneys for said Indians in the matter of said claim." It then directed that Butler and Vale should file a petition, and that the Secretary of the Treasury should pay them the sum awarded on final judgment out of the sum appropriated for the Indians; payment to be in full compensation of all attorneys who had rendered services to the Indians in the matter, "the same to be apportioned among said attorneys by said Butler and Vale as agreed among themselves," provided that before any attorney having an agreement with Butler and Vale should be paid, he should deliver to the Secretary of the Interior a discharge of all demands for services in the matter of this Indian claim.

Argument hardly can make the intent of the statute clearer. The question before 317]the court of claims was the *amount and the whole amount to be deducted from an Indian appropriation before it should be paid over for the Indians by the United States. That necessarily concerned the United States. The manner in which the fund should be distributed did not concern it at all. Therefore it selected representatives of all claimants against the fund, ordered the sum deducted to be paid to them, and transferred all claims outstanding against the Indians to the sum so paid over, —a method familiar to our legislation. United States v. Dalcour, 203 U. S. 408, 422, 51 L. ed. 248, 251, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58. The reference to contracts with the Indians merely permitted the court to take them into consideration in determining what was a fair total, without being governed by them; as, for instance, the expired Butler and Vale contract, which allowed 10 per cent; and to the same end other services were to be taken into account. But the act itself determined what parties were to be before the court, namely, Butler and Vale, they being the only ones necessary for the object in view. The plaintiff could not have made himself a party if he had wanted to, and he did not want to and did not,—he rightly understood that his claim was to be satisfied outside of the suit before the court. We do not think a discussion of the evidence necessary, although we think that the courts below mistook its effect. It is enough to say that the decree of the court of claims perhaps was not intended to have effect, and certainly could not have effect, in deciding the rights of the parties among themselves.

Decree reversed.

Mr. Justice Pitney was not present at the argument, and took no part in the decision of this case.

---

*JAMES A. MURRAY, Doing Busi-[318 ness as the Pocatello Water Company, Plff. in Err.,

v.

CITY OF POCATELLO.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 318–324.)

Error to state court — following decision below — impairing contract obligation.

1. A decision of the highest state court that the Constitution of the state in force when a municipal ordinance respecting the method of fixing water rates was passed made it impossible for the city to make a contract on the subject beyond the power of the legislature to change will not be disturbed by the Federal Supreme Court, where such Constitution declared the use of water distributed for a beneficial use to be a public use and subject to the regulation and control of the state, and the right to collect rates for water to be a franchise that could not be exercised except by authority of and in the manner prescribed by law, and further declared that the legislature should provide by law the manner in which reasonable maximum rates might be established.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4994, 4995, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

---

NOTE.—On the general subject of writs of error from United States Supreme Court to state courts—see notes to Martin v. Hunter, 4 L. ed. U. S. 97; Hamblin v. Western Land Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 267; Re Buchanan, 39 L. ed. U. S. 884; and Kipley v. Illinois, 42 L. ed. U. S. 998.

As to what questions the Federal Supreme Court will consider in reviewing the judgment of a state court—see note to Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L.R.A. 571.

Judgment — res judicata — dismissal on demurrer.

2. A decree dismissing on demurrer a bill brought by a municipality, seeking to have the court fix reasonable water rates, conformably to a state statute, upon the ground that the court was without jurisdiction to exercise the legislative or administrative power to determine in advance what would be a reasonable schedule of water rates for the following three years, is not res judicata on the question whether a prior municipal ordinance prescribing the method of fixing water rates could constitutionally be affected by such statute.

[For other cases, see Judgment, 289-324, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 575.]

Argued December 3 and 4, 1912. Decided December 16, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Idaho to review a judgment awarding a writ of mandate requiring the owner of a waterworks company to appoint commissioners to act with commissioners appointed by the municipality in fixing water rates. Affirmed.

See same case below, 21 Idaho, 180, 120 Pac. 812.

Mr. William V. Hodges argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Clayton C. Dorsey, Gerald Hughes, A. A. Hoehling, Jr., and N. M. Ruick, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The judgment on demurrer is conclusive of matters actually decided.

Wiggins Ferry Co. v. Ohio & M. R. Co. 142 U. S. 396, 410, 35 L. ed. 1055, 1060, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188; Durant v. Essex Co. 7 Wall. 107, 19 L. ed. 154; Forsyth v. Hammond, 166 U. S. 506, 41 L. ed. 1095, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 665; Baker v. Cummings, 181 U. S. 125, 45 L. ed. 780, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 578; Swan Land & C. Co. v. Frank, 148 U. S. 612, 37 L. ed. 581, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 691; Aurora v. West, 7 Wall. 82, 7 L. ed. 42.

Resort may be made to the opinion to determine what was actually decided.

Dowell v. Applegate, 152 U. S. 327, 38 L. ed. 463, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611; Baker v. Cummings, 181 U. S. 117, 45 L. ed. 776, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 578; National Foundry & Pipe Works v. Oconto Water Supply Co. 183 U. S. 216, 46 L. ed. 157, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111; Last Chance Min. Co. v. Tyler Min. Co. 157 U. S. 683, 39 L. ed. 859, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 733, 18 Mor. Min. Rep. 205.

It cannot be said that, because the court strengthened its conclusion by further showing that in no event could the further relief prayed for be granted, or further strengthened its opinion by additional reasons why any of the relief prayed for should not be granted, therefore it did not decide the constitutional question involved.

Ontario Land Co. v. Wilfong, 223 U. S. 543, 56 L. ed. 544, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 328; Union P. R. Co. v. Mason City & Ft. D. R. Co. 222 U. S. 237, 56 L. ed. 180, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 86.

The court had jurisdiction of the parties and of the subject-matter. It had jurisdiction to decide any question it might think material in reaching its conclusions as to the right of the complainant to equitable relief, and anything so decided became an adjudicated matter, notwithstanding the result of the decision was a dismissal of the bill for lack of grounds for equitable relief.

Dowell v. Applegate, 152 U. S. 327, 38 L. ed. 463, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 611; Mellen v. Moline Malleable Iron Works, 131 U. S. 352, 367, 33 L. ed. 178, 183, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 781; Insley v. United States, 150 U. S. 512, 515, 37 L. ed. 1163, 1165, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158.

The defendant in error cannot question the jurisdiction of the court to decide the constitutional questions and render judgment.

Forsyth v. Hammond, 166 U. S. 506, 41 L. ed. 1095, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 665.

In the absence of an express restriction or limitation in the Constitution of the state, restricting the power of the legislature to authorize a municipality to contract for water for public use for a fixed period, and to agree upon rates, the legislature of the state may contract by statute or may empower a municipality to contract for water for public use for a stated period, and fix the rates to be paid during such term for the same.

New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Rivers, 115 U. S. 674, 29 L. ed. 525, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Los Angeles v. Los Angeles City Water Co. 177 U. S. 558, 44 L. ed. 886, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 736; Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co. 206 U. S. 508, 51 L. ed. 1161, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 762; Freeport v. Freeport Water Co. 180 U. S. 608, 45 L. ed. 692, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Tampa Waterworks Co. v. Tampa, 199 U. S. 241, 50 L. ed. 170, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 23.

The city had power to enter into the contract contained in ordinance No. 86.

Vicksburg v. Vicksburg Waterworks Co. 206 U. S. 496, 51 L. ed. 1155, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 762; Detroit v. Detroit Citizens' Street R. Co. 184 U. S. 368, 384, 46 L. ed. 592, 607, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410; Dill. Mun. Corp. 5th ed. § 1212; Los Angeles v. Los Angeles City Water Co. 177 U. S. 558, 44 L. ed. 886, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 736; Omaha Water Co. v. Omaha, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 736, 77 C. C. A. 267, 147 Fed. 5; Pikes Peak Power

Co. v. Colorado Springs, 44 C. C. A. 333, 105 Fed. 1; Des Moines v. Welsbach Street Lighting Co. 110 C. C. A. 540, 188 Fed. 906; Illinois Trust & Sav. Bank v. Arkansas City, 34 L.R.A. 518, 22 C. C. A. 171, 40 U. S. App. 257, 76 Fed. 271.

The reserve power of a general assembly to alter, amend, or repeal has its limits. Alterations under it must be reasonable, must be in good faith, and consistent with the purpose and scope of the act of incorporation. Oppression and wrong must not be inflicted under the guise of amendment or alteration, and vested rights of property of corporations are surrounded by the same sanctions, and are as sacred as other rights.

1 Watson, Const. p. 822; Shields v. Ohio, 95 U. S. 324, 325, 24 L. ed. 359; Stanislaus County v. San Joaquin & K. River Canal & Irrig. Co. 192 U. S. 213, 48 L. ed. 413, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 241.

Mr. D. Worth Clark argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Jesse R. S. Budge, Eldis B. Browne, Alexander Britton, and Evans Browne, filed a brief for defendant in error:

In order to render a matter res judicata there must be not only an identity of parties, but an identity of the question litigated. Where the second action is upon a different claim or demand, the question determined in the first action must have been necessarily involved so that the decision of the court could not have been rendered in that suit without determining it.

Lillis v. Emigrant Ditch Co. 95 Cal. 553, 30 Pac. 1108; Cromwell v. Sac County, 94 U. S. 351, 354–356, 24 L. ed. 195, 198, 199; Washington, A. & G. Steam Packet Co. v. Sickles, 5 Wall. 580, 18 L. ed. 550; 23 Cyc. 1309; Brown v. McKie, 185 N. Y. 303, 78 N. E. 64; Cauhape v. Parke, 121 N. Y. 152, 24 N. E. 185; Fulton v. Hanlow, 20 Cal. 450; People ex rel. Reilly v. Johnson, 38 N. Y. 63, 97 Am. Dec. 770.

The fact that the court discussed the statute is not sufficient to render his conclusion as to its constitutionality res judicata.

23 Cyc. 1218; Braun v. Wisconsin Rendering Co. 92 Wis. 245, 66 N. W. 196.

Because the city had mistaken its remedy,—the court being without the jurisdiction to grant the relief sought,—the bill was dismissed. A judgment rendered under such a condition is not res judicata.

Hughes v. United States, 4 Wall. 232–237, 18 L. ed. 303–305; Walden v. Bodley, 14 Pet. 156, 161, 10 L. ed. 398, 401; Barnsdall v. Waltemeyer, 77 C. C. A. 515, 142 Fed. 415; Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson, 19 L.R.A. (N.S.) 219, 90 C. C. A. 547, 160 Fed. 41; Barnett v. Smart, 158 Mo. 167, 59 S. W. 235.

If it appears from the bill of complaint that the court is powerless to grant any relief, the ground of dismissal will be lack of jurisdiction.

Richards v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 124 Ill. 516, 16 N. E. 909.

Municipal corporations possess no power except such as is conferred upon them by statute, either in express terms or by necessary implication.

Dill. Mun. Corp. 4th ed. § 89; Lewisville Natural Gas Co. v. State, 135 Ind. 49, 21 L.R.A. 734, 34 N. E. 702; Re Pryor, 55 Kan. 724, 29 L.R.A. 398, 49 Am. St. Rep. 280, 41 Pac. 958; St. Louis v. Bell Teleph. Co. 96 Mo. 623, 2 L.R.A. 278, 9 Am. St. Rep. 370, 10 S. W. 197.

The power to regulate rates is a governmental power exercised under the police powers of the state.

Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S. 113, 124, 24 L. ed. 77, 84.

This power of regulation is a power of government, continuing in its nature, and if it can be bargained away at all, it can only be by words of positive grant, or something which is in law equivalent.

Railroad Commission Cases, 116 U. S. 307, 325, 49 L. ed. 636, 642, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334, 388, 1191; Budd v. New York, 143 U. S. 517, 36 L. ed. 247, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 45, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 468; Rogers Park Water Co. v. Fergus, 180 U. S. 624, 628, 629, 45 L. ed. 702, 705, 706, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 490; Ruggles v. Illinois, 108 U. S. 526, 531, 27 L. ed. 812, 815, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 832; Home Teleph. & Teleg. Co. v. Los Angeles, 211 U. S. 265, 53 L. ed. 176, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Freeport Water Co. v. Freeport, 180 U. S. 587, 45 L. ed. 679, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Danville Water Co. v. Danville City, 180 U. S. 619, 45 L. ed. 696, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 505.

In the case at bar defendant took his franchise under a constitutional provision which commanded the legislature to "provide by law the manner in which reasonable maximum rates may be established, to be charged for the use of water sold, rented, or distributed for any useful or beneficial purpose." This constitutional provision was as much a part of the franchise as if it had been written into it. The city was powerless to provide any "manner in which reasonable maximum rates may be established" that would in any manner conflict with such as might be established by the legislature. Any regulations in relation to that matter which the city would make could at most continue in force only until such time as the legislature might by law carry out the constitutional provision above referred to.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 55 L. ed. 297, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Jack v. Grangeville, 9 Idaho, 313, 74 Pac. 969; Zanesville v. Zanesville Gaslight Co. 47 Ohio St. 1, 23 N. E. 55; Tampa Waterworks Co. v. Tampa, 199 U. S. 241, 50 L. ed. 170, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 23.

Such a constitutional provision is self-executing to the extent that contracts made after it went into effect are subject to the possibilities of the exercise of the power conferred on the legislature by such provision.

Freeport Water Co. v. Freeport, 180 U. S. 587, 45 L. ed. 679, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Knoxville Water Co. v. Knoxville, 189 U. S. 434, 47 L. ed. 887, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 531.

Under constitutional provisions similar to those of Idaho it has been held that the legislature has a right to change the methods by which water rates are to be determined.

Spring Valley Waterworks v. Schottler, 110 U. S. 347, 28 L. ed. 173, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 48; Rogers Park Water Co. v. Fergus, 180 U. S. 624, 45 L. ed. 702, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 490.

Although a city is given power to contract for a water supply, the legislature may subsequently supply a manner of readjusting or fixing rates.

Dansville v. Dansville Water Co. 178 Ill. 299, 69 Am. St. Rep. 304, 53 N. E. 118, 180 Ill. 235, 54 N. E. 224, 186 Ill. 326, 57 N. E. 1129, 180 U. S. 619, 45 L. ed. 696, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 505.

Memorandum opinion by direction of the court. By Mr. Justice Holmes:

This was an application by the defendant in error for a mandate requiring the plaintiff in error, Murray, to appoint commissioners to act with commissioners appointed by the city in determining water rates to be charged by Murray. Murray relied upon an ordinance of June 6, 1901, as establishing by contract the only method of fixing rates. The city relied upon a subsequent statute, § 2839, Rev. Code. The supreme court of the state held that the 323] *Constitution in force when the ordinance was passed made it impossible for the city to make a contract on the matter beyond the power of the legislature to change. The Constitution declared the use of waters distributed for a beneficial use to be a public use, and subject to the regulation and control of the state, and also declared the right to collect rates for water to be a franchise that could not be exercised except by authority of and in the manner prescribed by law. It then ordained that the legislature should provide by law the manner in which reasonable maximum rates might be established. Art. 15, §§ 1, 2, 6. The court relied upon Tampa Waterworks Co. v. Tampa, 199 U. S. 241, 50 L. ed. 170, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 23; Home Teleph. & Teleg. Co. v. Los Angeles, 211 U. S. 265, 53 L. ed. 176, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50, and Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 55 L. ed. 297, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265, which so far sustain its conclusion that we think further discussion unnecessary. We are not prepared to overrule the construction of the legislative power as continuing and irrevocable, adopted by the supreme court of the state.

A defense more relied upon was res judicata. In 1909 the city brought a bill in equity in the circuit court, seeking to have the court fix reasonable rates. The defendant demurred for want of jurisdiction to give relief in equity and multifariousness. The decree was that the demurrer be sustained and the bill dismissed. The dismissal was in general terms, but with a reference to the opinion, reported in 173 Fed. 382. In the opinion, it is true, the court expressed the view that the ordinance relied upon by the defendant was not affected by the subsequent statute, but the point decided, and the only point that could be decided, was that the demurrer should be upheld, and that the court was without jurisdiction to "take upon itself the exercise of the 'legislative or administrative' power to determine in advance what will be a reasonable schedule of water rates for the defendant to charge for the next three years." 173 Fed. 385. The *demurrer[324 excludes a decision upon the merits, and even if the decree referring to it did not have the same effect by itself, the opinion to which the decree also refers would show the same thing. Of course, if the court was not empowered to grant the relief whatever the merits might be, it could not decide what the merits were. The two grounds are not on the same plane, as they were in Ontario Land Co. v. Wilfong, 223 U. S. 543, 559, 56 L. ed. 544, 551, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 328, and when jurisdiction to grant equitable relief was denied, the ground of the merits could not be reached. In Forsyth v. Hammond, 166 U. S. 506, 41 L. ed. 1095, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 665, jurisdiction had been taken in the earlier decision relied upon. Here it was refused.

Judgment affirmed.

UNITED STATES, Appt.,
v.
READING COMPANY et al. (No. 198.)

TEMPLE IRON COMPANY, Appt.,
v.
UNITED STATES. (No. 206.)

READING COMPANY et al., Appts.,
v.
UNITED STATES. (No. 217.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 324–373.)

Monopoly — combination by carriers — defeating projected line.

1. Carriers possessing a substantial monopoly of the transportation facilities between the anthracite deposits in Pennsylvania and tide-water distributing points, and also controlling, with the aid of their subsidiary coal-mining and selling companies, nearly three fourths of the annual supply of anthracite, must be deemed to have combined to restrain interstate trade, contrary to the act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), where, with the purpose and result of defeating the construction of a projected independent competing railway line, and thus preserving their existing monopoly of transportation, they purchased, through another corporation whose capital stock they first acquired, the coal properties and collieries controlled by certain independent coal operators who were the chief supporters of the projected railway enterprise, although the acquisition of such property, considered alone, may have been lawful under the local law.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — combination by carriers — legality of particular acts.

2. Parts of a general scheme of railway carriers to combine to restrain the freedom of interstate commerce, either in the transportation or sale of anthracite, contrary to the act of July 2, 1890, however lawful when considered alone, e. g., the acquisition of the stock of another corporation, and the purchase by it of the capital stock of certain coal properties and collieries, are parts of an illegal combination under the statute, which it is the duty of the courts to dissolve, irrespective of how the legal title to the shares is held.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — combination by carriers — percentage coal contracts.

3. An undue and unreasonable restraint of interstate commerce, forbidden by the act of July 2, 1890, results from the concerted scheme of railway carriers possessing a substantial monopoly of the transportation facilities between the anthracite deposits in Pennsylvania and tide-water distributing points, and also controlling, with the aid of their subsidiary coal-mining and selling companies, nearly three fourths of the annual supply of anthracite, whereby a large number of the independent coal operators were induced to enter singly into uniform perpetual agreements for the sale to some one of such carriers, or its subsidiary coal company, of the entire output of their several mines and any others they might thereafter acquire, at a fixed percentage of the general average price prevailing at tide-water points at or near New York, which would net the operator slightly more than if he shipped and sold on his own account, the necessary result being to secure to the carriers the control at tide-water markets of the sale of a large part of the independent output.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Relief under pleading — injunction against monopoly — multifariousness.

4. Injunctive relief against minor combinations between some only of the defendants, and not in furtherance of the general scheme attacked as constituting a restraint of interstate commerce forbidden by the act of July 2, 1890, cannot be granted without condemning the bill for multifariousness and misjoinder of parties and of causes of suit.

[For other cases, see Injunction, I. g; Pleading, I. l, I. t, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 198, 206, and 217.]

Argued October 10 and 11, 1911. Decided December 16, 1912.

CROSS APPEALS from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania to review a decree granting in part the relief sought by a bill seeking to enjoin an alleged combination of railroad and coal-mining properties as amounting to an unlawful restraint of interstate commerce. Affirmed in part and reversed in part.

See same case below, 183 Fed. 427.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. J. C. McReynolds, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, argued the cause, and, with Attorney General Wickersham and Mr. G. Carroll Todd, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, filed a brief for the United States:

All the defendants are engaged in a combination of general scope (referred to in the record as the general combination) by which defendant Reading Company and defendant railroads and their affiliated coal companies control, restrain, and monopolize the production, transportation, and sale of

NOTE.—As to what relation a contract or combination must bear to interstate commerce in order to bring it within the scope of the Federal anti-trust act—see note to Loewe v. Lawlor, 52 L. ed. U. S. 488.

As to illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws generally—see note to Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

anthracite coal among the states, and dominate the industry, in violation of the act of July 2, 1890.

To sustain this charge the proof need not disclose that the combination here assailed possesses a complete monopoly of the anthracite trade.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 16, 39 L. ed. 325, 330, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249.

It is enough if it embraces a sufficient volume to be "unreasonably restrictive of competitive conditions," or if its purpose was to control the trade.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 58, 55 L. ed. 619, 644, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann Cas. 1912 D 734.

Therefore more than this need not be proved, though a complete monopoly were alleged, since "it is sufficient to prove so much of the charge as constitutes an offense punishable by law."

Com. v. Griffin, 21 Pick. 525; Com. v. O'Brien, 107 Mass. 208; Rex v. Hunt, 2 Campb. 585; Hall v. United States, 168 U. S. 632, 639, 42 L. ed. 607, 609, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 237.

Nor is it necessary to prove that defendants formally met and in terms, written or verbal, agreed to do the things denounced by the statute, and with equal formality continued their agreement.

Noyes, Intercorporate Relations, 2d ed. § 375; Kelley v. People, 55 N. Y. 576, 14 Am. Rep. 342; Reg. v. Murphy, 8 Car. & P. 310.

The form of the 65 per cent contracts having been agreed upon at meetings between their representatives, the parties to each knowing that theirs was one of an identical series, and a common agent having been appointed to compute the purchase price, it follows that such contracts are connected as parts of a plan.

Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 865, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 55 L. ed. 502, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376.

These contracts restrain and monopolize trade and commerce.

Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 408, 55 L. ed. 502, 518, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Cousins v. Smith, 13 Ves. Jr. 541, 9 Revised Rep. 217; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail S. S. Co. 92 C. C. A. 315, 166 Fed. 251; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 43, 44, 48 L. ed. 860, 868, 869, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563, 123 Fed. 969; Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Rainey, 112 Fed. 487; Meeker v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. 21 Inters. Com. Rep. 129; Stockton v. Central R. Co. 50 N. J. Eq. 52, 17 L.R.A. 97, 24 Atl. 964, 50 N. J. Eq. 489, 25 Atl. 942; Farmers' Loan & T. Co. v. New York & N. R. Co. 150 N. Y. 410, 424, 34 L.R.A. 76, 55 Am. St. Rep. 689, 44 N. E. 1043; Buie v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 95 Tex. 51, 55 L.R.A. 861, 65 S. W. 27; Chicago Union Traction Co. v. Chicago, 199 Ill. 626, 65 N. E. 470; Columbus, H. V. & T. R. Co. v. Burke, 20 Ohio L. J. 287; United States v. Lehigh Valley R. Co. 220 U. S. 257, 55 L. ed. 458, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 387; Atty. Gen. v. Great Northern R. Co. 6 Jur. N. S. 1006, 1 Drew & S. 154, 29 L. J. Ch. N. S. 794, 8 Week. Rep. 556; Arnot v. Pittston & E. Coal Co. 68 N. Y. 558, 23 Am. Rep. 190; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 404, 48 L. ed. 679, 727, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436.

The trade so affected is interstate.

United States v. Coombs, 12 Pet. 72, 9 L. ed. 1004; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Gibbs v. McNeeley, 60 L.R.A. 152, 55 C. C. A. 70, 118 Fed. 120; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; West v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. 221 U. S. 229, 55 L. ed. 716, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1193, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Hall v. De Cuir, 95 U. S. 485, 488, 24 L. ed. 547, 548; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 398, 399, 49 L. ed. 518, 525, 526, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Chesapeake & O. Fuel Co. v. United States, 53 C. C. A. 256, 115 Fed. 610; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Dozier v. Alabama, 218 U. S. 124, 54 L. ed. 965, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 264, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 649; Rearick v. Pennsylvania, 203 U. S. 507, 512, 51 L. ed. 295, 297, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 159; Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 400, 55 L. ed. 502, 515, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 48 L. ed. 860, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563; Pennsylvania Sugar Ref. Co. v. American Sugar Ref. Co. 92 C. C. A. 318, 166 Fed. 254.

Existing, continuing acts, otherwise within the prohibition of a lawful regulation of commerce by Congress, are not saved because their genesis and development antedated its enactment.

United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware & H. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 53 L. ed. 836, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 55 L. ed. 297, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265.

If the contracts are sufficient in themselves to produce a result which the act of Congress seeks to prevent, then good intentions, if they existed, cannot save them.

Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 396, 49 L. ed. 518, 524, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 331, 48 L. ed. 679, 697, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 341, 342, 41 L. ed. 1007, 1027, 1028, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; Chesapeake & O. Fuel Co. v. United States, 53 C. C. A. 256, 115 Fed. 610; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 234, 44 L. ed. 136, 145, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96.

If the contracts are sufficient in themselves to accomplish what the act of Congress denounces, it does not save them that they are for the purchase of property.

Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. ed. 739, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 176, 55 L. ed. 663, 692, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

The combination of defendant railroads and affiliated coal companies in the Temple Iron Company, with the purpose and effect of forestalling the construction of a projected competitive line, and permanently shutting out competition amongst such railroads and also amongst their coal companies, restrains and monopolizes trade and commerce among the states, in violation of §§ 1 and 2 of the act of July 2, 1890.

Thomsen v. Union Castle Mail S. S. Co. 92 C. C. A. 315, 166 Fed. 251; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Philadelphia & R. R. Co. 123 Fed. 969; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 188 Fed. 117; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Com. 3 Sadler (Pa.) 83, 7 Atl. 372; Hartford & N. H. R. Co. v. New York & N. H. R. Co. 3 Robt. 411.

This is a case of continuous co-operation to bring to pass the thwarting of a projected competitive railroad, not only for today, but continuously,—indefinitely.

United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 607, 54 L. ed. 1168, 1178, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124.

Mr. Everett Warren argued the cause and filed a brief for the Temple Iron Company:

A contract is not to be assumed to contemplate unlawful results unless a fair construction requires it upon the established facts.

Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208.

The railroad serving the colliery had legal and equitable grounds to prevent its loss of such traffic.

Bald Eagle Valley R. Co. v. Nittany Valley R. Co. 171 Pa. 284, 29 L.R.A. 423, 50 Am. St. Rep. 807, 33 Atl. 239.

To bring any transaction within the condemnation of the 1st section of the anti-trust law, it must be a contract in restraint of interstate commerce; not possibly, but actually. This actual restraint must be substantial in character, and the direct and immediate effect of the transaction complained of that is charged in the petition.

Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96.

Mr. James H. Torrey argued the cause and filed a brief for the Enterprise Coal Company et al.:

The 65 per cent contracts do not concern directly interstate commerce, and are therefore not cognizable in this proceeding.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Union Pacific Coal Co. v. United States, 97 C. C. A. 578, 173 Fed. 737.

A contract does not become void because of the design in the mind of one of the contracting parties to use it for an illegal purpose. And this is so, even though the other party to the contract may know of that illegal purpose, so long as he does not actively participate in carrying it out.

Graves v. Johnson, 179 Mass. 53, 58, 88 Am. St. Rep. 355, 60 N. E. 383; Arnot v. Pittston & E. Coal Co. 68 N. Y. 558, 23 Am. Rep. 190; Hodgson v. Temple, 5 Taunt. 181, 1 Marsh. 5, 14 Revised Rep. 738; Green v. Collins, 3 Cliff. 494, Fed. Cas. No. 5,755; Adams v. Coulliard, 102 Mass. 167.

A contract is not to be assumed to contemplate unlawful results unless a fair construction requires it upon the established facts.

Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179–184, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208.

Contracts binding the products of mines owned by railroad companies owning ore lands to shipment over the lessor railroad were expressly sustained in the case of Bald Eagle Valley R. Co. v. Nittany Valley R. Co. 171 Pa. 284, 29 L.R.A. 423, 50 Am. St. Rep. 807, 33 Atl. 239.

Mr. Adelbert Moot argued the cause, and, with Mr. George F. Brownell, filed a brief for the Erie Railroad Company et al.

Mr. John G. Johnson argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Charles Heebner, Frank H. Platt, Adelbert Moot, Robert W. DeForest, Jackson E. Reynolds, and William S. Jenney, filed a brief for the Reading Company et al.:

The 65 per cent contracts are intrastate, and not interstate contracts, they do not affect interstate commerce except indirectly and incidentally, and so are not in violation of the anti-trust act.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 242, 44 L. ed. 136, 148, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 331, 48 L. ed. 679, 698, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 297, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 94 C. C. A. 13, 167 Fed. 721; United States v. Standard Oil Co. 173 Fed. 177, 221 U. S. 1, 66, 55 L. ed. 619, 647, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 594, 600, 43 L. ed. 290, 296 299, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; United States v. E. I. Dupont De Nemours & Co. 188 Fed. 127.

Messrs. James H. Torrey and William S. Opdyke filed a separate brief for the Delaware & Hudson Company:

The contracts made by the Delaware & Hudson Company with the Hillside Coal & Iron Company for the sale of anthracite coal in limited amounts and in limited periods to the Hillside Coal & Iron Company violated no law of the United States.

Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. 557, 565, 19 L. ed. 999, 1002; Kidd v. Pearson, 128 U. S. 1, 24, 32 L. ed. 346, 351, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 232, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6; United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 13, 39 L. ed. 325, 329, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 592, 603, 43 L. ed. 290, 297, 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 247, 44 L. ed. 136, 150, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Field v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co. 194 U. S. 618, 623, 48 L. ed. 1142, 1154, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784; Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 94 C. C. A. 13, 167 Fed. 721.

The present proceeding is under a statute of a penal character requiring the strictest proof.

Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 401, 48 L. ed. 679, 726, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436.

Certainly, in the absence of any proof that such sale was, upon the part of the Delaware & Hudson Company, a portion of an illegal combination to which it was itself intentionally a party, the company is entitled to enforce such contract against the other party thereto, and that right cannot be taken away from it without its consent, no question of police power being involved.

Tracy v. Talmage, 14 N. Y. 167, 67 Am. Dec. 132; Ganson v. Tifft, 71 N. Y. 57; Graves v. Johnson, 179 Mass. 53, 88 Am. St. Rep. 355, 60 N. E. 383; National Distilling Co. v. Cream City Importing Co. 86 Wis. 356, 39 Am. St. Rep. 902, 56 N. W. 864; Metcalf v. American School Furniture Co. 122 Fed. 120; Carter-Crume Co. v. Peurrung, 30 C. C. A. 174, 58 U. S. App. 388, 86 Fed. 442; Adams v. Coulliard, 102 Mass. 167; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431.

Messrs. Robert W. DeForest and Jackson E. Reynolds filed a separate brief for the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey et al.

Mr. Charles Heebner filed a separate brief for the Reading Company.

Mr. William W. Green filed a brief for the Mercantile Trust Company.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a petition in equity, filed by the United States in the circuit court of the United States for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, for the purpose of enforcing the provisions of the act of July 2, 1890 [26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200], known as the Sherman anti-trust act, against an alleged combination of railroad and coal-mining companies formed and continued for the purpose of restraining competition in the production, sale, and transportation of anthracite coal in commerce among the states.

The defendants originally made such, and alone referred to hereafter as the defendants, were the following:

The Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company; the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company; the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company; the Lehigh Valley Coal Company; the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company; the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey; the Erie Railroad Company; the New York, Susquehanna, & Western Railroad Company; the New York, Susquehanna, & Western Coal Company; the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company; the Pennsylvania Coal Company; the Hillside Coal Company; the Reading Company; and the Temple Iron Company. By an amendment certain other defendants were brought in, consisting of holders of contracts made by independent operators of coal mines, and trustees holding securities which might be affected by the relief sought against the carrier and coal-mining companies, the original defendants. A list of these later defendants is set out in the margin,† and when they are referred to herein they will be specifically mentioned.

338] *The bill alleges that anthracite coal is an article of prime necessity as a fuel, and finds its market mainly in the New England and middle Atlantic states. The deposits of the coal, with unimportant exceptions, lie in the state of Pennsylvania, but do not occupy a continuous field, though found in certain counties adjoining in the eastern half of the state, and embrace an area of 484 square miles. This coal region is from 150 to 250 miles from tide water. The region itself is broken and mountainous, and the natural conditions and character of the deposits are such that the mining and reduction of the coal to suitable sizes for domestic use require very large amounts of capital. Its value commercially is dependent, in a large degree, upon quick and cheap transportation to convenient shipping points at tide water, from whence it may be distributed to the great consuming markets of the Atlantic coast states.

The whole problem of advantageously developing these deposits and supplying the eastern demand for fuel was one which presented enormous difficulties. From an early day it has been the settled policy of the state 339]of Pennsylvania *to encourage the development of this coal region by canal and railroad construction, which would furnish transportation to convenient shipping points at tidewater. One of the defendant carriers, the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Company was given the power to acquire coal lands and engage in the business of mining and selling coal in addition to the business of a common carrier, and all railroad companies were permitted to aid in the production of coal by assisting coal mining companies through the purchase of capital stock and bonds. Thus, it has come about that the defendant carriers not only dominate the transportation of coal from this anthracite region to the great distributing ports at New York harbor, but also through their controlled coal-producing companies, produce and sell about 75 per cent of the annual supply of anthracite. As a further direct consequence of the state authorized between coal-producing and coal-transporting companies, it has come about that the defendant carrier companies and the coal-mining companies affiliated with the carrier companies now own or control about 90 per cent of the entire unmined area of anthracite, distributed, according to the averments of the petition, as follows:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Reading Company | 44. | per cent |
| Lehigh Valley Company | 16.87 | per cent |
| Del. L. & Western Company | 6.55 | per cent |
| Cent. Railroad of New Jersey | 19. | per cent |
| Erie Railroad | 2.59 | per cent |
| N. Y. S. & Western Railroad | .54 | per cent |
| | 89.55 | per cent |

It further appears that, in addition to the great coal-mining companies subsidiary to one or another of the defendant carrier companies, there are a large number of independent coal operators whose aggregate production *from coal lands, in part[340 leased from the railroad companies or the railroad-controlled coal-producing companies, amounts to about 20 per cent of the annual anthracite supply. These independent operators are said to no longer have the power to compete with the carrier defendants and their subsidiary coal companies, because a large proportion of them have severally entered into contracts with one or the other of the carrier or coal-mining companies defendant for the sale of the entire product of their mines for the consideration of 65 per cent of the average market price at tide water.

†The Delaware & Hudson Company; Elk Hill Coal & Iron Company; St. Clair Coal Company; Enterprise Coal Company; Buck Run Coal Company; Llewellyn Mining Company; Clear Spring Coal Company; Pancoast Coal Company; Price-Pancoast Coal Company; Mount Lookout Coal Company; People's Coal Company; George F. Lee Coal Company; North End Coal Company; Melville Coal Company; Parrish Coal Company; Red Ash Coal Company; Raub Coal Company; Mid Valley Coal Company; Austin Coal Company; Clarence Coal Company; Nay Aug Coal Company; Green Ridge Coal Company; Excelsior Coal Company; Lackawanna Coal Company; Dolph Coal Company, Limited; Mary F. W. Howe, Frank Pardee, and Sarah Drexel Van Rensellaer, constituting A. Pardee & Company; Lafayette Lentz, William O. Lentz, and Lewis A. Riley, constituting Lentz & Company; William Law and John M. Robertson, constituting Robertson & Law; Richard White, W. R. McTurk, and Robert White, constituting E. White Company; Joseph J. Jermyn, George B. Jermyn, Emma J. Jermyn, constituting John Jermyn Estate; Joseph J. Jermyn, Michael F. Dolphin; the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Anuities; and the Mercantile Trust Company.

Thus, there exists, independently of any agreement, combination, or contract between the several defendant carrier companies for the purpose of suppressing competition among them, this condition:

First: Excluding two carrier companies not made defendants, which reach but a limited number of collieries,—the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the New York, Ontario, & Western Railroad Company,—the six carrier companies who are defendants are shown to control the only means of transportation between this great anthracite deposit and tide water, from whence the product may be distributed by rail and water to the great consuming markets of the Atlantic coast states.

Second: These carriers and their subsidiary coal-mining and selling companies produce and sell about 75 per cent of the total annual supply of anthracite coal. Of the remainder, the independent operators mentioned above produce about 20 per cent.

The chief significance of the fact that the six carrier defendants control substantially the only means for the transportation of coal from the mines to distributing points at tide water is in the fact that they, collectively, also control nearly three fourths of the annual supply of anthracite which there finds a market. The situation is therefore one which invites concerted action 341]and makes exceedingly *easy the accomplishment of any purpose to dominate the supply and control the prices at seaboard. The one fourth of the total annual supply which comes from independent operators in the same region has been sold in competition with the larger supply of the defendants. If, by concert of action, that source of competition be removed, the monopoly which the defendants, acting together, may exert over production and sale, will be complete.

This bill avers that the defendants have combined for the purpose of securing their collective grip upon the anthracite coal supply by exerting their activities to shut out from the district any new line of transportation from the mines to tide water points, and to shut out from competition at tide water the coal of independent operators with their own coal. The steps said to have been taken having this end in view, we shall now consider:

The community of interest which has resulted from the charter powers of the carrier companies to directly or indirectly engage in the business of mining and selling coal has produced the relation between the carrier and coal-mining defendants shown by the several groups into which we have arranged them, thus:

1. The Reading Company is a Pennsylvania corporation, and apparently nothing more than a holding company. That company holds:

a. The entire capital stock of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway, one of the defendant carriers.

b. The entire capital stock of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company, a coal-mining company.

The three companies have the same president.

2. The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company owns all of the capital stock of the Lehigh Valley Coal Company, and the two companies have the same president.

3. The Central Railroad of New Jersey owns 90 per cent of the capital stock of the Lehigh & Wilkesbarre *Coal Company,[342 and the two companies have the same president, who is also the president of the Reading Company and its two controlled companies.

4. The Erie Railroad Company owns all of the capital stock of the Pennsylvania Coal Company and a large majority of the stock of the Hillside Coal Company, and the three companies have the same president.

5. The New York, Susquehanna, & Western Railroad Company owns nearly the entire capital stock of the New York, Susquehanna, & Western Coal Company, and they have the same president, who is also the president of the Erie Railroad Company and of its two allied coal companies mentioned above.

6. The Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad Company is itself an owner and producer of anthracite, and seems to have no subsidiary coal company.

7. The Temple Iron Company. The relation of this company to the several carrier companies will be considered separately.

Excluding the Temple Iron Company, the groups as arranged are independent of each other, and each group, in the absence of any agreement or combination, possesses the power to compete with every other in the production, sale, and transportation of coal from the mines to tide water. Indeed, the plain averment of the bill is that, prior to 1896, they were actually competing in the market reached at New York harbor, and that the competition continued, except as interrupted by abortive or abandoned efforts to combine, until they entered into the general combination which it is the purpose of this proceeding to dissolve.

That the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad Company was itself the owner of coal lands, and was engaged in mining, transporting, and marketing its own coal, and that the other railway defendants were also engaged, through their subsidiary coal 343]companies, in mining and *selling coal, as well as in transporting the coal so mined, is not determinative of any issue here presented, since this bill was filed before the commodities clause of the Hepburn act of June 29, 1906 [34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288], became effective, which forbids any carrier engaged in interstate transportation from transporting coal for market, when the coal at the time of transportation is owner by the carrier company. See United States ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. Delaware, & H. R. Co. 213 U. S. 366, 53 L. ed. 836, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527. Any relief against a continuance of such forbidden transportation must therefore be sought in another proceeding based upon the act of Congress referred to.

The scope and theory of the bill.

The theory upon which the bill is framed and upon which the case has been presented by counsel is, that there exists between the defendants a general combination to control the anthracite coal industry, both in respect of mining and transportation from the mines to the general consuming markets reached from shipping points at New York harbor, and the production and sale of coal throughout the United States.

The contention is that this general combination is established, first, by evidence of an agreement between the carrier defendants to apportion between themselves the total coal tonnage transported from the mines to tide water according to a scale of percentages; second, by a combination between them, through the instrumentality of the defendant, the Temple Iron Company, to prevent the construction of a new and competing line of railroad from the mines to tide water; third, by a combination between the defendants by means of a series of identical contracts for the control of the coal produced by independent coal operators, thereby preventing competition in the markets of other states between the coal of such independent operators and that pro-344]duced by the defendants; and, *finally, by certain so-called contributary combinations, already referred to, between some, but not all, of the defendants.

Aside from the particular transactions averred as "steps" or "acts in furtherance" of a presupposed general combination, the charge of such a combination is general and indefinite.

The case is barren of documentary evidence of solidarity. The fact of such general combination, if it exists, must be deduced from specific acts or transactions in which the companies have united and from which such a general combination may be inferred. When and how did such a combination come about? We start with the proposition that if any such combination exists, it had an origin not earlier than 1896. Attempts to bring about a suppression of competition prior to that time, indicated by some of the evidence, had either proved abortive or had been abandoned. Thus, it is stated that in 1890 and 1891 the price of coal of certain sizes at tide water was from $3.71 to $3.85 per ton; that in 1892 the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company, the predecessor in title of the defendant the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, leased the lines of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company and of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey for nine hundred and ninety-nine years, and that the three companies together owned or controlled about 80 per cent of the coal deposits of this anthracite region and transported nearly 50 per cent of the entire tonnage; that while these leases were in force the price of coal was advanced to $4.15 and $4.19 per ton for the same sizes. It is then averred that in a proceeding in the courts of New Jersey these leases of the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey were held null and void, and that in 1893 this decree was followed by a rescission of the lease of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company to the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company. It is then averred that, *under the influence of competition[345 thereby restored, the price of the same grade of coal in 1894 fell to $3.60 per ton and in 1895 to $3.12 per ton. "Whereupon," the petition avers, "in violation of the provisions of §§ 1 and 2, respectively, of the act of Congress of July 2, 1890, . . . the defendants the Reading Company and the defendant carriers and the defendant coal companies, owning or controlling 90 per cent, more or less, of all the anthracite deposits, and producing 75 per cent, more or less, of the annual supply of anthracite, and controlling all the means of transportation between the anthracite mines and tide water, save the railroads operated by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the New York, Ontario, & Western Railroad Company, which, as aforesaid, reach only a limited number of collieries (not defendants here), entered into an agreement, scheme, combination, or conspiracy, by virtue whereof they acquired the power to control, regulate, restrain, and monopolize, and have controlled, regulated, restrained, and monopolized, not only the production of anthracite coal, but its transportation from the mines in Pennsylvania to market points in other states, and its prices an sale throughout the several states, with the result that competition in the transportation and sale of anthracite has been wholly suppressed and the price thereof greatly enhanced."

1. We come first to the evidence relied upon to show such a general combination through an agreement between the carriers to distribute the total tonnage of coal from this region to shipping points at New York harbor according to a scale of percentages spoken of as the "presidents' percentages."

There is some evidence tending to show that early in 1896 there was an effort made at a conference of the presidents of the carrier companies to distribute the coal tonnage between the several carriers, based 346]upon the *average percentage of coal carried in prior years by each carrier. The limited character of the coal field, the control of so large a proportion of the deposits and of the transportation, was such as to invite agreements and combinations. A pooling arrangement would largely prevent competition between the otherwise independent groups of carriers and producers. That any such pooling agreement was made is denied most earnestly by all of the defendants. That there occurred a conference in 1896 looking to such an arrangement seems probable on the evidence. But the weight of proof satisfies us that whatever might have been contemplated or attempted, the scheme proved abortive, or, if attempted, was abandoned long before this bill was filed. We do not set out the circumstances which are pointed out as tending to show such an illegal agreemnt, nor do we deem it necessary to discuss the conflicting direct testimony. We have gone through the record. The facts are discussed and largely set out in the opinion of the court below. Though its judges differed in respect to the relief which might be granted upon other grounds, they agreed in holding that the government had failed to show any contract or agreement for the distribution of tonnage. In this we concur.

The Temple Iron Company combination.

2. We come, then, to the several acts, agreements, or transactions set out in the seventh paragraph of the bill, two of which are said to have been participated in by all of the defendants, and therefore to constitute evidence of the general combination charged, and to be, in and of themselves, illegal combinations between all of the principal defendants which come under the frame of the bill as in violation of the act of July 2, 1890.

The transactions referred to are introduced immediately following the general charge, and are characterized in the *bill as[347 "steps in the development of this illegal combination, and in furtherance of its illegal purposes." It is then averred, that "the defendants, or some of them, became parties to the following additional acts, schemes, and contracts, among others, in violation of the aforesaid act of July 2, 1890." This is followed by five distinct paragraphs, each setting out some distinct contract, combination, or agreement alleged to have been the act of all of the defendants, or of two or some number less than all. These alleged "steps" and "additional acts, schemes, and contracts," in violation of the Sherman law and in furtherance of the alleged illegal general scheme or purpose,—are: (a) the making of the 65 per cent contracts with the independent operators; (b) the absorption by the Erie Railroad of the New York, Susquehanna, & Western Railroad Company; (c) the acquisition by the Reading Company of the majority of the capital stock of the Central Railroad of New Jersey; (d) the acquisition of the Temple Iron Company, and through it of a large number of collieries, for the purpose of defeating a projected independent line of railway into the coal region; and (e) the acquisition by the Erie Railroad Company, while controlling the Hillside Coal & Iron Company, of all of the shares of the Delaware Valley & Kingston Railroad Company, a projected common carrier, and all of the shares of the Pennsylvania Coal Company.

As we have already stated, two of these transactions are averred to be transactions into which all of the defendants entered in pursuance of a common purpose and general design to suppress competition and restrain commerce in coal between the states.

The first which we shall consider is the alleged combination through the Temple Iron Company. Concerning this, the petition, in substance, states, that in 1898 many of the independent coal operators in the Wyoming or northern field became dissatisfied with the transportation *and market[348 conditions under which they were obliged to conduct their collieries. Many contracts for the sale of their coal to the defendant coal companies had expired or were about to expire, and they demanded either lower freight rates or better prices from the coal companies. A competing line of railway from the northern or Wyoming zone of the anthracite region to a point on the Delaware river, where connection would be made with two or more lines extending to shipping points at New York harbor, was projected as a means of relieving the situation. The New York, Wyoming & Western Railroad was accordingly incorporated. Large subscriptions of stock were taken, the line in part surveyed, parts of the right-of-way procured, and a large quantity of steel rails contracted for. As the road was to be mainly a coal-carrying road, support from coal-mining companies was essential. Its chief backing came from independent coal operators. The most important and influential of them was the firm of Simpson & Watkins, who controlled and operated eight collieries in the region, having an annual output of more than a million tons. The time for such a competing means of transportation was auspicious. Much of the output of the district not tied up by contracts of sale or transportation was pledged to this project and much more was promised.

The petition alleges that the construction of the projected independent railroad would not only have introduced competition into the transportation of anthracite coal to tide water, but it would have enabled independent operators reached by it to sell their coal at distributing points in free competition with the defendant coal companies "Wherefore," avers the pleading, "the defendants the Reading Company, owning the entire capital stock of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company, and the other carrier companies defendants herein, controlling collectively all means of transporta-[349]tion between the mines *and shipping points at New York harbor, combined together for the purpose of shutting out the proposed railroad, and preventing competition with them in the transportation of coal from the mines to other states, and the sale of coal in competition with their own controlled coal in the markets of other states." The plan devised was to detach from the enterprise the powerful support of Simpson & Watkins and the great tonnage which their co-operation would give to the new road, by acquiring for the combination the coal properties and collieries controlled by that great independent firm of operators. This would not only strangle the project, but secure them forever against new schemes induced by the large tonnage produced by these eight collieries, and secure not only that tonnage for their own lines, but keep the coal forever out of competition with that of their controlled coal-producing companies.

The scheme was worked out with the result foreseen and intended. The capital stock of the Temple Iron Company, aggregating only $240,000, was all secured. That company was then operating a small iron furnace near Reading. Its assets were small, but its charter was a special legislative charter which gave it power to engage in almost any sort of business, and to increase its capital substantially at will. Control of that company having been secured, it was used as the instrument for the purpose intended.

The plan by which the defendant carriers were enabled to carry out this scheme and apportion among themselves proportionate interests in the property acquired and the burden to be assumed was not simple, but elaborate. The financial arrangements seem to have been made through Mr. Baer, who was the president of and a large stockholder in the Temple Company, and Mr. R. J. Bacon, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company. Shortly stated, it was this: The Temple Company increased its *capital[350] stock to $2,500,000 and issued mortgage bonds aggregating $3,500,000. Simpson & Watkins agreed to sell to the Temple Company their properties for something near $5,000,000. They accordingly transferred to the Temple Company the capital shares in the several coal companies, holding the title to their eight collieries, and received in exchange $2,260,000 in the shares of the Temple Company, and $3,500,000 of its mortgage bonds. By contemporaneous instruments Simpson & Watkins transferred to the defendant the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, as trustee, this capital stock and $2,100,000 of the bonds of the Temple Company, and received from the Guaranty Company, $3,238,396.66 in money and $1,000,000 in certificates of beneficial interest in the stock of the Temple Company. The Guaranty Company seems to have been but a medium and was accordingly protected by a contemporaneous contract with the Reading Company and the other carrier defendants by which they severally contracted with the Guaranty Company to purchase the Temple Company's capital stock in a certain agreed proportion or percentage of the total capital stock, and to guarantee the bonded debt of the Temple Company in the same proportion. A large proportion of the bonds and of the beneficial certificates of interest in stock of the Temple Company was later guaranteed, or underwritten, as the stock phrase goes, by a syndicate including J. P. Morgan, William Rockefeller, the Guaranty Company, and others.

Thus it came about that when this bill was filed the stock of the Temple Company, which, as seen, is a mere holding company for the several defendant carrier companies, was owned by the defendants, and the obligations of that company were guaranteed by them in proportions based on the percentage of the total anthracite tonnage carried annually by each of the defendant carriers, namely: The Reading Company and the Reading Railway *Company, being[351] treated as one and the same in this matter, 29.96 per cent; the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, 22.88 per cent; the Central Railroad of New Jersey, 17.12 per cent; the Delaware, Lackawanna, & Western Railroad Company, 19.52 per cent; the Erie Railroad Company, 5.84 per cent; the New York, Susquehanna, & Western Railroad Company, 4.86 per cent. At the time this proof was taken the average annual output of the collieries thus acquired was about 1,600,000 tons, and in the last year the output had risen to 1,950,000 tons. This combination of the defendants through the Temple Iron Company was effective in bringing about the desired result. The New York, Wyoming, & Western Railroad Company was successfully strangled, and the monopoly of transportation collectively held by the six defendant carrier companies was maintained.

The projected competing railroad was undoubtedly a good faith proposition, and held out promise to independent coal operators not only of the prospect of competition in transportation from the mines to tide water, but the possibility of selling their coal either to the controlled coal companies defendant at better prices, or to the consuming public at tide water in competition with that of the controlled coal companies. But if we assume that its construction was doubtful, the result must be the same as characterizing the purpose and design of the concerted action of the defendants. They were so far convinced of the threatening character of the enterprise that they were moved at great cost to thwart it and at the same time remove the temptation for like competition by securing to themselves forever the product of the collieries named.

That the collieries to be reached by the new road were not all reached by each of the defendants is true. The great bulk of tonnage from them seems to have been carried by the Erie, the Lehigh, and the Lackawanna. But the preservation of the monopoly 352]of transportation *from the mines to tide water held by the six lines which were serving the region was plainly a common interest,—a collective monopoly by which the profits in coal could be secured and the monopoly maintained by shutting out any new line to tidewater. The extent of the interest of each in the desired result seems to have been estimated by themselves as fairly measured by the percentage of the total tonnage theretofore carried annually by each. Thus it was that they became owners of the shares in the Temple Company, and guarantors of its obligations in the same proportions.

It has been suggested that since the New York, Wyoming, & Western Railroad has been effectively strangled that it will be idle to enjoin the doing of an act already accomplished. But that is a narrow view of the relief which may be granted under the statute and the frame of this bill.

The combination by means of the Temple Company still exists. It has been and still is an efficient agency for the collective activities of the defendant carriers for the purpose of preventing competition in the transportation and sale of coal in other states.

That under the law of Pennsylvania each of the defendant carrier companies has the power to acquire and hold the stock of coal-producing companies may be true. That the Temple Company may, under the same law, have the power to acquire and hold the capital stock of the Simpson & Watkins' collieries may also be conceded. But if the defendant carriers did, as we have found to be the fact, combine to restrain the freedom of interstate commerce either in the transportation or in the sale of anthracite coal in the markets of other states, and adopted as a means for that purpose the Temple Company, and, through it, the control of the great Simpson & Watkins' collieries, the parts of the general scheme, however lawful, considered alone, become parts of an illegal combination *un-[353 der the Federal statute which it is the duty of the court to dissolve, irrespective of how the legal title to the shares is held. Northern Securities Case, 197 U. S. 244, 291, 49 L. ed. 739, 761, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493. So long as the defendants are able to exercise the power thus illegally acquired, it may be most efficiently exerted for the continued and further suppression of competition. Through it, the defendants, in combination, may absorb the remaining output of independent producers. The evil is in the combination. Without it the several groups of coal-carrying and coal-producing companies have the power and motive to compete. That each may for itself advance the price of coal or cut down the production is true. But in the power which each other group would have to compete would be found a corrective. The statute forbids the concerted action which has already brought about the strangling of a projected competing railroad and the complete control of the sale of an immense tonnage of independent coal which had prior thereto not only been a menace to their collective control of the means of transportation to New York harbor points, but a large competing factor in sales at these points. The Temple Company, therefore, affords a powerful agency by means of which the unlawful purpose which induced its acquisition may be continued beyond the mere operation of the Simpson & Watkins' collieries.

Its board of directors includes the presidents of the defendant carriers, who also are the presidents of the defendant coal companies, and these defendant companies absolutely dominate its affairs. The Temple Company also owns and dominates the great collieries obtained from Simpson & Watkins. Its board of directors, composed, as it is, of men representing the defendants, supplies time, place, and occasion for the expression of plans or combinations requiring or inviting concert of action. Though as a board it may not dictate the activities 354]of *the owning corporations, still, in view of the relation of the Temple Company to the defendant carriers and their respective coal mining companies, and of the constitution of its directors, the attitude of its board, as indicated by the proceedings spread upon the corporate minutes, is of significance upon the question of the existence of any concerted purpose to unite the activities of its corporate owners to suppress competition. There are to be found on the minutes of the Temple Company a number of entries which point strongly to combinations between the defendants. Thus, on June 27, 1899, a committee was appointed to consider the establishment of a statistical bureau, "to keep a record of all matters of interest to the anthracite companies." What resulted does not appear from any further minutes. On July 2, 1901, a resolution in these words was adopted:

"Resolved, That Mr. Cumming, Mr. Sayre, Mr. Henderson, Mr. Caldwell, and Mr. Warren be appointed a committee to consider the advisability and expediency of making a 40 per cent rate to outside shippers, or a flat rate, and, if so, what rate."

By "outside shippers" the witness says was meant "independent operators," who shipped their own coal. The witness by whom this action was proved says that he never saw the report and does not know that any was made by the committee. It is true that Mr. Baer, the president of the Temple Company, denied that the Temple Company had or undertook to exercise any power in respect of carrier rates, or in fixing prices of coal. He says that the minute entries referred to above are matters "interjected by somebody," under a misconception of the powers and duties of the directors of that company, and came to nothing. That he shortly took the presidency himself, and that the Temple Company "has been run as the most harmless mining company in the state of Pennsylvania," and has had nothing to 355]do with the *price of coal or with rates for transportation. But this disclaimer of power does not detract from the significance of the minutes of the board referred to as evidence bearing upon the question of the relation of the several defendants to each other.

We are in entire accord with the view of the court below in holding that the transaction involved a concerted scheme and combination for the purpose of restraining commerce among the states, in plain violation of the act of Congress of July 2, 1890.

3. We come now to the 65 per cent contracts.

The charge of the petition in respect of these contracts is substantially this:

a. That the defendant carriers possessed a substantial monopoly of all of the means of transportation between the coal region and tide water.

b. That they directly or indirectly, through their controlled coal companies, produced about 75 per cent of the annual supply of anthracite coal.

c. That 20 per cent or more of the annual supply was produced by independent operators, whose collieries were located contiguous to the carrier lines of the defendant companies.

d. This being the situation, it is charged, that for the purpose of preventing the output of these independent producers "from being sold throughout the several states in competition with the output from their own mines, or of the mines of their subsidiary coal companies, the said defendant carriers, having almost a complete monopoly of the means of transportation between the anthracite mines and tide water, entered into and now maintain an agreement, combination, or conspiracy to use their power as said carriers to obtain control of the sale and disposition of the aforesaid output of the independent mines in the markets of the several states, particularly *of the great distributing market at[356 New York harbor, in violation of the aforesaid act of July 2, 1890."

It is further averred:

e. That prior to 1900 the defendants "severally made" a large number of short-term contracts for the purchase of the coal of independent operators "along their respective lines," prices ranging from 55 to 60 per cent of the average price at tide water.

That upon the termination of these contracts the defendants, "in pursuance of a previous agreement between themselves, severally offered to make, and did make and conclude with nearly all of the independent operators along their lines, new contracts containing substantially uniform provisions agreed upon beforehand by the defendant carriers in concert, some of the operators contracting with one of the defendants and some with another," by which such operators "severally agreed" to deliver on cars at breakers "to one or the other of the defendant carriers, or its subsidiary coal company, all the anthracite coal thereafter mined from any of their mines now opened and operated, or which they might thereafter open and operate, deliveries to be made from time to time as called for," etc. In consideration, the sellers were to receive for prepared sizes 65 per cent of the general average price prevailing at tide-water points at or near New York, as computed from month to month, this average price to be settled by an expert agreed upon by the parties.

It is further averred that this price was such as to enable the independent operator entering into one of these contracts to realize upon his coal from 15 to 50 cents more than he could when shipping on his own account after paying the established rates of transportation, waste and cost of selling, in competition with the coal of the defendants. That the difference was the price paid for the privilege of controlling the [357] sale of the independent *output, "so as to prevent it from selling in competition with the output of their own mines."

It is then further alleged that the result of this plan, "as was intended, was to draw, if not to force, the great body of independent operators into making the aforesaid contracts, thereby enabling the defendants to control absolutely, and until the mines are exhausted, the output of most of the independent anthracite mines, and to prevent it, as aforesaid, from being sold in competition with the output of their own mines in the markets of the several states, particularly in the great tide-water markets."

It is obvious that the averments do not touch upon the legality of the contracts considered severally, and ask no relief upon the theory that each was a contract in restraint of trade. The theory and charge of the bill is that, by concerted action between the defendants, the independent operators were to be induced to enter singly into uniform agreements for the sale of the entire output of their several mines and any other they might thereafter acquire, excluding a negligible amount of unmarketable coal and coal for local consumption. And the further theory of the pleading is that by such concerted action and through the higher price offered, the defendants would obtain such control of independent coal as to prevent competition in the markets of other states.

It is not essential that these contracts, considered singly, be unlawful as in restraint of trade. So considered, they may be wholly innocent. Even acts absolutely lawful may be steps in a criminal plot. Aikens v. Wisconsin, 195 U. S. 194, 206, 49 L. ed. 154, 160, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3. But a series of such contracts, if the result of a concerted plan or plot between the defendants to thereby secure control of the sale of the independent coal in the markets of other states, and thereby suppress competition in prices between their own output and that of the independent operators, would come plainly within the terms of the statute, and, as parts of the scheme or plot, *would be unlawful. Thus, in Swift & [358] Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 396, 49 L. ed. 518, 524, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276, where a plan or scheme consisting in many parts or elements was averred to constitute a combination forbidden by the act of July 2, 1890, it was said:

"The scheme as a whole seems to us to be within reach of the law. The constituent elements, as we have stated them, are enough to give to the scheme a body, and, for all that we can say, to accomplish it. Moreover, whatever we may think of them separately when we take them up as distinct charges, they are alleged sufficiently as elements of the scheme. It is suggested that the several acts charged are lawful and that intent can make no difference. But they are bound together as the parts of a single plan. The plan may make the parts unlawful."

That the plan was calculated to accomplish the design averred, in the present case, seems plain enough. The anthracite field was very limited. The means for transportation from the mines to seaboard shipping points were in the hands of the defendant carriers. They, together with their subsidiary companies, controlled about 90 per cent of the coal deposit and about 75 per cent of the annual output. If the remaining output, that of the independent operators along their several lines, could be controlled as to production and sale at tide-water points, there would inevitably result such a dominating control of a necessity of life as to bring the scheme or combination within the condemnation of the statute.

That these 65 per cent contracts were the result of an agreement through protracted conferences between the independent operators, acting through an authorized committee, and officials of the carrier defendants, who were likewise officials of the coal companies subsidiary to the railroad companies, is plainly established. That they were designed by the defendants *as a means [359] of controlling the sale of the independent output in the market at tide-water points, thereby preventing competition with their own coal, and as a plan for removing the great tonnage controlled by the independents from being used as an inducement for the entry of competing carriers into the district, is a plain deduction.

Some of the facts which lead to this conclusion will be referred to as briefly as the great importance of the case will permit:

That for a long time many of the independent operators had been selling their output to their great rivals, the defendant carriers and their several coal companies, is true. By means of such sales and deliveries at their own breakers, the sellers avoided freight, waste, and expense of sales through agents, etc. The price they would thereby realize was fixed, and they were not dependent upon a fluctuating market. So long, therefore, as they could sell to their rivals at their breakers to better advantage than they could ship and sell on their own account, the method appealed to them. But, obviously, buyer and seller were not upon an equal plane. The former had control of freight rates and car service. The seller must pay the rate exacted and accept the car service supplied him by the buyer, or appeal to the remedies afforded by the law. If the rate of freight to tide water was onerous, and was imposed upon the coal produced by the defendants and their allied coal producers without discrimination against the coal of the independent shipper, it would nevertheless bear upon the latter oppressively, since the rate paid would find its way into the pocket of the defendants. Therefore it was that the higher the freight rate, the greater the inducement to sell to the carrier companies. That the conditions were not accepted by the independent producers as satisfactory is evident. The majority at all times stood out, and those making such agreements as well as those refusing to do so maintained 360] *an agitation for better freight rates and better prices for those who preferred to sell at their breakers. For many years before this proceeding they maintained an organization called "The Anthracite Coal Operators' Association," and through that body endeavored to improve their situation.

The series of contracts here involved were all made since 1900, and are therefore subsequent to the combination through the Temple Iron Company, already considered. The charge is that since that combination the defendants further combined through these contracts. Prior to 1900, we find no evidence of any combination or agreement for the procurement of contracts of sale with independent operators. Upon the contrary, there is much to indicate that there was more or less competition for coal accessible to more than one of the buying defendants. The effect of competition is shown by the gradual rise in the price the great companies were willing to pay. In the earliest stages of the business the buying price seems to have been fixed with some relation to the varying wage scale of miners. This gave way to an agreed percentage of the current price at tide water. Thus the earlier contracts allowed the selling operator only 40 per cent of the tidewater price for prepared sizes. Through competition between the existing companies, and through that which resulted from the entry of new carrier lines with their subsidiary coal companies, the price was forced gradually up from 40 to 60 per cent of the tide-water price, and at this latter figure the price stood when the combination here averred came into existence.

We have mentioned the influence of the coming into the region of new coal-carrying railroads upon the per cent of the tidewater price which the independent operators were able to obtain from the buying coal companies. This influence, as we shall see, was a large factor in bringing about the contracts now in question. The carriers *here defendant did not all obtain their[361 footing in this anthracite field at the same time. Thus, when the New York, Susquehanna, & Western was projected, it, through its coal company, offered to buy coal on 50 per cent contracts. The price before that had been 40 to 45 per cent. The result was that the other companies came gradually up to the same price. This was late in the eighties, the exact date not being at hand. Again, it is said in the brief for the defendants, that:

"In the early 90's, the New York, Ontario, & Western Railroad built a branch into the Wyoming region and sought tonnage. Mr. Sturgis was commissioned beforehand by the coal company of that railroad to offer 60 per cent contracts on the understanding that, if he could secure a half million tons annually, the branch would be built. The branch railroad was built, and by its help large new acreages of coal lands were developed, tributary to the Ontario & Western Railroad."

As a consequence, says the same brief, "the other coal companies began to raise their rates to 60 per cent," and by 1892 that had become the settled price.

The influence of competition, actual or threatened, was also illustrated in 1898, when the New York, Wyoming, & Western was projected. A large number of coal contracts had expired or were about to expire, thus creating a great tonnage open to competition. Many of the operators in the Wyoming region of the coal field united their influence to procure the building of a competing line between the mines and New York harbor points. To this end a large tonnage was pledged to its coal-selling company, which offered to pay 65 per cent of the tide-water price to such operators. How and why that project failed we have already shown in the section of this opinion devoted to the Temple Iron Company combination.

When that effort failed there arose a 362]movement for a *new road from the mines to tide water through the Pennsylvania Coal Company. That was one of the greatest of the independent companies, producing in 1899 about 2,000,000 tons. It controlled a coal-gathering railroad called the Erie & Wyoming Valley Railroad, and proposed its extension to Lackawaxen, and to cause the construction from that point of a railroad line to the Hudson river. To this end it caused to be organized the Delaware Valley & Kingston Railroad. Of this project, Mr. Thomas, the president of the Erie Railroad Company, said: "They were threatening and had started to build a competing road to the Hudson river." The independent operators, in an association maintained by them for their mutual protection, hailed this scheme with joy. At a meeting of the association on November 22, 1899, the following minute was made:

"Mr. E. L. Fuller, chairman of the executive committee, on being called upon, told of the efforts which have been made to induce the various anthracite railroads to offer more satisfactory terms for the purchase of the operators' coal, and of the absolute failure of these efforts to bring about any definite result. He then reported the organization of the Delaware Valley & Kingston Railroad, backed by the Pennsylvania Coal Company, and the proffer of this latter company to purchase coal from operators in the Wyoming and Lehigh region, paying 65 per cent of the tide-water price for chestnut and larger; 50 per cent for pea coal, and a flat 85 per cent freight rate on buck-wheat and smaller sizes. These contracts were to be for all of the coal in the ground, thus settling permanently the price which the operator would receive.

"After extended discussion as to the details of these contracts, and a comparison with the results obtained under the old contracts, the following resolution was offered and passed unanimously:

"'Whereas the Erie & Wyoming Valley 363]Railroad Company *has arranged to build a branch line from Hawley, Pennsylvania, to a point on the boundary line between New York and Pennsylvania at Lackawaxen, forming a connection with a railroad proposed to be constructed by the Delaware Valley & Kingston Railroad Company to tide water, at Kingston, on the Hudson river;

"'And whereas the construction of the said railroads is approved and promoted by the Pennsylvania Coal Company, which has large interests in the anthracite coal region;

"'And whereas the independent operators and the general public are now largely at the mercy of the existing railroad companies, which charge unreasonable rates for their services, owing in part to the large amounts for which the said companies have been capitalized;

"'And whereas it would be highly advantageous to all the independent owners of coal properties throughout the entire anthracite region of Pennsylvania to have the railroad connection, now proposed, completed as speedily as possible;

"'And whereas it is equally desirable, in the interests of the people of the state of New York and the public in general, that such railroad connection shall be made (since it will necessarily result in a material reduction of the price paid for anthracite coal by consumers), now, therefore it is

"'Resolved, I. That this association hereby expresses its hearty and unqualified approval of the proposed plan for the construction of the said railroads, and hereby pledges its constant support and active assistance in promoting the speedy construction and completion of the said railroads.

"'II. That a committee of three be appointed by the president, of which the president shall be a member, to take such steps as may be deemed advisable toward furthering the said plans and co-operating with the said companies *for the com-[364 pletion of the said railroads, and that a report of their proceedings be submitted to the next meeting of this association.'

"In the discussion which followed, it was the opinion of those present that, in view of the hearty assistance which had been accorded the operators by the Pennsylvania Coal Company, it was the duty of the members to give to this company all of the tonnage which they could deliver, and not to permit any more advantageous offers which the older companies might make, to divert freight from a road which was constructed to give the operators a fair share in the selling price. A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Fuller for his labor and great success in accomplishing a work which was for the advantage of every individual operator in the anthracite regions."

It is enough to say of this project that it was abandoned when, in 1901, the Erie Railroad acquired, without any concert of action between it and the other carrier defendants, the capital stock of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, which carried with it the capital stock of the Erie & Wyoming Valley Railroad and the Delaware & Kingston Railroad.

The persistent effort of the independents to bring into the field competing carrier and coal-producing companies was a menace to the monopoly of transportation from that field to tide water which the defendants collectively possessed. The independent output was one fourth of the annual supply. It was mainly sold at tide water, where it came into active competition with the larger production of the defendants; but, as we have already seen, this enormous tonnage offered a great inducement to the organization of new carrier lines from the mines to the seaboard. The contracts theretofore made for the purchase of this output had been for short terms. The expiration of a considerable number had more than once been the occasion for new carrier projects 365]backed by the *independent operators. To renew the contracts for short terms would not postpone the day of competition. The control in perpetuity of such a large proportion of the output as would prevent in the future effective competition in the selling markets of the coast, and at the same time remove inducement to the entry of other lines of carriers, was the obvious solution of the situation. The necessary control could only come about through concerted action. If one of the several independent groups of defendants, or two, or any less number than all, had sought to obtain control, it would have been resisted by those not included. Therefore, it is plain that if the coal of these operators was to be placed in such situation as that it could not affect the price of their own coal, nor longer constitute a mass of tonnage sufficient to invite the construction of new lines from the mines to the sea, it must be brought about through the concerted action of the defendants.

In 1900 there occurred the great strike of the coal miners. Settled by arbitration in the fall of that year, the miners obtained a 10 per cent increase in wages. Of course, this affected the railroad coal-producing companies and the independent coal companies alike. The great companies took the lead in the arbitration and accepted the result. The independent companies were compelled to follow this lead. The latter, as we have seen, had before the strike been particularly urgent in their efforts to secure better conditions from the railroads and their allied coal companies. This rebellious attitude is partially shown by the resolution of the Anthracite Coal Operators' Association of November 22, 1899, heretofore set out. When the strike settlement was made, there was some hesitation among the independent operators about posting notice of the advance in wages, and through committees they urged upon the defendants that such advance in wages justified a reduction in freight rates and a price of not less *than 65 per cent for coal[366 sold to the defendant companies. The committees reported back that they could not obtain "any definite promise," but there has been "an intimation" that something would be done to improve the present conditions. It was thereupon resolved that the advance scale should be posted, and that a committee should be appointed "to confer with the various carrier companies, relative to a new contract." At the same meeting a number of the operators present signed an agreement empowering the committee named "to adjust all differences with certain transportation companies," and agree upon a basis of contract which should definitely and for a period of years fix the commercial relations between the said operators and the transportation companies, "each of the parties agreeing to make a particular contract for himself with the proper transportation company." This agreement, after being signed by those present, was placed in the hands of Mr. McNulty to secure further signatures. These matters appear on the minutes of the individual operators of October 5th. There ensued a number of conferences between the representatives of the sellers and buyers. The result was that a form of contract and a price was mutually agreed upon, being the form of the 65 per cent contracts, which were thereafter entered into as the short term agreements theretofore made expired. Thus the independents put in force the advance wage scale imposed by the strike arbitrators before any agreement whatever was made or promised by the defendants. This increased scale which the arbitration imposed having been accepted by the large companies could not be successfully resisted by the independents. It only operated to make them more persistent in their demand for some improvement in the methods and prices theretofore prevailing.

That the defendant companies should offer such terms is not surprising. The contracts to be made would be not *only for the[367 life of the mines being operated at the date of the sale, but was to extend to any other mines thereafter opened by the seller. The menace of the independent output as an invitation to competing carriers and as a competing coal at tide water would be removed forever.

Upon this aspect of the case we find ourselves in agreement with Judge Buffington, who concluded a discussion of the evidence by saying:

"By such perpetual contracts . . . these defendant railroads, through their subsidiary coal companies, severally made with other collieries, these combiners withdrew and still continue to withdraw, such product, for all time, from competition, either in interstate transportation or sale. To my mind there is no more subtle and effective agency for the gradual, unnoted absorption by interstate carriers of the remaining interstate product than these perpetual contracts. Holding, then, that they are, in the words of the statute, 'contracts . . . in restraint of trade or commerce among the states,' I record my dissent to the action of the court in refusing to enjoin them." [183 Fed. 474.]

The coal contracts acquired when this proceeding was begun aggregated nearly one half the tonnage of the independent operators. Much of the coal so bought was sold in Pennsylvania, and all of the contracts were made in that state, and the coal was also there delivered to the buying defendants. That the defendants were free to sell again within Pennsylvania, or transport and sell beyond the state, is true. That some of the coal was intended for local consumption may also be true. But the general market contemplated was the market at tide water, and the sales were made upon the basis of the average price at tide water. The mere fact that the sales and deliveries took place in Pennsylvania is not controlling when, as here, the expectation was that the coal would, for the most part, fall into and become a part of the well-known current of commerce between 368]the mines and the *general consuming markets of other states. "Commerce among the states is not a technical legal conception, but a practical one, drawn from the course of business." Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 396, 398, 49 L. ed. 524, 525, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815. The purchase and delivery within the state was but one step in a plan and purpose to control and dominate trade and commerce in other states for an illegal purpose. As was said by the Chief Justice, in Loewe v. Lawlor, cited above:

"Although some of the means whereby the interstate traffic was to be destroyed were acts within a state, and some of them were in themselves, as a part of their obvious purpose and effect, beyond the scope of Federal authority, still, as we have seen, the acts must be considered as a whole, and the plan is open to condemnation, notwithstanding a negligible amount of intrastate business might be affected in carrying it out. If the purposes of the combination were, as alleged, to prevent any interstate transportation at all, the fact that the means operated at one end before physical transportation commenced, and at the other end after the physical transportation ended, was immaterial."

The general view which this court took of the effect of these contracts upon interstate traffic in the coal of this region is indicated in Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 42, 48 L. ed. 860, 868, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563. The concerted plan concerned the relations of these railroads to their interstate commerce, and directly affected the transportation and sale and price of the coal in other states. The prime object in engaging in this scheme was not so much the control and sale of coal in Pennsylvania, but the control of sales at New York harbor.

That per cent of the average price at tide water retained by the buyer was assumed to cover the freight, waste, and cost of sale. There is evidence tending strongly to show that an independent accepting one of these contracts *realized slightly more than[369 he could realize if he had shipped and sold on his own account. This advanced price, therefore, as charged in the bill, constituted a great inducement to draw the independents within the control of the defendants, and makes it highly probable that. if not enjoined, they will absorb the entire independent output.

The defendants insist that these contracts were but the outgrowth of conditions peculiar to the anthracite coal region, and are not unreasonably in restraint of competition, but mutually advantageous to buyer and seller.

That the act of Congress does not forbid or restrain the power to make normal and usual contracts to further trade by resorting to all normal methods, whether by agreement or otherwise, to accomplish such purpose, was pointed out in the Standard Oil Case, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502. In that case it was also said that the words "restraint of trade" should be given a meaning which would not destroy the individual right of contract, and render difficult, if not impossible, any movement of trade in the character of interstate commerce, the free movement of which it was the purpose of the statute to protect. We reaffirm this view of the plain meaning of the statute, and in so doing limit ourselves to the inquiry as to whether this plan or system of contracts entered into according to a concerted scheme does not operate to unduly suppress competition and restrain freedom of commerce among the states.

Before these contracts there existed not only the power to compete, but actual competition between the coal of the independents and that produced by the buying defendants. Such competition was, after the contracts, impracticable. It is, of course, obvious that the law may not compel competition between these independent coal operators and the defendants, but it may at [370] least *remove illegal barriers resulting from illegal agreements which will make such competition impracticable.

Whether a particular act, contract, or agreement was a reasonable and normal method in furtherance of trade and commerce may, in doubtful cases, turn upon the intent to be inferred from the extent of the control thereby secured over the commerce affected, as well as by the method which was used. Of course, if the necessary result is materially to restrain trade between the states, the intent with which the thing was done is of no consequence. But when there is only a probability, the intent to produce the consequences may become important. United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 394, 56 L. ed. 810, 813, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276.

In the instant case the extent of the control over the limited supply of anthracite coal by means of the great proportion theretofore owned or controlled by the defendant companies, and the extent of the control acquired over the independent output which constituted the only competing supply, affords evidence of an intent to suppress that competition, and of a purpose to unduly restrain the freedom of production, transportation, and sale of the article at tide water markets.

The case falls well within not only the Standard Oil & Tobacco Cases (221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632), but is of such an unreasonable character as to be within the authority of a long line of cases decided by this court. Among them we may cite: Northern Secur. Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 49 L. ed. 689, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; and the recent case of United States v. Union P. R. Co. 226 U. S. 61, ante, 124, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 53.

We are thus led to the conclusion that the defendants did combine for two distinct purposes,—first, by and through the instrumentality of the Temple Iron Company, *with the object of preventing the con-[371] struction of an independent and competing line of railway into the anthracite region; and, second, by and through the instrumentality of the 65 per cent contracts, with the purpose and design of controlling the sale of the independent output at tide water.

The acts and transactions which the bill avers to have been committed by some of the defendants in furtherance of the illegal plan and scheme of a general combination are these:

a. The absorption in January, 1898, of the New York, Susquehanna, & Western Railroad, through the purchase by the Erie Railroad of a large majority of its shares, whereby two lines of competing railroad came under one control and management.

b. The acquisition in 1901 of a controlling majority of the capital stock of the Central Railroad of New Jersey by the Reading Company, which then owned the entire capital stock of the Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company and the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company, "thereby uniting and bringing together under a common head and source of control the said Philadelphia & Reading Railway Company and Central Railroad Company of New Jersey, operating parallel and competitive lines of railroad, and the said Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron Company and Lehigh & Wilkesbarre Coal Company," theretofore owned and controlled by the Central Railroad of New Jersey, thereby destroying competition between former competing carriers and coal-producing companies.

c. The absorption in 1899 by the Erie Railroad Company of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, thereby acquiring the stock control of the Erie & Wyoming Railroad Company and of the Delaware Valley & Kingston Railroad, thus defeating a projected construction of the last-named railroad.

*These were all minor combinations [372] in which only some of the defendants participated. The accomplishment of these several subordinate transactions only completed one or another of the several groups of carriers and coal-producing companies, which several groups thereafter not only possessed of the power to compete with every other group, but, as we have already seen, were actually engaged in competing, one with another, prior to the general combination through the Temple Iron Company and the 65 per cent contract scheme.

So far as this record shows, not one of these transactions was the result of any general combination between all of the defendants, and constituted no part of any such general combination. None of the defendants had any part or lot in bringing them about except the particular combining companies.

It is true that the bill asks injunctions against the continuance of each of these minor combinations. But if, as we conclude, they did not constitute any part of any general plan or combination entered into by all of the carrier companies, their separate consideration as independent violations of the act of Congress is not admissible under the general frame of this bill. To treat the bill as one seeking to apply the prohibition of the act of Congress to each one of these independent combinations would condemn the pleading as a plain misjoinder of parties and of causes of suit, and a plain confession of multifariousness. All of the defendants had a common interest in the defense of the Temple Iron Company combination, and that of the 65 per cent contracts, because it was alleged that all had joined therein. But all of the defendants did not have a common interest in the defense of these three minor combinations, unless it appear that they were, as charged, "steps," or acts and agreements in furtherance of the general combination to which they were all parties. This we find not to be 373]the fact. If, therefore, we shall *treat the bill as broad enough to involve combinations which were not steps or acts in furtherance of any general combination, we shall overrule the objection of multifariousness, made below and here, for we shall then maintain a bill setting up three separate and distinct causes of action against the distinct groups of defendants, one having no interest in or connection with the other. The grounds of each suit would be different and the parties defending different. See the discussion and cases cited in Simkins, Fed. Eq. Suit, pp. 290, et seq.

Having failed to show that these minor combinations were acts in furtherance of the general scheme, or the acts of the combiners in the two combinations condemned, we are asked to deal with them as separate illegal combinations by such of the defendants as participated. This the court below declined to do, and we in this find no error.

As to the legality of the minor combinations, we therefore express no opinion. We affirm the action of the court below in declining to enjoin them, because to construe the bill as directed against them as independent combinations, between some, but not all, of the principal defendants, would make the pleading objectionably multifarious. We therefore direct that the bill be dismissed, without prejudice, in so far as it seeks relief against the three alleged minor combinations.

The decree of the court below is affirmed as to the Temple Iron Company combination. It is reversed as to the 65 per cent contracts, and the case will be remanded with direction to enter a decree canceling each of these contracts, and perpetually enjoining their further execution, and for such proceedings as are in conformity with this opinion.

Mr. Justice Day, Mr. Justice Hughes, and Mr. Justice Pitney did not participate in the consideration or decision of this case.

---

*SARAH K. McLEAN, Widow of[374
Nathaniel H. McLean, Appt.,
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 374-383.)

Claims — cumulative jurisdiction.

1. Jurisdiction of the court of claims to entertain a claim against the United States under a private relief act was not excluded because that statute directed the proper accounting officers to settle and adjust the claim.

[For other cases, see Claims, 97-100, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — construction — committee reports.

2. The reports of committees of the House of Representatives and the Senate may be consulted as an aid to ascertaining the motive of Congress in passing a statute.

[For other cases, see Statutes, 154-160, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Army — pay — emoluments — reinstatement.

3. Commutation for forage for two horses, actually kept and used by an ex-Army officer after his resignation from the Army, and servants' pay for not more than two servants in his private employ, are embraced in the private relief act of February 24, 1905 (33 Stat. at L. 806, chap. 777), by which the proper accounting officers were directed to settle and adjust to the widow of such officer all back pay and emoluments which would have been due and payable to him from the date of his resignation to the date of his reinstatement, since these are "emoluments" to which he would have been entitled, under the acts of March 30, 1814 (3 Stat. at L. 114, chap. 37), April 24, 1816 (3 Stat. at L. 299, chap. 69), July 17, 1862 (12 Stat. at L. 594, chap. 200), and March 3, 1865 (13 Stat. at L. 487, chap. 79), had he remained in actual service.

[For other cases, see Army and Navy, VI. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 33.]

Argued November 6, 1912. Decided December 23, 1912.

APPEAL from the Court of Claims to review a judgment granting a part of the relief claimed under a private relief act. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 45 Ct. Cl. 95.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Archibald King argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

The statute is remedial in character, and should be liberally construed.

Collins v. United States, 14 Ct. Cl. 568, 15 Ct. Cl. 22; Kilburn v. United States, 15 Ct. Cl. 41; Jones v. United States, 4 Ct. Cl. 197.

"Emoluments" is a most comprehensive term.

Apple v. Crawford, 105 Pa. 300, 51 Am. Rep. 205; Reg. v. Postmaster General, L. R. 3 Q. B. Div. 428, 47 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 435, 38 L. T. N. S. 89, 26 Week. Rep. 322; Hoyt v. United States, 10 How. 109, 135, 13 L. ed. 348, 359.

These allowances were more than reimbursement.

United States v. Temple, 105 U. S. 97, 26 L. ed. 967; Thomas v. United States, 38 Ct. Cl. 70; Reichherzer v. United States, 43 Ct. Cl. 359.

Reference to congressional reports was proper.

Church of The Holy Trinity v. United States, 143 U. S. 457, 36 L. ed. 226, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 511; Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U. S. 320, 333, 53 L. ed. 1013, 1019, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 671; Northern P. R. Co. v. Washington, 222 U. S. 370, 380, 56 L. ed. 237, 240, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 160; Bate Refrigerating Co. v. Sulzberger, 157 U. S. 1, 40, 39 L. ed. 601, 612, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 508; The Delaware, 161 U. S. 459, 472, 40 L. ed. 771, 776, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 516; Buttfield v. Stranahan, 192 U. S. 470, 495, 48 L. ed. 525, 535, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 349; Binns v. United States, 194 U. S. 486, 495, 48 L. ed. 1087, 1090, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 816.

The accounting officers' action was not conclusive.

Thomas v. United States, 16 Ct. Cl. 522; Reed v. United States, 11 Wall. 591, 20 L. ed. 220; Shaw v. United States, 93 U. S. 235, 23 L. ed. 880; Smithmeyer v. United States, 147 U. S. 342, 37 L. ed. 196, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321; United States v. Harmon, 147 U. S. 268, 37 L. ed. 164, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 327; Wisconsin C. R. Co. v. United States, 164 U. S. 190, 205, 41 L. ed. 399, 404, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Medbury v. United States, 173 U. S. 492, 43 L. ed. 779, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 503; United States v. Jordan, 113 U. S. 418, 28 L. ed. 1013, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585, affirming 19 Ct. Cl. 120; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 166 U. S. 468, 41 L. ed. 1081, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 619, affirming 32 Ct. Cl. 207; Vigo's Case (Ex parte United States) 21 Wall. 648, 22 L. ed. 690; Huffman v. United States, 17 Ct. Cl. 55; Blount v. United States, 21 Ct. Cl. 274; Sowle v. United States, 38 Ct. Cl. 525; Miller v. United States, 34 Ct. Cl. 335; Pursell v. United States, 46 Ct. Cl. 509; Bogert v. United States, 3 Ct. Cl. 18; Thomas v. United States, 16 Ct. Cl. 522; Longwill v. United States, 17 Ct. Cl. 288; Webster v. United States, 32 Ct. Cl. 362; Hardie v. United States, 39 Ct. Cl. 250; Cox v. United States, 41 Ct. Cl. 86; United States v. Shipley, 116 C. C. A. 627, 197 Fed. 265.

The words "settle and adjust" in the act now to be construed mean the same thing as they mean in U. S. Rev. Stat. § 236, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 130; namely, that the proper auditor shall make what is known in departmental language as a "settlement;" i. e., a debit and credit statement of account.

The Abbotsford, 98 U. S. 440, 25 L. ed. 168; Kepner v. United States, 195 U. S. 100, 124, 49 L. ed. 114, 122, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 797, 1 Ann. Cas. 655.

Mr. William W. Scott argued the cause, and, with Mr. John Q. Thompson, Assistant Attorney General, filed a brief for appellee:

This court will not go behind the findings of fact as made by the court of claims, and will not consider the evidence upon which they were founded.

De Groot v. United States, 5 Wall. 419, 18 L. ed. 700; 17 Wall. XVII, 20 L. ed. 910; Desmare v. United States, 93 U. S. 605, 23 L. ed. 959; Carver v. United States, 111 U. S. 609, 28 L. ed. 540, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 561; Union P. R. Co. v. United States, 116 U. S. 154, 29 L. ed. 584, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 325; Sisseton & W. Sioux Indians v. United States, 208 U. S. 561, 566, 52 L. ed. 621, 623, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 352; Sac. & F. Indians v. Sac. & F. Indians, 220 U. S. 481, 55 L. ed. 552, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 473.

The finding and conclusion reached by the accounting officers of the Treasury is final and conclusive, and the court of claims was without authority to review it.

United States v. California & O. Land Co. 148 U. S. 31, 43, 37 L. ed. 354, 360, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 458; Foley v. Harrison, 15 How. 433, 446, 14 L. ed. 761, 766; Steel v. St. Louis Smelting & Ref. Co. 106 U. S. 447–451, 27 L. ed. 226–228, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 389; Adams Exp. Co. v. Ohio State Auditor, 165 U. S. 194, 229, 41 L. ed. 683, 698, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 305; Marshall v. United States, 21

Ct. Cl. 307; Plummer v. United States, 24 Ct. Cl. 517; United States ex rel. Parish v. MacVeagh, 214 U. S. 124, 53 L. ed. 936, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 556; United States v. Behan, 110 U. S. 338, 28 L. ed. 168, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 81.

An officer resigning is not entitled to commutation of allowances.

United States v. Sweet, 189 U. S. 471, 47 L. ed. 907, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 638.

An Army officer at his own home, awaiting orders, and having no public duty to perform, has been held not entitled to commutation for quarters or fuel.

United States v. Phisterer, 94 U. S. 219, 24 L. ed. 116.

What are pay and emoluments?

Sherburne's Case, 16 Ct. Cl. 490; Wilson v. United States, 44 Ct. Cl. 428.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

The question in the case is the extent of relief to which appellant is entitled under the following act of Congress, passed February 24, 1905:

377] *"That the proper accounting officers be, and they are hereby, directed to settle and adjust to Sarah K. McLean, widow of the late Lieutenant Colonel Nathaniel H. McLean, all back pay and emoluments that would have been due and payable to the said Nathaniel H. McLean as a major from July twenty-third, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, to the date of his reinstatement, March third, eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and that the amount found due by said adjustment is hereby appropriated, to be paid out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated." 33 Stat. at L. 806, chap. 777.

McLean entered the United States Military Academy July 1, 1844, graduated therefrom, and was appointed brevet second lieutenant in the Army July 1, 1848, and served until the year 1864, when, having attained the rank of major and assistant adjutant general, he resigned, his resignation being accepted July 23, 1864. By act of March 3, 1875 (18 Stat. at L. chap. 187, p. 515), Congress authorized the President to appoint Major McLean to fill the first vacancy which might occur in the lowest grade of the adjutant general's department, "or, if he shall deem it best, to reinstate and retire him with the rank to which he would have attained in service at the date of the passage of this act." Under this authority Major McLean was reinstated and placed on the retired list as lieutenant colonel and assistant adjutant general, to rank from March 3, 1875. He continued in that rank until his death, which occurred June 28, 1884. From the date of the acceptance of his resignation, July 23, 1864, to the date of his reinstatement, March 3, 1875, he received no pay. This interval is provided for by the act of February 24, 1905, supra.

Under that act appellant presented a claim to the Auditor of the War Department, who allowed her pay and personal subsistence which would have been due her husband from the date of the acceptance of his resignation, *July 23, 1864, to[378 the date of his reinstatement, March 3, 1875, but disallowed a claim made by her for forage and servants' pay. The disallowance was confirmed by the Comptroller of the Treasury. This action was then brought in the court of claims. The court sustained the accounting officers as to forage and servants' pay, saying: "As an officer of his grade, plaintiff's intestate was entitled to two servants and to forage for two horses had he remained in the military service. But the officer resigned, and such voluntary retirement from the service operated to deprive the officer, by his own act, of the opportunity to draw the allowances incident to the keep of two servants and two horses." As to those two items the petition was dismissed. The court, however, decided that the claim for a ration is analogous to longevity pay and is on a different basis. The court said: "The officer, by the act of reinstatement, became entitled to compensation for and during the whole period of service, with the consequent ration increase incident to the services supposed to have been rendered for the time set forth in the petition. It is all, strictly speaking, 'pay proper' . . . This entitles the plaintiff to $682.75 in addition to the amount allowed by the accounting officers." Judgment was ordered and entered for that sum. 45 Ct. Cl. 95.

The jurisdiction of the court of claims to entertain the action was attacked in that court and is attacked here, the contention being that the act for the relief of appellant "constituted the accounting officers, and not the courts, the tribunal to settle the accounts." The court ruled against the contention, and rightly. It is not necessary to repeat its reasoning. The duties of the accounting officers were, as the court said, administrative, not judicial, and as the rights of appellant arose under an act of Congress, the court had jurisdiction to determine them. Medbury v. United States, 173 U. S. 492, 43 L. ed. 779, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 503.

Upon the merits certain acts of Congress besides that *for the relief of appellant[379 are pertinent to be considered.

The act of July 17, 1862 (12 Stat. at L. 594, chap. 200), provides that majors shall be entitled to draw forage in kind for two horses, and that in case forage in kind cannot be furnished by the proper department, officers may commute the same according to existing regulations. The act of April 24, 1816, § 12 (3 Stat. at L. 299, chap. 69), fixes the money value of forage at $8 per month for each horse when the same shall be commuted. But it is provided "that neither forage nor money shall be drawn by officers but for horses actually kept by them in the service." The act of July 15, 1870 (16 Stat. at L. 320, chap. 294), provides a new pay system for officers of the Army, abolishing commuted forage and all such emoluments by including them in pay proper.

Under the acts of March 30, 1814, §§ 9 and 10 (3 Stat. at L. 114, chap. 37), April 24, 1816, supra and March 3, 1865 (13 Stat. at L. 487, chap. 79), and the Army Regulations in force from July 24, 1864, to July 14, 1870, there would have been due and payable to McLean, as an emolument in the grade of major, servants' pay and allowance for as many servants, not exceeding two, as were actually kept by him at his expense, at the rate of pay, ration, and clothing allowance of a private soldier in the Army for each servant so kept. By other acts of Congress commissioned officers other than general officers were entitled to receive one additional ration per diem for every five years of service, which had a commuted value at various sums until July 28, 1867, when it became 30 cents.

The court of claims found that from the date of the acceptance of McLean's resignation until September 23, 1864, he had one servant in his employment on the trip from Portland, Oregon, the place of his resignation, to his home in Cincinnati, Ohio,—time, two months. From the latter date to July 14, 380]1870, inclusive, he had servants in *his private employ, but how many is not satisfactorily established from the evidence. The servants were not enlisted men of, or connected with, the Army. From the dates before mentioned he owned two horses, one used occasionally for a saddle horse, but they were generally used for his private carriage.

The question, then, is whether, under the facts as found and the acts of Congress above stated in regard to officers' pay and allowance and the act for the relief of appellant, she is entitled to the commuted value of forage which would have been due and payable to her husband as a major from September 24, 1864, to July 14, 1870, and servants' pay. Urging the negative of the question, and in support of the decision of the court of claims, it is contended that, for the period specified, McLean was not in the service of the United States, and therefore did not have, and could not have had, any horses or servants "actually kept in service" by him, as required by the act of April 24, 1816, supra. To the contention appellant opposes the purpose and words of the statute. She asserts that the prompting of the act was to repair an injustice done to Major McLean, and, to support the assertion, she refers to the reports of the committees of the House of Representatives and that of the Senate, Fifty-third Congress. The reference is justified (Oceanic Steam Nav. Co. v. Stranahan, 214 U. S. 320, 333, 53 L. ed. 1013, 1019, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 671; Northern P. R. Co. v. Washington, 222 U. S. 370, 380, 56 L. ed. 237, 240, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 160), and gives support to the contention that the circumstances which preceded and provoked Major McLean's resignation appealed to Congress, and to redress its consequences Congress authorized his reinstatement, and, to make it complete, passed the act of February 24, 1905.

It certainly may be assumed that the act was not a simple gratuity. Public moneys are not appropriated as mere gifts. They are appropriated in recognition and reward of merit or in recompense for service, or, as it may *be inferred in the present case,[381 reparation for injustice done. Keeping this in mind, the extent of the relief granted to appellant may be determined. Indeed, the plain directness of the act of Congress leaves nothing to interpretation. The proper accounting officers are directed to settle and account to her "all back pay and emoluments that would have been due and payable" to her husband as a major of the United States Army from July 23, 1864, to March 3, 1875. The words are all-comprehensive. They embrace all the compensation, perquisites, and dues to which he was entitled as an officer. About back pay there is no question. The accounting officers allowed the pay of the designated rank and the personal subsistence which would have been due and payable to the deceased officer. The court of claims extended the definition of "pay" somewhat farther, and included in it "ration increase incident to the service supposed to have been rendered for the time set forth in the petition." And, necessarily, for "service supposed" is the attribution of the act of Congress, not service rendered or possible to be rendered. But the supposition which is made efficient to give pay is sought to be halted at "emoluments," and the contention is advanced, as we have seen, that they must be considered as including only allowances or reimbursement for expenses actually incurred while in the service of the United States. The contention is not justified. The act, in order to make its relief complete, treats the officer and compensates him as though he had been in actual service from the date of his retirement to the date of his reinstatement. It is in this aspect that we must apply it. He is to be regarded for the time stated to have been in the Army of the United States, entitled to pay, entitled to emoluments, the latter as much as the former. The words of the statute make no distinction between them. Whatever is directed to be settled—pay or emoluments—is for compensation, not for actual serv-

382]ice, but for attributed *service. This, we repeat, is the scheme of the statute and the test of its application. It is difficult to deal with a distinction between pay and emoluments. Both are rewards or compensation, the one no more than the other, for "service supposed." To say that one is certain and the other contingent has no meaning in the situation of Major McLean. He could not have performed the condition upon which either depended under the then-existing law, and to distinguish between them notwithstanding is to enter a maze of irrelevant considerations. The enactment is—and we return to it as its own best interpreter—"that the proper accounting officers be, and they are hereby, directed to settle and adjust to Sarah K. McLean, widow of the late Lieutenant Colonel Nathaniel H. McLean, all back pay and emoluments that would have been due and payable" to him "as major, from July 23, 1864, to the date of his reinstatement, March 3, 1875. . . ." It is manifest that the supposition of service by the officer is attributed to both pay and emoluments. Under that supposition, what essential difference is there between them? Pay and emoluments are but expressions of value used to give complete recompense to a deserving officer. Their association was deliberate; emoluments were additive to pay, and the direction as to them is as substantive as the direction as to it, and qualified by no other condition. Of what consequence, then, how they may be defined? They may be called "indirect or contingent remuneration," as they have been called; it may be said, as it has been said, that "they are sometimes in the nature of compensation and sometimes in the nature of reimbursement." But, however they be defined, Congress has granted them, and advisedly, knowing Major McLean's situation, knowing that they included allowance for servants and forage for horses, and knowing that while the servants and horses could not have been used by him in the service of the United States, 383]they could *have been used, as they were used, and ascribed to that service.
384

With this knowledge and with full understanding of what it was doing, Congress directed the accounting officers "to settle and adjust all back pay and emoluments." To decide otherwise is to say that Congress gave a right and took it away at one and the same instant; or, in some confusion of mind, intended to withhold it by using the aptest word to confer it.

The government realizes the situation and attempts to explain or escape it. Its argument is somewhat peculiar. Its contention is that Major McLean, by his resignation, "must be considered as having intentionally [and the word is especially emphasized] placed himself without the service of the United States," and so, having voluntarily separated himself from the servvice, he was, and his widow is, unable to furnish the certificate required by statute to secure commutation for forage and servants' pay. Of course, he was out of the Army. If he had not been out of the Army there would have been no necessity for the act of Congress; and we cannot consider the condition which made the act necessary a reason for defeating it. The plain motive of the act exposes the weakness of the contention. If we keep in mind the purpose which impelled the enactment in behalf of Mrs. McLean, we will have no difficulty in deciding how adequate its language is to accomplish it. "All back . . . emoluments" are the words used. "All" excludes the idea of limitation, and the word "emoluments" is the most adequate that could have been used. It especially expresses the perquisites of an office, and its use in conjunction with "pay" makes the restitution of the statute complete.

Judgment dismissing the petition as to forage and servants' pay reversed, and the case remanded for further proceedings in accordance with this opinion.

---

*WALLACE WOOD, JR., Trustee in[384
Bankruptcy of Edward D. Leche, Appt.,
v.
A. WILBERT'S SONS SHINGLE & LUMBER COMPANY and Frederic Wilbert.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 384–390.)

Appeal — questions not raised below — necessity of assigning error.

1. Objections not made in the court below, or not assigned as error on appeal, cannot be considered in the appellate court. [For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 3577–3594, 4507–4520, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Bankruptcy — jurisdiction — adverse suit — consent of defendant.

2. The consent of the defendant is still essential to sustain the jurisdiction of a Federal district court of a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover the property of the bankrupt in the possession of a third person, under a conveyance which was neither given as a preference nor, assuming it to be fraudulent, made within four months of the bankruptcy proceedings, notwithstanding the changes made by the act of February 5, 1903 (32 Stat. at L. 797, chap. 487, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1493), in the bankrupt act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 544, chap. 541, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3418), by adding to § 23b, which requires such consent, the words, "except suits for the recovery of property under § 60, subdivision b, and § 67, subdivision e," which sections relate to preferential or fraudulent conveyances made within four months of the bankruptcy proceeding, and amending § 70e, so as to give the bankruptcy court concurrent jurisdiction with the state courts of suits by the trustee to set aside any transfer which any creditor might have avoided, since these provisions must be construed to confer jurisdiction of the subject-matter of the suit, but not of the person of the defendant.

[For other cases, see Bankruptcy, 19-23, 35-47, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 61.]

Argued December 5, 1912. Decided December 23, 1912.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Louisiana to review a decree dismissing, for the want of jurisdiction over the defendant, a suit by a trustee in bankruptcy to recover property of the bankrupt in the possession of a third person. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Benjamin Rice Forman argued the cause, and, with Mr. William Lee Hughes, filed a brief for appellant.

Mr. Clarence Samuel Hebert argued the cause, and, with Mr. Walter Guion, filed a brief for appellees.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

385] *The case is here on a question of jurisdiction. Appellant brought suit in the district court November 3, 1909, as trustee of one Edward Douglas Leche, to set aside a sale of lands made by Leche to appellee, A. Wilbert's Sons Shingle & Lumber Company, herein called the shingle and lumber company, and to account for the rents thereof or the proceeds of the land that may have been sold, and to otherwise render a full account to appellant of the transactions with Leche, individually or otherwise.

Appellees, on the 3d of December, 1909, filed an exception to the jurisdiction of the court, alleging as cause thereof that they were domiciled in the parish of Iberville, and that the court was without jurisdiction over their persons and over the subject-matter of the litigation. A demurrer to like effect was filed on the 10th of December, and stated that it was "by way of amendment to the form of demurrer filed herein on December 3, 1909."

The demurrer was sustained. The court said: "From the oral argument and brief filed it is evident the trustee brings his action under the provisions of § 70, subdivision e, of the bankruptcy act, and the bill does not disclose any cause of action under either § 60, subdivision b, or § 67, subdivision e; and therefore, by virtue of the authority of Hull v. Burr, 83 C. C. A. 61, 153 Fed. 945, this court has no jurisdiction to entertain the suit except by the consent of the defendants." The bill was dismissed without prejudice to complainant.

The certificate of the judge recites that the sole question decided by him and certified to this court was whether or not the district court "has jurisdiction in behalf of the trustee in bankruptcy to recover assets of the bankrupt from a third person under a revocatory action allowed under the law of Louisiana, of an insolvent, without the consent of the defendant, under the bankrupt act as amended in 1903 [32 Stat. at L. 797, chap. 487, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1493]."

There are some minor questions presented by the brief *of counsel of which we[386 must first dispose. It was contended in the court below that the appellees, by entering a formal appearance, waived their right to object to the jurisdiction. But they at the same time filed an exception to the jurisdiction, and the district court decided that the two papers should be considered together, and, so considering them, held that they could not be regarded as a consent on the part of the defendants to submit themselves to the jurisdiction of the court. The ruling is not assigned as error. It is urged further that neither the exception nor the demurrer complied with the thirty-first equity rule, in that the appellees did not make affidavit that they were not interposed for delay. It is sufficient to answer that the objection was not made in the court below and is not assigned as error on this appeal. We therefore pass to the consideration of the question certified.

The bill charges with much circumstantial detail, which it is not possible to briefly state or analyze, that the lumber and shingle company and its president, Frederic Wilbert, had entered into a conspiracy with the bankrupt and certain other parties by which, on June 6, 1906, the shingle and lumber company acquired title to certain plantations belonging to the bankrupt, situated in the parish of Iberville, Louisiana. The purpose of the conspiracy, it is charged, was to conceal from his creditors the bankrupt's assets and property, and to protect them from the pursuit of his creditors, with the understanding that when he got his discharge in bankruptcy the property was to be transferred to him. It was prayed that the sale to be set aside and the defendants be decreed to convey the lands to complainant in trust for the creditors of the bankrupt. Without further detail of the bill, we shall assume, for the purpose of the consideration of the question, that it states facts sufficient to constitute a ground of relief if the court have jurisdiction.

387] *The bankruptcy act is very comprehensive of the whole subject of bankruptcy. It creates courts of bankruptcy and is full in its provisions for the collection and preservation of the estate of the bankrupt through trustees appointed by creditors, who are given power to bring suits to recover the property of the bankrupt which has been conveyed by him in fraud of his creditors, or to give a preference to any of them; the purpose of the act being to secure an equality of distribution of the assets of the bankrupt among his creditors.

Section 23a gives jurisdiction of such suits to the circuit courts of the United States which involve controversies at law or in equity, as distinguished from proceedings in bankruptcy, "in the same manner and to the same extent only as though bankruptcy proceedings had not been instituted, and such controversies had been between the bankrupts" and the "adverse claimants." [30 Stat. at L. 552, chap. 541, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1499]. By subdivision b of § 23 it is provided that suits by the trustee shall only be brought or prosecuted where the bankrupt might have brought or prosecuted them if proceedings in bankruptcy had not been instituted, unless by consent of the proposed defendant; "except suits for the recovery of property under § 60, subdivision b, and § 67 subdivision e." The words in italics were added as amendment by act of February 5, 1903, chap. 487, § 8, 32 Stat. at L. 797, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1493. Upon them the question in the case turns. Prior to the amendment, and passing on § 23 as originally enacted, this court decided in Bardes v. First Nat. Bank, 178 U. S. 524, 44 L. ed. 1175, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1000, that that section controlled and limited the jurisdiction of all courts over suits brought by trustees to collect debts due from third parties, or to set aside transfers of property to third parties, alleged to be fraudulent against creditors, and that the district courts of the United States could, by the proposed defendant's consent, but not otherwise, entertain jurisdiction of such suits. Harris v. First Nat. Bank, 216 U. S. 382, 54 L. ed. 528, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 296.

*What, then, is the effect of the[388 amendment? Section 60 defines what shall constitute a preference, with provisions for preventing or defeating them. Section 67 is concerned with liens, their extent, limitation, and regulation. By subdivision b of § 60 it is provided that a conveyance of property by the bankrupt within four months before the filing of a petition in bankruptcy, or after the filing or before adjudication, for the purpose of giving preference to a creditor, shall be voidable by the trustee, and he may recover the property or its value from the creditor. Subdivision e of § 67 relates to conveyances made by the bankrupt within four months prior to filing the petition, with the intention and purpose to hinder, delay, or defraud his creditors. It is provided that such conveyance shall be null and void except as to purchasers in good faith and for a present fair consideration. The property so conveyed is declared to be part of the assets of the bankrupt's estate, and it is made the duty of the trustee to recover and reclaim the same by legal proceedings or otherwise for the benefit of the creditors. It is also provided that conveyances and transfers void as against creditors by the laws of the state, territory, or district in which the property is situated shall be deemed null and void against the creditors of the bankrupt, and to be recovered by the trustee. By an amendment of 1903 (32 Stat. at L. 800, chap. 487, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1506), it was provided that, for the purpose of such recovery, any court of bankruptcy and any state court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened shall have concurrent jurisdiction. The present suit does not fall within either of the sections or either of the subdivisions. The conveyance sought to be set aside was not given as a preference within the meaning of the law, nor was it, assuming it to have been fraudulent, made within four months of the filing of the petition in bankruptcy. The same limitation of time would apply even if the transfer of the property or any of the transactions 389]connected with *it might be regarded, in some of their aspects, as giving a preference, as counsel suggest that they might be so regarded.

Subdivision e of § 70 is invoked as sustaining the jurisdiction of the district court. That subdivision provides that the trustee may avoid any transfer made by the bankrupt of his property which any creditor might have avoided, and may recover it unless the purchaser was a bona fide holder for value prior to the date of adjudication. This was the provision of the section as originally enacted. In 1903 these words were added: "And for the purpose of such recovery, any court of bankruptcy, as hereinbefore defined, and any state court which would have had jurisdiction if bankruptcy had not intervened, shall have concurrent jurisdiction." 32 Stat. at L. 800, chap. 487, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1506. The language of the amendment seems to have no limitation, except that the transfer must be one which any creditor could avoid, and, giving it such generality, the question occurs, can it be reconciled with § 23, subdivisions a and b? The amendment was a part of the same act and passed at the same time that the amendment to subdivision b of § 23 was, and we must assume that they were intended not to conflict, but to be in accord, as provisions for different situations. In other words, that it was the intention that each should have its proper application, distinct from and harmonious with that of the other. Such application is observed by distinguishing between jurisdiction over the subject-matter and jurisdiction over the person, as pointed out by the circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit in Hull v. Burr, 83 C. C. A. 61, 153 Fed. 945, approving and following Gregory v. Atkinson, 127 Fed. 185. In other words, the respective sections and their subdivisions confer jurisdiction on the designated courts so far as it is dependent upon the character of the suits, but when the condition expressed in subdivision b of § 23 exists, the consent of the defendant determines the court, except when the suit is "for the re-390]covery of property *under § 60, subdivision b, and § 67, subdivision e." These special exceptions exclude any other. And this is the view of the respective sections and their relation expressed in Skewis v. Barthell, 152 Fed. 534; Palmer v. Roginsky, 175 Fed. 883; Parker v. Sherman, 195 Fed. 648. Contra: Hurley v. Devlin, 149 Fed. 268.

Judgment affirmed.

HENRY G. DARNELL,† Executor of the Estate of Isaac M. Darnell, Deceased, and Walter S. Darnell, Plffs. in Err.,

v.

STATE OF INDIANA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 390-398.)

Statutes — who may assail validity.

1. A resident owner of shares in a foreign corporation which has no taxable property in the state cannot complain that the provisions of Burns's Anno. Stat. (Ind.) 1908, §§ 10,143, 10,233, 10,234, for the taxation of such shares, deny the equal protection of the laws because they make no allowance, as they do in the case of domestic corporations, where the corporation has property taxed within the state.

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. d, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — equal protection of the laws — taxing shares of foreign corporation.

2. Taxing shares of foreign corporations when owned by inhabitants of the state, as is done by Burns's Anno. Stat. (Ind.) §§ 10,143, 10,233, 10,234, does not deny the owner the equal protection of the laws because, in the case of domestic corporations, it is the property, and not the shares, which is taxed.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 299-312, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — state taxation — shares of foreign corporation.

3. Taxation of shares in foreign corporations, owned by inhabitants of the state, as is done by Burns's Anno. Stat. (Ind.) §§ 10,143, 10,233, 10,234, while shares in domestic corporations are only taxable when the property of the corporation is not exempt, and not taxable to the corporation itself, does not violate the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution.

[For other cases, see Commerce, III. d., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 78.]

Argued December 9, 1912. Decided December 23, 1912.

†Appearance of W. S. Darnell, administrator, etc., of the estate of Isaac M. Darnell, deceased, filed and entered on December 9, 1912.

NOTE.—Who may raise objection that a statute contains an unconstitutional discrimination—see note to Pugh v. Pugh, 32 L.R.A.(N.S.) 954.

Taxation of capital stock of corporations in the United States—see note to State Bd. of Equalization v. People, 58 L.R.A. 513.

Constitutional equality in the United States in relation to corporate taxation—see note to Bacon v. State Tax Comrs. 60 L.R.A. 321.

Corporate taxation and the commerce clause—see note to Sandford v. Poe, 60 L.R.A. 641.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Indiana to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Marion Circuit Court, enforcing a tax on the shares of stock in a foreign corporation, owned by a resident of the state. Affirmed.

See same case below, 174 Ind. 143, 90 N. E. 769.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Joseph F. Cowern argued the cause, and, with Mr. Merrill Moores, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

Shares of stock in a corporation are property. The owner of such shares owns and holds them as property, separate and distinct from the capital stock and tangible property of the corporation.

Seward v. Rising Sun, 79 Ind. 351; Darnell v. State, 174 Ind. 143, 90 N. E. 769; Hasely v. Ensley, 40 Ind. App. 598, 82 N. E. 809; Bank of Commerce v. Tennessee, 161 U. S. 134, 146, 40 L. ed. 645, 649, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 456; Farrington v. Tennessee, 95 U. S. 679, 687, 24 L. ed. 558, 561.

As such shares have a value independent of the party owning them, and are transported, held, bought, sold, and taxed like other property, they are subjects of interstate commerce.

Paul v. Virginia, 8 Wall. 168, 19 L. ed. 357; Farrington v. Tennessee, 95 U. S. 679, 687, 24 L. ed. 558, 561; Bank of Commerce v. Tennessee, 161 U. S. 134, 146, 40 L. ed. 645, 649, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 456; People ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 184 N. Y. 431, 8 L.R.A.(N.S.) 314, 112 Am. St. Rep. 628, 77 N. E. 657, 6 Ann. Cas. 515, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 Ann. Cas. 736; Hasely v. Ensley, 40 Ind. App. 598, 82 N. E. 809; Lottery Case (Champion v. Ames) 188 U. S. 321, 47 L. ed. 492, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 321, 13 Am. Crim. Rep. 561; International Textbook Co. v. Pigg, 217 U. S. 91, 54 L. ed. 678, 27 L.R.A. (N.S.) 493, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 481, 18 Ann. Cas. 1103; Nathan v. Louisiana, 8 How. 73, 12 L. ed. 992; Judson, Interstate Commerce, §§ 9, 10.

When the statute of a state, as construed by the courts of that state, places a greater or more onerous burden upon property coming from a foreign state than is imposed upon like property of domestic origin, it is void in so far as it discriminates, because in conflict with the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States.

I. M. Darnell & Son Co. v. Memphis, 208 U. S. 113, 52 L. ed. 413, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 26 L. ed. 565; Guy v. Baltimore, 100 U. S. 434, 25 L. ed. 743; Walling v. Michigan, 116 U. S. 446, 29 L. ed. 691, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 454.

The protection afforded by the commerce clause of the Constitution is not withdrawn or suspended after the property of foreign origin has acquired a permanent situs in the state, and is commingled with and merged into the general mass of property therein. It continues until the commodity has ceased to be the subject of discriminating legislation by reason of its foreign character.

Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 347; I. M. Darnell & Son Co. v. Memphis, 208 U. S. 113, 52 L. ed. 413, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247.

The powers granted to the Federal government, and the corresponding limitations of the powers of the various states, are not confined to the instrumentalities of commerce known or in use when the Constitution was adopted They keep pace with the progress of the country, and adapt themselves to the new developments of time and circumstances.

Pensacola Teleg. Co. v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 96 U. S. 1, 24 L. ed. 708.

The commerce clause was made a part of the Constitution to insure, as nearly as was consistent with the reserved police powers of the states, absolute freedom of commercial intercourse within the boundaries of the United States. Under it the states are powerless to avail themselves of the protective principle or theory, directly or indirectly.

Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Guy v. Baltimore, 100 U. S. 434, 25 L. ed. 743; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 26 L. ed. 565; Walling v. Michigan, 116 U. S. 446, 29 L. ed. 691, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 454; Brown v. Houston, 114 U. S. 622, 29 L. ed. 257, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1091.

As the taxing statutes of Indiana, as construed by her courts, require all shares of stock in foreign corporations to be listed for taxation, while exempting from taxation like shares of stock in domestic corporations, they violate the commerce clause of the Constitution of the United States.

I. M. Darnell & Son Co. v. Memphis, 208 U. S. 113, 52 L. ed. 413, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Webber v. Virginia, 103 U. S. 344, 26 L. ed. 565; Guy v. Baltimore, 100 U. S. 434, 25 L. ed. 743; Walling v. Michigan, 116 U. S. 446, 29 L. ed. 691, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 454; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 6 L. ed. 23; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 49 L. ed. 471, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Brown v. Houston, 114 U. S. 622, 29 L. ed. 257, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1091.

The supreme court of Indiana has practically admitted that the taxing statutes of that state were so framed as to call into play the protective theory.

Cook v. Marion County, 175 Ind. 708, 92 N. E. 879.

And the Indiana appellate court has frankly stated, and the case has been expressly approved by the supreme court in Cook v. Marion County, supra, that the acts of the legislature manifest a clear intent and purpose to distinguish between shares of stock in a foreign corporation and shares of stock in a domestic corporation.

Hasely v. Ensley, 40 Ind. App. 598, 82 N. E. 809.

The question presented here was not raised, discussed, or decided in Kidd v. Alabama, 188 U. S. 730, 47 L. ed. 669, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401, or Wright v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 195 U. S. 219, 49 L. ed. 167, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 16.

While the equal protection clause of the Constitution permits classification for purposes of taxation, it forbids an arbitrary classification,—a classification without substantial basis. Like property under like circumstances and conditions must be treated alike, both in the privileges conferred and the liabilities imposed. Where an act of the legislature discriminates, it is void to that extent.

Southern R. Co. v. Greene, 216 U. S. 400, 54 L. ed. 536, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 287, 291, 19 Ann. Cas. 1247; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Barbier v. Connolly, 113 U. S. 27, 31, 28 L. ed. 923, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 357; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594, 33 L. ed. 1025, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593.

The case at bar is to be distinguished from the case of Kidd v. Alabama, 188 U. S. 730, 47 Sup. Ct. Rep. 669, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401, and Wright v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 195 U. S. 219, 49 L. ed. 167, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 16, upon two grounds: First, in those cases stock in foreign corporations was not required to be listed for taxation, if the foreign corporation was doing business and was taxed in the state whose statute was attacked, while under the Indiana statute all stock in foreign corporations must be listed. Second, in Indiana the manifest intent and purpose of the act is the development of home industries, not by legitimate inducements, but by discrimination carried so far as to even penalize the owners of stock in domestic corporations when such corporations go out of the state to do business.

Stroh v. Detroit, 131 Mich. 109, 90 N. W. 1029.

The mere fact that property is not actually moving in the channels of interstate commerce, or is not actually being offered for sale at the particular time that it is taxed, does not excuse a discriminating tax based upon its foreign origin; for even after it is at rest and has acquired a permanent situs, the constitutional protection continues until the commodity has ceased to be the subject of discriminating legislation by reason of its foreign character.

Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 347; I. M. Darnell & Sons Co. v. Memphis, 208 U. S. 113, 52 L. ed. 413, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Judson, Interstate Commerce, § 16.

The case at bar does not differ, so far as the principle involved is concerned, from State v. Zophy, 14 S. D. 119, 86 Am. St. Rep. 741, 84 N. W. 391.

Nothing could so disastrously affect commerce as a construction of the commerce clause that would impair its efficacy.

Philadelphia & S. Mail S. S. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 122 U. S. 326, 30 L. ed. 1200, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 308, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1118.

The fact that the act would have been valid if limited to the particular circumstances shown in the declaration did not prevent the railroad from taking advantage of the fact that the whole act was void because by general words it also embraced that which Congress had no power to regulate.

State v. Missouri P. R. Co. 212 Mo. 658, 111 S. W. 500; United States v. Ju Toy, 198 U. S. 253, 262, 49 L. ed. 1040, 1044, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Employers' Liability Cases (Howard v. Illinois C. R. Co.) 207 U. S. 463, 52 L. ed. 297, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Montgomery, 152 Ind. 1, 69 L.R.A. 875, 71 Am. St. Rep. 301, 49 N. E. 582; Ballard v. Mississippi Cotton Oil Co. 81 Miss. 507, 62 L.R.A. 407, 95 Am. St. Rep. 476, 34 So. 533; Baldwin v. Franks, 120 U. S. 685, 690, 30 L. ed. 768, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 656, 763; Illinois C. R. Co. v. McKendree, 203 U. S. 514, 51 L. ed. 298, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 153; State ex rel. Corwin v. Indiana & O. Oil, Gas, & Min. Co. 120 Ind. 575, 6 L.R.A. 579, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 758, 22 N. E. 778; Griffin v. State, 119 Ind. 520, 22 N. E. 7; Logan v. Stogsdale, 123 Ind. 372, 8 L.R.A. 58, 24 N. E. 135; State v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 136 Wis. 407, 19 L.R.A.(N.S.) 326, 117 N. W. 686; Poindexter v. Greenhow, 114 U. S. 270, 302, 29 L. ed. 185, 197, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 903, 962; United States v. Reese, 92 U. S. 214, 23 L. ed. 563; United States v. Steffens, 100 U. S. 82, 25 L. ed. 550; Spraigue v. Thompson, 118 U. S. 90, 94, 30 L. ed. 115, 116, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 988.

Mr. Morton S. Hawkins argued the cause, and Mr. Thomas H. Honan, Attorney General of Indiana, and Messrs. James E. McCullough, Edward B. Raub, and Martin M. Hugg, filed a brief for defendant in error:

A state has jurisdiction of all persons and things which do not belong to some other jurisdiction, such as the representatives of foreign governments, with their houses and effects, and property belonging to or in use by the United States, and such state may tax, as part of their general estate attached to their persons, its residents for personal property owned by them but situated within another state, even though the latter state also taxes such property.

Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 524, 29 L. ed. 715, 717, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Bonaparte v. Appeal Tax Court, 104 U. S. 592, 26 L. ed. 845.

The power of taxation, indispensable to the existence of every civilized government, is exercised upon the assumption of an equivalent rendered to the taxpayer in the protection of his person and property, in adding to the value of such property, or in the creation and maintenance of public conveniences in which he shares,—such, for instance, as roads, bridges, sidewalks, pavements, and schools for the education of his children.

Union Refrigerator Transit Co. v. Kentucky, 199 U. S. 194–202, 50 L. ed. 150–152, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 36, 4 Ann. Cas. 493.

In cases of intangible personal property, the tendency of modern authorities is to apply the maxim, Mobilia sequuntur personam, and to hold that such property may be taxed at the domicil of the owner as the real situs of the property.

Ibid.

A tax in the state of Tennessee is no tax in the state of Indiana.

Wright v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 195 U. S. 219–222, 49 L. ed. 167, 168, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 16; Kidd v. Alabama, 188 U. S. 730–733, 47 L. ed. 669–673, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401.

In corporations, four elements of taxable value are sometimes found: (1) Franchises; (2) capital stock in the hands of the corporation; (3) corporate property; and (4) shares of the capital stock in the hands of the individual stockholders.

Tennessee v. Whitworth, 117 U. S. 129–136, 29 L. ed. 830–832, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 645; New Orleans v. Houston, 119 U. S. 265–277, 30 L. ed. 411–414, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 198; Owensboro Nat. Bank v. Owensboro, 173 U. S. 664–682, 43 L. ed. 850, 857, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 537; Bank of Commerce v. Tennessee, 161 U. S. 134–146, 40 L. ed. 645–649, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 456.

The capital stock of a corporation is separable from the property of the corporation, and the stockholders may be taxed upon their stock as for any other property they may own.

Gordon v. Appeal Tax Court, 3 How. 133–150, 11 L. ed. 529–537; Sturges v. Carter, 114 U. S. 511–521, 29 L. ed. 240–243, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1014.

The capital stock is another property,—corporately associated, for the purpose of banking,—but in its parts is the individual property of the stockholders in the proportions they may own it. Being their individual property, they may be taxed for it, as they may for any other property they may own.

Gordon v. Appeal Tax Court, 3 How. 133–150, 11 L. ed. 529–537.

Shares of stock in a corporation follow the domicil of the owner, like any other personal property.

1 Cooley, Taxn. 3d ed. 86; 2 Cook, Corp. § 565; San Francisco v. Fry, 63 Cal. 470; Hart v. Smith, 159 Ind. 193, 58 L.R.A. 949, 95 Am. St. Rep. 280, 64 N. E. 661; Greenleaf v. Morgan County, 184 Ill. 228, 75 Am. Rep. 168, 56 N. E. 295; Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491–499, 25 L. ed. 558–562.

Bonds secured by mortgage held by a nonresident of the state in which the mortgaged property is situate are personal property, and follow the domicil of the owners.

State Tax on Foreign-held Bonds, 15 Wall. 300, 323, 21 L. ed. 179, 188.

A tax on the property of a corporation is not a tax upon its capital stock.

Van Allen v. Assessors (Churchill v. Utica) 3 Wall. 573–583, 18 L. ed. 229–234.

The owner of shares of stock in a corporation may dispose of them at his pleasure, and in so doing works no change or modification in the title of the corporate property; upon his death such shares go to his administrator, although the entire capital of the corporation may consist of real estate, and will be distributed according to the law of the domicil of the owner, and not the law of the domicil of the corporation.

Judy v. Beckwith, 137 Iowa, 24, 15 L.R.A. (N.S.) 142, 114 N. W. 565, 15 Ann. Cas. 890; Bradley v. Bauder, 36 Ohio St. 28, 38 Am. Rep. 547.

The taxation by one state of shares of stock in a corporation of another state owned by a resident of the former state is a matter of policy for the legislature to determine, in the absence of constitutional prohibition.

Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491–499, 25 L. ed. 558–562; Bacon v. State Tax Comrs. 126 Mich. 26, 60 L.R.A. 321, 86 Am. St. Rep. 524, 85 N. W. 247; Greenleaf v. Morgan County, 184 Ill. 227, 75 Am. St. Rep. 168, 56 N. E. 295.

Indiana taxed the shares because they were owned by one of its residents and within its jurisdiction, not because they were employed in interstate commerce.

Pulman's Palace Car Co. v. Pennsylvania, 141 U. S. 18–25, 35 L. ed. 613–617, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 876.

The tax upon the shares of Issac M. Darnell was not a tax on or because of the transportation, or the right of transit of said shares to the state, or through the state to other states or countries.

Ibid.

Isaac M. Darnell was not engaged in commerce between the states; his shares of stock were not in transit between or through any of the states; he had not gone into Indiana to sell his shares; and therefore the shares were not interstate commerce.

New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 Ann. Cas. 736.

Indiana did not impose the tax upon the shares owned by Isaac M. Darnell, as imported articles, or on their sale.

New York v. Roberts, 171 U. S. 658–664, 43 L. ed. 323–326, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58.

Deposits and debts in one state owing to a resident of another state, which are delayed within the jurisdiction of the former state an indefinite time, are not in transitu so as to withdraw them from the taxing power of such state.

Blackstone v. Miller, 188 U. S. 189–203, 47 L. ed. 439–444, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277.

After an article has ceased to be an import from another state by being mingled with other property in the state into which it was sent, it is subject to taxation by the latter state.

Nathan v. Louisiana, 8 How. 73–80, 49 L. ed. 992–995.

Whenever property has become incorporated into the bulk of the property of a state, it is subject to taxation by such state.

Pittsburg & S. Coal Co. v. Bates, 156 U. S. 577–589, 39 L. ed. 538–544, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 30, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415; Brown v. Houston, 114 U. S. 622–633, 29 L. ed. 257–261, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1091.

It is not a violation of the interstate commerce clause of the Constitution for a state to tax her resident citizens for debts held by them against nonresidents.

Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491–499, 25 L. ed. 558–562.

The fact that an article is manufactured for export to another state does not of itself make it an article of interstate commerce; and the intent of the manufacturer does not determine when the article or product passes from the control of the state and belongs to commerce.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 13, 39 L. ed. 325, 329, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249.

Where goods shipped from one state into another had arrived at their destination, and were at rest in the state, were enjoying the protection which the laws of the state afforded, and were taxed, without discrimination, like all other property, this tax did not amount to a regulation of interstate commerce in the sense of the Constitution, although the levy of such tax might remotely or indirectly affect interstate commerce.

American Steel & Wire Co. v. Speed, 192 U. S. 500–521, 48 L. ed. 538–546, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 365.

The rule of equality, in respect to the subject, only requires the same means to be applied impartially to all the constituents of each class, so that the law shall operate equally and uniformly upon all persons in similar circumstances.

Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 321–337, 29 L. ed. 414–419, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594–606, 33 L. ed. 1025–1031, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Southwestern Oil Co. v. Texas, 217 U. S. 114–126, 54 L. ed. 688–694, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 496.

The 14th Amendment does not prevent the classification of property for taxation,—subjecting one kind of property to one rate of taxation, and another kind of property to a different rate,—distinguishing between franchises, licenses, and privileges, and visible and tangible property, and between real and personal property.

Home Ins. Co. v. New York, 134 U. S. 594–606, 33 L. ed. 1025–1031, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 593; Southwestern Oil Co. v. Texas, 217 U. S. 114–123, 54 L. ed. 688–694, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 496.

Under a law of New York imposing a transfer tax upon personal property within the state belonging to a nonresident at the time of his death, such transfer tax may be levied upon debts and deposits owing to such decedent by citizens of New York; and such transfer tax does not deprive the executrix and legatees of such decedent of any of the privileges and immunities of the citizens of New York.

Blackstone v. Miller, 188 U. S. 189–207, 47 L. ed. 439–445, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277.

The taxation by one state of shares of stock owned by a resident in a corporation of another state, when the property of the corporation is taxed in the state in which it is incorporated and does business, is not double taxation.

Sturges v. Carter, 114 U. S. 511–521, 29 L. ed. 240–243, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1014; New Orleans v. Houston, 119 U. S. 265–277, 30 L. ed. 411–415, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 198; San Francisco v. Fry, 63 Cal. 471; Porter v. Rockford, R. I. & St. L. R. Co. 76 Ill.

566; Greenleaf v. Morgan County, 184 Ill. 227, 75 Am. St. Rep. 168, 56 N. E. 295; Thrall v. Guiney, 141 Mich. 396, 113 Am. St. Rep. 528, 104 N. W. 646; Judy v. Beckwith, 137 Iowa, 24, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 142, 114 N. W. 565, 15 Ann. Cas. 890.

To be double taxation the same state must tax the corporation for its property, and also tax its shares in the hands of the owners.

Thrall v. Guiney, 141 Mich. 396, 113 Am. St. Rep. 528, 104 N. W. 646; Judy v. Beckwith, 137 Iowa, 24, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 142, 114 N. W. 565, 15 Ann. Cas. 890; Bradley v. Bauder, 36 Ohio St. 35, 38 Am. Rep. 547.

A tax may lawfully be levied on the shares of a foreign corporation held and owned by a resident of the state which imposes the tax.

Kidd v. Alabama, 188 U. S. 730, 47 L. ed. 669, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401; Cooley, Taxn. 3d ed. 86; Bradley v. Bauder, 36 Ohio St. 28, 38 Am. Rep. 547; Bacon v. State Tax Comrs. 126 Mich. 22, 60 L.R.A. 321, 86 Am. St. Rep. 524, 85 N. W. 247; San Francisco v. Fry, 63 Cal. 470; Greenleaf v. Morgan County, 184 Ill. 228, 75 Am. St. Rep. 168, 56 N. E. 295; Stanford v. San Francisco, 131 Cal. 34, 63 Pac. 145; Newark City Bank v. Fourth Ward Assessor, 30 N. J. L. 20; Sturges v. Carter, 114 U. S. 511, 29 L. ed. 240, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1014; Wright v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 195 U. S. 219, 49 L. ed. 167, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 16; Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491–499, 25 L. ed. 558–562; Thrall v. Guiney, 141 Mich. 397, 113 Am. St. Rep. 528, 104 N. W. 646; Com. v. Lovell, 125 Ky. 491, 101 S. W. 970; Judy v. Beckwith, 137 Iowa, 24, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 142, 114 N. W. 565.

Whether the state of Indiana shall measure the contribution which persons resident within its jurisdiction shall make by way of taxes, in return for the protection it affords them, by the value of the credits, choses in action, bonds, or stocks which they may own (other than such as are exempted or protected under the Constitution and laws of the United States), is a matter which concerns only the people of that state, with which the Federal government cannot rightly interfere.

Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491–499, 25 L. ed. 558, 562; Liverpool & L. & G. Ins. Co. v. Bd. of Assessors, 221 U. S. 346–356, 55 L. ed. 762–768, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 550.

The taxation of shares of stock in a foreign corporation by the state in which the owner resides is not a violation of the 14th Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Kirtland v. Hotchkiss, 100 U. S. 491–499, 25 L. ed. 558–562; Thrall v. Guiney, 141 Mich. 392, 113 Am. St. Rep. 528, 104 N. E. 646.

972

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action brought by the state of Indiana for taxes on stock of a Tennessee corporation, owned by the principal defendant. The Indiana statutes purport to tax all shares in foreign corporations except national banks, owned by inhabitants of the state, and all shares in domestic corporations when the property of such corporations is not exempt or is not taxable to the corporation itself. If the value of the stock exceeds that of the tangible taxable property, this excess also is taxed. Burns's Anno. Stat. (Ind.) 1908, §§ 10,143, 10,233, 10,234. The declaration was demurred to on the ground that the statutes were contrary to the commerce clause, art. 1, § 8, and *the 14th Amendment of the Con-[398 stitution of the United States. Judgment was entered for the plaintiff (174 Ind. 143, 90 N. E. 769), and a writ of error was allowed.

The case is pretty nearly disposed of by Kidd v. Alabama, 188 U. S. 730, 47 L. ed. 669, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401, where the real matter of complaint, that the property of the corporation presumably is taxed in Tennessee, is answered. See also Wright v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 195 U. S. 219, 222, 49 L. ed. 167, 168, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 16. But it is said that the former decision does not deal with the objection that the statutes work a discrimination against stock in corporations of other states, contrary to principles often recognized. I. M. Darnell & Son Co. v. Memphis, 208 U. S. 113, 52 L. ed. 413, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247. The most serious aspect of this objection is that the statutes of Indiana do not make allowance if a foreign corporation has property taxed within the state. But, as to this, it is enough to say that, however the statutes may be construed in a case of that sort, the plaintiffs in error do not show that it is theirs, and that, as they do not belong to the class for whose sake the constitutional protection would be given, if it would, they cannot complain on that ground. Smiley v. Kansas, 196 U. S. 447, 457, 49 L. ed. 546, 551, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 160, 51 L. ed. 415, 422, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 Ann. Cas. 736. If Spraigue v. Thompson, 118 U. S. 90, 30 L. ed. 115, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 988, contains an intimation contrary to this rule, the decision was supported on other grounds, and the rule no longer is open to dispute. Lee v. New Jersey, 207 U. S. 67, 70, 52 L. ed. 106, 107, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 22; Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 524, 534, 54 L. ed. 868, 871, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594; Lindsley v. Natural Carbonic Gas Co. 220 U. S. 61, 77, 78, 55 L. ed. 369, 377, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 337, Ann. Cas. 1912C, 160; Yazoo & M. Valley R. Co. v. Jackson Vinegar Co. Dec. 2, 1912 [226 U. S. 217, ante, 193, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40].

The only difference of treatment disclosed by the record that concerns the defendants is that the state taxes the property of domestic corporations and the stock of foreign ones in similar cases. That this is consistent with substantial equality notwithstanding the technical differences was decided in Kidd v. Alabama, 188 U. S. 730, 732, 47 L. ed. 669, 672, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401.

Judgment affirmed.

---

399] *EDWIN M. KEATLEY, as Receiver of American Guaranty Company of Chicago, under Appointment of the Circuit Court of Kanawha County, West Virginia, Appt.,

v.

CARRIE REBECCA FUREY, as Executrix of the Will of Charles La Tour Furey, and also in Her own Right; Edwin A. Potter, as Receiver of the American Guaranty Company of Chicago, by Appointment of the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois, et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 399–404.)

Error to circuit court — jurisdiction below.

A decision of a Federal circuit court in a suit against a foreign corporation, dismissing a petition in intervention filed by the foreign receiver of such corporation, in which the question of the jurisdiction of the court over the defendant was raised, cannot be reviewed in the Federal Supreme Court, as presenting a question of jurisdiction, where the decision is based upon the ground that no title to the corporate assets passed to the receiver under the law of the state of his appointment, and that therefore he had no standing in court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 879–937, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 84.]

Argued December 12, 1912. Decided December 23, 1912.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Illinois to review a decree dismissing a petition in intervention filed by a foreign receiver. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. F. W. Houghton argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

The motion to dismiss the appeal should be denied because the record clearly shows that the sole question decided by the court below was a single, definite question of jurisdiction, and it also clearly appears, from the petition for appeal and the order granting it, that this appeal was taken to the Supreme Court to review the question of jurisdiction alone, and hence is sufficient without a certificate.

Davis v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 217 U. S. 157, 54 L. ed. 708, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 823, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 463, 18 Ann. Cas. 907; The Jefferson, 215 U. S. 130, 54 L. ed. 125, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54, 17 Ann. Cas. 907; Excelsior Wooden Pipe Co. v. Pacific Bridge Co. 185 U. S. 282, 46 L. ed. 910, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Shields v. Coleman, 157 U. S. 168, 39 L. ed. 660, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Re Lehigh Min. & Mfg. Co. 156 U. S. 322, 39 L. ed. 438, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 375; Huntington v. Laidley, 176 U. S. 668, 44 L. ed. 630, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526; Interior Constr. & Improv. Co. v. Gibney, 160 U. S. 217, 40 L. ed. 401, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Smith v. McKay, 161 U. S. 355, 40 L. ed. 731, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 490.

The record clearly shows that the sole question decided by the court below was one of jurisdiction, and no certificate is in such case required.

Davis v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 217 U. S. 157, 54 L. ed. 708, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 823, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 463, 18 Ann. Cas. 907; The Jefferson, 215 U. S. 130, 54 L. ed. 125, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54, 17 Ann. Cas. 907; United States v. Larkin, 208 U. S. 333, 338, 52 L. ed. 517, 519, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 417; Chicago v. Mills, 204 U. S. 321, 51 L. ed. 504, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 286; Petri v. F. E. Creelman Lumber Co. 199 U. S. 487, 50 L. ed. 281, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 133; Excelsior Wooden Pipe Co. v. Pacific Bridge Co. 185 U. S. 282, 46 L. ed. 910, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Harkrader v. Wadley, 172 U. S. 148, 43 L. ed. 399, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 119; Re Lehigh Min. & Mfg. Co. 156 U. S. 322, 39 L. ed. 438, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 375; Smith v. McKay, 161 U. S. 355, 40 L. ed. 731, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 490; Interior Constr. & Improv. Co. v. Gibney, 160 U. S. 217, 40 L. ed. 401, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Shields v. Coleman, 157 U. S. 177, 39 L. ed. 663, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570.

The jurisdiction of the circuit court as a Federal court was involved in this controversy, because no lawful voluntary general appearance by the defendant was or could be made therein, and because of the failure to lawfully serve the defendant with any process.

NOTE.—On direct review, in Federal Supreme Court, of judgments of district or circuit courts—see note to Gwin v. United States, 46 L. ed. U. S. 741; B. Altman & Co. v. United States, 56 L. ed. U. S. 894.

Davis v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 217 U. S. 157, 54 L. ed. 708, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 823, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 463, 18 Ann. Cas. 907; Interior Constr. & Improv. Co. v. Gibney, 160 U. S. 217, 40 L. ed. 401, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Shepard v. Adams, 168 U. S. 618, 42 L. ed. 602, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214; Kendall v. American Automatic Loom Co. 198 U. S. 477, 49 L. ed. 1133, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 768; Board of Trade v. Hammond Elevator Co. 198 U. S. 424, 49 L. ed. 1111, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 740.

The entire controversy in the court below was whether or not the decree of dissolution of the American Guaranty Company of Chicago, and the appointment of receiver Black of the assets of such corporation within the jurisdiction of such court, under the provisions of §§ 57–59 of the Code of West Virginia, so ended the life and power of such corporation and its officers that it could not thereafter, by such officers or attorneys, enter a general appearance in the Federal court so as to give such court jurisdiction in such action.

Alderson, Receivers, pp. 4, 19, 20, 79, 80; 2 Clark & M. Priv. Corp. § 319, pp. 912, 913; Conklin v. United States Shipbuilding Co. 140 Fed. 219; American Nat. Bank v. National Ben. & Casualty Co. 70 Fed. 420; Pendleton v. Russell, 144 U. S. 640, 644, 645, 36 L. ed. 574, 576, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 743; White v. White, 130 Cal. 597, 80 Am. St. Rep. 150, 62 Pac. 1062.

Mr. W. E. Chilton also argued the cause, and, with Messrs. F. W. Houghton, George B. Edgerton and Thomas H. Gill, filed a brief for appellant.

Mr. Levy Mayer argued the cause and filed a brief for appellees:

This appeal should be dismissed because no certificate of jurisdiction was obtained from the circuit court, and no equivalent of a certificate of jurisdiction is shown by the record.

Courtney v. Pradt, 196 U. S. 89, 49 L. ed. 398, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Filhiol v. Torney, 194 U. S. 356, 48 L. ed. 1014, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 698; Chappell v. United States, 160 U. S. 507, 40 L. ed. 513, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 397; The Bayonne, 159 U. S. 687, 693, 40 L. ed. 306, 309, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Shields v. Coleman, 157 U. S. 168, 176, 39 L. ed. 660, 663, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570.

The jurisdiction of the circuit court as a Federal court was not involved within the meaning of the act allowing a direct appeal to this court. The subject-matter was a controversy as to the possession of the property of a corporation, between a receiver appointed by the Federal court, and a receiver subsequently appointed by a state court, and involved the construction of the West Virginia statutes, and a question of general law.

Fore River Shipbuilding Co. v. Hagg, 219 U. S. 175, 55 L. ed. 163, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Louisville Trust Co. v. Knott, 191 U. S. 225, 48 L. ed. 159, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 119; Courtney v. Pradt, 196 U. S. 89, 49 L. ed. 398, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Bache v. Hunt, 193 U. S. 523, 48 L. ed. 774, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 547; Board of Trade v. Hammond Elevator Co. 198 U. S. 424, 49 L. ed. 1111, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 740; Schweer v. Brown, 195 U. S. 171, 49 L. ed. 144, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 15.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an appeal from the circuit court, taken by an intervener on the ground that the court never had obtained *ju-[402 risdiction over the defendant. The petition to intervene was dismissed, the decree declaring that the court had jurisdiction, that there was no equity in the petition, and that the petitioner was not entitled to any of the relief prayed for. The court allowed the appeal, but certified that, in its opinion, no question of jurisdiction was involved. The appellant contends that the contrary appears on the face of the record. United States v. Larkin, 208 U. S. 333, 52 L. ed. 517, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 417; The Jefferson, 215 U. S. 130, 137, 54 L. ed. 125, 128, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54, 17 Ann. Cas. 907; Herndon-Carter Co. v. James N. Norris, Son & Co. 224 U. S. 496, 56 L. ed. 857, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 550.

The material facts are these. On February 1, 1909, there was filed in a local court of West Virginia a bill for the dissolution of the American Guaranty Company, a corporation of that state. The corporation appeared and consented, and on the same day a decree was entered dissolving the corporation, appointing a receiver to whom Keatley is successor, and directing him to take the steps necessary to secure possession of the company's property within the jurisdiction of the court. By the charter of the company its principal office was to be in Chicago, and in fact its bank deposits, bonds, etc., were almost wholly there. On February 2 the suit now before this court was brought in the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of Illinois on the ground that the West Virginia receiver had no authority outside of his state, praying for a receiver and the distribution of the assets collected. There was an appearance and consent in the name of the corporation, a receiver was appointed, and he proceeded to collect the assets.

It is stated by the judge in his opinion that more than 7,000 out of the 7,030 claims against the company had been presented in the cause. On October 27, 1909, the West Virginia receiver filed his petition of intervention, setting up that the corporation, having been dissolved, could not appear in the suit.

403] *Whether the exception to the general rule concerning jurisdiction of appeals like this, established by Shepard v. Adams, 168 U. S. 618, 42 L. ed. 602, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214, and Board of Trade v. Hammond Elevator Co. 198 U. S. 424, 49 L. ed. 1111, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 740, applies to the present case, and what may be the merits of the argument against the right to appear in the name of the corporation, if the question is open, cannot be considered until the petitioner's right to present that argument is made out. On that matter we will assume that, if the petitioner had a case below, the denial of the right to intervene was not a discretionary decision, and final on that ground. Credits Commutation Co. v. United States, 177 U. S. 311, 315, 316, 44 L. ed. 782, 785, 786, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 636. But of course the petitioner's standing in the lower court depended on his having title, and was not a consequence of his Virginia appointment alone, unless at least he got a title by virtue of it, as it was provided by statute in express terms that the receiver should, in Relfe v. Rundle (Life Asso. of America v. Rundle) 103 U. S. 222, 26 L. ed. 337. See Great Western Min. & Mfg. Co. v. Harris, 198 U. S. 561, 574, 49 L. ed. 1163, 1167, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 770. The effect of such a provision need not be considered in this case. In some instances, at least, it would be enforced outside of the state. Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 534, 51 L. ed. 1163, 1176, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Converse v. Minnesota Thresher Mfg. Co. 212 U. S. 567, 53 L. ed. 654, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 691; Converse v. Hamilton, 224 U. S. 243, 257, 56 L. ed. 749, 754, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415. See Chipman v. Manufacturers' Nat. Bank, 156 Mass. 147-149, 30 N. E. 610; Haskell v. Merrill, 179 Mass. 120, 124, 60 N. E. 485. The statute of West Virginia, on the other hand, provides for the appointment of receivers to "take charge of and administer" the assets, and for the bringing of suit and the conveyance of property in the corporate name thereafter. Code, chap. 53, §§ 58, 59. It seems, to be sure, that in September and October the local West Virginia court purported to authorize and confirm a deed by a special commissioner to the receiver, but if the statute did not itself constitute the receiver the universal successor of the corporation (see Chipman v. 404]Manufacturers' *Nat. Bank, 156 Mass. 147-149, 30 N. E. 610), it may be doubted whether the deed had extraterritorial effect. See Fall v. Eastin, 215 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 65, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 924, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3, 17 Ann. Cas. 853. The argument is strong to support the judgment of the court below that no title passed.

Right or wrong, that was the decision of the circuit court, and it is obvious that a dismissal of the petition on that ground does not warrant a direct appeal, whether the court had jurisdiction or not. The court had jurisdiction over the intervention and decided against it on the merits. That question logically and chronologically preceded any question of jurisdiction in the principal case. The question of jurisdiction in the principal case was not yet open, as there had been no final decree therein, and as, by virtue of the decision that the intervener had no standing, the question could not be raised by him. The form of the decree really made it impossible for this appeal to be entertained, but we have discussed the case and stated the facts more at length in order to explain that the judge was right in his certificate, and could not have acted otherwise upon his view of the West Virginia law.

Appeal dismissed.

---

D. G. WILLIAMS, Plff. in Err.,
v.
CITY OF TALLADEGA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 404-419.)

Taxes — Federal agency — franchise tax on telegraph company.

1. The acceptance by a telegraph company of the provisions of the act of July, 24, 1866 (14 Stat. at L. 221, chap. 230, U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 5263-5268, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 3580, 3581), giving the right to construct, maintain, and operate lines over the military and post roads of the United States, does not give it a Federal franchise, or make it an instrumentality of the government, so as to prevent a state or any of its municipalities from imposing a license tax upon the telegraph company's right to do local business within the state. [For other cases, see Taxes, 156-162, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — state regulation — franchise tax on telegraph company.

2. A municipal license tax on the right of an interstate telegraph company to do local

---

NOTE.—Taxation of corporate franchises in the United States—see note to Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Co. v. Com. 57 L.R.A. 33.

On corporate taxation and the commerce clause—see note to Sandford v. Poe, 60 L.R.A. 641.

business within the state cannot be deemed to impose an unconstitutional burden upon its interstate business because a test for eleven months showed that the company did its intrastate business at that point at a net loss of 86 cents.

[For other cases see Commerce, 278–287, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Taxes — franchise of telegraph company —official telegrams.

3. A telegraph company which has accepted the terms of the act of July 24, 1866, giving it the right to construct, maintain, and operate lines over the military and post roads of the United States, cannot be subjected to a municipal license tax imposed under state authority upon the doing of local business within the state, including the transmission of messages for the Federal government.

[For other cases, see Taxes, 156–164, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — effect of partial invalidity.

4. The failure to make an exception in favor of the transmission of messages for the Federal government in a municipal ordinance imposing a license fee upon the doing of local business within the state by a telegraph company which has accepted the provisions of the act of July 24, 1866, renders the whole tax invalid.

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. d, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 44.]

Argued November 7 and 8, 1912. Decided December 23, 1912.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Alabama to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the City Court of Talladega, in that state, convicting an agent of a telegraph company of doing business without a license. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 164 Ala. 633, 51 So. 330.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. William M. Williams argued the cause, and, with Messrs. George H. Fearons, F. N. Whitney, and Ray Rushton, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The franchise of the company to do business in the city of Talladega is derived solely from the Federal Congress, and is therefore not taxable by the city for purposes of revenue.

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 464, 26 L. ed. 1067, 1068.

Congress has the power to grant a franchise to do an intrastate, as well as an interstate, telegraph business on the post roads of the United States.

Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 646, 32 L. ed. 311, 314, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1380; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Atty. Gen. 125 U. S. 530, 31 L. ed. 790, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 961; San Francisco v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 96 Cal. 140, 17 L.R.A. 301, 31 Pac. 10.

Congress has the power to grant a franchise to be used as a necessary and proper instrumentality of the government, and when so used a general business may be done under that franchise, free from license imposed by states and municipalities.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204.

By the act of 1866 Congress intended to, and did, grant to telegraph companies accepting the terms of the act the privilege to do not only interstate, but also an intrastate, business.

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067; Pensacola Teleg. Co. v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 96 U. S. 1, 24 L. ed. 708.

Since Congress by the act of 1866 conferred upon the Western Union Telegraph Company the right to do an intrastate telegraph business along the post roads, the city of Talladega cannot impose a license tax thereon.

M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat, 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 740, 6 L. ed. 204; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Visalia, 149 Cal. 744, 87 Pac. 1023; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Lakin, 53 Wash. 326, 101 Pac. 1094; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Wright, 107 C. C. A. 356, 185 Fed. 250; Harman v. Chicago, 147 U. S. 396, 37 L. ed. 216, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 306; Moran v. New Orleans, 112 U. S. 69, 28 L. ed. 653, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 38; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 45, 32 L. ed. 150, 159, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067.

The ordinance is in contravention of the laws of the United States in that it fails to exclude messages sent on government business within the state.

Charleston v. Postal Teleg. Cable Co. — S. C. —, 3 Am. Elec. Cas. 56; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067; Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 32 L. ed. 311, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1380.

The ordinance is invalid for the reason that the license imposed is for revenue, and not for police regulation or inspection.

Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Taylor, 192 U. S. 64, 48 L. ed. 342, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Ottumwa v. Zekind, 95 Iowa, 622, 29 L.R.A. 734, 58 Am. St. Rep. 451, 64 N. W. 646; Chaddock v. Day, 75 Mich. 527, 4 L.R.A. 809, 13 Am. St. Rep. 472, 42 N. W. 977; Austin v. Murray, 16 Pick 126; Sunset

Teleph. & Teleg. Co. v. Medford, 115 Fed. 292.

When an ordinance imposes a license that is unreasonable in amount the ordinance is for that reason void.

Ex parte Byrd, 84 Ala. 17, 20, 5 Am. St. Rep. 328, 4 So. 397; Hendrick v. State, 142 Ala. 43, 46, 39 So. 203; Marion v. Chandler, 6 Ala. 899, 901; Ex parte Frank, 52 Cal. 606, 28 Am. Rep. 642, 645; Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. New Hope, 192 U. S. 55, 48 L. ed. 338, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 204; Ottumwa v. Zekind, 95 Iowa, 622, 29 L.R.A. 734, 58 Am. St. Rep. 450, 64 N. W. 646; Simrall v. Covington, 90 Ky. 444, 9 L.R.A. 556, 29 Am. St. Rep. 400, 14 S. W. 369; Brooks v. Mangan, 86 Mich. 576, 24 Am. St. Rep. 137, 138, 49 N. W. 633; Chaddock v. Day, 85 Mich. 527, 4 L.R.A. 809, 13 Am. St. Rep. 472, 42 N. W. 977; St. Paul v. Laidler, 2 Minn. 190, Gil. 159, 72 Am. Dec. 94.

Mr. Rush Taggart also argued the cause, and, with Mr. John F. Dillon, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The construction of the act of Congress of July 24, 1866, relied upon by plaintiff in error, is that it granted to the telegraph company accepting its provisions the right to go into any state, and, as an agency of the government, to construct, operate, and maintain telegraph lines along, over, and upon the post roads, and over, under, or across the navigable waters of the United States.

Pensacola Teleg. Co. v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 96 U. S. 1, 24 L. ed. 708; Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. 420, 557, 9 L. ed. 773, 828; United States v. Denver & R. G. R. Co. 150 U. S. 1, 14, 37 L. ed. 975, 980, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 11; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 436, 6 L. ed. 685; California v. Pacific R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 35, 32 L. ed. 150, 155, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073.

The property of a corporation of the United States may be taxed by a state, but not through its franchise.

Central P. R. Co. v. California, 162 U. S. 92, 40 L. ed. 903, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 766; Carthage v. First Nat. Bank, 71 Mo. 508, 36 Am. Rep. 494; National Bank v. Chattanooga, 8 Heisk. 814.

What the city is attempting to do under this ordinance is in no respect to be distinguished in principle from what the state of Massachusetts was undertaking to do in the case of Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Atty. Gen. 125 U. S. 530, 31 L. ed. 790, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 961.

The ordinance was passed clearly upon the theory that the state, or the municipality as its agent, had full power to exclude the telegraph company from doing business as described in the ordinance, "to and from the city to and from points in the state of Alabama for hire or reward." The state has no such right.

Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Pullman Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 56, 54 L. ed. 378, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 232.

The ordinance cannot be sustained as an exercise of the police power to reimburse the city for the expense incurred in the inspection and protection of its citizens against injury, within the doctrine of the cases of Western U. Teleg. Co. v. New Hope, 187 U. S. 419, 47 L. ed. 240, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 204, and Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. v. Philadelphia, 190 U. S. 160, 47 L. ed. 995, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 817, or Postal Teleg. Cable v. Taylor, 192 U. S. 64, 48 L. ed. 342, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208, because the uncontradicted evidence shows that no expense whatever was incurred in the way of police inspection or supervision.

There is no exclusion, from the ordinance, of the right to do government business within the state, and the right to transact such business is likewise clearly within the prohibitions of the ordinance until the telegraph company has paid the amount demanded.

Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787; Neil v. Ohio, 3 How. 720, 11 L. ed. 800.

Mr. J. K. Dixon argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

Notwithstanding the Western Union Telegraph Company has accepted the conditions of the act of Congress of July 24, 1866, entitled "An act to Aid in the Construction of Telegraph Lines, and to Secure to the Government of the United States the Use of the Same for Postal, Military, and Other Purposes," an ordinance is valid imposing a license fee on such company for business done exclusively within the state.

Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Charleston, 153 U. S. 692, 38 L. ed. 871, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 637, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1094; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067; Ratterman v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 127 U. S. 411, 32 L. ed. 229, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 59, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1127; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 128 U. S. 39, 32 L. ed. 345, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 6; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Atty. Gen. 125 U. S. 530, 31 L. ed. 790, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 961; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Missouri, 190 U. S. 412, 47 L. ed. 1116, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Alabama Bd. of Assessment (Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Seay) 132 U. S. 472, 33 L. ed. 409, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 726, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161; 37 Cyc. 1622–1625; Moore v. Eufaula, 97 Ala. 670, 11 So. 921; Williams v. Talladega, 164 Ala. 633, 51 So. 330; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Fremont, 39 Neb. 692, 26 L.R.A. 698, 58 N. W. 415.

This ordinance is not invalid because of the fact that governmental messages are not excluded from it.

Moore v. Eufaula, 97 Ala. 670, 11 So. 921.

There is nothing in the contention that the ordinance was confiscatory, and therefore void.

Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Charleston, 153 U. S. 692-699, 38 L. ed. 871-875, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 637, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1094; Troy v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 164 Ala. 482, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 627, 51 So. 523; Williams v. Talladega, 164 Ala. 633, 51 So. 330; Atlantic & P. Teleg. Co. v. Philadelphia, 190 U. S. 160, 47 L. ed. 995, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 817; Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Attalla, 118 Ala. 362, 24 So. 450.

Especially is this true when this feature of it has been passed on by the state court, and upheld upon an appeal from the court that tried the same, without a jury, upon findings on the facts,—under the decisions of Alabama to be given the same weight as if decided by a jury.

Wright v. State, 129 Ala. 123, 29 So. 864; Quillman v. Gurley, 85 Ala. 594, 5 So. 345.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a writ of error to review the judgment of the supreme court of the state of Alabama, affirming the judgment of the city court of Talladega. 164 Ala. 633, 51 So. 330.

D. G. Williams, the plaintiff in error, was convicted of doing business in the city of Talladega, as agent of the Western Union Telegraph Company, from October 1, 1908, to December 31, 1908, without taking out and paying for a license, in violation of an ordinance of the city. The ordinance contained a schedule of licenses for divers businesses, vocations, occupations, and professions carried on in the city, among others, the following:

"158. Telegraph company.—Each person, firm, or corporation commercially engaged in business sending messages to and from the city to and from points in the state of Alabama for hire or reward, $100."

Section 2 of the ordinance declared that the license was exacted in the exercise of the police power of the city, as well as for the purpose of raising revenue for the city The 4th section provided that any person, firm, or corporation who engaged in any trade, business, or profession for which a license was required, without first having obtained such license, should be guilty of an offense, and upon conviction should be fined not less than $1 and not more than $100, and that each day should constitute a separate offense.

The record discloses that the corporation was organized *under the laws of the[412 state of New York, and had accepted the provisions of the act of Congress of July 24, 1866 [14 Stat. at L. 221, chap. 230] (Rev. Stat. §§ 5263-5268, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 3580, 3581), and for several years theretofore, and during the years 1907 and 1908, had had an office in the city of Talladega, and was engaged in the business of transmitting messages between private parties and between the departments and agencies of the United States government from Talladega to other points in the state of Alabama, and also from other points in the state of Alabama to Talladega; that during the months of October, November, and December, 1908, Williams was employed by the Western Union Telegraph Company as manager of its office at Talladega; that a license fee of $25 was demanded of him for the quarter ending December 31, 1908, which was refused, and that he was fined $25 and costs, and in the event of his failure to pay the fine and costs he was sentenced to labor on the streets for fifty days. It also appears that the Western Union Telegraph Company pays taxes on its property in the state. In addition to the agreed facts, from which the above statement is taken, it is shown by the testimony of the defendant that the lines of the Western Union Telegraph Company enter and leave the city over the right of way of the Southern Railroad and the Louisville & Nashville Railroad, both of which are public railroads, and that within the city of Talladega the company has lines which leave the right of way of the railroad companies and proceed along public streets to the office of the company; and also that government messages were relayed daily at the Talladega office; that it received messages between the different departments of the government of the United States at this office from points within the state; and that government messages were given a preference and were sent at reduced rates. From the testimony, the supreme court of Alabama found that for the year 1908, not including the month of January, the *company[413 did its intrastate business at a net loss of 86 cents.

This case differs from some cases which have been in this court, involving the right to tax the Western Union Telegraph Company, in that it places emphasis upon the alleged immunity from taxation of the class herein involved, because, it is contended, by the act of 1866, Congress, by virtue of the authority given it to establish post roads, conferred Federal franchises upon the company, and made the Western Union Telegraph Company an instrumentality of the Federal government, endowed with franchises to construct, maintain, and operate telegraph lines on the post roads of the United States, with the duty in the operation of those lines not only to serve the government of the United States, but also to serve the public which might wish to transact business over its lines. This being so, it is now insisted that the attempt to impose a license tax upon the company, either by the state of Alabama or any of its municipalities, is an attempt to impose a tax on the franchises so created by the Federal government.

The question made upon this point was considered in Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Charleston, 153 U. S. 692, 38 L. ed. 871, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 637, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1094. In that case the Postal Telegraph Cable Company had accepted the provisions of the act of 1866, and the state statute imposed a license of $500 upon the telegraph company for business done exclusively within the city of Charleston, not including any business done to or from points without the state, and not including any business done by the officers of the United States. It was contended for the telegraph company that the license required by the ordinance was a tax upon it for the privilege of exercising its franchise within the city of Charleston; that the telegraph company having constructed its lines along post roads in the city of Charleston and elsewhere, no state or municipal authority 414]could collect a license fee *from it for the privilege of conducting its business, "thus restraining the powers possessed by it under its franchises and under the acts of Congress;" and furthermore, that the ordinance in question was in interference with interstate commerce and therefore void. It will thus be seen that in that case not only was the contention made as to the interstate commerce feature of the telegraph company's business, but it was specifically claimed that to exact such a license would restrain the powers possessed by it under the franchises created by the act of Congress. After reviewing a number of cases, Mr. Justice Shiras, who delivered the opinion of the court, said:

"It is further contended that the ruling of the cited cases does not cover the case of a telegraph company which has constructed its lines along the post roads in the city of Charleston, and elsewhere, and which is exercising its functions under the act of Congress as an agency of the government of the United States. It is obvious that the advantages or privileges that are conferred upon the company by the act of July 24, 1866 (Rev. Stat. §§ 5263–5268), are in the line of authority to construct and maintain its lines as a means or instrument of interstate commerce, and are not necessarily inconsistent with a right on the part of the state in which business is done and property acquired to tax the same, within the limitations pointed out in the cases heretofore cited."

In Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Missouri, 190 U. S. 412, 47 L. ed. 1116, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730, this court, again considering the act of 1866, quoting from the opinion of Mr. Justice Miller in Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Atty. Gen. 125 U. S. 530, 31 L. ed. 790, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 961, said, speaking by Mr. Justice McKenna:

"These propositions were laid down: That the company owed its existence as a corporation and its right to exercise the business of telegraphy to the laws of the state under which it was organized; that the privilege of running the lines of its wires over and along the military *and[415 post roads of the United States was granted by the act of Congress, but that the statute was merely permissive, and conferred no exemption from the ordinary burdens of taxation; that the state could not, by any specific statute, prevent a corporation from placing its lines along the post roads, or stop the use of them after they were so placed, but the corporation could be taxed in exchange for the protection it received from the state 'upon its real or personal property, as any other person would be.' And, describing the particular tax imposed it was said:

"'The tax in the present case, though nominally upon the shares of the capital stock of the company, is in effect a tax upon that organization on account of property owned and used by it in the state of Massachusetts, and the proportion of the length of its lines in that state to their entire length throughout the whole country is made the basis for ascertaining the value of that property. We do not think that such a tax is forbidden by the acceptance on the part of the telegraph company of the rights conferred by § 5263 of the Revised Statutes, or by the commerce clause of the Constitution.'"

In the latest utterance of this court upon the subject under consideration (Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Richmond, 224 U. S. 160, 56 L. ed. 710, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 449), Mr. Justice Holmes, delivering the opinion of the court said:

"The act of Congress of course conveyed no title, and did not attempt to found one by delegating the power to take by eminent domain. Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 195 U. S. 540, 574, 49 L. ed.

312, 324, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 133, 1 Ann. Cas. 517. It made the erection of telegraph lines free to all submitting to its conditions, as against an attempt by a state to exclude them because they were foreign corporations, or because of its wish to erect a monopoly of its own. Pensacola Teleg. Co. v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 96 U. S. 1, 24 L. ed. 708. It has been held to prevent a state 416]from stopping the *operation of lines within the act by injunction for failure to pay taxes. Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Atty. Gen. 125 U. S. 530, 31 L. ed. 790, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 961. But, except in this negative sense, the statute is only permissive, not a source of positive rights."

These cases, taken together, establish the proposition that the privilege given under the terms of the act to use the military and post roads of the United States for the poles and wires of the company is to be regarded as permissive in character, and not as creating corporate rights and privileges to carry on the business of telegraphy, which were derived from the laws of the state incorporating the company, and that this permissive grant did not prevent the state from taxing the real or personal property belonging to the company within its borders, or from imposing a license tax upon the right to do a local business within the state. Nor is there anything running counter to the former cases in the case of Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Kansas, 216 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 355, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190, wherein it was held that the attempt to levy a graded charter fee upon the entire capital stock of the Western Union Telegraph Company, a corporation of another state, engaged in commerce among the states, as a condition to the right to do local business within the state of Kansas, was void as an attempt, when the substance of things was reached, to tax the right of the company to do interstate business within the state, and as a tax upon property beyond the limits and jurisdiction of the state.

It is further contended that the tax is unreasonable and unjust because of its effect upon interstate business. The reasonableness of the ordinance, unless some Federal right set up and claimed is violated, is a matter for the state to determine. It is contended that the result of the tax upon the intrastate business conducted at a loss is to impose a burden upon the other business of the company, and is therefore void. 417]The supreme court of Alabama, *however, reached the conclusion that the attempted test for eleven months, showing a loss of 86 cents, is not a sufficiently accurate representation of the business of the company conducted at Talladega to render the tax void. With this view we agree, and we are not satisfied that the tax is such as to impose a burden upon interstate commerce, and therefore make it subject to attack as a denial of Federal right.

It is further contended that this ordinance is void because it makes no exception as to the sending of government messages. In this respect it is suggested in the brief of the defendant in error that the ordinance may be construed as not to include business transacted by the company as an agency of the government, and as applying only to commercial business of a different character; but, in view of the construction which the supreme court of Alabama has placed upon it, we must consider the ordinance as construed by that court. Upon the authority of a previous case (Moore v. Eufaula, 97 Ala. 670, 11 So. 921), it held the ordinance valid, although it does not exclude messages sent for the government of the United States. In this connection it said:

"The fact that a part of the business done by the company consists in the sending of messages for the government does not affect the right of the state to impose a reasonable privilege tax, . . ."

We therefore have to consider whether a license tax by a state on the doing of business within the state, including the transmission of government messages, by a telegraph company which has accepted the terms in the act of 1866, can be lawfully imposed. By the act of 1866, government messages are given priority over all other business, and are transmitted at the rates annually fixed by the Postmaster General; and before the telegraph companies exercise any of the powers or privileges conferred by the law, they are required to file with the Postmaster *General their[418 written acceptance of the restrictions and obligations of the act (Rev. Stat. §§ 5266 and 5268, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 3580, 3581).

This court has had occasion to consider the effect of this legislation and the acceptance of its terms by the telegraph company, so far as the transmission of government telegrams and the transaction of government business is concerned. In the case of Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067, an ordinance was held void which required the company to pay a tax of 1 cent for all full rate messages sent, and ½ cent for every message less than full rate. This was in addition to taxes paid by the company on real and personal property in the state. The ordinance was held void as levying a tax upon interstate messages, and also void in so far as it undertook to tax the transaction of government business. After declaring that as to such business, companies which had accepted the terms of the act became government agencies, this court, speaking by Mr. Chief Justice Waite, said:

"The Western Union Telegraph Company, having accepted the restrictions and obligations of this provision by Congress, occupies in Texas the position of an instrument of foreign and interstate commerce, and of a government agent for the transmission of messages on public business. Its property in the state is subject to taxation the same as other property, and it may undoubtedly be taxed in a proper way on account of its occupation and its business. The precise question now presented is whether the power to tax its occupation can be exercised by placing a specific tax on each message sent out of the state, or sent by public officers on the business of the United States."

And, after dealing with the interstate commerce feature of the law said:

"As to the government messages, it is a tax by the state on the means employed by the government of the United States to execute its constitutional powers, and there-419]fore *void. It was so decided in M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579, and has never been doubted since."

The ordinance sustained in Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Charleston, 153 U. S. 692, 38 L. ed. 871, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 637, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1094, expressly excluded interstate and government messages.

Were it otherwise, an agency of the Federal government, in the execution of its sovereign power, would be at the mercy of the taxing power of the state. It is enough, in this connection, to refer to the cases of M'Culloch v. Maryland, supra; Osborn v. Bank of United States, 9 Wheat. 738, 6 L. ed. 204; Union P. R. Co. v. Peniston, 18 Wall. 5, 21 L. ed. 787; California v. Central P. R. Co. 127 U. S. 1, 32 L. ed. 150, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 153, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1073; Central P. R. Co. v. California, 162 U. S. 91, 40 L. ed. 903, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 766.

We have, then, an ordinance which taxes, without exemption, the privilege of carrying on a business a part of which is that of a governmental agency constituted under a law of the United States and engaged in an essential part of the public business,—communication between the officers and departments of the Federal government. The ordinance, making no exception of this class of business, necessarily includes its transaction within the privilege tax levied. This part of the license exacted necessarily affects the whole, and makes the tax unconstitutional and void. In Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 32 L. ed. 311, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1380, Mr. Justice Bradley, speaking for the court, said:

"It is urged that a portion of the telegraph company's business is internal to the state of Alabama, and therefore taxable by the state. But that fact does not remove the difficulty. The tax affects the whole business without discrimination." And see Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Alabama Bd. of Assessment, 132 U. S. 472, 477, 33 L. ed. 409, 410, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 726, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161; Allen v. Pullman's Palace Car Co. 191 U. S. 171, 179, 48 L. ed. 134, 138, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 39.

For this reason we think the judgment of the Supreme Court of Alabama should be reversed, and the case remanded to that court for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

Reversed.

---

*EX PARTE IN THE MATTER OF [420
THE UNITED STATES, Petitioner.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 420–425.)

Courts — organization — expedition act — effect of Judicial Code.

1. The abolition of the Federal circuit courts by the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911 (36 Stat. at L. 1087, chap. 231, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 128), does not repeal by implication the provision of the act of February 11, 1903 (32 Stat. at L. 823, chap. 544, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1383), for the organization of a circuit court of at least three circuit judges for the expedition of certain specified cases, in view of the express provision of § 291 of the Code, that "wherever, in any law not embraced within this act, any reference is made to, or any power or duty is conferred or imposed upon, the circuit courts, such reference shall, upon the taking effect of this act, be deemed and held to refer to, and to confer such power and impose such duty upon, the district courts."

[For other cases, see Courts, V. b, 1; Statutes, III. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Courts — organization — expedition act — hearing — enforcing mandate.

2. A proceeding to enforce the mandate of the Federal Supreme Court directing the entry of a decree under which a combination of railroad terminal facilities, found to violate the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), shall be reorganized so as to act as the impartial agent of every railway line which must use such facilities, is within the intendment of the provisions of the act of February 11, 1903, for the expedition of the "hearing" of cases brought under the anti-trust act, by the organization of a circuit court of at least three circuit judges, where such mandate, notwithstanding its specific directions as to the scope and character of the decree to be entered, affords an opportunity to the defendants to submit a plan, and gives to the United States an opportunity to be heard in opposition, leaving to the court a serious and important duty to be discharged in any event, and especially in case of controversy on the subject.

[For other cases, see Courts, V. b, 1; Appeal and Error, IX. 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 10, Original.]

Submitted December 16, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

ON PETITION for a Writ of Prohibition to the District Judge of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri raising the question of his power as a single judge to enter a decree pursuant to the mandate of the Supreme Court, which on appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Missouri had reversed a decree dismissing a bill to enforce the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust act. Writ of prohibition to issue.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Attorney General Wickersham and Mr. Edward C. Crow submitted the cause for petitioner:

Where two statutes treat of the same subject, one being special and the other general, unless they are irreconcilable and inconsistent, the latter, although latest in date, will not be held to have repealed the former, but the special act will prevail in its application to the subject-matter, as far as the latter comes within its particular provisions.

1 Sutherland, Stat. Constr. 2d ed. § 274, p. 528.

When there are two or more provisions of statutes relating to the same subject-matter, they must, if possible, be construed so as to maintain the integrity of both.

Ibid.

A general statute without negative words will not repeal, by implication from their repugnancy, the provisions of a former one which is special, local, or particular, or which is limited in its application, unless there is something in the general law, or in the course of legislation upon its subject-matter, that makes it manifest that the legislature contemplated and intended a repeal.

1 Sutherland, Stat. Constr. 2d ed. § 274, pp. 526, 527.

The courts will not hold the policy of Congress to be changed by reason of the adoption of a general judicial code, unless the intention to change the policy and remove the provisions for expediting the hearing and decision of these cases is clearly expressed.

Ex parte Crow Dog (Ex parte Kang Gi Shun Ca) 109 U. S. 557, 27 L. ed. 1031, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396; United States v. Nix, 189 U. S. 199, 47 L. ed. 775, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495.

Before this court would be justified in holding that the general provisions of the Judicial Code removed the power of the four circuit judges to further hear this case, it must be shown to the court that Congress has clearly expressed its intention to remove the power to further hear the case from the said four circuit judges.

Ex parte Crow Dog (Ex parte Kang Gi Shun Ca) 109 U. S. 557, 27 L. ed. 1031, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396; 1 Sutherland, Stat. Constr. 2d ed. § 274, pp. 526, 527; United States v. Nix, 189 U. S. 199, 47 L. ed. 775, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495.

The change as to the circuit courts was merely a substitution of the district courts for the circuit courts.

United States v. Haynes, 29 Fed. 696.

In view of the saving clauses in § 299, it is entirely immaterial whether said act of February 11, 1903, was repealed, either in express terms or by implication, by the provisions of the Code; but as there is no direct repealing provision in said Code, and nothing in it inconsistent with said act, it remained in force notwithstanding it was not included therein.

1 Sutherland, Stat. Constr. 2d ed. § 272, p. 522; Great Northern R. Co. v. United States, 84 C. C. A. 93, 155 Fed. 945; Holden v. Minnesota, 137 U. S. 483, 34 L. ed. 734, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 143; Com. v. Grinstead, 108 Ky. 59, 55 S. W. 720, 57 S. W. 471; Gibson v. Ackermann, 70 Ill. App. 399.

A statute is to be taken or construed as prospective, unless its language is inconsistent with that interpretation.

1 Sutherland, Stat. Constr. 2d ed. § 335, p. 641; McEwen v. Den, 24 How. 242, 16 L. ed. 672; Hepburn v. Griswold, 8 Wall. 603, 19 L. ed. 513; Chew Heong v. United States, 112 U. S. 536, 28 L. ed. 770, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255.

Where it appears that the courts whose action is sought to be prohibited clearly had no jurisdiction of the cause originally, or of some collateral matter arising therein, a party who has objected to the jurisdiction, and has no other adequate remedy, is entitled to a writ of prohibition as of right.

Re Oklahoma, 220 U. S. 191, 208, 55 L. ed. 431, 435, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 426; Re Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 482, 488, 49 L. ed. 845, 848, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 512; Re Alix, 166 U. S. 136, 137, 41 L. ed. 948, 949, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Re Rice, 155 U. S. 396, 402, 403, 39 L. ed. 198, 200, 201, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 149; Re Cooper, 143 U. S. 472, 495, 36 L. ed. 232, 239, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 453; Smith v. Whitney, 116 U. S. 167, 173, 29 L. ed. 601, 602, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Re Morrison, 147

U. S. 14, 36, 37 L. ed. 60, 68, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 246.

Mr. H. S. Priest submitted the cause for respondent.

421] *Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

The matter before us concerns the execution of the decree in United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507. That case, which involved violations of the Sherman anti-trust act [26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200], was commenced in the circuit court of the United States for the eastern district of Missouri, was there decided by four circuit judges in consequence of the filing by the Attorney General of the United States of the certificate provided for by the act of 1903, commonly known as the expedition act (chap. 544, 32 Stat. at L. 823, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1383). While the case was here pending, the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911 [36 Stat. at L. 1087, chap. 231, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 128], was adopted, and hence our mandate was directed to the district court of the United States for the eastern district of Missouri, the successor of the circuit court.

Upon the filing of the mandate in that court, the judge of the district court being disqualified, District Judge Trieber, of the district court of Arkansas, was assigned to sit in the cause. Disagreement between the parties having arisen as to what plan of reorganization should be adopted to carry out the mandate of this court, and the court below having expressed its intention to adopt by a final decree a plan to which the government did not assent, objection was made by the United States to proceeding further, upon the ground thus stated by the court below in its opinion:

"As a certificate under the expedition act was filed when the action was originally instituted, the decree on the mandate could not be entered by a single judge, but only by at least three circuit judges, in conformity with the expedition act above referred to." [197 Fed. 447.]

The suggestion having been overruled by a formal order, and fruitless effort hav-422]ing been made to induce action *by the senior circuit judge, who was also the senior circuit judge who had participated in the original decision of the cause, the interposition of this court by the proceeding before us was invoked. The judge below, evidently only desirous of being informed as to his duty, after leave to file the application for prohibition was here granted, has submitted the issue on the opinion of the court below and upon printed argument for both parties, as if on a return to a rule to show cause why the writ should not issue.

In refusing to apply the expedition act the court below, "assuming, without deciding, that the Judicial Code does not repeal the expedition act," based its refusal upon the ground that the proceeding to enforce the mandate of this court was not within the intendment of the expedition act, because not a matter requiring the hearing contemplated by that act. This view was maintained by conclusions as to the general nature of the duty to give effect to a decree already rendered, and by considerations based upon the opinion that the decree of this court was so specific as to leave no room for discussion, and therefore to afford no occasion for organizing a tribunal constituted in accordance with the requirements of the expedition act. In the printed argument, however, upon which the matter has been here submitted, the action of the court is sought to be sustained upon a much broader ground; viz., that as, by the Judicial Code, the circuit courts were abolished, it has become no longer possible to organize a court in accordance with the expedition act, because that act by implication has been repealed by the Judicial Code. Thus, after commenting upon the provisions of the Judicial Code, it is said:

"The Judicial Code (§ 1, chap. 1) provides for a district judge for each district court.

"There is no provision for the exercise of any judicial authority by any circuit judge, except by special appointment, pursuant to the provision of § 18, chap. 1, of *the Code. He then derives his power[423 from such appointment, and from no other source. As circuit judges they have no authority in the enforcement of the jurisdiction of the district courts.

"After devolving upon the district courts the jurisdiction formerly possessed by the abolished circuit courts, the code (chap. 6) creates a circuit court of appeals, and provides (§ 117):

" 'There shall be in each circuit a court of appeals which shall consist of three judges, . . . which shall be a court of record with appellate jurisdiction as hereinafter limited and established.'

"It must be conceded, in view of this legislation, if this suit was now instituted, it could only be heard by a district judge unless some circuit judge should be appointed under the provisions of § 18, chap. 1, to discharge the functions of a district judge, and the case be brought before him in that capacity."

But the contention is faulty, because although the premise upon which it rests be conceded, the deduction drawn from it is unwarranted. It is of course undoubted that chapter 13 of the Judicial Code, while not interfering with the tenure of office of the circuit judges, abolished the circuit courts. It is also undoubted that by that act the district courts provided for were made the successors of both the circuit and districts courts which had theretofore existed, and were in a general sense endowed with the jurisdiction and power theretofore vested in such prior courts. It is moreover, beyond question, that the statute, while contemplating as a general rule the holding of district courts by district judges, and as a general rule for holding circuit courts of appeal by circuit judges, nevertheless expressly directs when the occasion requires (§ 18) the assignment by the senior judge, or the circuit justice, or the chief justice, of a circuit judge to hold a district court, and endows a judge so 424]assigned with all *the authority of a district judge (§ 19), giving power in case of such designation to hold separately at the same time a district court in such district, and to discharge all the judicial duties of the district judge therein. (§ 14.) The statute therefore clearly gives to the circuit judges the rights and powers of judges of the new district courts, and calls such powers into play when assigned according to law.

The question, therefore, reduces itself to this: Were the special provisions of the expedition act, requiring in a particular class of cases the organization of a court constituted in a particular manner, repealed by the Judicial Code? This is the only question, because if that act was not repealed by the Code, then its provisions amount to an assignment by operation of law of the circuit judges to sit as judges of the district court for the purpose of discharging the duties imposed by the act. When the issue is thus narrowed, solution is readily reached by the application of the elementary rule that a special and particular statutory provision affording a remedy for particular and specific cases is not repealed by a general law unless the repeal be express or the implication to that end be irresistible. Petri v. F. E. Creelman Lumber Co. 199 U. S. 487, 497, 50 L. ed. 281, 286, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 133. That the new district court created by the judicial act was vested with the duty of hearing and disposing of the cases provided for in the expedition act as the successor of the formerly existing circuit court, as we have already stated, is undoubted. The mere fact that the expedition act in terms refers to the organization of a circuit court would be, as a general rule, under the circumstances, of no importance, and becomes absolutely without significance, in view of the express provision of chapter 13, § 291, of the judicial act, saying: "Wherever, in any law not embraced within this act, any reference is made to, or any power or duty is conferred or imposed upon, the circuit courts, such reference shall, *upon the[425 taking effect of this act, be deemed and held to refer to, and to confer such power and impose such duty upon, the district courts."

The expedition act being therefore still in force, and its provisions being applicable to the district courts which the Judicial Code created, we think the court below erred in concluding that the United States was not entitled to a district court organized in the mode pointed out in the expedition act, unless it be, as stated by the lower court in its opinion, the subject in hand was of such a character as not to be within the scope of the expedition act. Coming to consider that question without going into any elaboration, we are of opinion that error was committed in so holding. While it is true that the mandate of this court gave certain specific directions as to the scope and character of the decree to be entered, it afforded an opportunity to the defendants to submit a plan in order to carry out the decree, and gave to the United States an opportunity to be heard in opposition to that plan, and left to the court a serious and important duty to be discharged in any event, and especially in case of controversy on the subject. These considerations, we think, brought the subject within the scope of the expedition act, and justified the request of the United States that the case be considered and a decree entered by a court composed as provided in that act.

Writ of prohibition to issue.

---

*CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND, & PA-[426 CIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

HARDWICK FARMERS ELEVATOR COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 426-435.)

Commerce — state and Federal regulations — congressional inaction.

1. Any power which a state has over in-

---

NOTE.—On state regulations requiring carrier to furnish cars to shipper as interference with interstate commerce—see notes to St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Arkansas, 54 L. ed. U. S. 699; Southern R. Co. v. Com. 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 364; and Chicago, terstate commerce because of congressional inaction ceases to exist from the moment that Congress exerts its paramount authority over the subject.

[For other cases, see Commerce, I. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — conflicting state and Federal regulations — state demurrage law.

2. Congress has so taken possession of the subject of the delivery, when called for, of railroad cars to be used in interstate traffic, by the provisions of the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288), imposing a specific duty upon railway carriers to furnish cars for such traffic upon reasonable request, and giving remedies for violations of that duty, as to invalidate, when applied to cars demanded for interstate transportation, the provisions of Minn. Laws 1907, chap. 23, requiring railway companies to furnish freight cars on demand, under penalty for each day's delay not due to certain excepted causes.

[For other cases, see Commerce, I. c; III. j, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 25.]

Argued November 5, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of Rock County in that state imposing a statutory penalty upon a carrier for its failure to furnish freight cars on demand to be used in interstate traffic. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 110 Minn. 25, 124 N. W. 819, 19 Ann. Cas. 1088.

Statement by Mr. Chief Justice White:

A statute passed by the legislature of the state of Minnesota, and known as the Minnesota reciprocal demurrage law, became effective on July 1, 1907. Laws of Minnesota, 1907, chap. 23.

The law, among other things, made it the duty of a railway company subject to its provisions, on demand by a shipper, to furnish cars for transportation of freight, at terminal points on its line of road in Minnesota, within forty-eight hours, and at intermediate points within seventy-two hours, after such demand, Sundays and legal holidays excepted. For each day's delay in furnishing cars when so demanded—except when prevented by strikes, public calamities, accident, or any cause not within the power of the railroad to prevent—the defaulting company was made liable to pay to the shipper $1 *per car, together[427 with the damages sustained and a reasonable attorney's fee.

Alleging that, in respect of delays in the deliveries to it of fourteen freight cars, pursuant to eight applications made for such cars between September 19, 1907, and October 22, 1907, the 1st section of the act in question had been violated, the Hardwick Farmers Elevator Company, defendant in error here, commenced this action in a district court of Minnesota to recover from the railway company, plaintiff in error here, penalties aggregating $218 and an attorney's fee of $50, together with the costs and disbursements of the action. As a defense, the railway company set up that the cars in question were demanded for the purpose of interstate traffic, and that the delays complained of were occasioned solely by an unusual and unprecedented congestion of traffic and a consequent scarcity of cars, arising from their use in moving traffic and commerce between the states, and that such delays therefore arose from causes not within the control and power of the company. It was also claimed that if the statute in question embraced interstate commerce, and was applied to the requisitions for cars referred to in the complaint, it would be repugnant to the commerce clause and to the due process and equal protection clauses of the Constitution of the United States. The action was tried to a jury. The trial judge refused to give instructions asked for by the railway company, embodying the constitutional objections made in its answer. A verdict was returned for the plaintiff for the amount claimed, including an attorney's fee; and a judgment entered on the verdict was affirmed by the supreme court of the state. 110 Minn. 25, 124 N. W. 819, 19 Ann. Cas. 1088.

Mr. McNeil V. Seymour argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Edward C. Stringer and Edward S. Stringer, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The Minnesota reciprocal demurrage law is in violation of the laws of Congress and of the Constitution of the United States,—especially the so-called "commerce clause."

Wilson Produce Co. v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 14 Inters. Com. Rep. 170; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Hampton, 162 Fed. 693; Oliver v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 89 Ark. 466, 117 S. W. 238; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Mayes, 201 U. S. 321, 50 L. ed. 772, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 491; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. State, 26 Okla. 62, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 137, 107 Pac. 929; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup.

R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Beatty, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 984.

As to duty of railroad company to furnish cars to shippers—see note to Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Campbell, 43 L.R.A. 225.

Ct. Rep. 802; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Com. 102 Va. 599, 46 S. E. 911; Southern R. Co. v. Com. 107 Va. 771, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 364, 60 S. E. 70; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. M. O. Coggins Co. 38 Pa. Super. Ct. 129; Southern P. Co. v. Campbell, 189 Fed. 696; Bethlehem Steel Co. v. United States, 110 C. C. A. 513, 188 Fed. 879; People v. Central R. Co. 18 Inters. Com. Rep. 33; Michie v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 151 Fed. 694; United States v. Standard Oil Co. 148 Fed. 719; Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; Bowman v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 125 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 700, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 823, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 689, 1062; McNeill v. Southern R. Co. 202 U. S. 543, 50 L. ed. 1142, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 722; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. United States, 215 U. S. 481, 54 L. ed. 292, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Arkansas, 217 U. S. 136, 54 L. ed. 698, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 802, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 476; Union P. R. Co. v. Updike Grain Co. 222 U. S. 215, 56 L. ed. 171, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 39; Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Northern P. R. Co. v. Washington, 222 U. S. 370, 56 L. ed. 237, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 160; Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 327, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169.

Mr. C. H. Christopherson argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The validity of such a statute as the one here involved is sustained by text-book writers, railroad commissioners, the Interstate Commerce Commission, legislatures, attorney generals, and courts.

Watkins, Shippers & Carriers, § 306; Calvert, Regulation of Commerce, pp. 4 et seq.; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Mayes, 201 U. S. 321, 50 L. ed. 772, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 491; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Arkansas, 217 U. S. 136, 54 L. ed. 698, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 802, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 476; New Mexico ex rel. McLean v. Denver & R. G. R. Co. 203 U. S. 38, 51 L. ed. 78, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Illinois, 177 U. S. 514, 44 L. ed. 868, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 722; Wisconsin, M. & P. R. Co. v. Jacobson, 179 U. S. 287, 45 L. ed. 194, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 115; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Arkansas, 219 U. S. 453, 55 L. ed. 290, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 275; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Haber, 169 U. S. 613, 42 L. ed. 878, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 488; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 43 L. ed. 1093, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Southern R. Co. v. Com. 107 Va. 771, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 364, 60 S. E. 70; Oliver v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 89 Ark. 466, 117 S. W. 238; Patterson v. Missouri P. R. Co. 77 Kan. 236, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 733, 94 Pac. 138; Southern R. Co. v. Atlanta Sand & Supply Co. 135 Ga. 35, 68 S. E. 807; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. State, 85 Ark. 311, 122 Am. St. Rep. 33, 107 S. W. 1180; Martin v. Oregon, R. & Nav. Co. 58 Or. 198, 113 Pac. 16; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Beatty, — Okla. —, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 984, 118 Pac. 367.

Congress has not legislated on the subject, nor has the Interstate Commerce Commission been vested with power in the premises.

Mason v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 61; Richmond Elevator Co. v. Pere Marquette R. Co. 10 Inters. Com. Rep. 629.

Mr. Chief Justice White, after making the foregoing statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

The argument at bar has been primarily concerned with the question of the validity of the Minnesota statute, considered as having been enacted in the exercise of a power assumed to exist to legislate reasonably in the absence of action by Congress on the subject of the delivery when called for, of cars to be used in interstate traffic. Thus, counsel for the defendant in error urges the correctness of the action of the supreme court of Minnesota in sustaining the statute, upon the hypothesis that Congress had not legislated on the subject, and that the act was a reasonable exertion of the power of the state. On the contrary, on behalf of the railroad company it is insisted that even upon the assumption that the state had power to deal with the subject for which the statute provides, in the absence of legislation by Congress, the enactment is nevertheless void, since it but expresses a policy which by penalization, fines, and forfeitures will substitute for a free and unrestrained flow of commerce a service favoring a particular locality and shippers within the confines of one state, to the disadvantage of others. We are not, however, called upon to test the merits of these conflicting contentions, since we are of opinion that by the act of June 29, 1906, known as the Hepburn act [34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288], amendatory of the act to regulate commerce, Congress has legislated concerning the deliveries of cars in interstate commerce by carriers subject to the act.

In the original act [24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1284] to regulate commerce the term "transportation" was declared to embrace all instrumentalities of shipment or carriage. By the Hepburn act it was declared that the term "transportation" (italics ours)—

434] *"shall include cars and other vehicles and all instrumentalities and facilities of shipment or carriage, irrespective of ownership or of any contract, express or implied, for the use thereof, and all services in connection with the receipt, delivery, elevation, and transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration or icing, storage, and handling of property transported; and it shall be the duty of every carrier subject to the provisions of this act to provide and furnish such transportation upon reasonable request therefor, and to establish through routes and just and reasonable rates applicable thereto." [§ 1.]

The purpose of Congress to specifically impose a duty upon a carrier in respect to the furnishing of cars for interstate traffic is, of course, by these provisions clearly declared. That Congress was specially concerning itself with that subject is further shown by a proviso inserted to supplement § 1 of the original act, imposing the duty under certain circumstances to furnish switch connections for interstate traffic, whereby it is specifically declared that the common carrier making such connections "shall furnish cars for the movement of such traffic to the best of its ability, without discrimination in favor of or against any such shipper." Not only is there then a specific duty imposed to furnish cars for interstate traffic upon reasonable request therefor, but other applicable sections of the act to regulate commerce give remedies for the violation of that duty. Thus, by § 8 it is provided "that in case any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act . . . shall omit to do any act, matter, or thing in this act required to be done, such common carrier shall be liable to the person or persons injured thereby for the full amount of damages sustained in consequence of any such violation of the provisions of this act, together with a reasonable counsel or attorney's fee, to be fixed by the court in every case of recovery, which attorney's fee shall be taxed and collected as part of the 435]costs in the case." *Further, by § 9 an election is given to either make complaint to the Interstate Commerce Commission or to bring, in a designated court, an action for the recovery of damages; and by § 10 it is made a criminal offense for an employee of a corporation carrier to "wilfully omit or fail to do any act, matter, or thing in this act required to be done."

As legislation concerning the delivery of cars for the carriage of interstate traffic was clearly a matter of interstate commerce regulation, even if such subject was embraced within that class of powers concerning which the state had a right to exert its authority in the absence of legislation by Congress, it must follow, in consequence of the action of Congress to which we have referred, that the power of the state over the subject-matter ceased to exist from the moment that Congress exerted its paramount and all-embracing authority over the subject. We say this because the elementary and long-settled doctrine is that there can be no divided authority over interstate commerce, and that the regulations of Congress on that subject are supreme. It results, therefore, that in a case where, from the particular nature of certain subjects, the state may exert authority until Congress acts, under the assumption that Congress, by inaction, has tacitly authorized it to do so, action by Congress destroys the possibility of such assumption, since such action, when exerted, covers the whole field, and renders the state impotent to deal with a subject over which it had no inherent, but only permissive, power. Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140.

The judgment of the Supreme Court of Minnesota must therefore be reversed, and the case remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

Judgment reversed.

---

*WILLIAM G. HANNUM, Appt., [436

v.

UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 436-439.)

Army and Navy — pay of naval officer — retirement.

The assimilative provisions of the Navy personnel act of March 3, 1899, § 13 (30 Stat. at L. 1007, chap. 413, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1072), equalizing the pay and allowances of officers of the line of the Navy and those of officers of corresponding rank in the Army, cannot be held to repeal the provisions of U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 1454, 1593, (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 1023, 1087), under which naval officers retired on furlough pay for incapacity not of service origin shall receive only one half the pay to which they would have been entitled if on leave of absence on the active list, in view of §§ 8, 9, 11, of the Navy personnel act, retaining and adding to the standards of retirement fixed for naval officers, which differ from those fixed for the Army.

[For other cases, see Army and Navy, VI. b, 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 30.]

Argued December 9, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

APPEAL from the Court of Claims to review a judgment granting a part only of the relief claimed by the petition of a naval officer retired on furlough pay for incapacity not of service origin for additional pay. Affirmed.

See same case below, 43 Ct. Cl. 320.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. George A. King argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

The court of claims puts its decision adverse to this claim upon the ground that it is only the pay of officers on the active list of the Navy that is assimilated to that of officers of the Army, and that officers on the retired list are not affected. This holding is at war with the uniform current of decision in this court as well as the court of claims, and with the practice of the executive departments under this very act.

United States v. Tyler, 105 U. S. 244, 246, 26 L. ed. 985, 986; Re Tyler, 18 Ct. Cl. 25; Franklin v. United States, 29 Ct. Cl. 6; 5 Comp. Dec. 811, May 12, 1899; 6 Comp. Dec. 585, 669, Jan. 6, 1900; 13 Comp. Dec. 630, 631, March 20, 1907; 9 Comp. Dec. 681; Welle's Case, 15 Ops. Atty. Gen. 444; De Lancy's Case, 11 Comp. Dec. 576; Delehanty's Case, 6 Comp. Dec. 557; United States v. Crosley, 196 U. S. 327, 49 L. ed. 497, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261; United States v. Miller, 208 U. S. 32, 52 L. ed. 376, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 199; United States v. Farenholt, 206 U. S. 226, 51 L. ed. 1036, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 629.

Mr. Frederick De Courcy Faust argued the cause, and, with Assistant Attorney General John Q. Thompson, filed a brief for appellee:

The special provisions of the prior law contained in U. S. Rev. Stat. §§ 1454, 1593, 1594, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 1023, 1087, are not inconsistent with, and therefore repealed by, the general terms of § 13 of the Navy personnel act.

Rodgers v. United States, 185 U. S. 83, 46 L. ed. 816, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 582; Elmer v. United States, 45 Ct. Cl. 90; Denig v. United States, 37 Ct. Cl. 383; Petri v. F. E. Creelman Lumber Co. 199 U. S. 487, 50 L. ed. 281, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 133.

It is true that in several decisions rendered shortly after the passage of the personnel act the Comptroller of the Treasury held that, under the personnel act, time on the retired list was to be counted in computing the pay of the retired officers of the Navy. These decisions were, however, in effect overruled by the court of claims in the case of Faust v. United States, 42 Ct. Cl. 94; and also by the Comptroller in 11 Comp. Dec. 419.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

By an order dated October 22, 1900, the President approved the finding of a retiring board, and directed "that Lieutenant William G. Hannum, U. S. Navy . . . be retired from active service and placed on the retired list on furlough pay, in conformity with the provisions of § 1454 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1023)." Thereafter Lieutenant *Han-[437 num was paid the compensation fixed by § 1593 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1087) viz.: "One half of the pay to which they" (officers placed on the retired list on furlough pay) "would have been entitled if on leave of absence on the active list."

Upon the contention that, in virtue of the opening clause of § 13 of the personnel act of March 3, 1899 (30 Stat. at L. 1007, chap. 413, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1072), providing that officers of the line of the Navy shall receive the same pay and allowances as officers of corresponding rank in the Army, this action was brought to recover the difference between the sums actually paid to Lieutenant Hannum and the pay fixed by Rev. Stat. § 1274 (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 905) of an officer of corresponding rank in the Army when placed on the retired list; viz., 75 per cent of the pay of the rank upon which retired.

The court of claims held that the assimilating clause of § 13 of the personnel act applied only to officers on the active list of the Navy, and did not repeal the prior law respecting the pay of that particular class of officers compulsorily retired under § 1454, Revised Statutes, for incapacity not resulting from any incident of the service. In other words, the court decided that growing out of the differences between the distinct classifications made for the retirement of Navy officers, and the pay allowed to such retired officers depending upon the causes for retirement, and the differences in this respect existing between statutory regulations as to the retirement of Army officers, that the provision of the personnel act had not repealed the specific provisions as to the retirement of Navy officers and the retired pay to which such officers were entitled. Applying the construction which it thus gave to the statute, the court denied the relief claimed, except for the sum of $31.42, balance of pay due for a short period of active service after retirement, and the government has acquiesced in such allowance. 43 Ct. Cl. 320.

We think the court was right in the view which it took *of the so-called[438 personnel act. The provisions of §§ 8, 9, and 11 of the act not only created a new class of retired officers of the Navy, but § 9 contains an express reference to "the provisions of law now in force," relating to retirements in the Navy. As said by counsel for the government:

"By those laws the pay of all officers retired for age, or incapacity resulting from long and faithful service, or wounds or injuries received in the line of duty, or from sickness and exposure therein, receive 75 per centum of the sea pay of their rank at the time of retirement, while all other officers on the retired list receive one half the sea pay of the rank held by them at the time of retirement (Rev. Stat. § 1588, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1086), except officers retired on furlough pay for incapacity not of service origin, who receive only one half the pay to which they would have been entitled if on leave of absence on the active list (§§ 1454 and 1593)."

It thus being plain that the attention of Congress, when it adopted the personnel act, was specially drawn to the existing statutory regulations relating to the retirement of Navy officers and to the causes for which retirement should be allowed, and the amount of the retired pay of such officers, and that provision was made as to these subjects varying radically from the system of Army retirement, by providing different proportions of pay for different causes of Navy retirement, it is not open, in reason, to hold that Congress intended by the provision in question of the personnel act to destroy the legislation which it sedulously incorporated and made a part of that act. In other words, as the personnel act itself emphasizes the plain intention of Congress not only not to destroy the standards of retirement fixed for Navy officers, but, on the contrary, to retain and add to those standards, as distinguished from the standards of retirement fixed for the Army, we think the claim here made was properly 439]disallowed. *Nothing could more aptly illustrate the necessity for this conclusion than by directing attention to the result which would inevitably follow from taking another view. Thus, it may not be doubted that the express object of the personnel act was to give a right of retirement for long and distinguished services, for wounds contracted in the course of the service, as distinguished from the ordinary right to retire. And yet, if the construction of the statute now urged were to be upheld, it would follow that an assimilation was made by the personnel act not only between the pay of officers on the active list of the Navy and those of the Army, but also between officers of the Navy themselves, by putting on a parity as to retirement and retired pay all officers of the Navy, irrespective of the meritorious or nonmeritorious character of their services, and despite the clear distinction in that regard expressly provided for by the terms of the personnel act.

Affirmed.

---

ELLA ANDERSON, Administratrix, etc., Plff. in Err.,
v.
J. PAUL SMITH.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 439-441.)

Trial — directed verdict — evidence.

The court properly directs a verdict for defendant in an action to recover damages from an employer for the death of an employee alleged to have been caused by the employer's failure to exercise reasonable care to provide proper appliances or a safe place for the work, where, adopting the view of the evidence most favorable to the plaintiff, it affords not even a shadow of ground for concluding that the injury suffered was caused by the employer's negligence in these respects.

[For other cases, see Trial, VI. d, 3, e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 91.]

Argued December 17, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Supreme Court of the District entered upon a verdict directed in favor of the defendant in a negligence action. Affirmed.

See same case below, 35 App. D. C. 93.

Mr. Leonard J. Mather argued the cause, and, with Mr. John Doyle Carmody, filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Mr. H. Prescott Gatley argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Samuel Maddox and Barry Mohun, filed a brief for defendant in error.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

Charles P. Anderson was one of several workmen engaged in tearing down an old building in Georgetown, in the District of Columbia. The building had been demolished as far as the first floor, and it became necessary to take down a large door frame. While Anderson was engaged with others in that work the frame fell upon him and caused injuries from which he died. An administratrix was appointed and brought this action against the employer of Anderson to recover damages, basing the right of action upon alleged negligence in failing "to provide a reasonably fit, proper, and safe place" for Anderson to work, and also in failing "to furnish reasonably fit and proper machinery, reasonably adequate and sufficient tackle or implements, or a reasonably safe and proper number of men for the removal of such door frame." At the trial, on the close of the evidence for the plaintiff, the court, being of opinion that there was an utter failure of the proof to sustain the allegations of negligence, directed the jury to return a verdict for the defendant, and the judgment entered on the verdict was affirmed by the court of appeals of the District. (35 App. D. C. 93). This writ of error was then prosecuted.

NOTE.—As to when a verdict may be directed by the court—see note to Grand Chute v. Winegar, 21 L. ed. U. S. 174.

Without attempting to state the evidence, we think there is no room whatever for the contention that the court below erred in affirming the action of the trial court in taking the case from the jury. We say this because, adopting the view most favorable to the plaintiff of the evidence, it affords not even a shadow of ground for concluding 441] *that the injury suffered was caused by the failure of the master to perform the positive duty resting on him to exercise reasonable care to provide a safe place for the work or proper appliances.

Affirmed.

---

ILLINOIS CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY OF THE STATE OF ILLINOIS, Plff. in Err.,

v.

HENDERSON ELEVATOR COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 441–447.)

Carriers — interstate freight rates — posting — erroneous quotation.

The erroneous quotation, by the agent of an interstate railway carrier, of a lower freight rate for an interstate shipment than the rate fixed by the published tariff on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, gives no right of action to a shipper who sustains injury by acting on the faith of the quoted rate, although such tariff was not posted or on file in the carrier's local station.

[For other cases, see Carriers, III. g, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 105.]

Argued and submitted December 19, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Henderson County in that state in favor of plaintiff in an action by a shipper to recover damages sustained by him as the result of an erroneous quotation of an interstate freight rate. Reversed.

See same case below, 138 Ky. 220, 127 S. W. 779.

Mr. Edmund F. Trabue argued the cause, and, with Mr. Blewett Lee, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

If the judgment below can stand, an effective way has at last been found to guarantee shippers against future changes of railroad rates, and the decision in Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 52 L. ed. 681, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; approved in Philadelphia B. & W. R. Co. v. Schubert, 224 U. S. 603, 615, 56 L. ed. 911, 917, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 589, has become a dead letter.

The carrier confidently relies on the case of Texas & P. R. Co. v. Mugg, 202 U. S. 242, 50 L. ed. 1011, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 628, in which the facts cannot be distinguished from the case at bar.

Posting the tariff was not essential.

Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. C. H. Albers Commission Co. 223 U. S. 573, 594,

---

NOTE.—Shipper's right of action against carrier for damages resulting from erroneous quotation of interstate freight rate.

Prior decisions are generally in accord with ILLINOIS C. R. CO. v. HENDERSON ELEVATOR CO. in holding that a shipper has no right of action for a loss occasioned because of the erroneous quotation by the carrier of a lower interstate freight rate than that on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Thus, in Schenberger v. Union P. R. Co. 84 Kan. 79, 33 L.R.A.(N.S.) 391, 113 Pac. 433, it was held that a carrier which, through innocent mistake, quotes a rate on merchandise which is less than that on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, in response to a request for a rate in order to fix a selling price at destination, is not liable for the loss occasioned by the shipper being compelled to pay the correct rate in order to get possession of his goods.

So, in Poor v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 418, rehearing denied in 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 469, the Interstate Commerce Commission said: "The question of the liability of carriers for the mistakes of their agents in quoting freight rates to shippers seems not to be open to further discussion. . . . While shippers rely largely upon the rates quoted by freight agents and billing clerks, the law charges them with knowledge of the lawful rates. And they will not be heard before this Com-

56 L. ed. 556, 567, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 316; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cisco Oil Mill, 204 U. S. 449, 51 L. ed. 562, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358; United States v. Miller, 223 U. S. 599, 56 L. ed. 568, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 323.

When several acts of Congress are passed touching the same subject-matter, subsequent legislation may be considered to assist in the interpretation of prior legislation upon the same subject.

United States v. Freeman, 3 How. 556, 564, 565, 11 L. ed. 724, 727, 728; Cope v. Cope, 137 U. S. 682, 688, 34 L. ed. 832, 834, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 222; Johnson v. Southern P. Co. 196 U. S. 1, 21, 49 L. ed. 363, 371, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158; Wetmore v. Markoe, 196 U. S. 68, 77, 49 L. ed. 390, 394, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 172, 2 Ann. Cas. 265; Marchie Tiger v. Western Invest. Co. 221 U. S. 286, 309, 55 L. ed. 738, 747, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 578.

The court should adopt the ruling of the Commission.

Poor v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 423. See also United States v. Alexander, 12 Wall. 177, 180, 20 L. ed. 381, 382; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 401, 50 L. ed. 515, 525, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Louisiana R. & Nav. Co. v. Holly, 127 La. 615, 53 So. 882; Schenberger v. Union P. R. Co. 84 Kan. 79, 33 L.R.A.(N.S.) 391, 113 Pac. 433; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Bell, 31 Okla. 238, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 351, 120 Pac. 987; Haurigan v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 80 Neb. 132, 113 N. W. 983, 117 mission to claim the benefit of a lower than the lawful rate on the ground that some railroad clerk has made a mistake in quoting a lower rate for a particular shipment. To permit shippers to impute negligence to carriers in quoting rates, and on that ground to enjoy the rate quoted, instead of paying the lawfully published rate, would open a broad and ample way for the payment of rebates, and for other unlawful practices, and might, in its practical results, work a repeal of the essential feature of this legislation." It was accordingly held that where a grain dealer desiring to purchase wheat at points along the line of a certain railroad, for shipment to and sale at certain points in other states, inquired of the carrier's freight agents as to the rate between such points, and the agents negligently quoted a rate lower than the rate duly published in accordance with the interstate commerce act, and the dealer purchased and sold wheat on the basis of the quoted rate, he could recover, against the carrier, on the ground of the negligence of its agents in misquoting the rates, the loss caused him by his having to pay a higher rate than that on the basis of which he purchased and sold.

---

So, in Forster Bros. Co. v. Duluth, S. S. & A. R. Co. 14 Inters. Com. Rep. 232, where it appeared that a shipper had assembled certain property at certain stations for shipment, in reliance upon information had from representatives of the carrier as to the rate to be applied on such shipments, and that subsequently he was notified that this rate did not apply, the Commission said: "It is unfortunate that shippers should be misled to their injury by erroneous information furnished by representatives of carriers as to the rate in effect. It is, of course, the duty of carriers' agents to furnish correct information as to the proper application of the lawful established rates. However, the law requires that tariffs shall be open to public inspection, and therefore shippers are themselves charged with notice of the rate lawfully applicable. The Commission cannot consider an erroneous rate quotation made by an agent of a carrier as the basis for an award or reparation to a shipper who thereby suffers damage. Collusion between the carrier and a shipper which it desired to favor, for protection of other than the tariff rates, would be rendered too easy of acomplishment."

And in Texas & P. R. Co. v. Mugg, 202 U. S. 242, 50 L. ed. 1011, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 628, it was held, reversing 98 Tex. 352, 107 Am. St. Rep. 633, 83 S. W. 800, that where a carrier has negligently made and quoted to a shipper rates on interstate shipments of coal, upon which he has relied in contracting for the coal, selling at prices based on such rates, which were lower than the rates which had been duly published, printed, and posted as required by the interstate commerce act, and the carrier, as required by the act, collects the prescribed rates, the shipper cannot recover against the carrier for damages occasioned by its misrepresentation of the rate.

To the same effect are Alabama Lumber & Export Co. v. Philadelphia, B. & W. R. Co. 19 Inters. Com. Rep. 295, and Texas & P. R. Co. v. Leslie, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 131 S. W. 824, motion for rehearing overruled 131 S. W. 827.

Failure to post the rate in the carrier's local station was regarded both by the state court in the principal case (130 Ky. 220, 127 S. W. 779), and by a Federal circuit court of appeals in Chandler v. Andrews, 113 C. C. A. 15, 192 Fed. 543, as sufficient to change the result, on the theory that the shipper was thereby prevented from actually learning the facts for himself.

A somewhat analogous case is Atlanta, K. & N. R. Co. v. Horne, 106 Tenn. 73, 59 S. W. 134, where it was held that where an initial carrier has negligently misquoted a through rate on an interstate shipment, approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the shipper is entitled to a delivery of the goods from the connecting carrier at the point of destination upon payment or tender of the rate quoted, in N. W. 100, 16 Ann. Cas. 450; Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. v. Bundich, 94 Ga. 775, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 289, 21 S. E. 995; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Maysville Brick Co. 132 Ky. 643, 116 S. W. 1183; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Morton, 143 Ky. 201, 136 S. W. 158; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Coquillard Wagon Works, 147 Ky. 530, 144 S. W. 1080.

Messrs. James W. Clay and J. F. Clay submitted the cause for defendant in error. Mr. A. Y. Clay was on the brief.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

The Henderson Elevator Company, defendant in error, as plaintiff below, brought this action to recover damages from the railroad company, the plaintiff in error, because of a loss alleged to have been sustained by an erroneous quotation by the agent of the railroad company of the freight rate on corn shipped in interstate commerce from the station of the railroad company at Henderson, Kentucky. A rate of 10 cents per hundred pounds was quoted by the agent when in fact, the rate as fixed by the published tariff on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and effective at the time, was 13½ cents per hundred pounds. On the trial before a jury the court instructed that if the loss sustained by the plaintiff "was occasioned and brought about by defendant's failure to have posted or on file in its office in Henderson, Kentucky, its freight tariff rate in question, and by reason of any erroneous quotation of defendant of its freight rate from and to the points in question, of which plaintiff complains," "there should be a verdict for[447 the plaintiff. A verdict having been rendered for the plaintiff in accordance with this instruction, and the judgment entered thereon having been subsequently affirmed by the court of appeals of Kentucky (138 Ky. 220, 127 S. W. 779), this writ of error was sued out.

It is to us clear that the action of the court below in affirming the judgment of the trial court, and the reasons upon which that action was based, were in conflict with the rulings of this court, interpreting and applying the act to regulate commerce. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. United States, 212 U. S. 504, 53 L. ed. 627, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 309; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Mugg, 202 U. S. 242, 50 L. ed. 1011, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 628; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802. That the failure to post does not prevent the case from being controlled by the settled rule established by the cases referred to is now beyond question. Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. C. H. Albers Commission Co. 223 U. S. 594 (a), 56 L. ed. 567, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 316.

Reversed.

---

the absence of proof by the latter carrier that it has published the approved rate in the manner directed by the Commission, so as to bring it to the attention of the public. But the Federal Supreme Court in the principal case holds that the failure to post is unimportant, citing Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Albers Commission Co. 223 U. S. 573, 56 L. ed. 556, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 316, which holds that posting is not essential to make rates legally operative, and is required only as a means of affording special facilities to the public for ascertaining the rate actually in force.

Reparation will be awarded when, because of indefiniteness or ambiguity in published tariffs, a rate higher than the proper one is charged. The classification of an article of commerce should be plainly and clearly stated in terms that the shipping public may readily understand. Pacific Coast Biscuit Co. v. Spokane, P. & S. R. R. Co. 20 Inters. Com. Rep. 546.

And reparation will be awarded when both carrier's agent and shipper are misled as to rates because of a defect in the company's tariff in not distinguishing between two different stations of the same name in the same state, whereby a higher rate is collected than was understood to be in force over another road which the shipper would have used had the defect not existed. Larson Lumber Co. v. Great Northern R. Co. 21 Inters. Com. Rep. 474.

Though strictly not within the scope of this note because the rate involved was not controlled by the Interstate Commerce Commission, mention may appropriately be made of the case of Urquhart v. Canadian P. R. Co. 2 Alberta L. Rep. 280, which, as set out in Canadian Ten Year Dig. 1901–1911 col. 3127, holds that if the station agent in the ordinary course of his duty, upon request of a prospective shipper, misrepresents, even though innocently and without fraud, the rate of freight on the goods to be shipped, knowing that the shipper intends to rely upon the rate quoted in making contracts for the sale of the goods, the railway company is liable in an action of deceit for the damage occasioned to the shipper by his reliance upon the agent's statement,—and this even where the agent was supplied with full and accurate information by the company, and the agent made such untrue representation without the knowledge of the company.

Generally, as to contracts fixing rates other than those established in accordance with the interstate commerce act, see note to Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Bell, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 351.

CHARLES T. PRESTON, Plff. in Err.,
v.
CITY OF CHICAGO et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 447–450.)

Error to state court — Federal question — statutory construction.

1. A judgment of the highest state court that the claim of a policeman who has been dropped from the pay rolls, that he was an officer of the classified service, and could not be summarily removed from office without denying him due process of law, was not well founded, because, upon a proper construction of the state statutes, the officer was not in the classified service, and was therefore subject to removal, presents no Federal question which will sustain a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 1584–1594, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — Federal question — decision on non-Federal ground.

2. A judgment of a state court denying the petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the restoration to the pay rolls of the name of a policeman who had been removed from office, which rests in part upon the ruling that the right to the relief prayed was in any event barred by long delay and laches, cannot be reviewed by a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court, although it was contended that he was denied due process of law by his summary removal.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 1465–1528, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — jurisdiction — question not involved in record.

3. The question, What rights, if any, of a policeman in a pension fund are protected by the Federal Constitution? is not so involved in a proceeding by mandamus to compel the restoration to the pay rolls of the name of a policeman who had been summarily removed from office, as to sustain a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the highest court of a state to review a judgment denying the writ.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2267–2276, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 195.]

Submitted December 16, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of State of Illinois to review a judgm which affirmed a judgment of the Supe Court of Cook County in that state den a petition for a writ of mandamus to pel the restoration to the pay rolls of name of a policeman who had been marily removed from office. Dismissed want of jurisdiction.

See same case below, 246 Ill. 26, 9 E. 591.

Messrs. Allen B. Chilcoat and Step A. Day submitted the cause for plai in error:

A motion to dismiss will be denied w a claim of Federal right under the Co tution of the United States has been cially set up and denied by the decisio the state court, whether such question pears to have been expressly passed u or must have been denied by the state c in reaching its conclusion.

Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Elliott, U. S. 530, 46 L. ed. 673, 22 Sup. Ct. 446; Kaukauna Water Power Co. v. G Bay & M. Canal Co. 142 U. S. 254, L. ed. 1004, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 173; Det Ft. W. & B. I. R. Co. v. Osborn, 189 U 383, 47 L. ed. 860, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. Schlemmer v. Buffalo, R. & P. R. Co. U. S. 1, 11, 51 L. ed. 681, 685, 27 Sup. Rep. 407; Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. diana, 194 U. S. 579, 48 L. ed. 1124 Sup. Ct. Rep. 767; Louisville Gas Co Citizens' Gaslight Co. 115 U. S. 683, 29 L. ed. 510, 515, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. Chicago L. Ins. Co. v. Needles, 113 U 574, 579, 28 L. ed. 1084, 1087, 5 Sup. Rep. 681; Bohanan v. Nebraska, 118 U 231, 30 L. ed. 71, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1049; Chicago Street R. Co. v. Illinois, 201 U 506, 519, 520, 50 L. ed. 845, 850, 851, Sup. Ct. Rep. 518.

The Federal question presented is whe the decision of the state court permit petitioner to be deprived of his rights policeman in good standing and with ab to perform the duties of his office, witho hearing and without charges prefe against him, is not a denial of due pro of law, and equal protection of the l

NOTE.—On the general subject of writs of error from United States Supreme Court to state courts—see notes to Martin v. Hunter, 4 L. ed. U. S. 97; Hamblin v. Western Land Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 267; Re Buchanan, 39 L. ed. U. S. 884; and Kipley v. Illinois, 42 L. ed. U. S. 998.

On what adjudications of state courts can be brought up for review in the Supreme Court of the United States by writ of error to those courts—see note to Apex Transp. Co. v. Garbade, 62 L.R.A. 513.

On how and when question must be ra and decided in a state court in order make a case for a writ of error from Supreme Court of the United States— note to Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. McGrew L.R.A. 33.

On writs of error to state courts in c involving questions of due process of la see note to Burt v. Smith, 51 L. ed. U 121.

and the abridgment of his privileges and immunities as a citizen of the United States.

United States ex rel. Turner v. Fisher, 222 U. S. 204, 56 L. ed. 165, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 37; Garfield v. United States, 211 U. S. 249, 53 L. ed. 168, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 62; United States v. Wickersham, 201 U. S. 390, 397, 50 L. ed. 798, 800, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 469; Garfield v. United States, 211 U. S. 249, 53 L. ed. 168, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 62.

Whether the proceedings taken by the defendants in error amounted to due process of law must be determined by this court for itself, since the jurisdiction of this court has been properly invoked by the petitioner.

Louisville Gas Co. v. Citizens' Gaslight Co. 115 U. S. 683, 696, 29 L. ed. 510, 515, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Chicago L. Ins. Co. v. Needles, 113 U. S. 574, 579, 28 L. ed. 1084, 1087, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Schlemmer v. Buffalo, R. & P. R. Co. 205 U. S. 1, 11, 51 L. ed. 681, 685, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407.

The opinion in the case at bar does not pass upon the so-called question of "laches," except by reference to the cases of Kenneally v. Chicago, 220 Ill. 485, 77 N. E. 155, and Schultheis v. Chicago, 240 Ill. 167, 88 N. E. 563.

It has been held in Illinois, in unmistakable terms, that mandamus is a civil action.

Langan v. Milk's Grove Special Drainage Dist. 239 Ill. 438, 88 N. E. 182; Cleary v. Hoobler, 207 Ill. 99, 69 N. E. 967; Roodhouse v. Briggs, 194 Ill. 435, 62 N. E. 778; Chicago G. W. R. Co. v. People, 179 Ill. 441, 53 N. E. 986.

Laches plays no part, and cannot be considered in this connection.

Wehrman v. Conklin, 155 U. S. 314, 326, 39 L. ed. 167, 173, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 129; Abraham v. Ordway, 158 U. S. 422, 39 L. ed. 1040, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 894.

Where there is a clear Federal question in the case, and the attempt is made to defeat the jurisdiction of this court by a claim of an independent ground of local or general law sufficient to sustain the judgment, this court will examine such question to see whether it is sound and well founded. And the state court cannot arbitrarily inject such a ground into its opinion to defeat the jurisdiction of this court.

Leathe v. Thomas, 207 U. S. 93, 99, 52 L. ed. 118, 121, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 30; Johnson v. Risk, 137 U. S. 300, 307, 34 L. ed. 683, 686, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 111; Terre Haute & I. R. Co. v. Indiana, 194 U. S. 579, 48 L. ed. 1124, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 767.

Messrs. William H. Sexton and John W. Beckwith submitted the cause for defendants in error:

If the decision of the state court is upon grounds broad enough to support the judgment, independent of any Federal question, there is no Federal issue involved in the case so as to give this court jurisdiction, and it will not entertain a writ of error.

Rutland R. Co. v. Central Vermont R. Co. 159 U. S. 630, 40 L. ed. 284, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 113; Klinger v. Missouri, 13 Wall. 263, 20 L. ed. 637; Capital Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 172 U. S. 425, 43 L. ed. 502, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 202; Harrison v. Morton, 171 U. S. 38, 43 L. ed. 63, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 742; Pierce v. Somerset R. Co. 171 U. S. 641, 43 L. ed. 316, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 64; Wade v. Lawder, 165 U. S. 624, 41 L. ed. 851, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; Bacon v. Texas, 163 U. S. 207, 41 L. ed. 132, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1023; Seneca Nation of Indians v. Christy, 162 U. S. 283, 40 L. ed. 970, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 828; Gillis v. Stinchfield, 159 U. S. 658, 40 L. ed. 295, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 131.

This court will not disturb the judgment of a state court rendered upon the question of laches.

Moran v. Horsky, 178 U. S. 205, 44 L. ed. 1038, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 856; Pittsburgh & L. A. Iron Co. v. Cleveland Iron Min. Co. 178 U. S. 270, 44 L. ed. 1065, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 931; Marrow v. Brinkley, 129 U. S. 178, 32 L. ed. 654, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 267; Rutland R. Co. v. Central Vermont R. Co. 159 U. S. 630, 40 L. ed. 284, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 113.

The opinion of the state court is to be looked to for the purpose of showing whether a particular question was considered and decided, in determining whether this court may take jurisdiction.

San José Land & Water Co. v. San José Ranch Co. 189 U. S. 180, 47 L. ed. 768, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 487; Mallett v. North Carolina, 181 U. S. 589, 45 L. ed. 1015, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 241; Egan v. Hart, 165 U. S. 188, 41 L. ed. 680, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 300; Dibble v. Bellingham Bay Land Co. 163 U. S. 63, 41 L. ed. 72, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 939; Sayward v. Denny, 158 U. S. 180, 39 L. ed. 941, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 777; Kreiger v. Shelby R. Co. 125 U. S. 39, 31 L. ed. 675, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 752; Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. v. Butchers' Union S. H. & L. S. L. Co. 120 U. S. 141, 30 L. ed. 614, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 472; Fire Asso. of Philadelphia v. New York, 119 U. S. 110, 30 L. ed. 342, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108; Gross v. United States Mortg. Co. 108 U. S. 477, 27 L. ed. 795, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 940; Crossley v. New Orleans, 108 U. S. 105, 27 L. ed. 667, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 300; Murdock v. Memphis, 20 Wall. 590, 22 L. ed. 429; Delmas v. Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co. 14 Wall. 661, 20 L. ed. 757.

While the ascertainment of the existence of due process of law is the final province of this court, nevertheless, where the state court has decided that a particular formality was or was not essential under the state statute, such decision presents no Federal question.

Castillo v. McConnico, 168 U. S. 674, 42 L. ed. 622, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 229; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Backus, 154 U. S. 421, 38 L. ed. 1031, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114; Kentucky R. Tax Cases, 115 U. S. 322, 29 L. ed. 414, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57; Baltimore Traction Co. v. Baltimore Belt R. Co. 151 U. S. 137, 38 L. ed. 102, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 294; Marchant v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 153 U. S. 380, 38 L. ed. 751, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 894; Davidson v. New Orleans, 96 U. S. 97, 24 L. ed. 616.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

Upon the assertion that he had been wrongfully dropped "from the pay roll of the policemen of the city of Chicago," plaintiff in error commenced proceedings in mandamus in the state court to compel the placing of his name upon the said pay rolls, to the end that he might thereafter draw the pay alleged to be due him as a police patrolman "as the other police patrolmen in said city of Chicago are paid." This writ of error is prosecuted to a judgment of the supreme court of Illinois (246 Ill. 26, 92 N. E. 591), affirming a judgment sustaining a demurrer to the petition in mandamus and denying the writ.

Among other contentions made by the 450]plaintiff in error *and passed upon by the supreme court of Illinois was one to the effect that he had become an officer of the classified service, and entitled to the protection against removal conferred by an act styled the civil service act, and that hence his removal from office without written charges preferred against him, and without notice and an opportunity to be heard, amounted to a denial of due process of law within the purview of the state Constitution and of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. But the court below held these claims not maintainable, on the ground that, upon a proper construction of the state statutes, the petitioner was not in the classified service, and was subject to removal. This ruling is binding upon us and presents no Federal question. Taylor v. Beckham, 178 U. S. 548, 44 L. ed. 1187, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 890, 1009. Even, however, if we were at liberty to disregard the action of the state court and attribute to the plaintiff in error the status claimed by him, as in addition the court below held that the right to the relief prayed was in any event barred by long delay and laches, this would be sufficient to prevent us from reviewing the alleged Federal question. Moran v. Horsky, 178 U. S. 205, 207, 44 L. ed. 1038, 1039, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 856.

It is strenuously insisted in argument that the plaintiff in error was entitled to participate in a police pension fund to which he had contributed from his wages for a long period of time, and therefore to remove him was additionally to deprive him of property without due process of law, in violation of the 14th Amendment. But the specific relief prayed was a writ of mandamus to restore plaintiff in error to the pay rolls as a policeman. What, if any, rights in the pension fund referred to were protected by the Constitution of the United States we therefore may not here consider, and that question, from a Federal point of view, is not concluded by the judgment dismissing the writ of error which we shall enter.

Writ of error dismissed.

---

*PEOPLE OF THE STATE OF[451
ILLINOIS EX REL. CHARLES H. GERSCH, Plff. in Err.,
v.
CITY OF CHICAGO et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 451.)

Error to state court — dismissal — defective record.

A writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the highest court of a state must be dismissed where the record does not contain the final judgment to which the writ of error is directed.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VII. 1, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 474.]

Submitted December 16, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Superior Court of Cook County in that State denying a petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the restoration to the pay rolls of the name of a policeman who had been summarily removed from office. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

See same case below, 250 Ill. 551, 95 N. E. 630.

Messrs. Allen B. Chilcoat and Stephen A. Day submitted the cause for plaintiff in error.

Messrs. William H. Sexton and John W. Beckwith submitted the cause for defendants in error.

For contentions of counsel, see their briefs as reported in Preston v. Chicago, ante, 293.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

This is a companion case to Preston v. Chicago, No. 195, just disposed of [226 U. S. 447, ante, 293, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 177]. Unlike the record in the Preston Case, however, the record in this case does not contain the final judgment to which the writ of error is directed. As we cannot assume that a judgment was in fact entered in the supreme court of Illinois, it results that we are without authority to exert jurisdiction.

Writ of error dismissed.

---

452] *PATRICIO UBEDA, Appt.,
v.
AGAPITO ZIALCITA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 452–455.)

Trademarks — infringement — imposition on public as defense.

1. The prohibition against any action founded upon the infringement of a trademark, which is made by Philippine Commission act No. 666, § 9, where the complaining party is himself guilty of imposing upon the public, defeats an infringement suit brought by a person who is infringing an earlier trademark of a third person, in widespread use and well known, although the owner thereof may have had no registered title.

[For other cases, see Trademark, IV. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — retrospective laws — treaty rights.

2. The application to defeat a suit founded upon the infringement of a trademark acquired under a grant from the Spanish governor general, of the rule laid down by the Philippine Commission act No. 666, § 9, denying any recovery if the complaining party is himself guilty of imposition upon the public, does not give a retrospective effect to that section as against the earlier Spanish grant, contrary to general principles of interpretation and to the treaty of Paris of April 11, 1899 (30 Stat. at L. 1760), art. 13, providing that the rights of property secured by copyrights and patents shall continue to be respected, since the treaty, if applicable, cannot be supposed to have been intended to contravene the principle of § 9, which only codifies common morality and fairness, and is therefore not retrospective in any sense, as it introduces no new rule.

[For other cases, see Statutes, II. v; Treaties, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Trademarks — registration — deceptive use.

3. The provisions of the Philippine Commission act No. 666, § 14, making a Spanish certificate of registration of a trademark conclusive evidence of title, must be taken to be subject to general principles of law embodied in other sections, e. g., § 9, prohibiting any action founded upon the infringement of a trademark when the complaining party has himself been guilty of imposing upon the public.

[For other cases, see Trademark, VI., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 77.]

Submitted December 6, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

APPEAL from the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the Court of First Instance of the City of Manila, in favor of defendant in a suit founded upon the infringement of a trademark. Affirmed.

See same case below, 13 Philippine, 11.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Aldis B. Browne, Alexander Britton, Evans Browne, and W. A. Kincaid submitted the cause for appellant.

No appearance for appellee.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

The plaintiff and appellant is a manufacturer of gin, and sues to restrain the use of a trademark like his own, *and[453 to recover double damages. The trademark consists of two concentric circles having the words Ginebra de Tres Campanas, and the plaintiff's name between them, and in the center a device of three bells (tres campanas) connected at the top by a ribbon and some ears of grain, with the words Extra Superior under the mouth of the bells. The plaintiff's autograph is reproduced across the middle of the circular space and the bells. More detail is unnecessary; but it may be mentioned that the plaintiff claims title under a grant from the Governor General dated December 16, 1898, and that the mark covered by the alleged grant had underneath the circles the word Amberes (Antwerp), indicating imported gin, while that now used has Manila in the same place, and is applied to gin made in the Philippines.

It may be assumed that the defendant's design has a deceptive resemblance to the plaintiff's notwithstanding a change from Tres Campanas to Dos Campanas, and the substitution of the defendant's autograph for the plaintiff's. And whether the plaintiff has a title to the mark now used or not, it also may be assumed that he might recover under the Philippine act of March 6, 1903, No. 666, § 4, Compiled Acts, p. 180, § 58, but for the following facts, on which the defendant had judgment in both courts below.

---

NOTE.—On deception as bar to relief for infringement of trademark—see notes to Clinton E. Worden & Co. v. California Fig Syrup Co. 47 L. ed. U. S. 282; Joseph v. Macowsky, 19 L.R.A. 53; Johnson v. Seabury, 12 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1201; and Nelson v. I. H. Winchell & Co. 23 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1151.

The plaintiff's trademark in its turn closely imitates in most particulars a much earlier and widely known trademark of Van Den Bergh & Company of Antwerp. It is true that in the latter there is but one bell, and that the title correspondingly is Ginebra de la Campana, but the intent to get the benefit of the Van Den Bergh device is too obvious to be doubted. We do not go into the particulars of the different registrations, etc., of this latter, beginning with a Spanish certificate to the Antwerp firm in 1873. For although the plaintiff elaborately argues that under the Spanish régime trademark rights could be 454] *acquired only by statutory registered grant; that Van Den Bergh & Company never acquired any such rights in the Philippines; that if they did they lost them by failing to register or lapse of time; and that he was free to get a registered title as against any certificate of theirs,—those questions are immaterial in this case. With or without right, the earlier trademark was in widespread use and well known, and the obvious intent and necessary effect of imitating it was to steal some of the good will attaching to it and to defraud the public. The courts below found the fraud and that both plaintiff's and defendant's marks were nothing more than variations upon the earlier mark.

In such a case the Philippine act denies the plaintiff's right to recover. Act No. 666, § 9. See § 12, and No 744, § 4. Compiled Acts, §§ 63, 66. It is said that to apply the rule there laid down would be giving a retrospective effect to § 9 as against the alleged Spanish grant of December 16, 1898, to the plaintiff, contrary to general principles of interpretation and to article 13 of the treaty of Paris, April 11, 1899 [30 Stat. at L. 1760], providing that the rights of property secured by copyrights and patents shall continue to be respected. But the treaty, if applicable, cannot be supposed to have been intended to contravene the principle of § 9, which only codifies common morality and fairness. The section is not retrospective in any sense, for it introduces no new rule. See Manhattan Medicine Co. v. Wood, 108 U. S. 218, 27 L. ed. 706, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436. Imposition on the public is not a ground on which the plaintiff can come into court, but it is a very good ground for keeping him out of it. Even if Van Den Bergh & Company had no registered title and no such other rights under Spanish colonial law as they have under act No. 666, § 4, the imposition on the public was still there, and though not a matter of which the defendant could complain, it was a matter to which he could refer when the plaintiff sought to exclude him from doing just what the plaintiff had done himself. This *certainly would[455 have been our law, and we should assume, if material, that the same doctrine would have prevailed in Spain, in the absence of the clearest proof to the contrary, which we do not find in the record or the brief.

What we have said with reference to the plaintiff's claim under the treaty applies in substance to his argument that, by § 14 of act No. 666, the Spanish certificate is conclusive evidence of the plaintiff's title. That section must be taken to be subject to general principles of law embodied in other sections to which we have referred.

If there was any claim intended to be put forward on the ground of unfair competition, the prayers of the complaint and the plaintiff's testimony show that such claim depended fundamentally on the alleged infringement of trademark. Any matters of fact in dispute were sufficiently disposed of by the concurrent findings of the courts below.

Judgment affirmed.

---

PITTSBURG STEEL COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
BALTIMORE EQUITABLE SOCIETY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 455–459.)

Constitutional law — impairing contract obligation — change of remedy — stockholder's liability.

1. The change in the remedy afforded to a creditor of a corporation, where stockholders have not fully paid their subscriptions for stock, by substituting for the existing right of any creditor to recover in an action at law against any such stockholder up to the extent of the balance due on his unpaid subscription an exclusive remedy by bill in equity on behalf of all the creditors who may come in against the resident shareholders, as is done by Md. act of 1908, chap. 305, which abates all pending actions, saving to the creditor in such actions the right to become a party to the bill, does not impair the obligation of any contract existing between creditor and shareholder.

NOTE.—On impairment of contract obligations by changing mode of enforcing stockholder's liability—see notes to Henley v. Myers, 54 L. ed. U. S. 240, and Myers v. Knickerbocker Trust Co. 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1171.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 1507–1516, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Statutes — who may assail validity.

2. One whose rights are not affected by the period of limitation established by a statute cannot be heard to question the constitutionality of such limitation.

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. d, 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 103.]

Argued December 18 and 19, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Court of Appeals of the State of Maryland to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Superior Court of the City of Baltimore, dismissing an action brought by a creditor of a corporation upon a stockholder's unpaid subscription. Affirmed.

See same case below, 113 Md. 77, 77 Atl. 255.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Edgar Allen Poe argued the cause, and, with Messrs. J. Kemp Bartlett, L. B. Keene Claggett, and R. Howard Bland, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

Prior to the passage of Md. Laws 1908, chap. 305, a creditor of a Maryland corporation had the choice of two remedies against a stockholder whose subscription was unpaid in whole or in part; he could either proceed at law, as the plaintiff in error did in this case, or he could proceed by bill in equity in the nature of a creditors' bill.

Pittsburg Steel Co. v. Baltimore Equitable Soc. 113 Md. 81, 77 Atl. 255; Matthews v. Albert, 24 Md. 527; Norris v. Johnson, 34 Md. 485.

The court of appeals of Maryland had expressly held that the proceeding by bill in equity (which is the only remedy left to the creditor since the passage of this statute ) was by no means as adequate and efficacious as a suit at law.

Norris v. Wrenschall, 34 Md. 492; Colton v. Mayer, 90 Md. 716, 47 L.R.A. 617, 78 Am. St. Rep. 436, 45 Atl. 874.

Contract obligations were impaired by this statute.

Myers v. Knickerbocker Trust Co. 1 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1171, 71 C. C. A. 199, 139 Fed. 111; McCracken v. Hayward, 2 How. 608, 611, 11 L. ed. 397, 398; Seibert v. Lewis (Seibert v. United States) 122 U. S. 284, 294, 30 L. ed. 1161, 1165, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1190; Louisiana v. New Orleans, 102 U. S. 203, 206, 26 L. ed. 132, 133; Bryan v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 685, 693, 34 L. ed. 312, 314, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972; Edwards v. Kearzey, 96 U. S. 595, 24 L. ed. 793; Rees v. Watertown, 19 Wall. 107, 22 L. ed. 72; Dexter v. Edmands, 89 Fed. 469; Western Nat. Bank v. Reckless, 96 Fed. 70.

The constitutionality of the limitation provision of chapter 305 is not to be determined by ascertaining whether or not the claim of the plaintiff in error would have become barred during the interval in question.

Ulman v. Baltimore, 72 Md. 596, 11 L.R.A. 224, 20 Atl. 141, 21 Atl. 709.

Messrs. Wilton Snowden, Jr., and Vernon Cook argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

One cannot complain of the unconstitutionality of a statute if he is not damaged by its passage and the operation of the terms thereof.

6 Am. & Eng. Enc. 1090; 8 Cyc. 787, 788; Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. p. 232; Lampasas v. Bell, 180 U. S. 283, 284, 45 L. ed. 530, 531, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 368; Red River Valley Bank v. Craig, 181 U. S. 558, 45 L. ed. 1000, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 703; Clark v. Kansas City, 176 U. S. 114, 44 L. ed. 392, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 284; Albany County v. Stanley, 105 U. S. 305, 26 L. ed. 1044; Brown v. Ohio Valley R. Co. 79 Fed. 176; Oshkosh Waterworks Co. v. Oshkosh, 187 U. S. 437, 47 L. ed. 249, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234; Com. v. Wright, 79 Ky. 22, 42 Am. Rep. 203; McKinney v. State, 3 Wyo. 719, 16 L.R.A. 710, 30 Pac. 293; Marshall v. Donovan, 10 Bush, 681.

The rights which the creditor obtained when he was allowed to institute an individual action against a stockholder were rather precarious.

Emmert v. Smith, 40 Md. 129; Strauss v. Heiss, 48 Md. 292; Republic Iron & Steel Co. v. Carlton, 189 Fed. 126; Norris v. Johnson, 34 Md. 489; Crawford v. Rohrer, 59 Md. 599.

The remedy subsisting in a state when and where the contract is made and is to be performed is a part of its obligation, but the construction given by the highest court of the state to the statute, at and before the contract, was made determines the meaning of the contract.

Seibert v. Lewis (Seibert v. United States) 122 U. S. 284, 30 L. ed. 1161, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1190; Sauer v. New York, 206 U. S. 549, 51 L. ed. 1182, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 686; Republic Iron & Steel Co. v. Carlton, 189 Fed. 126.

There can be no vested right to a particular remedy.

Cooley, Const. Lim. p. 515; Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 200, 4 L. ed. 529, 549.

A state can modify, change, enlarge, or repeal an existing remedy, provided that it does not thereby impair substantial rights.

Sturges v. Crowninshield, supra; Tennessee v. Sneed, 96 U. S. 69, 24 L. ed. 610; Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 315, 11 L. ed. 144; Fourth Nat. Bank v. Francklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 30 L. ed. 825, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 757; Hill v. Merchants Mut. Ins. Co. 134 U. S. 515, 33 L. ed. 994, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 589; Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 51 L. ed. 1163, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Henley v. Myers, 215 U. S. 373, 54 L. ed. 240, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148; Seibert v. Lewis (Seibert v. United States) 122 U. S. 284, 30 L. ed. 1161, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1190; Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 553, 18 L. ed. 403, 409.

There is a strong presumption in favor of the constitutionality of a statute.

Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch. 87, 128, 3 L. ed. 162, 175; Ex parte Garland, 4 Wall. 333, 382, 18 L. ed. 366, 371; Pine Grove Twp. v. Talcott, 19 Wall. 666, 674, 22 L. ed. 227, 232; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Matthews, 174 U. S. 96, 43 L. ed. 909, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609.

Statutes pertaining to the remedy are merely such as relate to the course and form of proceedings, but do not affect the substance of a judgment when pronounced.

Morton v. Valentine, 15 La. Ann. 150.

The state may abolish one class of courts, and create another. It may give a new and additional remedy for a right or equity already in existence; and it may abolish old remedies and substitute new, or even without substituting any, if a reasonable remedy remains.

Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. p. 516; Stocking v. Hunt, 3 Denio, 274; Van Rensselaer v. Read, 26 N. Y. 558; Lennon v. New York, 55 N. Y. 361; Parker v. Shannonhouse, 1 N. C. (Phill. L.) 209.

An existing remedy may be modified, and the modified remedy made applicable to existing rights.

Phelps's Appeal, 98 Pa. 546.

If a particular form of proceeding is prohibited, and another is left or provided which affords an effective and reasonable mode of enforcing the right, the obligation of the contract is not impaired.

Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143; Huntzinger v. Brock, 3 Grant, Cas. 243; Evans v. Montgomery, 4 Watts & S. 218; Read v. Frankfort Bank, 23 Me. 318.

The rule seems to be that in modes of proceeding and of forms to enforce the contract, the legislature has the control, and may enlarge, limit, or alter them, provided that it does not deny a remedy, or so embarrass it with conditions as seriously to impair the value of the right.

Bronson v. Kinzie, 1 How. 311, 11 L. ed. 143; Tennessee v. Sneed, 96 U. S. 69, 24 L. ed. 610.

Were this court to lean towards the decisions of any other state tribunal, it would naturally incline towards the established law of the state of Maryland, as declared by its court of appeals in the following cases:

Miners & M. Bank v. Snyder, 100 Md. 58, 68 L.R.A. 312, 108 Am. St. Rep. 390, 59 Atl. 707; Murphy v. Wheatley, 100 Md. 358, 59 Atl. 704; Pittsburg Steel Co. v. Baltimore Equitable Soc. 113 Md. 77, 77 Atl. 255; Bettendorf Axle Co. v. Field, 114 Md. 487, 79 Atl. 724; Pittsburg Forge Co. v. Safe Deposit & Trust Co. 116 Md. 697, 84 Atl. 335.

Among the most striking examples of changes of the form of remedy that do not impair the obligation of the contract are the following cases:

Sturges v. Crowninshield, 4 Wheat. 122, 4 L. ed. 529; Tennessee v. Sneed, 96 U. S. 69, 24 L. ed. 610; Louisiana v. New Orleans, 102 U. S. 203, 26 L. ed. 132; Penniman's Case, 103 U. S. 714, 26 L. ed. 602; Antoni v. Greenhow, 107 U. S. 775, 27 L. ed. 468, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 91; Fourth Nat. Bank v. Francklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 30 L. ed. 825, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 757; Hill v. Merchants' Mut. Ins. Co. 134 U. S. 527, 33 L. ed. 998, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 589; Wilson v. Standefer, 184 U. S. 399, 46 L. ed. 612, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 384; Oshkosh Water Co. v. Oshkosh, 187 U. S. 437, 47 L. ed. 249, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234; Waggoner v. Flack, 188 U. S. 595, 47 L. ed. 609, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 345; Bernhiemer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 51 L. ed. 1163, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Henley v. Myers, 215 U. S. 373, 54 L. ed. 240, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148; Conkey v. Hart, 14 N. Y. 23; Kirkman v. Bird, 22 Utah, 100, 58 L.R.A. 669, 83 Am. St. Rep. 774, 61 Pac. 338; Story v. Furman, 25 N. Y. 214; Cutts v. Hardee, 38 Ga. 350; Cook v. Gray, 2 Houst. (Del.) 455, 81 Am. Dec. 185; Bird v. Keller, 77 Me. 270.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action brought by the plaintiff in error as a creditor of the South Baltimore Steel Car & Foundry Company to recover its claim from the defendant, a holder of stock in that company, the subscription for which had not been fully paid. The action was begun on February 26, 1908, and at that date it could be maintained. But in April a statute was enacted (act of 1908, chap. 305) *making the stock-[458 holder's liability assets of the corporation, saving the rights of creditors at the date of the act, but providing that the exclusive remedy for such rights, as against Maryland stockholders, should be by bill in equity on behalf of such creditors as might come in. This provision was made operative as of July 1, 1907, and was to cause all actions at law of this kind brought since then to abate, saving the right to become party to a bill. On this statute the defendant moved to dismiss the suit. The motion was granted and the judgment was affirmed by the court of appeals, which sustained the constitutionality of the act as so applied. 113 Md. 77, 77 Atl. 255.

Of course the objection is that the law impairs the obligation of the plaintiff's contract. If the stockholder's liability were purely local, and no more than matter of remedy for the collection of the principal debt, still this objection would have to be considered. See Hawthorne v. Calef, 2 Wall. 10, 17 L. ed. 776; Brown v. Eastern Slate Co. 134 Mass. 590, 592. But the case was argued on the footing of a contract between the creditor and the stockholder; and as the statute seems to assume that the stockholder's liability may follow him into other jurisdictions, and the court of appeals affirmed that a contract between the parties is presumed, we in turn assume that view to be correct. Bernheimer v. Converse, 206 U. S. 516, 529, 51 L. ed. 1163, 1174, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755. In either view the question put in the form most favorable for the plaintiff is the same; whether the remedy against the defendant is impaired so materially as to affect the plaintiff's rights. McGahey v. Virginia, 135 U. S. 662, 693, 34 L. ed. 304, 314, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972.

The plaintiff's supposed contract was subject to peculiar infirmities. His right was shared equally by all other creditors of the corporation, and not only might some other creditor by diligence have got in ahead of the plaintiff and have exhausted the fund for which the defendant could be held, but the right depended on the stock-459]holder's *will. As was observed by Judge Rose, following the Maryland cases, in Republic Iron & Steel Co. v. Carlton, 189 Fed. 126, 137, the statute does no more than the stockholder was free to do before. He could have paid the corporation or a receiver or other creditors. The question whether the remedy on this contract was impaired materially is affected not only by the precarious character of the plaintiff's right, but by considerations of fact,—of what the remedy amounted to in practice. It is admitted that bringing the action gave the plaintiff no lien, as it seems mistakenly to have been assumed to do in Myers v. Knickerbocker Trust Co. 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1171, 71 C. C. A. 199, 139 Fed. 111, 116. The court of appeals states that the remedy has been found in practice an uncertain one, less efficacious than that which is substituted. There is nothing to contradict their statement as to what experience has taught. With that fact before us and also the absolute dependence of the creditor upon the will of the stockholder, we cannot go into nice speculation as to the probable result of this particular case, or say that the decision was wrong. The power of the state to make similar changes of remedy is asserted in more general terms than we have employed, in Fourth Nat. Bank v. Franklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 755, 30 L. ed. 825, 828, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 757. See also Henley v. Myers, 215 U. S. 373, 385, 54 L. ed. 240, 246, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148.

A further objection is based upon the period of limitation established by the act. But as it does not appear that the plaintiff was hurt by it, this objection is not open. Darnell v. Indiana, Dec. 23, 1912 [226 U. S. 390, ante, 267, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 120.]

Judgment affirmed.

---

*MARSHALL DENTAL MANUFAC-[460
TURING COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
STATE OF IOWA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 460-462.)

Error to state court — reversal of facts —concurrent findings below.

1. The Federal Supreme Court, on writ of error to a state court, will not, even if it can, go behind the successive findings of the courts below that a so-called lake was an unnavigable body of water, proper to be meandered, where such lake was meandered in the original government survey, and the Secretary of the Interior has refused to have the land under water surveyed as swamp land, because it did not appear sufficiently that there was not a lake there, as indicated at the time of the survey.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2175-2208, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Waters — riparian rights — title to bed of lake.

2. Grants by the United States of land adjoining an unnavigable lake did not convey the land under water, where, under the state law, riparian owners take title only to the water's edge.

[For other cases, see Waters, I. d, 2, a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

---

NOTE.—On what questions the Federal Supreme Court will consider in reviewing the judgments of state courts—see note to Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L.R.A. 571. On review of questions of fact by writ of error to a state court—see note to Smiley v. Kansas, 49 L. ed. U. S. 546.

As to title to land under water—see note to Goff v. Cougle, 42 L.R.A. 161.

States — suits by — necessary interest.

3. The state of Iowa, by virtue of its sovereignty, has an interest in the condition of a non-navigable lake within its borders sufficient to enable it to maintain a suit to enjoin the drainage of such lake by an intruder without title, whether the state or the United States owns the bed of the lake.

[For other cases, see States, IX. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 104.]

Argued December 19, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Iowa to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the District Court of Greene County, in that state, enjoining, at the instance of the state, the drainage of a non-navigable lake by a person claiming title to the bed as being swamp land. Affirmed.

See same case below, 143 Iowa, 398, 122 N. W. 241.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. E. B. Evans argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The decisions of the supreme court of Iowa have been a practical invitation to individuals to purchase the swamp land title of the beds of non-navigable lakes.

Rood v. Wallace, 109 Iowa, 5, 79 N. W. 449; Noyes v. Collins, 92 Iowa, 566, 26 L.R.A. 609, 54 Am. St. Rep. 571, 61 N. W. 250; Carr v. Moore, 119 Iowa, 152, 97 Am. St. Rep. 292, 93 N. W. 52.

The United States is the owner of the public domain, however acquired, and this ownership is without condition.

Johnson v. M'Intosh, 8 Wheat. 543, 5 L. ed. 681; Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 142, 143, 3 L. ed. 179, 180; 1 Kent, Com. 257; Irvine v. Marshall, 20 How. 558, 15 L. ed. 994.

All land covered by water, within the public domain, is owned by the United States.

Illinois C. R. Co. v. Chicago, 176 U. S. 646, 44 L. ed. 622, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 509.

Upon the admission of a new state the ownership and power over lands within its borders, covered by navigable waters, passed to the state, and this right is secondary only to the paramount right of the government in the exercise and control of commerce with foreign nations and interstate commerce.

Pollard v. Hagan, 3 How. 212, 11 L. ed. 565.

As to the land under navigable waters, there is no longer any question but what rights in the use of the water or the land under them must be determined with reference to the law of the state in which such navigable waters are situated, and that the state law will be sustained unless it should interfere with the power of the United States government with reference to commerce.

Barney v. Keokuk, 94 U. S. 324, 24 L. ed. 224; St. Louis v. Myers, 113 U. S. 566, 28 L. ed. 1131, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 640; St. Louis v. Rutz, 138 U. S. 226, 34 L. ed. 941, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 337.

In states following the common-law rule as to riparian ownership, the title to the soil under non-navigable water is in the riparian property.

Tyler v. Wilkinson, 4 Mason, 397, Fed. Cas. No. 14,312; Mitchell v. Smale, 140 U. S. 406, 35 L. ed. 442, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 819, 840.

In states which do not follow the common law as to riparian ownership, the title to the soil under non-navigable waters is in the United States.

Hardin v. Shedd, 190 U. S. 508, 47 L. ed. 1156, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 685; Rood v. Wallace, 109 Iowa, 5, 79 N. W. 449; Grant v. Hemphill, 92 Iowa, 218, 59 N. W. 263, 60 N. W. 618; Carr v. Moore, 119 Iowa, 157, 97 Am. St. Rep. 292, 93 N. W. 52.

The title to the soil under the non-navigable inland lakes of Iowa passed to the state under the swamp land grant.

Rood v. Wallace, 109 Iowa, 5, 79 N. W. 449; Carr v. Moore, 119 Iowa, 157, 97 Am. St. Rep. 292, 93 N. W. 52.

This case is not concluded by the running of the meander line.

Carr v. Moore, 119 Iowa, 152, 97 Am. St. Rep. 292, 93 N. W. 52; French Glen Live Stock Co. v. Springer, 185 U. S. 47, 46 L. ed. 800, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563; Niles v. Cedar Point Club, 175 U. S. 300, 44 L. ed. 171, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124.

Mr. George Cosson, Attorney General of Iowa, argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The decision of the Secretary of the Interior is conclusive.

French v. Fyan, 93 U. S. 169, 23 L. ed. 812; McCormick v. Hayes, 159 U. S. 332, 339, 40 L. ed. 171, 173, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 37; Rogers Locomotive Mach. Works v. American Emigrant Co. 164 U. S. 559, 41 L. ed. 552, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188; Whitaker v. McBride, 197 U. S. 510, 49 L. ed. 857, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 530; Knight v. United Land Asso. 142 U. S. 161, 35 L. ed. 974, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 258; Cragin v. Powell, 128 U. S. 691, 32 L. ed. 566, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 203; Young v. Charnquist, 114 Iowa, 122, 86 N. W. 205; Ogden v. Buckley, 116 Iowa, 352, 89 N. W. 1115; Barringer v. Davis

141 Iowa, 419, 120 N. W. 65; Rood v. Wallace, 109 Iowa, 5, 79 N. W. 449.

Grants of public lands by the United States, bounded upon waters, will be construed according to the law of the state in which the lands lie.

Frellsen v. Crandell, 217 U. S. 71, 54 L. ed. 670, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 490; Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 93, 51 L. ed. 956, 973, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 655; McGilvra v. Ross, 215 U. S. 70, 54 L. ed. 95, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 27; Hardin v. Shedd, 190 U. S. 508, 47 L. ed. 1156, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 685; Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. S. 371, 382, 35 L. ed. 428, 433, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 808, 838.

There is no decision of the supreme court of the state of Iowa which holds that the title to the beds of meandered non-navigable lakes passes under the swamp Land Act.

Rood v. Wallace, 109 Iowa, 8, 79 N. W. 449; Haight v. Keokuk, 4 Iowa, 199; Noyes v. Collins, 92 Iowa, 566, 26 L.R.A. 609, 54 Am. St. Rep. 571, 61 N. W. 250; Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. S. 371, 35 L. ed. 428, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 808, 838; Carr v. Moore, 119 Iowa, 152, 97 Am. St. Rep. 292, 93 N. W. 52; State v. Thompson, 134 Iowa, 25, 111 N. W. 328.

If this were a case in which plaintiff in error was claiming through a title direct from the United States government,—in other words, if the United States government, in its plenary power to dispose of public lands, had conveyed the meandered lake in question, and the state was asserting title,—a difficult problem might arise, but even then, the later decisions make it clear that the United States would waive its right in favor of the state.

United States v. Chandler-Dunbar Water Power Co. 209 U. S. 447, 451, 52 L. ed. 881, 887, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579; Kean v. Calumet Canal & Improv. Co. 190 U. S. 452, 47 L. ed. 1134, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 651; Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. S. 371, 35 L. ed. 428, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 808, 838; Hardin v. Shedd, 190 U. S. 508, 47 L. ed. 1156, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 685.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a petition brought by the state of Iowa to enjoin the defendant from draining the waters of Goose lake, in Greene county, 461] Iowa. The defendant, now *plaintiff in error, set up title, on the ground that the so-called lake, a tract of several hundred acres, was swamp land and was granted to the state by the act of September 28, 1850, chap. 84, 9 Stat. at L. 520, Rev. Stat. § 2479, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1586; that it passed to Greene county by an act of the legislature of January 13, 1853, and thence by mesne conveyances to this defendant. After a trial, the court of first instance entered a decree for the plaintiff, and the decree was affirmed by the supreme court of the state. 143 Iowa, 398, 122 N. W. 241.

The material facts are few. In the original survey by the government in 1853 the lake was meandered, which meant under the instructions to surveyors then in force that it was a lake or deep pond, and no patent ever has issued from the United States. In 1903 the plaintiff in error applied to the Secretary of the Interior to have the land surveyed as swamp land, but the application was refused, on the ground that it did not appear sufficiently that there was not a lake there, as indicated, at the time of the survey. If the question of fact was open under Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. v. Smith, 9 Wall. 95, 19 L. ed. 599, the state courts found that Goose lake was an unnavigable body of water proper to be meandered, and we see no sufficient reason for going behind these successive findings, if we had power to do so. Cedar Rapids Gaslight Co. v. Cedar Rapids, 223 U. S. 655, 668, 56 L. ed. 594, 604, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 389. See French v. Fyan, 93 U. S. 169, 23 L. ed. 812; McCormick v. Hayes, 159 U. S. 332, 40 L. ed. 171, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 37. It follows that the plaintiff in error shows no title. By the law of Iowa the riparian owners took title only to the water's edge, and therefore the grants of the adjoining land by the United States did not convey the land under the lake. Hardin v. Jordan, 140 U. S. 371, 35 L. ed. 428, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 808, 838; Hardin v. Shedd, 190 U. S. 508, 47 L. ed. 1156, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 685; Whitaker v. McBride, 197 U. S. 510, 512, 49 L. ed. 857, 860, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 530. It follows that the bed of the lake either still belongs to the United States or must be held to have passed to the state.

The question as to the title to the bed is treated as open *in Hardin v. Shedd, [462 190 U. S. 508, 519, 47 L. ed. 1156, 1157, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 685, and Whitaker v. McBride, 197 U. S. 510, 515, 49 L. ed. 857, 861, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 530, and there is no need to decide it now. It is enough to say that by virtue of its sovereignty the state of Iowa has an interest in the condition of the lake sufficient to entitle it to maintain this suit against an intruder without title, whether the state owns the bed or not. This principle has been affirmed and acted on by the court so recently that it does not require further argument here. Georgia v. Tennessee Copper Co. 206 U. S. 230, 237, 51 L. ed. 1038, 1044, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 618, 11 Ann. Cas. 488; Hudson County Water Co. v. McCarter, 209 U. S. 349, 356, 52 L. ed. 828, 832, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 529, 14 Ann. Cas.

560; See also Kansas v. Colorado, 206 U. S. 46, 93, 51 L. ed. 956, 973, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 655; McGilvra v. Ross, 215 U. S. 70, 79, 54 L. ed. 95, 100, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 27.

Decree affirmed.

---

JONAH KALANIANAOLE, Plff. in Err.,
v.
GEORGE E. SMITHIES, Trustee of Stella Keomailani Cockett, and Stella K. Cockett, Beneficiary.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 462, 463.)

Error to Hawaiian supreme court—scope of review — local practice.

1. The question whether the original judgment creditors alone can sue on a judgment rendered in favor of a trustee and the beneficiary, where a new trustee has since been appointed successor in the trust, and the former trustee has assigned the judgment to him, is a pure matter of form, on which the Federal Supreme Court, when reviewing a judgment of the Hawaiian supreme court, will not go behind the local practice.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Parties — misjoinder — effect.

2. Joining the executor of one of the judgment debtors as a party defendant when suing on a judgment as a joint judgment is simply a mistake which does no harm.

[For other cases, see Parties, II. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 109.]

Argued and submitted December 20, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the Territory of Hawaii to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of the First Circuit of such Territory, in favor of plaintiffs in a suit on a deficiency judgment. Affirmed.

See same case below, 20 How. 138.

Mr. C. W. Ashford submitted the cause for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Ralph P. Quarles argued the cause, and, with Mr. A. L. C. Atkinson, filed a brief for defendants in error.

Memorandum opinion by direction of the court. By Mr. Justice Holmes:

This is a suit on a deficiency judgment rendered upon foreclosure of the mortgage that was under consideration in Kawananakoa v. Polyblank, 205 U. S. 349, 51 L. ed. 834, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526. The judgment was in favor of Polyblank, trustee, and Cockett, sole beneficiary, against Kawananakoa and the plaintiff in error Kalanianaole. Before the present suit was begun, the trustee resigned, Smithies was duly appointed successor in the trust, and the former trustee assigned the judgment to him. Smithies and his beneficiary then brought this action against the plaintiff in error and the executor of Kawananakoa, who had died. The executor demurred and had judgment. The plaintiff in error then answered, setting up the discharge of the executor and that the plaintiffs allowed the claim against the latter to be barred by time before bringing suit. The case was heard upon mutual admissions of the facts set up in the declaration and answer. In argument the plaintiff in error also objects that only the original judgment creditors could sue. Both objections were sufficiently answered in the court below. That, as to the plaintiffs, is pure matter of form, on which we should not go behind the local practice. The whole interest in the judgment was before the court. As to the second, the judgment was sued upon as a joint judgment, but it ceased to be joint by the death of one of the parties bound, as is the nature of joint obligations. Edsar v. Smart, T. Raym. 26; Y. B. 3 Edw. III. 11, pl. 37. See Towers v. Moor, 2 Vern. 99. The joinder of the executor was simply a mistake that did no harm. See William W. Bierce v. Hutchins, 205 U. S. 340, 347, 51 L. ed. 828, 833, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524.

Judgment affirmed.

---

*RALPH A. EWING, Plff. in Err., [464
v.
CITY OF LEAVENWORTH.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 464–469.)

Commerce — state taxation — transportation between local points — route passing out of state.

An annual privilege tax levied by a municipality upon the business of an express company, expressly excluding commerce of an interstate character and business done for the government, and covering solely the local business done at that point in receiving packages transported from other points in the state, and in transporting

NOTE.—On the appellate jurisdiction of Federal Supreme Court over Hawaiian courts—see note to Toyota v. Hawaii, ante, 180.

NOTE.—On interstate character of transportation between points in same state over a route, part of which is in another state—see notes to Hanley v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. 47 L. ed. U. S. 333, and Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Leibengood, 28 L.R.A. (N.S.) 985.

packages to like points, is not invalid because such transportation is over a route which, for a short distance, passes out of the state.

[For other cases, see Commerce, III. d; I. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 66.]

Argued and submitted December 6, 1912.
Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Kansas to review a judgment which affirmed a conviction in the District Court of Leavenworth County, in that State, of the violation of a municipal ordinance imposing a tax on the business of express companies. Affirmed.

See same case below, 80 Kan. 58, 101 Pac. 664.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Branch P. Kerfoot argued the cause, and, with Messrs. George W. Field, Frank H. Platt, and John T. O'Keefe, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The transportation of express packages between Leavenworth, Kansas, and other stations in Kansas, over railroad lines a large part of which are in Missouri, is interstate commerce.

Hanley v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. 187 U. S. 617, 621, 47 L. ed. 333, 336, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214; Pacific Coast S. S. Co. v. Railroad Comrs. 9 Sawy. 253, 18 Fed. 10; Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 145 U. S. 192, 36 L. ed. 672, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 87, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 806.

The ordinance as construed by the supreme court of Kansas is invalid because it requires an express company to take out a license to conduct interstate commerce.

Crutcher v. Kentucky, 141 U. S. 47, 57, 35 L. ed. 649, 652, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851.

The license tax specified in the ordinance is invalid because it is a burden on interstate commerce. It is directly imposed upon the right to do the business. It is not a property tax measured by the amount of receipts. It cannot, therefore, be sustained upon the authority of those cases which hold that a state may collect a property tax based on receipts from interstate transportation.

Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 32 L. ed. 311, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1380; Hanley v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. 187 U. S. 617, 47 L. ed. 333, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214; Maine v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 142 U. S. 217, 35 L. ed. 994, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 807, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 121, 163; Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 145 U. S. 192, 36 L. ed. 672, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 87, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 806; United States Exp. Co. v. Minnesota, 223 U. S. 335, 56 L. ed. 459, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 211.

Mr. Arthur M. Johnson submitted the cause for defendant in error. Mr. Benjamin F. Endres was on the brief:

The business of the express company taxed under the ordinance is not interstate commerce, and the city of Leavenworth had the right to levy the tax as a police regulation.

Topeka v. Jones, 74 Kan. 164, 86 Pac. 162, 87 Pac. 1133; Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 145 U. S. 192, 36 L. ed. 672, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 87, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 806; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Hughes, 104 Va. 240, 51 S. E. 225; Patterson v. Missouri P. R. Co. 77 Kan. 236, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 733, 94 Pac. 138.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

Plaintiff in error was the agent of the United States Express Company at Leavenworth, Kansas. He was convicted of violating an ordinance of the city imposing a tax on the business of express companies. The conviction was affirmed in 80 Kan. 58, 101 Pac. 664, and the case is brought here.

*Under the ordinance a tax was im-[466 posed on the business and occupation of express companies as follows:

"The sum of $50 per year on the business and occupation of express company, corporation or agency, in receiving packages in this city from persons in the city, and transmitting the same by express from this city, within this state, to persons and places within this state, and receiving in this city packages by express transmitted within the state from persons and places in this state to persons within this city, and delivering the same to persons in this city, excepting the receipt, transmission, and delivery of any such packages to and from any department, agency, or agent of the United States, and excepting the receipt, transmission, and delivery of any such packages which are interstate commerce; the business and occupation of receiving, transmitting, and delivering of the packages herein excepted is not taxed hereby."

The United States Express Company receives express packages at Leavenworth and forwards them by railroad to other cities and towns, some without the state and some within the state, and also delivers packages which have been forwarded to Leavenworth from like cities and towns. All such express packages are required to be brought into or sent out of Leavenworth, which lies west of the Missouri river in Kansas, over the Rock Island Railroad, which runs along the Missouri side of the Missouri river, with a branch across the river to Leavenworth. The express company has no other means of transportation of packages in or out of Leavenworth. It therefore follows that every package handled by the express company at Leavenworth is brought from or carried into the state of Missouri over this branch of the Rock Island Railroad. The actual carriage in the state of Kansas over such branch is about 1 mile. The record shows that about 10 per cent of the business done at Leavenworth by the express company is 467]between Leavenworth *and other points in Kansas, but all such business is required to be transported in part, at least, within the state of Missouri.

The contention in this case is that the tax thus imposed is a regulation of and burden upon interstate commerce, and therefore in violation of the Federal Constitution, which vests in Congress the sole authority to regulate commerce among the states.

It is to be observed that the ordinance excludes interstate and government business. As the supreme court of Kansas says (80 Kan. 62): "The license tax was upon so much of the company's business as was carried on in Kansas. It had an office and local conveyances in Leavenworth for the collection of packages in that city, and it made contracts for transporting these packages to places within the state. Likewise it collected packages in other parts of the state and carried them into Leavenworth, where they were delivered to the consignees. Does the fact that in carrying these packages between points in Kansas they pass over the soil of another state for a short distance make the tax on that business invalid?"

We are of opinion that this case is controlled by Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 145 U. S. 192, 36 L. ed. 672, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 87, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 806, in which it was held that a state might tax the receipts of a railroad corporation for the portion of the transportation which was within the state, although the transportation then in question, while between points within the state, passed over the railroad which traversed for a part of the way territory of an adjoining state. It was held that a tax upon such receipts did not tax interstate commerce, and this court said (p. 202):

"It should be remembered that the question does not arise as to the power of any other state than the state of the termini, nor as to taxation upon the property of the company situated elsewhere than in Pennsylvania, nor as to the regulation by 468]Pennsylvania of the operations of *this or any other company elsewhere, but it is simply whether, in the carriage of freight and passengers between two points in one state, the mere passage over the soil of another state renders that business foreign which is domestic. We do not think such a view can be reasonably entertained, and are of opinion that this taxation is not open to constitutional objection by reason of the particular way in which Philadelphia was reached from Mauch Chunk."

The Lehigh Valley Case was cited with approval in United States Exp. Co. v. Minnesota, 223 U. S. 335, 342, 56 L. ed. 459, 463, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 211, as determinative of the proposition that the state of Minnesota might tax the receipts of an express company from the transportation of packages from points within the state to other points therein, although the transportation was in part outside of the state.

It is contended, however, that the contrary result must be reached, applying the principles laid down in Hanley v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. 187 U. S. 617, 47 L. ed. 333, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214. In that case this court declared unconstitutional a law of Arkansas undertaking to fix rates upon railway transportation, the transportation in question in that case being a single carriage partly outside of the state of Arkansas from a point within to another point within the state. In the particular instance the transportation covered 116 miles, of which only 52 miles were within Arkansas and the rest without the state. It was held that the right to regulate such commerce was solely in Congress under the Constitution, and that the transportation was a single and entire thing, and as a subject for rate legislation was indivisible. The case of Lehigh Valley R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, supra, was called to the attention of the court, and of that case this court said (p. 621):

"That was the case of a tax, and was distinguished expressly from an attempt by a state directly to regulate the transportation while outside its borders. 145 U. S. 204, 36 L. ed. 676, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 87, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 806. *And although it[469 was intimated that, for the purposes before the court, to some extent commerce by transportation might have its character fixed by the relation between the two ends of the transit, the intimation was carefully confined to those purposes. Moreover, the tax 'was determined in respect of receipts for the proportion of the transportation within the state.' 145 U. S. 201. Such a proportioned tax had been sustained in the case of commerce admitted to be interstate. Maine v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 142 U. S. 217, 35 L. ed. 994, 3 Inters. Com. Rep.

807, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 121, 163. Whereas it is decided, as we have said, that when a rate is established, it must be established as a whole."

The distinction is applicable here. There is no attempt to fix a rate by the authority of the state, which, while single and complete in itself, covers for a considerable part interstate transportation. The privilege tax levied in this case expressly excludes commerce of an interstate character or business done for the government, and is levied solely on the business done in the city of Leavenworth in receiving packages from points within the state and in transporting packages to like points. Applying the principles of the Lehigh Valley Case to such a situation, we are of opinion that, for the purpose of a privilege tax for business thus done the municipality, acting under authority of the state, did not exceed its just power.

Judgment affirmed.

---

470] *UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Appt.,
v.
UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 470–477.)

Appeal — judgment — compliance with decree — dissolution of monopoly.

The unlawful combination found by the Federal Supreme Court to exist as the result of the acquisition by the Union Pacific Railroad Company, through a subsidiary corporation, of 46 per cent of the capital stock of the Southern Pacific Company, for the purpose of obtaining the dominating control of the entire Southern Pacific system, will not be so effectually ended as to comply with the court's decree by a sale of such shares to the shareholders of the Union Pacific Railroad Company substantially in proportion to their respective holdings, or by a distribution thereof by dividend to such shareholders.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, IX. 1; IX. 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 446.]

Motion submitted December 19, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

ON MOTION as to form of mandate under a decree of the Federal Supreme Court which, reversing a decree of the Circuit court for the District of Utah, dismissing the bill in a suit to enforce the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust act against certain alleged conspiracies and combinations in restraint of interstate commerce, directed the dissolution of such combination. Motion denied.

See ante, 124.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Attorney General Wickersham submitted for the United States.

Messrs. John C. Spooner, John G. Milburn, Maxwell Evarts, and N. H. Loomis submitted for the Union Pacific Railroad Company and the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company.

*Mr. Justice Day delivered the[471 opinion of the court:

On December 2, 1912, this court handed down an opinion and remanded this case to the district court of the United States, whence it came, with instructions to enter a decree which would provide an injunction as to voting the stock of the Southern Pacific Company, acquired by the Union Pacific Railroad Company, and directed the court to further hear the parties in order to make a decree effectually concluding the operating force of the combination created by the purchase of the Southern Pacific Company's stock. The parties were given three months from the receipt of the mandate of this court by the district court to propose plans, and it was directed that any one adopted by the court should be such as would effectually dissolve the unlawful combination.

The mandate of this court not having issued, on December 19, 1912, a motion was made in which the Attorney General of the United States and counsel for the appellees the Union Pacific Railroad Company and the Oregon Short Line Railroad Company (the latter holding the stock for the Union Pacific Company) joined in asking this court "to instruct the United States district court for the district of Utah, by a provision incorporated in the mandate of this court, when issued, or otherwise, whether or not a sale of the Southern Pacific Company shares held by said appellees, to the shareholders of appellee Union Pacific Railroad Company, substantially in proportion to their respective holdings, or a distribution thereof by dividend to the Union Pacific stockholders entitled to such dividend, would, in the opinion of this court, constitute a disposition of said shares in compliance with the opinion herein filed on December 2, 1912."

In pursuance of the request thus preferred by the United States and the appellees named, it becomes necessary now to determine whether the distribution or sale

*Note.—On illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws—see note to Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

472]proposed *of the Southern Pacific Company's shares will comply with the decree ordered to be entered by the former opinion of this court.

The Southern Pacific Company's stock, held by the Oregon Short Line Company for the Union Pacific Company, amounts to $126,650,000, par value, in shares of $100 each, and constitutes 46 per cent of the Southern Pacific Company's stock; enough, as we have heretofore found, to effectually control the Southern Pacific Company. As stated by the appellees, the Union Pacific Company has outstanding $99,569,300, par value, of preferred stock, and $216,646,300, par value, of common stock, all in shares of $100 each, amounting in all to $316,215-600, and also has outstanding $37,000,000 of bonds convertible into stock, and the appellees further state that its stock is distributed among over 22,000 holders.

It is contended on behalf of the appellees that the distribution of the Southern Pacific Company's stock, held, as we have stated, by the Oregon Short Line Company for the Union Pacific Company, among so many stockholders, will effectually conclude the combination decreed to be ended by the former order of the court. It is insisted that such distribution will prevent the continued operation of the combination for the control of the Southern Pacific Company by a competing company, which the Union Pacific Company was found to be, and that it is authorized under the practice in respect to such decrees, as settled by the previous decisions of this court in affirming the decree of the circuit court in Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436, and Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. ed. 739, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493, and the decree of the Circuit Court in Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734.

In the Northern Securities Co. Case, after providing for orders of injunction to prevent the continued operation of the North-473]ern Securities Company, which *controlled the Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company, it was provided:

"But nothing herein contained shall be construed as prohibiting the Northern Securities Company from returning and transferring to the [stockholders of the] Northern Pacific Railway Company and the Great Northern Railway Company, respectively, any and all shares of stock in either of said railway companies which said the Northern Securities Company may have heretofore received from such stockholders in exchange for its own stock; and nothing herein contained shall be construed as prohibiting the Northern Securities Company from making such transfer and assignments of the stock aforesaid to such person or persons as may now be the holders and owners of its own stock originally issued in exchange or in payment for the stock claimed to have been acquired by it in the aforesaid railway companies." [193 U. S. 355, 48 L. ed. 707, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436.]

Upon the affirmation of this decree by this court in 193 U. S. 197, the Northern Securities Company proceeded to reduce its outstanding capital stock from $395,400,000 to $3,954,000, providing for such reduction by requiring each holder to surrender to the company for retirement 99 per cent of the shares held by him, and upon surrender by a stockholder the company assigned and transferred to him proportionate amounts of the stock of the Northern Pacific Company and Great Northern Company, which had been placed with the Northern Securities Company, the holding company, for the purpose of creating the combination, which the court had held to be illegal, and this plan of distribution was approved by this court in 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. ed. 739, 25 Sup. St. Rep. 493. In other words, the stock of the holding company was reduced and the surplus of assets created by such reduction, the stock of the Northern Pacific Company and the Great Northern Company, was distributed among the stockholders of the Northern Securities *Com-[474 pany, thereby effectually ending the combination.

In the Standard Oil Co. Case the majority of the stock of nineteen oil companies had been placed in the control of a holding company, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, with a capital stock of $100,000,000, the stock of the latter corporation being issued to the holders of the stock in the nineteen companies in exchange for their stock. This holding company was held to be a combination and conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce, and, after awarding injunctions, it was provided:

"But the defendants are not prohibited by this decree from distributing ratably to the shareholders of the principal company the shares to which they are equitably entitled in the stocks of the defendant corporations that are parties to the combination." [173 Fed. 199.]

It is evident in that case, as in the Northern Securities Co. Case, that the distribution of the shares and stocks of the subsidiary companies, parties to the combination, among the shareholders of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, was to end the combination which had been de creed to be in violation of law, and prevent the continued control of the subsidiary companies by the holding company.

As was said in the opinion filed in this case, however, each case under the Sherman act [26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200] must stand upon its own facts; and we are unable to regard the decrees in the Northern Securities Co. Case and the Standard Oil Co. Case as precedents to be followed now, in view of the different situation presented for consideration.

The Southern Pacific Company's stock was mainly purchased from private parties, legatees of the Huntington estate, and it is evident that it is impossible to restore the status quo by the return of such stock to the persons from whom it was purchased upon such vendors refunding the purchase money.

475] *The plan proposed in the present motion of distributing the stock among the shareholders of the Union Pacific Company, or of selling it to such shareholders, will, in effect, transfer the stock from the Oregon Short Line Company, which now holds it for the Union Pacific Company, to the stockholders of the latter company, who own and control that company. Upon the face of it, this would seem to be a proposition to perpetuate the domination and control of the Union Pacific Company over the Southern Pacific Company, because of the power given to the Union Pacific Company's stockholders to choose the directors of the Southern Pacific Company. The ultimate determination of the affairs of a corporation rests with its stockholders, and arises from their power to choose the governing board of directors. Unless otherwise provided by law, the stockholders may authorize the board of directors to delegate to an executive committee the authority to do any and all acts which the directors are authorized to do. The executive committee thus derives its authority from the stockholders through the board of directors. Union P. R. Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 163 U. S. 564, 597, 41 L. ed. 265, 276, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1173. In the present case the record discloses this mode of management of both the Southern Pacific Company and the Union Pacific Company, and, since 1905, as the proof shows, a majority of both executive committees consisted of the same persons, and Mr. Harriman was chairman of both committees.

It is contended for the appellees, however, that, in view of the great number of widely scattered stockholders of the Union Pacific Company, there is no probability of their acting together to continue the control of the Union Pacific Company over the Southern Pacific Company. Indeed, this is said to be impossible. But we are unable to accede to this contention. Bearing in mind the object of the statute to end such combinations, and the duty of *the courts[476 in dealing with them to make such decrees as will most thoroughly effectuate that purpose, it is not consistent with that end to order such distribution of the stock as may fail to discontinue the control denounced, and as in all probability will fail to efficiently enforce the statute. It is by no means improbable, but quite likely, that, if the stock was transferred to the stockholders of the Union Pacific Company by distribution among them, the large stockholders could, by purchases and transfers of the stock, get into their own hands the power of choosing directors of both companies, and thus, though in a different manner, the Southern Pacific Company would continue to be in the practical control of the Union Pacific Company, which has been found to be a rival and competing company within the meaning of the law. So of the privilege of sale to the stockholders in proportion to the amount of their holdings.

In considering these questions we must bear in mind not only the number of stockholders, but the character of the distribution of the stock among them. In the brief and exhibits of the appellees, filed with this motion, it is shown that of the 22,150 stockholders of the Union Pacific Company, 68, owning 5,000 or more shares each, hold together $139,782,700 of the stock, and 300 others, owning from 1,000 to 5,000 shares each, hold together $59,020,700 of the stock, and that the two groups (comprising 368 stockholders) hold $198,843,400, or 62.8 per cent of the stock, while the remaining stockholders (21,782) control only $117,412,200 of the stock. Many small shareholders might not wish to purchase the Southern Pacific Company's stock, and the privilege might be readily acquired from them by the larger and more active interests vested in the hands of the large stockholders, and thus again the condition forbidden be created and perpetuated.

The main purpose of the act is to forbid combinations and conspiracies in undue restraint of trade or tending to *monop-[477 olize it, and the object of proceedings of this character is to decree, by as effectual means as a court may, the end of such unlawful combinations and conspiracies. So far as is consistent with this purpose a court of equity, dealing with such combinations, should conserve the property interests involved, but never in such wise as to sacrifice the object and purpose of the statute. The decree of the courts must be faithfully executed, and no form of dissolution be permitted that, in substance or effect, amounts to restoring the combination which it was the purpose of the decree to terminate.

In rejecting the plan for the transfer of the Southern Pacific Company's stock held for the Union Pacific Company, either by distribution or sale to the stockholders of the Union Pacific Company, we do not mean to preclude the district court from considering and acting upon plans which may be submitted to it under the former opinion and decree of the court. We are of opinion, however, and now hold, that the proposed plan of disposition of the entire stock holding of the Union Pacific Company in the Southern Pacific Company by transfer to the stockholders of the Union Pacific Company will not so effectually end the combination as to comply with the decree heretofore ordered by this court to be entered.

So ordered.

Mr. Justice Van Devanter took no part in the hearing or determination of this motion.

---

478] *WARREN B. WHEELER, Plff. in Err.,
v.
UNITED STATES. (No. 658.)

STILLMAN SHAW, Plff. in Err.,
v.
UNITED STATES. (No. 659.)

WARREN B. WHEELER, Appt.,
v.
GUY MURCHIE, United States Marshal, etc. (No. 660.)

STILLMAN SHAW, Appt.,
v.
GUY MURCHIE, UNITED STATES MARSHAL, ETC. (No. 661.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 478–490.)

Constitutional law — liberty — due process of law — commitment for contempt.

1. Former officers in a corporation which has gone out of existence after transferring to them its books and papers are not deprived of their liberty without due process of law by a commitment for contempt in refusing to obey a subpœna duces tecum directed to the corporation, requiring the production of such books and papers before a grand jury engaged in investigating the alleged criminal conduct of such former officers, where, before the order of commitment was made, they were allowed a full hearing in a court of competent jurisdiction, and no objection was taken to the technical form of the subpœna in directing it to the corporation, and not to the individuals.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, IV. b. 3; IV. b, 9, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Searches and seizures — production of corporate books and papers.

2. A subpœna duces tecum calling for the production before a grand jury engaged in investigating the alleged criminal conduct of the former officers of a corporation of all the corporate books, letters, and telegrams in their possession, covering a specified period of fifteen months, is not so broad as to amount to an unreasonable search and seizure.

[For other cases, see Searches and Seizures, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Searches and seizures — production of books of dissolved corporation.

3. Former officers of a dissolved corporation are not subjected to an unreasonable search and seizure by the compulsory production before a grand jury engaged in investigating their alleged criminal conduct, of the books and papers of the corporation, which had been transferred to them before dissolution, and which were still in their possession.

[For other cases, see Searches and Seizures, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Witnesses — self-crimination — former officer of dissolved corporation — production of corporate books.

4. The privilege of corporate officers against self-crimination in the production of their own books and papers before a grand jury engaged in investigating their alleged criminal conduct does not protect the former officers of a dissolved corporation in resisting the compulsory production of the books and papers of such corporation, which had been transferred to them before dissolution, and are still in their possession.

[For other cases, see Witnesses, V. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 658, 659, 660, and 661.]

Submitted December 4, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

---

NOTE.—On refusal to produce books or papers in response to subpœna, upon ground that they contain private matter—see note to Re Bolster, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 716.

On compulsory production of books and papers as unreasonable search or seizure—see note to Consolidated Rendering Co. v. Vermont, 52 L. ed. U. S. 327.

As to constitutional protection against being forced to furnish evidence to be used against one's self in a civil case—see note to Levy v. Superior Ct. 29 L.R.A. 811.

On the right of officer of a corporation to refuse to turn over its books to a receiver upon the ground that they have a tendency to incriminate him—see note to Manning v. Mercantile Securities Co. 30 L.R.A. (N.S.) 725.

TWO WRITS OF ERROR to the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts to review commitments for contempt, arising out of the refusal of the former officers of a dissolved corporation to produce the corporate books and papers before a grand jury engaged in investigating the alleged criminal conduct of such officers. Affirmed. Also

TWO APPEALS from the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts to review orders denying writs of habeas corpus to inquire into detentions under such commitments. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Nathan Matthews submitted the cause for plaintiffs in error and appellants. Messrs. William G. Thompson and Romney Spring were on the brief:

The subpœna imposed no legal obligation on the corporation to produce the books and papers.

Ballman v. United States, 200 U. S. 186, 194, 50 L. ed. 433, 436, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 212; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 74, 75, 50 L. ed. 652, 665, 666, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370.

The description of the books and papers in the subpœna is so broad and sweeping as to constitute an unreasonable search under the 4th Amendment.

Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 76, 77, 50 L. ed. 652, 666, 667, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370.

The service, which was in terms expressed to have been made upon Wheeler and Shaw in their official capacity as officers of the corporation, was simply a method of enforcing the assumed obligation of the corporation, and not any obligation of Wheeler and Shaw personally.

Leavenworth County v. Sellew, 99 U. S. 624, 627, 25 L. ed. 333, 335.

That in such a case the obligation of the individual served is derivative and secondary, and not individual and primary, is the very essence of the reasoning in—

Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 376, 381, 382, 55 L. ed. 777, 779, 780, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Dreier v. United States, 221 U. S. 394, 55 L. ed. 784, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 550; Consolidated Rendering Co. v. Vermont, 207 U. S. 541, 52 L. ed. 327, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 178, 12 Ann. Cas. 658; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 221 U. S. 612, 622, 623, 55 L. ed. 878, 883, 884, 31 Sup. Ct Rep. 621.

The fact that the distinction between the nature of the two possible obligations which a subpœna duces tecum may impose upon the individual upon whom it is served is sometimes blurred by addressing the subpœna to the individual, when what is sought are documents held by him in an official capacity, serves only to sharpen the distinction when the subpœna is addressed, as here, to the corporation itself.

Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 374, 55 L. ed. 776, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Re American Sugar Ref. Co. 178 Fed. 109; Re Bornn Hat Co. 184 Fed. 508; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 146 Fed. 557.

The one advantage which the government sought to secure by choosing a summons addressed to the corporation itself, rather than one addressed to the individual custodian, illustrates the distinction. For a corporation is not protected by the 5th Amendment, and a natural person is.

Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. ed. 652, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Bornn Hat Co. v. United States, 223 U. S. 713, 56 L. ed. 626, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 521, affirming 184 Fed. 506.

Assuming that the contents of documents would, in fact, tend to incriminate an individual, his protection, under the 4th and 5th Amendments, against being compelled to produce them, depends wholly upon the capacity in which he holds them,—not at all upon their origin, or upon the character, in other respects, of the information contained in them.

Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. ed. 746, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; Entick v. Carrington, 19 How. St. Tr. 1029; Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 376, 55 L. ed. 777, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Hillman v. United States, 112 C. C. A. 522, 192 Fed. 270; Re Harris, 221 U. S. 274, 55 L. ed. 732, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 557.

Solicitor General Bullitt and Assistant Attorney General Harr submitted the cause for defendant in error and appellee:

The 5th Amendment has no application, because appellants were not called as witnesses.

3 Wigmore, Ev. § 2263.

The order to produce the books of the corporation was not an invasion of appellants' privacy, within the meaning of the 4th Amendment.

Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 29 L. ed. 746, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 374, 55 L. ed. 776, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Re Grant, 198 Fed. 708.

The rule in equity, that "no man need discover matters tending to incriminate himself, or to expose him to a penalty or forfeiture," is subject to an exception in respect to frauds, and also where fiduciary relations exist.

Adams, Eq. 8th ed. p. 4; State v. Maury,

2 Del. Ch. 158; Green v. Weaver, 1 Sim. 404, 6 L. J. Ch. 1, 27 Revised Rep. 214.

Sound public policy forbids the extension of the privilege against self-incrimination to a case involving the production of corporate records.

3 Wigmore, Ev. § 2251, p. 3102.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

These cases arise from the following facts: On April 12, 1912, the Federal grand jury in Boston was investigating whether Warren B. Wheeler and Stillman Shaw, plaintiffs in error in Nos. 658 and 659 and appellants in Nos. 660 and 661, had, by means of a certain corporation known as Wheeler & Shaw, Incorporated, or otherwise, violated § 215 of the act of Congress of March 4, 1909 (35 Stat. at L. 1088, 1130, chap. 321, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, pp. 1588, 1653), making it a crime to use the mails of the United States for a scheme to defraud, which crime is punishable by fine or imprisonment or both. On the same day a subpœna duces tecum, without ad testificandum clause, was issued, summoning the corporation to appear 483]*before the grand jury and produce all the cash books, ledgers, journals, and other books of account of the company, and all copies of letters and telegrams of Wheeler & Shaw, Incorporated, whether signed or purporting to be signed by the corporation or by its president or treasurer in its behalf, for and covering the period from October 1, 1909, to January 1, 1911; all the aforesaid books and copies of letters and telegrams to be produced before the grand jurors under the penalties of law. The subpœna was served on Wheeler as treasurer, and on Shaw as president, of the corporation. The appeared before the grand jury, without any of the books or correspondence, as required in the subpœna, however; asked to be sworn for the purpose of explaining why they had not brought them, and left with the grand jurors papers containing the following statement of their reasons for the nonproduction of the books, etc. (the records are the same, mutatis mutandis, in the Wheeler Case and the Shaw Case):

To the Grand Jurors of the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts.

Gentlemen:—There was served upon me at 12:50 P. M. to-day, April 12, 1912, a subpœna addressed to Wheeler & Shaw, Inc., a corporation doing business at Boston, in said district, and calling upon that corporation to produce before you, presumably through me, "all cash books, ledgers, journals, and other books of account of said Wheeler & Shaw, Inc., for and covering the period between October 1, 1909, and January 1, 1911, all copies of letters and telegrams of Wheeler & Shaw, Inc., signed or purporting to be signed by said Wheeler & Shaw, Inc., or by its president or its treasurer in behalf of said Wheeler & Shaw, Inc., during the months of October, November, and December, 1909, and the entire year of 1910; all the aforesaid books, copies of letters, and telegrams to be produced *before the grand jurors of said dis-[484 trict court in the matter of an alleged violation of the laws of the United States by Warren B. Wheeler and Stillman Shaw."

I desire to avail myself of what I understand to be my right to state to you my reasons for not producing any books, ledgers, or other papers or documents in response to said summons. My reasons are:

First: That I have not in my possession or custody any cash books, ledgers, journals, or any of the other books or things described in said subpœna which belong to Wheeler & Shaw, Inc., or are in my possession as an officer or agent of Wheeler & Shaw, Inc. The only cash books, ledgers, journals, and other books, papers, and things to which the aforesaid description in said subpœna could apply are the personal property of myself and Stillman Shaw, and are in our personal possession, and are not in the possession of either of us as officers or agents of any corporation.

Second: Even were the fact not as stated above, I am advised that the language of said subpœna quoted above is so broad, sweeping and lacking in particularity as to constitute a violation of the rights of any party to whom a subpœna is addressed to be exempt from unreasonable searches and seizures under the 4th Amendment to the United States Constitution.

Third: Whether addressed to said corporation or to me personally, I am advised that said subpœna violates the rights secured to me by the 5th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States not to be a witness against myself in any criminal case.

I make this statement in good faith, and not intending any disrespect to the grand jury, or to the officers of the government, and I venture to remind the grand jury that I am entitled under the laws of the United States not to have any inferences drawn against me by reason of the action I have taken in this matter. It is one thing to produce *private books and[485 papers in a proceeding where there is an opportunity to explain them and to examine and cross-examine witnesses concerning them; but the situation in an ex parte proceeding is so different that I feel sure the grand jury will feel that I am justified in standing upon any constitutional rights in this matter.

Warren B. Wheeler.

The grand jurors on April 13, 1912, filed in the district court a paper called a petition for attachment for contempt, in which they prayed that Wheeler and Shaw be ordered to produce the books and copies of letters and telegrams, and upon failure or refusal be adjudged guilty of contempt. Wheeler and Shaw appeared, filed motions to dismiss, which were denied, and then filed sworn answers. The cases were heard by the district judge on the grand jurors' petitions, the answers, and certain agreed facts. At the close of the hearing the court ruled that the case was governed by Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 55 L. ed. 771, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 508, and ordered Wheeler and Shaw to produce the books and papers described in the subpœna. Final orders were entered on April 18, 1912, adjudging them in contempt and committing them to the custody of the marshal until, by producing before the grand jury the books and copies of letters and telegrams, they should cease to obstruct and impede the corporation known as Wheeler & Shaw, Incorporated, from complying with the subpœna duces tecum, or otherwise purge themselves of their contempt.

From these judgments Wheeler and Shaw sued out writs of error, which constitute cases Nos. 658 and 659. They also filed petitions for writs of habeas corpus against the marshal, and from the orders denying the petitions they appealed to this court, and these cases constitute Nos. 660 and 661.

Upon the hearing the district judge made certain findings of fact, as follows:

486] *"1. A subpœna, of which a copy, with a copy of the officer's return thereon is annexed to said petition, was served upon the defendant on the 12th day of April, A. D. 1912.

"2. The corporation mentioned in the statute of the commonwealth of Massachusetts, which took effect on March 25, 1912, being statute 1912, chapter 313, and therein described by the words 'Wheeler and Shaw, Inc.,' is the same corporation that is mentioned in said subpœna. [By the statute the corporation was dissolved and its charter annulled.]

"3. On the afternoon of said April 12th the defendant appeared before said grand jury in response to said subpœna, and thereupon the questions, of which a copy is annexed to said petition, were put to him, and answers, as stated in the copy of the same annexed to said petition, were made by him, and the written statement, of which a copy is annexed to said petition, was left by him with said grand jury. The defendant did not bring with him or have before said grand jury any of the books and copies of letters and telegrams described in said subpœna. He did, when before said grand jury, ask to be sworn for the purpose of stating the reasons why he had not brought with him any of said books and copies of letters and telegrams; but he was not sworn. He did not waive or intend to waive his claim of a right to be sworn before said grand jury for the purpose aforesaid.

"4. Some time in the month of April, 1911, said corporation Wheeler & Shaw, Inc., ceased to do business, and shortly afterwards the legal title and possession of all the books and papers of said corporation then belonging to it, including all the books and copies of letters and telegrams described in the subpœna, were lawfully transferred to the defendant and to one Stillman Shaw as tenants in common, and have ever since remained in the defendant and said Shaw. Prior to the time when said statute of 1912, *chap. 313 [dis-[487 solving the corporation], took effect, the defendant was the treasurer of said corporation, and said Shaw was the president thereof, and neither the defendant nor said Shaw has ever resigned his said office in said corporation."

Wheeler and Shaw also took bills of exceptions, in which it appears that the cases were heard upon the petitions, sworn answers, and certain facts admitted by counsel in open court, which are set out and incorporated in the finding of fact appearing of record, and in which it is further made to appear that defendants at the hearing before the court repeated the claim set up by them before the grand jury that a compliance with the subpœna duces tecum would violate their right to be secure against unreasonable searches and seizures under the 4th Amendment of the United States Constitution, and their right not to be compelled to be witnesses against themselves in any criminal case, under the protection of the 5th Amendment. They also asked the court to rule that such order would violate their rights under the Massachusetts Constitution. The court overruled all of the objections of defendants, and held, as a matter of law, that the legal effect of dissolving the corporation and transferring to the defendants the books and copies of letters and telegrams described in the subpœna had not been to make the books and papers the private property of the defendants in such sense as to exempt them from producing such books and correspondence before the grand jury, as required by the subpœna, and that the facts of the cases brought them within the rule of this Court in Wilson v. United States, supra.

The defendants reduce their contentions in this court to two propositions, namely:

"I. The orders of commitment and the imprisonment thereunder have deprived the plaintiffs in error and appellants [referred to in this opinion as defendants] of their liberty without due process of law.

488] *"II. If, as is agreed, the books and papers described in the subpœna were the private property of the plaintiffs in error and appellants, then the court's order requiring their production before the grand jury, and the judgments of contempt based upon the disobedience of that order, violated the right of each plaintiff in error and appellant under the 5th Amendment not to be compelled in any criminal case to be a witness against himself, and the right of each under the 4th Amendment to be exempt from unreasonable searches and seizures."

The proposition that the orders of the court of commitment and imprisonment deprived defendants of their liberty without due process of law seems to be based upon the contention that the corporation was in no way obliged to obey the subpœna, and that, after its dissolution, it was not subject to any subpœna requiring the production of books and papers before the grand jury. But we do not think there is any merit in this objection. If the government had the legal right to demand the production of the books and papers in question, with a view to the investigation of the alleged offense of Wheeler and Shaw in the proceedings before the grand jury, whether the subpœna was drawn in proper form or not, or whether the corporation, in view of its dissolution, could have been compelled to comply with its requirements, in the attitude which the case has taken, is immaterial. It is apparent from the facts already recited that Wheeler and Shaw were required by the subpœna duces tecum to bring before the grand jury the books and papers of the corporation which had been dissolved, and that they so understood the subpœna; that they were in possession of such books and papers which could be by them produced before the grand jury, and that, before the order of commitment was made, the defendants were allowed a full hearing in a court of competent jurisdiction. No objection was taken to the technical form of the subpœna in directing it 489] to *the corporation, and not the individuals. There is nothing to show it was so broad as to be objectionable, as was indicated of the subpœna in Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. ed. 652, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370. The defendants, in possession of the books and papers, were denying the right of the court to compel their production because of the dissolution of the corporation; because the title and possession of the books and papers had passed to the defendants individually and were their private property as tenants in common, and they had no possession or custody of the documents as officers of the corporation, and because, as against them, the compulsory production of such books and correspondence would violate their rights under the 4th and 5th Amendments to the Constitution of the United States.

We think the questions of substance now presented are whether the rights of the defendants as individuals to be exempt from unreasonable search and seizure of their property and from being compelled to be witnesses against themselves would be violated by the compulsory production of the documents in question.

We are of opinion that this case is virtually ruled by Wilson v. United States, supra. In that case it was held that there was no unreasonable search or seizure where the officer of a corporation, whose guilt of an offense against the laws of the United States was under investigation, was compelled to produce books and papers of the corporation of which he was president, because, as against the corporation, the true owner of the books and papers, their production might lawfully be compelled, and that there was no self-incrimination of such officer, because he was not compelled to produce his private books, but the books of the corporation, which were not within the protection given to the private books and papers of an individual. We are unable to see that this case differs in principle from that one. It is true the corporation in the present case had ceased to exist, but *its books and papers were [490 still in existence and were still impressed with the incidents attending corporate documents. Wheeler and Shaw had been officers of the corporation, and the books of the company had, before the dissolution, been made over to them; but this did not change the essential character of the books and papers, or make them any more privileged in the investigation of crime than they were before.

Wheeler and Shaw, it may be admitted, could no longer be officers of the corporation, although the record shows that they had never resigned their positions. The corporation, however, had gone out of existence, leaving its books and papers in the possession of the defendants, and it may be conceded, for many purposes such books belonging to them; but, as was held in the Wilson Case, the privilege of the Constitution against unreasonable searches and seizures does not protect against the lawful examination in due course of books of this character; nor does the privilege of individuals against self-incrimination in the production of their own books and papers prevent the compulsory production of the books of a corporation with which they happen to be or have been associated. It was the character of the books and papers as corporate records and documents which justified the court in ordering their production, as this court ruled in the Wilson Case. We think the character of the books was not changed for this purpose, because the corporation had gone out of existence after making over the books to the defendants. Such books and papers still remained subject to inspection and investigation, and no constitutional right of the defendants was violated when, being found in possession of the documents, they were required to produce them for inspection by the grand jury. It follows that the judgments of commitment in Nos. 658 and 659, and the orders appealed from in Nos. 660 and 661, should be affirmed.

---

491] *ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
E. H. CRONINGER.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 491–513.)

Commerce — exclusiveness of Federal power — superseding state legislation — carrier's liability.

1. The intent of Congress to take possession of the subject of the liability of a carrier under contracts for interstate shipment, and to supersede all state regulations with reference to that subject, so clearly appears from the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288), to the act of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104), § 20, as to invalidate, as applied to interstate shipments, the provisions of any state law nullifying contracts limiting the liability of a carrier for loss or damage to the agreed or declared value.

[For other cases, see Commerce, I. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — liability — Carmack amendment.

2. A liability for some default in its common-law duty as a common carrier, and not liability as an insurer, is what is imposed by the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, under which a carrier receiving property for interstate transportation is required to issue a receipt or bill of lading therefor, and is made liable to the holder for "any loss, damage, or injury to such property caused by it," or by any connecting carrier to whom the property may be delivered.

[For other cases, see Carriers, II. b, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Commerce — conflicting state and Federal regulations — carrier's liability.

3. Rights and remedies conferred by existing state laws, where a shipment accepted by a carrier for interstate transportation has been lost, injured, or damaged, were not continued in force by the proviso in the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, that nothing therein contained shall deprive the holder of the receipt or bill of lading of any remedy or right of action which he has under existing law, but such proviso only preserves to such holder any right or remedy which he may have had under existing Federal law at the time of his action.

[For other cases, see Commerce, I. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — limiting liability — agreed value.

4. Inquiry as to the actual value of an interstate shipment is not vital to the fairness, under the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, of a stipulation in the carrier's receipt, limiting its liability to the agreed or declared value, where such receipt, as well as the published rates on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission, plainly show that the rate charged was based upon value.

[For other cases, see Carriers, II. b, 7 b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Evidence — presumption — knowledge of shipper.

5. A shipper's knowledge that the carrier's rate was based upon the value of

---

NOTE.—For state statutes regulating the liability of carriers with respect to shipments over connecting lines, as interference with interstate commerce—see note to Skipper v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 7 L.R.A. (N.S.) 388.

As to limitation of carrier's liability for loss to agreed valuation—see notes to Everett v. Norfolk & S. R. Co. 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 985.

As to carrier's power to limit amount of 814 liability in case of negligence generally—see note to Ballou v. Earle, 14 L.R.A. 433.

As to right to limit liability by contract in the absence of negligence—see note to Little Rock & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Cravens, 18 L.R.A. 527.

And generally, as to liability of connecting carrier for loss beyond its own line—see note to Roy v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1.

the shipment is to be presumed where this plainly appears from the terms of the bill of lading and from the published rates on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

[For other cases, see Evidence, II. e, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — limiting liability — agreed value.

6. A carrier could, at common law, by a fair, open, just, and reasonable agreement, limit the amount recoverable by a shipper in case of loss or damage, to an agreed value, made for the purpose of obtaining the lower of two or more rates, proportioned to the amount of the risk.

[For other cases, see Carriers, II. b, 7 b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Carriers — limiting liability — agreed value — effect of Carmack amendment.

7. A stipulation in a carrier's receipt, limiting its liability to an agreed or declared value, made to adjust the rate, is not forbidden by the provision of the Carmack Amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, that "no contract, receipt, rule, or regulation shall exempt such common carrier, railroad, or transportation company, from the liability hereby imposed."

[For other cases, see Carriers, II. b, 7 b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 18.]

Argued March 13, 1912. Ordered for reargument before full bench April 8, 1912. Reargued October 23, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of Kenton County, State of Kentucky, to review a judgment against a carrier for the full value of an undelivered interstate shipment, notwithstanding a stipulation limiting the carrier's liability to the agreed value. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

Statement by Mr. Justice Lurton:

This was an action in the circuit court of Kenton county, Kentucky, against the express company, to recover the full market value of a small package containing a diamond ring which was delivered by the plaintiff below to the express company at its office in Cincinnati, Ohio, consigned to J. W. Clendenning at Augusta, Georgia. The package was never delivered.

The express company made defense by answer. The plaintiff demurred to the answer as not containing a defense, which demurrer was sustained. The company declined to further plead, whereupon the circuit court gave judgment for the sum of $137.52, being the full value of the ring and interest. A writ of error was sued out from this court to the circuit court of Kenton county, that being the highest court of the state in which a decision could be had.

The answer and accompanying exhibit were in substance as follows:

*That the defendant was an express[493 company engaged in interstate commerce within the provisions of the act of Congress of June 29, 1906 [34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288]; that in obedience to that act it had duly filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission schedules showing its rates and charges from Cincinnati to Augusta, Georgia, which schedules showed that its rates and charges, when the value of the property to be carried was in excess of $50, were graduated reasonably, according to the value, and that the lawful rate upon the package of the plaintiff from Cincinnati to Augusta was 25 cents if the value was $50 or less, and was 55 cents if its value was $125.

It is averred that the plaintiff knew that the charges upon the package shipped were based upon the value of the shipment, and that it (the defendant) required that the value should be declared by the shipper, and that if he did not disclose and declare the value when he delivered the shipment to it at Cincinnati for transportation to Augusta, the rate charged would be based upon a valuation of $50. It is then alleged that the package so delivered was sealed, and that defendant did not know the contents or value, and that if it had, it would not have received it for carriage for less than the lawful published rate of 55 cents. The receipt or bill of lading issued shows no value, but contains a stipulation in these words:

"In consideration of the rate charged for carrying said property, which is regulated by the value thereof, and is based upon a valuation of not exceeding $50 unless a greater value is declared, the shipper agrees that the value of said property is not more than $50, unless a greater value is stated herein, and that the company shall not be liable in any event for more than the value so stated, nor for more than $50 if no value is stated herein."

Mr. Lawrence Maxwell argued the cause, and, with Mr. Joseph S. Graydon, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

A public policy of the United States of uniform application is necessarily established by the acts to regulate commerce, which is inconsistent with the power, formerly existing in the states, to compel an interstate carrier to answer for more than the amount on which the rate was based, to a shipper who has secured an illegally low rate.

New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 395, 50 L. ed. 515, 523, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 72, 52 L. ed. 681, 691, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 219 L. ed. 297, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. United States, 215 U. S. 481, 54 L. ed. 292, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; Melody v. Great Northern R. Co. 25 S. D. 606, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 568, 127 N. W. 543, Ann. Cas. 1912 C, 727.

Initial carriers are not subject to the liability imposed by varying state laws for loss or damage to interstate shipments, because Congress has assumed possession of the domain of such liability.

Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186, 55 L. ed. 167, 31 L.R.A. (N.S.) 7, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; Southern P. Co. v. Crenshaw Bros. 5 Ga. App. 675, 63 S. E. 865; Northern P. R. Co. v. Washington, 222 U. S. 370, 378, 56 L. ed. 237, 239, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 160; Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 444, 56 L. ed. 263, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 145.

The Carmack amendment, construed in connection with the other sections of the act, imposes on defendant no liability in excess of the value of the goods as shown by the bill of lading, being the value on which the rate for carriage was based.

Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 486, 48 L. ed. 268, 271, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 28 L. ed. 717, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151; Hinton v. Dibbin, 2 Q. B. 646, 2 Gale & D. 36, 6 Jur. 601; Kidd v. Greenwich Ins. Co. 35 Fed. 351; Calderon v. Atlas S. S. Co. 64 Fed. 874; Calderon v. Atlas S. S. Co. 16 C. C. A. 332, 35 U. S. App. 587, 69 Fed. 574; The Kensington, 88 Fed. 331; Jennings v. Smith, 45 C. C. A. 249, 106 Fed. 139; Saunders v. Southern R. Co. 62 C. C. A. 523, 128 Fed. 15; Macfarlane v. Adams Exp. Co. 137 Fed. 982; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Patrick, 77 C. C. A. 434, 144 Fed. 632; Taylor v. Weir, 162 Fed. 585; Blackwell v. Southern P. Co. 184 Fed. 489; George N. Pierce Co. v. Wells Fargo Co. 110 C. C. A. 645, 189 Fed. 561; Liverpool & G. W. Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co. 129 U. S. 397, 442, 32 L. ed. 788, 792, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 338; Calderon v. Atlas S. S. Co. 170 U. S. 272, 42 L. ed. 1033, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 588; The Kensington, 183 U. S. 263, 46 L. ed. 190, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 102; Alair v. Northern P. R. Co. 53 Minn. 160, 19 L.R.A. 764, 39 Am. St. Rep. 588, 54 N. W. 1072; J. J. Douglas Co. v. Minnesota Transfer R. Co. 62 Minn. 288, 30 L.R.A. 860, 64 N. W. 899; O'Malley v. Great Northern R. Co. 86 Minn. 380, 90 N. W. 974; Loeser v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 94 Wis. 571, 69 N. W. 372; Ullman v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 112 Wis. 150, 56 L.R.A. 246, 88 Am. St. Rep. 949, 88 N. W. 41; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Hubbard, 72 Ohio St. 302, 74 N. E. 214; Bernard v. Adams Exp. Co. 205 Mass. 254, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 293, 91 N. E. 325, 18 Ann. Cas. 351; Greenwald v. Barrett, 199 N. Y. 170, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 971, 92 N. E. 218; Travis v. Wells, F. & Co. 79 N. J. L. 83, 74 Atl. 444; Pittsburgh, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Mitchell, 175 Ind. 196, 91 N. E. 735, 93 N. E. 996; Larsen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. 38 Utah, 130, 110 Pac. 983; D'Arcy v. Adams Exp. Co. 162 Mich. 363, 127 N. W. 261; Oppenheimer v. United States Exp. Co. 69 Ill. 62, 18 Am. Rep. 596; Johnstone v. Richmond & D. R. Co. 39 S. C. 55, 17 S. E. 512.

Plaintiff cannot maintain the action, because it is founded on a transaction on his part which is declared to be a fraud on the defendant and a public offense by acts of Congress.

Ellison v. Adams Exp. Co. 245 Ill. 410, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 92 N. E. 277; Re Released Rates, 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 550; Frank v. Adams Exp. Co. 38 Pittsb. L. J. N. S. 335; Miller v. Ammon, 145 U. S. 421, 36 L. ed. 759, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 884; Brown v. Tarkington, 3 Wall. 377, 18 L. ed. 255; Hanauer v. Doane, 12 Wall. 342, 20 L. ed. 439; Sprott v. United States, 20 Wall. 459, 22 L. ed. 371; The Florida, 101 U. S. 37, 25 L. ed. 898; Gibbs v. Consolidated Gas. Co. 130 U. S. 396, 32 L. ed. 979, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 553; McMullen v. Hoffman, 174 U. S. 639, 43 L. ed. 1117, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 839; Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. ed. 739, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Burck v. Taylor, 152 U. S. 634, 648, 38 L. ed. 578, 583, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 696; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 391, 50 L. ed. 515, 521, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272.

Mr. John Randolph Schindel argued the cause, and, with Mr. Morison R. Waite, filed a brief for defendant in error:

The contract embodied in the receipt was void.

Southern Exp. Co. v. Fox, 131 Ky. 257,

133 Am. St. Rep. 241, 115 S. W. 184, 117 S. W. 270; Adams Exp. Co. v. Walker, 119 Ky. 121, 67 L.R.A. 412, 83 S. W. 106; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Frazee, 24 Ky. L. Rep. 1273, 71 S. W. 437; Ohio & M. R. Co. v. Tabor, 98 Ky. 503, 34 L.R.A. 685, 32 S. W. 168, 36 S. W. 18; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Graves, 21 Ky. L. Rep. 684, 52 S. W. 961; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Radford, 23 Ky. L. Rep. 886, 64 S. W. 511.

The purpose of Congress was to establish uniform rates for transportation, to give all the same opportunity to know what the rates were, as well as to have the equal benefit of them. The interstate commerce act deals primarily with rates and discriminations, and the right of a common carrier to limit its liability by special contract is not included, expressly or by implication.

Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 52 L. ed. 681, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 437, 51 L. ed. 553, 557, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 55 L. ed. 297, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265.

Unless the Congress of the United States has sought to prohibit a carrier engaged in interstate transportation from limiting, or to permit such a carrier to limit, its liability to a stipulated valuation, or has legislated upon that "precise" subject, the state of Kentucky may require common carriers, although engaged in interstate commerce, to answer for the whole loss resulting from their negligence, whether there is a contract or not.

Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289.

The plaintiff in error would have us believe that when Congress prohibited a common carrier from limiting its liability with respect to the obligations imposed by the interstate commerce act, it intended to wipe out every regulation made or upheld by the different states for the protection of their shippers. That such was not the intention of Congress is apparent from the terms of the act, and that such was not the intention is strengthened by the decisions of the supreme judicial court of Massachusetts and the court of appeals of New York in the cases of Bernard v. Adams Exp. Co. 205 Mass. 254, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 293, 91 N. E. 325, 11 Ann. Cas. 351, and Greenwald v. Barrett, 199 N. Y. 170, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 971, 92 N. E. 218.

The right of plaintiff to recover, even if the action was founded on a transaction declared to be a public offense by an act of Congress, was a question of general common law, and has been determined in his favor by the Kentucky court.

Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 486, 48 L. ed. 268, 271, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132.

The common law of Kentucky, as interpreted by the court of appeals of that state, does not prohibit the recovery of the real value of property lost, where the only evidence of a declaration of the shipper upon which the supposed misrepresentation or fraud is founded is the contract, which, by that law, is declared to be void.

Adams Exp. Co. v. Walker, 119 Ky. 121, 67 L.R.A. 412, 83 S. W. 106.

Mr. Justice Lurton, after making the foregoing statement, delivered the opinion of the court:

The answer relies upon the act of Congress of June 29, 1906 [34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288], being an act to amend the interstate commerce act of 1887 [24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104], as the only regulation applicable to an interstate shipment; and avers that the limitation of value, declared in its bill of lading, was valid and obligatory under that act. This defense was denied. This constitutes the Federal question and gives this court jurisdiction.

Under the law of Kentucky this contract, limiting the plaintiff's recovery to the agreed or declared value, was invalid, and the shipper was entitled to recover the actual value, "unless," as said in Adams Exp. Co. v. Walker, 119 Ky. 121, 67 L.R.A. 412, 83 S. W. 106, and affirmed in Southern Exp. Co. v. Fox & Logan, 131 Ky. 257, 133 Am. St. Rep. 241, 115 S. W. 184, 117 S. W. 270, "sufficient facts are shown, independently of the special contract, to avoid the contract for fraud, or to create an estoppel at common law."

The question upon which the case must turn is whether the operation and effect of the contract for an interstate shipment, as shown by the receipt or bill of lading, is *governed by the local law of the state,[500 or by the acts of Congress regulating interstate commerce.

That the constitutional power of Congress to regulate commerce among the states and with foreign nations comprehends power to regulate contracts between the shipper and the carrier of an interstate shipment by defining the liability of the carrier for loss, delay, injury, or damage to such property, needs neither argument nor citation of authority.

But it is equally well settled that until Congress has legislated upon the subject, the liability of such a carrier, exercising its calling within a particular state, although engaged in the business of interstate commerce, for loss or damage to such property, may be regulated by the law of the state. Such regulations would fall within that large class of regulations which it is competent for a state to make in the absence of legislation by Congress, growing out of the territorial jurisdiction of the state over such carriers, and its duty and power to safeguard the general public against acts of misfeasance and nonfeasance committed within its limits, although interstate commerce may be indirectly affected: Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 31 L. ed. 508, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. New York, 165 U. S. 628, 41 L. ed. 853, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 137, 42 L. ed. 688, 692, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Richmond & A. R. Co. v. R. A. Patterson Tobacco Co. 169 U. S. 311, 42 L. ed. 759, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 335; Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Illinois, 177 U. S. 514, 44 L. ed. 868, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 722; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132. In the Solan Case, cited above, it was said of such state legislation:

"They are not, in themselves, regulations of interstate commerce, although they control, in some degree, the conduct and the liability of those engaged in such commerce. So long as Congress has not legislated upon the particular subject, they are rather to be regarded as legislation in aid of such commerce, and as a rightful exercise of the police power of the state to regulate the relative rights and duties of all persons and corporations within its limits."

501] *In that case the court upheld the validity of an Iowa statute which made void every "contract, receipt, rule, or regulation which shall exempt any railway from liability as a common carrier, which would exist had no contract, receipt, rule, or regulation been made or entered into."

The contract there involved was for transportation of cattle with a drover in charge, and the shipper had signed a contract limiting the liability to himself or the drover to $500 for injury to the person of the drover. Proof was offered that this limitation was the consideration of a reduced rate of transportation.

In Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 487, 491, 48 L. ed. 268, 271, 273, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132, there was involved a bill of lading in all essentials identical with the one here concerned, whereby it was stipulated that, in consideration of a reduced rate of freight, the shipper should receive, in case of negligent loss, the agreed value declared in the receipt. The shipment was made in New York, where the stipulation was valid, to a point in Pennsylvania, where such a limitation was invalid. The loss occurred in the latter state, and the supreme court of the state upheld a judgment for the full value, declaring the limitation invalid as forbidden by the public policy of that state. That case came to this court upon the contention that the Pennsylvania court, in refusing to limit the recovery to the valuation agreed upon, had denied to the railroad company a right or privilege secured to it by the interstate commerce law. But this court, as to that, said:

"It may be assumed that under the broad power conferred upon Congress over interstate commerce, as defined in repeated decisions of this court, it would be lawful for that body to make provision as to contracts for interstate carriage, permitting the carrier to limit its liablity to a particular sum in consideration of lower freight rates for transportation. But upon examination of the terms *of the law relied upon we fail[502 to find any such provision therein. The sections of the interstate commerce law relied upon by the learned counsel for plaintiff in error (24 Stat. at L. 379, 382, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1284; 25 Stat. at L. 855, chap. 382, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1289) provide for equal facilities to shippers for the interchange of traffic; for nondiscrimination in freight rates; for keeping schedules of rates open to public inspection; for posting the same in public places, with certain particulars as to charges, rules, and regulations; for the publication of joint tariff rates for continuous transportation over one or more lines, to be made public when directed by the Interstate Commerce Commission; against advances in joint tariff rates except after ten days' notice to the Commission; against reduction of joint tariff rates except after three days' like notice; making it unlawful for any party to a joint tariff to receive or demand a greater or less compensation for the transportation of property between points as to which a joint tariff is made different than is specified in the schedule filed with the Commission; giving remedies for the enforcement of the foregoing provisions, and providing penalties for their violation; making it unlawful to prevent continuous carriage, and providing that no break of bulk, stoppage, or interruption by the carrier, unless made in good faith, for some necessary purpose, without intention to evade the act, shall prevent the carriage of freights from being treated as one continuous carriage from the place of shipment to the place of destination.

"While, under these provisions, it may be said that Congress has made it obligatory to provide proper facilities for interstate carriage of freight, and has prevented carriers from obstructing continuous shipments on interstate lines, we look in vain for any regulation of the matter here in controversy. There is no sanction of agreements of this character limiting liability to stipulated valuations, and, until Congress shall legislate upon it, is there any 503] *valid objection to the state enforcing its own regulations upon the subject, although it may to this extent indirectly affect interstate commerce contracts of carriage?"

In view of the decisions of this court in the two cases last referred to, we shall assume that this case is governed by them, unless the subsequent legislation of Congress is such as to indicate a purpose to bring contracts for interstate shipments under one uniform rule of law not subject to the varying policies and legislation of particular states.

The original interstate commerce act of February 4, 1887, was extensively amended by the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288). We may pass by many of the changes and amendments made by the latter act as not decisive, and come at once to the far more important amendment made in the 20th section,—an amendment bearing directly upon the carrier's liability or obligation under interestate contracts of shipment, and generally referred to as the Carmack amendment. For convenience of reference, it is set out in the margin†

504] *This amendment came under consideration in Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186, 55 L. ed. 167, 31 L.R.A. (N.S.) 7, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; but the opinion and judgment was confined to that provision of the act which made the initial carrier liable for a loss upon the line of a connecting carrier, the property having been received under a bill of lading which confined the liability of the initial carrier to loss occurring upon its own line.

The significant and dominating features of that amendment are these:

First. It affirmatively requires the initial carrier to issue " a receipt or bill of lading therefor," when it receives "property for transportation from a point in one state to a point in another."

Second. Such initial carrier is made "liable to the lawful holder thereof for any loss, damage, or injury to such property caused by it."

Third. It is also made liable for any loss, damage, or injury to such property caused by "any common carrier, railroad, or transportation company to which such property may be delivered, or over whose line or lines such property may pass."

Fourth. It affirmatively declares that "no contract, receipt, rule, or regulation shall exempt such commmon carrier, railroad, or transportation company from the liability hereby imposed."

Prior to that amendment, the rule of carriers' liability, for an interstate shipment of property, as enforced in both Federal and state courts, was either that of the general common law, as declared by this court and enforced in the Federal courts throughout the United States (Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 28 L. ed. 717, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151), or that determined by the supposed public policy of a particular state (Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132), or that prescribed by statute law of a particular state (Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289).

Neither uniformity of obligation nor of liability was *possible until Congress [505 should deal with the subject. The situation was well depicted by the supreme court of Georgia in Southern P. Co. v. Crenshaw Bros. 5 Ga. App. 675, 63 S. E. 865, where that court said:

"Some states allow carriers to exempt

†That any common carrier, railroad, or transportation company receiving property for transporation from a point in one state to a point in another state shall issue a receipt or bill of lading therefor, and shall be liable to the lawful holder thereof for any loss, damage, or injury to such property caused by it or by any common carrier, railroad, or transportation company to which such property may be delivered, or over whose line or lines such property may pass; and no contract, receipt, rule, or regulation shall exempt such common carrier, railroad, or transportation company from the liability hereby imposed: Provided, That nothing in this section shall deprive any holder of such receipt or bill of lading of any remedy or right of action which he has under existing law.

That the common carrier, railroad, or transportation company issuing such receipt or bill of lading shall be entitled to recover from the common carrier, railroad, or transportation company on whose line the loss, damage, or injury shall have been sustained, the amount of such loss, damage, or injury, as it may be required to pay to the owners of such property, as may be evidenced by any receipt, judgment, or transcript thereof.

themselves from all or a part of the common-law liability by rule, regulation, or contract; others did not. The Federal courts sitting in the various states were following the local rule, a carrier being held liable in one court when, under the same state of facts, he would be exempt from liability in another. Hence this branch of interstate commerce was being subjected to such a diversity of legislative and judicial holding that it was practically impossible for a shipper engaged in a business that extended beyond the confines of his own state, or a carrier whose lines were extensive, to know, without considerable investigation and trouble, and even then oftentimes with but little certainty, what would be the carrier's actual responsibility as to goods delivered to it for transportation from one state to another. The congressional action has made an end to this diversity, for the national law is paramount and supersedes all state laws as to the rights and liabilities and exemptions created by such transactions. This was doubtless the purpose of the law; and this purpose will be effectuated, and not impaired or destroyed, by the state courts' obeying and enforcing the provisions of the Federal statute where applicable to the fact in such cases as shall come before them."

That the legislation supersedes all the regulations and policies of a particular state upon the same subject results from its general character. It embraces the subject of the liability of the carrier under a bill of lading which he must issue, and limits his power to exempt himself by rule, regulation, or contract. Almost every detail of the subject is covered so completely that there can be no rational doubt but that Con-
506 gress intended to take possession of *the subject, and supersede all state regulation with reference to it. Only the silence of Congress authorized the exercise of the police power of the state upon the subject of such contracts. But when Congress acted in such a way as to manifest a purpose to exercise its conceded authority, the regulating power of the state ceased to exist. Northern P. R. Co. v. Washington, 222 U. S. 370, 56 L. ed. 237, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 160; Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 327, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169.

To hold that the liability therein declared may be increased or diminished by local regulation or local views of public policy will either make the provision less than supreme, or indicate that Congress has not shown a purpose to take possession of the subject. The first would be unthinkable, and the latter would be to revert to the uncertainties and diversities of rulings which led to the amendment. The duty to issue a bill of lading, and the liability thereby assumed, are covered in full; and though there is no reference to the effect upon state regulation, it is evident that Congress intended to adopt a uniform rule and relieve such contracts from the diverse regulation to which they had been theretofore subject.

What is the liability imposed upon the carrier? It is a liability to any holder of the bill of lading which the primary carrier is required to issue "for any loss, damage, or injury to such property caused by it," or by any connecting carrier to whom the goods are delivered. The suggestion that an absolute liability exists for every loss, damage, or injury, from any and every cause, would be to make such a carrier an absolute insurer, and liable for unavoidable loss or damage, though due to uncontrollable forces. That this was the intent of Congress is not conceivable. To give such emphasis to the words, "any loss or damage," would be to ignore the qualifying words, "caused by it." The liability thus imposed is limited to "any loss, injury, or damage caused by it or a succeeding *carrier to whom the property may be[507 delivered;" and plainly implies a liability for some default in its common-law duty as a common carrier.

But it has been argued that the nonexclusive character of this regulation is manifested by the proviso of the section, and that state legislation upon the same subject is not superseded, and that the holder of any such bill of lading may resort to any right of action against such a carrier, conferred by existing state law. This view is untenable. It would result in the nullification of the regulation of a national subject, and operate to maintain the confusion of the diverse regulation which it was the purpose of Congress to put an end to.

What this court said of the 22d section of this act of 1887 in the case of Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075, is applicable to this contention. It was claimed that that section continued in force all rights and remedies under the common law or other statutes. But this court said of that contention what must be said of the proviso in the 20th section, that it was evidently only intended to continue in existence such other rights or remedies for the redress of some specific wrong or injury, whether given by the interstate commerce act, or by state statute, or common law, not inconsistent with the rules and regulations prescribed by the provisions of this act. Again, it was said of the same clause, in the same case, that it could not in reason be construed as continuing in a shipper a common-law right the existence of which would be inconsistent with the provisions of the act. In other words, the act cannot be said to destroy itself.

To construe this proviso as preserving to the holder of any such bill of lading any right or remedy which he may have had under existing Federal law at the time of his action gives to it a more rational interpretation than one which would preserve rights and remedies under existing state laws, for the latter view would cause the 508]proviso to *destroy the act itself. One illustration would be a right to a remedy against a succeeding carrier, in preference to proceeding against the primary carrier, for a loss or damage incurred upon the line of the former. The liability of such succeeding carrier in the route would be that imposed by this statute, and for which the first carrier might have been made liable.

We come now to the question of the validity of the provision in the receipt or bill of lading limiting liability to the agreed value of $50, as shown therein. This limiting clause is in these words:

"In consideration of the rate charged for carrying said property, which is regulated by the value thereof, and is based upon a valuation of not exceeding $50 unless a greater value is declared, the shipper agrees that the value of said property is not more than $50, unless a greater value is stated herein, and that the company shall not be liable in any event for more than the value so stated, nor for more than $50 if no value is stated herein."

The answer states that the schedules which the express company had filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission showed rates based upon valuations; and that the lawful and established rate for such a shipment as that made by the plaintiff from Cincinnati to Augusta, having a value not in excess of $50, was 25 cents, while for the same package, if its value had been declared to be $125, the amount for which the plaintiff sues as the actual value, the lawful charge, according to the rate filed and published, would have been 55 cents. It is further averred that the package was sealed, and its contents and actual value unknown to the defendant's agent.

That no inquiry was made as to the actual value is not vital to the fairness of the agreement in this case. The receipt which was accepted showed that the charge made *was based upon a valuation of [509 $50 unless a greater value should be stated therein. The knowledge of the shipper that the rate was based upon the value is to be presumed from the terms of the bill of lading and of the published schedules filed with the Commission. That presumption is strengthened by the fact that across the top of this bill of lading there was this statement in bold type: "This company's charge is based upon the value of the property, which must be declared by the shipper."

That a common carrier cannot exempt himself from liability for his own negligence or that of his servants is elementary. York Mfg. Co. v. Illinois C. R. Co. 3 Wall. 107, 18 L. ed. 170; New York C. R. Co. v. Lockwood, 17 Wall. 357, 21 L. ed. 627; Bank of Kentucky v. Adams Exp. Co. 93 U. S. 174, 23 L. ed. 872; Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 338, 28 L. ed. 717, 720, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151. The rule of the common law did not limit his liability to loss and damage due to his own negligence, or that of his servants. That rule went beyond this, and he was liable for any loss or damage which resulted from human agency, or any cause not the act of God or the public enemy. But the rigor of this liability might be modified through any fair, reasonable, and just agreement with the shipper which did not include exemption against the negligence of the carrier or his servants. The inherent right to receive a compensation commensurate with the risk involved the right to protect himself from fraud and imposition by reasonable rules and regulations, and the right to agree upon a rate proportionate to the value of the property transported.

It has therefore become an established rule of the common law, as declared by this court in many cases, that such a carrier may, by a fair, open, just, and reasonable agreement, limit the amount recoverable by a shipper in case of loss or damage to an agreed value, made for the purpose of obtaining the lower of two or more rates of *charges proportioned to the amount of[510 the risk. York Mfg. Co. v. Illinois C. R. Co. 3 Wall. 107, 18 L. ed. 170; New York C. R. Co. v. Lockwood, 17 Wall. 357, 21 L. ed. 627; Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 338, 28 L. ed. 717, 720, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151; Phœnix Ins. Co. v. Erie & W. Transp. Co. 117 U. S. 312, 322, 29 L. ed. 873, 878, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1176; Liverpool & G. W. Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co. (The Montana) 129 U. S. 397, 442, 32 L. ed. 788, 792, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 469; New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. v. Estill, 147 U. S. 591, 619, 37 L. ed. 292, 305, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 444; Primrose v. Western U. Teleg.

Co. 154 U. S. 1, 15, 38 L. ed. 883, 889, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1098; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 135, 42 L. ed. 688, 690, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Calderon v. Atlas S. S. Co. 170 U. S. 272, 278, 42 L. ed. 1033, 1035, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 588; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 485, 48 L. ed. 268, 271, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132.

That such a carrier might fix his charges somewhat in proportion to the value of the property is quite as reasonable and just as a rate measured by the character of the shipment. The principle is that the charge should bear some reasonable relation to the responsibility, and that the care to be exercised shall be in some degree measured by the bulk, weight, character, and value of the property carried.

Neither is it conformable to plain principles of justice that a shipper may understate the value of his property for the purpose of reducing the rate, and then recover a larger value in case of loss. Nor does a limitation based upon an agreed value for the purpose of adjusting the rate conflict with any sound principle of public policy. The reason for the legality of such agreements is well stated in Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 338, 28 L. ed. 717, 720, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151, where it is said:

"The limitation as to value has no tendency to exempt from liability for negligence. It does not induce want of care. It exacts from the carrier the measure of care due to the value agreed on. The carrier is bound to respond in that value for negligence. The compensation for carriage is based on that value. The shipper is estopped from saying that the value is greater. The articles have no greater value, for the purposes of the contract of transportation, between the parties to that contract. 511]The *carrier must respond for negligence up to that value. It is just and reasonable that such a contract, fairly entered into, and where there is no deceit practised on the shipper, should be upheld. There is no violation of public policy. On the contrary, it would be unjust and unreasonable, and would be repugnant to the soundest principles of fair dealing and of the freedom of contracting, and thus in conflict with public policy, if a shipper should be allowed to reap the benefit of the contract if there is no loss, and to repudiate it in case of loss."

The statutory liability, aside from responsibility for the default of a connecting carrier in the route, is not beyond the liability imposed by the common law, as that body of law applicable to carriers has been interpreted by this court, as well as many courts of the states. Greenwald v. Barrett, 199 N. Y. 170, 175, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 971, 92 N. E. 218; Bernard v. Adams Exp. Co. 205 Mass. 254, 259, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 293, 91 N. E. 325, 18 Ann. Cas. 351. The exemption forbidden is, as stated in the case last cited, "a statutory declaration that a contract of exemption from liability for negligence is against public policy and void." This is no more than this court, as well as other courts administering the same general common law, have many times declared. In the same case, just such a stipulation as that here involved was upheld, the court saying:

"But such a contract as we are considering in this case is not an exemption from liability for negligence in the management of property, within the meaning of the statute. It is a contract as to what the property is, in reference to its value. The purpose of it is not to change the nature of the undertaking of the common carrier, or limit his obligation in the care and management of that which is intrusted to him. It is to describe and define the subject-matter of the contract, so far as the parties care to define it, for the purpose of showing of what value that is which comes into the carrier's possession, and for which he must account in the performance of his duty *as a carrier. It is not in any[512 proper sense a contract exempting him from liability for the loss, damage, or injury to the property, as the shipper describes it in stating its value for the purpose of determining for what the carrier shall be accountable upon his undertaking, and what price the shipper shall pay for the service and for the risk of loss which the carrier assumes."

In Greenwald v. Barrett, cited above, the same conclusion was reached as to the nature of the liability imposed and the purport of the exemption forbidden, the court, among other things, saying:

"The language of the enactment does not disclose any intent to abrogate the right of common carriers to regulate their charges for carriage by the value of the goods, or to agree with the shipper upon a valuation of the property carried. It has been the uniform practice of transportation companies in this country to make their charges dependent upon the value of the property carried; and the propriety of this practice and the legality of contracts signed by the shipper, agreeing upon a valuation of the property, were distinctly upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States in Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 341, 28 L. ed. 717, 721, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151."

To the same effect are the cases of Travis

v. Wells, F. & Co. 79 N. J. L. 83, 74 Atl. 444; Fielder v. Adams Exp. Co. 69 W. Va. 138, 71 S. E. 99; Larsen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. 38 Utah, 130, 110 Pac. 983. See also Atkinson v. New York Transfer Co. 76 N. J. L. 608, 71 Atl. 278, as to the general rule.

That a carrier rate may be graduated by value, and that a stipulation limiting recovery to an agreed value, made to adjust the rate, is recognized by the Interstate Commerce Commission, see Re Released Rates, 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 550.

We therefore reach the conclusion that the provision of the act forbidding exemptions from liability imposed by the act is not violated by the contract here in question.

513] *The demurrer to the answer of the defendant below should have been overruled. For this reason the judgment is reversed, with direction to overrule the demurrer, and for such further proceedings as are not inconsistent with this opinion.

---

CHICAGO, BURLINGTON, & QUINCY RAILWAY COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
H. FRED MILLER.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 513-518.)

Commerce — exclusiveness of Federal power — superseding state regulation — carrier's liability.

1. Congress has so manifested a purpose in the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, to take possession of the subject of the liability of a railway carrier for loss or damage to an interstate shipment, as to supersede all state regulations upon the same subject, including the provisions of state Constitutions or laws invalidating contracts limiting the carrier's liability to an agreed value, made to adjust the rate.

[For other cases, see Commerce, I. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.].

Carriers — limiting liability — agreed value — effect of Carmack amendment.

2. The shipper and carrier of an interstate shipment are not forbidden to contract to limit the carrier's liability to an agreed value, made to adjust the rate, by the provisions of the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, § 20, prohibiting exemptions from the liability imposed by that act.

[For other cases, see Carriers, II. b, 7, b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 17.]

Argued March 8 and 11, 1912. Ordered for reargument before full bench April 8, 1912. Reargued October 22, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Nebraska to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of Custer County, in that state, enforcing the liability of a carrier for the full value of a lost interstate shipment, notwithstanding a contract stipulation limiting the carrier's liability to the agreed value. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 85 Neb. 458, 123 N. W. 449.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Arthur R. Wells and Robert B. Scott argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The publication and filing of the tariff schedules, and the strict prohibition of all departure therefrom, or of even engaging in commerce until they had been published and filed, were the means adopted by Congress to effectuate the purposes which Congress had in view in the enactment of the acts to regulate commerce, and to furnish a standard by which they might be enforced.

New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 391, 50 L. ed. 515, 521, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 55 L. ed. 297, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. United States, 26 L.R.A.(N.S.) 551, 84 C. C. A. 324, 156 Fed. 563.

Although the Hepburn act gave the Commission power, upon complaint and hearing, to prescribe reasonable rates, rules, regulations, and practices, and to require their observance, Congress left with the carriers the right, and charged upon them the duty of making in the first instance the rates

---

NOTE.—State statutes regulating the liability of carriers with respect to shipments over connecting lines, as interference with interstate commerce—see note to Skipper v. Seaboard Air Line R. Co. 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 388.

As to limitation of carrier's liability for loss to agreed valuation—see note to Everett v. Norfolk & S. R. Co. 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 985.

As to carrier's power to limit amount of liability in case of negligence generally—see note to Ballou v. Earle, 14 L.R.A. 433.

As to right to limit liability by contract in the absence of negligence—see note to Little Rock & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Cravens, 18 L.R.A. 527.

And, generally, as to liability of connecting carrier for loss beyond its own line—see note to Roy v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1.

which should be charged and the rules and regulations which should govern the transportation of property in interstate commerce.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. 167 U. S. 479, 502, 42 L. ed. 243, 252, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 896; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 209 U. S. 108, 119, 52 L. ed. 705, 713, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

The carrier's rules and regulations fixing or affecting the amount of the rates charged or the value of the service rendered, when embodied in the published tariffs and filed with the Commission, became in effect regulations imposed by law, and had the same binding force upon the shipper and carrier as if they had been enacted by Congress itself.

Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 72, 80–83, 52 L. ed. 681, 691, 694, 695, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 467, 476, 55 L. ed. 297, 301, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Mugg, 202 U. S. 242, 50 L. ed. 1011, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 628; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 193 Fed. 667; Poor v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 12 Inters. Com. Rep. 422; Blinn v. Southern P. Co. 18 Inters. Com. Rep. 430.

If the plaintiff believed that the rule contained in the published classification, making the rate dependent upon the declared valuation of the animal shipped, and binding the shipper by the value he placed upon the animal, was unreasonable in any respect, it was his duty to declare the true valuation upon which he desired to rely in case of the injury or death of the animal, and pay the rate assessed upon that basis, and then apply to the Commission for an order of reparation.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. United States ex rel. Pitcairn Coal Co. 215 U. S. 481, 54 L. ed. 292, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155.

In some jurisdictions, contracts relieving the carrier from all losses not due to its gross negligence are valid and enforceable. In the majority of the states the rule is otherwise, and carriers may, for a valid consideration, limit their liability for such losses only as are not caused by their want of ordinary care. Upon this subject there has been little harmony in the decisions of the state courts.

6 Cyc. 385 et seq.; 1 Hutchinson, Carr. 3d. ed. §§ 388–492; 2 Wyman, Public Service Corp. §§ 1000–1026.

The common law as established by the Federal courts, whose decisions are alone controlling in this matter, forbids a common carrier from exempting himself from liability for his negligence and that of his servants, but does permit such special contracts restricting the full common-law responsibility of a common carrier as do not have that effect, and are otherwise just and reasonable in the eye of the law.

New York C. R. Co. v. Lockwood, 17 Wall. 357, 21 L. ed. 627, 10 Am. Neg. Cas. 624; Bank of Kentucky v. Adams Exp. Co. 93 U. S. 174, 23 L. ed. 872; Liverpool & G. W. Steam Co. v. Phenix Ins. Co. (The Montana) 129 U. S. 397, 32 L. ed. 788, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 469; Cau v. Texas & P. R. Co. 194 U. S. 427, 48 L. ed. 1053, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663.

In the absence of legislation by Congress, these conflicting state rules have governed interstate shipments.

Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132.

The common law of the United States, as interpreted by the Supreme Court, had long permitted carriers to offer alternative rates based upon the value of the goods, and bind the shipper by a designated valuation of the goods. Such contracts are not considered to free the carrier from the consequences of its negligence.

New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. Fraloff, 100 U. S. 24, 27, 25 L. ed. 531, 533; Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 28 L. ed. 717, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151; Primrose v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 154 U. S. 1, 15, 38 L. ed. 883, 890, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1098; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 135, 42 L. ed. 688, 690, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; The Queen of the Pacific, 180 U. S. 49, 57, 45 L. ed. 419, 422, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 278, 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 985, note.

It is a long-established and equitable principle of rate making, that rates and classifications shall in part be based upon the value of the commodities and the carrier's risk in case of loss or injury in transit. It has been recognized and enforced by the Commission.

Southern Cotton Oil Co. v. Louisville & N. R. Co. 18 Inters. Com. Rep. 180; National Hay Asso. v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 9 Inters. Com. Rep. 307, 19 Inters. Com. Rep. 47; Proctor & G. Co. v. Cincinnati, H. & D. R. Co. 9 Inters. Com. Rep. 482; Tift v. Southern R. Co. 10 Inters. Com. Rep. 587; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 141 Fed. 1015, 209 U. S. 108, 52 L. ed. 705, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

The Carmack amendment did not abrogate this rule.

Bernard v. Adams Exp. Co. 205 Mass. 254, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 293, 91 N. E. 325, 18 Ann. Cas. 351; Greenwald v. Barrett, 199 N. Y. 170, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 971, 92 N. E. 218; Fry v. Southern P. R. Co. 247 Ill. 564, 93 N. E. 906; Travis v. Wells, F. & Co. 79 N. J. L. 83, 74 Atl. 444; Larsen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. 38 Utah, 130, 110 Pac. 983; Fielder v. Adams Exp. Co. 69 W. Va. 138, 71 S. E. 99. See also Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Robinson v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 222 U. S. 506, 56 L. ed. 288, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114.

The proviso cannot reasonably be given an effect which annuls the substantive rules established by the other sections of the commerce acts, which Congress enacted for the purpose of insuring equality of treatment and putting an end to discrimination.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 446, 51 L. ed. 553, 561, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; Latta v. Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. 97 C. C. A. 198, 172 Fed. 850.

Where Congress has acted within the scope of its constitutional powers, and its regulations come in conflict with the organic or statutory law of the state, the Federal regulations are controlling, and the state law must give way.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Gibbons v. Ogden, 9 Wheat. 1, 197, 6 L. ed. 23, 70.

Messrs. Edwin E. Squires and H. M. Sullivan argued the cause, and, with Mr. Norris Brown, filed a brief for defendant in error:

The Constitution of Nebraska is self-operative and has the force of a statute. It is not merely a limitation on the power of the legislature, but acts directly upon the parties and their contracts, and prevents a carrier from contracting to limit its liability to the shipper for damages. This is settled law in Nebraska.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Vandeventer, 26 Neb. 222, 3 L.R.A. 129, 41 N. W. 998; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Gardner, 51 Neb. 70, 70 N. W. 508.

In Nebraska a contract limiting the liability of a common carrier is void, and cannot be the foundation of an estoppel of the shipper to collect damages.

Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Witty, 32 Neb. 275, 29 Am. St. Rep. 436, 49 N. W. 183; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Lawler, 40 Neb. 356, 58 N. W. 968; 6 Cyc. 387, b, 391-393; The Kensington, 183 U. S. 263, 46 L. ed. 190, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 102.

While a carrier cannot exempt itself from some liability for damages it causes, neither can it limit the amount for which it will be liable. The measure of the amount recoverable by the shipper is the real extent of damage suffered, regardless of agreed value or stipulation of limitation named in the contract.

Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Gardiner, 51 Neb. 70, 70 N. W. 508; Miller v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 85 Neb. 458, 123 N. W. 449; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Vandeventer, 26 Neb. 222, 3 L.R.A. 129, 41 N. W. 998; Union P. R. Co. v. Metcalf, 50 Neb. 460, 69 N. W. 961; Pennsylvania Co. v. Kennard Glass & Paint Co. 59 Neb. 435, 81 N. W. 372.

This rule is applicable alike to interstate and intrastate shipments.

St. Joseph & G. I. R. Co. v. Palmer, 38 Neb. 463, 22 L.R.A. 335, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 494, 56 N. W. 957.

Under the Iowa statute, as construed by its courts, a carrier cannot by contract exempt itself from liability, or limit the amount of its liability to less than the real value of the property destroyed or injured. The shipper cannot be estopped by a special contract from recovering the full amount of damage he has suffered by the dereliction of the carrier.

Hart v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 69 Iowa, 485, 29 N. W. 597; Solan v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 95 Iowa, 260, 28 L.R.A. 178, 58 Am. St. Rep. 430, 63 N. W. 692; Lucas v. Burlington, C. R. & N. W. R. Co. 112 Iowa, 594, 84 N. W. 673; Winn v. American Exp. Co. 149 Iowa, 259, 128 N. W. 663; Bette v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 150 Iowa, 252, 129 N. W. 962; Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 153 Iowa, 103, 133 N. W. 387.

Nor can the shipper be estopped by the fact that he misrepresented the value of his property to procure a lower rate; that is, in that state there is no estoppel in pais independently of the validity or the invalidity of the contract.

Lucas v. Burlington, C. R. & N. W. R. Co. 112 Iowa, 594, 84 N. W. 673; Betts v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 150 Iowa, 252, 129 N. W. 962.

This rule in Iowa is applicable to both interstate and intrastate shipments, is an exercise of the police power of the state, and is in no proper sense a regulation of interstate commerce.

Hart v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 69 Iowa, 485, 29 N. W. 597; Solan v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 95 Iowa, 260, 28 L.R.A. 718, 58 Am. St. Rep. 430, 63 N. W. 692; Lucas v. Burlington, C. R. & N. W. R. Co. 1

Iowa, 594, 84 N. W. 673; Winn v. American Exp. Co. 149 Iowa, 259, 128 N. W. 663; Betts v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 150 Iowa, 252, 129 N. W. 962; Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 153 Iowa, 103, 133 N. W. 387.

Congress has never passed a law which is in conflict with the Iowa statute.

Winn v. American Exp. Co. 149 Iowa, 259, 128 N. W. 663; Betts v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 150 Iowa, 252, 129 N. W. 962; Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 153 Iowa, 103, 133 N. W. 387; Latta v. Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. 97 C. C. A. 198, 172 Fed. 850; Miller v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 85 Neb. 458, 123 N. W. 449; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Rodgers, 16 N. M. 120, 113 Pac. 80; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Pew, 109 Va. 288, 64 S. E. 35.

State statutes, such as the one in Iowa, and state rules of law of like nature, whether the same have been established by statute, Constitution, or judicial interpretation, prohibiting carriers in case of shipments, both interstate and intrastate, from limiting their liability to the shipper, have been passed upon by this court, and by it ratified and approved, and by it established as existing law.

Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Martin v. Pittsburg & L. E. R. Co. 203 U. S. 284, 51 L. ed. 184, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 100, 8 Ann. Cas. 87.

Such statutes and laws have been repeatedly held by this court to be within the police power of the state, and in no sense a regulation of interstate commerce.

Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Commercial Mill. Co. 218 U. S. 406, 54 L. ed. 1088, 36 L.R.A.(N.S.) 220, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 59, 21 Ann. Cas. 815.

The carrier is made liable by the Carmack amendment for "any loss, damage, or injury." The use of this word "any" is of paramount importance. "Any" in this context means "all."

1 Words & Phrases, 421; Monongahela Nav. Co. v. Coon, 6 Pa. 379, 47 Am. Dec. 474; 2 Cyc. 472 (note 21); Jones v. Whitworth, 94 Tenn. 602, 30 S. W. 736; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Mottley, 219 U. S. 479, 55 L. ed. 302, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 671, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265.

If we are right in our construction of the Carmack amendment, then it is idle to talk about estoppel. There can be no estoppel by a contract which contravenes the statute. There can be no estoppel by a rule or regulation of the carrier whether it applies to rates or anything else, when the statute says in effect that such rule or regulation shall not work an estoppel or exempt the carrier from full liability for loss caused by it.

16 Cyc. 720.

The carrier cannot, because it filed with the Commission a rate proportioned upon a declared valuation in this case, shield itself from full liability for loss caused by it.

Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 153 Iowa, 103, 133 N. W. 387; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Pew, 109 Va. 288, 64 S. E. 35.

The question of value as a basis of rates is no more a subject of contract than any other feature tending to make freight rates fixed and certain and to prevent discrimination. The value must be the true value, or so near such as to stamp the proceedings with bona fides. The Federal statute provides that there shall be no false classification and false billing. It further provides for penalties for false classification and false billing, whether done knowingly or not. To charge a rate upon a false value is to fix a false classification. Such a rate forbidden by law would bind neither carrier nor shipper.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Mugg, 202 U. S. 242, 50 L. ed. 1011, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 628; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 431, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075.

In a situation where the rate was fixed at a definite amount, with limited liability in a proper case on the part of the carrier, and made 20 per cent higher with full liability, the Interstate Commerce Commission condemned the discrimination as unreasonable, and directed the carriers to revise their contracts, making the discrimination less.

Re Released Rates, 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 565.

The alternative of rates presented is unreasonable, made so simply to force consent of the shipper to agree to limited liability, and therefore the contract must be construed as one designed not to procure a reasonable proportion between the risk assumed and the freight charged, but to obtain a limitation of liability for negligence, and one that is unreasonable and void.

Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 153 Iowa, 103, 133 N. W. 387.

A reasonable alternative of fares, and an opportunity to contract, with full common-law liability at a reasonable differential rate, must be offered, or the contract will be construed as unreasonable and void.

Little Rock & Ft. S. R. Co. v. Cravens, 57

Ark. 112, 18 L.R.A. 527, 38 Am. St. Rep. 230, 20 S. W. 803, 88 Am. St. Rep. 93, note.

Even in those courts where a reasonable limitation of liability is permitted, such a variation from the true value renders the contract unreasonable and void, and a mere cloak to avoid liability.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Smith, 123 Tenn. 678, 134 S. W. 866; 6 Cyc. 401; 1 Hutchinson, Carr. 427; Southern R. Co. v. Jones, 132 Ala. 437, 31 So. 501; South & North Ala. R. Co. v. Henlein, 52 Ala. 606, 23 Am. Rep. 578.

As long as the Federal statute is not in conflict with the law of the state, the latter remains operative, and a carrier cannot limit its liability in the states of Iowa and Nebraska. The state statutes forbidding limitation of liability are enacted under the police power of the state, and, so long as the state and Federal statutes are not in conflict, both may stand.

Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 153 Iowa, 103, 133 N. W. 387; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Gulf C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Hennington v. Georgia, 163 U. S. 299, 41 L. ed. 166, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1086; Covington & C. Bridge Co. v. Kentucky, 154 U. S. 204, 38 L. ed. 962, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 649, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1087; Parkersburg & O. River Transp. Co. v. Parkersburg, 107 U. S. 691, 27 L. ed. 584, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 732.

517] *Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

The question in this case, as in Adams Exp. Co. v. Croninger, 226 U. S. 491, ante, 314, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148, just decided, is whether the provisions of § 20 of the act of February 4, 1887 [24 Stat. at L. 386, chap. 104], as amended by the act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288), constitute an exclusive regulation of contracts for interstate shipments of property by railroad common carriers, superseding all state regulations upon the same subject.

The action in this case was to recover the full value of a stallion shipped from a point in Iowa to a point in Nebraska, under a valued live-stock contract. The loss occurred in the state of Nebraska through the negligence of the carrier, and the suit was in a court of that state.

The receipt or bill of lading placed a value upon the animal of $100, and was signed by the shipper's agent. It recited that the schedules of rates and regulations filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission provide alternative rates of charges proportioned to the value of the stock delivered for transportation, as declared by the shipper, and that the recovery of the shipper in case of loss or injury should not be in excess of the value thus agreed upon for the purpose of determining the rate.

The plaintiff's claim that the stallion was in fact of the value of $2,000, and that the limitation of recovery stipulated is void under a statute of Iowa, where the contract was made, and also illegal and invalid under a clause in the Constitution of Nebraska, the state in which the loss occurred, and of the forum.

The company relies upon the provisions of the act of 1906 as an exclusive rule regulating every contract for an interstate shipment, and declaring the liability of the carrier, and contends that the regulations provided by the 7th section of that act operate to supersede the legislation of both Iowa and Nebraska, in so far as they applied to interstate shipments.

*This defense was overruled in the[518 trial court, and the agreement in the plaintiff's bill of lading, limiting any recovery in case of loss or damage, to the value declared for the purpose of obtaining the lower or alternative rate of freight, was held to be illegal, both under the law of Iowa and Nebraska, and judgment was rendered for the full value of the animal. This judgment was affirmed by the supreme court of Nebraska, that court ruling that the case was controlled by the state regulations referred to, and that these regulations had not been superseded by acts of Congress regulating interstate commerce. For this the court cited and relied upon certain decisions by the Nebraska courts, and the cases of Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289, and Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132. Both of the cases decided by this court were decided prior to the extensive amendment of the act regulating interstate commerce of 1887 by the act of June 29, 1906.

In Adams Exp. Co. v. Croninger, supra, we reached the conclusion that by the provisions of the 7th section of the latter act, Congress had manifested a purpose to take possession of the subject of the liability of a carrier by railroad for interstate shipments, and that the regulations therein had superseded all state regulations upon the same subject. This case is therefore controlled by that judgment.

It follows that the supreme court of Nebraska erred in applying to the contract here involved the provisions of the Iowa statute, and of the Constitution of the state of Nebraska, and in refusing to apply the exclusive regulation prescribed by the 7th section of the act of 1906, as that provision has been construed by this court in the Croninger Case, above referred to.

The judgment is accordingly reversed, and remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

---

519] *CHICAGO, ST. PAUL, MINNEAPOLIS, & OMAHA RAILWAY COMPANY, Petitioner,

v.

BUD R. LATTA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 519, 520.)

This case is governed by the decision in Adams Exp. Co. v. Croninger, ante, 314, and Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Miller, ante, 323.

[No. 231.]

Argued March 8 and 11, 1912. Ordered for reargument April 8, 1912. Reargued October 22 and 23, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

ON WRIT of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit to review a judgment which, on a second writ of error, affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court for the District of Nebraska, against a carrier, for the value of an undelivered interstate shipment, notwithstanding a contract stipulation limiting the carrier's liability to the agreed value. Reversed.

See same case below on first writ of error, 97 C. C. A. 198, 172 Fed. 850; on second writ of error, 106 C. C. A. 664, 184 Fed. 987.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. James B. Sheean argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Carl C. Wright and B. H. Dunham, filed a brief for petitioner:

State laws touching bills of lading issued on interstate shipments, or defining the liability of carriers thereunder, or prohibiting limitation on such liability, have been superseded by the commerce act as amended June 29th, 1906.

Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 327, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169, 1 N. C. C. A. 875; M'Culloch v. Maryland, 4 Wheat. 316, 4 L. ed. 579; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 99, 39 L. ed. 910, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802; Fulgham v. Midland Valley R. Co. 167 Fed. 660; Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. v. Solan, 169 U. S. 133, 42 L. ed. 688, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Arkansas Fertilizer Co. v. United States, 193 Fed. 667.

An agreement fixing the value for the purpose of securing a lower rate is not an exemption from liability.

Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 28 L. ed. 717, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151; Southern Exp. Co. v. Caldwell, 21 Wall. 264, 22 L. ed. 556; The Kensington, 183 U. S. 263, 46 L. ed. 190, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 102; Jennings v. Smith, 45 C. C. A. 249, 106 Fed. 139; Macfarlane v. Adams Exp. Co. 137 Fed. 982; Taylor v. Weir, 162 Fed. 585; George N. Pierce Co. v. Wells, F. & Co. 110 C. C. A. 645, 189 Fed. 561; Blackwell v. Southern P. R. Co. 184 Fed. 489; Ullman v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 112 Wis. 150, 56 L.R.A. 246, 88 Am. St. Rep. 949, 88 N. W. 41; Zimmer v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 137 N. Y. 460, 33 N. E. 642; Pennsylvania Co. v. Shearer, 75 Ohio St. 249, 116 Am. St. Rep. 730, 79 N. E. 431, 9 Ann. Cas. 15; Graves v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 137 Mass. 33, 50 Am. Rep. 282; Alair v. Northern P. R. Co. 53 Minn. 160, 19 L.R.A. 764, 39 Am. St. Rep. 588, 54 N. W. 1072; Harvey v. Terre Haute & I. R. Co. 74 Mo. 538; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Sowell, 90 Tenn. 17, 15 S. W. 837; Ballou v. Earle, 17 R. I. 441, 14 L.R.A. 433, 33 Am. St. Rep. 881, 22 Atl. 1112; Atkinson v. New York Transfer Co. 76 N. J. L. 608, 71 Atl. 278.

A declaration of value, made in the shipping contract and embodied in the tariff, does not exempt the carrier from the liability imposed by the Carmack amendment to the commerce act.

Bernard v. Adams Exp. Co. 205 Mass. 254, 28 L.R.A.(N.S.) 293, 91 N. E. 325, 18 Ann. Cas. 351; Greenwald v. Barrett, 199 N. Y. 170, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 971, 92 N. E. 218; Fry v. Southern P. R. Co. 247 Ill. 564, 93 N. E. 909; Travis v. Wells, F. & Co. 79 N. J. L. 83, 74 Atl. 444; Larsen v. Oregon Short Line R. Co. 38 Utah, 130, 110 Pac. 983; Fielder v. Adams Exp. Co. 69 W. Va. 138, 71 S. E. 99.

When rates are based on a declared valuation, the tariff rules or regulations must state every condition which in anywise changes, affects, or determines any part of the rate. Rates based on such valuation are authorized by the commerce act, and when properly published are binding upon all.

Re Released Rates, 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 550; George N. Pierce Co. v. Wells, F. & Co. 110 C. C. A. 645, 189 Fed. 561.

The reasonableness of rates, rules, and regulations so established is subject to the control of the Commerce Commission, and cannot be questioned in a collateral proceeding.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil

Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. United States, 215 U. S. 481, 54 L. ed. 292, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155.

The proviso to the Carmack amendment does not confer power upon the states to nullify the commerce act, or keep alive the laws of the states inconsistent with that act.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075.

An agreement that damages shall not exceed the value declared for the purpose of securing a lower rate of transportation is not a limitation of liability as it existed at common law.

Bradley v. Waterhouse, 3 Car. & P. 318, Moody & M. 154; Clay v. Willan, 1 H. Bl. 298; Walker v. Jackson, 10 Mees. & W. 161, 12 L. J. Exch. (N.S.) 165; Magnin v. Dinsmore, 62 N. Y. 35, 20 Am. Rep. 442; Hill v. London & N. W. R. Co. 42 L. T. N. S. 513.

A declaration of value, made by a shipper for the purpose of securing a lower rate, estops him from afterwards recovering damages in excess of the value so declared.

Hart v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 112 U. S. 331, 28 L. ed. 717, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 151; Jennings v. Smith, 45 C. C. A. 249, 106 Fed. 139; Macfarlane v. Adams Exp. Co. 137 Fed. 982; Taylor v. Weir, 162 Fed. 585; Ullman v. Chicago & N. W. R. Co. 112 Wis. 150, 56 L.R.A. 246, 88 Am. St. Rep. 949, 88 N. W. 41; Daniels v. Tearney, 102 U. S. 415, 421, 26 L. ed. 187, 189; United States v. Hodson, 10 Wall. 395, 409, 19 L. ed. 937, 940; Ferguson v. Landram, 5 Bush, 230, 96 Am. Dec. 350.

A cause of action cannot be founded on an illegal transaction.

Ellison v. Adams Exp. Co. 245 Ill. 410, — L.R.A. (N.S.) —, 92 N. E. 277; Haggerty v. St. Louis Ice Mfg. & Storage Co. 143 Mo. 238, 40 L.R.A. 151, 65 Am. St. Rep. 647, 44 S. W. 1114; M'Neill v. Durham & C. R. Co. 132 N. C. 510, 67 L.R.A. 227, 95 Am. St. Rep. 641, 44 S. E. 34; George N. Pierce Co. v. Wells, F. & Co. 110 C. C. A. 645, 189 Fed. 561.

Mr. James B. Sheean also filed a separate brief for petitioner:

The Carmack amendment and the interstate commerce act supersede all state laws prescribing the terms and conditions of interstate bills of lading, and defining the rights and obligations of carriers and shippers arising thereon.

Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Northern P. R. Co. v. Washington, 222 U. S. 370, 56 L. ed. 237, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 160; Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 327, 38 L.R.A. (N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169, 1 N. C. C. A. 875; Latta v. Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. 97 C. C. A. 198, 172 Fed. 850.

The proviso to the Carmack amendment does not reserve to the states power to enforce laws in conflict with the amendment, or inconsistent with the purposes of the commerce act.

Robinson v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 222 U. S. 506, 56 L. ed. 288, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 442, 446, 51 L. ed. 559, 561, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. United States, 215 U. S. 481, 497, 54 L. ed. 292, 298, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164; Southern P. Co. v. Crenshaw Bros. 5 Ga. App. 675, 63 S. E. 865; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 200 U. S. 361, 50 L. ed. 515, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Armour Packing Co. v. United States, 209 U. S. 56, 72, 52 L. ed. 681, 691, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 428.

Mr. H. C. Brome argued the cause, and, with Mr. W. M. Hopewell, filed a brief for respondent:

The application by congressional enactment, of Federal authority over a subject committed to the care of the general government by the Federal Constitution, does not at all interfere with the exercise by the state, under the police power, of its authority touching the same subject, so long as this exercise of power is reasonable, and does not interfere with the full and efficient operation of the Federal rule.

Compagnie Francaise de Navigation a Vapeur v. State Bd. of Health, 186 U. S. 380, 46 L. ed. 1209, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 811.

The act of Congress itself forbids the limitation of liability by the carrier.

Re Released Rates, 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 550; Winn v. American Exp. Co. 149 Iowa, 259, 128 N. W. 663; Cramer v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 153 Iowa, 103, 133 N. W. 387.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

This was an action to recover the full value of two horses lost in the course of interstate transportation.

The defense in substance was that the plaintiff had declared the value of each of the animals to not exceed $100, and had signed a shipping contract wherein he agreed that that was the value, and that the company's liability in case of loss or damage should not exceed the agreed value. It was also shown that the schedule o tariff rates was based upon values, and that a higher rate was allowable if a higher value had been declared. It was claimed that a limitation of liability, made 520] *for the purpose of obtaining the lower of alternative rates, was admissible under the provisions of the 7th section of the interstate commerce act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288).

The circuit court instructed a verdict for the agreed value, ruling that the contract was valid and was controlled by the interstate commerce acts. The circuit court of appeals reversed this judgment, upon the ground that the contract was invalid under the Constitution of the state of Nebraska, and held the plaintiff entitled to recover the full value of the animals. 97 C. C. A. 198, 172 Fed. 850. The case was remanded to the circuit court, where, in pursuance of the judgment and opinion of the circuit court of appeals, the jury was instructed that it should find the actual value of the animals lost, and return a verdict for that amount. Upon a second writ of error this judgment was affirmed by the circuit court of appeals, and the cause has come to this court upon a writ of certiorari.

The case is governed by the cases of Adams Exp. Co. v. Croninger, 226 U. S. 491, ante, 314, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148, and Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Miller, 226 U. S. 513, ante, 323, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155, both just decided.

Judgment reversed and the case is remanded for a new trial.

---

JOHN McNAMARA, Appt.,
v.
WILLIAM HENKEL, United States Marshal for the Southern District of New York, et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 520–525.)

Habeas corpus — scope of review — extradition.

1. The decision of a committing magistrate in foreign extradition proceedings cannot be reviewed on habeas corpus if he had jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the accused, and the offense charged was within the treaty, and he had before him legal evidence upon which to exercise his judgment as to the sufficiency of the facts to establish the criminality of the accused for extradition purposes, in view of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 5270, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3591, providing that if, on the hearing, he deems the evidence sufficient to sustain the charge, he shall certify the same to the Secretary of State, and issue his warrant for the commitment of the accused pending surrender according to the stipulations of the treaty.

[For other cases, see Habeas Corpus, 127–139, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Habeas corpus — review of extradition proceedings — evidence.

2. Competent evidence that the crime of burglary, as defined by the law of New York, where the alleged fugitive was arrested, was committed in Canada by breaking into a garage between 4 and 6 A. M., with intent to steal the automobile there kept, and that such automobile, having been taken out and moved some distance away, the accused was seen about 6 A. M., trying to crank the engine, the electric wiring of which, as was shown by a subsequent examination, had been disarranged in an apparent effort to overcome the absence of a switch plug, is sufficient, on habeas corpus, to sustain the action of the United States commissioner in issuing an order of commitment for extradition.

[For other cases, see Habeas Corpus, 127–139, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Evidence — burglary — unexplained possession of stolen property.

3. Guilty participation in the burglarious entry of a garage may be inferred from the unexplained apparent possession of the automobile kept there by a person engaged, shortly after the burglary, in an effort to crank the engine of the automobile, which had been taken out of the building and moved some distance away.

[For other cases, see Evidence, XII. n; II. e, 8, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Habeas corpus — scope of review — error in admitting evidence.

4. The error, if any, committed by a United States commissioner in receiving in evidence in foreign extradition proceedings certain depositions taken in the demanding country, which were certified by the Consul General of the United States as proposed to be used upon an application for extradition of the accused upon another charge, cannot be reviewed on habeas corpus, which does not operate as a writ of error.

[For other cases, see Habeas Corpus, 108–119, 127–139, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 687.]

Argued December 4, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a decree dis-

---

NOTE.—As to habeas corpus in extradition cases—see notes to Oteiza y Cortes v. Jacobus, 34 L. ed. U. S. 464; Wisener v. Burrell, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 755.

As to what questions may be considered on habeas corpus—see notes to Ex parte Carll, 27 L. ed. U. S. 288, and Pearce v. Texas, 39 L. ed. U. S. 164.

As to presumption of burglary from possession of recently stolen property—see note to State v. Brady, 12 L.R.A.(N.S.) 200.

missing writs of habeas corpus and certiorari to inquire into a detention under a commitment for extradition purposes. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. George Gordon Battle argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

The law of the state where the alleged fugitive is apprehended must dominate.

Pettit v. Walshe, 194 U. S. 205, 217, 218, 48 L. ed. 938, 942, 943, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 657; Wright v. Henkel, 190 U. S. 41, 58, 61, 47 L. ed. 948, 954, 955, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 781, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 386; Re Frank, 107 Fed. 272; United States v. Greene, 100 Fed. 941; Re Ezeta, 62 Fed. 981.

There must be such competent evidence of probable cause as would justify a committing magistrate hearing a like proceeding in the state of New York in holding the alleged fugitive.

Benson v. McMahon, 127 U. S. 457, 32 L. ed. 234, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1240; Re Herres, 33 Fed. 165; Re Calder, 2 Edm. Sel. Cas. 374; Re Washburn, 4 Johns. Ch. 106, 8 Am. Dec. 548.

While this court will not review the weight or the effect of the evidence, it will, upon writs of habeas corpus and certiorari, pass upon the question whether there was any legal evidence upon which the commissioner acted.

Terlinden v. Ames, 184 U. S. 270, 278, 46 L. ed. 534, 541, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 484, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 424.

Can a magistrate hold a prisoner upon mere suspicion or speculation, or must there be some competent legal proof to establish two elements—first, that a crime has been committed, and, second, that the accused is the person who committed it?

People ex rel. Bungart v. Wells, 57 App. Div. 142, 68 N. Y. Supp. 59; Church, Habeas Corpus, p. 319; Ex parte Jenkins, 2 Wall. Jr. 521, Fed. Cas. No. 7,259; Re Henry, 13 Misc. 734, 35 N. Y. Supp. 210; People ex rel. Perkins v. Moss, 187 N. Y. 418, 11 L.R.A. (N.S.) 528, 80 N. E. 383, 10 Ann. Cas. 309; Ex parte Swartwout, 4 Cranch, 75, 2 L. ed. 555.

"Probable cause" as used in the Federal Constitution, declaring that no warrant shall issue but upon probable cause, has been held to mean that there must be a probability that a crime has been committed by the person named in the warrant. Of this probability the court issuing the warrant must be satisfied by facts supported by oath. These facts must induce a reasonable probability that all the acts have been done which constitute the crime charged.

United States v. Boling, 4 Cranch, C. C. 579, Fed. Cas. No. 14,621; United States v. Bollman, 1 Cranch, C. C. 373, Fed. Cas. No. 14,622; United States v. Tureaud, 20 Fed. 623, 9 Fed. Stat. Anno. 254, 255; Re Macdonnell, 11 Blatchf. 190, Fed. Cas. No. 8,772; Re Ezeta, 62 Fed. 982.

In a circumstantial case all the evidence must point to the defendant as having exclusive opportunity to commit the offense charged.

People v. Razezicz, 206 N. Y. 269, 99 N. E. 557.

Depositions improperly authenticated, and therefore incompetent, were erroneously introduced.

Re Henrich, 5 Blatchf. 414, Fed. Cas. No. 6,369; Re McPhun, 24 Blatchf. 254, 30 Fed. 57; Re Farez, 7 Blatchf. 352, Fed. Cas. No. 4,645; Re Benson, 30 Fed. 654.

Where it appears from the proceedings that some other and underlying purpose is to be subserved by the extradition than the trial of the defendant for the particular offense alleged in the warrant, this court should not lend its assistance.

Grin v. Shine, 187 U. S. 181, 184, 47 L. ed. 130, 134, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 98, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 366.

Mr. Charles Fox argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee:

The appeal should be dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

Sloan v. United States, 193 U. S. 614, 48 L. ed. 814, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570; Kaufman v. Smith, 216 U. S. 610, 54 L. ed. 636, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419.

A complaint in an extradition case need not be as precise, technical, and formal as an indictment; it is sufficient if it appears that a treaty offense is charged.

Rice v. Ames, 180 U. S. 371, 45 L. ed. 577, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 406, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 356; Ex parte Sternaman, 77 Fed. 596; Yordi v. Nolte, 215 U. S. 227, 54 L. ed. 170, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90.

If there was sufficient ground for the holding of the appellant by the commissioner upon the evidence before him, he is not to be discharged for defects in the original arrest or commitment.

Yordi v. Nolte, 215 U. S. 227, 54 L. ed. 170, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90.

If the commissioner had jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the person of the accused, and the offense charged is within the terms of the treaty of extradition, and the commissioner in arriving at a decision to hold the accused has before him competent legal evidence upon which to exercise his judgment as to whether the facts are sufficient to establish the criminality of the accused, for the purposes of extradition, such decision cannot be review by a circuit court, or by this court on habeas corpus, either originally or by appeal.

Elias v. Ramirez, 215 U. S. 398, 54 L. ed. 253, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 131; Re Oteiza y Cortes, 136 U. S. 334, 34 L. ed. 466, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1031, 8 Am. Crim. Rep. 241; Bryant v. United States, 167 U. S. 104, 42 L. ed. 94, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 744; Terlinden v. Ames, 184 U. S. 270, 46 L. ed. 534, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 484, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 424; Benson v. McMahon, 127 U. S. 457, 32 L. ed. 234, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1240; Ornelas v. Ruiz, 161 U. S. 502, 40 L. ed. 787, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 689; Glucksman v. Henkel, 221 U. S. 508, 55 L. ed. 830, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 704.

Possession of fruits of a crime within a short time after the commission throws upon the possessor of the property the obligation of showing how he came by it.

People v. Wilson, 7 App. Div. 326, 40 N. Y. Supp. 107, affirmed in 151 N. Y. 403, 45 N. E. 862; People v. Kipp, 121 App. Div. 692, 106 N. Y. Supp. 307; People v. Jackson, 182 N. Y. 77, 74 N. E. 565; Knickerbocker v. People, 43 N. Y. 177.

Recent possession of stolen goods warrants the inference that the possessor is the thief, both because experience shows that usually the party so in possession is the thief, and because the knowledge of how he came into possession of the goods is generally exclusively his own.

Griffen v. Manice, 166 N. Y. 194, 52 L.R.A. 922, 82 Am. St. Rep. 630, 59 N. E. 925; Wilson v. United States, 162 U. S. 613, 40 L. ed. 1090, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 895.

523] *Mr. Justice Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

John McNamara, the appellant, was arrested on the complaint of the British senior vice consul at the port of New York, charging him with committing the crime of burglary at New Westminster, British Columbia, in breaking into a building occupied as a garage and stealing therefrom an automobile and rugs. Examination was demanded, and after hearing the evidence submitted on both sides, the United States commissioner found probable cause and issued an order of commitment for extradition. Writs of habeas corpus and certiorari were then sued out upon the ground that the accused was restrained of his liberty without due process of law. The district court dismissed the writs and this appeal is brought.

The question simply is whether there was any competent evidence before the commissioner entitling him to act under the statute. The weight of the evidence was for his determination. The statute provides that if, on the hearing, "he deems the evidence sufficient to sustain the charge," he shall certify the same to the Secretary of the State, and issue his warrant for the commitment of the accused pending surrender according to the stipulations of the treaty. Rev. Stat. § 5270, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3591. Under this provision, the rule is well established that if the committing magistrate has jurisdiction of the subject-matter and of the accused, and the offense charged is within the treaty, and the magistrate has before him legal evidence on which to exercise his judgment as to the sufficiency of the facts to establish the criminality of the accused for the purposes of extradition, his decision cannot be reviewed on habeas corpus. Re Oteiza y Cortes, 136 U. S. 330, 334, 34 L. ed. 464, 466, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1031, 8 Am. Crim. Rep. 241; Benson v. McMahon, 127 U. S. 457, 463, 32 L. ed. 234, 236, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1240; Re Stupp, 12 Blatchf. 501, Fed. Cas. No. 13,563; *Ornelas v. Ruiz, 161 U. S.[524 502, 508, 40 L. ed. 787, 789, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 689; Bryant v. United States, 167 U. S. 104, 105, 42 L. ed. 94, 95, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 744; Terlinden v. Ames, 184 U. S. 270, 278, 46 L. ed. 534, 541, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 484, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 424; Grin v. Shine, 187 U. S. 181, 192, 47 L. ed. 130, 136, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 98, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 366; Yordi v. Nolte, 215 U. S. 227, 232, 54 L. ed. 170, 172, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90; Elias v. Ramirez, 215 U. S. 398, 407, 54 L. ed. 253, 256, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 131; Gluckaman v. Henkel, 221 U. S. 508, 512, 55 L. ed. 830, 833, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 704.

Without setting forth in detail the facts appearing from the depositions and testimony before the commissioner, it is sufficient to say that there was competent evidence that the crime of burglary as defined by the law of New York, where the appellant was arrested (treaty with Great Britain, 1842, art. 10, 8 Stat. at L. 576; treaty of 1889, art. 1, 26 Stat. at L. 1508, 1509; penal law [N. Y.] §§ 400, 404), had been committed by a breaking into the building in question with intent to steal the automobile there kept. It was shown that this took place between 4 and 6 o'clock on the morning of September 15th, 1911. The car was taken out of the building and rolled about 40 feet down the street, where, shortly before 6 o'clock on that morning, according to testimony, the appellant was seen standing in front of the car, "trying to crank it;" "he was trying," said the witness, "to start the machine off." Three men, unidentified, were with him. On an examination of the car soon after, it was found that the cover had been removed from the spark coil and that several of the electric wires forming part of the motive equipment had been disarranged in an effort, apparently, to operate the car despite the absence of a switch plug.

The district court held that this was evidence connecting the appellant with the crime upon which, in the light of the circumstances proved, the commissioner was entitled to exercise his judgment. We agree with this view. Wilson v. United States, 162 U. S. 613, 619, 620, 40 L. ed. 1090, 1094, 1095, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 895. It is objected that while possession of property recently stolen may be evidence of participation in the larceny, the apparent possession of the automobile by the appellant 525] *affords no support for a conclusion that he committed the burglary, the crime with which he was charged. The permissible inference is not thus to be limited. The evidence pointed to the appellant as one having control of the car and engaged in the endeavor to secure the fruits of the burglarious entry. Possession in these circumstances tended to show guilty participation in the burglary. This is but to accord to the evidence, if unexplained, its natural probative force. Considine v. United States, 50 C. C. A. 272, 112 Fed. 342, 349, 350; Com. v. McGorty, 114 Mass. 299; Knickerbocker v. People, 43 N. Y. 177, 181; Neubrandt v. State, 53 Wis. 89, 9 N. W. 824; State v. Fitzgerald, 72 Vt. 142, 47 Atl. 403, 14 Am. Crim. Rep. 173.

It is assigned as error that the commissioner received in evidence certain depositions taken in British Columbia which were certified by the Consul General of the United States as depositions proposed to be used upon an application for the extradition of the appellant upon another charge. We need not consider the sufficiency of this certificate, as the writ of habeas corpus does not operate as a writ of error, and mere errors are not the subject of review. Benson v. McMahon, 127 U. S. 457, 461, 462, 32 L. ed. 234, 236, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1240; Terlinden v. Ames, 184 U. S. 270, 278, 46 L. ed. 534, 541, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 484, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 424. Irrespective of the depositions objected to, there was legal evidence on which to base the commissioner's action.

Affirmed.

---

UNITED STATES, Plff. in Err.,
v.
JAMES A. PATTEN et al.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 525–544.)

Appeal — by government in criminal case — scope of review.

1. The Federal Supreme Court, when reviewing, under the criminal appeals act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1246, chap. 2564), the judgment of a Federal circuit court whose ruling sustaining a demurrer to certain counts in an indictment charging violations of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), was based upon the construction of that statute, must accept the circuit court's construction of the counts of the indictment, and can consider only whether the decision that the acts charged are not condemned as criminal by the statute is based upon an erroneous construction of that statute.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — by government in criminal case — construction of statute.

2. A judgment of a Federal circuit court sustaining a demurrer to certain counts in an indictment charging violations of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, upon the ground that the acts charged are not within the condemnation of that statute, is based upon a construction of such statute within the meaning of the act of March 2, 1907, governing the right of the government to a review in a criminal case.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — conspiracy in restraint of trade — corner in cotton.

3. A conspiracy to run a corner in the available supply of a staple commodity, such as cotton, normally a subject of interstate trade and commerce, to be accomplished by purchases for future delivery, coupled with a withholding from sale for a limited time, thereby enhancing artificially its price to all buyers throughout the country, is within the terms of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, § 1, which makes it a criminal offense to engage in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, since by its necessary operation it will directly and materially impede and burden such commerce.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — conspiracy in restraint of trade — involuntary restraint.

4. Involuntary restraints upon interstate commerce, the result of a conspiracy between persons not themselves engaged in such commerce, to compel action by others, or to create artificial conditions which necessarily impede or burden the due course

---

NOTE.—As to review by government in criminal case under the act of March 2, 1907—see note to United States v. Stevenson, 54 L. ed. U. S. 153.

As to right of state to appeal in criminal case—see note to People ex rel. Hodson v. Miner, 19 L.R.A. 342.

As to what relation a contract or combination must bear to interstate commerce in order to bring it within the scope of the Federal anti-trust act—see note to Loewe v. Lawlor, 52 L. ed. U. S. 488.

As to illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws, generally,—see note to Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

of such commerce, or restrict the common liberty to engage therein, are comprehended by the provisions of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, § 1, which make it a criminal offense to engage in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, as well as voluntary restraints produced by an agreement between persons so engaged to suppress competition among themselves.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — combinations in restraint of trade — temporary stimulation of competition.

5. A conspiracy to corner the market in a commodity, though it may tend to stimulate competition for a time, is within the provisions of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890, making it a criminal offense to engage in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, if it also operates to thwart the usual operation of the laws of supply and demand, to withdraw the commodity from the normal current of trade, to enhance the price artificially, to hamper users and consumers in satisfying their needs, and to produce practically the same evils as does the suppression of competition.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Criminal intent — conspiracy in restraint of trade.

6. Persons engaging in a conspiracy which necessarily and directly will impede and burden interstate commerce, contrary to the act of July 2, 1890, § 1, making it a criminal offense to engage in a conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, are chargeable with intending that result.

[For other cases, see Criminal Law, 34-36, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 282.]

Argued November 9 and 10, 1911. Ordered for reargument before full bench April 29, 1912. Reargued October 23 and 24, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a judgment sustaining a demurrer to certain counts in an indictment, charging violations of the Sherman anti-trust act. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 187 Fed. 664.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Former Solicitor General Lehmann argued the cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

A corner of the entire cotton market of the United States during the last four months of the crop year, undertaken by several persons acting in concert for that purpose, and carried out by the purchase on the controlling exchange of the country, of cotton, for delivery during those months, in quantities in excess of the supply available for such delivery, thus creating an abnormal demand for cotton, with the necessary result of compelling all persons having occasion to buy cotton, as well speculative sellers who must get cotton to fill their contracts, as merchants, spinners, and manufacturers who must get cotton for their business needs, to pay excessive prices for such cotton, the persons running the corner to be beneficiaries of such excessive prices in settlements with "short" sellers and in sales to merchants and manufacturers,— is a conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce among the states of the Union.

Ex parte Young, 6 Biss. 53, Fed. Cas. No. 18,145; Wells v. McGeoch, 71 Wis. 196, 35 N. W. 769; Sampson v. Shaw, 101 Mass. 145, 3 Am. Rep. 327; Raymond v. Leavitt, 46 Mich. 447, 41 Am. Rep. 170, 9 N. W. 525; Board of Trade v. Christie Grain & Stock Co. 198 U. S. 236, 49 L. ed. 1031, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 637; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Kirkpatrick v. Bonsall, 72 Pa. 155; Samuels v. Oliver, 130 Ill. 73, 22 N. E. 499; Foss v. Cummings, 149 Ill. 353, 36 N. E. 553; Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 46 L. ed. 623, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 49 L. ed. 689, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Aikens v. Wisconsin, 195 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 154, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3; Rearick v. Pennsylvania, 203 U. S. 507, 51 L. ed. 295, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 159; Dozier v. Alabama, 218 U. S. 124, 54 L. ed. 965, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 264, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 649; Gibbs v. McNeeley, 60 L.R.A. 152, 55 C. C. A. 70, 118 Fed. 120; West v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. 221 U. S. 229, 55 L. ed. 716, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1193, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564.

A combination in the form of an agreement by several persons acting in concert for that purpose to buy enough of the cotton supply to enable them to control the price of it, and severally to demand an excessive and arbitrary price on the sale of that cotton to spinners and manufacturers during four months of the crop year, is a conspiracy to monopolize a part of the trade and commerce among the states.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96.

Solicitor General Bullitt argued the cause on reargument and filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

Contracts of purchase or sale for future delivery upon a mercantile exchange are valid, no matter how extensive, and even if made for pure speculation, and if settled by the payment of differences without actual delivery.

Board of Trade v. Christie Grain & Stock Co. 198 U. S. 236, 49 L. ed. 1031, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 637; Sawyer v. Taggart, 14 Bush, 727; Forget v. Ostigny [1895] A. C. 318, 64 L. J. P. C. N. S. 62, 11 Reports, 474, 72 L. T. N. S. 399, 43 Week. Rep. 590.

A "corner" is the securing of such control of the immediate supply of any product as to enable those operating the "corner" arbitrarily to control and usually to advance the price of the product.

Black's Law Dict. 271; 9 Cyc. 978; Booth v. Illinois, 184 U. S. 425, 430, 46 L. ed. 623, 625, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 425.

Technical "corners," alike with combinations to suppress competition, are declared to be illegal as against public policy, in that they injuriously affect the natural course of trade and commerce, and tend to enhance prices; in short, are in restraint of trade.

Sampson v. Shaw, 101 Mass. 145, 3 Am. Rep. 327; Morris Run Coal Co. v. Barclay Coal Co. 68 Pa. 187, 8 Am. Rep. 159; Raymond v. Leavitt, 46 Mich. 447, 41 Am. Rep. 170, 9 N. W. 525; Arnot v. Pittston & E. Coal Co. 68 N. Y. 558, 23 Am. Rep. 190; Wells v. McGeoch, 71 Wis. 196, 35 N. W. 769; Samuels v. Oliver, 130 Ill. 84, 22 N. E. 499; Pacific Factor Co. v. Adler, 90 Cal. 110, 25 Am. St. Rep. 102, 27 Pac. 36; Foss v. Cummings, 149 Ill. 357, 36 N. E. 553; Wright v. Crabbs, 78 Ind. 487; Lamson v. Boyden, 160 Ill. 613, 43 N. E. 781.

There is an analogous line of authorities which, while not presenting the case of a technical "corner" caused by purchases for future delivery on an exchange, illustrate very clearly that any conspiracy having the same object as a "corner," to wit, the arbitrary control of prices, whether to raise or depress them, is in restraint of trade, thus showing reflexly that the illegality in a "corner" is the power to raise prices.

Rex v. Norris, 2d Ld. Kenyon, 300; India Bagging Asso. v. Kock, 14 La. Ann. 164; Morris Run Coal Co. v. Barclay Coal Co. 68 Pa. 186, 8 Am. Rep. 159; Arnot v. Pittston & E. Coal Co. 68 N. Y. 558, 23 Am. Rep. 190; Central Ohio Salt Co. v. Guthrie, 35 Ohio St. 666; Craft v. McConoughy, 79 Ill. 346, 22 Am. Rep. 171; Leonard v. Poole, 114 N. Y. 371, 4 L.R.A. 728, 11 Am. St. Rep. 667, 21 N. E. 707; People v. North River Sugar Ref. Co. 54 Hun, 354, 5 L.R.A. 386, 7 N. Y. Supp. 406; People v. Sheldon, 139 N. Y. 251, 23 L.R.A. 221, 36 Am. St. Rep. 690, 34 N. E. 785; People v. Milk Exchange, 145 N. Y. 267, 27 L.R.A. 437, 45 Am. St. Rep. 609, 39 N. E. 1062; People v. Goslin, 67 App. Div. 16, 73 N. Y. Supp. 520.

A review of the cases of this court will show that numerous contracts or combinations in the shape of a pooling agreement, contract, by-laws of a voluntary association, corporate charter, or verbal agreement, etc., whose object or necessary effect was (1) to suppress competition between those engaged in interstate commerce, (2) to enhance prices of an article of such commerce, (3) to burden the free transaction of such commerce by one engaged therein, (4) or to control some part of such commerce, have been decided to be in restraint of interstate trade.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 397, 49 L. ed. 518, 524, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; West v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. 221 U. S. 229, 55 L. ed. 716, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1193, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; Shawnee Cou press Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 434, 52 L. ed. 865, 875, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; Gibbs v. McNeeley, 60 L.R.A. 152, 55 C. C. A. 70, 118 Fed. 120; Clews v. Jamieson, 182 U. S. 461, 45 L. ed. 1183, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 845.

Temporary stimulation of competition in certain lines does not take the combination from within the terms of the Sherman law.

W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507.

The necessary and unavoidable result of the "corner" is also its direct effect.

Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436.

The "corner" restrained interstate commerce even though each purchase of cotton, taken alone, is not an act of interstate commerce.

Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Aikens v. Wisconsin, 195 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 154, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276.

This court has jurisdiction of this writ of error.

United States v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 53 L. ed. 230, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; United States v. Biggs, 211 U. S. 507, 53 L. ed. 305, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 181; United States v. Heinze, 218 U. S. 532, 540, 54 L. ed. 1139, 1143, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 98, 21 Ann. Cas. 884; United States v. Heinze, 218 U. S. 547, 550, 54 L. ed. 1145, 1146, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 102; United States v. Bitty, 208 U. S. 393, 52 L. ed. 543, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396; United States v. Mescall, 215 U. S. 26, 31, 54 L. ed. 77, 79, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19.

Mr. George P. Merrick argued the cause, and, with Mr. Henry Wollman, filed a brief for defendant in error Patten:

This cause is not within the purview of the criminal appeals act of 1907, and this court is without jurisdiction to entertain this writ of error.

United States v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 53 L. ed. 230, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; United States v. Biggs, 211 U. S. 507, 53 L. ed. 305, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 181.

This court had already held that the anti-trust act is not violated by an indirect interference with interstate commerce.

Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208.

There was then no room for any construction of the statute upon this point by the circuit court, and its acceptance of the construction thereof by this court afforded no ground for the application of the criminal appeals act.

Leonard v. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. 198 U. S. 416, 49 L. ed. 1108, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 750.

No combination, contract, or conspiracy violates the anti-trust act unless there is created or attempted to be created thereby some direct and immediate effect upon interstate commerce.

Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

The act of Congress (anti-trust act) must have a reasonable construction or else there would scarcely be an agreement or contract among business men that could not be said to have, indirectly or remotely, some bearing on interstate commerce, and possibly to restrain it.

United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 568, 43 L. ed. 287, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106–179, 55 L. ed. 663, 693, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

Suppression of competition is the essence of monopoly; its dominant thought is the notion of exclusiveness.

National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 129, 49 L. ed. 689, 694, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 865, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

In order to constitute interstate commerce in any commodity its transit across state lines is involved.

General Oil Co. v. Crain, 209 U. S. 211, 229, 52 L. ed. 754, 764, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Brown v. Houston, 114 U. S. 622, 29 L. ed. 257, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1091.

The contracts of purchase of cotton, charged in the seventh and eighth counts to have been made by defendants, created at most but rights of action between the parties thereto, and as such could not be the subject of interstate commerce.

Ware & Leland v. Mobile County, 209 U. S. 405, 52 L. ed. 855, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526, 14 Ann. Cas. 1031; New York ex rel. Hatch v. Reardon, 204 U. S. 152, 51 L. ed. 415, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 188, 9 Ann. Cas. 736; Brodnax v. Missouri, 219 U. S. 285, 55 L. ed. 219, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 238.

Messrs. George P. Merrick and William E. Church also filed a brief for defendant in error Patten:

The argument of the government is not confined to the allegations of the indictment.

Black's Law Dict. 271; Foss v. Cummings, 149 Ill. 353, 36 N. E. 553; Samuels v. Oliver, 130 Ill. 73, 22 N. E. 499; Wells v. McGeoch, 71 Wis. 196, 35 N. W. 769.

The only effect of the government's resort to the statement of overt acts is to accentuate essential defects of the indictment. That statement cannot, in law, and does not in fact, aid the indictment.

Pettibone v. United States, 148 U. S. 197, 37 L. ed. 419, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 542; Smith v. United States, 85 C. C. A. 353, 157 Fed. 721; United States v. Patterson, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 775, 55 Fed. 639; United States v. Britton, 108 U. S. 199, 27 L. ed. 698, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 531.

Whatever restraint upon interstate commerce might result from acts charged would be but indirect, remote, and incidental. The statute only condemns acts having direct and immediate effect.

Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Aikens v. Wisconsin, 195 U. S. 194, 49 L. ed. 154, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 94 C. C. A. 13, 167 Fed. 721; Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Field v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co. 194 U. S. 618, 48 L. ed. 1142, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 401, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; West v. Kansas Natural Gas Co. 221 U. S. 229, 55 L. ed. 716, 35 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1193, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 509, 43 L. ed. 261, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 188 Fed. 102; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; Washington & G. R. Co. v. Hickey, 166 U. S. 521, 41 L. ed. 1101, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 661.

This court has no jurisdiction to review the judgment of the circuit court because that judgment was not based upon a construction by it of the anti-trust act, but upon repeated constructions thereof by this court.

United States v. Biggs, 211 U. S. 507, 53 L. ed. 305, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 181; United States v. Bitty, 208 U. S. 393, 52 L. ed. 543, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396; United States v. Heinze, 218 U. S. 532, 54 L. ed. 1139, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 98, 21 Ann. Cas. 884; United States v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 53 L. ed. 230, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; United States v. Mescall, 215 U. S. 26, 54 L. ed. 77, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19.

Even if technically this court has jurisdiction, it will not exercise it merely for the purpose of reaffirming propositions already settled by it.

Davies v. Slidell, 154 U. S. 625, and 23 L. ed. 871, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1200; Equitable Life Assur. Soc. v. Brown, 187 U. S. 308, 47 L. ed. 190, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; Leonard v. Vicksburg S. & P. R. Co. 198 U. S. 416, 49 L. ed. 1108, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 750.

Mr. John C. Spooner argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Joseph P. Cotton, Jr., and George Rublee, filed a brief for defendants in error Scales, Hayne, and Brown:

A contract for the future delivery of cotton is not interstate commerce.

Ware & Leland v. Mobile County, 209 U. 405, 52 L. ed. 855, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526, 14 Ann. Cas. 1031.

If there is any violation of the Sherman act it is because of an involuntary restraint of trade; i. e., a restraint of someone's else interstate trade by some act of defendants.

Ibid.

In such a case the further question arises whether the involuntary restraint of trade thus effected is immediate and direct or only incidental.

Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 43 L. ed. 290, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 16, 39 L. ed. 325, 330, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 229, 243, 244, 44 L. ed. 136, 143, 148, 149, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 311, 330, 48 L. ed. 679, 697, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 65, 55 L. ed. 647, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734.

There is nothing inherently wrong and immoral in the purchase and sale of contracts for future delivery of an article of prime necessity, like cotton, because such contracts might call for more cotton than would be available for delivery.

Board of Trade v. Christie Grain & Stock Co. 198 U. S. 236, 49 L. ed. 1031, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 637.

The sole question to be considered here is whether the conspiracy charged is a necessary and direct restraint of trade and commerce among the states.

Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 457.

If this court were free to construe the indictment it would reach the same conclusion as the circuit court. A defective charge of conspiracy cannot be aided by averments of overt acts.

United States v. Britton, 108 U. S. 199, 204, 27 L. ed. 698, 700, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 531; Pettibone v. United States, 148 U. S. 197, 202, 37 L. ed. 419, 422, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 542; Com. v. Shedd, 7 Cush. 514; Com. v. Hunt, 4 Met. 125, 38 Am. Dec. 346; McKenna v. United States, 62 C. C. A. 88, 127 Fed. 88; United States v. Patterson, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 775, 55 Fed. 639; United States v. MacAndrews & F. Co. 149 Fed. 823; United States v. Milner, 36 Fed. 890; Conrad v. United States, 62 C. C. A. 478, 127 Fed. 798; McConkey v. United States, 96 C. C. A. 501, 171 Fed. 829.

Mr. Justice Van Devanter delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a criminal prosecution under the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), the indictment being in eight counts. In the circuit court demurrers to the third, fourth, seventh, and eighth counts were sustained and those counts dismissed (187 Fed. 664); whereupon the government sued out this writ of error under the criminal appeals act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1246, chap. 2564). The case has been twice orally argued. At the second argument the government expressly abandoned the third and fourth counts and challenged only the ruling upon counts seven and eight. Thus, the propriety of the ruling upon the first two need not be considered.

In passing upon the demurrers, the circuit court proceeded first to construe the counts; that is, to ascertain with what acts the defendants are charged, and next, to consider whether those acts are denounced as criminal by the anti-trust act, the conclusion being that they are not.

The limitations upon our jurisdiction under the criminal appeals act[1] are such that we must accept the circuit court's construction of the counts, and consider only whether its decision that the acts charged are not condemned as criminal by the anti-trust act is based upon an erroneous construction of that statute.

At the outset we are confronted with the contention that the decision is not based upon a construction of the statute. But to this we cannot assent. The court could not have decided, as it did, that the acts charged are not within the condemnation of the statute, without first ascertaining what it does condemn; which, of course, involved its construction. Indeed, it seems a solecism to say that the decision that the acts charged are not within the statute is not based upon a construction of it.

Each of the counts in question charges the defendants and others with engaging in a conspiracy "in restraint of, and to restrain," by the method therein described,

[1] The act is set forth in full in 211 U. S. at page 398, 53 L. ed. 244, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132, and rulings thereunder are found in United States v. Bitty, 208 U. S. 393, 399, 52 L. ed. 543, 545, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396; United States v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 398, 53 L. ed. 230, 244, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; United States v. Biggs, 211 U. S. 507, 518, 53 L. ed. 305, 309, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 181; United States v. Mason, 213 U. S. 115, 122, 53 L. ed. 725, 727, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 480; United States v. Mescal, 215 U. S. 26, 31, 54 L. ed. 77, 79, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19; United States v. Stevenson, 215 U. S. 190, 195, 54 L. ed. 153, 155, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 35; United States v. Heinze, 218 U. S. 532, 540, 54 L. ed. 1139, 1143, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 98, 21 Ann. Cas. 884; United States v. Heinze, 218 U. S. 547, 550, 54 L. ed. 1145, 1146, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 102; United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 606, 54 L. ed. 1168, 1178, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; United States v. Miller, 223 U. S. 599, 602, 56 L. ed. 538, 569, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 323.

"trade and commerce among the several states" in the supply of cotton available during the year ending September 1, 1910, such supply consisting of all the cotton 536]grown in the *Southern states in that year and the cotton left over from prior years. The counts are long, and the acts which the circuit court treated as charged in them are indicated by the following excerpt from its opinion, the footnotes being ours:

"These counts are alike, with the exception of the statement of overt acts,[2] and each may be, broadly speaking, divided into three parts, which may be thus summarized:

"(1) The charging part contains a general charge of conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, with the usual formal and jurisdictional averments.

"(2) The second part contains a 'description of the trade and commerce to be restrained.' Under this head it is stated, in substance, that cotton is an article of necessity raised in the Southern states, which moves in a large volume in interstate and foreign commerce, and that it is bought and sold upon the New York Cotton Exchange to such an extent as to practically regulate prices elsewhere in the country, so that future sales by speculators upon such exchange of more than the amount of cotton available at the time of delivery would create an abnormal demand and resultant excessive prices in all cotton markets.[3]

[2] One count contained a statement of overt acts, while the other contained no such statement,—a difference not here material.

[3] In order that the brief summary and analysis of the third part may be better understood, the second part is here reproduced:

Description of trade and commerce to be restrained.

"And the grand jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid, do further present that for many years past cotton has been grown, one crop a year, in divers of the states of the United States, among others, Virginia, North Carolia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, Mississippi, Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Missouri, and New Mexico; that such cotton has been and is an article of prime necessity to the people of the United States, and the growing and the spinning and manufacturing of the same into yarns and fabrics have necessitated the cultivation of many millions of acres of land in the states last aforesaid, and the employment of many thousands of persons, in those states and in other states of the United States, in connection with the planting, cultivating, picking, ginning, compressing, storing, selling, shipping, and transporting of such cotton; that about 60 per cent of the cotton so grown has been shipped to and consumed in foreign countries in each crop year; that of the remaining 40 per cent of such cotton, about one half has been spun into yarns and manufactured into cotton fabrics by spinners and manufacturers in said Southern states for the use of the people of the United States and foreign countries, and the other half has been shipped to Northern states of the United States, among others, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New York, Pennsylvania, New Hampshire, Maine, Connecticut, Maryland, New Jersey, and Delaware, in pursuance of sales of the same to spinners and manufacturers in the last-mentioned states, and there spun into yarns and manufactured into fabrics for the use of the people of the United States and foreign countries; that the demand for such cotton in foreign countries and in said Northern and Southern states has been steady and continuous throughout all portions of each crop year; that in the ordinary course of business said spinners and manufacturers have bought little or no cotton beyond that required by them for their immediate needs; that such cotton has been extensively bought and sold upon the Cotton Exchange in said city of New York for future delivery in the United States during current crop years; so much so that cotton bought and sold elsewhere in the United States than on that exchange has customarily been bought and sold at prices corresponding to the prices prevailing upon said exchange; that although, as the grand jurors aforesaid, upon their oath aforesaid charge the fact to be, the rules of said Cotton Exchange at New York city have required that all sellers and purchasers of cotton upon that exchange for future delivery should contemplate the actual delivery and receipt of cotton sold and purchased by them there, it has been possible for more cotton to be sold at a given time or at given times upon said exchange for future delivery at a given time or given times during a current crop year by speculators, that is to say, persons not having any cotton in their possession, than would be in existence at such future time or times and available to such speculators for acquisition and delivery to the purchasers thereof; that under such circumstances it has been necessary for such sellers of cotton upon said exchange for such future delivery to make settlements with purchasers in cash or its equivalent, at the prices prevailing upon said exchange at the time or times such settlements have been made, as to whatever cotton such sellers were unable to acquire and deliver to such purchasers when such delivery was due; that the artificial condition produced by such excessive purchases, when made, has invariably created such an abnormal demand for cotton on 537] *"(3) The third part contains a 'description of the method devised and adopted 538]by the conspirators for restraining *the trade and commerce.' It is alleged, at the outset, that the conspirators were to restrain trade and commerce by doing 'what is commonly called running a corner in cotton.' Averments then follow showing how the corner was to be brought about and its effect, which may be thus analyzed:

"(1) The conspirators were to make purchases from speculators upon the New York Cotton Exchange of quantities of cotton for future delivery, greatly in excess of the amount available for delivery when deliveries should become due.[1] 539] *"(2) By these means an abnormal demand was to be created on the part of such sellers, who would pay excessive prices to obtain cotton for delivery upon their contracts.

"(3) The excessive prices prevailing upon the New York Exchange would cause similar prices to exist upon other cotton markets.

"(4) 'As a necessary and unavoidable result of their acts, said conspirators were to compel' cotton manufacturers throughout the country to pay said excessive prices to obtain cotton for their needs, or else curtail their operations.

"(5) And also, as 'a necessary and unavoidable result' of said acts, an unlawful obstruction would be put upon interstate trade and commerce.[2]

"The offense charged, then, is a conspiracy in restraint of trade through the operation of a 'corner.'"

Although ruling that there was no allegation of a specific intent to obstruct interstate trade or commerce, and that the raising of prices in markets other than the Cotton Exchange in New York was "in itself no part of the scheme," the court assumed that the conspirators intended "the necessary and unavoidable consequences of their acts," and observed that "prices of cotton are so correlated that it may be said that the direct result of the acts of the conspirators was to be the raising of the price of cotton throughout the country."

Upon the second argument the defendants contended, and counsel for the government expressly conceded, that "running a corner" consists, broadly speaking, in acquiring control of all or the dominant portion of a commodity, with the purpose of artificially enhancing the price; "one of the important features of which," to use the *language of the government's[540 brief, "is the purchase for future delivery, coupled with a withholding from sale for a limited time;" and as this definition is in substantial accord with that given by lexicographers and juridical writers, we accept it for present purposes, although observing that not improbably in actual usage the expression includes modified modes of attaining substantially the same end.

Whilst thus agreeing upon what constitutes running a corner, the parties widely differ as to whether what is so styled in this instance contained the elements necessary to make it operative. The point of difference is the presence or absence of an adequate allegation that the purchasing for future delivery was to be coupled with a withholding from sale, without which, it is conceded by both parties, the market could not be cornered. But the solution of the point turns upon the right construction of the counts, and that, as has been indicated, is not within our province on this writ of error. We must assume that the counts adequately allege whatever the circuit court treated them as alleging. Its opinion, given at the time, although not containing any express ruling upon the point of difference, shows that the counts were treated as alleging an operative the part of such sellers that very excessive prices therefor have prevailed upon said exchange, and upon all other exchanges and in all cotton markets, until after such settlements have been made, so that bona fide purchasers of cotton for consumption in spinning and manufacturing have been compelled for a time to pay the same excessive prices in order to obtain cotton for their needs; that the cotton crop for the crop year beginning September 1, 1909, and ending September 1, 1910, approximated 10,500,000 bales; that about 265,000 bales of cotton were left over and available at the beginning of said crop year of the crops of prior crop years; that the foregoing allegations of this paragraph of this count of this indictment apply to the cotton of said crop year and to that of prior crop years; and that each of said conspirators, when so conspiring, as in this count of this indictment set forth, well knew all the premises in this count aforesaid."

---

[1]The language of the charge is: "They were to make purchases from day to day upon said Cotton Exchange at New York city, from speculators, of quantities of cotton for future delivery at different times during said crop year, greatly in excess of the amount of cotton which would be in existence and available for delivery to them by the sellers thereof when such deliveries were due, reference being had to the usages and requirements of said trade and commerce, which are in this count above set forth."

[2]Of these allegations the court said in its opinion: "We must also assume that the allegations of the results to follow the conspiracy are more than the conclusions or economic theories of the pleader, and amount to allegations of fact."

scheme,—one by which the market could be cornered. The court spoke of it as "contrary to public policy," as "arbitrarily controlling the price of a commodity," and as "positively unlawful in any state having a statute against corners." Evidently, it was assumed that every element of running a corner was present. We accordingly indulge that assumption, but have the parties free to present the question to the district court for its decision in the course of such further proceedings as may be had in that court.

We come, then, to the question whether a conspiracy to run a corner in the available supply of a staple commodity, such as cotton, normally a subject of trade and commerce among the states, and thereby to en-[541] hance *artificially its price throughout the country, and to compel all who have occasion to obtain it to pay the enhanced price or else to leave their needs unsatisfied, is within the terms of § 1 of the anti-trust act, which makes it a criminal offense to "engage in" a "conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states." The circuit court, as we have seen, answered the question in the negative; and this, although accepting as an allegation of fact, rather than as a mere economic theory of the pleader, the statement in the counts that interstate trade and commerce would necessarily be obstructed by the operation of the conspiracy. The reasons assigned for the ruling, and now pressed upon our attention, are (1) that the conspiracy does not belong to the class in which the members are engaged in interstate trade or commerce, and agree to suppress competition among themselves, (2) that running a corner, instead of restraining competition, tends, temporarily at least, to stimulate it, and (3) that the obstruction of interstate trade and commerce resulting from the operation of the conspiracy, even although a necessary result, would be so indirect as not be to a restraint in the sense of the statute.

Upon careful reflection we are constrained to hold that the reasons given do not sustain the ruling, and that the answer to the question must be in the affirmative.

Section 1 of the act, upon which the counts are founded, is not confined to voluntary restraints, as where persons engaged in interstate trade or commerce agree to suppress competition among themselves, but includes as well involuntary restraints; as where persons not so engaged conspire to compel action by others, or to create artificial conditions, which necessarily impede or burden the due course of such trade or commerce, or restrict the common liberty to engage therein. Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 293, 301, 52 L. ed. 488, 496, 502, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301. As was said of this section in Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 59, 55 L. ed. 619, 644, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734:

*"The context manifests that the[542] statute was drawn in the light of the existing practical conception of the law of restraint of trade, because it groups as within that class, not only contracts which were in restraint of trade in the subjective sense, but all contracts or acts which theoretically were attempts to monopolize, yet which in practice have come to be considered as in restraint of trade in a broad sense."

It well may be that running a corner tends for a time to stimulate competition; but this does not prevent it from being a forbidden restraint, for it also operates to thwart the usual operation of the laws of supply and demand, to withdraw the commodity from the normal current of trade, to enhance the price artificially, to hamper users and consumers in satisfying their needs, and to produce practically the same evils as does the suppression of competition.

Of course, the statute does not apply where the trade or commerce affected is purely intrastate. Neither does it apply, as this court often has held, where the trade or commerce affected is interstate, unless the effect thereon is direct, not merely indirect. But no difficulty is encountered in applying these tests in the present case when its salient features are kept in view.

It was a conspiracy to run a corner in the market. The commodity to be cornered was cotton,—a product of the Southern states, largely used and consumed in the Northern states. It was a subject of interstate trade and commerce, and through that channel it was obtained from time to time by the many manufacturers of cotton fabrics in the Northern states. The corner was to be conducted on the Cotton Exchange in New York city, but by means which would enable the conspirators to obtain control of the available supply and to enhance the price to all buyers in every market of the country. This control and the enhancement of the price were features of the conspiracy *upon the attainment of which it[543] is conceded its success depended. Upon the corner becoming effective, there could be no trading in the commodity save at the will of the conspirators and at such price as their interests might prompt them to exact. And so, the conspiracy was to reach and to bring within its dominating influence the entire cotton trade of the country.

Bearing in mind that such was the nature, object, and scope of the conspiracy, we regard it as altogether plain that, by its necessary operation, it would directly and materially impede, and burden the due course of trade and commerce among the states, and therefore inflict upon the public the injuries which the anti-trust act is designed to prevent. See Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 396–400, 49 L. ed. 518, 524–526, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632. And that there is no allegation of a specific intent to restrain such trade or commerce does not make against this conclusion, for, as is shown by prior decisions of this court, the conspirators must be held to have intended the necessary and direct consequences of their acts, and cannot be heard to say the contrary. In other words, by purposely engaging in a conspiracy which necessarily and directly produces the result which the statute is designed to prevent, they are, in legal contemplation, chargeable with intending that result. Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 243, 44 L. ed. 136, 148, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; United States v. Reading Co. 226 U. S. 324, 370, ante, 243, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90.

The defendants place some reliance upon Ware v. Mobile County, 209 U. S. 405, 52 L. ed. 855, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 526, 14 Ann. Cas. 1031, as showing that the operation of the conspiracy did not involve interstate trade or commerce; but we think the case does not go so far and is not in point. It presented only the question of the effect upon interstate trade or commerce of the taxing by a state of the busi-544]ness of a broker who was dealing *in contracts for the future delivery of cotton, where there was no obligation to ship from one state to another; while here we are concerned with a conspiracy which was to reach and bring within its dominating influence the entire cotton trade of the country, and which was to be executed, in part only, through contracts for future delivery. It hardly needs statement that the character and effect of a conspiracy are not to be judged by dismembering it and viewing its separate parts, but only by looking at it as a whole. W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 45, 46, 48 L. ed. 608, 611, 612, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 386, 387, 49 L. ed. 518, 521, 522, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276.

As we are of opinion that the statute does embrace the conspiracy which the circuit court treated as charged in counts seven and eight, as construed by it, its judgment upon those counts is reversed and the case is remanded for further proceedings in conformity with this opinion.

Reversed in part.

Mr. Justice Lurton, dissenting:

The majority seem to base a judgment of reversal upon the assumption that the court below interpreted the counts in question as charging all the elements essential to a technical "corner." To this view of the opinion of the court below I do not assent. As I interpret that opinion, the court held the count bad because it did not charge a "corner." Thus interpreted there was no error in quashing the count. I am authorized to say that the Chief Justice concurs in this dissent.

Mr. Justice Holmes also dissents.

---

*SAMUEL M. PLUMLEY, Appt., [545
v.
UNITED STATES. (No. 35.)

UNITED STATES, Appt.,
v.
SAMUEL M. PLUMLEY. (No. 36.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 545–548.)

Public contracts — extra work.

1. One contracting to complete an unfinished public work in accordance with the original contract and duly authorized changes is not entitled to compensation for extra work, where the Secretary of the Interior has decided against his claim, conformably to a provision in his contract that if there be any discrepancy between plans and specifications, or between his contract and the original contract, the matter shall be referred to such Secretary, whose decision shall be conclusive.

[For other cases, see United States, VI. f; Contracts, V. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public contracts — extra work.

2. Failure to comply with the provisions of a contract for a public work that changes increasing or diminishing the cost must be agreed on in writing by the contractor and architect, with a statement of the price of the substituted materials and work, and must, in every instance, be approved by the Secretary of the Interior, defeats any claim of the contractor for compensation for extra work.

[For other cases, see United States, VI. f; Contracts, V. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public contracts — damages for delay.

3. Damages caused by delay are not recoverable from the United States by the contractor for a public work, who failed to notify the Secretary of the Interior when the delay occurred, as was required by the contract.

[For other cases, see United States, VI. f; Contracts, V. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 35 and 36.]

Argued December 9, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

CROSS APPEALS from the Court of Claims to review a judgment disallowing claims of a public contractor for compensation for extra work, but awarding him damages for delay. Reversed as to the damages for delay, and otherwise affirmed.

See same case below, No. 35, 43 Ct. Cl. 266; No. 36, 45 Ct. Cl. 185.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. George A. King argued the cause, and, with Mr. William B. King, filed a brief for Plumley:

The allowance for delay was proper.

United States v. Smith, 94 U. S. 214, 24 L. ed. 115; United States v. Mueller, 113 U. S. 153, 28 L. ed. 946, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 380; United States v. Barlow, 184 U. S. 124, 137, 46 L. ed. 463, 469, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 468; William Cramp & Sons Ship & Engine Bldg. Co. v. United States, 216 U. S. 494, 54 L. ed. 587, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 392.

There can be no estoppel arising from the fact that the claimant examined a plan showing the ventilation system prior to bidding. This plan was not a portion of the letting plans. No reference is made to it in the specifications or contract. There was no "meeting of minds" upon it.

United States v. Ellicott, 223 U. S. 524, 56 L. ed. 535, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 334.

In completing the construction of this work the several bidders were bound to place their proposals upon the drawings, plans, and specifications annexed to the McLaughlin contract. These are the only ones referred to in the new contract, and the only ones upon which the advertisement of the government or the proposals of the bidders were or could be lawfully based.

Dill. Mun. Corp. 5th ed. 1911, § 807.

The Secretary of the Navy could not require of a contractor the performance of a large amount of extra work nowhere alluded to in the specifications, by a mere assertion that it is within them.

Salt Lake City v. Smith, 43 C. C. A. 637, 104 Fed. 457; King Iron Bridge & Mfg. Co. v. St. Louis, 10 L.R.A. 826, 43 Fed. 768; Lewis v. Chicago, S. F. & C. R. Co. 49 Fed. 710; Lyons v. United States, 30 Ct. Cl. 352.

The work having been done under the direct orders of the Secretary of the Navy, the claimant is clearly entitled to be paid for it.

United States v. Barlow, 184 U. S. 123, 136, 137, 46 L. ed. 463, 469, 470, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 468.

The laying of the drain pipe was ordered in such a way as to make it binding upon the government to pay for it as an extra.

Merchants' Exch. Co. v. United States, 15 Ct. Cl. 275.

Specifications, like all legal instruments, are entitled to a sensible construction in accordance with the usages of the business with reference to which they are made. A contractor cannot justly be required to do work which can be of no advantage to anyone.

Atlantic Terra Cotta Co. v Masons' Supply Co. 103 C. C. A. 462, 180 Fed. 332.

The orders for extra work were given by competent and proper authority, the work to be performed was outside of the contract, and it is only just that the government should pay for it.

Wood v. Ft. Wayne, 119 U. S. 312, 316, 30 L. ed. 416, 417, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 219; United States v. Utah, N. & C. Stage Co. 199 U. S. 414, 422, 423, 50 L. ed. 251, 254, 255, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 69; Wyandotte & D. R. Co. v. King Bridge Co. 40 C. C. A. 325, 100 Fed. 198; Venable Constr. Co. v. United States, 114 Fed. 763; Caldwell & Drake v. Schmulbach, 175 Fed. 437; Re Urban Dist. Council, 2 Hudson's Bldg. & E. Contr. 3d ed. 1907, 400; Grant v. United States, 5 Ct. Cl. 85; Dialogue v. United States, 22 Ct. Cl. 204.

Mr. William W. Scott argued the cause, and, with Assistant Attorney General John Q. Thompson, filed a brief for the United States:

Knowing, as Plumley did, that the ventilation system was partly installed at the time of the forfeiture of the McLaughlin contract, he was thereby warned that he would be required to complete the installation of the ventilation system when he contracted to complete the naval observatory buildings in accordance with the McLaughlin contract and the duly authorized changes.

Huse v. United States, 222 U. S. 496, 56 L. ed. 285, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 119.

It is competent for the parties to a contract similar to this to make provision that the decision of an engineer or other officer in all or specified matters of dispute which may arise during the performance of the contract work shall be final and conclusive; and in the absence of fraud or mistake so gross as necessarily to imply bad faith, such decision will not be subject to the revisory power of the courts.

Kihlberg v. United States, 97 U. S. 398, 24 L. ed. 1106; Martinsburg & P. R. Co. v. March, 114 U. S. 549, 29 L. ed. 255, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1035; Chicago, S. F. & C. R. Co. v. Price, 138 U. S. 185, 24 L. ed. 917, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 290; United States v. Gleason, 175 U. S. 602, 44 L. ed. 290, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 228; United States v. McMullen, 222 U. S. 460, 56 L. ed. 269, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128.

None of the alleged extra work was agreed to in writing, as the contract required.

McLaughlin v. United States, 37 Ct. Cl. 197; Churchyard v. United States, 100 Fed. 920; United States v. McMullen, 222 U. S. 460, 56 L. ed. 269, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128.

The court of claims erred in rendering judgment against the government for premiums paid for insurance by claimant during the extended period of his contract.

Merchants' Loan & T. Co. v. United States, 40 Ct. Cl. 117; United States v. Bethlehem Steel Co. 205 U. S. 105, 51 L. ed. 731, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 450; United States v. Gleason, 175 U. S. 588, 609, 44 L. ed. 284, 292, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 228.

Mr. Justice Lamar delivered the opinion of the court:

In October, 1888, P. H. McLaughlin & Company contracted to build the Naval Ob-546]servatory in Washington *for $307,811. After most of the work had been done, the contract was forfeited for failure to make satisfactory progress. 37 Ct. Cl. 150. The government advertised for bids to complete the work. After examining the contract and documents Plumley agreed to complete the building in accordance with the McLaughlin contract, and "duly authorized changes" by June 1st, 1892, for the sum of $25,840. Having finished the work, he sued the government for damages by delay and for extra work amounting to $12,813. The court rendered judgment in his favor for $502 insurance paid during the period he was delayed in finishing the work. All of the other items were disallowed. Both parties appealed.

1. The largest item is a claim for extra compensation for installing a ventilator system, which McLaughlin agreed to do for a given sum. The proposed change and this offer were submitted by the architect to the Bureau of Equipment, with the statement that, if approved, McLaughlin would enter into a formal written contract to do the work for the prices named. The plans and bid were approved. McLaughlin was directed to proceed, and did some work thereon. Later his contract was forfeited. Plumley (and his partner, Davis, a former member of McLaughlin & Company) knew these facts at the time the bid was made to complete the work, but when required to build the ventilating system, Plumley insisted that it was not within McLaughlin's original contract, and not a "duly authorized change" because no written contract had been signed by both parties, as required by the terms of the contract. This contention was rejected by the architect, and, on appeal, by the Secretary of the Navy. The court of claims at first sustained this position, but on a rehearing held that Plumley was estopped from claiming that the change had not been duly authorized, and, under his contract to complete the work, was bound to finish *what[547 McLaughlin had begun. Beyond this the contract provided that if there was any discrepancy between plans and specifications, or between the contract of McLaughlin and the contract of Plumley, the matter should be referred to the Secretary, Plumley agreeing "to abide by his decision in the premises." The Secretary decided against him, and under the circumstances his construction is binding on the contractor.

2. This same provision prevents a recovery for the drain pipe included in the original contract. For some reason, not stated, it appears that McLaughlin was requested to make a bid for laying drain pipe. It was accepted and then countermanded. Plumley was likewise requested to make a bid, which was accepted and then countermanded. When required to lay the pipe he demanded extra compensation, but his appeal was overruled by the Secretary, possibly for the reason suggested in argument, —that asking a bid did not relieve Plumley from the obligation to furnish labor and material actually included in the contract. What facts were submitted to the Secretary is not in this record, but his ruling is conclusive, in view of Plumley's agreement to abide by his decision.

3. The other items for extra work were properly disallowed. The contract provided that changes increasing or diminishing the cost must be agreed on in writing by the contractor and the architect, with a statement of the price of the substituted material and work. Additional precautions were required if the cost exceeded $500. In every instance it was necessary that the change should be approved by the Secretary. There was a total failure to comply with these provisions, and though it may be a hard case, since the court found that the work was in fact extra and of considerable value, yet Plumley cannot recover for that which, though extra, was not ordered by the officer and in the manner required by the contract. *Rev. Stat. § 3744, U. S.[548 Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 2510; Hawkins v.

United States, 96 U. S. 689, 24 L. ed. 607; Ripley v. United States, 223 U. S. 695, 56 L. ed. 614, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 352; United States v. McMullen, 222 U. S. 460, 56 L. ed. 269, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128.

4. The government appeals from so much of the judgment as gave Plumley a judgment for damages caused by delay. The court found that Plumley was delayed by the failure to have the architect on hand promptly for decision pertaining to the work, while it also found that the Secretary extended the time for the reason that Plumley's failure to finish was on account of circumstances beyond the contractor's control. But Plumley, at the time of the occurrence of the delay, did not notify the Secretary of the facts, nor of the extent to which the work would be delayed. The contract required that such notice should be given to the Secretary when the delay occurred, evidently for the purpose of informing the Department, and enabling it, at the time, to remove the cause of the delay. It operated to prevent claims for damage, and for failure to comply with this requirement of the contract. (United States v. Gleason, 175 U. S. 588, 44 L. ed. 284, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 228) the plaintiff is not entitled to recover. The judgment in that respect must be reversed, and is otherwise affirmed.

---

BUNKER HILL & SULLIVAN MINING & CONCENTRATING COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 548–550.)

Mines — cutting timber — effect of invalid homestead entry.

1. A homestead entry of mineral lands, though subject to cancelation by the United States, so far segregates the land from the public domain and makes it so far private as to withdraw it from the operation of the act of June 3, 1878 (20 Stat. at L. 88, chap. 150, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1528), authorizing any citizen to enter upon public lands, being mineral lands open to mineral entry, in order to cut timber therefrom for mining purposes.

[For other cases, see Mines, I. a; Public Lands, I. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Estoppel — inconsistent claims — homestead or mineral land.

2. A homestead entryman and his vendee, when sued by the United States for cutting timber, are estopped to claim that the land could not be entered as a homestead, but was subject to the provisions of the act of June 3, 1878, which authorize any citizen to enter upon public lands, being mineral lands, open to mineral entry, in order to cut timber therefrom for mining purposes.

[For other cases, see Estoppel, III. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands — cutting timber — liability of vendee.

3. The vendee of a trespasser upon the public lands, buying with notice, is liable to the United States for the timber unlawfully removed by the vendor.

[For other cases, see Public Lands, I. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 101.]

Submitted December 17, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

IN ERROR to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court for the District of Idaho, Northern Division, in favor of the United States in a suit to recover the value of timber cut from the public lands. Affirmed.

See same case below, 102 C. C. A. 292, 178 Fed. 914.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Myron A. Folsom submitted the cause for plaintiff in error:

The expression "public lands" does not always mean lands to which no claim has attached, but, on the contrary, when used alone, may be the equivalent of "lands of the United States."

Shiver v. United States, 159 U. S. 491, 40 L. ed. 231, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54; United States v. Blendaur, 63 C. C. A. 636, 128 Fed. 910; United States v. Bisel, 8 Mont. 20, 19 Pac. 251; Peterson v. Baker, 39 Wash. 275, 81 Pac. 681; United States v. Elliot, 12 Utah, 119, 41 Pac. 720; Kindred v. Union P. R. Co. 225 U. S. 582, 56 L. ed. 1216, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 780; United States v. Saucier, 5 N. M. 569, 28 Pac. 791.

Would the construction contended for defeat the purpose of Congress, and prevent others than the homestead claimant from exercising their right to cut timber?

Manners Constr. Co. v. Rees, 31 Land Dec. 408.

Is the plaintiff in error, who purchased the timber and paid Messenger for it, estopped from claiming that the land was mineral land?

Barden v. Northern P. R. Co. 154 U. S. 313, 38 L. ed. 996, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1030; Deffeback v. Hawke, 115 U. S. 392, 29 L. ed. 423, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 95; United States v. Saucier, 5 N. M. 569, 25 Pac. 791; Stephens v. M'Cargo, 9 Wheat. 502, 6 L. ed. 145.

Was the rule of the Secretary, to the elfect that no timber shall be cut less than 8 inches in diameter, a valid rule?

NOTE.—As to right to cut timber on public lands—see note to King-Ryder Lumber Co. v. Scott, 70 L.R.A. 873.

United States v. Rossi, 66 C. C. A. 442, 133 Fed. 380; United States v. Price Trading Co. 48 C. C. A. 331, 109 Fed. 239; Morgan v. United States, 94 C. C. A. 518, 169 Fed. 242; United States v. United Verde Copper Co. 196 U. S. 207, 49 L. ed. 449, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 222.

Assistant Attorney General Knaebel submitted the cause for defendant in error:

The cutting was a wilful trespass.

United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591, 594, 22 L. ed. 210, 211; Northern R. Co. v. Lewis, 162 U. S. 366, 376, 40 L. ed. 1002, 1003, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 831; Stone v. United States, 167 U. S. 178, 192, 42 L. ed. 127, 133, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 778; Shiver v. United States, 159 U. S. 491, 40 L. ed. 231, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54.

No title passed to the trespasser before or after manufacture; the stulls and cordwood remained the absolute property of the United States.

United States v. Cook, 19 Wall. 591, 593, 22 L. ed. 210, 211; E. E. Bolles Woodenware Co. v. United States, 106 U. S. 432, 435, 27 L. ed. 230, 231, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 398; Shiver v. United States, 159 U. S. 491, 498, 40 L. ed. 231, 233, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54; Northern P. R. Co. v. Lewis, 162 U. S. 366, 374, 40 L. ed. 1002, 1006, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 831; Schulenberg v. Harriman, 21 Wall. 44, 64, 22 L. ed. 551, 555; United States v. Steenerson, 1 C. C. A. 552, 4 U. S. App. 332, 50 Fed. 504; Peyton v. Desmond, 63 C. C. A. 651, 129 Fed. 6; Nitz v. Bolton, 71 Mich. 388, 39 N. W. 15; Hanselman v. Kegel, 60 Mich. 550, 27 N. W. 678.

The lands were not proved to be "mineral lands."

United States v. Plowman, 216 U. S. 372, 54 L. ed. 523, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 299; Magruder v. Oregon & C. R. R. Co. 28 Land Dec. 174; Re Elda Min. & Mill. Co. 29 Land. Dec. 279; Northern P. R. Co. v. Lewis, 162 U. S. 376, 40 L. ed. 1006, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 831.

The lands were not "public lands."

Hodges v. Colcord, 193 U. S. 192, 48 L. ed. 677, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 433; Hastings & D. R. Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357, 33 L. ed. 363, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 112; Bardon v. Northern P. R. Co. 145 U. S. 535, 538, 36 L. ed. 806, 809, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 856; Whitney v. Taylor, 158 U. S. 85, 88, 39 L. ed. 906, 907, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 796; James v. Germania Iron Co. 46 C. C. A. 476, 107 Fed. 603; United States v. Bagnell Timber Co. 102 C. C. A. 243, 178 Fed. 795; Peyton v. Desmond, 63 C. C. A. 651, 129 Fed. 1; 1 Lindley, Mines, § 322; McFadden v. Mountain View Min. & Mill. Co. 38 C. C. A. 354, 97 Fed. 670; Re Elda Min. & Mill. Co. 29 Land Dec. 279.

The defendant acquired no right or title by the attempted purchase from the trespasser.

E. E. Bolles Woodenware Co. v. United States, 106 U. S. 432, 436, 27 L. ed. 230, 232, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 398.

Mr. Justice Lamar delivered the opinion of the court:

In 1903 Messenger made a homestead entry in the Cœur D'Alene land district. He claimed to have entered in good faith, and testified that he lived on the land with his family for some time. While thus in possession he cut many of the trees into stulls, which, with the cordwood, he sold to the Bunker Hill Company. In 1905 he abandoned the land and the government brought suit against the mining company and recovered judgment for the value of the timber in its improved state. 102 C. C. A. 292, 178 Fed. 914.

In this court, plaintiff in error claims that the land, not being suited for agricultural purposes, could not be entered as a homestead (Rev. Stat. § 2302, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1410), but, being mineral land in fact, was open to mining location and subject to the provisions of the act of June 3, 1878 (20 Stat. at L. 88, chap. 150, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1528), which authorizes any citizen to "enter upon public lands, being mineral lands," open to mineral entry, in order to cut timber therefrom for mining purposes. It argues that the *homestead entry was void, and[550 that any citizen, Messenger included, could treat the land as public, and cut the timber for mining purposes. It offered evidence tending to sustain its contention as to the character of the land, and excepts to the court's ruling that Messenger and his vendee were estopped from making such claim.

The statute on which the mining company relies applies only to public lands, while this was no longer public in the full sense, although the title remained in the government, which could have canceled Messenger's entry on proof that it was valuable for mineral purposes. Deffeback v. Hawke, 115 U. S. 392, 29 L. ed. 423, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 95. But until some such action by the United States, Messenger's entry segregated the land from the public domain and made it so far private as to withdraw it from the operation of the law permitting other citizens to locate mines or cut timber on public mineral land. Hastings & D. R. Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357, 33 L. ed. 363, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 112; Shiver v. United States, 159 U. S. 495, 40 L. ed. 231, 16

Sup. Ct. Rep. 54. Until his claim was canceled, Messenger was entitled to exclude others from the quarter section. And as they would have been estopped, as against him, from denying that he was lawfully in possession of it as a homestead, so was he estopped from denying that it was a homestead when sued for cutting timber in violation of the law applicable thereto. He could not claim the rights of a homesteader in land intended for settlement and cultivation (Rev. Stat. § 2290, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1389), and at the same time defend under another statute which related to public land valuable for mineral purposes. The mining company bought with notice that Messenger was a trespasser, and is liable for the timber unlawfully removed by its vendor.

Affirmed.

---

551] *JESSIE E. THOMPSON, Appt.,
v.
CHARLES N. THOMPSON.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 551–567.)

Appeal — jurisdictional amount — what deemed matter in dispute.

1. The matter in dispute essential under the act of February 9, 1893 (27 Stat. at L. 436, chap. 74, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 573), § 8, to sustain an appeal from the court of appeals of the District of Columbia to the Federal Supreme Court, need not be of such a nature as to constitute (if the event be favorable) a technical debt of record.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. f, 4, e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — jurisdictional amount — matter in dispute — future payments.

2. The payments which, considering the expectancy of life of the parties, will accrue in the future, under a decree in favor of the wife in a suit for maintenance, brought by her against her husband, may be added to the instalments already accrued, for the purpose of determining whether the amount necessary under the act of February 9, 1893, § 8, to sustain the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court over the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, is involved, although such future payments may, under D. C. Code, §§ 976–978, 980, be increased, decreased, or cut off entirely in the event of a change in the circumstances of the parties.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. f, 4, e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Judgment — full faith and credit — decree of divorce.

3. The courts of the state which is the domicil of the husband, and the only matrimonial domicil, have jurisdiction to render a decree of divorce in his favor entitled, under U. S. Const. art. 4, § 1, and U. S. Rev. Stat. § 905, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 677, to full faith and credit in the courts of the District of Columbia, although the wife has left the jurisdiction, and can only be served by publication.

[For other cases, see Judgment, 983–987, 1039–1040, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Courts — following state court decisions — local practice.

4. The use, as the basis of an order for publication, of an affidavit averring the nonresidence of the defendant upon information and belief, must be assumed to be in accord with the local state practice, where a court of that state has adjudged such an affidavit to be sufficient, there being no local law excluding its use for such purpose.

[For other cases, see Courts, VII. c, 19, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Judgment — full faith and credit — collateral attack.

5. The acceptance by a state court of an affidavit averring the nonresidence of the defendant upon information and belief as legal evidence upon which an order for publication may be based must be deemed sufficient, on collateral attack in the courts of the District of Columbia, to confer jurisdiction over the subject-matter in accordance with local laws, in the absence of any such law excluding the use of such an affidavit for such a purpose.

[For other cases, see Judgment, 1057–1062, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Judgment — res judicata — divorce — maintenance.

6. A decree of divorce a mensa et thoro, rendered in favor of the husband by a state court of competent jurisdiction, forecloses any right of the wife to have alimony or equivalent maintenance from her husband under the local law, where the courts of the state hold, upon general principles, that alimony has its origin in the legal obliga-

---

NOTE.—As to appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court over the District of Columbia courts—see note to United States ex rel. Taylor v. Taft, 51 L. ed. U. S. 269.

As to extraterritorial effect of decree of divorce rendered upon constructive service—see notes to Benton's Succession, 59 L.R.A. 162, and Joyner v. Joyner, 18 L.R.A.(N.S.) 647.

Jurisdiction of court of state of matrimonial domicil to grant a divorce upon constructive service of process against defendant who is out of jurisdiction—see notes to Butler v. Washington, 19 L.R.A. 814, and State ex rel. Aldrach v. Morse, 7 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1127.

As to giving full faith and credit to judgments of courts of other states generally—see note to Huntington v. Attrill, 36 L. ed. U. S. 1123.

As to questions of state law as to which the decisions of the highest state court must be followed in actions originating in, or removed to, the Federal courts—see note to Snare & T. Co. v. Freidman, 40 L.R.A.(N.S.) 380.

tion of the husband to maintain his wife, and that she may, by her conduct, forfeit it, and that where she is the offender, she cannot have alimony on a divorce decreed in favor of the husband.

[For other cases, see Judgment, III. j, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 45.]

Argued November 8, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

APPEAL from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a decree which reversed a decree of the Supreme Court of the District in favor of the wife in a suit for maintenance in which the husband set up a decree of divorce rendered in his favor in the Virginia courts. Affirmed.

See same case below, 35 App. D. C. 14.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. William M. Lewin argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

A claim of alimony, even pendente lite, may afford the basis of this court's jurisdiction on appeal.

De la Rama v. De la Rama, 201 U. S. 303, 318, 50 L. ed. 765, 771, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 485.

The mere fact that the decree, following the statute, decrees that payment shall be made periodically, instead of in solido, does not affect the question of jurisdiction, as the amount of the possible, indeed reasonably probable, payments under the decree, will exceed $5,000.

Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. v. United States, 220 U. S. 94, 106, 55 L. ed. 384, 388, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 368.

In determining the amount involved, for the purpose of appeal, the scope of the inquiry may be, and generally is, broader in a suit in equity than in a case at law.

Stinson v. Dousman, 20 How. 461, 466, 467, 15 L. ed. 966, 969; New England Mortg. Secur. Co. v. Gay, 145 U. S. 123, 131, 132, 36 L. ed. 646, 648, 649, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 815; Troy v. Evans, 97 U. S. 1, 3, 24 L. ed. 941, 942; Marshall v. Holmes, 141 U. S. 589, 595, 35 L. ed. 870, 872, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 62.

The jurisdiction in this case is measured by the value of the right to be protected, and not by the value of some mere isolated element of that right.

Berryman v. Whitman College, 222 U. S. 334, 346–348, 56 L. ed. 225, 228, 229, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 147.

Statutes regulating appeals are remedial, and this court has always construed them liberally.

The Habana, 175 U. S. 677, 682, 44 L. ed. 320, 322, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 290; Wetmore v. Rymer, 169 U. S. 115, 128, 42 L. ed. 682, 686, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 293; Harris v. Barber, 129 U. S. 366, 369, 370, 32 L. ed. 697, 699, 700, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 314; Smith v. Whitney, 116 U. S. 167, 173, 29 L. ed. 601, 603, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Audubon v. Shufeldt, 181 U. S. 575, 578, 45 L. ed. 1009, 1011, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 735.

The decree is limited by the pleadings, which adhere to the requirements of the Code. The meaning of the decree, therefore, is that the husband shall pay to the wife at the least the sum of $75 a month as long as the child may be dependent upon her for care and support.

Barnes v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 122 U. S. 1, 30 L. ed. 1128, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1043; Pierce v. Tennessee Coal, Iron & R. Co. 173 U. S. 1, 9, 43 L. ed. 591, 594, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 335; Ex parte Hart, 94 Cal. 254, 29 Pac. 774; Carnig v. Carr, 167 Mass. 547, 35 L.R.A. 512, 57 Am. St. Rep. 488, 46 N. E. 117; McCaddin v. McCaddin, 116 Md. 574, 82 Atl. 554.

This court will take judicial notice of the usual tables, showing the expectancy of life of the parties and of the child.

Lincoln v. Power, 151 U. S. 436, 441, 38 L. ed. 224, 227, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 387.

The appellee's self-confessed conduct towards a frail and invalid wife may not be a bar to his Virginia decree, but it is a fact, nevertheless, which this court will consider upon the merits of the case.

Crosby v. Buchanan, 23 Wall. 420, 454, 23 L. ed. 138, 142.

There was no valid service of process upon defendant.

Raub v. Otterback, 89 Va. 645, 16 S. E. 933.

The Virginia decree was therefore not final within the meaning of the full faith and credit clause of the Constitution.

Cheely v. Clayton, 110 U. S. 701, 708, 28 L. ed. 298, 300, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 328; Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 409, 44 L. ed. 520, 524, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410; Lynde v. Lynde, 181 U. S. 183, 187, 45 L. ed. 810, 814, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 555.

The sufficiency of the jurisdictional affidavit is to be determined by the law of Virginia; and if the publication in the particular case be unauthorized, no principle is perceived upon which it can be regarded as constructive notice.

Hollingsworth v. Barbour, 4 Pet. 466, 474, 8 L. ed. 922, 926.

A statement made upon information and belief cannot be equivalent to a direct statement unless the facts upon which the information and belief are based are set forth, so that the court may determine their reasonableness and sufficiency.

Clowser v. Hall, 80 Va. 864; Rice v.

Ames, 189 U. S. 371, 374, 45 L. ed. 577, 581, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 406, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 356; Holmes v. Holmes, 15 Neb. 616, 19 N. W. 600; Fulton v. Levy, 21 Neb. 482, 32 N. W. 307.

Process by means of publication is purely statutory, and not according to the course of the common law, and it can only be instituted in the manner required by the statute.

Cooper v. Newell, 173 U. S. 555, 572, 43 L. ed. 808, 814, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 506.

If the affidavit had been as to the defendant's domicil, which may present a mixed question of law and fact, there would be some basis for the contention that an affidavit upon information and belief would be sufficient; but as to the mere fact of residence, the affidavit must be positive.

Jackson v. Webster, 6 Munf. 464; Clowser v. Hall, 80 Va. 864.

Cases when the judgment is to have an effect on personal rights, as in divorce suits, are not to be assimilated too closely to those cases in which the jurisdiction is acquired by seizure of the property involved.

Cooper v. Reynolds, 10 Wall. 308, 319, 19 L. ed. 931, 933; Hamilton v. Brown, 161 U. S. 256, 274, 40 L. ed. 691, 699, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 584; Haddock v. Haddock, 201 U. S. 562, 576, 50 L. ed. 867, 872, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 525, 5 Ann. Cas. 1.

Land may be drawn within the jurisdiction of the court by merely bringing a suit; but the jurisdictional necessity for the actual custody of chattels has been consistently applied, and for the same reason that a vested remainder in chattels was not subject to sale by common-law execution, as the fieri facias in either case requires actual custody and delivery of the goods.

Dargan v. Richardson, Dud. L. 62; Allen v. Scurry, 1 Yerg. 36, 24 Am. Dec. 436; Lockwood v. Nye, 2 Swan, 515, 58 Am. Dec. 73.

The force of the words "on affidavit," as used in the Virginia statute, cannot be less than that of the word "thereupon," construed as jurisdictional when applied to special statutory powers.

Re Pensacola Lumber Co. 8 Ben. 171, Fed. Cas. No. 10,959.

The courts indulge presumptions when the record is silent which are overcome when different evidence is disclosed or averments made; then why should not a defendant be permitted by the court to assume that there was no other time designated, and to rely upon an "actual notice" in lieu of the constructive (presumed) notice by publication?

Galpin v. Page, 18 Wall. 350, 366, 21 L. ed. 959, 962; Cheely v. Clayton, 110 U. S. 701, 706, 28 L. ed. 298, 301, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 228; Hays v. United States, 175 U. S. 248, 261, 44 L. ed. 150, 155, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 80; Blackburn v. Crawford, 3 Wall. 175, 194, 18 L. ed. 186, 194.

The appellant's domicil was not in Virginia. She was therefore not bound by the Virginia decree.

Haddock v. Haddock, 201 U. S. 562, 583, 589, 599, 606, 50 L. ed. 867, 875, 877, 882, 884, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 525, 5 Ann. Cas. 1.

Mr. Joseph W. Cox argued the cause, and, with Messrs. A. E. L. Leckie and John A. Kratz, Jr., filed a brief for appellee:

The court is without jurisdiction.

Barry v. Mercein, 5 How. 103, 12 L. ed. 70; Kurtz v. Moffitt, 115 U. S. 487, 29 L. ed. 458, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148; Durham v. Seymour, 161 U. S. 235, 40 L. ed. 682, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 452; Huntington v. Saunders, 163 U. S. 319, 41 L. ed. 174, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1120; 1 Foster, Fed. Pr. 4th ed. p. 87; Miles v. Miles, 200 Ill. 524, 66 N. E. 28.

The decree of the Virginia court, if valid in Virginia, is binding upon the parties in the District of Columbia.

Atherton v. Atherton, 181 U. S. 155, 45 L. ed. 794, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 544.

The effect of that decree in Virginia is to bar the wife's right to maintenance.

Harris v. Harris, 31 Gratt. 17; Carr v. Carr, 22 Gratt. 168; Latham v. Latham, 30 Gratt. 338.

The Virginia decree is not invalid in that state because of the insufficiency of the affidavit filed as the basis of the order of publication.

Adams v. Hosmer, 98 Mich. 51, 56 N. W. 1051; Pennoyer v. Neff, 95 U. S. 714–721, 24 L. ed. 565, 568; Long v. Fife, 45 Kan. 271, 23 Am. St. Rep. 724, 25 Pac. 594; Belmont v. Cornen, 82 N. Y. 256; Rowe v. Palmer, 29 Kan. 340; Smith v. Smith, 3 Or. 363; Ligare v. California Southern R. Co. 76 Cal. 610, 18 Pac. 777; Lawson v. Moorman, 85 Va. 880, 9 S. E. 150; Harris v. Claflin, 36 Kan. 543, 13 Pac. 830; Britton v. Larson, 23 Neb. 806, 37 N. W. 681; Fulton v. Levy, 21 Neb. 478, 32 N. W. 307.

The giving of personal notice in the District of Columbia did not vitiate the constructive notice by publication, and render the decree void in Virginia.

7 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 109; Burnes v. Burnes, 61 Mo. App. 612; Dresser v. Wood, 15 Kan. 344.

Mr. Justice Pitney delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an appeal from a decree of the court of appeals of the District of Columbia, reversing a decree of the supreme court of the District in favor of the wife in a suit for maintenance, brought under § 980 of the District Code (act of March 3, 190

31 Stat. at L. 1346, chap. 854). The bill of complaint was filed July 29, 1907, and charged the husband with failing and refusing to maintain the complainant, and with cruel treatment of such character as to compel her to leave him. Upon the filing of the bill a subpœna to answer was issued and returned "not found," whereupon alias and pluries writs were successively issued and returned until November 18, 1907, when the husband was served with process. Meanwhile, and on September 3, 1907, he brought suit against the wife in the circuit court of Loudoun county, Virginia, for divorce a mensa et thoro, upon the ground that on June 13, 1907, the wife wilfully abandoned his bed and board and de-[558]serted him *without cause, and that notwithstanding his repeated entreaties and endeavors to induce her to return, she had refused to do so. An order of publication having been made and published, the Virginia court, on October 19, 1907, made a decree granting to the husband a divorce a mensa et thoro. He thereafter, on being served as already mentioned with process in the wife's suit, filed a plea setting up the Virginia decree and the proceedings upon which it was rendered, as a bar to her action. This plea was, on hearing, overruled, the husband being allowed time in which to answer the bill. He answered, denying the wife's charges of cruelty, and setting up other matters pertaining to the merits, and also averred that his domicil, as well as the matrimonial domicil of the parties, was in Loudoun county, Virginia, and again pleaded the Virginia proceedings and decree as a bar to the wife's suit. The supreme court of the District, upon final hearing, held the Virginia divorce to be invalid, and made a decree awarding to the wife custody of an infant child born to the parties during the pendency of the proceedings, and requiring the husband to pay to the wife $75 per month for the maintenance of herself and the child, to forthwith pay to her the sum of $500 for counsel fees, and also to pay the costs of suit to be taxed. From this decree the husband appealed to the court of appeals of the District, which court reversed the decree and remanded the cause, with directions to enter an order vacating the decree and dismissing the bill. 35 App. D. C. 14.

The present appeal is based upon § 8 of the act of February 9, 1893, to establish a court of appeals for the District of Columbia, and for other purposes (27 Stat. at L. 436, chap. 74, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 573), which section gives a writ of error or appeal to review in this court any final judgment or decree of the court of appeals "in all causes in which the matter in dispute, exclusive of costs, shall exceed the sum of five thousand dollars." Appellee challenges our jurisdiction *on the[559] ground that the matter here in dispute does not exceed the sum mentioned.

Under the decree of the supreme court the payments of $75 per month for support of the wife and child were to commence on July 15, 1909. Supposing that decree to be now reinstated by a reversal of the decree of the court of appeals, the instalments already accrued would amount to considerably more than one half of the jurisdictional amount. The expectancy of life of the parties is clearly sufficient to make up the balance.

It is true that the obligation to make such payments for maintenance in the future, even when fixed by judicial decree, is not in the nature of a technical debt.

Section 980 of the District Code (31 Stat. at L. 1346, chap. 854), upon which the present action is based, enacts: "Whenever any husband shall fail or refuse to maintain his wife and minor children, if any, although able so to do, the court, on application of the wife, may decree that he shall pay her periodically such sums as would be allowed to her as permanent alimony in case of divorce for the maintenance of herself and the minor children committed to her care by the court, and the payment thereof may be enforced in the same manner as directed in regard to such permanent alimony." The matter of permanent allmony is dealt with in §§ 976, 977, and 978, the latter of which provides: "After a decree of divorce in any case granting alimony and providing for the care and custody of children, the case shall still be considered open for any future orders in those respects."

The statutory maintenance is thus assimilated to alimony, in that it is subject to be modified from time to time or even cut off entirely, in the event of a change in the circumstances of the parties; and it of course ceases wholly upon the death of the husband. See Lynde v. Lynde, 181 U. S. 183, 45 L. ed. 810, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 555; Audubon v. Shufeldt, 181 U. S. 575, 578, 45 L. ed. 1009, 1010, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 735; Lynde v. Lynde, 64 N. J. Eq. 736, 751, 58 L.R.A. 471, 97 Am. St. Rep. 692, 52 Atl. 694.

*Nevertheless, such a decree clearly[560] and finally settles the obligation of the husband to contribute to the support of the wife and offspring, and fixes the amount of contributions required for the present to fulfil that obligation. The future payments are not in any proper sense contingent or speculative, although they are subject to be increased, decreased, or even cut off, as just indicated.

The statute conferring jurisdiction on this court, while requiring that the matter in dispute shall exceed $5,000, does not require that it shall be of such a nature as to constitute (if the event be favorable) a technical debt of record. In Smith v. Whitney, 116 U. S. 167, 173, 29 L. ed. 601, 602, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 570, the matter in dispute was stated to be "whether the petitioner is subject to a prosecution which may end in a sentence dismissing him from the service, and depriving him of a salary as paymaster general during the residue of his term as such, and as pay inspector afterwards, which, in less than two years, would exceed the sum of $5,000." This court sustained the appellate jurisdiction. That case has been repeatedly cited upon the present point (Smith v. Adams, 130 U. S. 167, 175, 32 L. ed. 895, 898, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 566; South Carolina v. Seymour, 153 U. S. 353, 358, 38 L. ed. 742, 744, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 871; Simon v. House, 46 Fed. 317, 318; Chesapeake & D. Canal Co. v. Gring, 86 C. C. A. 530, 159 Fed. 662, 664); and its authority upholds our jurisdiction in the case before us.

The next question is whether the court of appeals was right in holding that the supreme court of the District erred in refusing to give credit to the Virginia decree.

Art. 4, § 1, of the Constitution, declares that "full faith and credit shall be given in each state to the public acts, records, and judicial proceedings of every other state. And the Congress may, by general laws, prescribe the manner in which such acts, records, and proceedings shall be proved, and the effect thereof." By § 905, Rev. Stat. (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 677), the mode in which such acts, records, and proceedings are to be proved was 561]prescribed; and it was enacted *that "the said records and judicial proceedings, so authenticated, shall have such faith and credit given to them in every court within the United States as they have by law or usage in the courts of the state from which they are taken." This latter clause finds its origin in the first act passed by Congress to carry into effect the constitutional mandate (act of May 26, 1790, chap. 11, 1 Stat. at L. 122, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 677); and, in an early case, it was held that the words "every court within the United States" include the courts of the District of Columbia, and require those courts to give full faith and credit to the judicial proceedings of the several states when properly authenticated. Mills v. Duryee, 7 Cranch, 484, 485, 3 L. ed. 412.

But it is established that the full faith and credit clause, and the statutes enacted thereunder, do not apply to judgments rendered by a court having no jurisdiction of the parties or subject-matter, or of the res in proceedings in rem. D'Arcy v. Ketchum, 11 How. 165, 13 L. ed. 648; Thompson v. Whitman, 18 Wall. 457, 21 L. ed. 897; Reynolds v. Stockton, 140 U. S. 254, 35 L. ed. 464, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 773; Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Min. & S. Co. 225 U. S. 111, 134, 56 L. ed. 1009, 1024, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641.

This subject, in its relation to actions for divorce, has been most exhaustively considered by this court in two recent cases: Atherton v. Atherton, 181 U. S. 155, 45 L. ed. 794, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 544; Haddock v. Haddock, 201 U. S. 562, 50 L. ed. 867, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 525, 5 Ann. Cas. 1. In the Atherton Case the matrimonial domicil was in Kentucky, which was also the domicil of the husband. The wife left him there and returned to the home of her mother in the state of New York. He began suit in Kentucky for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii because of her abandonment, which was a cause of divorce by the laws of Kentucky, and took such proceedings to give her notice as the laws of that state required, which included mailing of notice to the postoffice nearest her residence in New York. No response or appearance having been made by her, the Kentucky court proceeded to take evidence and grant to the husband *an absolute decree of divorce.[562 It was held that this decree was entitled to full faith and credit in the courts of New York. In the Haddock Case, the husband and wife were domiciled in New York, and the husband left her there, and, after some years, acquired a domicil in Connecticut, and obtained in that state, and in accordance with its laws, a judgment of divorce, based upon constructive, and not actual, service of process on the wife, she having meanwhile retained her domicil in New York, and having made no appearance in the action. The wife afterwards sued for divorce in New York, and obtained personal service in that state upon the husband. The New York court refused to give credit to the Connecticut judgment, and this court held that there was no violation of the full faith and credit clause in the refusal, and this because there was not at any time a matrimonial domicil in the state of Connecticut, and therefore the res—the marriage status—was not within the sweep of the judicial power of that state.

In the present case it appears that the parties were married in the state of Virginia, and had a matrimonial domicil there, and not in the District of Columbia or elsewhere. The husband had his actual domicil in that state at all times until and after the conclusion of the litigation. It is clear, therefore, under the decision in the Atherton Case and the principles upon which it rests, that the state of Virginia had jurisdiction over the marriage relation, and the proper courts of that state could proceed to adjudicate respecting it upon grounds recognized by the laws of that state, although the wife had left the jurisdiction and could not be reached by formal process.

But in order to make a divorce valid, even when granted by the courts of the state of the matrimonial domicil, there must be notice to the defendant, either by service of process, or (if the defendant be a nonresident) by such publication or other con-[563 structive notice as is required by *the law of the state. Cheely v. Clayton, 110 U. S. 701, 28 L. ed. 298, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 328; Atherton v. Atherton, 181 U. S. 155, 171, 172, 45 L. ed. 794, 803, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 544. In Cheely v. Clayton, because the notice was published against the defendant without making such effort as the local law required to serve process upon her within the state, this court held, following repeated decisions of the state court, that the decree of divorce was wholly void for want of jurisdiction in the court that granted it; and that the liberty conferred by the local statute upon a defendant on whom constructive service only had been made, to apply within three years to set the decree aside, did not make it valid when the constructive service was so defective.

The Virginia decree now in question is attacked for want of jurisdiction on the ground that the affidavit used as a basis for the order of publication was made upon information and belief, and not upon personal knowledge. It is insisted that the order was therefore unauthorized and all proceedings based upon it null and void.

By § 3230 of the Virginia Code it is provided that "on affidavit that a defendant is not a resident of this state . . . an order of publication may be entered against such defendant." Succeeding sections prescribe the form of the order, the mode of publication, and the proceedings to be taken when the order has been thus executed.

The record of the Virginia proceedings shows that on September 3, 1907, in the clerk's office of the circuit court of Loudoun county, "the said Charles N. Thompson filed an affidavit setting forth that the said Jessie E. Thompson was not a resident of the state of Virginia, said affidavit to be used as basis for an order of publication against the said Jessie E. Thompson, . . . in the words and figures following, to wit: 'Charles N. Thompson, plaintiff, this day made oath before me in said office that Jessie E. Thompson, defendant in the suit aforesaid, is not a resident of the said state, as he is informed and verily believes.'" *This was certified by the[564 clerk of the court, as permitted by the state practice. The order of publication follows, which, after setting forth the title of the court, the names of the parties, and the object of the suit, proceeds thus: "It appearing from legal evidence that the said defendant is not a resident of this state, it is ordered that she do appear within fifteen days after due publication hereof, in the clerk's office of our said court, and do what is necessary to protect her interests." There follow certificates of the publication and public posting of the required notice, and subsequent proceedings resulting in th· final decree, which is to the following effect: "It appearing that the complainant hath proceeded regularly at rules to mature this suit against defendant, who is a nonresident of Virginia, both by personal service of process and by publication, in the mode prescribed by statute, this case was set down for hearing and came on this day to be heard on said proceedings at rules, the bill of complaint, and the depositions of witnesses regularly taken and returned to the court; on consideration whereof, the court, being of the opinion that complainant hath made out his case by legal evidence, doth adjudge, order, and decree that the prayer of the bill be and the same is hereby granted; that the complainant, Charles N. Thompson, be and hereby is granted a divorce a mensa et thoro from said defendant, Jessie E. Thompson; and that each of them be, and he and she are, devested of all marital rights in the other's property. And it is further ordered that this cause be placed upon the suspended docket, with leave to the complainant to apply for further relief whenever he may be advised that he is entitled thereto." (Note: We disregard the recital of "personal service of process," because the service referred to appears to have been made in the District of Columbia, and whether it was in season to serve any useful purpose under the Virginia practice is questionable.)

*The record clearly imports a deter-[565 mination by the Virginia court that the affidavit of nonresidence, although based upon information and belief, amounted to "legal evidence," and was in conformity with "the mode prescribed by statute." We are not referred to any provision of the Virginia Code, nor to any decision of the courts of that state, that excludes the use of such evidence for such a purpose. Sec. 3282 of the Code provides that "where an affidavit is required in support of any pleading, it shall be sufficient if the affiant swear that he believes it to be true." Under the Code of 1873, chap. 148, § 1, which provided for the issuance of a writ of attachment against nonresident debtors, and required an "affidavit stating the amount and justice of the claim, that there is present cause of action therefor, that the defendant or one of the defendants is not a resident of this state, and that the affiant believes he has estate or debts due him within the county or corporation in which the suit is," it was held that so much of the affidavit as set forth the amount and justice of the claim, that there was present cause of action therefor, and that the defendant was nonresident in the state, must be absolute, and not made upon information and belief. Clowser v. Hall, 80 Va. 864. This decision was in 1885, and thereafter the section relating to foreign attachments was amended by permitting all of the averments of the affidavit to be based upon the belief of the plaintiff, his agent or attorney. Va. Code, § 2959.

We are not able to discover here or elsewhere any general law or policy of the state of Virginia excluding the use of affidavits based upon information and belief as the foundation of an order of publication. In the very decree before us the Virginia court has adjudged such an affidavit to be sufficient. We are therefore bound to assume that the use of such an affidavit is in accord with proper practice in that state.

566] *But, were it otherwise, it seems well settled that where the affidavit used as the basis for an order of publication is defective, not in omitting to state a material fact, but in the mode of stating it or in the degree of proof, the resulting judgment, even though erroneous and therefore voidable by direct attack, cannot be said to be coram non judice and therefore void on its face. Atkins v. Atkins, 9 Neb. 191, 200, 2 N. W. 466; Pettiford v. Zoellner, 45 Mich. 358, 362, 8 N. W. 57; Adams v. Hosmer, 98 Mich. 51, 56 N. W. 1051; Long v. Fife, 45 Kan. 271, 23 Am. St. Rep. 724, 25 Pac. 594; Belmont v. Cornen, 82 N. Y. 256; 7 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 110; 17 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 60, 61.

The material fact upon which, according to the laws of that state, the jurisdiction of the Virginia court depended, was the nonresidence of the defendant. The Code required (§ 3230) that this fact should appear by affidavit. The affidavit in question set forth the fact; the circumstance that it was averred on information and belief affected merely the degree of proof. In the absence of any local law excluding the use of such an affidavit, the decision of the state court accepting it as legal evidence must be deemed sufficient, on collateral attack, to confer jurisdiction in that court over the subject-matter, in accordance with local laws.

This being so, it is clear that the resulting decree is entitled, under the act of Congress, to the same faith and credit that it would have by law or usage in the courts of Virginia. As the laws of that state provide for a divorce from bed and board for the cause of desertion, and confer jurisdiction of suits for divorce upon the circuit courts (Va. Code, §§ 2257-2260, 2264, 2266; Bailey v. Bailey, 21 Gratt. 43; Carr v. Carr, 2 Gratt. 168; Latham v. Latham, 30 Gratt. 307); and since the courts of Virginia hold upon general principles that alimony has its origin in the legal obligation of the husband to maintain his wife, and that although this is her right, she may by her conduct forfeit it, and where she is the offender, she cannot *have alimony on[567 a divorce decreed in favor of the husband (Harris v. Harris, 31 Gratt. 13), it is plain that such a decree forecloses any right of the wife to have alimony or equivalent maintenance from her husband under the law of Virginia.

From this it results that the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia correctly held that the Virginia decree barred the wife's action for maintenance in the courts of this District.

Decree affirmed.

---

GEORGE W. EVANS, Appt.,
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 567-570.)

Officers — compensation — extra services.

Compensation for the special services of a disbursing clerk of the Interior Department, rendered by him under an appointment by the Secretary of the Interior as "special disbursing agent" of appropriations for the Government Hospital, is prohibited by the express terms of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 1765, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1207, where the appropriation acts did not specially provide for such compensation, although it was understood that he should have additional pay, since the case is one of the performance of additional service in the way of disbursing public moneys, and not of an appointment to a separate and distinct office.

NOTE.—As to extra compensation to officers—see note to United States v. Macdaniel, 8 L. ed. U. S. 587.

[For other cases, see Officers, 28–32, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 65.]

Argued December 5, 1912. Decided January 6, 1913.

APPEAL from the Court of Claims to review a judgment dismissing the petition of a government official for extra compensation. Affirmed.

See same case below, 44 Ct. Cl. 549, 45 Ct. Cl. 169.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Jackson H. Ralston and William E. Richardson argued the cause, and, with Mr. Frederick L. Siddons, filed a brief for appellant:

A special appointment, such as the present, to do certain specified work, which is terminated ipso facto by the completion of the work, lacks the essential characteristics of an "office."

21 Ops. Atty. Gen. 507; Flemming's Case, 2 Compt. Dec. 467.

The congressional enactments, as construed by this court, relate only to the prohibition of compensation for extra work pertaining to the regular duties of an officer or employee,—i. e., that which may be required of him as such officer or employee. They also include work which should properly be discharged by some other officer or employee.

Converse v. United States, 21 How. 463, 16 L. ed. 192; United States v. Saunders, 120 U. S. 126, 30 L. ed. 594, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 467; United States v. King, 147 U. S. 676, 37 L. ed. 328, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 439.

They do not forbid the employment of an officer in a special capacity to perform services not required of him as such officer. Nor is it necessary that such special employment constitute an "office," as is illustrated by the following citations:

Meigs v. United States, 19 Ct. Cl. 497; 8 Ops. Atty. Gen. 325; Garter v. United States, 31 Ct. Cl. 344, 170 U. S. 527, 42 L. ed. 1133, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 703; Converse v. United States, 21 How. 463, 16 L. ed. 192; United States v. Saunders, 120 U. S. 126, 30 L. ed. 594, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 467.

The executive department of the government, to which is intrusted the control of the subject-matter, must necessarily determine all questions appertaining to the employment and payment of such temporary agents, and the exigency which demands their employment.

United States v. Jones, 18 How. 92, 15 L. ed. 274; United States v. Johnston, 124 U. S. 252, 31 L. ed. 395, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 446.

Assistant Attorney General Thompson argued the cause, and, with Mr. P. M. Ashford, filed a brief for appellee.

*Mr. Justice Pitney delivered the [568] opinion of the court:

This case comes here on appeal from a judgment of the court of claims, dismissing appellant's petition after hearing the merits, and denying a motion for a new trial. 44 Ct. Cl. 549, 45 Ct. Cl. 169. Briefly, the facts are that the appellant, who was chief of division and disbursing clerk of the Interior Department, receiving a salary of $2,000 per year, and was also disbursing clerk of the architect of the Capitol, for which he received annual compensation of $1,000, was appointed by the Secretary of the Interior on August 10, 1901, to act as a special disbursing agent to disburse an appropriation of $925,000 provided by the acts of June 6, 1900, and March 3, 1901 (31 Stat. at L. 619, 1163, chaps. 791, 853, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3357), for the construction of additional buildings in the extension of the Government Hospital for the Insane in the District of Columbia. Further appropriations having been made by Congress, viz., for an office and administration building, $145,000, and for a central heating and lighting plant for the entire hospital, $260,000, appellant was directed by the Secretary, under date January 5, 1903, to disburse these appropriations under his original appointment; and similar action was taken May 16, 1904, directing him to disburse an appropriation for painting the new buildings. Appellant accepted the appointment and gave bonds, first in the sum of $25,000, and afterwards in the additional sum of $75,000; he entered upon his duties and faithfully discharged them, and disbursed between August, 1901, and June, 1905, the sum of $1,410,761.87. In the order appointing him it was stated that, for the service of disbursing the appropriation, he would be allowed the maximum compensation permitted by law, not exceeding ⅞ of 1 per cent. The appointment of a special agent to make the disbursements was, in the judgment of the Secretary of the Interior, a necessity. *During the time appellant [569] acted as such special disbursing agent he continued to hold the office of disbursing clerk of the Interior Department, and to act as disbursing clerk of the architect of the Capitol, and for the performance of these duties received the salary and compensation first mentioned. For the special service of disbursing the appropriations for the Government Hospital he presented a claim for $5,290.36, payment of which was refused by the accounting officers of the Treasury Department, on the ground that at the time the special service was rendered he was holding two offices under the United States, the emoluments of which exceeded $2,500 a year, and that the charge for such special service was in violation of §§ 1763 and 1765, Rev. Stat. (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 1205, 1207), inasmuch as the act under which the appropriation was made did not provide for a special allowance to an agent for disbursing it.

Three sections that stand side by side in the Revised Statutes should be quoted:

"Sec. 1763. No person who holds an office, the salary or annual compensation attached to which amounts to the sum of two thousand five hundred dollars, shall receive compensation for discharging the duties of any other office, unless expressly authorized by law.

"Sec. 1764. No allowance or compensation shall be made to any officer or clerk by reason of the discharge of duties which belong to any other officer or clerk in the same or any other Department; and no allowance or compensation shall be made for any extra services whatever which any officer or clerk may be required to perform, unless expressly authorized by law.

"Sec. 1765. No officer in any branch of the public service, or any other person whose salary, pay, or emoluments are fixed by law or regulations, shall receive any additional pay, extra allowance, or compensation, in any form whatever, for the disbursement of public money, or for any other service or duty whatever, unless the 570]same is *authorized by law, and the appropriation therefor explicitly states that it is for such additional pay, extra allowance, or compensation."

It seems to us that the appointment of the appellant as "special disbursing agent" was not an appointment to a separate and distinct office from those already held by him, but was merely an order requiring him to perform additional services in the way of disbursing public moneys. This being so, payment for the extra services is prohibited by the terms of § 1765, Rev. Stat., without reference to the fact that the appellant already held offices whose salary or annual compensation amounted to more than $2,500. The case is within the authority of Woodwell v. United States, 214 U. S. 82, 53 L. ed. 919, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576. The fact that in the present case it was understood that the appellant should have additional pay makes this case different in its circumstances, but does not render inapplicable the statutory prohibition.

Judgment affirmed.

Mr. Justice McKenna and Mr. Justice Hughes dissent.

---

MISSOURI, KANSAS, & TEXAS RAILWAY COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
SALLIE C. WULF.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 570–578.)

Error to circuit court of appeals — Federal question.

1. A writ of error lies from the Federal

NOTE.—As to appellate jurisdiction of Federal Supreme Court over circuit courts of appeals—see note to Bagley v. General Fire Extinguisher Co. 53 L. ed. U. S. 605.

Amendment of pleading after limitation period by changing capacity in which plaintiff sues.

As in the principal case, the court, in Bixler v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 201 Fed. 553, a suit under the Federal employers' liability act, begun in their individual capacities by the parents, who were the sole beneficiaries of the deceased employee, permitted an amendment to the petition after the running of the two years' limitation, so that the parents should appear to be suing as the personal representatives of the decedent.

Had the father of the deceased employee procured himself to be appointed the administrator of his deceased son's estate, as was his legal right, there could be no question, said the court in Reardon v. Balaklala Consol. Copper Co. 193 Fed. 189, of his right under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 954, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 696, so far as the statute of limitations is concerned, to have himself in his representative capacity substituted as plaintiff in place of himself as an individual in an action against the employer to recover for his son's death, no new facts being alleged as a ground of recovery, and the father still remaining the beneficiary of the recovery sought.

An amendment in an action by a widow for the death of her husband, striking the descriptive word "administratrix" from the declaration, and leaving the suit to proceed in the individual name of the widow, does not admit the bar of the statute, though made after the limitation period. Atlanta, K. & N. R. Co. v. Smith, 1 Ga. App. 162, 50 S. E. 106.

But where an action for wrongful death was brought by deceased's widow as such, under a state statute giving her alone the right of action, for her sole benefit, an amendment of the declaration, changing the relation in which she sues from that of widow to that of administratrix, for the benefit of herself as widow and her children, and changing her cause of action to one Holston v. Coal & I. Co. 95 Tenn. 521, 32 S. W. 486; Collins Coal Co. v. Hadley, 38 Ind. App. 637, 75 N. E. 832, 78 N. E. 353; Boyd v. Brazil Block Coal Co. 25 Ind. App. 157, 57 N. E. 732; Lower v. Segal, 59 N. J. L. 66, 34 Atl. 945; Nash v. Tousley, 28 Minn. 5, 8 N. W. 875; Duval v. Hunt, 34 Fla. 85, 15 So. 876, 13 Am. Neg. Cas. 848; Barker v. Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. 91 Mo. 91, 14 S. W. 280; Major v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. 115 Iowa, 309, 88 N. W. 816; Fithian v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 188 Fed. 842; Usher v. West Jersey R. Co. 126 Pa. 206, 4 L.R.A. 261, 12 Am. St. Rep. 863, 17 Atl. 597; Hagen v. Kean, 3 Dill. 124, Fed. Cas. No. 5,899; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Hunter, 70 Miss. 471, 12 So. 482; Killian v. Southern R. Co. 128 N. C. 261, 38 S. E. 873; Hunt v. Monroe, 32 Utah, 428, 11 L.R.A.(N.S.) 249, 91 Pac. 270; McKenney v. Minahan, 119 Wis. 651, 97 N. W. 489; Ward v. Pertie, 157 N. Y. 301, 68 Am. St. Rep. 790, 51 N. E. 1002; Hamilton v. McIndoo, 81 Minn. 324, 84 N. W. 118; State ex rel. Broatch v. Moores, 58 Neb. 285, 78 N. W. 529.

It is only necessary that the Federal question appear somewhere in the record by some proper pleading of the plaintiff. It makes no difference whether it is in the original petition, an amended petition, or a supplemental petition.

Bankers Mut. Casualty Co. v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. Ste. M. R. Co. 192 U. S. 380, 48 L. ed. 488, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 325; Mississippi R. Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 203 U. S. 341, 51 L. ed. 213, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90; Henningsen v. United States Fidelity & G. Co. 208 U. S. 404, 52 L. ed. 547, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 389; Florida C. & P. R. Co. v. Bell, 176 U. S. 321, 44 L. ed. 486, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 399; Warner v. Searle & H. Co. 191 U. S. 195, 48 L. ed. 145, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 79; Howard v. United States, 184 U. S. 676, 46 L. ed. 754, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 543; Northern P. R. Co. v. Soderberg, 188 U. S. 526, 47 L. ed. 575, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 365; Chicago Junction R. Co. v. King, 222 U. S. 222, 56 L. ed. 173, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 79; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. New Orleans, 181 U. S. 281, 45 L. ed. 861, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 646; Union P. R. Co. v. Harris, 158 U. S. 326, 39 L. ed. 1003, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 843.

In determining whether there has been a departure in pleading, or whether an amendment sets up a new cause of action, the court will look alone to the pleadings.

Metropolitan L. Ins. Co. v. People, 209 Ill. 42, 70 N. E. 643; Kansas City v. Hart, 60 Kan. 684, 57 Pac. 938; Haley v. Hobson, 88 Me. 167; Union P. R. Co. v. Wyler, 158 U. S. 285, 39 L. ed. 983, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 877; United States v. Dalcour, 203 U. S. 423, 51 L. ed. 251, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller, 221 U. S. 408, 55 L. ed. 789, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 534; Boston & M. R. Co. v. Hurd, 56 L.R.A. 193, 47 C. C. A. 615, 108 Fed. 124; Whalen v. Gordon, 37 C. C. A. 70, 95 Fed. 308.

The amendment sets up a different law, and for that reason sets up a new cause of action.

Hurst v. Detroit City R. Co. 84 Mich. 539, 48 N. W. 44; Walker v. Hester, 9 Kan. App. 201, 59 Pac. 662; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Schroeder, 56 Kan. 731, 44 Pac 1093; Wingert v. Carpenter, 101 Mich. 395, 59 N. W. 662; Parmelee v. Savannah, F. & W. R. Co. 78 Ga. 239, 2 S. E. 686; Despeaux v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 133 Fed. 1009; Wiley v. Yale, 1 Met. 553; Melvin v. Smith, 12 N. H. 462; Kansas City v. Hart, 60 Kan. 684, 57 Pac. 938; Hansberger v. Pacific R. Co. 43 Mo. 196; Exposition Cotton Mills v. Western & A. R. Co. 83 Ga. 441, 10 S. E. 113; Holiday v. Jackson, 21 Mo. App. 660; Gillam v. Life Ins. Co. 121 N. C. 369, 28 S. E. 470; Fairchild v. Dunbar Furnace Co. 128 Pa. 485, 18 Atl. 443; Newton v. Allis, 12 Wis. 378; Phœnix Lumber Co. v. Houston Water Co. 94 Tex. 462, 61 S. W. 707.

The fact that defendant in error could have recovered more under the amendment would constitute a new cause of action.

Atlanta, K. & N. R. Co. v. Hooper, 35 C. C. A. 24, 92 Fed. 820.

If the amended petition sets up a cause of action new, different, and distinct from that originally set up, there is no relation back, and the statute of limitation runs against the new cause of action until it is introduced.

Sicard v. Davis, 6 Pet. 124, 8 L. ed. 342; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cox, 145 U. S. 593, 36 L. ed. 829, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 905; Union P. R. Co. v. Wyler, 158 U S. 289, 39 L. ed. 987, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 877; United States v. Dalcour, 203 U. S. 423, 51 L. ed. 251, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller, 221 U. S. 408, 55 L. ed. 789, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 534; Boston & M. R. Co. v. Hurd, 56 L.R.A. 193, 47 C. C. A. 615, 108 Fed. 124; Whalen v. Gordon, 37 C. C. A. 70, 95 Fed. 308; Nelson v. First Nat. Bank, 139 Ala. 578, 101 Am. St. Rep. 52, 36 So. 707; Shepherd v. Southern Pine Co. 118 Ga. 292 45 S. E. 220; Davis v. New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. 110 N. Y. 646, 17 N. E. 733; People ex rel. Gorman v. Newaygo Circuit Judge, 27 Mich. 138; Grier v. Northern Assur. Co. 183 Pa. 334, 39 Atl. 10; Scovill v. Glasner, 79 Mo. 449; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Schroeder, 56 Kan. 731, 44 Pac. 1093; Kansas City v. Hart, 60 Kan. 684, 57 Pac. 938; Phœnix Lumber Co. v. Houston Water Co. 94 Tex.

463, 61 S. W. 707; McLane v. Belvin, 47 Tex. 493; Bigham v. Talbot, 63 Tex. 271; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Pape, 73 Tex. 502, 11 S. W. 526; East Line & R. River R. Co. v. Scott, 75 Tex. 84, 12 S. W. 995; Cotton v. Rand, 93 Tex. 24, 51 S. W. 838, 53 S. W. 343; Buswell, Limitations, p. 515.

Statutes of limitation are statutes of repose; and in view of the policy that inspired them, the courts look with favor on rights arising under them.

Nelson v. First Nat. Bank, 139 Ala. 578, 101 Am. St. Rep. 52, 36 So. 707; People ex rel. Gorman v. Newaygo Circuit Judge, 27 Mich. 138.

An action for damages for injuries resulting in death under the Federal employers' liability act can only be maintained by the administrator or the executor of the estate of the deceased person.

Thompson v. Wabash R. Co. 184 Fed. 554; Troxell v. Delaware, L. & W. R Co. 180 Fed. 874; Adams v. Northern P. R. Co. 95 Fed. 938; McCarty v. New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. 62 Fed. 437; Briggs v. Walker, 171 U. S. 466, 43 L. ed. 243, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; O'Neill v. Douthitt, 40 Kan. 689, 20 Pac. 495; Oates v. Union P. R. Co. 104 Mo. 514, 24 Am. St. Rep. 348, 16 S. W. 487; Walker v. O'Connell, 59 Kan. 306, 52 Pac. 894; Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Osgood, 36 Ind. App. 34, 73 N. E. 285; Yelton v. Evansville & I. R. Co. 134 Ind. 414, 21 L.R.A. 158, 33 N. E. 629; Lovell v. De Bardelaben Coal & I. Co. 90 Ala. 13, 7 So. 756, 13 Am. Neg. Cas. 174; Tennessee Coal, I. & R. Co. v. Herndon, 100 Ala. 451, 14 So. 287, 13 Am. Neg. Cas. 180; Thornton, Employers' Liability, § 73; Reno, Employers' Liability Acts, chap. 8.

There being no action at common law for damages for injuries resulting in death, such cause of action is covered by the provisions of the statute from which it arises, as to the right of recovery, as to the time within which the suit may be brought, and as to the parties that can maintain the suit.

Dennick v. Central R. Co. 103 U. S. 11, 26 L. ed. 439; Pollard v. Bailey, 20 Wall. 520, 22 L. ed. 376; Fourth Nat. Bank v. Francklyn, 120 U. S. 747, 30 L. ed. 825, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 757; Davidow v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 85 Fed. 943; Walker v. O'Connell, 59 Kan. 306, 52 Pac. 894; Boston & M R. Co. v. Hurd, 56 L.R.A. 193. 47 C. C. A. 615, 108 Fed. 125; Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Charmar, 161 Ind. 95, 67 N. E. 923.

The substitution by an amended petition of a personal representative as plaintiff in lieu of the beneficiary named as plaintiff in the original petition, in a cause of action arising under the Federal employers' liability act, is, as regards limitation, the commencement of a new suit, the statement of a new cause of action, and limitation runs against such cause of action until the amended petition is filed.

Armstrong v. Bean, 59 Tex. 492; International & G. N. R. Co. v. Howell, 101 Tex. 603, 111 S. W. 142; Flatley v. Memphis & C. R. Co. 9 Heisk. 230.

Under Lord Campbell's act every action thereunder was required to be commenced within twelve calendar months, and a similar provision is contained in nearly all of the state statutes, some limiting the time to one year and some to two years. These limitations differ in all respects from ordinary statutes of limitations, inasmuch as the act which creates the limitation also creates the action to which it applies, and the limitation is not merely of the remedy, but of the right of action itself. So strictly are these limitations in such statutes enforced that the right is given subject to the limitation, and even a subsequent change in the period of limitation will not extend the period so as to affect an existing right of action.

The Harrisburg, 119 U. S. 199, 30 L. ed. 358, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140; Pittsburg, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Hine, 25 Ohio St. 629; Benjamin v. Eldridge, 50 Cal. 612; Com. v. Boston & W. R. Corp. 11 Cush. 512; Com. v. East Boston Ferry Co. 13 Allen, 589.

Furthermore, the statute of limitations in these cases need not be pleaded, but it is incumbent upon the plaintiff to show by her own statement of facts that the suit was filed within the period fixed, and otherwise the petition is demurrable.

Hanna v. Jeffersonville R. Co. 32 Ind. 113; Jeffersonville, M. & I. R. Co. v. Hendricks, 41 Ind. 48, 3 Am. Neg. Cas. 106; George v. Chicago, M. St. &. R. Co. 51 Wis. 603, 8 N. W. 374.

Messrs. Joseph M. Bryson, Alexander S. Coke, and A. H. McKnight also filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Judson H. Wood argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The jurisdiction of the United States circuit court in which this case was tried depended upon diverse citizenship of the parties, and the judgment of the United States circuit court of appeals, affirming the judgment of the trial court, is final.

Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 327, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 177.

The pleadings of the plaintiff alone are looked to to determine the jurisdiction. If the original petition disclosed the fact that jurisdiction of the circuit court w invoked solely upon diverse citizenship of the parties to the suit, the judgment of the United States circuit court of appeals is final, notwithstanding the defendant by its answer may invoke the construction of a Federal statute.

Colorado Cent. Consol. Min. Co. v. Turck, 150 U. S. 142, 37 L. ed. 1031, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 35; Metcalf v. Watertown, 128 U. S. 586, 32 L. ed. 543, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 173; Ayers v. Polsdorfer, 187 U. S. 588, 47 L. ed. 315, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 196; Arbuckle v. Blackburn, 191 U. S. 413, 48 L. ed. 241, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 148.

The fact that the suit is founded upon a Federal statute does not raise a Federal question such as would give the circuit court of the United States jurisdiction; but it must be shown by the pleadings of the plaintiff that there is a controversy over the construction of such statute, the determination of which would give or defeat the right of action.

Spencer v. Duplan Silk Co. 191 U. S. 530, 48 L. ed. 290, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Bankers' Mut. Casualty Co. v. Minneapolis, St. P. & S. Ste. M. R. Co. 192 U. S. 380, 48 L. ed. 488, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 325; Bagley v. General Fire Extinguisher Co. 53 L. ed. U. S. 610, note.

This statute was enacted for the benefit of employees, and should be construed liberally in order to give it effect.

United States v. Kansas City Southern R. Co. 189 Fed. 471; Narramore v. Cleveland, C. C. & St. L. R. Co. 48 L.R.A. 68, 37 C. C. A. 499, 96 Fed. 298; Caspar v. Lewin, 82 Kan. 604, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 109 Pac. 667; Walsh v. Whiteley, L. R. 21 Q. B. Div. 371, 57 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 586, 36 Week. Rep. 876, 53 J. P. 38; Stewart v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 168 U. S. 447, 42 L. ed. 538, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 105.

The United States courts look to the real rather than the nominal party.

Stewart v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 168 U. S. 445, 42 L. ed. 537, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 105; Van Doren v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 35 C. C. A. 282, 93 Fed. 261; McDonald v. Nebraska, 41 C. C. A. 278, 101 Fed. 171; Viscount De Valle Da Costa v. Southern P. Co. 100 C. C. A. 313, 176 Fed. 843; Chapman v. Barney, 129 U. S. 677, 32 L. ed. 800, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 426; Albany & R. Iron & Steel Co. v. Lundberg, 121 U. S. 431, 30 L. ed. 982, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 958.

The trial court was authorized to permit the defendant in error to make herself party plaintiff as administratrix; and the same was not the beginning of a new cause of action, but related back to the beginning of the suit; therefore the court properly overruled the demurrer setting up limitation.

McDonald v. Nebraska, 41 C. C. A. 278, 101 Fed. 171; Murphy v. Stewart, 2 How. 263–281, 11 L. ed. 261–268; The Caroline v. United States, 7 Cranch, 496, 3 L. ed. 417; Jackson v. Ashton, 8 Pet. 148, 8 L. ed. 898; Jackson v. Ashton, 10 Pet. 480, 9 L. ed. 502; Garland v. Davis, 4 How. 131, 11 L. ed. 907; Stockton v. Bishop, 4 How. 155, 11 L. ed. 918; Conrad v. Griffey, 11 How. 480, 13 L. ed. 779; Conrad v. Griffey, 16 How. 38, 14 L. ed. 835; Parks v. Turner, 12 How. 39, 13 L. ed. 883; Tilton v. Cofield, 93 U. S. 163, 23 L. ed. 858; Bamberger v. Terry, 103 U. S. 40, 26 L. ed. 317; Dow v. Humbert, 91 U. S. 294–297, 23 L. ed. 368–370; Phillips & C. Constr. Co. v. Seymour, 91 U. S. 646–655, 23 L. ed. 341–344; Hardin v. Boyd, 113 U. S. 765, 28 L. ed. 1144, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 771; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cox, 145 U. S. 593, 36 L. ed. 829, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 905; Erstein v. Rothchild, 22 Fed. 61; Bowden v. Burnham, 8 C. C. A. 248, 19 U. S. App. 448, 59 Fed. 752; Smith v. Missouri P. R. Co. 5 C. C. A. 557, 12 U. S. App. 426, 56 Fed. 458; Carnegie v. Hulbert, 16 C. C. A. 498, 36 U. S. App. 81, 97, 70 Fed. 209; People's Sav. Bank & T. Co. v. Batchelder Egg Case Co. 2 C. C. A. 126, 4 U. S. App. 603, 51 Fed. 130; Tiernan v. Woodruff, 5 McLean, 135, Fed. Cas. No. 14,027; Swatzel v. Arnold, 1 Woolw. 383, Fed. Cas. No. 13,682; Dixon v. Dixon, 19 Iowa, 512; Hodges v. Kimball, 49 Iowa, 577, 31 Am. Rep. 158; Lake Erie & W. R. Co. v. Boswell, 137 Ind. 336, 36 N. E. 1103; Wood v. Lane, 84 Mich. 521, 47 N. W. 1103; McLewis v. Furgerson, 59 Ga. 644; Wilson v. First Presby. Church, 56 Ga. 554; Childers v. Adams, 42 Ga. 352; Miller v. Pollock, 99 Pa. 202; Com. v. Dillon, 61 Pa. 488; Whitaker v. Pope, 2 Woods, 463, Fed. Cas. No. 17,528; Buckland v. Green, 133 Mass. 421; McCall v. Lee, 120 Ill. 261, 11 N. E. 522; Costello v. Crowell, 134 Mass. 280; Pierce v. Charter Oak L. Ins. Co. 138 Mass. 151; Merchants' Bank v. Stevenson, 7 Allen, 489; Byers v. Franklin Coal Co. 106 Mass. 131, 12 Mor. Min. Rep. 27; Wilson v. Welch, 157 Mass. 77, 31 N. E. 712; Morford v. Dieffenbacker, 54 Mich. 593, 20 N. W. 600; Lottman v. Barnett, 62 Mo. 159; George v. Reed, 101 Mass. 378; Sanger v. Newton, 134 Mass. 308; Van Doren v. Pennsylvania R. Co. 35 C. C. A. 282, 93 Fed. 260; Price v. Wiley, 19 Tex. 143, 70 Am. Dec. 323; Martel v. Somers, 26 Tex. 551; Hudson v. Morriss, 55 Tex. 604; Rabb v. Rogers, 67 Tex. 339, 3 S. W. 303; Connolly v. Hammond, 51 Tex. 647; Killebrew v. Stockdale, 51 Tex. 531; Tarkinton v. Broussard, 51 Tex. 554; Scoby v. Sweatt, 28 Tex. 713; Becton v.

Alexander, 27 Tex. 659; Thouvenin v. Lea, 26 Tex. 614; Texas P. R. Co. v. Davidson, 68 Tex. 370, 4 S. W. 636, 6 Am. Neg. Cas. 542; Laughlin v. Tips, 8 Tex. Civ. App. 649, 28 S. W. 551; Frank v. Kaigler, 36 Tex. 305; Heard v. Lockett, 20 Tex. 163; Dowell v. Mills, 32 Tex. 440; Schneider-Davis Co. v. Brown, — Tex. —, 46 S. W. 109; Massey v. Blake, 3 Tex. Civ. App. 57, 21 S. W. 782; Jones v. Blake, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 21 S. W. 783; Hinchman v. Marshall, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 22 S. W. 926; Tousey v. Butler, 9 Tex. 525; Mayer v. Walker, 82 Tex. 222, 17 S. W. 505; Tolbert v. McBride, 75 Tex. 95, 12 S. W. 752; Tackett v. Mutual Realty Co. — Tex. Civ. App. —, 143 S. W. 347.

The filing of the first original answer waived defects of parties.

Carey v. Brown, 92 U. S. 171, 23 L. ed. 469; Greenleaf v. Queen, 1 Pet. 138, 7 L. ed. 85; Connor v. Hawkins, 64 Tex. 545; State v. Goodnight, 70 Tex. 688, 11 S. W. 119; Tryon v. Butler, 9 Tex. 553; Blum v. Strong, 71 Tex. 329, 6 S. W. 167; 31 Cyc. 172.

Messrs. Judson H. Wood and James P. Haven also filed a brief for defendant in error:

The discretion of the trial court in allowing such amendments as granted by § 954 of the United States Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 696) is plenary and cannot be reviewed.

Eberly v. Moore, 24 How. 147, 16 L. ed. 612; Spencer v. Lapsley, 20 How. 264, 15 L. ed. 902; Re Glass, 119 Fed. 509; Union Cent. L. Ins. Co. v. Phillips, 41 C. C. A. 263, 102 Fed. 23.

The right of the circuit courts of the United States to allow such amendments without review by the appellate courts, independent of any state statute where such court is sitting, is fully established.

Mexican C. R. Co. v. Duthie, 189 U. S. 76, 47 L. ed. 715, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 610; Bamberger v. Terry, 103 U. S. 43, 26 L. ed. 317; Erstein v. Rothschild, 22 Fed. 61; Bowden v. Burnham, 8 C. C. A. 248, 19 U. S. App. 448, 59 Fed. 752; Oliver v. Raymond, 108 Fed. 927; United States Bank v. Lyon County, 48 Fed. 632.

The United States Supreme Court will not review the action of a state court on construing questions of pleading and practice in that court.

Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller, 221 U. S. 408, 55 L. ed. 789, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 534; Brinkmeier v. Missouri P. R. Co. 224 U. S. 268, 56 L. ed. 758, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 412.

A substitution of a new party plaintiff is not the beginning of a new cause of action, but takes effect as of the date of the filing of the original suit.

Pennsylvania Co. v. Sloan, 125 Ill. 72, 8 Am. St. Rep. 337, 17 N. E. 37; Sublett v. Hodges, 88 Ala. 491, 7 So. 296; Bray v. Creekmore, 109 N. C. 49, 13 S. E. 723; Hines v. Rutherford, 67 Ga. 606; Tighe v. Pope, 16 Hun, 180.

The allegations in the petition that a right of action accrued under the Federal employers' liability act, and that it accrued under the statute of Kansas, were conclusions of the pleader and were surplusage. Under the system of pleading in Texas, the facts, and not the conclusions, must be set out in the petition.

Connor v. Hawkins, 64 Tex. 545; State v. Goodnight, 70 Tex. 688, 11 S. W. 119; Tryon v. Butler, 9 Tex. 553.

The defendant in error was authorized in its original petition to present as many causes of action as it deemed necessary to meet the facts that might be introduced on the trial, as the suit was based only upon one transaction.

Dobbin v. Bryan, 5 Tex. 276; Mateer v. Cockrill, 18 Tex. Civ. App. 391, 45 S. W. 751; Craddock v. Goodwin, 54 Tex. 582.

The conclusions of the pleader as to what law prevailed might be disregarded as surplusage under the Texas practice without affecting the substance of the pleading.

Nash v. George, 6 Tex. 234; Turner v. Brooks, 6 Tex. 205; Maddox v. Craig, 80 Tex. 600, 16 S. W. 328; Kottwitz v. Bagby, 16 Tex. 656; Burns v. Goff, 79 Tex. 236, 14 S. W. 1009.

There is nothing better established in Texas practice than that, unless denied under oath, the plaintiff is presumed to have the right to sue in the capacity in which he does sue.

Cheatham v. Riddle, 12 Tex. 112; Clifton v. Lilley, 12 Tex. 130; Trammell v. Swan, 25 Tex. 474; Bauman v. Chambers, 91 Tex. 108, 41 S. W. 471; Manning v. Hunt, 36 Tex. 118.

Mr. Justice Pitney delivered the opinion of the court:

The defendant in error, Sallie C. Wulf, in her individual capacity, commenced this action January 23, 1909, in the circuit court of the United States for the eastern district of Texas, to recover damages by reason of the death of her son, Fred S. Wulf, which occurred November 27, 1908, while he was in the employ of the defendant (now plaintiff in error) as a locomotive fireman, and in the performance of his duties as such upon a train bound *from[572 Parsons, in the state of Kansas to Osage, in the state of Oklahoma. The original petition set up diversity of citizenship, plaintiff being alleged to be a bona fide inhabitant, resident, and citizen of Texas, and the defendant a corporation organized under the laws of the state of Kansas. For cause of action it was averred that the decedent's death was the result of a bursting of the locomotive boiler, due to defects therein attributable to the negligence of the employer. It was further averred that "plaintiff is the mother of the said Fred S. Wulf, and is a feme sole, and the said Fred S. Wulf was an unmarried man, leaving no wife or children surviving. That his father died prior to the time that he died, and plaintiff is the sole heir, next of kin, and beneficiary of the estate of the said Fred S. Wulf, deceased. That there is no administration pending on the said estate of the said Fred S. Wulf within this state (Texas) or elsewhere, and that none is necessary. That said decedent was a resident citizen of the state of Texas when he was killed, but was temporarily working in Kansas. That by virtue of the laws of the state of Kansas, where the said Fred S. Wulf was killed, a right of action is provided by statute for injuries resulting in death." The plaintiff demanded $40,000 damages. On May 19, 1909, defendant filed its original answer, consisting of a general demurrer, a general denial of the allegations of the petition, and averments that the injuries complained of were proximately caused and contributed to by deceased's own negligence and want of ordinary care and by that of his fellow servants. No action appears to have been taken upon this pleading; but on January 6, 1911, defendant filed its first amended answer, consisting of a general demurrer; a special demurrer to the claim of $40,000 damages, on the ground that under the laws of Kansas the damages were limited to $10,000; and averments that at the time of the injury and death of deceased, defendant was 573]engaged in interstate commerce, *and deceased was in its employ and was himself engaged in interstate commerce. and that the cause of action is not governed by the laws of Kansas, but arises out of the Federal employers' liability act of 1908 [35 Stat. at L. 65, chap. 149, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1322]. There were also a general denial of the allegations of the petition, and an averment of contributory negligence on the part of the deceased and of his fellow servants. Upon the same day (January 6, 1911), the plaintiff filed her first amended original petition, averring that she was the sole heir and next of kin of Fred S. Wulf, deceased; that at the time of the filing of the original petition there was no administration upon his estate and no necessity for any; that on January 4, 1911, she was duly appointed temporary administratrix of his estate by the county court of Grayson county, Texas, a court of competent jurisdiction, and qualified as such, with full power and authority to prosecute this suit as party plaintiff, and had made application to be appointed permanent administratrix. "That there now exists no necessity for an administration upon the estate of the said Fred S. Wulf, unless the same should be necessary for the sole purpose of prosecuting this suit as administratrix of said decedent for the benefit of herself as the surviving parent and next of kin of the said decedent; said plaintiff being the next of kin and sole beneficiary of whatever may be recovered in this suit. She therefore sues in her original capacity as such sole beneficiary and next of kin; but in the event it shall be determined that she is not entitled to recover in said capacity, then she asks that she be allowed to recover as administratrix for her benefit, as aforesaid. Therefore she sues both in her individual capacity and as administratrix, as aforesaid." The averment of diversity of citizenship was repeated, as were those averments of the original petition that set forth the cause of action. The amended petition further averred "that by virtue of both the laws of the state of Kansas, where the said Fred S. Wulf *was killed, and the acts of[574 Congress, a right of action is provided for injuries resulting in death in the manner and form and in the occupation that deceased was engaged in at the time of his death." This amendment was allowed by the court, and an order was made permitting the plaintiff to prosecute as the personal representative of the deceased for her individual benefit, as well as in her individual capacity. Thereafter the defendant filed its second amended answer, by which it excepted to that portion of the amended petition making Sallie C. Wulf a party plaintiff, because, "under the act of Congress known as the employers' liability act, she is not a proper party to said suit;" excepted to that portion making her a party as temporary administratrix, "because she was not made a party as such administratrix at the time of the filing of the original petition;" and excepted to that portion seeking to make her a party as administratrix, because the amendment making her a party in that capacity was made more than two years from the time the alleged cause of action accrued; and for that the cause of action, if any, was barred by the limitation of two years. There was also a general denial of the allegations of fact in plaintiff's petition contained, "except that this defendant says that, at the time the said deceased was killed, he was engaged in interstate commerce."

The exceptions being overruled, a trial was had upon the issues of fact, and resulted in a verdict and judgment in favor of the plaintiff (now defendant in error) for $7,000, which was affirmed by the circuit court of appeals for the fifth circuit (113 C. C. A. 665, 192 Fed. 919), and the case comes here by writ of error.

The judgment of the circuit court being founded upon the Federal employers' liability act, so that the jurisdiction of that court was not dependent entirely upon the diversity of citizenship of the parties, the 575]judgment of the *circuit court of appeals was not made final by § 6 of the Evarts act, and thus (the matter in controversy exceeding $1,000) there is a right to a writ of error from this court. Act of March 3, 1891, 26 Stat. at L. 828, chap. 517, § 6, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 549; Judicial Code of March 3, 1911, 36 Stat. at L. chap. 231, pp. 1133, 1157, §§ 128, 241, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, pp. 193, 229.

The argument for reversal rests wholly upon the mode of procedure followed in the circuit court. It is contended that the plaintiff's original petition failed to state a cause of action, because she sued in her individual capacity, and based her right of recovery upon the Kansas statute, whereas her action could legally rest only upon the Federal employers' liability act of 1908, which requires the action to be brought in the name of the personal representative of the deceased; that the plaintiff's amended petition, in which for the first time she set up a right to sue as administratrix, alleged an entirely new and distinct cause of action, and that such an amendment could not lawfully be allowed so as to relate back to the commencement of the action, inasmuch as the plaintiff's cause of action was barred by the limitation of two years before she undertook to sue as administratrix.

It seems to us, however, that, aside from the capacity in which the plaintiff assumed to bring her action, there is no substantial difference between the original and amended petitions. In the former, as in the latter, it was sufficiently averred that the deceased came to his death through injuries suffered while he was employed by the defendant railroad company in interstate commerce; that his death resulted from the negligence of the company and by reason of defects in one of its locomotive engines, due to its negligence; and that since the deceased died unmarried and childless, the plaintiff, as his sole surviving parent, was the sole beneficiary of the action. It is true the original petition asserted a right of action under the laws of Kansas, without making reference to the act of *Congress. But[576 the court was presumed to be cognizant of the enactment of the employers' liability act, and to know that, with respect to the responsibility of interstate carriers by railroad to their employees injured in such commerce after its enactment, it had the effect of superseding state laws upon the subject. Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 53, 56 L. ed. 327, 347, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169. Therefore the pleader was not required to refer to the Federal act, and the reference actually made to the Kansas statute no more vitiated the pleading than a reference to any other repealed statute would have done.

It is true that under the Federal statute the plaintiff could not, although sole beneficiary, maintain the action except as personal representative. So it was held in American R. Co. v. Birch, 224 U. S. 547, 56 L. ed. 879, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603. But in that case there was no offer to amend by joining or substituting the personal representative, and this court, while reversing the judgment, did so without prejudice to such rights as the personal representatives might have. The decision left untouched the question of the propriety of such an amendment as was applied for and allowed in the case before us,—an amendment that, without in any way modifying or enlarging the facts upon which the action was based, in effect merely indicated the capacity in which the plaintiff was to prosecute the action. The amendment was clearly within § 954, Rev. Stat. U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 696.

Nor do we think it was equivalent to the commencement of a new action, so as to render it subject to the two years' limitation prescribed by § 6 of the employers' liability act. The change was in form rather than in substance (Stewart v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. 168 U. S. 445, 42 L. ed. 537, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 105). It introduced no new or different cause of action, nor did it set up any different state of facts as the ground of action, and therefore it related back to the beginning of the suit. Texas & P. R. Co. v. Cox, 145 U. S. 593, 603, 36 L. ed. 829, 832, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 905; Atlantic & P. R. Co. v. Laird, 164 *U. S.[577 393, 395, 41 L. ed. 485, 486, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 120. See also McDonald v. Nebraska, 41 C. C. A. 278, 101 Fed. 171, 177, 178; Putillo v. Allen-West Commission Co. 65 C. C. A. 508, 131 Fed. 680; Reardon v. Balaklala Consol. Copper Co. 193 Fed. 189. Reliance is placed by plaintiff in error upon Union P. R. Co. v. Wyler, 158 U. S. 285, 39 L. ed. 983, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 877. There the action was commenced in a state court of Missouri and afterwards removed to the United States circuit court. The original petition was based upon the common law of master and servant, and set up an injury to the plaintiff occurring in the state of Kansas while he was in the employ of the defendant, averring that the injury was due to the negligence of the defendant in employing and retaining in its employ as fellow servant of the plaintiff one Kline, an incompetent person, with knowledge of his incompetency; afterwards plaintiff filed an amended petition, eliminating the charge of incompetency on the part of Kline, and the averment of defendant's knowledge of such incompetency, and resting the cause of action exclusively upon the negligence of Kline as a fellow servant of plaintiff, averring that the employer was liable to the plaintiff for the injury suffered by him through such negligence because a right of action was given in such case by the law of Kansas, where the accident occurred. This court held that the amendment introduced a substantially new cause of action, to which the bar of the statute of limitations applied. But in that case, as is made plain in the opinion delivered by Mr. Justice White (now Chief Justice), the amended petition set up not only a different state of facts, but a different rule of law as the ground of the action; the original petition proceeding exclusively on the common-law rule which held a master liable who, with knowledge, employs or retains an incompetent servant, and making no reference to the Kansas statute, nor averring negligence on the part of the fellow servant, excepting so far as this might be inferred from the averment of his incompetency; while 578] the amendment *relied upon the fellow servant's mere negligence, together with a statute of Kansas which made the master responsible for the consequences of the negligence of a fellow servant. The action having been commenced in a Missouri court which would not take notice of the Kansas statute unless it were pleaded (Babcock v. Babcock, 46 Mo. 243), this court held that the rule that the Federal courts take judicial notice of the laws of the several states did not apply. Since, in the present case, the Federal statute did not need to be pleaded, and the amended petition set up no new facts as the ground of action, the decision in the Wyler Case is not controlling.

Judgment affirmed.

Mr. Justice Lurton entertains doubts as to whether the two years' limitation does not apply.

MATHIAS SCHMIDINGER, Plff. in Err.,
v.
CITY OF CHICAGO, Illinois.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 578–590.)

Error to state court — scope of review — construction of municipal ordinance.

1. The construction given by the highest state court to a municipal ordinance prescribing standard sizes of loaves of bread, and prohibiting the sale of other sizes, as not intended to limit the weight of a loaf to a pound, or the fractional part or multiple of a pound, but only to prevent the sale of loaves of bread which are short in weight, is binding on the Federal Supreme Court when determining, on writ of error to a state court, the validity of the ordinance under the due process of law clause of the Federal Constitution.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2124–2151, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — police power — due process of law — regulating size of loaves of bread.

2. Fixing by municipal ordinance the weight of the standard loaf of bread to be sold in the city of Chicago at one pound, and prohibiting the making or selling of loaves which are not up to the weight of the standard loaf, or of a specified fractional part or multiple of such loaf, though it may produce some inconvenience, is not such an unreasonable and arbitrary exercise of the police power as to render the ordinance void under U. S. Const. 14th Amend., prohibiting the taking of property without due process of law.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 846–853, 895–903, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Constitutional law — freedom to contract — regulating size of loaves of bread.

3. The existence of a considerable demand in the city of Chicago for loaves of bread of sizes other than those fixed by an ordinance of that city prohibiting the sale of other than the standard sizes does not render the ordinance invalid as interfering with the freedom of contract protected by U. S. Const. 14th Amend., against infringement without due process of law.

[For other cases, see Constitutional Law, 591–604, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 115.]

---

Note.—On what questions the Federal Supreme Court will consider when reviewing the judgments of state courts—see note to Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L.R.A. 571.

On writs of error to state courts in cases involving questions of due process of law—see note to Burt v. Smith, 51 L. ed. U. S. 121.

On the validity of police regulations as to branding or labeling articles of commerce—see note to Alcorn Cotton Oil Co. v. State, 40 L.R.A.(N.S.) 875.

Argued and submitted December 20, 1912.
Decided January 13, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois to review a judgment which, on a second appeal, affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Cook County in that state, enforcing a municipal ordinance fixing standard sizes for loaves of bread. Affirmed.

See same case below, first appeal, 243 Ill. 167, 44 L.R.A.(N.S.) 632, 90 N. E. 369, 17 Ann. Cas. 614; on second appeal, 245 Ill. 317, 92 N. E. 244.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Harry Rubens argued the cause, and, with Mr. Benjamin F. Ninde, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The prohibition of the making of loaf bread in weights such as were in large demand at the time of the passage of the ordinance in question in the ordinary and customary course of business, and in weights which are necessary to satisfy reasonable and legitimate business requirements, although the loaves are labeled in accordance with their exact weight, and therefore no fraud is attempted, unreasonably, arbitrarily, and unnecessarily interferes with the legitimate pursuit of an ordinary, private, and useful business and with the right of contracting in relation thereto. It thus deprives the plaintiff in error of liberty and property without due process of law, and violates the 14th Amendment of the Constitution of the United States.

Buffalo v. Collins Baking Co. 39 App. Div. 432, 57 N. Y. Supp. 347; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 64, 49 L. ed. 937, 944, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133.

In whatever language a law may be framed, its purpose must be determined by its natural and reasonable effect; and the presumption that it was enacted in good faith cannot control the determination of the question whether it is or is not repugnant to the Constitution of the United States. The police power cannot be put forward as an excuse for oppressive and unjust legislation.

Minnesota v. Barber, 136 U. S. 313, 34 L. ed. 455, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 185, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 862; Brimmer v. Rebman, 138 U. S. 78, 34 L. ed. 862, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 485, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 213; Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 64, 49 L. ed. 937, 944, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133; Yick Wo v. Hopkins, 118 U. S. 356, 30 L. ed. 220, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1064.

Messrs. Joseph F. Grossman and William H. Sexton submitted the cause for defendant in error:

The power of the city of Chicago to prescribe the weight of bread in the loaf is expressly conferred by statute, and the decision of the supreme court of the state of Illinois in the case at bar precludes this court from questioning the right to exercise that power by the city of Chicago.

Chicago v. Schmidinger, 243 Ill. 171, 44 L.R.A.(N.S.) 632, 90 N. E. 369, 17 Ann. Cas. 614; Fischer v. St. Louis, 194 U. S. 362, 48 L. ed. 1018, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 673; Peoples Gaslight & Coke Co v. Chicago, 194 U. S. 1, 48 L. ed. 851, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 520, affirming 114 Fed. 388; Mobile, J. & K. C. R. Co. v. Mississippi, 210 U. S. 187, 52 L. ed. 1016, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 650.

The regulation of the weight of bread in the loaf has been recognized by all courts as a legitimate exercise of the police power of the state.

People v. Wagner, 86 Mich. 594, 13 L.R.A. 286, 24 Am. St. Rep. 141, 49 N. W. 609; Paige v. Fazackerly, 36 Barb. 392; Com. v. McArthur, 152 Mass. 522, 25 N. E. 836; Chicago v. Schmidinger, 243 Ill. 167, 44 L.R.A.(N.S.) 632, 90 N. E. 369, 17 Ann. Cas. 614; State v. McCool, 83 Kan. 428, 111 Pac. 477; Re Nasmith, 2 Ont. Rep. 192; Guillotte v. New Orleans, 12 La. Ann. 432; Mobile v. Yuille, 3 Ala. 137, 36 Am. Dec. 441.

Laws providing for the prevention and detection of imposition and fraud are generally held to be free from constitutional objection, on the ground that they are a proper exercise of the police power of the state.

Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 338, 52 L. ed. 236, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Lemieux v. Young, 211 U. S. 489, 53 L. ed. 295, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174; Plumley v. Massachusetts, 155 U. S. 461, 39 L. ed. 223, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 590, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154; Capital City Dairy Co. v. Ohio, 183 U. S. 238, 46 L. ed. 171, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 120; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 32 L. ed. 253, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257; Chicago v. Bowman Dairy Co. 234 Ill. 294, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 684, 123 Am. St. Rep. 100, 84 N. E. 913, 14 Ann. Cas. 700; State, Waterbury, Prosecutor, v. Newton, 50 N. J. L. 534, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 63, 14 Atl. 604; People v. Arensberg, 105 N. Y. 123, 59 Am. Rep. 483, 11 N. E. 277; State v. Rogers, 95 Me. 94, 85 Am. St. Rep. 395, 49 Atl. 564; Com. v. Waite, 11 Allen, 264, 87 Am. Dec. 711; People v. Cipperly, 101 N. Y. 634, 4 N. E. 107, reversing 37 Hun, 319; State v. Campbell, 64 N. H. 402, 10 Am. St. Rep. 419

13 Atl. 585; State v. Smyth, 14 R. I. 100, 51 Am. Rep. 344; State v. Schlenker, 112 Iowa, 642, 51 L.R.A. 347, 84 Am. St. Rep. 360, 84 N. W. 698; State v. Crescent Creamery Co. 83 Minn. 284, 54 L.R.A. 466, 85 Am. St. Rep. 464, 86 N. W. 107; State v. Williams, 93 Minn. 155, 100 N. W. 641; State v. Holton, 148 Iowa, 724, 126 N. W. 1125; American Linseed Oil Co. v. Wheaton, 25 S. D. 60, 41 L.R.A.(N.S.) 149, 125 N. W. 127.

The ordinance is not so arbitrary and unreasonable in its terms as to amount to a confiscation of the property rights of plaintiff in error, or to a deprivation of his freedom of contract in the sale of bread, in violation of the 14th Amendment.

(a) Both property and liberty are held on such reasonable conditions as may be imposed by the governing power of the state in the exercise of its police powers, and no person has such absolute and unqualified right of control over his liberty or property that it cannot be curtailed by the sovereign power of the state for the general welfare of the people.

Lochner v. New York, 198 U. S. 45, 53, 49 L. ed. 937, 940, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539, 3 Ann. Cas. 1133; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 409, 43 L. ed. 746, 748, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 391, 392, 42 L. ed. 780, 790, 791, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 136, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499.

(b) A very wide discretion must be given to the legislative department of government in determining the manner and extent of the exercise of the police powers of the state. Exact wisdom and nice adaptation of remedies are not required by the 14th Amendment, nor the crudeness, nor the impolicy, nor even the injustice of state laws redressed by it.

Heath & M. Mfg. Co. v. Worst, 207 U. S. 338, 354, 355, 52 L. ed. 236, 243, 244, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 114; Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 25, 31, 49 L. ed. 643, 649, 651, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 Ann. Cas. 765; Otis v. Parker, 187 U. S. 606, 608, 609, 47 L. ed. 323, 327, 328, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 168; Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 188, 44 L. ed. 725, 728, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633; Lawton v. Steele, 152 U. S. 133, 136, 38 L. ed. 385, 388, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 499; Crowley v. Christensen, 137 U. S. 86, 91, 92, 34 L. ed. 620, 623, 624, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13; Powell v. Pennsylvania, 127 U. S. 678, 686, 32 L. ed. 253, 257, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 992, 1257.

(c) The impossibility of baking a loaf of bread so that it will be of the weight prescribed in the ordinance at all times after it leaves the oven does not render it unreasonable, in view of the construction of the ordinance by the supreme court of the state of Illinois, that it prohibits the sale of loaves of bread which are short in weight only.

In cases involving police power, the interpretation placed by the highest court of the state upon its statutes and the ordinances of its municipalities is conclusive on the Federal court.

Smiley v. Kansas, 196 U. S. 447, 455, 49 L. ed. 546, 550, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 289; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Paul, 173 U. S. 404, 408, 43 L. ed. 746, 748, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 419; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 580, 586, 43 L. ed. 1093, 1096, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Tullis v. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. 175 U. S. 348, 353, 44 L. ed. 192, 195, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136.

The ordinance does not by its terms nor in effect regulate the price of bread.

Chicago v. Schmidinger, 243 Ill. 173, 44 L.R.A.(N.S.) 632, 90 N. E. 369, 17 Ann. Cas. 614.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

The city of Chicago instituted suit against the plaintiff in error in the circuit court of Cook county, Illinois, to recover penalties for certain violations of an ordinance of that city. The violations alleged in the declaration which are material here consisted in the making and selling of loaves of bread differing in weight from the weights prescribed by the ordinance. Upon the first trial in the circuit *court[584 judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff in error, then defendant. The judgment was reversed upon appeal to the supreme court of Illinois, and the case remanded to the circuit court (243 Ill. 167, 44 L.R.A.(N.S.) 632, 90 N. E. 369, 17 Ann. Cas. 614). That court, following the decision of the supreme court of Illinois, rendered judgment for certain penalties against the plaintiff in error. The case was again appealed to the supreme court of Illinois, and the judgment affirmed in a per curiam opinion, following 243 Ill. supra (245 Ill. 317, 92 N. E. 244). The case was then brought here on writ of error.

The ordinance in question, passed January 6, 1908, undertakes to regulate the sale of bread in the loaf within the city of Chicago, and the parts pertinent to the present case provide:

"Section 2. Every loaf of bread made or procured for the purpose of sale, sold, offered or exposed for sale, in the city of Chicago, shall weigh a pound avoirdupois (except as hereinafter provided), and such loaf shall be considered to be the standard loaf of the city of Chicago. Bread may also be made or procured for the purpose of sale, sold, offered or exposed for sale, in half, three-quarter, double, triple, quadruple, quintuple, or sextuple loaves, and in no other way. Every loaf of bread made or procured for the purpose of sale, sold, offered or exposed for sale, in the city, shall have affixed thereon in a conspicuous place a label at least 1 inch square, or, if round, at least 1 inch in diameter, upon which label there shall be printed in plain type . . . the weight of the loaf in pound, pounds, or fraction of a pound avoirdupois, whether the loaf be a standard loaf or not. The business name and address of the maker, baker, or manufacturer of the loaf shall also be printed plainly on each label.

"Section 3 Every maker, baker, or manufacturer of bread, every proprietor of a bakery or bakeshop, and every seller of bread in the city of Chicago, shall keep 585]scales and *weights, suitable for the weighing of bread, in a conspicuous place in his bakery, bakeshop, or store, and shall, whenever requested by the buyer, and in the buyer's presence, weigh the loaf or loaves of bread sold or offered for sale.

"Section 4. If any person, firm, or corporation shall make or procure for the purpose of sale, sell, offer or expose for sale, within the city of Chicago . . . any bread the loaf or loaves of which are not standard, half, three-quarter, double, triple, quadruple, quintuple, or sextuple loaves, as defined in § 2 of this ordinance, . . . or shall make or procure for the purpose of sale, sell, offer or expose for sale, within the city of Chicago, any standard loaf or loaves of bread which do not weigh 1 pound each, or any bread the loaf or loaves of which do not weigh as much as the weight marked thereon, or any bread the loaf or loaves of which do not have affixed thereon the label marked as hereinbefore provided, contrary to the provisions of this ordinance, such person, firm, or corporation shall be fined not less than $10 nor more than $100 for each offense.

"Section 5. The provisions of this ordinance . . . shall not apply to . . . what is commonly known as 'stale bread,' sold as such, provided the seller shall, at the time of sale, expressly state to the buyer that the bread so sold is stale bread."

The objections of a Federal character arise from alleged violations of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The plaintiff in error avers that the due process clause of that Amendment is violated in that the ordinance is an unreasonable and arbitrary exercise of the police power, and constitutes an unlawful interference with the freedom of contract included in the protection secured to the individual under that Amendment. In the supreme court of Illinois error was also assigned because of the violation of the clause of the 14th *Amendment guar-[586 antying equal protection of the laws. That insistence does not appear to be made here, and the right of the legislature or municipal corporation, under legislative authority, to regulate one trade, and not another, is too well settled to require further consideration.

At the hearing the plaintiff in error introduced testimony which tended to establish the following facts: There are between 800 and 1,000 bakers in the city of Chicago, together making about 50 per cent of the bread consumed in that city. Bread is sold in Chicago in large quantities at certain prices per loaf, 95 per cent of the bread made by the bakers, outside of the restaurant business, consisting of loaves sold for 5 cents or multiples thereof, and 85 per cent of such bread being sold for 5 cents a loaf. The 5-cent loaf weighs about 14 ounces when baked, and the weight of the bread in the loaf varies and is adjusted in accordance with the fluctuations in the price of raw material, labor, and other elements of expense of production, and the different qualities of bread, and as a result of competition. There is a considerable demand in Chicago, especially in the restaurant trade, for bread in weights differing from those fixed by the ordinance. In some parts of the city bread weighing 7 pounds is commonly sold. The moisture in the bread after it leaves the oven causes very appreciable shrinkage in weight, the extent of which depends upon the quality and size of the loaf, the atmospheric condition, and the dryness and temperature of the place where kept. It appears that, in order to insure bread of the standard weight of 16 ounces, it is necessary to scale the dough before baking at about 20 ounces.

The record also shows that although the price of bread sold by the loaf in Chicago has generally been 5 cents or some multiple thereof, loaves of bread weighing approximately 1 pound have been sold for 5, 6, and 7 cents at different times.

*The right of state legislatures or[587 municipalities acting under state authority to regulate trades and callings in the exercise of the police power is too well settled to require any extended discussion. In Gundling v. Chicago, 177 U. S. 183, 44 L. ed. 725, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 633, the doctrine was stated by this court as follows:

"Regulations respecting the pursuit of a lawful trade or business are of very frequent occurrence in the various cities of the country, and what such regulations shall be, and to what particular trade, business, or occupation they shall apply, are questions for the state to determine, and their determination comes within the proper exercise of the police power by the state, and unless the regulations are so utterly unreasonable and extravagant in their nature and purpose that the property and personal rights of the citizen are unnecessarily, and in a manner wholly arbitrary, interfered with or destroyed without due process of law, they do not extend beyond the power of the state to pass, and they form no subject for Federal interference."

See also, in this connection, Holden v. Hardy, 169 U. S. 366, 42 L. ed. 780, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206, and other cases in this court, reviewed and commented upon in those cases.

The making and selling of bread, particularly in a large city, where thousands of people depend upon their supply of this necessary of life by purchase from bakers, is obviously one of the trades and callings which may be the subject of police regulation. This general proposition is conceded by counsel for plaintiff in error, but it is contended that the limitation of the right to sell bread which this ordinance undertakes to make in fixing a standard loaf of 16 ounces and other half, three-quarter, double, triple, quadruple, quintuple, or sextuple loaves, is such an unreasonable and arbitrary exercise of legislative power as to render it unconstitutional and void. This court has frequently affirmed that the local authorities intrusted with the regulation of such matters, and not the courts, 588]are *primarily the judges of the necessities of local situations calling for such legislation, and the courts may only interfere with laws or ordinances passed in pursuance of the police power where they are so arbitrary as to be palpably and unmistakably in excess of any reasonable exercise of the authority conferred. Jacobson v. Massachusetts, 197 U. S. 11, 49 L. ed. 643, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358, 3 Ann. Cas. 765; Mugler v. Kansas, 123 U. S. 623, 31 L. ed. 205, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 273; Minnesota v. Barber, 136 U. S. 313, 320, 34 L. ed. 455, 458, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 185, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 862; Atkin v. Kansas, 191 U. S. 207, 223, 48 L. ed. 148, 158, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 539, 53 L. ed. 315, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206.

Furthermore, laws and ordinances of the character of the one here under consideration, and tending to prevent frauds, and requiring honest weights and measures in the sale of articles of general consumption, have long been considered lawful exertions of the police power. McLean v. Arkansas, 211 U. S. 560, 53 L. ed. 320, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Freund, Pol. Power, §§ 274, 275. Laws prescribing standard sizes of loaves of bread, and prohibiting, with minor exceptions, the sale of other sizes, have been sustained in the courts of Massachusetts and Michigan. Com. v. McArthur, 152 Mass. 522, 25 N. E. 836; People v. Wagner, 86 Mich. 594, 13 L.R.A. 286, 24 Am. St. Rep. 141, 49 N. W. 609.

It is contended, however, that there are special circumstances in this case that take it out of this rule. The record shows, as we have already said, that the loaf of bread most largely sold in Chicago costs 5 cents, and when it reaches the consumer is generally 14 ounces in weight; and it is urged that to make a loaf of the standard size of 1 pound, as required by the ordinance, would be extremely inconvenient at least, owing to changes and evaporation after the loaf is baked, and that to insure a loaf of full standard size it would be necessary to use 20 ounces of dough. But inconveniences of this kind do not vitiate the exercise of legislative power. The local legislature is presumed to know what will be of the most benefit to the whole body of citizens. Evidently, the council of the city of Chicago has acted with the belief that a full pound loaf, with the variations provided, would *furnish the best standard. It has[589 not fixed the price at which bread may be sold. It has only prescribed that the standard weight must be found in the loaves of the sizes authorized. To the argument that to make exactly 1 pound loaves is extremely difficult, if not impracticable, the supreme court of Illinois has answered, and this construction is binding upon us, that the ordinance is not intended to limit the weight of a loaf to a pound or the fractional part or multiple of a pound, but that the ordinance was passed with a view only to prevent the sale of loaves of bread which are short in weight. Thousands of transactions in bread in the city of Chicago are with people who buy in small quantities, perhaps a loaf at a time, and, exercising the judgment which the law imposed in it, the council has passed an ordinance to require such people to be sold loaves of bread of full weight. We cannot say that the fixing of these standards in the exercise of the legislative discretion of the council is such an unreasonable and arbitrary exercise of the police power as to bring the case within the rare class in which this court may declare such legislation void because of the provisions of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, securing due process of law from deprivation by state enactments.

It is further urged that this ordinance interferes with the freedom of contract guaranteed by the 14th Amendment, for it is said that there is a demand for loaves of bread of sizes other than those fixed in the ordinance, which demand exists among many people and also among contractors whose business requires special sizes to be made for them. This court has had frequent occasion to declare that there is no absolute freedom of contract. The exercise of the police power fixing weights and measures and standard sizes must necessarily limit the freedom of contract which would otherwise exist. Such limitations are constantly imposed upon the right to 590 ]contract freely, *because of restrictions upon that right deemed necessary in the interest of the general welfare. So long as such action has a reasonable relation to the exercise of the power belonging to the local legislative body, and is not so arbitrary or capricious as to be a deprivation of due process of law, freedom of contract is not interfered with in a constitutional sense. See, in this connection, Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. McGuire, 219 U. S. 549, 55 L. ed. 328, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 259, and the previous cases in this court reviewed in the course of the opinion in that case.

We are unable to find that the decision of the supreme court of Illinois, affirming the judgment against the plaintiff in error, deprived him of the constitutional rights secured by the 14th Amendment to the Federal Constitution.

Judgment affirmed.

---

EL PASO & SOUTHWESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
EICHEL & WEIKEL, a Firm Composed of William Eichel and Adam Weikel.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 590–598.)

Error to state court — Federal question — how raised.

1. A Federal right, privilege, or immunity was not "specially set up or claimed" within the meaning of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 709 (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 575), governing writs of error from the Federal Supreme Court to a state court, by the repeated insistence, in an action for a breach of contract, that the rights of the parties should be determined according to the law of the territory of New Mexico, where the contract was made and was to be performed, that such law was to be ascertained from the reported decisions of the Federal Supreme Court, and that under those decisions certain clauses that gave finality to the decision of the defendant's engineer were valid and binding, and that plaintiff's action was foreclosed thereby, where it was not suggested that in so insisting defendant was asserting or relying upon any right, privilege, or immunity derived from the Federal Constitution or laws, and the state courts do not appear to have passed upon any such question.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 1168–1248, 2278–2297, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — Federal question — where raised.

2. The assertion of Federal rights in an unsuccessful application to the highest court of a state for a writ of error directed to an intermediate appellate court raises no question which will sustain a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the intermediate state court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 1249–1318, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 252.]

Argued December 3, 1912. Decided January 13, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Fourth Supreme Judicial District of the State of Texas to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of El Paso County in that state in favor of plaintiff in an action for a breach of contract. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

See same case below, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 130 S. W. 922.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Aldis B. Browne argued the cause, and, with Mr. W. C. Keegin, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The courts below cannot be charged with failure to apprehend the meaning of defendant's contention that the Federal law and rule distinctly applicable in the territory of New Mexico could not be set up

---

NOTE.—On the general subject of writs of error from the United States Supreme Court to state courts—see notes to Martin v. Hunter, 4 L. ed. U. S. 97; Hamblin v. Western Land Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 267; Re Buchanan, 39 L. ed. U. S. 884, and Kipley v. Illinois, 42 L. ed. U. S. 998.

On what adjudications of state courts can be brought up for review in the Supreme Court of the United States by writ of error to those courts—see note to Apex Transp. Co. v. Garbade, 62 L.R.A. 513.

On how and when questions must be raised and decided in a state court in order to make a case for a writ of error from the Supreme Court of the United States—see note to Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. McGrew, 63 L.R.A. 33.

As to when Federal question is raised in time to sustain the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court over state courts—see note to Chicago, I. & L. R. Co. v. McGuire, 49 L. ed. U. S. 414.

without thereby invoking the protection of the Federal Constitution. The right was so claimed "by clear and necessary intendment," and was as clearly ignored. It was hence denied.

Murray v. Charleston, 96 U. S. 432, 441, 442, 24 L. ed. 760, 761, 762; Green Bay & M. Canal Co. v. Patten Paper Co. 172 U. S. 58, 67, 68, 43 L. ed. 364, 368, 369, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 97; Chicago L. Ins. Co. v. Needles, 113 U. S. 574, 579, 28 L. ed. 1084, 1086, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 681; Chapman v. Goodnow, (Chapman v. Crane) 123 U. S. 540, 548, 31 L. ed. 235, 238, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 211; Sayward v. Denny, 158 U. S. 180, 184, 39 L. ed. 941, 943, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 777; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Sowers, 213 U. S. 55, 53 L. ed. 695, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 397; Lycoming F. Ins. Co. v. Wright, 60 Vt. 515, 12 Atl. 103; State v. Dyer, 67 Vt. 690, 32 Atl. 814, 10 Am. Crim. Rep. 227.

Messrs. Aldis B. Browne, Alexander Britton, and Evans Browne also filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Philip W. Frey argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Waters Davis, James M. Goggin, and Richard F. Burges, filed a brief for defendants in error:

That the decision of a state court of last resort places a different construction upon a contract than that placed upon a similar contract by the supreme court of the state where the contract was made and to be executed does not present a Federal question as a denial of full faith and credit to the laws of such other state.

Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Hughes, 191 U. S. 477, 48 L. ed. 268, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 132; Johnson v. New York L. Ins. Co. 187 U. S. 491, 47 L. ed. 273, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 194.

It is clearly apparent from the record that there is no question in this case involving a decision against the validity of an authority exercised under the United States, it being nowhere shown that any authority exercised by the United States or by any officer thereof was set up or in any way involved in the decision of the case, or such authority in any way called into question.

Telluride Power Transmission Co. v. Rio Grande Western R. Co. 175 U. S. 645, 44 L. ed. 305, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 245; Millingar v. Hartupee, 6 Wall. 258, 18 L. ed. 829.

Decisions of the state courts in respect to matters of general law cannot be reviewed by the Supreme Court of the United States on the theory that the law of the land is violated, because the state court's conclusions are not absolutely free from error.

Sayward v. Denny, 158 U. S. 180, 39 L. ed. 941, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 777.

The question of the true construction to be placed upon the contract involved in this suit depended wholly upon general rules of law, and in no degree upon the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States, and a disregard by the courts of the state of Texas of the opinions of the Supreme Court of the United States rendered in other, though similar, cases, would not give the Supreme Court of the United States jurisdiction to review the judgment of the state court.

Giles v. Little, 134 U. S. 650, 33 L. ed. 1063, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 623; Winona & St. P. R. Co. v. Plainview, 143 U. S. 371, 36 L. ed. 191, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 530; DeSaussure v. Gaillard, 127 U. S. 216, 32 L. ed. 125, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1053.

The Supreme Court of the United States cannot entertain jurisdiction of a case from a state court because the judgment of that court impairs or fails to give effect to a contract. The judgment must give effect to some state statute or state Constitution, which impairs the obligation of contract.

Knox v. Exchange Bank, 12 Wall. 379, 20 L. ed. 414; Murdock v. Memphis, 20 Wall. 590, 22 L. ed. 429; McManus v. O'Sullivan, 91 U. S. 578, 23 L. ed. 390; Bolling v. Lersner, 91 U. S. 594, 23 L. ed. 366; Brown v. Atwell, 92 U. S. 329, 23 L. ed. 512; New York L. Ins. Co. v. Hendren, 92 U. S. 286, 23 L. ed. 709; Crossley v. New Orleans, 108 U. S. 105, 27 L. ed. 667.

The court below did not refuse to give full faith and credit to the laws of New Mexico or to the decisions of the United States Supreme Court, offered in evidence.

Johnson v. New York L. Ins. Co. 187 U. S. 491, 47 L. ed. 273, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 194; Banholzer v. New York L. Ins. Co. 178 U. S. 402, 44 L. ed. 1124, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 972.

In order that the Supreme Court can take jurisdiction because of a Federal question, the Federal question must necessarily be involved in the decision so that the state court could not have given the judgment or decree which it passed without deciding it.

Crowell v. Randell, 10 Pet. 391, 9 L. ed. 467; Armstrong v. Athens County, 16 Pet. 285, 10 L. ed. 966; Hoyt v. Sheldon (Hoyt v. Thompson) 1 Black, 518, 17 L. ed. 65; Grand Gulf R. & Bkg. Co. v. Marshall, 12 How. 165, 13 L. ed. 938; Snell v. Chicago, 152 U. S. 191, 38 L. ed. 406, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 489.

The Supreme Court of the United States has no jurisdiction to revise the views or principles held by the state court where there is nothing in the record to show that the court supposed that protection under the United States Constitution from its rulings was claimed, or that such ruling as made involved a decision against a right specially set up under that instrument.

Sayward v. Denny, 158 U. S. 180, 39 L. ed. 941, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 777; Hoyt v. Sheldon (Hoyt v. Thompson) 1 Black, 518, 17 L. ed. 65.

To give the Supreme Court of the United States jurisdiction under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 709, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 575, because of a denial by the state court of some right, title, privilege, or immunity claimed under the Constitution, or some law or treaty of the United States, it must appear on the record that such title, right, privilege, or immunity claimed under the Constitution or any treaty or statute of the United States was specially and distinctly set up at the proper time and in the proper way.

Spies v. Illinois, 123 U. S. 131, 31 L. ed. 80, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21, 22; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. McGuire, 196 U. S. 128, 49 L. ed. 413, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 200; Jacobi v. Alabama, 187 U. S. 133, 47 L. ed. 106, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 48; Layton v. Missouri, 187 U. S. 356, 47 L. ed. 214, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 137; Maxwell v. Newbold, 18 How. 515, 15 L. ed. 508.

Where the Federal question has been raised in neither the trial court, nor in the state court of appeals, when the latter court is called upon to pass upon the case on review and reverse or affirm the judgment of the trial court, but the question is raised for the first time in a petition for a writ of error to the supreme court of the state, it comes too late where the petition is denied by the supreme court without a written opinion.

Mutual L. Ins. Co. v. McGrew, 188 U. S. 291, 47 L. ed. 480, 63 L.R.A. 33, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 375; Huber v. Jennings-Haywood Oil Syndicate, 201 U. S. 641, 50 L. ed. 901, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 759; Herold v. Frank, 191 U. S. 558, 48 L. ed. 302, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 844; Hughes v. Kepley, 191 U. S. 557, 48 L. ed. 301, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 842; Wakefield v. Van Tassell, 192 U. S. 601, 48 L. ed. 583, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 850; Bank of Commerce v. Wiltsie, 189 U. S. 505, 47 L. ed. 921, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 851.

Under the laws and rules of practice governing the supreme court of the state of Texas, that court has no right to, and will not, consider errors assigned or rights set up for the first time in the application for a writ of error addressed to it, such errors so claimed not having been called to the attention of the court of civil appeals by appropriate assignments of error by a motion for a rehearing in the court of civil appeals, distinctly pointing out the error complained of, unless the error complained of is fundamental.

Southern P. Co. v. Haas, 85 Tex. 401, 20 S. W. 586.

Mr. Justice Pitney delivered the opinion of the court:

Writ of error sued out under § 709, Rev. Stat. (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 575), to review a judgment of the court of civil appeals, that being the highest court of the state in which a decision in the suit could be had, because the supreme court of Texas denied a petition for writ of error to review the judgment in that court.

The action was brought by defendants in error in the district court of El Paso county, Texas, to recover damages for certain alleged breaches of contract committed by the railroad company, now plaintiff in error. Damages were recovered accordingly, and the judgment awarding them was affirmed by the court of civil appeals. 130 S. W. 922. Whether the jurisdiction of this court is *properly invoked de-[592 pends upon whether any Federal right or immunity was duly set up or claimed by the plaintiff in error in the state court, and there overruled.

The controversy in suit arose out of a written contract between the parties, whereby the railroad company, owner of a railroad located in the then territory of New Mexico, for the purpose of procuring crushed stone ballast from a quarry owned by it and situate in the territory, agreed to provide a crushing and quarry plant capable of producing 1,000 cubic yards of ballast in ten hours, with the necessary appurtenances and equipment, including coal, water, and railroad cars, and the defendants in error agreed that with and from said plant they would quarry, crush, prepare, and deliver ballast at the rate of 750 cubic yards for each day's work, at prices fixed by the contract. The contract contained a clause providing that monthly payments to the extent of 90 per centum of the engineer's estimates should be made to the defendants in error during the progress of the work, with a final payment at the completion of the whole work contemplated, "upon the certificate of the company's engineer of maintenance of way that the contractor has acceptably discharged all of his obligations under this agreement, in conformity to the following specifications." Also the following, appended to the specifications: "The decision of the company's engineer of maintenance of way shall be final and conclusive in any dispute which may arise between the parties to this agreement relative to or touching the same; and each of the parties hereto waives any right of action, suit or suits, or other remedy in law or otherwise, by virtue of the covenants herein, so that the decision of said engineer of maintenance of way shall, in the nature of an award, be final and conclusive on the rights and claims of said parties."

The plaintiffs, in their petition, set up numerous grounds of action. So far as they [593] were submitted to the jury they *were summarized by the trial judge as follows: Plaintiffs alleged that the defendant failed to furnish a crusher plant of the capacity agreed to be furnished, that the plant actually furnished was of much less capacity, and that instead of furnishing coal and water of a quality reasonably sufficient and suitable for the purpose of operating the plant and quarry, the defendant furnished coal and water entirely unsuitable for that purpose; that by reason of the incapacity of the plant and the unsuitability of the coal and water, plaintiffs were prevented from producing the quantity of ballast required by the contract, and which they had a right to produce and would have produced but for the defendant's alleged defaults; that the cost of the ballast actually produced was greatly enhanced by reason of said defaults, and plaintiffs were finally compelled to shut down and abandon their contract; wherefore they sought to recover the retained 10 per cent, certain penalties that had been exacted under the terms of the contract for failure to produce ballast, and certain freight charges against them, deducted by defendant for goods transported over its own line; and also to recover for the enhanced cost of production of the ballast actually produced, and for the profits which they alleged they would have made under the contract if it had been fairly performed by the defendant.

The defense, so far as now pertinent, was, that the contract was made and intended to be performed in the then territory of New Mexico, and was made with reference to the laws in force therein, and that there was in that territory, at the time of the making of the contract and at the time of the suit, "a certain nonstatutory and unwritten law, to the effect that agreements such as those herein specially referred to (meaning the agreement respecting the arbitrament of the engineer) are valid and binding, and that neither of the parties to such contract and agreement has any right of action in a [594] cause based *thereon, but must rely for a decision of such rights and claims on the determination thereof by such engineer."

This defense was set up by exceptions to the plaintiff's petition, and by special pleas thereto. The cause proceeded to trial, whereupon the defendant introduced, for the purpose of showing the laws of New Mexico at the time the contract was made, certain decisions of this court, to wit: Kihlberg v. United States, 97 U. S. 398, 24 L. ed. 1106; Sweeney v. United States, 109 U. S. 618, 27 L. ed. 1053, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 344; Martinsburg & P. R. Co. v. March, 114 U. S. 549, 29 L. ed. 255, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1035; Chicago, S. F. & C. R. Co. v. Price, 138 U. S 185, 34 L. ed. 917, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 290; United States v. Robeson, 9 Pet. 319, 327, 9 L. ed. 142, 145; United States v. Gleason, 175 U. S. 588, 44 L. ed. 284, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 228; Mercantile Trust Co. v. Hensey, 205 U. S. 298, 51 L. ed. 811, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 535. At the conclusion of the evidence the defendant, among other special charges, requested the court to instruct the jury that the contract sued on provided that the decision of the company's engineer of maintenance of way should be final and conclusive in any dispute between the parties relative to the agreement, and that each of the parties thereby waived any right of action or other remedy at law, or otherwise, by virtue of the covenants of the agreement, and expressly agreed that the decision of the engineer should, in the nature of an award, be final and conclusive on the rights of the parties; that the contract was intended to be performed in the territory of New Mexico, and that under the laws of that territory the agreement referred to was a valid agreement, binding upon both parties; that under the laws of the territory and the provisions of the contract made in pursuance thereof, the matters and things in dispute in this action should have been submitted to the decision of the engineer; and because they had not been so submitted and acted upon by him, no judgment could be rendered against the defendant, arising out of the matters in dispute; and also, that if the jury believed from the evidence that the engineer had theretofore decided and determined that the plant *in question was of the capacity war- [595] ranted, and the coal and water were serviceable for the purpose for which they were intended, and that all allowances which plaintiffs could be entitled to by reason of delay on account of the lack of coal and water, or the bad character of coal and water, had been in fact allowed by the engineer, and the plaintiffs had been paid therefor by the defendant, then the plaintiffs would not be entitled to recover in this action by reason of the incapacity of the plant or the character and quality of the coal and water furnished, unless the jury should further believe that in making such decisions and awards the engineer acted in fraud of the plaintiff's rights, or in such ignorance thereof as to amount in law to a fraud.

The trial court refused to give these instructions, and, on the contrary, charged the jury that if the crusher plant installed by the defendant company did not have the stipulated maximum capacity, or if the water or coal was of a quality not reasonably suitable for the operation of the plant, and, if, by reason of either of these causes, the production of ballast by the plaintiffs was reduced beneath 750 cubic yards per day, and beneath that which the plaintiffs would otherwise have actually produced with reasonable care, management, and diligence, and if plaintiffs suffered loss and damage by reason thereof, then the defendant would be liable for such loss and damage as was the proximate result of its failure to furnish a crusher plant of the guaranteed capacity, or to furnish reasonably suitable coal or reasonably suitable water.

In the opinion of the court of civil appeals, the action of the trial court was sustained upon the following reasoning: "The question of the capacity of the crushing plant, and the quality and sufficiency of the coal and water to successfully operate the plant to the end it was furnished plaintiffs by defendant, were not by the contract submitted to the engineer for his decision. 596]These matters, *as we have seen, were conditions precedent to the contract, which it was incumbent upon the defendant to perform in order that plaintiffs might carry out their part of the contract; and if defendant failed to perform them, and such failure proximately caused default of plaintiffs for which the penalties were assessed by the engineer, such assessments were wrong, and the amount paid by plaintiffs, if not voluntarily [paid], are recoverable by them." And again: "It was not contemplated by the contract that defendant's engineer, as an arbiter, should determine the question whether a material provision in the contract was breached by either party, and assess the damages occasioned by such breach, nor were such matters submitted to or determined by such engineer. If they had been, neither party would have been bound by his award; for they were such as could only be determined by a court of competent jurisdiction. Therefore there was no error in the court's refusing special charges Nos. 43, 45 and 47 [being those to which reference has been made] nor do we think that either of said special charges suggested any law upon the subject to which they pertain, which required the court to prepare another charge thereon and submit it to the jury."

We have sufficiently indicated the general character of the controversy, the issues of fact and of law that were raised therein, and the disposition that was made of them. Whether this court has jurisdiction to review the resulting judgment depends, of course, upon whether, in the course of the proceedings, the plaintiff in error "specially set up or claimed" any "right, privilege, or immunity" under the Constitution or any statute of the United States, within the meaning of § 709, Rev. Stat.

It is contended that the decisions of this court that were introduced as evidence of the law of New Mexico in effect conferred upon the plaintiff in error the privilege and immunity of being protected against any action to recover *damages, except such[597 as the engineer had decided were due to defendants in error; and that the failure of the state court to give effect to those decisions, or to properly construe and apply the unwritten law of the territory, as established thereby, presents a Federal question as much as if an act of Congress had been disregarded.

But assuming (without, however, conceding) that the plaintiff in error was entitled to a "right, privilege, or immunity" in the premises, derived from the Federal Constitution or laws, the question remains whether such right, privilege, or immunity was "specially set up or claimed." An examination of the record discloses that while it was repeatedly insisted that the rights of the parties under the contract should be determined according to the law of the territory of New Mexico, that such law was to be ascertained from the reported decisions of this court, and that under those decisions the clauses that gave finality to the decision of the company's engineer were valid and binding, and that the plaintiff's action was foreclosed thereby, it was not suggested that in so insisting the plaintiff in error was asserting or relying upon any right, privilege, or immunity derived from the Constitution or laws of the United States.

Questions of the lex loci contractus and of the lex loci solutionis are questions of general law that frequently arise in actions respecting written agreements. Von Hoffman v. Quincy, 4 Wall. 535, 550, 18 L. ed. 403, 408; 9 Cyc, title, "Contracts," 664–674; 2 Parsons, Contr. 567, 582–585; Story, Confl. L. §§ 231, 232, 241, 242, 270, 272, 280, etc. To insist, in such a litigation, that the matter ought to be controlled by the law of the place where the contract was made and to be performed, rather than by the law of the forum, is no more than to insist that the controversy shall be determined according to the rules of law properly applicable thereto.

The points raised by plaintiff in error 598]that are now relied *upon as an assertion of Federal rights were brought to the attention of the trial court and of the court of civil appeals like any other of the multitude of questions that were raised in those courts; and, so far as appears, the decision in both courts proceeded not in disregard of any Federal right asserted or suggested, nor even in disregard of the decisions of this court or the authority of those decisions, as laying down the law of the territory of New Mexico, but rather upon the ground that, upon the proper interpretation of the contract, the clause that was cited as giving finality to the decision of the company's engineer was not applicable to the questions in controversy.

We therefore deem it clear that plaintiff in error did not lay the foundation for a review under § 709, Rev. Stat. either in the trial court or in the court of civil appeals.

After the denial by the latter court of a motion for rehearing, application was made to the supreme court of Texas for a writ of error, to the end that that court might review the judgment. In this application alleged Federal rights were for the first time asserted, it being assigned for error that the trial court and the court of civil appeals had "refused to give full faith and credit to the public acts and laws of the territory of New Mexico," etc., etc. The application was considered and refused, and a motion for a rehearing thereon was overruled. But since the court of civil appeals is the highest court of the state that rendered a judgment reviewable here (Stanley v. Schwalby, 162 U. S. 255, 269, 40 L. ed. 960, 965, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 754; Bacon v. Texas, 163 U. S. 207, 215, 41 L. ed. 132, 135, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1023), the assertion of Federal rights in an unsuccessful application to the supreme court of the state for a writ of error raises no question that is reviewable in this court.

Writ of error dismissed.

MEMORANDA

OF

CASES DISPOSED OF WITHOUT OPINIONS.

---

599]*KANSAS CITY, MISSOURI, Plaintiff in Error, v. STATE OF KANSAS EX REL. JOSEPH TAGGART, County Attorney, et al. [No. 396.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Kansas to review a judgment awarding a peremptory writ of mandamus requiring the county clerk of Wyandotte county, in that state, to extend upon the tax rolls of that county for taxation a waterworks plant owned by a Missouri municipality, but situated in such county.

See same case below, 85 Kan. 178, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 116 Pac. 251, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 800.

Mr. John G. Park for plaintiff in error.

Mr. L. W. Keplinger for defendants in error.

October 28, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction. American Sugar Ref. Co. v. Louisiana, 179 U. S. 89, 45 L. ed. 102, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 43; Williams v. Fears, 179 U. S. 270, 45 L. ed. 186, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 128; Billings v. Illinois, 188 U. S. 97, 101, 47 L. ed. 400, 402, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 272; Cook v. Marshall County, 196 U. S. 261, 273, 274, 49 L. ed. 471, 475, 476, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 233; Michigan C. R. Co. v. Powers, 201 U. S. 245, 293, 50 L. ed. 744, 761, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 459; Farrell v. O'Brien (O'Callaghan v. O'Brien) 199 U. S. 100, 50 L. ed. 107, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727; Patterson v. Colorado, 205 U. S. 454, 51 L. ed. 879, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 556, 10 Ann. Cas. 689; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 212 U. S. 112, 118, 53 L. ed. 431, 434, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 227.

---

JACOB GLOS et al., Plaintiffs in Error, v. CITY OF CHICAGO, in Trust for the Use of the Schools, et al. [No. 519.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Illinois to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Cook County, in that state, awarding compensation in condemnation proceedings.

See same case below, 251 Ill. 594, 96 N. E. 539.

The plaintiffs in error in propriis personis.

Messrs. Angus Roy Shannon and George Gillette for defendants in error.

October 28, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction. Minnesota Iron Co. v. Kline, 199 U. S. 593, 50 L. ed. 322, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 159; Howard v. Kentucky, 200 U. S. 164, 172, 50 L. ed. 421, 425, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 189; Tracy v. Ginzberg, 205 U. S. 170, 177, 178, 51 L. ed. 755, 760, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 461; King v. West Virginia, 216 U. S. 92, 101, 54 L. ed. 396, 401, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Farrell v. O'Brien (O'Callaghan v. O'Brien) 199 U. S. 89, 100, 50 L. ed. 101, 107, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727; Goodrich v. Ferris, 214 U. S. 71, 79, 53 L. ed. 914, 917, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 580.

---

*EX PARTE: IN THE MATTER OF WALTER COOK, Petitioner. [No. —, Original.] [600

Motion for leave to file petition for a writ of habeas corpus and for a rule to show cause.

Mr. Milton Strasburger for petitioner.

November 4, 1912. Denied.

---

SOCIÉTÉ ANONYME DES SUCRERIES DE ST. JEAN, Plaintiff in Error, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 8.]

In Error to the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico.

Messrs. Colley W. Bell, Hugh B. Rowland, and Benjamin S. Minor for plaintiff in error.

The Attorney General and Assistant Attorney General Denison for defendant in error.

November 4, 1912. Per Curiam: Judgment affirmed. Gonzales v. Buist, 224 U. S. 126, 130, 56 L. ed. 693, 695, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 463; Humes v. United States, 170 U. S. 210, 212, 42 L. ed. 1011, 1012, 18 Sup.

Ct. Rep. 602; Schlemmer v. Buffalo, R. & P. R. Co. 205 U. S. 1, 10, 51 L. ed. 681, 685, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407; Schuylkill Improv. Co. v. Munson, 14 Wall. 442, 448, 20 L. ed. 867, 872.

---

JOHN F. HANSON, Plaintiff in Error, v EMIL GUSTAFSON. [No. 24.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Kansas.

Mr. John F. Hanson pro se for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Emil Gustafson pro se for defendant in error.

November 11, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction. First Nat. Bank v. Estherville, 215 U. S. 341, 346, 54 L. ed. 223, 227, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 152; Kimball v. Kimball, 174 U. S. 158 161-163, 43 L. ed. 932-934, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 639, and cases cited.

---

NATIONAL TELEPHONE MFG. COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. AMERICAN BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY. [No. 312.]

Error to circuit court — Federal question.

In Error to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts to review a judgment for defendant in an action for malicious prosecution, in which plaintiff unsuccessfully urged the right to jury trial under the Federal Constitution to prevent sending the cause to an auditor.

Messrs. Louis T. Michener and Samuel W. Emery for plaintiff in error.

Messrs. Robert M. Morse and Chas. H. Swan for defendant in error.

601] *November 11, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction. Carey v. Houston & T. C. R. Co. 150 U. S. 170, 181, 37 L. ed. 1041, 1044, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 63; American Sugar Ref. Co. v. United States, 211 U. S. 155, 161, 162, 53 L. ed. 129-131, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 89, and cases cited. Cause remanded to the District Court of the United States for the District of Massachusetts.

---

CHICAGO & ERIE R. R. COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. JOSEPH A. EBERSOLE. [No 37.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Indiana to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Hamilton County, in that state, which enforced as against an interstate carrier a state statute prohibiting the assignment of future wages.

See same case below, — Ind. — 87 N. E. 1090.

Mr. D. C. Harrington for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

November 11, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction on the authority of California Powder Works v. Davis, 151 U. S. 389, 393, 38 L. ed. 206, 207, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Fitzgerald, 160 U. S. 556, 576, 40 L. ed. 536, 540, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 389; Chappell Chemical & Fertilizer Co. v. Sulphur Mines Co. 172 U. S. 471, 43 L. ed. 519, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265.

---

EMMA R. MCCABE, Administratrix of Peter McCabe, Deceased, Plaintiff in Error, v. MAYSVILLE & BIG SANDY RAILROAD COMPANY et al. [No. 138.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky to review a judgment which, on a fourth appeal, affirmed a judgment of the Mason County Circuit Court in that state, sustaining the demurrer to a reply in an action for death.

See same case below, 136 Ky. 674, 124 S. W. 892.

Mr. Allan D. Cole for plaintiff in error.

Mr. E. L. Worthington for defendants in error.

November 18, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for want of jurisdiction on the authority of Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. McCabe, 213 U. S. 207, 53 L. ed. 765, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 430.

---

*ELIZA B. CLINGER, Administratrix, [602 etc., Plaintiff in Error, v. CHESAPEAKE & OHIO RAILWAY OF KENTUCKY et al. [No. 236.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky to review a judgment which, on a second appeal, affirmed a judgment of the Mason County Circuit Court in that state, sustaining a demurrer to the reply in an action for death.

See same case below on first appeal, 128 Ky. 736, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 998, 109 S. W. 315; on second appeal, 138 Ky. 615, 128 S. W. 1055.

Mr. Allan D. Cole for plaintiff in error.

Mr. E. L. Worthington for defendants in error.

November 18, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction, on the authority of Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. McCabe, 213 U. S. 207, 53 L. ed. 765, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 430.

POST PRINTING & PUBLISHING COMPANY et al., Plaintiffs in Error, v. JOHN F. SHAFROTH, as Governor, etc., et al. [No. 812.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Colorado to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of the City and County of Denver, in that state, upholding the validity of an amendment to the state Constitution.

See same case below, 53 Colo. 129, 124 Pac. 176.

Mr. Booth M. Malone for plaintiffs in error.

Messrs. Benjamin Griffith, Henry J. Hersey, F. A. Williams, and Horace N. Hawkins for defendants in error.

November 18, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction, on the authority of Chappell Chemical & Fertilizer Co. v. Sulphur Mines Co. 172 U. S. 465, 471, 43 L. ed. 517, 519, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265.

---

M. M. BRIGHT, Administrator of Robert Larck, Deceased, v. CHESAPEAKE & OHIO RAILWAY COMPANY. [No. —.]

Mr. Herbert Fitzpatrick for the Railway Company, petitioner for the writ.

No opposition.

November 18, 1912. Per Curiam: The Writ of Error applied for in this case is denied. Wilkinson v. Nebraska, 123 U. S. 286, 31 L. ed. 152, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 120; Re Pennsylvania Co. 137 U. S. 451, 454, 34 L. ed. 738, 740, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141.

---

CHAN KAM, Appellant, v. LUTHER C. STEWARD and H. Edsell. [No. 374.]

Aliens — deportation.

Appeal from the Circuit Court of the 603]*United States for the Northern District of California to review a decree refusing relief by habeas corpus to an alien immigrant detained for deportation by the immigration authorities.

Messrs. Carroll Cook and Corry M. Stadden for appellant.

The Attorney General, the Solicitor General, and Mr. Assistant Attorney General Harr for appellees.

December 2, 1912. Per Curiam: Judgment affirmed on the authority of Low Wah Suey v. Backus, 225 U. S. 460, 56 L. ed. 1165, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 734, and cause remanded to the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of California.

YUK PING, Alias LEE SO MUI Appellant, v. LUTHER C. STEWARD and H. Edsell. [No. 375.]

Aliens — deportation.

Appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of California to review a decree refusing relief by habeas corpus to an alien immigrant detained for deportation by the immigration authorities.

Messrs. Carroll Cook and Corry M. Stadden for appellant.

The Attorney General, the Solicitor General, and Mr. Assistant Attorney General Harr for appellees.

December 2, 1912. Per Curiam: Judgment affirmed on the authority of Low Wah Suey v. Backus, 225 U. S. 460, 56 L. ed. 1165, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 734, and cause remanded to the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of California.

---

F. B. WILLIAMS CYPRESS COMPANY, LIMITED, Plaintiff in Error, v. STATE OF LOUISIANA. [No. 760.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court for the Parish of Assumption, in that state, awarding damages for the conversion of timber on certain school sections.

See same case below, 131 La. 62, 58 So. 1033; on rehearing, — La. —, 61 So. 988.

Mr. Charlton R. Beattie for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Charles T. Wortham for defendant in error.

December 9, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for want of jurisdiction, on the authority of Appleby v. Buffalo, 221 U. S. 524, 529, 55 L. ed. 838, 840, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 699, and cases cited.

---

TILLIE ANDERSON, Plaintiff in Error, v. STATE OF CONNECTICUT. [No. 62.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme *Court of[604 Errors of the State of Connecticut to review a judgment which, on a second appeal, affirmed a conviction in the New Haven Court of Common Pleas under an information charging the keeping of a house of ill fame.

See same case below, on first appeal, 82 Conn. 111, 72 Atl. 648; on second appeal, 83 Conn. 55, 75 Atl. 81.

Mr. Ernest L. Averill for plaintiff in error.

Mr. E. P. Arvine for defendant in error.

December 16, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Farrell v. O'Brien (O'Callaghan v. O'Brien) 199 U. S. 100, 50 L. ed. 107, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727.

ADDISON SHIP-Y-TUCK, Plaintiff in Error. v. UNITED STATES. [No. 70.]

Indians — Federal regulation — intoxicating liquors.

In Error to the District Court of the United States for the District of Kansas to review a conviction for introducing intoxicating liquors into the Indian country.

Messrs. F. T. Woodburn and A. E. Crane for plaintiff in error.

The Attorney General and Mr. Assistant Attorney General Harr for defendant in error.

December 2, 1912. Per Curiam: Judgment affirmed upon the authority of Hallowell v. United States, 221 U. S. 317, 55 L. ed. 750, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 587.

---

ISAAC A. MANSOUR, Appellant, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 73.]

Aliens — naturalization — canceling certificate.

Appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a decree canceling a naturalization certificate.

See same case below, 170 Fed. 671.

Messrs. Paul Armitage, Walter S. Penfield, and William L. Penfield for appellant.

The Attorney General and Mr. Assistant Attorney General Harr for appellee.

December 16, 1912. Per Curiam: Judgment affirmed.

---

GEORGE FRED WILLIAMS, Executor of the Estate of Amey M. Starkweather, Plaintiff in Error, v. JOSEPH U. STARKWEATHER, Administrator, etc. [No. 199.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Rhode Island to review an order adjudging plaintiff in error in contempt.

See same case below, 31 R. I. 134, 76 Atl. 662.

Mr. James A. Halloran for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Edward D. Bassett for defendant in error.

605] *December 16, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Loeber v. Schroeder, 149 U. S. 580, 585, 37 L. ed. 856, 859, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 934; Miller v. Cornwall R. Co. 168 U. S. 131, 42 L. ed. 409, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 34; Fayerweather v. Ritch, 195 U. S. 299, 49 L. ed. 210, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Farrell v. O'Brien (O'Callaghan v. O'Brien) 199 U. S. 100, 50 L. ed. 107, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727.

B. ZAVELO, Plaintiff in Error, v. LEICHTMAN, GOODMAN, & COMPANY. [No. 300.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Alabama to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Birmingham City Court, in favor of plaintiff in an action for conversion.

See same case below, 171 Ala. 65, 54 Sc. 537.

Mr. Oscar R. Hundley for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Samuel A. Putman for defendant in error.

December 23, 1912. Per Curiam: Dismissed for want of jurisdiction. Chappell Chemical & Fertilizer Co. v. Sulphur Mines Co. 172 U. S. 465, 43 L. ed. 517, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265, and cases cited.

---

JOHN MEDLEY, Plaintiff in Error, v. STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA. [No. 98.]

Error to state court — Federal question.

In Error to the Supreme Court of Appeals of the State of West Virginia to review a judgment which affirmed a conviction for murder in the Criminal Court of Mercer County, in that state.

See same case below, 66 W. Va. 216, 66 S. E. 358, 18 Ann. Cas. 761.

Mr. Joseph M. Sanders for plaintiff in error.

Mr. William G. Conley for defendant in error.

January 6, 1913. Per Curiam: Dismissed for the want of jurisdiction on the authority of Spies v. Illinois, 123 U. S. 131, 181, 31 L. ed. 80, 91, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 21, 22, and Seaboard Air Line R. Co. v. Duvall, 225 U. S. 477, 485, 486, 56 L. ed. 1171, 1175, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 790, and cases cited.

---

PARK RAPIDS LUMBER COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 100.]

Indians — restrictions on alienation — sale of timber.

In Error to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota to review a judgment in favor of the United States in an action to recover the value of timber cut from allotted land within the limits of an Indian reservation.

Messrs. Ransom J. Powell and George T. Simpson for plaintiff in error.

The Attorney General and Assistant Attorney General Knaebel for defendant in error.

January 6, 1913. Per Curiam: Judgment affirmed on the authority *of[606 United States v. Rickert, 188 U. S. 432, 436, 47 L. ed. 532, 535, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 478; act of Congress of April 21, 1904 (33 Stat. at L. 189, 209, chap. 1402); Heckman v. United States, 224 U. S. 413, 436, 56 L. ed. 820, 829, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 424; and cause remanded to the District Court of the United States for the District of Minnesota.

---

EX PARTE: IN THE MATTER OF JEWELL KING, Petitioner. [No. —, Original.]

Motion for leave to file a petition for a Writ of Habeas Corpus.

Mr. Burton Smith for petitioner.

January 6, 1913. Denied.

---

JOHN T. COOPER, Petitioner, v. C. M. PRATT et al., Partners, etc. [No. 790.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

See same case below, 113 C. C. A. 666, 193 Fed. 1020.

Messrs. R. G. Linn, Aldis B. Browne, and Alex. Britton for petitioner.

No appearance for respondents.

October 21, 1912. Denied.

---

JAMES D. HARDIN, Petitioner, v. UNION TRUST COMPANY OF THE CITY OF PHILADELPHIA et al. [No. 799.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 111 C. C. A. 632, 191 Fed. 152.

Messrs. Chambers Kellar and Ernest Wilkinson for petitioner.

No appearance for respondents.

October 21, 1912. Denied.

---

607]*UNITED STATES, Petitioner, v. A. GERO MARSHALL. [No. 805.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 117 C. C. A. 65, 197 Fed. 511.

The Attorney General, The Solicitor General, and Assistant Attorney General Harr for petitioner.

Mr. John M. Coleman for respondent.

October 21, 1912. Denied.

---

DUNLEVY & BROTHER COMPANY, Petitioner, v. ELIZABETH FORREST. [No. 808.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 582, 197 Fed. 34.

Mr. Henry J. Nesbit for petitioner.

Mr. H. Fred Mercer for respondent.

October 21, 1912. Denied.

I. D. BLOCK et al., Petitioners, v. CITY OF MERIDIAN. [No. 716.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

See same case below, 169 Fed. 516.

Messrs. G. Q. Hall and Joseph Hirsh for petitioners.

Mr. Wm. H. Ambrecht for respondent.

October 28, 1912. Denied.

---

MAHONING VALLEY RAILWAY COMPANY, Petitioner, v. BELINDA O'HARA. [No. 768.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 495, 196 Fed. 945.

Mr. George F. Arrel for petitioner.

Mr. Charles Koonce, Jr., for respondent.

October 28, 1912. Denied.

---

AMERICAN FIDELITY COMPANY, Petitioner, v. S. H. VELIE, Doing Business as Velie Motor Company. [No. 813.]

*Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to[608 the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 22, 196 Fed. 190.

Messrs. Joseph S. Brooks and Louis C. Boyle for petitioner.

Mr. Henry De L. Ashley for respondent.

October 28, 1912. Denied.

---

DETROIT STEEL COOPERAGE COMPANY, Petitioner, v. SISTERSVILLE BREWING COMPANY et al. [No. 825.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

Messrs. Geo. M. Hoffheimer, O. B. Taylor, and Chas. M. Kimball for petitioner.

No appearance for respondents.

November 4, 1912. Granted.

---

REPUBLIC RUBBER COMPANY, Petitioner, v. MORGAN & WRIGHT. [No. 814.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 117 C. C. A. 45, 197 Fed. 549.

Mr. Marshall A. Christy for petitioner.

Mr. Antonio Knauth for respondent.

November 4, 1912. Denied.

MONONGAHELA RIVER CONSOLIDATED COAL & COKE COMPANY et al., Petitioners, v. MRS. BESSIE SCHINNERRER. [No. 832]; and MONONGAHELA RIVER CONSOLIDATED COAL & COKE COMPANY et al., Petitioners, v. MRS. EMMA HURST. [No. 833.]

Petition for Writs of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

See same case below, 117 C. C. A. 193, 196 Fed. 375.

Messrs. Frank S. Masten, Chas. M. Johnson, R. P. Cary, and Chas. H. Stephens for petitioners.

Mr. F. Zimmerman for respondents.

November 4, 1912. Denied.

---

609]*NEW YORK, NEW HAVEN, & HARTFORD R. R. COMPANY, Owner, etc., Petitioner, v. RIVER & HARBOR TRANSPORTATION COMPANY. [No. 835.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 114 C. C. A. 155, 194 Fed. 77.

Mr. Edward B. Robbins for petitioner.

Mr. Chas. C. Burlingham for respondent.

November 4, 1912. Denied.

---

JOHN L. HART, Administrator, etc., Petitioner, v. NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY. [No. 822.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 12, 196 Fed. 180.

Mr. Francis B. Hart for petitioner.

No appearance for respondent.

November 11, 1912. Denied.

---

JOHN W. PATTERSON, Petitioner, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 830.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

See same case below, 39 App. D. C. 84.

Mr. Matthew E. O'Brien for petitioner.

The Attorney General and Mr. Assistant Attorney General Harr for respondent.

November 18, 1912. Denied.

E. A. BLOUNT et al, Petitioners, v. GEORGE E. DOWNS et al. [No. 809.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

See same case below, on first writ of error, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1076, 95 C. C. A. 289, 170 Fed. 15; on second writ of error, 114 C. C. A. 664, 194 Fed. 1020.

Messrs. J. C. McReynolds and George C. Greer for petitioners.

Messrs. Hiram Garwood and Maxwell Evarts for respondents.

December 2, 1912. Denied.

---

DAN KOVOLOFF, Petitioner, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 841.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari *to[610 the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

See same case below, 202 Fed. 475.

Messrs. Benjamin C. Bachrach and John F. Geeting for petitioner.

The Attorney General and the Solicitor General for respondent.

December 9, 1912. Denied.

---

FARMERS & MECHANICS BANK OF VANDALIA, ILLINOIS, Petitioner, v. HARRISON W. MAINES. [No. 850.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

See same case below, on first writ of error, 105 C. C. A. 329, 183 Fed. 37; on second writ of error, 115 C. C. A. 64, 195 Fed. 62.

Mr. Bernard B. Selling for petitioner.

Mr. John C. Donnelly for respondent.

December 9, 1912. Denied.

---

WORK MINING & MILLING COMPANY, Petitioner, v. DR. JACK POT MINING COMPANY. [No. 855.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 114 C. C. A. 392, 194 Fed. 620.

Messrs. Charles S. Thomas, Henry C. Hall, William H. Bryant, and George L. Nye for petitioner.

Mr. William V. Hodges for respondent.

December 9, 1912. Denied.

BYRON E. VAN AUKEN et al., Petitioners, v. MONASH-YOUNKER COMPANY. [Nos. 860 and 861.]

Petition for Writs of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit.

See same case below, 117 C. C. A. 605, 199 Fed. 123.

Mr. C. Clarence Poole for petitioners.

Mr. Thomas A. Banning for respondent.

December 9, 1912. Denied.

---

LUTCHER & MOORE LUMBER COMPANY et al.,† Petitioners, v. WILLIAM H. KNIGHT et al. [No. 810.]

611] *Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

See same case below, 114 C. C. A. 665, 194 Fed. 1022.

Mr. A. P. Pujo for petitioners.

No appearance for respondents.

December 16, 1912. Denied.

---

CHARLOTTE CASSIDY, Petitioner, v. SILVER KING COALITION MINES COMPANY. [No. 839.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 117 C. C. A. 640, 199 Fed. 100.

Mr. John A. Shelton for petitioner.

No appearance for respondent.

December 16, 1912. Denied.

---

FLORENCE A. HARPER, Petitioner, v. LOUIS L. TAYLOR. [No. 856.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit.

See same case below, 113 C. C. A. 572, 193 Fed. 944.

Mr. James H. Vahey for petitioner.

Mr. Lewis Miles for respondent.

December 16, 1912. Denied.

---

†Death of Henry J. Lutcher, one of the petitioners, suggested December 9, 1912, and appearance of Frances A. Lutcher, widow, and Miria M. Stark and Carrie L. Brown, children of Henry J. Lutcher, deceased, as parties petitioners herein.

57 L. ed.

WILLIAM W. WISHART, etc., Petitioners v. SUPREME COUNCIL OF THE ROYAL ARCANUM. [No. 872.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 112 C. C. A. 591, 192 Fed. 453.

Messrs. A. S. Worthington and J. Roy Dickie for petitioners.

Mr. Joseph A. Langfitt for respondent.

December 16, 1912. Denied.

---

C. E. MITCHELL, Petitioner, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 845.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for *the Ninth Circuit. [612

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 436, 196 Fed. 874.

Mr. Hosea B. Moulton for petitioner.

The Attorney General and Mr. Assistant Attorney General Harr for respondent.

December 23, 1912. Denied.

---

SKEELE COAL COMPANY, Petitioner, v. GOHEN C. ARNOLD, Trustee in Bankruptcy, etc. [No. 866.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 118 C. C. A. 545, 200 Fed. 393.

Mr. Nicholas W. Hacker for petitioner.

Mr. C. Andrade, Jr, for respondent.

December 23, 1912. Denied.

---

MRS. BESSIE SCHINNERRER et al., Petitioners, v. MONONGAHELA RIVER CONSOLIDATED COAL & COKE COMPANY et al. [No. 874.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

See same case below, 119 C. C. A. 127, 200 Fed. 711.

Mr. F. Zimmerman for petitioners.

Mr. Frank S. Masten for respondents.

December 23, 1912. Denied.

---

JOHN M. CONROY et al., Petitioners, v. PENN ELECTRICAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY. [No. 879.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 118 C. C. A. 101, 199 Fed. 427.

Mr. Paul Synnestvedt for petitioners.

Messrs. Edward Rector and J. M. Nesbit for respondent.

December 23, 1912. Denied.

CHARLES F. ALLEN, Executor, etc., Petitioner, v. SEABOARD AIR LINE RAILWAY et al. [No. 881.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the [613]United *States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 112 C. C. A. 642, 192 Fed. 480.

Mr. Ferdinand E. M. Bullowa for petitioner.

Mr. James Byrne for respondents.

January 6, 1913. Denied.

---

HOWARD H. SYPHER et al., Petitioners, v. BOUVIER-IAEGER COAL LAND COMPANY. [No. 883.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

See same case below, 111 C. C. A. 673, 191 Fed. 1006.

Mr. John H. Holt for petitioners.

Mr. George E. Price for respondent.

January 6, 1913. Denied.

---

KEYSTONE TYPE FOUNDRY, Petitioner, v. NATIONAL COMPOSITYPE COMPANY. [No. 892.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

See same case below, 113 C. C. A. 667, 193 Fed. 1021.

Mr. E. W. Bradford for petitioner.

No appearance for respondent.

January 6, 1913. Denied.

---

WALTER MURPHY, Petitioner, v. ASHLEY M. GOULD, Associate Justice, etc. [No. 895.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

See same case below, 39 App. D. C. 363.

Mr. John Altheus Johnson for petitioner.

No appearance for respondent.

January 6, 1913. Denied.

---

J. L. SHINE, Petitioner, v. UNITED STATES. [No. 887.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Mr. W. S. Welch for petitioner.

The Attorney General and Assistant Attorney General Harr for respondent.

January 13, 1913. Denied.

*HARTFORD RUBBER WORKS COMPANY, [614 Petitioner, v. METALLIC RUBBER TIRE COMPANY. [No. 906.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

See same case below, 200 Fed. 743.

Mr. Livingston Gifford for petitioner.

Mr. Norman Johnson for respondent.

January 13, 1913. Denied.

---

CHARLES GRING, Owner, etc., Petitioner, v. ROSA LEE CHERRY, Administratrix, et al. [No. 908.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit.

Messrs. Howard M. Long, J. Parker Kirlin, and Edward R. Baird, Jr., for petitioner.

Mr. Henry Bowden for respondents.

January 13, 1913. Denied.

---

ROYAL BOSWORTH YOUNG et al., Petitioners, v. UNITED ZINC COMPANIES et al. [No. 909.]

Petition for Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

See same case below 117 C. C. A. 301, 198 Fed. 593.

Mr. Robert O. Harris for petitioners.

Messrs. Samuel Williston and Hollis R. Bailey for respondents.

January 13, 1913. Denied.

---

J. G. BRILL COMPANY, Petitioner, v. BEMIS CAR BOX COMPANY. [No. 910.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

See same case below, 200 Fed. 749.

Messrs. J. Edgar Bull, Alexander Simpson, Jr., and Francis Rawle, for petitioner.

Messrs. John G. Johnson, Henry P. Brown, and Antonio Knauth, for respondent.

January 13, 1913. Denied.

---

*NORTHERN INDIANA GAS & ELECTRIC [615 Co., Appellant, v. MAYOR AND BOARD OF PUBLIC WORKS OF THE CITY OF HAMMOND, INDIANA, et al. [No. 26.]

Appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Indiana.

Mr. Max Pam for appellant.

Mr. Edward F. Colladay for appellee.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed per stipulation, and cause remanded to the District Court of the United States for the District of Indiana.

ST. LOUIS & SAN FRANCISCO R. R. CO., Plaintiff in Error, v. WILLIAM HEYSER. [No. 133.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Arkansas.

Mr. W. F. Evans for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

ATCHISON, TOPEKA, & SANTA FE RY. CO., Plaintiff in Error, v. I. A. TACK. [No. 183.]

In Error to the Court of Civil Appeals for the Fourth Supreme Judicial District of the State of Texas.

Messrs. Gardiner Lathrop, J. W. Terry, and A. H. Culwell for plaintiff in error.

Mr. George E. Wallace for defendant in error.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

NORTH RIVER INSURANCE COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. W. B. HIGSON. [No. 227.]

616] In Error to the Supreme Court *of the State of North Carolina.

Mr. Charles W. Tillett for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

FIDELITY TRUST COMPANY, Appellant, v. LON H. GASKELL, Receiver. [No. 228.]

In Error to the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Missouri.

Messrs. Frank Hagerman and Justin D. Bowersock for appellant.

Mr. John M. Cleary for appellee.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, per stipulation.

---

UNITED STATES EXPRESS COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. STATE OF NEBRASKA. [No. 233.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Nebraska.

See same case below, 85 Neb. 42, 122 N. W. 697.

Messrs. Charles J. Greene and Ralph W. Breckenridge for plaintiff in error.

Messrs. W. T. Thompson and Grant G. Martin for defendant in error.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

ST. LOUIS & SAN FRANCISCO R. R. COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. CASSIE KITCHEN. [No. 317.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Arkansas.

Messrs. W. F. Evans and E. T. Miller for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

*CENTRAL R. R. COMPANY OF NEW JER-[617
SEY, Plaintiff in Error, v. MICHAEL CO
LASURDO. [No. 569.]

In Error to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

Mr. Robert Thorne for plaintiff in error

No appearance for defendant in error.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

BERNARD HAAS by Sadie Haas, his Guardian ad litem, et al., Appellants, v. GREYSTOKE CASTLE S. S. COMPANY (Ltd.), etc. [No 599.]

Appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of California.

Messrs. E. B. McClanahan and Charles T Tittman for appellants.

Mr. J. Parker Kirlin for appellees.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the appellants.

---

GREAT NORTHERN RAILWAY COMPANY, Petitioner, v. WAYLAND SLOAN et al., Minors, etc. [No. 712.]

Petition for a Writ of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 90, 196 Fed. 270.

Messrs. E. C. Lindley and Charles S. Albert for petitioner.

No appearance for respondents.

October 14, 1912. Dismissed on motion of counsel for the petitioner.

---

ANTONIO JOAQUIN LUIS SANCHEZ DE LARRAGOITI et al., Plaintiffs in Error, v. SALVADOR CASTELLO et al. [No. 6.]

In Error to the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico.

Messrs. James Byrne, Francis H. Dexter, and Hugo Kohlmann for *plaintiffs in[618 error.

No appearance for defendants in error.

October 24, 1912. Dismissed with costs, pursuant to the Nineteenth Rule.

Samuel Loeb, Plaintiff in Error, v. State of Georgia. [No. 21.]

In Error to the Court of Appeals of the State of Georgia.

No appearance for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Thomas S. Felder for defendant in error.

October 30, 1912. Dismissed with costs, pursuant to the Sixteenth Rule, on motion of Mr. Thomas S. Felder for the defendant in error.

---

Atchison, Topeka, & Santa Fe Railway Company et al., Plaintiffs in Error, v. Valentina Chaves de Padilla. [No. 547.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the Territory of New Mexico.

Mr. Robert Dunlap for plaintiffs in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

November 4, 1912. Dismissed with costs, per stipulation, and cause remanded to the Supreme Court of the state of New Mexico.

---

M. Kahn & Brother, Plaintiff in Error, v. J. F. Bledsoe, Trustee, etc. [No. 4.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the state of Oklahoma.

See same case below, 22 Okla. 666, 132 Am. St. Rep. 665, 98 Pac. 921.

Mr. Wm. F. Bowman for plaintiff in error.

Mr. S. T. Bledsoe for defendant in error.

November 4, 1912. Dismissed with costs, pursuant to the Sixteenth Rule, on motion of Mr. Evans Browne in behalf of counsel for the defendant in error.

---

Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad Company, Plaintiff in Error, v. Clarence C. Gray. [No. 125.]

619] *In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Minnesota.

See same case below, 110 Minn. 527, 124 N. W. 1100.

Mr. Wm. H. Bremner for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

November 11, 1912. Dismissed with costs on authority of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

A. W. Morse, Plaintiff in Error, v. Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railway Company. [No. 747.]

In Error to the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of Texas.

Mr. Wm. H. Atwell for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

November 13, 1912. Dismissed with costs on motion of counsel for plaintiff in error.

G. L. Crenshaw, Appellant, v. Carroll Allen, as Trustee in Bankruptcy of the Estate of Fred Dorr, Bankrupt. [No. 780.]

Appeal from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit.

Mr. Wm. B. Mathews for appellant.

Mr. Jas. H. Shankland for respondent.

November 15, 1912. Dismissed, each party paying his own costs, per stipulation.

---

United States of America, Complainant, v. People of the State of New York et al. [No. 5, original.]

The Attorney General for complainant.

Mr. James M. Hunt for respondents

December 2, 1912. Dismissed without prejudice, on motion of Mr. Solicitor General Bullitt for the complainant.

---

Marius Calmels, Appellant, v. Samuel W. Backus, Commissioner of Immigration, etc. [No. 793]; *Victor Vinol, Ap-[620 pellant, v. Samuel W. Backus, Commissioner of Immigration, etc. [No. 794]; Leopold Calmels, Appellant, v. Samuel W. Backus, Commissioner of Immigration, etc. [No. 795]; Maria Louise Calmels, Appellant, v. Samuel W. Backus, Commissioner of Immigration, etc. [No. 796]; and Valerie Calmels, Appellant, v. Samuel W. Backus, Commissioner of Immigration, etc. [No. 797].

Appeal from the District Court of the United States for the Northern District of California.

Mr. Corry M. Stadden for appellants.

The Attorney General for appellee.

December 2, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of Mr. Corry M. Stadden for the appellants.

---

Gaspar Cue et al., Appellants, v. William C. Cotton et al., Executors, etc., et al. [No. 88.]

Appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Texas.

Mr. A. Seymour Thurmond for appellants.

No appearance for appellees.

December 10, 1912. Dismissed with costs, pursuant to the Tenth Rule, and cause remanded to the District Court of the United States for the Western District of Texas.

ED. BROWN et al., Plaintiffs in Error, v. FRANK M. POWERS, Judge, et al. [No. 94.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Iowa.

Mr. Benjamin I. Salinger for plaintiffs in error.

No appearance for defendants in error.

December 13, 1912. Dismissed with costs, pursuant to the Tenth Rule.

---

621]*ED. BROWN et al., Plaintiffs in Error, v. FRANK M. POWERS, Judge, et al. [No. 95.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Iowa.

Mr. Benjamin I. Salinger for plaintiffs in error.

No appearance for defendants in error.

December 13, 1912. Dismissed with costs, pursuant to the Tenth Rule.

---

FRANK F. LAMB, Plaintiff in Error, v. SAMUEL B. BAKER. [No. 267.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma.

Mr. George S. Ramsey for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

December 18, 1912. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

SEABOARD FIRE & MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. GUSTAVE MONTELEONE. [No. 110.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana.

See same case below, 126 La. 807, 52 So. 1032.

Mr. Edgar H. Farrar for plaintiff in error.

Messrs. Benjamin Rice Foreman and Anthony J. Rossi for defendant in error.

December 19, 1912. Dismissed with costs, per stipulation.

---

CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE, & ST. PAUL RAILWAY COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. MICHAEL KILEY. [No. 114.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Wisconsin.

Messrs. Burton Hanson and C. H. Van Alstine for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

December 19, 1912. Dismissed with costs, pursuant to the Tenth Rule.

*JOHN H. HALL, Plaintiff in Error, [622 v. UNITED STATES. [No. 117.]

In Error to the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Oregon.

Mr. John H. Hall, pro se, for plaintiff in error.

The Attorney General for defendant in error.

January 6, 1913. Dismissed, on motion of Mr. Solicitor General Bullitt for the defendant in error, and cause remanded to the District Court of the United States for the District of Oregon.

---

UNITED STATES, Plaintiff in Error, v. NORTHERN COMMERCIAL COMPANY. [No. 548.]

In Error to the District Court of the United States for the Fourth Division, Territory of Alaska.

The Attorney General for plaintiff in error.

Messrs. John Sidney Webb and Edward M. Cleary for defendant in error.

January 6, 1913. Dismissed, on motion of Mr. Solicitor General Bullitt for the plaintiff in error.

---

AUGUSTUS BURGDORF, Surviving Trustee, et al., Appellants, v. LEMUEL E. MAYHEW. [No. 182.]

Appeal from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

Mr. John Ridout for appellants.

No appearance for appellee.

January 6, 1913. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the appellants.

---

GERMAN INSURANCE COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY, FOR THE USE, ETC., OF THE LOUISVILLE SCHOOL BOARD et al. [No. 315.]

In Error to the Court of Appeals of the State of Kentucky.

Messrs. Louis B. Wehle and O. *A.[622 Wehle for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendants in error.

January 6, 1913. Dismissed with costs, on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

---

ST. LOUIS FAIR ASSOCIATION, Plaintiff in Error, v. GILSONITE ROOFING & PAVING COMPANY. [No. 210.]

In Error to the Supreme Court of the State of Missouri.

See same case below, 231 Mo. 589, 132 S. W. 657.

Messrs. Henry W. Bond and Thomas Bond for plaintiff in error.

No appearance for defendant in error.

January 13, 1913. Dismissed with costs on motion of counsel for the plaintiff in error.

LOUIS F. BRAUN, Appellant, v. LINDSAY RUSSELL, Trustee, et al. [No. 329.]

Appeal from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

Mr. Dix W. Noel for the appellant.

Mr. Daniel P. Hays for the appellees.

July 12, 1912. Dismissed pursuant to the Twenty-eighth Rule.

---

WALTER BAMFORD, Appellant, v. LINDSAY RUSSELL, Trustee, et al. [No. 330.]

Appeal from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

Mr. Dix W. Noel for the appellant.

Mr. Daniel P. Hays for the appellees.

July 12, 1912. Dismissed pursuant to the Twenty-eighth Rule.

---

LINDSAY RUSSELL, Trustee, Appellant, v. WALTER BAMFORD and Louis F. Braun. [No. 331.]

Appeal from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit.

624] *Mr. Daniel P. Hays for the appellant.

Mr. Dix W. Noel for the appellees.

July 12, 1912. Dismissed pursuant to the Twenty-eighth Rule.

---

WESTERN UNION TELEGRAPH COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. NANCY E. GILKINSON. [No. 96.]

In Error to the Appellate Court of the State of Indiana.

See same case below, 46 Ind. App. 29, 90 N. E. 650.

Mr. Samuel O. Pickens, Mr. Robert Franklin Davidson, Mr. George H. Fearons, Mr. Rush Taggart, and Mr. Francis Raymond Stark for the plaintiff in error.

Mr. Charles W. Hiller for the defendant in error.

July 31, 1912. Dismissed pursuant to the Twenty-eighth Rule.

---

AMERICAN REALTY COMPANY, Plaintiff in Error, v. LEAH A. THOMPKINS. [No. 328.]

In Error to the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia.

Mr. Milton Strasburger for the plaintiff in error.

Mr. Alexander Wolf and Mr. J. J. Darlington for the defendant in error.

September 17, 1912. Dismissed pursuant to the Twenty-eighth Rule.

---

MONETT ELECTRIC LIGHT, POWER, & ICE COMPANY, Appellant, v. CITY OF MONETT, MISSOURI. [No. 235.]

Appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Western District of Missouri.

See same case below, 186 Fed. 360.

Mr. Joseph M. Hill, Mr. James Brizzolara, and Mr. H. L. Fitzhugh for the appellant.

Mr. John M. Wood for the appellee.

October 10, 1912. Dismissed pursuant to the Twenty-eighth Rule.

CASES

ARGUED AND DECIDED

IN THE

SUPREME COURT

OF THE

UNITED STATES

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1912.

---

Vol. 227.

REFERENCE TABLE

OF SUCH CASES

DECIDED IN U. S. SUPREME COURT,

OCTOBER TERM, 1912.

AND REPORTED HEREIN,

VOLUME 227,

AS ALSO APPEAR IN

OFFICIAL REPORTER'S EDITION

| Off. Rep. 227 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 1 | Yazoo & M. Valley R. Co. v. Greenwood Grocery Co. | 389 |
| 2 | " " | 390 |
| 2–3 | " " | 391 |
| 4 | Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford Co. v. Gaines | 391 |
| 6–8 | " " | 392 |
| 8 | " " | 393 |
| 8 | Virtue v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. | 393 |
| 24–25 | " " | 401 |
| 25–29 | " " | 402 |
| 29–30 | " " | 403 |
| 30–33 | " " | 404 |
| 33–35 | " " | 405 |
| 35–38 | " " | 406 |
| 38–39 | " " | 407 |
| 39 | Cameron Septic Tank Co. v. Knoxville | 407 |
| 40–42 | " " | 409 |
| 42–45 | " " | 410 |
| 45–48 | " " | 411 |
| 48–50 | " " | 412 |
| 51 | Gray v. Taylor | 413 |
| 55–56 | " " | 415 |
| 56–58 | " " | 416 |
| 58 | " " | 417 |
| 59 | Michigan C. R. Co. v. Vreeland | 417 |
| 63–66 | " " | 419 |
| 66–68 | " " | 420 |
| 68–70 | " " | 421 |
| 70–73 | " " | 422 |
| 73–74 | " " | 423 |
| 74 | Grant v. United States | 423 |
| 76–78 | " " | 425 |
| 78–80 | " " | 426 |
| 80 | Davis v. Las Ovas Co. | 426 |
| 84–85 | " " | 429 |
| 85–87 | " " | 430 |
| 88 | Interstate Commerce Commission v. Louisville & N. R. Co. | 431 |
| 89–90 | " " | 432 |
| 90–92 | " " | 433 |
| 92–95 | Interstate Commerce Commission v. Louisville & N. R. Co. | 434 |
| 95–97 | " " | 435 |
| 97–100 | " " | 436 |
| 100 | " " | 437 |
| 100 | Guardian Assur. Co. v. Quintana | 437 |
| 101–102 | " " | 438 |
| 102–105 | " " | 439 |
| 105–107 | " " | 440 |
| 107–108 | " " | 441 |
| 108 | De Bary v. Louisiana | 441 |
| 109–111 | " " | 442 |
| 111 | Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Sabine Tram Co. | 442 |
| 112–113 | " " | 443 |
| 113–116 | " " | 444 |
| 116–119 | " " | 445 |
| 119–120 | " " | 446 |
| 122–124 | " " | 447 |
| 124–127 | " " | 448 |
| 127–129 | " " | 449 |
| 129–130 | " " | 450 |
| 131 | Heike v. United States | 450 |
| 139–140 | " " | 453 |
| 140–143 | " " | 454 |
| 143–145 | " " | 455 |
| 145 | " " | 456 |
| 145–147 | American R. Co. v. Didricksen | 456 |
| 147–149 | " " | 457 |
| 149–150 | " " | 458 |
| 150 | Ross v. Oregon | 458 |
| 155–157 | " " | 461 |
| 157–160 | " " | 462 |
| 160–163 | " " | 463 |
| 163–164 | " " | 464 |
| 165 | United States v. Harvey Steel Co. | 464 |
| 166–167 | " " | 465 |
| 167–170 | " " | 466 |
| 170–172 | " " | 467 |
| 172 | " " | 468 |
| 173 | Robinson v. Lundrigan | 468 |
| 174–175 | " " | 469 |

Reference Table.

| Off. Rep. 237 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 175–178 | Robinson v. Lundrigan | 470 |
| 178–180 | " " | 471 |
| 180 | " " | 472 |
| 181–183 | Gutierrez Del Arroyo. v. Graham | 472 |
| 183–184 | " " | 473 |
| 184 | Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Schwyhart | 473 |
| 192–193 | " " | 477 |
| 193–194 | " " | 478 |
| 194 | Brooklyn Min. & Milling Co. v. Miller | 478 |
| 198–199 | " " | 479 |
| 199–201 | " " | 480 |
| 201–202 | " " | 481 |
| 202 | United States v. Winslow | 481 |
| 214–216 | " " | 484 |
| 216–218 | " " | 485 |
| 218 | St. Louis S. W. R. Co. v. Alexander | 486 |
| 221–224 | " " | 487 |
| 224–226 | " " | 488 |
| 226–228 | " " | 489 |
| 229 | Scott v. Lattig | 490 |
| 239–241 | " " | 495 |
| 241–243 | " " | 496 |
| 243–245 | " " | 497 |
| 245 | Johnson v. Hoy | 497 |
| 246 | " " | 498 |
| 246–248 | " " | 499 |
| 248 | New York C. & H. R. R. Co. v. Board of Chosen Freeholders | 499 |
| 256–257 | " " | 502 |
| 257–259 | " " | 503 |
| 259–262 | " " | 504 |
| 262–265 | " " | 505 |
| 265 | " " | 506 |
| 265–268 | St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Edwards | 506 |
| 269–270 | " " | 507 |
| 270 | Porto Rico v. Rosaly y Castillo | 507 |
| 273–274 | " " | 508 |
| 274–277 | " " | 509 |
| 277 | " " | 510 |
| 278 | Home Teleph. & Teleg. Co. v. Los Angeles | 510 |
| 280–281 | " " | 512 |
| 281–284 | " " | 513 |
| 284–286 | " " | 514 |
| 286–289 | " " | 515 |
| 289–292 | " " | 516 |
| 292–294 | " " | 517 |
| 294–296 | " " | 518 |
| 296 | Winfree v. Northern P. R. Co. | 518 |
| 300–302 | " " | 520 |
| 302 | Hutchinson v. Valdosta | 520 |
| 302–304 | " " | 521 |
| 304–307 | " " | 522 |
| 307–308 | " " | 523 |
| 308 | Hoke v. United States | 523 |
| 316–318 | " " | 525 |
| 318–321 | " " | 526 |
| 321–323 | " " | 527 |
| 323–326 | " " | 528 |
| 326 | Athanasaw v. United States | 528 |
| 327–328 | " " | 529 |

| Off. Rep. 237 U. S. | Title. | Here in. |
|---|---|---|
| 328–331 | Athanasaw v. United States | 530 |
| 331–333 | " " | 531 |
| 333 | Bennett v. United States | 531 |
| 337–338 | " " | 533 |
| 338–339 | " " | 534 |
| 340 | Harris v. United States | 534 |
| 340–341 | " " | 535 |
| 342 | Stuart v. Union P. R. Co. | 535 |
| 343–345 | " " | 540 |
| 345–348 | " " | 541 |
| 348–350 | " " | 542 |
| 350–353 | " " | 543 |
| 353–354 | " " | 544 |
| 355 | Northern P. R. Co. v. United States | 544 |
| 356–357 | " " | 546 |
| 357–359 | " " | 547 |
| 359–362 | " " | 548 |
| 362–365 | " " | 549 |
| 365–367 | " " | 550 |
| 367 | " " | 551 |
| 368 | Wadkins v. Producers Oil Co. | 551 |
| 369 | " " | 553 |
| 369–371 | " " | 554 |
| 371–374 | " " | 555 |
| 374–375 | " " | 556 |
| 375 | Cordova v. Folgueras y Rijos | 556 |
| 376–377 | " " | 557 |
| 377–379 | " " | 558 |
| 379 | Luke v. Smith | 558 |
| 380–382 | " " | 561 |
| 382 | Porto Rico v. Title Guaranty & S. Co. | 561 |
| 383–384 | " " | 562 |
| 384–386 | " " | 563 |
| 386–389 | " " | 564 |
| 389 | Crenshaw v. Arkansas | 565 |
| 392–394 | " " | 566 |
| 394–396 | " " | 567 |
| 396–399 | " " | 568 |
| 399–401 | " " | 569 |
| 401 | Rogers v. Arkansas | 569 |
| 408 | " " | 572 |
| 408–409 | " " | 573 |
| 410–411 | James v. Stone & Co. | 573 |
| 411 | " " | 574 |
| 411–412 | " " | 575 |
| 412 | Lovell v. Newman | 577 |
| 414–415 | " " | 578 |
| 415–417 | " " | 579 |
| 417–420 | " " | 580 |
| 420–422 | " " | 581 |
| 422–425 | " " | 582 |
| 425–426 | " " | 583 |
| 427 | Bartell v. United States | 583 |
| 430 | " " | 584 |
| 430–433 | " " | 585 |
| 433–434 | " " | 585 |
| 434 | Troxell v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. | 586 |
| 438–440 | " " | 589 |
| 440–442 | " " | 590 |
| 442–445 | " " | 591 |
| 445 | United States ex rel. Champion Lumber Co. v. Fisher | 591 |

| Off. Rep. 227 U. S. | Title. | Herein. |
|---|---|---|
| 446–448 | United States ex rel. Champion Lumber Co. v. Fisher | 592 |
| | " " | 592 |
| 448–450 | " " | 593 |
| 450–452 | " " | 594 |
| 452 | United States ex rel. Foreman v. Meyer | 594 |
| 453–455 | " " | 595 |
| 455 | " " | 596 |
| 456–458 | Hampton v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. | 596 |
| 462–463 | " " | 597 |
| 463–466 | " " | 598 |
| 466–468 | " " | 599 |
| 468–469 | " " | 600 |
| 469 | Wells, F. & Co. v. Neiman-Marcus Co. | 600 |
| 473 | " " | 601 |
| 473–476 | " " | 602 |
| 476–477 | " " | 603 |
| 477 | Bradley v. Richmond | 603 |
| 480 | " " | 604 |
| 480–483 | " " | 605 |
| 483–485 | " " | 606 |
| 485–486 | " " | 607 |
| 486–488 | United States v. Mason | 607 |
| 488 | " " | 608 |
| 489 | Zimmerman v. Harding | 608 |
| 490–492 | " " | 609 |
| 492–494 | " " | 610 |
| 494–496 | " " | 611 |
| 497 | Supreme Ruling of F. M. C. v. Snyder | 611 |
| 500–502 | " " | 614 |
| 502–504 | " " | 615 |
| 504 | Bacon v. Illinois | 615 |
| 505-507 | " " | 616 |
| 507–509 | " " | 617 |
| 510–512 | " " | 618 |
| 512–514 | " " | 619 |
| 515–517 | " " | 620 |
| 517 | " " | 621 |
| 518–521 | Smoot v. Heyl | 621 |
| 521–523 | " " | 622 |
| 523–524 | " " | 623 |
| 524 | Svor v. Morris | 623 |
| 525–526 | " " | 624 |
| 526–528 | " " | 625 |
| 528–530 | " " | 626 |
| 530 | Ross v. Stewart | 626 |
| 531–532 | " " | 627 |
| 532–534 | " " | 628 |
| 534–537 | " " | 629 |
| 537–539 | " " | 630 |
| 539–540 | " " | 631 |
| 540 | Matheson v. United States | 631 |
| 541–542 | " " | 632 |
| 542–543 | " " | 633 |
| 544 | Grand Trunk W. R. Co. v. South Bend | 633 |
| 545–546 | " " | 634 |
| 546–547 | " " | 635 |
| 551 | Grand Trunk W. R. Co. v. South Bend | 638 |
| 551–554 | " " | 639 |
| 554–556 | " " | 640 |
| 556–559 | " " | 641 |
| 559–561 | Southern P. Co. v. Portland | 642 |
| 561–564 | " " | 643 |
| 564 | " " | 644 |
| 571 | " " | 650 |
| 571–574 | " " | 651 |
| 574–575 | " " | 652 |
| 575 | Van Iderstine v. National Discount Co. | 652 |
| 579–580 | " " | 653 |
| 580–583 | " " | 654 |
| 583 | " " | 655 |
| 584–585 | Rosaly v. Graham y Frazer | 655 |
| 585–587 | " " | 656 |
| 587–590 | " " | 657 |
| 590–591 | " " | 658 |
| 592 | Ensign v. Pennsylvania | 658 |
| 596–599 | " " | 661 |
| 599–601 | " " | 662 |
| 601 | Southern P. Co. v. Schuyler | 662 |
| 605–608 | " " | 667 |
| 608–610 | " " | 668 |
| 610–613 | " " | 669 |
| 613 | " " | 670 |
| 613 | Starr v. Long Jim | 670 |
| 614–615 | " " | 671 |
| 615–617 | " " | 672 |
| 617–620 | " " | 673 |
| 620–622 | " " | 674 |
| 622–625 | " " | 675 |
| 625 | Zavelo v. Reeves | 676 |
| 626–628 | " " | 677 |
| 628–631 | " " | 678 |
| 631–632 | " " | 679 |
| 633 | Marrone v. Washington Jockey Club | 679 |
| 635–637 | " " | 681 |
| 637 | Baxter v. Buchholz-Hill Transp. Co. | 681 |
| 637–638 | " " | 682 |
| 638 | " " | 683 |
| 639–640 | Kansas City Southern R. Co. v. Carl | 683 |
| 640–643 | " " | 684 |
| 643 | " " | 685 |
| 646–648 | " " | 686 |
| 648–650 | " " | 687 |
| 650–653 | " " | 688 |
| 653–656 | " " | 689 |
| 656 | " " | 690 |
| 657 | Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. Harriman Bros. | 690 |
| 664–666 | " " | 695 |
| 666–668 | " " | 696 |
| 668–671 | " " | 697 |
| 671–673 | " " | 698 |
| 675–685 | Memorandum Decisions | 699–703 |

THE DECISIONS

OF THE

Supreme Court of the United States

AT

OCTOBER TERM, 1912.

---

YAZOO & MISSISSIPPI VALLEY RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,
v.
GREENWOOD GROCERY COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 1-3.)

Commerce — state regulations — delivering cars to consignee.

The rule of a state railroad commission under which a per diem penalty may be exacted from a carrier for delay in delivering cars to the consignee at the termination of interstate transportation amounts to an unreasonable burden upon interstate commerce, where the requirement of such rule as to the delivery of the cars "within twenty-four hours after arrival, computing from 7 A. M. the day following the arrival," is absolute, and makes no allowance whatever for any justifiable and unavoidable cause for failure to deliver.

[For other cases, see Commerce, III., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 54.]

Argued November 14, 1912. Decided January 20, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Mississippi to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court of Leflore County, in that state, enforcing a rule of the state railroad commission under which a per diem penalty may be exacted from a carrier for delays in delivering cars at the termination of interstate transportation. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, 96 Miss. 450, 51 So. 450.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Charles N. Burch and Edward Mayes argued the cause, and, with Mr. Blewett Lee, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

By the Hepburn act Congress has acted; and therefore the states are without any further power in the premises.

Texas & P. R. Co. v. Abilene Cotton Oil Co. 204 U. S. 426, 51 L. ed. 553, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350, 9 Ann. Cas. 1075; State ex rel. Railroad Commission v. Adams Exp. Co. 171 Ind. 138, 19 L.R.A.(N.S.) 93, 85 N. E. 337, 966.

State legislation may be in aid of commerce, but still be constitutionally objectionable.

Southwestern R. Co. v. Com. 107 Va. L.R.A.(N.S.) 364, 60 S. E. 70; Southern R. Co. v. King, 217 U. S. 524, 531, 532, 54 L. ed. 868, 870, 871, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 594.

By the rules complained of the state commission laid an unreasonable burden on commerce.

Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Mayes, 201 U. S. 321, 50 L. ed. 772, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 491; Southern R. Co. v. Com. 107 Va. 771, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 364, 60 S. E. 70; St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Arkansas, 217 U. S.

---

NOTE.—On state regulations requiring carrier to furnish cars to shipper as interference with interstate commerce—see notes to St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. v. Arkansas, 54 L. ed. U. S. 699; Southern R. Co. v. Com. 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 364, and Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Beatty, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 984.

As to duty of railroad company to furnish cars to shippers—see note to Houston, E. & W. T. R. Co. v. Campbell, 43 L.R.A. 225.

136, 54 L. ed. 698, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 802, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 476.

The constitutional validity of a law or administrative rule is to be tested not by what has been done under it, but by what may be done.

Southwestern R. Co. v. Com. 107 Va. 771, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 364, 60 S. E. 70; Stuart v. Palmer, 74 N. Y. 191, 30 Am. Rep. 289; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. State, 26 Okla. 62, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 137, 107 Pac. 929.

Messrs. Charles N. Burch, Edward Mayes, H. D. Minor, and Blewett Lee also filed a brief for plaintiff in error.

Mr. Harry Peyton argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

Until Congress acts, the states have the right to pass laws governing interstate commerce so long as they do not impede, obstruct, hinder, or interfere with such commerce.

Gloucester Ferry Co. v. Pennsylvania, 114 U. S. 214, 29 L. ed. 166, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 382, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 826; Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 26 L. ed. 238; Smith v. Alabama, 124 U. S. 465, 476, 31 L. ed. 508, 512, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 804, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Escanaba & L. M. Transp. Co. v. Chicago, 107 U. S. 678–685, 27 L. ed. 442–446, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 185; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. James, 162 U. S. 650–661, 40 L. ed. 1105–1109, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 934; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Tyler, 90 Va. 297, 44 Am. St. Rep. 914, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 481, 18 S. E. 280; Hennington v. Georgia, 163 U. S. 299, 41 L. ed. 166, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1086; Sherlock v. Alling, 93 U. S. 101, 23 L. ed. 820; Hall v. DeCuir, 95 U. S. 487, 24 L. ed. 548; Cooley v. Port Wardens, 12 How. 299, 13 L. ed. 996; State Tax on Gross Receipts, 15 Wall. 284, 21 L. ed. 164; Western U. Teleg. Co. v. Texas, 105 U. S. 460, 26 L. ed. 1067; Leloup v. Mobile, 127 U. S. 640, 32 L. ed. 311, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 134, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1380; Chicago & N. W. R. Co. v. Fuller, 17 Wall. 560, 21 L. ed. 711; New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. v. New York, 165 U. S. 628, 41 L. ed. 853, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; Burgess v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 92 Tex. 125, 71 Am. St. Rep. 833, 46 S. W. 794.

A number of cases are cited in the books, holding various legislative acts invalid and contrary to the commerce clause of the Constitution because the legislation attempted is national in its scope, or of such a nature as to admit of uniformity of regulation, affecting all of the states alike; in such cases, the power is exclusive of all state authority, and is vested in Congress alone, and all state laws contrary thereto are invalid.

Cooley v. Port Wardens, 12 How. 299, 13 L. ed. 996; Welton v. Missouri, 91 U. S. 275, 23 L. ed. 347; Mobile County v. Kimball, 102 U. S. 691, 26 L. ed. 238; Cardwell v. American River Bridge Co. 113 U. S. 209, 28 L. ed. 961, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 423.

There is a further line of cases wherein impositions are placed by the laws of the state on interstate commerce, the result of which legislation would be the creation of monopolies or restraining of trade by the protection of local industries at the expense of foreign industries. These laws are very clearly contrary to the commerce clause of the Constitution, for it was to prevent exactly this result that this clause was introduced. A violation of it in this particular would operate to the decided advantage of one state over another,—would create a discrimination such as is abhorrent to the law.

Walling v. Michigan, 116 U. S. 446, 29 L. ed. 691, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 454; Bagg v. Wilmington, C. & A. R. Co. 109 N. C. 279, 14 L.R.A. 596, 26 Am. St. Rep. 573, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 803, 14 S. E. 79.

The Hepburn act is not exclusive of all power of the state to control interstate commerce.

Missouri P. R. Co. v. Larabee Flour Mills Co. 211 U. S. 620, 53 L. ed. 359, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 214; Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Mazursky, 216 U. S. 123, 54 L. ed. 411, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 378; Southern R. Co. v. Reid, 222 U. S. 424, 56 L. ed. 257, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140.

The rule of the state railroad commission is not unreasonable.

Patterson v. Missouri P. R. Co. 77 Kan. 236, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 733, 94 Pac. 138; Southern R. Co. v. Atlanta Sand & Supply Co. 135 Ga. 35, 68 S. E. 807; Hardwick Farmers Elevator Co. v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 110 Minn. 25, 124 N. W. 819, 19 Ann. Cas. 1088.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

The grocery company was permitted in the state courts to offset against a claim for demurrage, its claim against the railroad company for penalties aggregating $58 for delays in delivering cars to the grocery company, the consignee thereof, at the completion of interstate transportation, the right to which penalties arose from certain rules of the Railroad Commission of Mississippi, copied in the margin.†

†Rule I. Railroad companies shall, within twenty-four hours after the arrival of shipments, give notice by mail or other-

Eighteen dollars of the penalties accrued after June 29, 1906, the date of the passage of the Hepburn act [34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288].

3] *If the case at bar, concerning, as it does, the delivery of cars at the termination of interstate commerce transportation, be considered as governed by the rule which controls the furnishing of cars for the making of such shipments, the decision recently announced in Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Hardwick Farmers Elevator Co. No. 25 of the present term [226 U. S. 426, ante, 284, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 174] would be controlling as to the penalties allowed as an offset which accrued after June 29, 1906. As, however, the prior penalties allowed as an offset would in any event be not controlled by the case referred to, we come to consider the validity of the allowance of all of the offset, independent of the principle applied in that case. Approaching the subject from this point of view, we think the rule of the State Commission upon which the right to all the so-called "delayage penalties" was based constituted an unreasonable burden upon interstate commerce within the decision in Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Mayes, 201 U. S. 329, 50 L. ed. 775, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 491, since the requirement as to the delivery of cars within the short period fixed in the rule is absolute, and makes no allowance whatever for any justifiable and unavoidable cause for the failure to deliver. In saying this we do not give controlling effect to the observation contained in the opinion of the court below, that no question was made as to the reasonableness of the regulation, since the opinion itself states that the ruling in the Mayes Case was the main reliance of the railroad company, and in the argument at bar both sides have discussed the case on the theory that the substantial question to be decided was whether the rule of the commission which the court below upheld was an unreasonable regulation, in view of the decision in the Mayes Case.

The judgment of the Supreme Court of Mississippi is reversed and the case remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

Judgment reversed.

---

wise, to consignee, of arrival of goods, together with weight and amount of freight charges due thereon, and on goods in carload quantities, said notices must contain letters or initials of the car, number of the car, and if transferred in transit, the number and initial of the original car, net weight, and the amount of freight charges due on same. No demurrage charge shall be made unless legal notice of arrival is given to consignee.

Any railroad company failing to give such notice, and to deliver such freight at its depots or warehouses, or, in case of shipment for track delivery, to place loaded cars at an accessible place for unloading, within twenty-four hours after arrival, computing from 7 a. m., the day following the arrival, shall forfeit and pay the consignee, or other party whose interest is affected, the sum of $1 per car per day or fraction of a day, on all carload shipments, and 1 cent per one hundred (100) pounds per day or fraction thereof, on less than carload lots, with a minimum charge of 5 cents for any one package, after the expiration of said twenty-four hours.

Rule XI. No other charge shall be made for storage or demurrage except as provided in the foregoing rules, and if a railroad company is indebted to a shipper or consignee for delayage, then a claim for demurrage shall be offset by a claim for delayage.

57 L. ed.

---

*WYNKOOP, HALLENBECK, CRAWFORD COMPANY, Appt., [4

v.

THOMAS J. GAINES, JR.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 4-8.)

Appeal — from circuit court of appeals — bankruptcy case.

The question whether an order of the bankruptcy court from which no appeal was taken, postponing a part of the claim of an officer of a bankrupt corporation to the claim of an intervener, was correctly interpreted by the referee and court in the distribution directed by a subsequent administrative order, is not one concerning the allowance or rejection of a claim within the meaning of the provisions of the bankrupt act of July 1, 1898 (30 Stat. at L. 544, chap. 541, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3418), § 25b, governing appeals from the circuit courts of appeals to the Federal Supreme Court, but is a matter arising in the administration of the bankrupt estate, which the Supreme Court is not empowered to review.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, III. d, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 689.]

Submitted January 6, 1913. Decided January 20, 1913.

APPEAL from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit to review a judgment which reversed an order of distribution of a bankrupt estate, ordered by the referee and approved by the

---

NOTE.—On the appellate jurisdiction of the Federal Supreme Court over circuit courts—see note to Bagley v. General Fire Extinguisher Co. 53 L. ed. U. S. 606.

District Court for the Southern District of New York. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 177, 196 Fed. 357.

Mr. William Otis Badger, Jr., submitted the cause for appellant. Messrs. William H. Hotchkiss and Louis J. Wolff were on the brief.

Mr. John J. Crawford submitted the cause for appellee.

6] *Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

A corporation known as the Paris Modes Company was adjudicated a bankrupt on March 28, 1910. Gaines, the appellee, owned half of the stock of the company and was its president. His relatives, during the active life of the corporation, made large loans to the company. The claims for these advances were assigned to Gaines shortly before the bankruptcy, and he made proof of the same in the bankruptcy proceeding. Subsequently the Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford Company, the appellant, a creditor of the bankrupt estate which had proved its claim, filed an intervening petition asking for the re-examination and disallowance as against it of the Gaines claim. The ground for the relief prayed was that Gaines was equitably estopped from collecting his claim against the bankrupt estate to the prejudice of the petitioner, because of misrepresentations and concealment of material facts as to the financial condition of the bankrupt, made by him as an officer of the company, upon which the intervening company relied to its injury. The referee found that Gaines had made the representations complained of, and that although intentional fraud on his part was not shown, yet, if he had been the owner and holder of the notes upon which he had proved at the time of the making of the statements, they were of such a character as to cause him to be equitably estopped from asserting the claims to the prejudice of the intervener. As, however, it was found that Gaines had no interest in the claims embraced in his proof of debt at the time the representations were made by him, because he had acquired the claims by assignments subsequent thereto, the referee concluded that Gaines was entitled to assert the rights of his assignors, and was not 7] *estopped as against the Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford Company. In reviewing the action of the referee, the district court disapproved the same, and, on June 22, 1911, directed that the claim of Gaines, in so far as it represented demands against the bankrupt which were in existence at the time the representations were made by Gaines, should be postponed to the claim of the intervener. Neither party appealed from this order.

Thereafter, on August 3, 1911, the referee made an order that the dividend on the sum of $199,000 of the claim of Gaines, being the portion representing the indebtedness at the time of the misrepresentations, should be paid to the intervener. On petition to review, this order was affirmed by the district court. Gaines then carried the matter, by both appeal and petition for review, to the circuit court of appeals, complaining of the mode of distribution which had been adopted to execute the decree of June 22, 1911. That the controversy was thus limited and that no issue was raised or contention made concerning the decree of June 22, 1911, itself, which had become final, is certain. Thus, in August, 1912, in announcing its decision, the circuit court of appeals thus stated the controversy before it: "There is no occasion to go back of the order of June 22, 1911, or to inquire into its propriety. No appeal was taken or petition to review filed, and appellant here concedes that it lays down the rule for distribution in this case, and announces that he has no criticism to make as to the propriety of that rule. That is to say, although in his opinion the facts did not warrant the adoption of such a rule, he is willing to accept it and let the case be disposed of in conformity to its terms."

The court then considered whether the distribution ordered by the referee and approved by the district court accorded with the order of June 22, 1911, and held that it did not, and directed distribution of $12,250, the *balance of dividends in[8 the hands of the trustee, in accordance with views expressed in the opinion. 196 Fed. 357. The Wynkoop Company thereupon prosecuted this appeal, and a motion has been made to dismiss the same for want of jurisdiction.

That the motion to dismiss must be granted is manifest from the statement we have made. Whatever may have been the nature of the original controversy presented by the intervention of the Wynkoop Company, the acquiescence of both parties in the order of June 22, 1911, settled that controversy, and the questions remaining were purely administrative, concerning as they did merely the carrying out of the order according to its true intent and purpose. This being the case, the question whether the order of June 22, 1911, was correctly interpreted by the referee and the district court in the distribution directed by the subsequent administrative order is not one concerning an allowance or rejection of a claim within § 25b of the bankrupt act, but is a matter arising in the administration of the bankrupt estate, which we are not empowered to review.

Appeal dismissed.

---

D. E. VIRTUE and the Owatonna Fanning Mill Company, Plffs. in Err.,
v.
CREAMERY PACKAGE MANUFACTURING COMPANY, the Owatonna Manufacturing Company, and Frank LaBare.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 8–39.)

Monopoly — combination in restraint of trade — patented articles.

1. A contract by which a corporation, manufacturing dairy supplies under various patents owned by it, and selling them throughout the United States, constituted another corporation its exclusive sales agent, and fixed the list price of its products, does not violate the prohibition of the act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), against combinations in restraint of commerce.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — combination in restraint of trade — treble damages.

2. A corporation manufacturing dairy products under patents owned by it is not chargeable with participation in a combination formed contrary to the act of July 2, 1890, by its exclusive sales agent and other manufacturers and dealers, so as to render the corporation and its agent liable under the treble damage clause of § 7 of that act to persons joined as defendants in simultaneous patent infringement suits separately brought by such principal and agent, either because the sales agency contract, which antedated the illegal combination, provided that the manufacturer should protect the agent from all suits for infringement, should defend the validity of the patents, and promptly attack infringers, or because of a supplementary contract for the settlement of claims growing out of reciprocal charges of infringement which has no other connection with the unlawful combination than that some of the claims were against corporations which were parties to that unlawful agreement, or because of any negotiations preceding the execution of the sales agency contract which have for their inducement and object the settlement of controversies and rights growing out of earlier contracts, or because of the simultaneous bringing of the infringement suits.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — scope of review — question not raised below.

3. A contention not made either in the circuit court or in the circuit court of appeals, and which is contrary to the theory on which the case was tried, will not be considered by the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. j. 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 80.]

Argued December 9 and 10, 1912. Decided January 20, 1913.

IN ERROR to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota in favor of the defendants in an action founded upon the treble damage clause of the Sherman anti-trust act. Affirmed.

See same case below, 102 C. C. A. 413, 179 Fed. 115.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Harlan E. Leach argued the cause, and, with Messrs. James F. Williamson and James A. Tawney, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

The contracts, conspiracy, and combination of the two defendant corporations are clearly illegal, under both §§ 1 and 2 of the anti-trust act and also at common law.

Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; State v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. 110 Minn. 437, 136 Am. St. Rep. 514, 126 N. W. 623, 115 Minn. 207, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 132 N. W. 268, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 820.

It is not necessary to prove the commis-

---

NOTE.—On illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws—see note to Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

On restraint of trade in patented articles—see note to E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 46 L. ed. U. S. 1058.

On actions for three-fold damages under Federal anti-trust act—see note to American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co. 53 L. ed. U. S. 826.

On the validity of contract provision seeking to control price at which an article shall be resold, see note to Grogan v. Chaffee, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 395.

On the validity of contract giving exclusive right to handle goods in a given locality—see note to Walter A. Wood Mowing & Reaping Mach. Co. v. Greenwood Hardware Co. 9 L.R.A.(N.S.) 501.

District Court for the Southern District of New York. Dismissed for want of jurisdiction.

See same case below, 116 C. C. A. 177, 196 Fed. 357.

Mr. William Otis Badger, Jr., submitted the cause for appellant. Messrs. William H. Hotchkiss and Louis J. Wolff were on the brief.

Mr. John J. Crawford submitted the cause for appellee.

6] *Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

A corporation known as the Paris Modes Company was adjudicated a bankrupt on March 28, 1910. Gaines, the appellee, owned half of the stock of the company and was its president. His relatives, during the active life of the corporation, made large loans to the company. The claims for these advances were assigned to Gaines shortly before the bankruptcy, and he made proof of the same in the bankruptcy proceeding. Subsequently the Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford Company, the appellant, a creditor of the bankrupt estate which had proved its claim, filed an intervening petition asking for the re-examination and disallowance as against it of the Gaines claim. The ground for the relief prayed was that Gaines was equitably estopped from collecting his claim against the bankrupt estate to the prejudice of the petitioner, because of misrepresentations and concealment of material facts as to the financial condition of the bankrupt, made by him as an officer of the company, upon which the intervening company relied to its injury. The referee found that Gaines had made the representations complained of, and that although intentional fraud on his part was not shown, yet, if he had been the owner and holder of the notes upon which he had proved at the time of the making of the statements, they were of such a character as to cause him to be equitably estopped from asserting the claims to the prejudice of the intervener. As, however, it was found that Gaines had no interest in the claims embraced in his proof of debt at the time the representations were made by him, because he had acquired the claims by assignments subsequent thereto, the referee concluded that Gaines was entitled to assert the rights of his assignors, and was not 7] *estopped as against the Wynkoop, Hallenbeck, Crawford Company. In reviewing the action of the referee, the district court disapproved the same, and, on June 22, 1911, directed that the claim of Gaines, in so far as it represented demands against the bankrupt which were in existence at the time the representations were made by Gaines, should be postponed to the claim of the intervener. Neither party appealed from this order.

Thereafter, on August 3, 1911, the referee made an order that the dividend on the sum of $199,000 of the claim of Gaines, being the portion representing the indebtedness at the time of the misrepresentations, should be paid to the intervener. On petition to review, this order was affirmed by the district court. Gaines then carried the matter, by both appeal and petition for review, to the circuit court of appeals, complaining of the mode of distribution which had been adopted to execute the decree of June 22, 1911. That the controversy was thus limited and that no issue was raised or contention made concerning the decree of June 22, 1911, itself, which had become final, is certain. Thus, in August, 1912, in announcing its decision, the circuit court of appeals thus stated the controversy before it: "There is no occasion to go back of the order of June 22, 1911, or to inquire into its propriety. No appeal was taken or petition to review filed, and appellant here concedes that it lays down the rule for distribution in this case, and announces that he has no criticism to make as to the propriety of that rule. That is to say, although in his opinion the facts did not warrant the adoption of such a rule, he is willing to accept it and let the case be disposed of in conformity to its terms."

The court then considered whether the distribution ordered by the referee and approved by the district court accorded with the order of June 22, 1911, and held that it did not, and directed distribution of $12,250, the *balance of dividends in[8 the hands of the trustee, in accordance with views expressed in the opinion. 196 Fed. 357. The Wynkoop Company thereupon prosecuted this appeal, and a motion has been made to dismiss the same for want of jurisdiction.

That the motion to dismiss must be granted is manifest from the statement we have made. Whatever may have been the nature of the original controversy presented by the intervention of the Wynkoop Company, the acquiescence of both parties in the order of June 22, 1911, settled that controversy, and the questions remaining were purely administrative, concerning as they did merely the carrying out of the order according to its true intent and purpose. This being the case, the question whether the order of June 22, 1911, was correctly interpreted by the referee and the district court in the distribution directed by the subsequent administrative order is not one concerning an allowance or rejection of a claim within § 25b of the bankrupt act, but is a matter arising in the administration of the bankrupt estate, which we are not empowered to review.

Appeal dismissed.

---

D. E. VIRTUE and the Owatonna Fanning Mill Company, Plffs. in Err.,
v.
CREAMERY PACKAGE MANUFACTURING COMPANY, the Owatonna Manufacturing Company, and Frank LaBare.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 8–39.)

Monopoly — combination in restraint of trade — patented articles.

1. A contract by which a corporation, manufacturing dairy supplies under various patents owned by it, and selling them throughout the United States, constituted another corporation its exclusive sales agent, and fixed the list price of its products, does not violate the prohibition of the act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), against combinations in restraint of commerce.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — combination in restraint of trade — treble damages.

2. A corporation manufacturing dairy products under patents owned by it is not chargeable with participation in a combination formed contrary to the act of July 2, 1890, by its exclusive sales agent and other manufacturers and dealers, so as to render the corporation and its agent liable under the treble damage clause of § 7 of that act to persons joined as defendants in simultaneous patent infringement suits separately brought by such principal and agent, either because the sales agency contract, which antedated the illegal combination, provided that the manufacturer should protect the agent from all suits for infringement, should defend the validity of the patents, and promptly attack infringers, or because of a supplementary contract for the settlement of claims growing out of reciprocal charges of infringement which has no other connection with the unlawful combination than that some of the claims were against corporations which were parties to that unlawful agreement, or because of any negotiations preceding the execution of the sales agency contract which have for their inducement and object the settlement of controversies and rights growing out of earlier contracts, or because of the simultaneous bringing of the infringement suits.

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — scope of review — question not raised below.

3. A contention not made either in the circuit court or in the circuit court of appeals, and which is contrary to the theory on which the case was tried, will not be considered by the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. j. 3, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 80.]

Argued December 9 and 10, 1912. Decided January 20, 1913.

IN ERROR to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota in favor of the defendants in an action founded upon the treble damage clause of the Sherman anti-trust act. Affirmed.

See same case below, 102 C. C. A. 413, 179 Fed. 115.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Harlan E. Leach argued the cause, and, with Messrs. James F. Williamson and James A. Tawney, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

The contracts, conspiracy, and combination of the two defendant corporations are clearly illegal, under both §§ 1 and 2 of the anti-trust act and also at common law.

Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; State v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. 110 Minn. 437, 136 Am. St. Rep. 514, 126 N. W. 623, 115 Minn. 207, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 132 N. W. 268, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 820.

It is not necessary to prove the commis-

---

NOTE.—On illegal trusts under modern anti-trust laws—see note to Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

On restraint of trade in patented articles —see note to E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 46 L. ed. U. S. 1058.

On actions for three-fold damages under Federal anti-trust act—see note to American Banana Co. v. United Fruit Co. 53 L. ed. U. S. 826.

On the validity of contract provision seeking to control price at which an article shall be resold, see note to Grogan v. Chaffee, 27 L.R.A.(N.S.) 395.

On the validity of contract giving exclusive right to handle goods in a given locality —see note to Walter A. Wood Mowing & Reaping Mach. Co. v. Greenwood Hardware Co. 9 L.R.A.(N.S.) 501.

the defendant Creamery Package Manufacturing Company against these plaintiffs was only interlocutory. Further, the questions of monopoly, restraint of trade, and lack of title are new in this action, and were not litigated or at issue in the patent infringement suit, as shown by the pleadings in the patent infringement suit set forth in full in the complaint in this action.

Harmon v. Struthers, 48 Fed. 260; Ex parte National Enameling & Stamping Co. 201 U. S. 156, 50 L. ed. 707, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 404; McGourkey v. Toledo & O. C. R. Co. 146 U. S. 536, 36 L. ed. 1079, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 170; Smith v. Vulcan Iron Works, 165 U. S. 518, 41 L. ed. 810, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407; Humiston v. Stainthorp, 2 Wall. 106, 17 L. ed. 905; Keystone Manganese & Iron Co. v. Martin, 132 U. S. 91, 33 L. ed. 275, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 32; Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson, 19 L.R.A.(N.S.) 219, 90 C. C. A. 547, 160 Fed. 41; Brush Electric Co. v. Western Electric Co. 22 C. C. A. 543, 46 U. S. App. 355, 76 Fed. 761; Australian Knitting Co. v. Gormly, 138 Fed. 92; B. Roth Tool Co. v. New Amsterdam Casualty Co. 88 C. C. A. 569, 161 Fed. 709.

This conspiracy was a continuing offense; every overt act committed in furtherance thereof was a renewal of the same as to all of the parties. The statute of limitations does not begin to run until the commission of the last overt act; neither can the parties claim a vested right to violate the law.

19 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law 2d ed. 136, "Limitations of Actions;" United States v. Greene, 115 Fed. 343; Ochs v. People, 124 Ill. 399, 16 N. E. 662; Spies v. People, 122 Ill. 1, 3 Am. St. Rep. 320, 12 N. E. 865, 17 N. E. 898, 6 Am. Crim. Rep. 570; 8 Cyc. 678.

It is an elementary principle of evidence that where two or more persons are associated together for some illegal purpose, the acts or declarations of one of them in reference to the common object are admissible against them all.

1 Greenl. Ev. § 111; 2 Wigmore, Ev. § 1079; American Fur Co. v. United States, 2 Pet. 358, 7 L. ed. 450; Clune v. United States, 159 U. S. 593, 40 L. ed. 270, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 125; Wiborg v. United States, 163 U. S. 656, 41 L. ed. 298, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1127, 1197.

A combination between two or more independent and competing corporations engaged in manufacturing and selling under letters patent, and having an interstate trade and commerce, to eliminate the competition between them and create a monopoly, is in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act.

Bloant Mfg. Co. v. Yale & T. Mfg. Co. 166 Fed. 555; National Harrow Co. v. Hench, 76 Fed. 667, 39 L.R.A. 299, 27 C. C. A. 349, 55 U. S. App. 53, 83 Fed. 36, 84 Fed. 226; Bobbs-Merrill Co. v. Straus, 139 Fed. 155; Strait v. National Harrow Co. 18 N. Y. Supp. 224; National Harrow Co. v. E. Bement & Sons, 21 App. Div. 290, 47 N. Y. Supp. 462; Mines v. Scribner, 147 Fed. 927; E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 186 U. S. 70, 46 L. ed. 1058, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Central Transp. Co. v. Pullman's Palace Car Co. 139 U. S. 24, 35 L. ed. 55, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 478; Pope Mfg. Co. v. Gormully, 144 U. S. 238, 36 L. ed. 419, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; State v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. 110 Minn. 437, 136 Am. St. Rep. 514, 126 N. W. 126, 623, 115 Minn. 207, — L.R.A.(N.S.) —, 132 N. W. 268, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 820.

A court will not lend its aid to the accomplishment of an unlawful object.

Peck v. Heurich, 167 U. S. 624, 42 L. ed. 302, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 927; Graham v. La Crosse & M. R. Co. 102 U. S. 148, 26 L. ed. 106; Central Transp. Co. v. Pullman's Palace Car Co. 139 U. S. 24, 35 L. ed. 55, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 478; Hoffman v. Bullock, 34 Fed. 248; Forker v. Brown, 10 Misc. 161, 30 N. Y. Supp. 827; Gruber v. Baker, 20 Nev. 472, 9 L.R.A. 308, 23 Pac. 858, 28 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. 866, 867; 10 Cyc. 161; National Harrow Co. v. Hench, 84 Fed. 226; Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Levy v. Kansas City, 22 L.R.A.(N.S.) 862, 93 C. C. A. 523, 168 Fed. 524; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; McMullen v. Hoffman, 174 U. S. 639, 48 L. ed. 1117, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 839; Thomson v. Thomson, 7 Ves. Jr. 470, 6 Revised Rep. 151.

Every combination resulting directly or necessarily in restraint of interstate trade is prohibited. It is immaterial what kind of a combination it is; none is exempt.

Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540.

To wrongfully charge infringement, or to say that a person has no patent, or has not a valid patent, is an actionable wrong. This is true apart from any violation of Sherman anti-trust act.

Culmer v. Canby, 41 C. C. A. 302, 101 Fed. 195; 25 Cyc. 263, 559; Bowsky v. Cimiotti Unhairing Co. 72 App. Div. 172, 76 N. Y. Supp. 465; Watson v. Trask, 6

Ohio, 531, 27 Am. Dec. 271; Cousins v. Merrill, 8 U. C. C. P. 114; Meyrose v. Adams, 12 Mo. App. 329; Flint v. Hutchinson Smoke Burner Co. 110 Mo. 492, 16 L.R.A. 243, 33 Am. St. Rep. 476, 19 S. W. 804; Germ Proof Filter Co. v. Pasteur Chamberland Filter Co. 81 Hun, 49, 30 N. Y. Supp. 584; Wren v. Weild, L. R. 4 Q. B. 731, 10 Best & S. 51, 38 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 327, 20 L. T. N. S. 1007; Swan v. Tappan, 5 Cush. 104; McElwee v. Blackwell, 94 N. C. 261; Snow v. Judson, 38 Barb. 210; Dicks v. Brooks, L. R. 15 Ch. Div. 22, 49 L. J. Ch. N. S. 812, 43 L. T. N. S. 71, 29 Week. Rep. 87; Barley v. Walford, 9 Q. B. 197, 15 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 369, 10 Jur. 917.

To take away plaintiff's customers by intimidation and threats renders defendants liable to damages under the Sherman anti-trust act.

Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; People's Tobacco Co. v. American Tobacco Co. 95 C. C. A. 566, 170 Fed. 396.

Plaintiffs have a cause of action at common law.

38 Cyc. 517; Bond v. Chapin, 8 Met. 33; Moulton v. Lowe, 32 Me. 466; Foster v. Dow, 29 Me. 442; Smith v. Hyndman, 10 Cush. 554; Streeper v. Ferris, 64 Tex. 12; Hackett v. McMillan, 112 N. C. 513, 21 L.R.A. 862, 17 S. E. 433; Metcalf v. Alley, 24 N. C. (2 Ired. L.) 38; Ertz v. Produce Exchange Co. 79 Minn. 140, 48 L.R.A. 90, 79 Am. St. Rep. 433, 81 N. W. 737; Brown v. Jacobs' Pharmacy Co. 115 Ga. 429, 57 L.R.A. 547, 90 Am. St. Rep. 126, 41 S. E. 553; Hawarden v. Youghiogheny & L. Coal Co. 111 Wis. 545, 55 L.R.A. 828, 87 N. W. 472; Longshore Printing Co. v. Howell, 26 Or. 527, 28 L.R.A. 464, 46 Am. St. Rep. 640, 38 Pac. 547; Albro J. Newton Co. v. Erickson, 144 App. Div. 939, 129 N. Y. Supp. 1111; Klingel's Pharmacy v. Sharp & Dohme, 104 Md. 218, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 976, 118 Am. St. Rep. 399, 64 Atl. 1029, 9 Ann. Cas. 1184; Randall v. Lonstorf, 126 Wis. 147, 3 L.R.A.(N.S.) 470, 105 N. W. 663, 5 Ann. Cas. 371; Boutwell v. Marr, 71 Vt. 1, 43 L.R.A. 803, 76 Am. St. Rep. 746, 42 Atl. 607; Martell v. White, 185 Mass. 255, 64 L.R.A. 260, 102 Am. St. Rep. 341, 69 N. E. 1085; Purington v. Hinchliff, 219 Ill. 159, 2 L.R.A.(N.S.) 824, 109 Am. St. Rep. 322, 76 N. E. 47; Jackson v. Stanfield, 137 Ind. 592, 23 L.R.A. 588, 36 N. E. 345, 37 N. E. 14; Employing Printers' Club v. Doctor Blosser Co. 122 Ga. 509, 69 L.R.A. 90, 106 Am. St. Rep. 137, 50 S. E. 353, 2 Ann. Cas. 694; Baldwin v. Escanaba Liquor Dealers' Asso. 165 Mich. 98, 130 N. W. 214; Standard Oil Co. v. Doyle, 118 Ky. 662, 111 Am. St. Rep. 331, 82 S. W. 271; Dunshee v. Standard Oil Co. 152 Iowa, 618, 36 L.R.A.

57 L. ed.

(N.S.) 263, 132 N. W. 371; VanHorn v. VanHorn, 56 N. J. L. 318, 28 Atl. 669; Severns v. Brainard, 61 Minn. 265, 63 N. W. 477; Antcliff v. June, 81 Mich. 477, 10 L.R.A. 621, 21 Am. St. Rep. 533, 45 N. W. 1019; Milling v. Sulphur, Timber & Lumber Co. 119 La. 585, 44 So. 307; Atlanta Ice & Coal Co. v. Reeves, 136 Ga. 294, 36 L.R.A. (N.S.) 1112, 71 S. E. 421; Dishaw v. Wadleigh, 15 App. Div. 205, 44 N. Y. Supp. 207; Bradshaw v. Frazier, 113 Iowa, 579, 55 L.R.A. 258, 86 Am. St. Rep. 394, 85 N. W. 752; Grimestad v. Lofgren, 105 Minn. 286, 17 L.R.A.(N.S.) 990, 127 Am. St. Rep. 566, 117 N. W. 515; Smith v. Nippert, 76 Wis. 86, 20 Am. St. Rep. 26, 44 N. W. 846; 32 Cyc. 541–543; Rossiter v. Minnesota Bradner-Smith Paper Co. 37 Minn. 296, 33 N. W. 855; Farmer v. Crosby, 43 Minn. 459, 45 N. W. 866.

All the defendants in this case assume that the 1893 agreement authorized the Owatonna Company to put the Disbrow Company absolutely out of business, forever, both at Mankato and everywhere else. If that 1893 contract purported to give any such power to the Owatonna Company, it was illegal and void.

Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 865, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; Pope Mfg. Co. v. Gormully & J. Mfg. Co. 144 U. S. 238, 36 L. ed. 419, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 637.

Patentees may compose their differences as the owners of other property may, but they cannot make the occasion an excuse or cloak for the creation of monopolies to the public disadvantage.

National Harrow Co. v. Hench, 39 L.R.A. 299, 27 C. C. A. 349, 55 U. S. App. 53, 83 Fed. 36.

It cannot be material just how much competition was suppressed by any one contract.

W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307.

Combinations otherwise in violation of the anti-trust law are not valid because based on a few patents.

United Shoe Machinery Co. v. LaChapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289; State v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. 110 Minn. 415, 136 Am. St. Rep. 514, 126 N. W. 126, 623.

An innocent act becomes unlawful if made part of a criminal scheme.

Garland v. State, 112 Md. 83, 75 Atl. 631, 21 Ann. Cas. 28; State v. Stewart, 59 Vt. 286, 59 Am. Rep. 710, 9 Atl. 559; Longshore Printing Co. v. Howell, 26 Or. 527, 28 L.R.A. 464, 46 Am. St. Rep. 640, 38 Pac. 547; Brown v. Jacobs' Pharmacy Co. 115 Ga. 429, 57 L.R.A. 547, 90 Am. St. Rep. 126, 41 S. E. 553; Klingel's Pharmacy v. Sharp &

39

Dohme, 104 Md. 218, 7 L.R.A.(N.S.) 976, 118 Am. St. Rep. 399, 64 Atl. 1029, 9 Ann. Cas. 1184; Gatzow v. Buening, 106 Wis. 1, 49 L.R.A. 475, 80 Am. St. Rep. 17, 81 N. W. 1003; Martell v. White, 185 Mass. 255, 64 L.R.A. 260, 102 Am. St. Rep. 341, 69 N. E. 1085; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. La Chapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289.

A patent infringement suit is much like an ejectment action; it is to eject defendant from the domain claimed by plaintiff. A plaintiff in ejectment must recover on the strength of his own title.

King v. Mullins, 171 U. S. 404, 43 L. ed. 214, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 925.

An illegal deed, or one based on an illegal consideration, or a deed absolutely void because in fraud of creditors, is not sufficient.

15 Cyc. 17, 44, note; Kirkpatrick v. Clark, 132 Ill. 342, 8 L.R.A. 511, 22 Am. St. Rep. 531, 24 N. E. 71; Watkins v. Nugen, 118 Ga. 372, 375, 45 S. E. 260, 262.

Mr. Emanuel Cohen argued the cause, and, with Messrs. John B. Atwater, Frank W. Shaw, and George C. Fry, filed a brief for defendant in error the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company:

In order to condemn an agreement as void under the act of July 2, 1890, its dominant purpose must be an interference with interstate or international commerce.

Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208, 179 Fed. 118; Hopkins v. United States, 171 U. S. 578, 592, 43 L. ed. 290, 296, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 568, 43 L. ed. 259, 287, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 615, 43 L. ed. 300, 305, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 229, 44 L. ed. 136, 143, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 331, 48 L. ed. 679, 697, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Field v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co. 194 U. S. 618, 623, 48 L. ed. 1142, 1154, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 66, 55 L. ed. 619, 647, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Union Pacific Coal Co. v. United States, 97 C. C. A. 578, 173 Fed. 737.

Even if the Creamery Company were assumed to be a party to an unlawful combination in restraint of trade, this would not deprive it of its right to sue for infringement of its patents.

Strait v. National Harrow Co. 51 Fed. 819; Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Fritts v. Palmer, 132 U. S. 282, 33 L. ed. 317, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 93; Dickerman v. Northern Trust Co. 176 U. S. 181, 190, 192, 44 L. ed. 423, 430, 431, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 311; South Dakota v. North Carolina, 192 U. S. 286, 311, 48 L. ed. 448, 457, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 269; Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 291, 295, 298, 299, 49 L. ed. 739, 761, 763, 764, 765, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493; Re Metropolitan R. Receivership, 208 U. S. 90, 111, 52 L. ed. 403, 413, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 219; International Harvester Co. v. Smith, 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 580, note.

The owner of a patent may notify infringers of his claims and warn them that unless they desist, suits will be brought to protect him in his legal rights. The only limitation on the right to issue such warnings is the requirement of good faith.

Kelley v. Ypsilanti Dress Stay Mfg. Co. 10 L.R.A. 686, 44 Fed. 19; Computing Scale Co. v. National Computing Scale Co. 79 Fed. 962; A. B. Farquhar Co. v. National Harrow Co. 49 L.R.A. 755, 42 C. C. A. 600, 102 Fed. 714; Adriance, P. & Co. v. National Harrow Co. 58 C. C. A. 163, 121 Fed. 827; Warren Featherbone Co. v. Landauer, 151 Fed. 130, Mitchell v. International Tailoring Co. 169 Fed. 145; 30 Cyc. 1054.

The agreement made on the part of the Disbrows not to engage in the churn or butter-worker business, either manufacturing or selling, during the life of said patents or this contract, did not make the transaction unlawful. The restraint of trade was not greater than the circumstances of the transaction required, particularly in view of the breach of the 1893 agreement by the Disbrows.

Cincinnati, P. B. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 50 L. ed. 428, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 865, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572.

Owners of property have the right to select their customers, to sell and to refuse to sell to whomsoever they choose, and to fix different prices for sales of the same commodities to different persons.

Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 461.

The stipulation by the Disbrows, assigning to the Owatonna Manufacturing Company all modifications or improvements upon any of said inventions or patents, or in and to any other inventions that have heretofore or may hereafter be made or invented by them, relating or applicable to any kind of combined churns and butter-workers, was valid.

Littlefield v. Perry, 21 Wall. 205, 22 L. ed. 577; Westinghouse Air Brake Co. v. Chicago Brake & Mfg. Co. 85 Fed. 786, Reece Folding Mach. Co. v. Fenwick, 2

L.R.A.(N.S.) 1094, and note, 72 C. C. A. 39, 140 Fed. 288.

The stipulations in the Owatonna Manufacturing Company agreements as to prosecuting infringers were usual covenants, not warranting the inference of a purpose to drive competitors out of business by groundless suits.

Foster v. Goldschmidt, 22 Blatchf. 287, 21 Fed. 70; Macon Knitting Co. v. Leicester & C. Mills Co. 113 Fed. 844; Wilfley v. New Standard Concentrator Co. 90 C. C. A. 543, 164 Fed. 421; Critcher v. Linker, 169 Fed. 653; Jackson v. Allen, 120 Mass. 64; Forncrook Mfg. Co. v. Barnum Wire & Iron Works, 63 Mich. 195, 29 N. W. 537; Croninger v. Paige, 48 Wis. 229, 4 N. W. 106; Washburn & M. Mfg. Co. v. Southern Wire Co. 37 Fed. 428.

The Owatonna agreements had to do wholly with manufacture, and were thus beyond the purview of the Sherman law.

United States v. E. C. Knight Co. 156 U. S. 1, 39 L. ed. 325, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 249; United States v. Northern Securities Co. 120 Fed. 728; Diamond Glue Co. v. United States Glue Co. 187 U. S. 611, 616, 47 L. ed. 328, 332, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 206; Cornell v. Coyne, 192 U. S. 418, 428, 48 L. ed. 504, 508, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 383; Loewe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 297, 52 L. ed. 488, 497, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815.

The Owatonna agreements had to do wholly with patented articles, and were thus beyond the purview of the Sherman law.

E. Bement & Sons v. National Harrow Co. 186 U. S. 70, 91, 46 L. ed. 1058, 1068, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 747; Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 28, 30, 56 L. ed. 645, 656, 657, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364.

The prohibitions of the Sherman law extend only to undue restraint.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

There is nothing in the 1898 general agreement to show a design to drive competitors out of business by groundless suits.

Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 454; United States v. Standard Oil Co. 173 Fed. 177; Cincinnati, B. P. S. & P. Packet Co. v. Bay, 200 U. S. 179, 184, 50 L. ed. 428, 432, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 208.

The Creamery Company has never monopolized or attempted to monopolize any part of interstate commerce within the meaning of the Sherman law.

Noyes, Corporate Relations, § 389, p. 711; National Cotton Oil Co. v. Texas, 197 U. S. 115, 49 L. ed. 689, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 379.

Even if the Creamery Company had monopolized a substantial part of interstate commerce, no causal connection is shown between its acts and the damages claimed by plaintiffs.

21 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 2d ed. 480; 29 Cyc. 439.

An executed illegal contract carries title to its subject-matter in the same way as if the contract were legal, unless the law violated declares to the contrary.

15 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 932; McMullen v. Hoffman, 174 U. S. 639, 43 L. ed. 1117, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 839; Fritts v. Palmer, 132 U. S. 282, 33 L. ed. 317, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 93.

The Sherman law does not forbid the passage of title, but, on the contrary, impliedly sanctions it.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Harriman v. Northern Securities Co. 197 U. S. 244, 49 L. ed. 739, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

A patent owner, if a party to an illegal combination, is not by that fact debarred from equitable remedies against an infringer.

Strait v. National Harrow Co. 51 Fed. 819; Edison Electric Light Co. v. Sawyer-Man Electric Co. 3 C. C. A. 605, 11 U. S. App. 712, 53 Fed. 592; American Soda-Fountain Co. v. Green, 69 Fed. 333; Bonsack Mach. Co. v. Smith, 70 Fed. 383; Brown Saddle Co. v. Troxel, 98 Fed. 620; National Folding-Box & Paper Co. v. Robertson, 99 Fed. 985; Otis Elevator Co. v. Geiger, 107 Fed. 131; General Electric Co. v. Wise, 119 Fed. 922; Fuller v. Berger, 65 L.R.A. 381, 56 C. C. A. 588, 120 Fed. 274; Motion Picture Patents Co. v. Laemmle, 178 Fed. 104; Motion Picture Patent Co. v. Ullman, 186 Fed. 174.

The plaintiffs suffered no damage by the successful prosecution of the suit against them.

Connolly v. Union Sewer Pipe Co. 184 U. S. 540, 46 L. ed. 679, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 431; Strait v. National Harrow Co. 51 Fed. 819.

The plaintiffs are in fact prosecuting a suit for malicious prosecution in defiance of the rule that such a suit is not maintainable unless the primary suit has terminated in their favor.

Whitwell v. Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689, 60 C. C. A. 290, 125 Fed. 461; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Marchant, 119 Pa. 561, 4 Am. St. Rep. 659, 13 Atl. 690; Smith v. Wilcox, 47 Vt. 545; Hortenstine v. Virginia-Carolina R. Co. 102 Va. 914, 47 S. E. 996; Connolly v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 1

Va. 51, 56 L.R.A. 663, 93 Am. St. Rep. 919, 40 S. E. 618; Tyler v. Western U. Teleg. Co. 54 Fed. 634; Crescent City L. S. L. & S. H. Co. v. Butchers' Union S. H. & L. S. L. Co. 120 U. S. 141, 147, 148, 30 L. ed. 614, 617, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 472; 26 Cyc. 55.

According to the weight of authority and reason a suit for the malicious prosecution of a civil action is not maintainable unless there be an interference with person or property.

21 Am. L. Reg. 281, 353; McCormick Harvesting Mach. Co. v. Willan, 93 Am. St. Rep. 466, note; 4 Current Law, pp. 472, 474; 19 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 652, 653; 26 Cyc. 14–16; Wetmore v. Mellinger, 64 Iowa, 741, 52 Am. Rep. 465, 18 N. W. 870; Smith v. Michigan Buggy Co. 175 Ill. 619, 67 Am. St. Rep. 242, 51 N. E. 569; Potts v. Imlay, 4 N. J. L. 330; Luby v. Bennett, 111 Wis. 613, 56 L.R.A. 261, 87 Am. St. Rep. 897, 87 N. W. 804; Burnap v. Albert, Taney, 244, Fed. Cas. No. 2,170; Cooper v. Armour, 8 L.R.A. 47, 42 Fed. 215; Bishop v. American Preservers' Co. 51 Fed. 272; Wade v. National Bank, 114 Fed. 377; Tamblyn v. Johnson, 62 C. C. A. 601, 126 Fed. 270; Wilkinson v. Goodfellow-Brooks Shoe Co. 141 Fed. 218.

Even in jurisdictions where a suit may be maintained without interference with persons or property, the want of probable cause must be very clearly proven. There is in this case no evidence at all of want of probable cause.

Eickhoff v. Fidelity & C. Co. 74 Minn. 139, 76 N. W. 1030; Ferguson v. Arnow, 142 N. Y. 583, 37 N. E. 626.

The same or an even greater intensity of proof is required when a patent is challenged. The patent is of itself prima facie proof that the patentee was the original and first inventor, and the one attacking it has a much greater burden than merely producing a preponderance of evidence against it.

Seymour v. Osborne, 11 Wall. 516, 538, 20 L. ed. 33, 37; Coffin v. Ogden, 18 Wall. 120, 124, 21 L. ed. 821, 823; Cantrell v. Wallick, 117 U. S. 689, 695, 29 L. ed. 1017, 1019, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 970; Barbed Wire Patent (Washburn & M. Mfg. Co. v. Beat 'Em All Barbed Wire Co.) 143 U. S. 275, 284, 36 L. ed. 154, 158, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 443, 450; Deering v. Winona Harvester Works, 155 U. S. 286, 300, 39 L. ed. 153, 158, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 118.

The complainants have waived their right to the penalty under the Sherman law by bringing suit in the state court for malicious prosecution.

7 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 364; 15 Cyc. 260; Robb v. Vos, 155 U. S. 13, 39 L. ed. 52, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 4; William W. Bierce v. Hutchins, 205 U. S. 340, 346, 51 L. ed. 828, 833, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; A. Klipstein & Co. v. Grant, 72 C. C. A. 511, 141 Fed. 72; Water, Light & Gas Co. v. Hutchinson, 19 L.R.A. (N.S.) 219, 90 C. C. A. 547, 160 Fed. 41; Thompson v. Howard, 31 Mich. 312.

A patent owner may notify infringers of his claims and threaten them with a suit unless they desist. If he does this in good faith, believing his claims to be valid, and brings his suit with reasonable diligence, he is acting within his rights and incurs no liability.

Kelley v. Ypsilanti Dress-Stay Mfg. Co. 10 L.R.A. 686, 44 Fed. 19; Computing Scale Co. v. National Computing Scale Co. 79 Fed. 962; A. B. Farquhar Co. v. National Harrow Co. 49 L.R.A. 755, 42 C. C. A. 600, 102 Fed. 714; Adriance, P. & Co. v. National Harrow Co. 58 C. C. A. 163, 121 Fed. 827; Warren Featherbone Co. v. Landauer, 151 Fed. 130; Dittgen v. Racine Paper Goods Co. 164 Fed. 84; Mitchell v. International Tailoring Co. 169 Fed. 145; 30 Cyc. 1054.

The patent owner has the right to appeal to the court for the protection of his patent. Sometimes the exercise of this right carries with it a damage in lessening the sales of the challenged device made or used by the defendants. Such damage is an incident of the suit and cannot be made the ground of a recovery.

Kelley v. Ypsilanti Dress-Stay Mfg. Co. 10 L.R.A. 686, 44 Fed. 19.

The warnings, considered as a separate cause of action, were barred by the statute of limitations.

State v. Bonness, 99 Minn. 392, 109 N. W. 703.

The construction given by the highest tribunal in the state to the state statute of limitations is adopted in this court.

Balkam v. Woodstock Iron Co. 154 U. S. 177, 38 L. ed. 953, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1010; Leffingwell v. Warren, 2 Black, 599, 603, 17 L. ed. 261, 262.

The Sherman law operates only on restraint of trade. There is no violation of the law unless free competition is directly and substantially restricted.

Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 331, 48 L. ed. 679, 697, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436.

The fundamental thing is free competition where the public is entitled to it. When the particular thing is not within the field of competition, it is not within the Sherman law, and restraints of trade in it are not punishable under that law, because they invade no right of the public. Examples of noncompetitive things are contracts or combinations relating to trade secrets (Board of Trade v. Christey Grain & Stock Co. 198 U. S. 236, 252, 49 L. ed. 1031, 1039, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 637), and those relating to personal service (State v. Duluth Bd. of Trade, 107 Minn. 506, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1260, 121 N. W. 395).

The monopoly of the United States patent is merely the exclusion of the public for a definite term from something new and useful not theretofore known or used by it; and this new and useful thing becomes public property, barring only the limited but exclusive term given to the inventor. The inventor takes nothing from the public, but, on the contrary, gives the public something that it did not have, and presumably, but for his talent and industry, would never have had.

Grant v. Raymond, 6 Pet. 218, 8 L. ed. 376; Bloomer v. McQuewan, 14 How. 539, 14 L. ed. 532; United States v. American Bell Teleph. Co. 167 U. S. 224, 42 L. ed. 144, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 809; Continental Paper Bag Co. v. Eastern Paper Bag Co. 210 U. S. 405, 52 L. ed. 1122, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 748; Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 645, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364.

The Sherman law, if extended to patents and combinations in patents, would not prevent the granting of any number of patents in the same art to the same inventor. In fact, unless prohibited by that law, an inventor can buy later inventions made by others and unite them with his own for his own advantage. This is shown by the opinion in United States v. American Bell Teleph. Co. 167 U. S. 224, 249, 42 L. ed. 144, 157, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 809; Indiana Mfg. Co. v. J. I. Case Threshing Mach. Co. 83 C. C. A. 343, 154 Fed. 365.

Patent owners may lawfully secure for themselves, through a combination of their patents, a traffic, however extensive, in unpatented articles.

Henry v. A. B. Dick Co. 224 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 645, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 364.

Mr. Amasa C. Paul also argued the cause, and, with Mr. W. A. Speery, filed a brief for defendants in error, the Owatonna Manufacturing Company and Frank LaBare.

24] *Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Action for the recovery of damages in the sum of $406,881.60, being the total of certain specific items mentioned in the complaint, and for all other damages sustained by plaintiffs (so designated throughout this opinion) by virtue of the facts stated, including all sums that they are entitled to under the provisions of the anti-trust act of 1890 [26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200], together with an attorneys' fee. The grounds of recovery are set forth in the complaint, which, inclusive of exhibits, occupies 150 pages of the record, and seems to make impossible any attempt at brevity or condensation. The case, however, is not in wide compass, and attention may be concentrated upon certain considerations. The contention of plaintiffs in its most general form is that the defendants entered into a conspiracy or combination in restraint of interstate trade, and in execution of it plaintiffs' interstate business was destroyed by defendants wrongfully prosecuting two suits against them for the infringement of patents under which the articles of their trade were manufactured, and by circulating slanders and libels to the effect that such articles were infringements of defendants' patents. A cause of action is hence asserted under § 7 of the anti-trust act. The section is as follows: "Any person who shall be injured in his business or property by any other person or corporation by reason of anything forbidden or declared to be unlawful by this act may sue therefor in any circuit court of the United States in the district in which the defendant resides or is found, without respect to the amount in controversy, and shall recover threefold the damages by him sustained, and the costs of suit, including a reasonable attorneys' fee."

To justify recovery, therefore, injury must result from something forbidden or made unlawful by the act, and *what is[25 forbidden or made unlawful is expressed in §§ 1 and 2. Section 1 is as follows: "Every contract, combination in the form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states, or with foreign nations, is hereby declared to be illegal. . . ."

The acts forbidden are made a misdemeanor. And by § 2 it is also made a misdemeanor for any person to "monopolize, or attempt to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize, any part of the trade or commerce among the several states, or with foreign nations."

The question occurs, Do the facts of the case show a breach of the law by defendants and injury resulting from it to plaintiffs? The following facts are alleged: On the 24th of February, 1898, or just prior thereto, certain corporations and one partnership were engaged in making or selling creamery supplies, including combined churns and butter workers, and transporting them in state and interstate commerce. All of the corporations and the partnership were in direct competition in their lines of business, and as the result of it all of the articles manufactured and sold by them were sold at no more than a fair price and legitimate profit. The corporations controlled over 90 per cent of the business of manufacturing and selling creamery and dairy supplies in the states of Michigan and Indiana and in all the states west and in some of the states east thereof, manufacturing the articles in one or more of the states, and shipping by the same common carriers from the states where manufactured to other states, and distributing and selling such articles there.

On the 24th of February, 1898, the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, one of the corporations, and its stockholders, then engaged in the manufacture and sale of dairy and creamery supplies, but not 26]of *combined churns and butter workers, it being as to the latter only the agent for their sale, entered into a contract with the other corporations and the partnership, by which it was agreed to increase the capital stock of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company to enable it to purchase the property and business of the other corporations, parties to the contract, including in the property all patents and applications for patents.

The contract is very elaborate and verbose, but we need not give its particular covenants, as no point is made upon them; it being only alleged and contended that its purpose and effect were that the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company should acquire the property and business of the other corporations, and that while the latter should cease to exist, they should be represented as continuing as separate and independent concerns and competitors in the market with the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, and with one another, while in truth and fact there would be no competition between them.

It is alleged that, in execution of the purpose of the contract, traveling men from the different houses, under instructions from the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, met and secretly arranged the bid each should interpose, determining by by lot and other ways who should interpose the lowest bid and who the highest.

The Owatonna Company was not a party to that contract, but it is contended that it participated in or is brought into the scheme and purpose of the contract by certain agreements entered into by it with the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company. They are all attached to the complaint as exhibits, and may be described as transferring certain patents or the right to use certain patents to the Creamery 27]Package Manufacturing *Company. A 402 brief summary of them is given in the margin.†

*It is alleged that on July 8, 1904, the[28 Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the Owatonna Company brought suit separately in the circuit court of the United States for the first division of the state of Minnesota, at Winona, against the plaintiffs, charging infringement of patents for churns and butter workers. The bills in the suits are attached to the complaint in this action and are in the usual form. Process was issued and the plaintiffs here answered. Upon proofs taken a decree was entered in favor of plaintiffs and against the Owatonna Company in the suit brought by it. It is not alleged in the complaint, but it is in the answer of the Creamery *Package Manufacturing Company, and[29 not denied, that it obtained a decree adjudging plaintiffs here infringers of the patents which were the subject of the suit.

It is alleged that the defendants here conspired with one another to commence and

†The first of the agreements between the companies was made April 19, 1897 (that was before the contract of February 24, 1898) and recited that the Owatonna Company was the owner of certain patents covering combined churns and butter workers, and was manufacturing the same, and that, as the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company was desirous of handling the same as sole agents, the agreement was made. It conveyed five patents issued between January, 1893, and August, 1896, and applications for another. There were provisions as to the size, material, and other details; also as to royalties to be paid to the Disbrow Manufacturing Company. And the Owatonna Company agreed to protect the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company from all suits for infringement of the patents, or claims for damages arising out of the sales of the churns, and promptly and vigorously to attack infringers, and to procure patents on all improvements made by it or by any person in its behalf.

There was an addition to the contract, made June 4, 1897, in regard to the repair parts of the "Winner" churns and the repair and perfection of the same, and the rebate from the billing price.

On January 12, 1898, a supplemental contract was made by the same parties as to the disposition of the royalties received under a license contract made September 30, 1897, with the Cornish, Curtis, & Greene Manufacturing Company, of Fort Atkinson, Wisconsin.

On June 4, 1898, another agreement was made between the parties which referred to the agreement of April, 1897, and to the pendency of litigation based on the infringement or charges of infringement of the patents with which that contract was concerned. For the purpose of adjusting all claims growing out of such infringe-prosecute the suits, and that they were commenced and prosecuted maliciously and without probable cause, whereby plaintiffs were caused certain items of damages.

The other allegations of the complaint need not be repeated in detail. They are to the effect that the contract of February 24, 1898, was made in violation of law, to restrain state and interstate trade and commerce, and that all that was done under it was in pursuance and execution of that purpose, including the suits brought against plaintiffs by the Owatonna Company and the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company for the infringement of patents. That prior to the bringing of those suits, plaintiffs had a good and established trade and market for their churns, and were manufacturing and shipping them in the states of Wisconsin, Iowa, and South Dakota; and knowing this, and fearing that such trade would be continued in those states, and be extended to other states, defendants commenced the suits for infringement, and prior thereto and since have written letters and talked to purchasers and prospective purchasers of plaintiffs' churns, threatening lawsuits and actions for damages for infringement of the patents described in the bills, and also threatened suits for injunction, and by this means destroyed plaintiffs' state and interstate trade.

That plaintiff D. E. Virtue and one Martin Deeg were the first joint inventors of a churn and butter worker, and that a patent was issued therefor, No. 634,074, under which they manufactured those articles and sold them in state and interstate commerce except as they had been prevented by the suits brought against them as hereinbefore stated. And by elaborate allegations the patents upon *which[30 those suits were brought are attacked for want of invention and novelty.

That the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company has purchased the property and business of other competitive concerns, and that it has had during the last several years contracts with many and numerous dealers in the articles sold by which it required them to purchase such goods exclusively of it at certain fixed and maintained prices, and to sell only in certain designated territory, the object of which is to secure a monopoly to the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, and to restrain interstate commerce. That all of the acts detailed were done in pursuance of a common scheme and conspiracy on the part of all of the defendants during the years 1897 and 1898, and ever since maintained and carried out, limiting the production of creamery supplies, fixing and determining their prices, restraining trade in them, and monopolizing over 90 per cent of their production and sale, of which, prior to one year before the bringing of this action, plaintiff had no knowledge or notice except the two suits in equity and the contract by which Virtue and Deeg ment, and settling the litigation between the Owatonna Company and F. B. Fargo & Company, whose rights the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company had acquired, it was agreed that one of the suits which was named, and in which proofs had been taken, should be brought to a speedy hearing and all other suits dismissed.

---

The Creamery Package Manufacturing Company agreed not to manufacture the machine known as the "Winner" or the "Disbrow," both referred to in the contract of April, 1897, called the "sales contract," or any other of a described kind made by the Owatonna Company, but was at liberty to manufacture and sell churns and butter workers of any other construction. Satisfaction of all royalties, damages, and costs was agreed on.

The sales contract was continued in force, and there was added to it a provision entitling the Owatonna Company to furnish 55 per cent in value at list price of the churns and butter workers sold by the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company in each year after the date of the contract. If less than that per cent should be made and furnished by the Owatonna Company, certain sums were provided to be paid by the other company. And the latter company agreed not to discriminate against the machines manufactured by the Owatonna company in favor of machines of its own manufacture or of other manufacturers, and that it would give to the machines of the Owatonna Company the same effort and energy to effect their sale. The Owatonna Company agreed to protect the patents and prosecute infringers and give assistance to the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company in the prosecution of infringers. Permission was given to the Owatonna Company to use the "Disbrow" and "Winner" churns owned by the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company or to be acquired by it. There was also an agreement made on the 4th of June, 1898, between the parties in settlement of claims on account of the use of patents with certain other parties besides F. B. Fargo & Company, whose business the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company had acquired. There was a provision for paying royalties to the Disbrow Company, with other details not necessary to mention.

On January 1, 1903, another agreement was entered into between the parties which disposed of and adjusted rights and contentions as to patents for a machine called a pasteurizer and cream ripener. By an agreement made January 1, 1903, the prices provided for in the sales contract were changed in certain particulars.

transferred to the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company the exclusive right to manufacture the churn and butter worker under patent No. 634,074 for the period of three years. That they did not know that that contract was procured as part of the schemes of defendants. That they were at no time parties to acts of defendants, and did not know of the wrongful contracts and combinations until after the time limited to take the testimony in the two equity suits.

The defendants answered the complaint, admitting some of its allegations and denying others. They alleged performance of the contract between the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the plaintiff Virtue and said Deeg, and opposed to the charges of the complaint certain affirmative matters, including two actions brought in the state court.

31] *A jury was impaneled to try the issues, which under the instructions of the court, found a verdict for defendants upon which a judgment was duly entered. It was affirmed by the circuit court of appeals. 102 C. C. A. 413, 179 Fed. 115.

The circuit court and the circuit court of appeals both decided that the damages which plaintiffs alleged they sustained were not a consequence of a violation by defendants of the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust law. Both courts assumed, for the purpose of their decision, that the contract of February 24, 1898, between the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the other manufacturers and sellers of churns and butter workers was a combination in restraint of trade; but both courts held that the Owatonna Company was not a party to it, nor became associated subsequently in its scheme.

Of the infringement suits the court of appeals said they exhibited "a case where two suits were brought, one by a party to a lawful agreement, the other by a party to an unlawful agreement, for the infringement of patents owned by them respectively, and where both parties were doing no more then exercising their legal rights." And the court declared in effect that it could see no sinister significance in the suits being simultaneous, and said, further, that after a thorough examination of the record, it agreed with the circuit court that there was no evidence offered at the trial "'which would warrant the jury in finding that any agreement of that kind existed.'"

The plaintiffs attack this conclusion in twenty-one propositions, some of which are of very broad generality, and all, counsel contend, are supported by the decisions of this and other courts. It is quite impossible to consider them in detail without a review and repetition of the cases. The view we take of the case makes this unnecessary. The case is, as we have said, in narrow compass. The complaint charges a violation of the Sherman law, and, as a means of accomplishing its purpose, the destruction of *plaintiffs' interstate trade[32 by a malicious litigation of their rights. A necessary element of the charge is the co-operation of at least the corporate defendants in the purpose, and this determines our inquiry. In answering it we shall assume, as the lower courts assumed, that by the contract of February, 1898, the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the corporations competing with it entered into a combination offensive to the law. Did the Owatonna Company participate in it, or subsequently join it or co-operate to execute its purposes? The question must be answered in the negative, as we shall proceed to show.

The Owatonna Company was a manufacturer of churns and butter workers under various patents owned by it, which articles it sold throughout the United States, and by the contract of April 19, 1897, it constituted the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company its sales agent of them, the latter company not making churns and butter workers. The contract was a perfectly legal one, and preceded by some time the agreement of the 24th of February, 1898, entered into between the latter company and other corporations. There were contracts between the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the Owatonna Company subsequent to the latter date, but all of them were supplemental to the first one and had no illegal taint, nor did they affect it with illegal taint. It is true they granted rights to the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, and exclusive rights, but this was no violation of law. The owner of a patent has exclusive rights,—rights of making, using, and selling. He may keep them or transfer them to another,—keep some of them and transfer others. This is elementary; and, keeping it in mind, there is no trouble in estimating the character of such rights or their transfer. Of course, patents and patent rights cannot be made a cover for a violation of law, as we said in Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20, ante, 107, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 9. But *patents are not so used[33 when the rights conferred upon them by law are only exercised. The agreement of the 19th of April, 1897, constituted, as we said, the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company a sales agent of the churns and butter workers made by the Owatonna Company and fixed their list price. The patents under which the articles were manufactured were stated, and it was provided that the Owatonna Company should protect the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company from all suits for infringement, defend the validity of the patents, and promptly attack infringers. This provision is especially urged by plaintiffs as showing a common and illegal purpose between the companies. It has not that quality. It is but an assurance of title to the rights conveyed.

But it is said that the contract between the companies dated June 4, 1898, exhibits knowledge by the Owatonna Company of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company's purpose, and "fitted into the scheme of the two defendant corporations to get a monopoly in the United States;" and this, it is said further, "can only be when all of the doings . . . are looked at as a whole from beginning to end." We cannot concur. We have seen that the contract of June 4, 1898 (inserted above in the margin), was but a settlement of claims growing out of reciprocal charges of infringement, and it has no other connection with the agreement of February, 1898, than that some of the claims were against corporations which were parties to that agreement. It would be far-fetched to say that the Owatonna Company could not assert rights or protect rights because they were asserted or sought to be protected against corporations which had become members of an illegal combination, without participating in the guilt of such combination and becoming a joint conspirator in its purposes. But it may be said that we are considering the tran-[34]actions isolatedly and ignoring *their combined effect. That indeed would be a fault, but in order to compute their combined effect we must estimate what strength they have separately, and so far, on the face of the contracts, there is nothing to inculpate the Owatonna Company.

But a united purpose is sought to be established between it and the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company by the testimony of witnesses to the effect that the contract of April 19, 1897, between the Disbrow Manufacturing Company and the Owatonna Company, was urged by the president of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, who represented that the acceptance of royalties by the Disbrow Company was better than a continuance of competition. It is not practicable to give all the testimony of what preceded and induced that contract. The part most relevant to our inquiry is that which related to the competition which existed between the companies. A witness, who was president of the Owatonna Company at the time, testified that it was suggested to him and other officers of the company by Mr. Gates, president of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, that a settlement ought to be brought about by letter or otherwise with the Disbrow Manufacturing Company "so as to get the two churns which were then being manufactured together," and stated that he (Gates) had had some conferences with the Disbrow Company, and he thought that if the officers of the Owatonna Company would go to Mankato "there might be an arrangement made whereby that business could be brought in connection with ours, and in that way eliminate the competition that at that time existed between the Owatonna Manufacturing Company and the Disbrow Manufacturing Company." This object was expressed by the witnesses in different ways.

The president of the Disbrow Manufacturing Company testified that Gates urged that the Disbrow Company should "stop manufacturing and make a contract with *the Owatonna Manufacturing Com-[35]pany, and let them have all our patents on combined churns and butter workers and other things, and combine the whole business under one head, and let them do all of the manufacturing." The witness testified that he at first rejected the proposition and resented the manner in which the proposal was made, Gates going so far as to declare, with a profane accompaniment, "You will do it or we will put you out of business." But subsequently negotiations were resumed and the president of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company explained that he wanted matters settled, litigation stopped, "and a new arrangement made so that the whole thing should be run under one head and one control," and in that way "control the whole churn business." The witness formulated the terms, which resulted, after some days of negotiation, in the contract of April 19, 1897. But during the negotiations the witness did not see the Owatonna Company's representatives until they reached the point of signing the contract.

These declarations seem to be very arbitrary and unjustifiable when standing alone, and to have had no other purpose than the ruthless crushing of a competitor in the same line of business. They take on another character, or rather the object of the negotiations and the contracts which resulted from them take on another character, when all the testimony is considered. It will be observed from the date of those negotiations and of the contracts that they preceded by nearly a year the contract between the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and its competitors, and could have had no relation to it. And, besides, they had a natural and adequate inducement. They were an adjustment of disputes and litigation growing out of a contract between the Disbrow Company and the Owatonna Company concerning the very same patents. In one suit the Owatonna Company was plaintiff against the Disbrow Company; in 36]another suit the latter *company was plaintiff against the Owatonna Company, and both suits were based on disputes as to rights or obligations arising from the contract of October 2, 1893. The testimony also shows some controversy between the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the Disbrow Company in regard to other patents, but the effect of it is not easy to estimate. There was also a contract entered into between the Disbrow Company and the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company on the 19th of April, 1897, settling matters growing out of a contract between those companies, made on the 12th of October, 1896, by which the Disbrow Company made the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company its exclusive sales agent for churns and butter workers, and mortgaged to the latter company its plant. The other provisions of the contract concern the adjustment of the relations between all of the companies under the contemporaneous contracts, and need not be stated in detail. It is clear, then, as we have already said, that what transpired on the 19th of April, 1897,—negotiations and contracts,—had no relation to the contract of February, 1898, and had for their inducement and object the settlement of controversies and rights growing out of the contract of October 2, 1893, between the Disbrow Company and the Owatonna Company, and that of October 12, 1896, between the Disbrow Company and the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company, and the proposition of the latter company to become the sales agent of the churns made by the Owatonna Company. All of this is very complicated in the statement, but is simple enough in the results, and can be definitely estimated as to actual and legal effect. We may therefore sum up by saying that the Disbrow Company, by its contract with the Owatonna Company, did nothing more than confirm or enlarge the rights which the Owatonna Company had obtained, by the contract of 1893, and conveyed to it 37]the exclusive right *in the patents for certain named royalties. This was no violation of law. The Owatonna Company did nothing more in its contract with the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company than to make that company its exclusive sales agent, and this was no violation of law. Both contracts had natural and adequate legal inducements and conveyed rights that could, under the law, be conveyed, and, as a necessary incident to the conveyance, one only of the parties could thereafter exercise them. It may be that the Disbrow Company was to an extent in competition with the Owatonna Company, but it was a competition in part, at least, which, it was contended, was illegally conducted against rights which had been transferred in 1893. But, be that as it may, we repeat, patent rights may be conveyed partially or entirely, and the monopoly of use, of manufacture, or of sale, is not one condemned by law.

It is, however, urged that the infringement suits brought by the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company and the Owatonna Company against plaintiffs were provided for by the contracts between the Owatonna Company and the Disbrow Company, and their coincidence in time is urged as proof of concerted action on the part of defendants and of a conspiracy to destroy plaintiffs' business. The contention is that the bringing of those suits was not a single and isolated act, but was a part of the more comprehensive plan and scheme to secure a monopoly in the United States of the business of making and selling creamery supplies, or, more accurately, counsel, say, to continue and maintain the monopoly already acquired. And it is contended that the attempt was successful in that it destroyed plaintiffs' business. That these contentions are untenable we have demonstrated. The contracts, we have shown, were legal conveyances of rights, and the provision for the prosecution of infringement suits was but an assurance of those rights. Patents would be of little *value[38 if infringers of them could not be notified of the consequences of infringement, or proceeded against in the courts. Such action, considered by itself, cannot be said to be illegal. Patent rights, it is true, may be asserted in malicious prosecutions as other rights, or asserted rights, may be. But this is not an action for malicious prosecution. It is an action under the Sherman anti-trust act for the violation of the provisions of that act, seeking treble damages. This, indeed, plaintiffs take special pains to allege, that there may be no confusion about the right or grounds or extent of recovery. The testimony shows that no wrong whatever was committed by the Owatonna Company, and the fact that it failed in its suit against plaintiffs does not convict it of any.

This is enough to dispose of the case, for the foundation of the complaint is that the defendants entered into a contract or combination in restraint of trade which caused damage to plaintiffs; and the guilt of the individual defendants and of the two corporations and of all of their officers, servants, and stockholders, is very carefully alleged. It was in this aspect that the case was tried.

But plaintiffs urge that the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company was of itself a combination offensive to the statute, and that they were entitled to go to the jury as to that company. But the contention was not made in the circuit court nor was it made in the circuit court of appeals. The case was tried and ruled upon, as we have seen, on the ground of the co-operation of the defendants in a scheme of monopoly and restraint of trade. There was no liability asserted in the circuit court or in the circuit court of appeals against one of the defendants separately from the others. Concert and co-operation was asserted against all, and a ruling was not invoked as to the separate liability of either. One Frank LaBare was a party defendant, and as to him plaintiffs made a motion that "the case be dismissed and 39]dropped." The court denied the *motion for some reason, and then plaintiffs' counsel said: "We desire to proceed with the case as against the defendants, the Owatonna Manufacturing Company and the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company." The plaintiffs then offered to prove that they had not infringed the patents sued on by the defendants. It is manifest, therefore, that the separate liability of the Creamery Package Manufacturing Company is an afterthought and urged in this court for the first time.

There are twenty-seven errors assigned upon offers of testimony excluded or upon other rulings of the circuit court. These we have examined and find that, in the view taken by the courts below of the case and that which we take, there was no error of substance committed.

Judgment affirmed.

---

CAMERON SEPTIC TANK COMPANY, Appt.,
v.
CITY OF KNOXVILLE, in the County of Marion and State of Iowa.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 39–50.)

Patents — term — expiration of foreign patent — effect of treaty.

1. The term of a United States patent which, under U. S. Rev. Stat, § 4887, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3382, would expire with the expiration of the term of a British patent previously granted for the same invention, was not extended by the provisions of the treaty of Brussels of December 14, 1900 (32 Stat. at L. 1936), art. 4 bis, that patents applied for in the different contracting states by persons admitted to the benefit of the convention shall be independent of the patent obtained for the same invention in other states, and that this provision shall apply to existing patents, but such provisions, if construed as they must be, in accordance with the declaration of the Brussels Convention at the instance of the American delegates, affect only those existing patents whose terms might otherwise be shortened by the lapsing of foreign patents.

[For other cases, see Patents, IV. a; Treaties, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Patents — term — effect of treaty.

2. The omission from the act of March 3, 1903 (32 Stat. at L. 1225, chap. 1019, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1453), enacted to make effective the Brussels treaty of December 14, 1900, for the protection of industrial property, of any provision to carry out art. 4 bis, which declares that patents applied for in the different contracting states by persons admitted to the benefit of the convention shall be independent of the patent obtained for the same invention in other states, and that this provision shall apply to existing patents, which article, in the light of subsequent congressional action and of legislative action of some of the other contracting nations, cannot well be deemed self-executing, leaves in force as to existing United States patents the provisions of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 4887, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3382, under which such patents will expire with the expiration of the term of a foreign patent previously granted for the same invention.

[For other cases, see Patents, IV. a; Treaties, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 82.]

Argued December 11 and 12, 1912. Decided January 20, 1913.

APPEAL from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of Iowa to review a decree which dismissed the bill in a suit founded upon the infringement of a patent. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Henry Love Clarke argued the cause and filed a brief for appellant:

The language of article 4 bis of the treaty —"shall be independent," and "this provision shall apply to patents existing"—is the language of self-executing law, and not of a mere contract to legislate. It exactly corresponds to the language "shall be valid," which Chief Justice Marshall, in considering ing a treaty relating to grants of lands, declared would be self-executing, and "would have repealed those acts of Congress which were repugnant to it."

NOTE.—On the effect of foreign patents—see note to Grant v. Walter, 37 L. ed. U. S. 553.

Foster v. Neilson, 2 Pet. 253, 314, 7 L. ed. 415, 435; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Co. 84 C. C. A. 76, 155 Fed. 844; Hennebique Constr. Co. v. Myers, 97 C. C. A. 289, 172 Fed. 887; Chew Heong v. United States, 112 U. S. 536, 539, 540, 542, 543, 28 L. ed. 770–773, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 255; Orr v. Hodgson, 4 Wheat. 453, 463, 464, 4 L. ed. 613, 616; Chirac v. Chirac, 2 Wheat, 259, 270, 271, 277, 278, 4 L. ed. 234, 237–239; French Republic v. Saratoga Vichy Spring Co. 191 U. S. 427, 439, 48 L. ed. 247, 253, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 145; Jones v. Meehan, 175 U. S. 1, 19, 20, 44 L. ed. 49, 57, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1.

A self-executing clause in a treaty, plainly securing a private right, is as much the law of the land as an act of Congress, and repeals any prior act of Congress repugnant to it.

J. Ribas y Hijo v. United States, 194 U. S. 315, 324, 48 L. ed. 994, 996, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727.

There is notning ambiguous in the body of the act of March 3, 1903, and the mere title cannot import into it a thing upon which it is entirely silent.

United States v. Oregon & C. R. Co. 164 U. S. 526, 541, 41 L. ed. 541, 545, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 165.

After the treaty, in the plain words of self-executing law, had confirmed to and already vested in the patentees the title to the rest of the "seventeen years" named (in accordance with the still effective U. S. Rev. Stat. § 4884, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3381) in the grant on the sealed face of the existing patents, no subsequent act of Congress could devest that title.

Society for Propagation of Gospel v. New Haven, 8 Wheat. 464, 493, 5 L. ed. 662, 669; Walker, Patents, 4th ed. 139; McClurg v. Kingsland, 1 How. 202, 206, 11 L. ed. 102, 103.

A patent right is as much a "property right" as is the title to land, and may be secured by treaty as well as by statute.

Jones v. Meehan, 175 U. S. 1, 19, 20, 32, 44 L. ed. 49, 57, 61, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1; Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 12 Pet. 657, 747, 9 L. ed. 1233, 1269; Orr v. Hodgson, 4 Wheat. 453, 463, 464, 4 L. ed. 613, 616; Society for Propagation of Gospel v. New Haven, 8 Wheat. 464, 489, 490, 5 L. ed. 662, 668.

Prior negotiations cannot modify the words of the treaty.

Little v. Watson, 32 Me. 223; New York Rep. 531; The Amiable Isabella, 6 Wheat. 1, 71, 72, 5 L. ed. 191, 208.

Mr. Wallace R. Lane argued the cause, and, with Messrs. R. L. Welch and Samuel H. Crosby, filed a brief for appellee:

The treaty of 1902 does not extend the life of the Cameron et als. patent in suit.

Thomson-Houston Electric Co. v. McLean, 82 C. C. A. 629, 153 Fed. 883; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Co. 84 C. C. A. 76, 155 Fed. 842; Malignani v. Hill-Wright Electric Co. 177 Fed. 430; Malignani v. Jasper Marsh Consol. Electric Lamp Co. 180 Fed. 442; Commercial Acetylene Co. v. Searchlight Gas Co. 188 Fed. 85; Highland Glass Co. v. Schmertz Wire Glass Co. 102 C. C. A. 316, 178 Fed. 951; Westinghouse Electric & Mfg. Co. v. Bullock Electric & Mfg. Co. (unreported); Leeds & C. Co. v. Victor Talking Mach. Co. 213 U. S. 301, 53 L. ed. 805, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495; Rousseau v. Brown, 21 App. D. C. 73, 104 Off. Gaz. 1120; Butterworth v. Boral, 97 Off. Gaz. 1596; Ex parte Zwack, 76 Off. Gaz. 1855.

The treaty-making representatives of the government are controlled by and cannot go beyond the Constitution of the United States.

De Geofroy v. Riggs, 133 U. S. 258, 267, 33 L. ed. 642, 645, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 295; Ft. Leavenworth R. Co. v. Lowe, 114 U. S. 525, 29 L. ed. 264, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 995; Jones v. Walker, 2 Paine, 688, Fed. Cas. No. 7,507.

The treaty-making department of the government can only bind the United States in relation to patents to such extent as Congress later ratifies, as Congress has the power to grant patents for limited times, under the Constitution, and this power cannot be devested by the treaty-making power.

Evans v. Robinson, Brunner, Col. Cas. 400, Fed. Cas. No. 4,571.

Treaties relative to patents to become binding on citizens of United States must be enacted by Congress.

Foster v. Neilson, 2 Pet. 253, 313, 314, 7 L. ed. 415, 435, 436; 47 Off. Gaz. 397.

To the extent that Congress did not adopt the provisions of the treaty of 1902, it repealed and modified this treaty in conformance with the intention expressed in the minutes of the convention, to the effect that it should not apply to patents in existence at the time of the ratification of the treaty.

Dallemagne v. Moisan, 197 U. S. 169, 175, 49 L. ed. 709, 711, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 422; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Co. 84 C. C. A. 76, 155 Fed. 848; Commercial Acetylene Co. v. Searchlight Gas Co. 197 Fed. 919; Taylor

Indians v. United States, 170 U. S. 1, 22, 23, 42 L. ed. 927, 934, 935, 18 Sup. Ct. 468

v. Morton, 2 Curt. C. C. 457, Fed. Cas. No. 13,999; Cherokee Tobacco (Boudinot v. United States) 11 Wall. 616, 20 L. ed. 227; Head Money Cases (Edye v. Robertson) 112 U. S. 580, 28 L. ed. 798, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; Re Ah Lung, 18 Fed. 28; Horner v. United States, 143 U. S. 570, 36 L. ed. 266, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; La Republique Francaise v. Schultz, 57 Fed. 37.

Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

A bill in equity was brought by appellant as successor to the rights of an invention patented under United States letters patent to Edwin Cameron et al. for a process and an apparatus for treating sewage, No. 634,423, dated October 3, 1899. The bill contained the usual allegations and prayed for an injunction to restrain appellee from the use of the invention. Appellee filed a plea to the bill, in which it alleged that the invention had been previously patented in Great Britain by letters patent dated November 8, 1895, and that that patent had expired on or before the 8th day of Novem-41]ber, 1909, being the expiration of *the term for which it was granted, and that therefore the United States patent expired and became terminated by law, and it being stipulated that the bill should be considered as filed as of that date, and as the bill was not filed with the purpose or intention of applying for or obtaining an injunction before the expiration of the British patent, no injunctive or equitable relief could be had. A dismissal of the bill was therefore prayed. The decree of the court recited the facts of the plea and adjudged that the patent had expired as therein alleged, and that its expiration was not prevented "by any effect of the treaty of Brussels of December 14, 1900 [32 Stat. at L. 1936], which treaty and the construction thereof was drawn in question on the plea in this cause;" and that therefore the court was without jurisdiction, the complainant having a plain and adequate remedy at law. This appeal was then prosecuted under § 5 of the circuit court of appeals act (26 Stat. at L. 826, chap. 517, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 488).

The single question here is whether the United States patent expired with the British patent according to the laws which existed when it was issued, or whether its existence was preserved by the treaty of Brussels.

At the time the patent was issued, § 4884, Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3381), made the term of a patent seventeen years; and by § 4887 it was provided that the receiving of a foreign patent did not prevent the granting of a United States patent. It was, however, provided that "every patent granted for an invention which has been previously patented in a foreign country shall be so limited as to expire at the same time with the foreign patent; or, if there be more than one, at the same time with the one having the shortest term; and in no case shall it be in force more than seventeen years."

The section coming up for judicial consideration, it was decided that it assumed that the foreign patent previously granted was one granted for a definite term, that the United States patent should expire with that *term, and that it was not to be[42 limited by any lapsing or forfeiture of any portion of the term of the foreign patent, by means of the operation of a condition subsequent, according to the foreign statute. Pohl v. Anchor Brewing Co. 134 U. S. 381, 386, 33 L. ed. 953, 955, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 577. And it was held that the American patent is limited by law, whether it is so expressed or not in the patent itself, to expire with the foreign patent having the shortest term. Bate Refrigerator Co. v. George H. Hammond & Co. 129 U. S. 151, 167, 32 L. ed. 645, 650, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 225; Bate Refrigerator Co. v. Sulzberger, 157 U. S. 43, 39 L. ed. 613, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 508; Leeds & C. Co. v. Victor Talking Mach. Co. 213 U. S. 301, 325, 53 L. ed. 805, 815, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495.

Appellee contends that these decisions and the cited sections of the Revised Statutes constituted the law of the United States patent to Cameron, and caused it to terminate with the expiration of the term of the British patent. The argument is that it was granted not for seventeen years, but for a term to be measured by that of the foreign patent, enduring the full term for which the latter was granted, but no longer, though on its face it was to run seventeen years. The appellant, opposing the contention, insists that the treaty of Brussels has superseded § 4887, and has freed the Cameron patent from subjection to the provisions of that section. It is the effect of the contention that, though the patent was issued for a definite term, as decided by the cited cases, the term was enlarged by the treaty.

Appellant candidly admits that there are cases adverse to its contention, but seeks to limit their strength of persuasion or authority to one only, and to that one opposes the reasoning and precedent of another. The cases so put in opposition are United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Co. 84 C. C. A. 76, 155 Fed. 842, decided by the circuit court of appeals of the first circuit against the effect of the treaty contended for, and Hem bique Constr. Co. v. Myers, 97 C. C. A. 289, 172 Fed. 869, decided by the circuit court 43]of appeals of the third circuit, *which is asserted to be the other way. But the cases do not present the antagonistic authority of two courts. Judge Archbald, whose views in the latter case are relied on by appellant, stated in a subsequent one (Union Typewriter Co. v. Smith, 173 Fed. 288, 299) that this opinion was not that of the court.

The other cases in which the Brussels treaty was considered, and in which it was decided that it did not enlarge the term of an American patent beyond the term of a foreign patent for the same invention, are the following: Malignani v. Hill-Wright Electric Co. 177 Fed. 430; Malignani v. Jasper Marsh Consol. Electric Lamp Co. 180 Fed. 442; Commercial Acetylene Co. v. Searchlight Gas Co. 197 Fed. 918. Appellant contends, as we have seen, that these cases do not express independent views, but follow United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Co. as authority. This is not true to the extent contended. In the first two cases an independent judgment was expressed. In the third case (197 Fed. 918) it was said of United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Co. that it was "well considered and very persuasive," and was "deemed to be the correct expression of the law for the purpose" of the hearing. Judicial opinion must therefore be ranged against appellant's contention, and is persuasive, at least, of its unsoundness.

Appellant, however, relies on the words of the treaty, which, it is insisted, have no ambiguity whatever, and which, it is contended, by the proclamation of the President of September 14, 1902, because the " 'supreme law of the land.' " The provision relied on reads as follows:

"Art. 4 bis. Patents applied for in the different contracting states, by persons admitted to the benefit of the convention under the terms of articles 2 and 3, shall be independent of the patent obtained for the same invention in the other states, adherents or nonadherents to the Union.

44] *"This provision shall apply to patents existing at the time of its going into effect.

"The same rule applies, in the case of adhesion of new states, to patents already existing on both sides at the time of the adhesion." 32 Stat. at L. 1940.

The Cameron patent existed at the time the treaty went into effect, and the British patent by which it was limited was a patent obtained in one of the states adhering to the treaty; namely, Great Britain. It is hence contended that all of the conditions necessary to the application of the treaty to the Cameron patent existed, and the limitation of its term to that of the British patent, as provided by law at the time it was issued, was removed, that law being repealed by the treaty, which, it is contended further, was self-executing, and the patent became a grant for seventeen years. Two propositions are involved in the contentions: (1) that the treaty applies to the Cameron patent; (2) that the treaty is self-executing. If either proposition be erroneous, appellant's contentions are untenable.

To say that the text of the treaty is without ambiguity does not carry us far. All of the conditions of a patent are not expressed in it, and when these are considered, construction is demanded and must be exercised. What is meant by the independence of a patent for the same invention in different states? It certainly was not intended to break down all of the provisions of law applicable to a patent; in other words, to interfere with the manner of its grant, and, it would seem by necessary implication, the extent of its grant as provided by the local law. A most essential attribute of a patent is the term of its duration, which is necessarily fixed and determined by the local law. And what difference in principle or effect is there if the term be expressed directly by a number of years or by something else, as a foreign patent which has a certain duration? The patent is no *more contingent in one[45 case than in the other. It is complete in both cases at the moment it is issued. In both cases its term has certain definition given by the local law. And this is the declaration of the cases, and that the integrity of its term and its independence were not affected by subsequent conditions which might terminate the foreign patent.

But it is contended that so to confine the treaty is to deprive it of significance and force because the decisions of this court had given to patents such independence. Pohl v. Anchor Brewing Co. 134 U. S. 381, 33 L. ed. 953, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 577. The answer is not sufficient. It might have been thought worth while to give conventional sanction to the judicial construction, and make it applicable to the adhering states whose laws were not uniform; and it is certain that there was an immediate demand of the American delegates so to qualify the provision that it should not extend the term of the monopoly of the patent beyond that which was given by the law under which the patent had been issued.

The details of the Conference are set out in Hennebique Constr. Co. v. Myers, supra. It appears that Mr. Forbes, one of the American delegates, pointed out that if article 4 bis could be interpreted as applying to patents already issued, which he said it might be, it would encounter opposition in the United States; and he inquired whether it could not be made the subject of a special protocol. A view was expressed that the article would not produce the apprehended effect, but Mr. Forbes insisted on the necessity of stating the point precisely in order to avoid error of interpretation. After debate, in which different views were expressed, the director of the International Bureau suggested the following amendment: "This provision shall apply to patents in existence at the time of its being put into force. Its effects are, however, limited to nullities and lapses which 46] *would affect anterior patents." The amendment was not adopted, but, following the suggestion of Mr. Bellamy Storer, one of the delegates from the United States, the president "put to vote the adoption of the text previously adopted for article 4 bis, with the interpretation which the American delegation desired to specifically point out, by proposing to complete the second paragraph by supplementing this explanatory clause: 'However, the term fixed by the initial law of each country remains intact.' Article 4 bis is definitely adopted with this condition."

It is, however, urged that the delegate from Great Britain said that he "could only take the indicated act of interpretation as a declaration of the American delegation, and not as a decision of the Conference." The proceedings, however, show that the Conference adopted the whole of the first final protocol prepared by the committee on reports.

Certain subjects were not disposed of by the Conference, but postponed with the comment that "after the exchange of views through diplomatic channels," the Conference would "reassemble anew in the Belgian Capital in order to finish its work."

The American delegates reported to the Secretary of State their understanding of the meaning of article 4 bis and interpretation which had been given it by the Conference. The unanimous sanction of the Conference, they said, was that the second paragraph of article 4 bis, which reads: "This provision shall apply to all patents existing at the time of its entering into force," was not applicable to existing United States patents, but only to those patents whose terms might be shortened by the laws of those states of the Union [for the Protection of Industrial Property] in which provision was made for the shortening of the term on the lapsing of patents for the same invention in other states. Existing United States patents, they further reported, could not be affected by what might take place *in regard to a foreign[47 patent, their terms having been determined by § 4887 at the moment they were issued, and that therefore their duration was unaffected by the subsequent expiration of a foreign patent for the same invention by reason of nonpayment of taxes or nonworking.

There was a second session of the Conference in December, 1900. Article 4 bis was not further debated. There was some reference to it as one of three arrangements "concerning retroactivity." Appellant hence insists that, having that quality, the article necessarily applied to existing patents, and was a "plain and simple retroactive ending of the former dependence of existing patents upon the running of the terms allowed to foreign patents." To confine the provision, it is contended further, to "mere future contingencies that might befall patents, would be prospective, and not 'retroactive.'" In aid of these contentions it is urged that the American delegates, two of whom were new, made no objection to the declaration of the retroactivity of article 4 bis, and that no limiting protocol was annexed to the treaty when it was finally adopted at Brussels in 1900, and that the article was ratified by the Senate and proclaimed by the President without qualifying it. The considerations have strength, but there are opposing ones. The second session of the Conference was a continuation of the first. The American delegates had secured an interpretation of article 4 bis. It could be accepted by them as final and definite. There was no challenge of it by ascribing retroactivity to article 4 bis, for that article was recognized to have such effect, but not to extend the term of a patent fixed by the initial law. Future contingencies, as said by appellant, would, of course, be prospective, but whether patents existing at the time of the treaty should be subject to them or independent of them was retroactive.

The action of Congress must be taken into account in estimating appellant's contentions. In United Shoe *Machinery Co.[48 v. Duplessis Shoe Machinery Co. 84 C. C. A. 76, 155 Fed. 842, it was made determinative, and the court decided that what construction should be put on article 4 bis, and what rule should apply as to its becoming effective, became academic questions in view of the provisions of the act of Congress of 1903 [32 Stat. at L. 1225, chap. 1019, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1453], entitled, "An Act to Effectuate the Provisions of the Additional Act of the International Convention for the Protection of Industrial Property." The act of 1903 was preceded by—and probably induced by—a letter which the Chargé d'Affaires of Switzerland addressed to the Secretary of State. The letter was prompted, according to its representations, by the embarrassment to which the International Bureau was subjected on account of the uncertainty of the action of the United States in regard to the additional act of Brussels of December 14, 1900, the treaty being so designated. It referred to the Convention of March 20, 1883 [25 Stat. at L. 1372], and the approval by the Senate of that Convention in 1887, but it stated "that Congress had not brought into the Federal law the changes required to make it consonant with the Convention," and that, "according to the opinion rendered by Attorney General Miller in 1889, American courts have consistently decided that the Convention of 1883 could not be enforced in the United States except so far as it accorded with the law of the country." The opinion was expressed that the difficulties attending this condition of things were not so great as they would have been in some other country, but it was said, however, that the circumstances had changed since the additional act of Brussels went into effect. One of the most important of its provisions, it was said, was that which amends article 4 of the Convention of 1883, extending to one year the priority of six months during which the original applicant for a patent in one of the states of the Union may validly file an application for the same invention in the other contracting states. After some comment on the priority 49] *period, the letter proceeded as follows: "The Bureau is placed in an awkward situation. On the one hand, it cannot say that the United States will not enforce the additional act it has ratified and has asked should go into effect. On the other hand, it is without information that the bills relative to industrial property that have been framed in the committee organized under the act of June 4, 1898 [30 Stat. at L. 431, chap. 379], have been passed by Congress; and it is constrained to admit that, according to judicial precedents, the new treaty provisions could not be enforced until the corresponding legislation shall have been revised." The required legislation was urged.

The Secretary of State replied to the letter, describing it as "in regard to the provisions of the Industrial Property Convention of March 20, 1883, and the Brussels act of December 14, 1900, modifying it," and said that he was advised by the Secretary of the Interior that he had prepared a bill "to make effective in this country the Convention and modifying act in question." The act of 1903 was then enacted, and if there could be any doubt that it expressed the sense of Congress and those concerned with the treaty that it required legislation to become effective, such doubt would be entirely removed by the legislative action of other states. It appears from the report of the committee on patents of the Senate and of the House of Representatives on the proposed legislation that thirteen countries had adopted legislation giving full force and effect to the provisions of the additional act, either in the form of a general law or by specific amendment to other laws providing for carrying into force the provisions of the additional act as regards the extension of the "delay and priority" to twelve months. Other countries were mentioned as being expected to do so. In explaining the object of the bill, the member in charge of it in the House of Representatives said that it was to carry into effect the additional act of the Convention held at *Brussels in December, 1900; and, fur-[50 ther, that the additional act agreed upon simply extended the period of priority in applications for patents, and that it did not "extend by a single instant the life of any patent now in existence, or any patent that may be granted hereafter." He further said that nearly all of the nations which were represented at Brussels had already passed legislation to give force to the act, and that it was but fair that this country should take similar action.

An attempt is made by appellant to distinguish between article 4 bis and the provisions of the treaty expressly dealt with by Congress, and to assign to that article a more distinct and definite power of execution than the other provisions possess. To account thereby for its omission from the act of 1903, it is urged that those provisions concern matters of admistrative law which might be or thought to be in conflict with statutory provisions, whereas article 4 bis accomplished all that it could accomplish the instant the treaty went into effect, and there was nothing further to be done as a matter of administrative law. We are unable to accept the distinction, and appellant is therefore brought to this alternative. If the treaty be construed as we think it must be construed, in accordance with the declaration of the Conference at the instance of the American delegates, it has no application to the Cameron patent. If it be not self-executing, as it is certainly the sense of Congress that it was not, and seems also to be the sense of some of the other contracting nations, and as the act of 1903 did not make effective article 4 bis, the provisions of § 4887 apply to the Cameron patent, and caused it to expire with the British patent for the same invention.

Decree affirmed.

51] *S. T. GRAY and Robert Brady, Appts.,
v.
ROBERT H. TAYLOR, Charles W. Wingfield, and Romualdo Duran, the Board of County Commissioners of Lincoln County, Territory of New Mexico. (No. 322.)

TERRITORY OF NEW MEXICO, By its Attorney General, Frank W. Clancy, on the Relation of JACOBO J. ARAGON, Appt.,
v.
BOARD OF COUNTY COMMISSIONERS OF LINCOLN COUNTY, NEW MEXICO. (No. 483.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 51–58.)

Statutes — local or special legislation — changing county seat.

1. Including in N. M. Laws 1909, chap. 80, relating to the changing of county seats, provisions that the place to which it it proposed to remove the county seat shall be at least 20 miles distant from the then county seat, and that no proposition to remove a county seat from a place situated on a railroad to one not so situated shall be entertained, does not make the law a local or special one within the prohibition contained in the act of Congress of July 30, 1886 (24 Stat. at L. 170, chap. 818), § 1, against the enactment by the territorial legislature of local or special laws changing county seats, although it is obvious that at any given time the law in question does not operate in the same way in every part of the territory.

[For other cases, see Statutes, I. f, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — review of territorial decision — validity of statute.

2. A decision of the New Mexico supreme court sustaining a territorial statute over the objections that it was not approved by the governor and does not appear to have reached him more than three days before the adjournment of the legislature, so as to have become a law by N. M. Rev. Stat. § 1842, and that the bill was not signed by the president of the council or the speaker of the house of representatives, as required by the respective rules of those bodies, will not be disturbed by the Federal Supreme Court on appeal, where the statute appears in the official copy of the laws of the year, and passed the two houses in fact, and in ample time to be submitted to the governor, who returned the bill to the council with the statement that he had allowed it to become a law by limitation.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4994, 4995; Courts, VII. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — review of territorial decision — sufficiency of petition.

3. The objection that the petition asking a board of county commissioners to call an election and submit to a vote the proposition to remove the county seat did not ask for the removal, as required by N. M. Laws 1909, chap. 80, will not prevail in the Federal Supreme Court on appeal from a decree of the territorial supreme court, holding such petition to be sufficient, since it might well be implied that the proposition to remove emanated from those who signed the petition.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4994, 4995; Courts, VII. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — review of territorial decision — special election — ballots.

4. A ruling of a territorial supreme court adverse to objections based upon the unintelligible and misleading form of the ballots used in voting on a proposition to change the county seat will not be revised in the Federal Supreme Court, where the ballots conformed to the governing provisions of N. M. Comp. Laws 1897, § 631, and there is no evidence that the voters were deceived.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4994, 4995; Courts, VII. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — review of territorial decision — statutory construction.

5. The Federal Supreme Court will not reverse the ruling of the territorial supreme court, that the general provisions of N. M. Comp. Laws 1897, § 1709, for the registration of voters before a board appointed sixty days before election, had no application to a special election upon the proposition to change a county seat, held conformably to N. M. Laws 1909, chap. 80, which required such election to be called at any time within two months of the date of presenting the petition.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 4994, 4995; Courts, VII. d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — from territorial supreme court — scope of review.

6. An objection that various allegations of the bill in a taxpayer's suit to restrain the erection of a county building were admitted because not denied is not open on an appeal to the Federal Supreme Court from a decree of a territorial supreme court, which affirmed a judgment below, dismissing the bill.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 322 and 483.]

Submitted January 6, 1913. Decided January 20, 1913.

APPEAL from the Supreme Court of the Territory of New Mexico to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the District Court for the County of Lincoln, dismissing the bill in a taxpayer's suit to restrain the County Commissioners from erecting a county building on the assumption that the county seat had been changed. Affirmed. Also an NOTE.—as to review by United States Supreme Court of territorial decisions—see note to Miners' Bank v. Iowa, 13 L. ed. U. S. 867.

APPEAL from the Supreme Court of the Territory of New Mexico to review a judgment which affirmed a judgment of the District Court of Lincoln County, dismissing the petition for a writ of quo warranto against the same board to stop the same and other proceedings taken by it on the same ground. Affirmed.

See same cases below, No. 322, 15 N. M. 742, 113 Pac. 588; No. 483, 16 N. M. 467, 117 Pac. 1127.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. T. B. Catron submitted the cause for appellants. Mr. George B. Barber was on the brief:

The act in question, if valid at all for any purpose, or if properly enacted for any purpose, is a local and special act, and void under the Springer act.

People ex rel. Lee v. Chautauqua County, 43 N. Y. 16; Re Henneberger, 155 N. Y. 424, 42 L.R.A. 132, 50 N. E. 61; People v. O'Brien, 38 N. Y. 193; Ferguson v. Ross, 126 N. Y. 464, 27 N. E. 954; State, Closson, Prosecutor, v. Trenton, 48 N. J. L. 439, 5 Atl. 323; Com. ex rel. Fertig v. Patton, 88 Pa. 260; Davis v. Clark, 106 Pa. 377; McCarthy v. Com. 110 Pa. 246, 2 Atl. 423; Montgomery v. Com. 91 Pa. 125; Devine v. Cook County, 84 Ill. 591; State ex rel. Harris v. Herrmann, 75 Mo. 346; Scowden's Appeal, 96 Pa. 424; Klokke v. Dodge, 103 Ill. 125; State ex rel. Columbus v. Mitchell, 31 Ohio St. 592; State ex rel. Atty. Gen. v. First Judicial Judges, 21 Ohio St. 11; Stange v. Dubuque, 62 Iowa, 303, 17 N. W. 518; Sutherland, Stat. Constr. §§ 127–129; Smith, Com. §§ 595, 596; Sedgw. Stat. & Const. Law, 32; Potter's Dwarr. Stat. 355; Ex parte Westerfield, 55 Cal. 552, 36 Am. Rep. 47; Desmond v. Dunn, 55 Cal. 251; State ex rel. Van Riper v. Parsons, 40 N. J. L. 123, 29 Am. Rep. 210; State, Zeigler, Prosecutor, v. Gadis, 44 N. J. L. 363; Hammer v. State, 44 N. J. L. 669; State, Van Giesen, Prosecutor, v. Bloomfield, 47 N. J. L. 442, 2 Atl. 249.

Even if the statute was not a local or special law, it never was legally enacted. It was not approved by the governor, nor was it ever signed by the president of the council or speaker of the house of representatives, and there is no evidence that it ever reached the governor more than three days before the adjournment of the legislature.

Marshall Field & Co. v. Clark, 143 U. S. 671, 36 L. ed. 303, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 495; State ex rel. Panghorn v. Young, 32 N. J. L. 30; State ex rel. Coffin v. Howell, 26 Nev. 98, 64 Pac. 466; State ex rel. George v. Swift, 10 Nev. 182, 21 Am. Rep. 721; Sherman v. Story, 30 Cal. 257, 89 Am. Dec. 93.

The election was void because no petition asking for the removal of the county seat of said county to some other designated place, or to Carrizozo, was ever presented to or acted on by the board of county commissioners of Lincoln county when they called the election.

Lilly v. Lakin, 66 Ala. 122; Tally v. Grider, 66 Ala. 119; Lanier v. Padgett, 18 Fla. 844; McKinney v. Bradford County, 26 Fla. 267, 4 So. 855; Zeiler v. Chapman, 54 Mo. 502; State ex rel. Lexington & St. L. R. Co. v. Saline County Ct. 45 Mo. 242; State ex rel. Woodson v. Brassfield, 67 Mo. 336; State use of Neal v. Saline County Ct. 48 Mo. 390, 8 Am. Rep. 108; State ex rel. Ensworth v. Albin, 44 Mo. 348; Detroit River & I. R. Co. v. Bearss, 39 Ind. 598; People's Nat. Bank v. Pomona, 48 Kan. 55, 28 Pac. 1089; Culver v. Hayden, 1 Vt. 359; Blackwell, Tax Titles, 213; Pitkin v. McNair, 56 Barb. 77; Wheeler v. Mills, 40 Barb. 644; Bunner v. Eastman, 50 Barb. 639; People ex rel. Foley v. Kopplekom, 16 Mich. 342; Nefzger v. Detroit & St. P. R. Co. 36 Iowa, 644; State ex rel. Harvey v. Piper, 17 Neb. 618, 24 N. W. 204; Adriance v. McCafferty, 2 Robt. 353; Sutherland, Stat. Constr. 2d ed. §§ 565, 566; Lanier v. Padgett, 18 Fla. 842.

Unless the legislature provides for the special election to be held in such limited time only as will not admit of a registration, and it will not be within the power of the board to give time enough to make the registration, the registration law must be complied with; if it is possible to comply with it, it must be done.

State ex rel. Harris v. Scarborough, 110 N. C. 232, 14 S. E. 737; Smith v. Skagit County, 45 Fed. 725; McCrary, Elections, 2d ed. § 193, p. 145.

Mr. John Y. Hewitt submitted the cause for appellees. Mr. Andrew H. Hudspeth was on the brief:

No court has ever declared an act of the legislature void for noncompliance with the rules of procedure made by itself, or the respective branches thereof, and which it or they may change or suspend at will.

McDonald v. State, 80 Wis. 407, 50 N. W. 185.

The signature of a presiding officer to a bill is a mere certificate to the governor that it has passed the requisite number of readings and been adopted by the constitutional majority of the house over which he presides.

Cottrell v. State, 9 Neb. 128, 1 N. W. 1008.

Does the failure of the presiding officer of the senate to sign a bill invalidate everything connected therewith? If it does, then the presiding officer of the senate has more power to veto bills than the governor, or than any other person or officer of the state.

Leavenworth County v. Higginbotham, 17 Kan. 74.

This court will presume that an act found among the published laws, bearing the approval of the governor, was constitutionally passed.

Illinois C. R. Co. v. Wren, 43 Ill. 77; Bedard v. Hall, 44 Ill. 91.

Upon demurrer to an indictment on the ground that the statute on which it is based was not passed in a constitutional manner, the presumption of the validity of the law must prevail, since, until the journal entries are brought before the court, they will not be considered in passing upon the validity of the law.

State v. Wray, 109 Mo. 594, 19 S. W. 86.

That the number of municipalities affected by a law is limited or restricted does not make the bill a private or local one.

People ex rel. New York Electric Lines Co. v. Squire, 107 N. Y. 593, 1 Am. St. Rep. 893, 14 N. E. 820.

A law is not necessarily a local law because the practical effect and operation of the law is and must be in every instance local, special, and private. It is sufficient that the law offers like privileges to all who may comply with its terms or come within its provisions.

18 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 984.

An act in general terms is valid.

Ritchie v. Franklin County, 22 Wall. 67, 22 L. ed. 825.

The construction by the supreme court of the territory which enacted the law is conclusive in this court, as well as everywhere, as to its character.

George H. Hammond & Co. v. Hastings, 134 U. S. 401, 33 L. ed. 960, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 727.

Section 1702, Compiled Laws 1897, provides for a registration only before a general election. This section, enacted in 1889, clearly repeals, by implication, § 1709, passed in 1869, as it covers the whole subject of the older law, and was intended as a substitute therefor.

United States v. Tynen, 11 Wall. 88, 89, 20 L. ed. 153; Bartlet v. King, 12 Mass. 545, 7 Am. Dec. 99; Com. v. Cooley, 10 Pick. 37; Tracy v. Tuffly, 134 U. S. 206, 33 L. ed. 879, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527; United States v. Barr, 4 Sawy. 254, Fed. Cas. No. 14,527; Swann v. Buck, 30 Miss. 308; Industrial School Dist. v. Whitehead, 13 N. J. Eq. 291; State, Roche, Prosecutor, v. Jersey City, 40 N. J. L. 262.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

The first of these suits is a bill in equity brought by taxpayers to restrain the county commissioners of Lincoln county from erecting a courthouse and jail in the town of Carrizozo, the board assuming that the county seat has been changed from Lincoln to that town. The second is a quo warranto at the relation of a taxpayer against the same board to stop the same and other proceedings taken by the board on the same ground. The supreme court of the territory affirmed a decree dismissing the bill, and also a judgment denying the quo warranto. 15 N. M. 742, 113 Pac. 588, 16 N. M. 467, 117 Pac. 1127. Both cases raised the question whether the attempted change of the county seat was void, and turn on the same facts, which may be stated in connection with the several objections that the appellants take.

In the first place it is said that the statute under which the attempted change took place is void because it is a local law, and the act of Congress of July 30, 1886, chap. 818, § 1, 24 Stat. at L. 170, provides that the legislature of the territory shall not pass local or special laws in the matter, among others, of changing county seats. The statute, being chap. 80 of the Laws of New Mexico of 1909, is thought to be local because by § 2 it enacts that the place to which it is proposed to remove the county seat "shall be at least 20 miles distant from the then county seat of said county," and that no proposition to remove a county seat from a place situated on a railroad to one not so situated shall be entertained. It is argued at great length and is obvious that at any given time this enactment does not bear in the same way on every part of the territory. *In its present form the stat-[56 ute may be specially favorable to the change from Lincoln to Carrizozo, if, as is said, the latter town is on a railroad and Lincoln is not. It may be admitted that a local act could be disguised in general terms, if a legislature would condescend to evading its duties under a constitution or organic act. It may be assumed that general words are not necessarily enough to disguise such an intent. But it is not lightly to be supposed that a legislature is less faithful to its obligations than a court. General words indicate and affirm a general intent, and if the fact that different sections are differently affected is enough to make a law local, the field of legislation would be narrowed beyond anything that Congress could have dreamed. It cannot have been intended, for instance, that no laws should be passed concerning cities or towns, yet such laws would be local in their application. The phrase "local law" means, primarily, at least, a law that in fact, if not in form, is directed only to a specific spot. If it has a wider meaning it involves questions of degree that cannot be decided by putting cases other than the one before us. We know nothing that would warrant us in declaring that this law was not intended, according to its purport, to regulate generally the change of county seats. Ritchie v. Franklin County, 22 Wall. 67, 22 L. ed. 825.

The full discussion in Codlin v. Kohlhausen, 9 N. M. 565, 58 Pac. 499, has lost but little of its force and applicability, notwithstanding the later amendment of the statute. The law is shown not to be a local law, and with regard to the 20-mile limit, it is said to be only reasonable to believe that the legislature intended, in fixing it, "to prevent cities and towns situated within a few miles of each other from engaging in those injurious contests for the supremacy for the location of the county seat, based upon population only. The wisdom of these conditions is apparent, and it is within the power of the legislature to make them."

However it may be as to the foregoing 57]question, which *arises under an act of Congress, the other objections are of a kind as to which we often have intimated our strong leaning toward following the local courts, and therefore will not be discussed at length. Fox v. Haarstick, 156 U. S. 674, 679, 39 L. ed. 576, 578, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 457; Treat v. Grand Canyon R. Co. 222 U. S. 448, 452, 56 L. ed. 265, 266, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 125. In the first place it is said that the statute was not approved by the governor, and does not appear to have reached him more than three days before the adjournment of the legislature, so as to have become a law by Rev. Stat. § 1842. Also it is said that the bill was not signed by the president of the council or the speaker of the house of representatives, as required by the respective rules of those bodies. But the act appears in the official copy of the Laws of 1909, it passed the two houses in fact, and in ample time to be submitted to the governor. The governor returned the bill to the council with the statement that he had allowed it to become a law by limitation. We agree with the court below that the governor's message is as good evidence as a note of the date on the bill that the bill had been received long enough before the return to make his statement correct. Gardner v. Collector (Gardner v. Barney) 6 Wall. 499, 508, 509, 18 L. ed. 890, 892, 893. The journals of the two houses showed the passage of the bill, and we certainly should not reverse the local decision that the evidence, if necessary, was admissible and sufficient in aid of the act.

The next objection is to the form of the petition by which the proceedings for the change were begun. The statute provides that the board of county commissioners shall order a vote whenever citizens of a county equal in number to at least one half of the legal votes cast at the last preceding general election in the county shall present a petition asking for the removal of the county seat to some other designated place. The petition asked the board "to call an election and submit to a vote . . . the proposition to remove the county seat of said Lincoln county to Carrizozo," etc. It is said that this did not ask *for the re-[58 moval, and if read with extreme technicality, it did not, in so many words. But the petition very well might be held to imply that the proposition to remove emanated from those who signed,—the only persons from whom it could emanate under the law that the petitioners had in mind.

Again, it is said that the ballot was in an unintelligible and misleading form. The board, following the statute, Compiled Laws 1897, § 631, ordered that "the tickets voted shall contain 'For County Seat,' with the name of the place for which the voter desires to cast his ballot, either written or printed thereon." If the court was of opinion that the voters would understand that those in favor of Carrizozo would write that word on the ticket, and those opposed to a change would write "Lincoln," we could not say that they overrated the intelligence of their fellow citizens. There was no evidence that the voters were deceived. But it is enough that the statute was followed. There is no ground on which the law could be declared void.

It is objected that there was no registration of voters, as required in general terms by § 1709 of the Compiled Laws. But that section required the county commissioners to appoint a board of registration sixty days before any election, and as the statute concerning the change of county seats in case of a special election required it to be called "at any time within two months of the date of presenting said petition," it naturally was held that the case was taken out of § 1709 by the latter act.

It is objected that various allegations of the bill were admitted because not denied. If any such matter is open, the allegations not denied were mainly, if not wholly, erroneous conclusions of law from the facts proved at the trial. Equitable Life Assur Soc. v. Brown, 213 U. S. 25, 43, 53 L. ed. 682, 689, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 404. But it is not open. The argument seems to us to need no further or more elaborate reply.

Decree affirmed.

Judgment affirmed.

---

59] *MICHIGAN CENTRAL RAILROAD COMPANY, Plff. in Err.,

v.

DANIEL B. VREELAND, Administrator, etc.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 59–74.)

Error to circuit court — dismissal — grounds.

1. A writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court will not be dismissed because the constitutional questions which furnished the ground for bringing the case directly to the Supreme Court have, since the allowance of the writ of error, been decided by that court in another case adversely to the plaintiff in error.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VII. 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Abatement — death — action for personal injuries.

2. The right of action created by the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908 (35 Stat. at L. 65, chap. 149, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1322), in behalf of an injured interstate railway employee, is extinguished by his death, because of the failure of that statute to provide for any survival of such right of action, and it cannot be helped out by any state legislation on the subject.

[For other cases, see Abatement and Revival, II. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Death — right of action for causing — effect of temporarily surviving injury.

3. The liability to certain relatives dependent upon the decedent, which is imposed by the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908, on an interstate railway carrier negligently causing the death of an employee while engaged in interstate commerce, is not limited to cases where death was instantaneous, the right of action thus created being independent of any cause of action which the decedent had, and including no damages which he might have recovered for his injury if he had survived.

[For other cases, see Death, II. a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Damages — for death — pecuniary benefit.

4. The financial benefit which might reasonably be expected from her husband in a pecuniary way is the measure of damages in an action brought against an interstate railroad carrier under the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908, for the benefit of the widow of an employee killed while engaged in interstate commerce.

[For other cases, see Damages, VI. 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — reversible error in instructions — damages.

5. Instructing the jury to estimate from their own experience as men the financial value of a widow's loss of her husband's "care and advice" requires the reversal of a judgment against a carrier in an action brought under the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908, for the death of her husband while in the carrier's employ, as opening the door to conjecture and speculation.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. m, 4, a, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 242.]

Argued December 4, 1912. Decided January 20, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio to review a judgment against a carrier in an action brought under the employers' liability act for the benefit of the widow of an employee who was killed while engaged in interstate commerce. Reversed and a new trial ordered.

See same case below, 189 Fed. 495.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Emery D. Potter argued the cause and, with Messrs. Frank E. Robson, Henry Russel, and Charles P. Carroll, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

The employers' liability act in force at the time of this accident made no provision whatever for a survivor in cases where the injured party survived the injury, but thereafter died as the result of the injury.

Fulgham v. Midland Valley R. Co. 167 Fed. 660; Walsh v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 173 Fed. 494.

There cannot be two independent and separate rights of action vesting at the same time, one in Wisemiller, the party injured, and in his personal representative for the benefit of the widow and next of kin.

Northern P. R. Co. v. Adams, 192 U. S. 440, 48 L. ed. 513, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 408; State v. Grand Trunk R. Co. 61 Me. 114

---

NOTE.—On direct review in Federal Supreme Court of judgments of district or circuit courts—see notes to Gwin v. United States, 46 L. ed. U. S. 741; Paducah v. East Tennessee Teleph. Co. 106 C. C. A. 333, and B. Altman & Co. v. United States, 56 L. ed. U. S. 894.

On the right to recover in one action for the death of a person and for his suffering before death—see notes to Louisville & N. R. Co. v. McElwain, 34 L.R.A. 788; Stewart v. United Electric Light & P. Co. 8 L.R.A. (N.S.) 384, and Mahoning Valley R. Co. v. Van Alstine, 14 L.R.A.(N.S.) 893.

On the measure of recovery for death caused by negligence—see note to Morgan v. Southern P. Co. 17 L.R.A. 71.

14 Am. Rep. 552; Sawyer v. Perry, 88 Me. 42, 33 Atl. 660, 15 Am. Neg. Cas. 291; West v. Detroit United R. Co. 159 Mich. 269, 123 N. W. 1101; Olivier v. Houghton County Street R. Co. 134 Mich. 367, 104 Am. St. Rep. 607, 96 N. W. 434, 3 Ann. Cas. 53; Dolson v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 128 Mich. 444, 87 N. W. 629; Kellow v. Central Iowa R. Co. 68 Iowa, 470, 56 Am. Rep. 858, 23 N. W. 740, 27 N. W. 466; Sweetland v. Chicago & G. T. R. Co. 117 Mich. 329, 43 L.R.A. 568, 75 N. W. 1066; Jones v. McMillan, 129 Mich. 86, 88 N. W. 206; Storrie v. Grand Trunk Elevator Co. 134 Mich. 297, 96 N. W. 569; Ely v. Detroit United R. Co. 162 Mich. 287, 127 N. W. 259; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Dawson, 68 Ark. 1, 56 S. W. 46; Nourse v. Packard, 138 Mass. 307; Mulchahey v. Washburn Car Wheel Co. 145 Mass. 281, 1 Am. St. Rep. 458, 14 N. E. 106; Holton v. Daly, 106 Ill. 131; Eureka v. Merrifield, 53 Kan. 794, 37 Pac. 113.

The court erred in its charge to the jury on the measure of damages.

Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 Ohio St. 471, 4 Am. St. Rep. 548, 15 N. E. 350; Steel v. Kurtz, 28 Ohio St. 191; Cincinnati Street R. Co. v. Altemeier, 60 Ohio St. 10, 53 N. E. 300; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Austin, 69 Ill. 426; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Townsend, 69 Ark. 380, 63 S. W. 994; May v. West Jersey & S. R. Co. 62 N. J. L. 63, 42 Atl. 163; Nelson v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 104 Mich. 582, 62 N. W. 993; Swift & Co. v. Johnson, 1 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1161, 71 C. C. A. 619, 138 Fed. 867; McHugh v. Schlosser, 159 Pa. 480, 23 L.R.A. 574, 39 Am. St. Rep. 699, 28 Atl. 291; Holton v. Daly, 106 Ill. 132; Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Golway, 6 App. D. C. 144; St. Louis, A. & T. R. Co. v. Johnston, 78 Tex. 536, 15 S. W. 104; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Bentz, 108 Tenn. 670, 58 L.R.A. 690, 91 Am. St. Rep. 763, 69 S. W. 317; Sternfels v. Metropolitan Street R. Co. 73 App. Div. 494, 77 N. Y. Supp. 309; Helena Gas Co. v. Rogers, 98 Ark. 413, 135 S. W. 904; Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Walker, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 125 S. W. 99; Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Wilson, 1 C. C. A. 25, 4 U. S. App. 25, 48 Fed. 57.

Mr. John B. Daish argued the cause, and, with Mr. Joseph D. Sullivan, filed a brief for defendant in error:

Unless the provisions of the particular statutes are distinctly and clearly to the contrary, it is the rule of the Federal and many state courts that so long as the death of the injured party is occasioned by acts within the statute, it is immaterial whether or not the death and injury are simultaneous.

Roach v. Consolidated Imperial Min. Co. 7 Sawy. 224, 7 Fed. 698; Matz v. Chicago & A. R. Co. 85 Fed. 180; Sternenberg v. Mailhos, 39 C. C. A. 408, 99 Fed. 43; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Dawson, 68 Ark. 1, 56 S. W. 46; Murphy v. New York & N. H. R. Co. 30 Conn. 184; Malott v. Shimer, 153 Ind. 35, 74 Am. St. Rep. 278; 54 N. E. 101, 6 Am. Neg. Rep. 263; Conners v. Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. 71 Iowa, 490, 60 Am. Rep. 814, 32 N. W. 465; Worden v. Humeston & S. R. Co. 72 Iowa, 201, 33 N. W. 629; Brown v. Buffalo & S. Line R. Co. 22 N. Y. 191; Perham v. Portland General Electric Co. 33 Or. 451, 40 L.R.A. 799, 72 Am. St. Rep. 730, 53 Pac. 14; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Kindred, 57 Tex. 491; Boyden v. Fitchbury R. Co. 70 Vt. 125, 39 Atl. 771; Van Amberg v. Vicksburg, S. & P. R. Co. 37 La. Ann. 651, 55 Am. Rep. 517; Hamilton v. Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. 42 La. Ann. 824, 8 So. 586; Legg v. Britton, 64 Vt. 652, 24 Atl. 1016; Hulbert v. Topeka, 34 Fed. 510.

Of course, where states have so-called "survival acts" and a statute creating a new cause of action (as in Michigan), it would appear to be a salutary rule that an administrator can recover damages under the latter statute only if death is instantaneous; and if the death is not instantaneous, he can recover under the former statute.

Sweetland v. Chicago & G. T. R. Co. 117 Mich. 329, 43 L.R.A. 568, 75 N. W. 1066; Dolson v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 128 Mich. 444, 87 N. W. 629; Kyes v. Valley Teleph. Co. 132 Mich. 281, 93 N. W. 623, 13 Am. Neg. Rep. 340; Olivier v. Houghton County Street R. Co. 134 Mich. 367, 104 Am. St. Rep. 607, 96 N. W. 434, 3 Ann. Cas. 53.

Such statutes are clearly distinguishable from the one under consideration; also such statutes as exist in Maine (Sawyer v. Perry, 88 Me. 42, 33 Atl. 660, 15 Am. Neg. Cas. 291).

With respect to the instruction as to damages, it is proper to consider the entire charge.

Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Mackey, 157 U. S. 72, 39 L. ed. 624, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 491; Rogers v. The Marshal (United States use of Rogers v. Conklin) 1 Wall. 644, 654, 17 L. ed. 714, 717; Evanston v. Gunn, 99 U. S. 660, 25 L. ed. 306.

The charge of the trial court is clearly within the well-recognized rule.

Tilley v. Hudson River R. Co. 29 N. Y. 252, 86 Am. Dec. 297; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Wightman, 29 Gratt. 436, 26 Am. Rep. 384; Searle v. Kanawha & O. R. Co. 32 W. Va. 370, 9 S. E. 248; Howard County v. Legg, 93 Ind. 523, 47 Am. Rep. 390; Northern P. R. Co. v. Freeman, 27 C. C. A.

457, 48 U. S. App. 757, 83 Fed. 82; Felt v. Puget Sound Electric R. Co. 175 Fed. 477; Bolinger v. St. Paul & D. R. Co. 36 Minn. 418, 1 Am. St. Rep. 680, 31 N. W. 856; Chattanooga R. & C. R. Co. v. Clowdis, 90 Ga. 258, 17 S. E. 88; Missouri P. R. Co. v. Bond, 2 Tex. Civ. App. 104, 20 S. W. 930; St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. v. Maddry, 57 Ark. 306, 21 S. W. 472, 11 Am. Neg. Cas. 133; Stoher v. St. Louis, I. M. & S. R. Co. 91 Mo. 509, 4 S. W. 389; Walker v. McNeill, 17 Wash. 582, 50 Pac. 582.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

This was an action under the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908 [35 Stat. at L. 65, chap. 149, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1322], to recover damages for the wrongful death of the intestate, an employee in the service of the railroad company. The constitutionality of the act was drawn in question by the plaintiff in error in the court below, and this afforded ground for bringing the case directly to this court. Since the allowance of the writ of error all of the constitutional questions have been decided adversely to the plaintiff in error. Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 56 L. ed. 327, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169.

64] But this does not justify *our dismissing the case, since the constitutional questions which gave the right to bring it here were not foreclosed when the writ was allowed, and we therefore have jurisdiction to consider other assignments of error.

These relate to the construction of the act and the measure of damages thereunder. Sections 1 and 2 of the act of 1908, and § 2 of the amendatory act of April 5, 1910 [36 Stat. at L. 291, chap. 143, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1325], are set out in the margin.†

65] *This case, however, involves only a construction of the act prior to the amendment referred to.

The decedent survived his injuries for several hours. His personal representative has brought this action, not for the injury suffered by his intestate, but for the loss suffered by his widow as a consequence of his wrongful death.

For the railroad company it has been argued that the fact that the injured employee survived his injuries for several hours operates to extinguish its liability for both the wrongful injury and the death which ensued. The view of counsel seems to be that the act declared a single liability and constituted a cause of action in behalf of the injured person if he survived, or, in case his death was instantaneous, a cause of action for the benefit of the specified dependent relatives surviving. This is a narrow interpretation of the act, and would operate to defeat all liability unless the injured person should survive long enough to conduct his action to a recovery.

We think the act declares two distinct and independent liabilities, resting, of course, upon the common foundation of a wrongful injury, but based upon altogether different principles. It plainly declares the liability of the carrier to its injured servant. If he had survived he might have recovered such damages as would have compensated him for his expense, loss of time, suffering, and diminished earning power. But if he does not live to recover upon his own cause of action, what then? Does any right of action survive his death and pass to his representative? This is a question which depends upon the statute.

*We may not piece out this act of [66 Congress by resorting to the local statutes of the state of procedure or that of the injury. The act is one which relates to the liability of railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce to their employees while engaged in such commerce. The power of Congress to deal with the subject comes from its power to regulate commerce between the states.

Prior to this act Congress had not deemed it expedient to legislate upon the subject, though its power was ample. "The †Sec. 1. That every common carrier by railroad, while engaging in commerce between any of the several states or territories, or between any of the states and territories, or between the District of Columbia and any of the states or territories, or between the District of Columbia or any of the states or territories and any foreign nation or nations, shall be liable in damages to any person suffering injury while he is employed by such carrier in such commerce, or, in case of the death of such employee, to his or her personal representative, for the benefit of the surviving widow or husband and children of such employee; and, if none, then of such employee's parents; and, if none, then of the next of kin dependent upon such employee, for such injury or death resulting in whole or in part from the negligence of any of the officers, agents, or employees of such carrier, or by reason of any defect or insufficiency, due to its negligence, in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, works, boats, wharves, or other equipment.

Sec. 2. That every common carrier by railroad in the territories, the District of Columbia, the Panama Canal Zone, or other possessions of the United States, shall be liable in damages to any person suffering injury while he is employed by such carrier subject," as observed by this court in Second Employers' Liability Cases (Mondou v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co.) 223 U. S. 1, 54, 56 L. ed. 327, 347, 38 L.R.A.(N.S.) 44, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 169, "is one which falls within the police power of the state in the absence of legislation by Congress." Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. v. Alabama, 128 U. S. 96, 99, 32 L. ed. 352, 353, 2 Inters. Com. Rep. 238, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 28. By this act Congress has undertaken to cover the subject of the liability of railroad companies to their employees injured while engaged in interstate commerce. This exertion of a power which is granted in express terms must supersede all legislation over the same subject by the states. Thus, in Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Hefley, 158 U. S. 98, 104, 39 L. ed. 910, 912, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 802, it was said, in reference to state legislation touching freight rates upon interstate freight which conflicted with the legislation of Congress upon the same subject, that:

"Generally it may be said in respect to laws of this character that, though resting upon the police power of the state, they must yield whenever Congress, in the exercise of the powers granted to it, legislates upon the precise subject-matter, for that power, like all other reserved powers of the states, is subordinate to those in terms conferred by the Constitution upon the nation. 'No urgency for its use can authorize a state to exercise it in regard to a subject-matter which has been confided exclusively to the discretion of Congress by the Constitution.' Henderson v. New York (Henderson v. Wickham) 92 U. S. 259, 271, 23 L. ed. 543, 548. 'Definitions of the police power must, however, be taken, subject to the condition that the state cannot, 67]in its exercise, *for any purpose whatever, encroach upon the powers of the general government, or rights granted or secured by the supreme law of the land.' New Orleans Gaslight Co. v. Louisiana Light & H. P. & Mfg. Co. 115 U. S. 650, 661, 29 L. ed. 516, 520, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 252. 'While it may be a police power in the sense that all provisions for the health, comfort, and security of the citizens are police regulations, and an exercise of the police power, it has been said more than once in this court that, where such powers are so exercised as to come within the domain of Federal authority as defined by the Constitution, the latter must prevail.' Morgan's L. & T. R. & S. S. Co. v. Board of Health, 118 U. S. 455, 464, 30 L. ed. 237, 241, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1114."

It therefore follows that in respect of state legislation prescribing the liability of such carriers for injuries to their employees while engaged in interstate commerce, this act is paramount and exclusive, and must remain so until Congress shall again remit the subject to the reserved police power of the states. Reid v. Colorado, 187 U. S. 137, 146, 47 L. ed. 108, 113, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 92, 12 Am. Crim. Rep. 506.

The statutes of many of the states expressly provide for the survival of the right of action which the injured person might have prosecuted if he had survived. But unless this Federal statute which declares the liability here asserted provides that the right of action shall survive the death of the injured employee, it does not pass to his representative, notwithstanding state legislation. The question of survival is not one of procedure, "but one which depends on the substance of the cause of action." Schreiber v. Sharpless, 110 U. S. 76, 80, 28 L. ed. 65, 66, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 423; Martin v. Baltimore & O. R. Co. (Gerling v. Baltimore & O. R. Co.) 151 U. S. 673, 38 L. ed. 311, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 533.

Nothing is better settled than that, at common law, the right of action for an injury to the person is extinguished by the death of the party injured. The rule, "Actio personalis moritur cum persona" applies, whether the death from the injury be instantaneous or not. The act of 1908 does not provide for any survival of the right of action created in *behalf of an [68 injured employee. That right of action was therefore extinguished. The act has been many times so construed by the circuit in any of said jurisdictions, or, in case of the death of such employee, to his or her personal representative, for the benefit of the surviving widow or husband and children of such employee; and, if none, then of such employee's parents; and, if none, then of the next of kin dependent upon such employee, for such injury or death resulting in whole or in part from the negligence of any of the officers, agents, or employees of such carrier, or by reason of any defect or insufficiency, due to its negligence, in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, works, boats, wharves, or other equipment.

---

Section 2 of the act of April 5, 1910:

That said act be further amended by adding the following section as section nine of said act:

Sec. 9. That any right of action given by this act to a person suffering injury shall survive to his or her personal representative, for the benefit of the surviving widow or husband and children of such employee, and, if none, then of such employee's parents; and, if none, then of the next of kin dependent upon such employee, but in such cases there shall be only one recovery for the same injury.

courts. We cite a few of the cases: Fulgham v. Midland Valley R. Co. 167 Fed. 660; Walsh v. New York, N. H. & H. R. Co. 173 Fed. 495.

At common law loss and damage may, in some cases, accrue to persons dependent upon one wrongfully injured, and a right of action in some cases arises in their behalf. But this cause of action, except for loss of personal services before the death, abates at the death.

In Baker v. Bolton, 1 Campb. 493, Lord Ellenborough ruled that "in a civil court, the death of a human being could not be complained of as an injury." Mobile L. Ins. Co. v. Brame, 95 U. S. 756, 24 L. ed. 580; The Harrisburg, 119 U. S. 199, 204, 30 L. ed. 358, 359, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 140.

The obvious purpose of Congress was to save a right of action to certain relatives dependent upon an employee wrongfully injured, for the loss and damage resulting to them financially by reason of the wrongful death. Thus, after declaring the liability of the employer to the injured servant, it adds—"or in case of the death of such employee, to his or her personal representative, for the benefit of the surviving widow or husband and children of such employee; and, if none, then of such employee's parents; and, if none, then of the next of kin dependent upon such employee, for such injury or death," etc. There is no express or implied limitation of the liability to cases in which the death was instantaneous.

This cause of action is independent of any cause of action which the decedent had, and includes no damages which he might have recovered for his injury if he had survived. It is one beyond that which the decedent had,—one proceeding upon altogether different principles. It is a liability for the loss and damage sustained by relatives dependent upon the decedent. It is therefore a liability for the pecuniary damage resulting to them, and for that only.

69] *The statute, in giving an action for the benefit of certain members of the family of the decedent, is essentially identical with the first act which ever provided for a cause of action arising out of the death of a human being,—that of 9 and 10 Vict. chap. 93, known as Lord Campbell's act. This act has been, in its distinguishing features, re-enacted in many of the states, and both in the courts of the states and of England has been construed not as operating as a continuance of any right of action which the injured person would have had but for his death, but as a new or independent cause of action for the purpose of compensating certain dependent members of the family for the deprivation, pecuniarily, resulting to them from his wrongful death. For convenience in comparing Lord Campbell's act with the act of Congress of 1908, the 1st and 2d sections of the former are set out in the margin.†

In one of the earliest cases which arose under the act, Coleridge, J., said:

"It will be evident that this act does not transfer this right of action to his representative, but gives to the representative a totally new right of action, on different principles." Blake v. Midland R. Co. 18 Q. B. 93.

In Seward v. The Vera Cruz, L. R. 10 App. Cas. 59, Lord Blackburn said:

*"A totally new action is given against[70 the person who would have been responsible to the deceased if the deceased had lived,—an action which . . . is new in its species, new in its quality, new in its principle, in every way new, and which can only be brought if there is any person answering the description of the widow, parent, or child, who, under such circumstances, suffers pecuniary loss."

But as the foundation of the right of action is the original wrongful injury to the decedent, it has been generally held that the new action is a right dependent upon the existence of a right in the decedent immediately before his death to have maintained an action for his wrongful injury. Tiffany, Death by Wrongful Act, § 124; Louisville, E. & St. L. R. Co. v. Clarke, 152 U. S. 231, 38 L. ed. 422, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 579; Read v. Great Eastern R. Co. L. R. 3 Q. B. 555, 9 Best. & S. 714, 37 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 278, 18 L. T. N. S. 82, 16 Week. Rep. 1040; Hecht v. Ohio & M. R. Co. 132 Ind. 507, 32 N. E. 302; Fowlkes v. Nashville & D. R. Co. 9 Heisk. 829; Littlewood v. New York, 89 N. Y. 24, 42 Am. Rep. 271; Southern Bell Teleph. & Teleg. Co. v. Cassin, 111 Ga. 575, 50 L.R.A. 694, 36 S. E. 881.

---

†Whensoever the death of a person shall be caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default, and the act, neglect, or default is such as would (if death had not ensued) have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof, then and in every such case the person who would have been liable if death had not ensued shall be liable to an action for damages notwithstanding the death, etc.

The 2d section provides that,—

Every such action shall be for the benefit of the wife, husband, parent, and child of the person whose death shall have been so caused, and shall be brought by and in the name of the executor or administrator of the person deceased; and in every such action the jury may give such damages as they may think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death to the parties respectively for whom and for whose benefit such action shall be brought.

The distinguishing features of that act are identical with the act of Congress of 1908 before its amendment: First, it is grounded upon the original wrongful injury of the person; second, it is for the exclusive benefit of certain specified relatives; third, the damages are such as flow from the deprivation of the pecuniary benefits which the beneficiaries might have reasonably received if the deceased had not died from his injuries.

The pecuniary loss is not dependent upon any legal liability of the injured person to the beneficiary. That is not the sole test. There must, however, appear some reasonable expectation of pecuniary assistance or support of which they have been deprived. Compensation for such loss manifestly does not include damages by way of recompense for grief or wounded feelings. Tiffany, Death by Wrongful Act, §§ 153, 154; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Barron, 5 Wall. 90, 105, 106, 18 L. ed. 591, 594, 595; Davis v. Guarnieri, 45 Ohio St. 470, 4 Am. St. Rep. 548, 15 N. E. 350; Blake v. Midland R. Co. 18 Q. B. 93, 21 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 233, 71]16 Jur. 562; Hurst v. *Detroit City R. Co. 84 Mich. 539, 545, 48 N. W. 44; Munro v. Pacific Coast Dredging & Reclamation Co. 84 Cal. 515, 18 Am. St. Rep. 248, 24 Pac. 303.

The word "pecuniary" did not appear in Lord Campbell's act, nor does it appear in our act of 1908. But the former act and all those which follow it have been continuously interpreted as providing only for compensation for pecuniary loss or damage.

A pecuniary loss or damage must be one which can be measured by some standard. It is a term employed judicially, "not only to express the character of that loss to the beneficial plaintiffs which is the foundation of their right of recovery, but also to discriminate between a material loss which is susceptible of a pecuniary valuation, and that inestimable loss of the society and companionship of the deceased relative upon which, in the nature of things, it is not possible to set a pecuniary valuation." Patterson, Railway Acci. Law, § 401.

Nevertheless, the word as judicially adopted is not so narrow as to exclude damages for the loss of services of the husband, wife, or child, and, when the beneficiary is a child, for the loss of that care, counsel, training, and education which it might, under the evidence, have reasonably received from the parent, and which can only be supplied by the service of another for compensation.

In Tilley v. Hudson River R. Co. 24 N. Y. 471, and 29 N. Y. 252, 86 Am. Dec. 297, the court stated that "the word 'pecuniary' was used in distinction to those injuries to the affections and sentiments which arise from the death of relatives, and which, though most painful and grievous to be borne, cannot be measured or recompensed by money. It excludes, also, those losses which result from the deprivation of the society and companionship, which are equally incapable of being defined by any recognized measure of value."

To the same effect are the cases of Schaub v. Hannibal & St. J. R. Co. 106 Mo. 74, 16 *S. W. 924, which was followed by the [72 circuit court of appeals for the eighth circuit in Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. v. Wilson, 1 C. C. A. 25, 4 U. S. App. 25, 48 Fed. 57; Lett v. St. Lawrence & O. R Co. 11 Ont. App. Rep. 1; Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Goodman, 62 Pa. 329, 339; Louisville, N. A. & C. R. Co. v. Rush, 127 Ind. 545, 26 N. E. 1010; Tiffany, Death by Wrongful Act, §§ 154 to 162, inclusive; Patterson, Railway Acci. Law, §§ 401 to 406.

No hard and fast rule by which pecuniary damages may in all cases be measured is possible. In Lett v. St. Lawrence & O. R Co. cited above, it was said in the opinion of Patterson, J. A., after a review of all the English cases construing the act of Lord Campbell—

"That there is through them all the same principles of construction applied to the statute. Each fresh state of facts as it arose was dealt with, and furnished a further illustration of the working of the act. The party claiming was held to be entitled or not to be entitled, the scale of compensation acted upon by the jury was approved or disapproved, in view of the immediate circumstances; but in no case has it been attempted to decide by anticipation what are the limits beyond which the benefit of the statute cannot be claimed."

The rule for the measurement of damages must differ according to the relation between the parties plaintiff and the decedent, "according as the action is brought for the benefit of husband, wife, minor child or parent of minor child, for the loss of services or support to which the beneficiary was legally entitled, or is brought for the benefit of a person whose damages consist only in the loss of a prospective benefit to which he was not legally entitled." Tiffany, Death by Wrongful Act, §§ 158, 160-162.

The court below instructed the jury that they could not allow damages for the grief and sorrow of the widow, or as a "balm to her feelings." They were directed to confine themselves to a proper compensation for the loss of any pecuniary benefit which would reasonably have *been derived by [73 her from the decedent's earnings. The court did not stop there, but further instructed the jury that, "in addition to that, independent of what he was receiving from the company, his employer, it is proper to consider the relation that was sustained by Mr. Wisemiller and Mrs. Wisemiller, namely, the relation of husband and wife, and draw upon your experiences as men, and measure, as far as you can, what it would reasonably have been worth to Mrs. Wisemiller in dollars and cents to have had, during their life together, had he lived, the care and advice of Mr. Wisemiller, her husband." [189 Fed. 496.] This threw the door open to the widest speculation. The jury was no longer confined to a consideration of the financial benefits which might reasonably be expected from her husband in a pecuniary way.

A minor child sustains a loss from the death of a parent, and particularly of a mother, altogether different from that of a wife or husband from the death of the spouse. The loss of society and companionship, and of the acts of kindness which originate in the relation and are not in the nature of services, are not capable of being measured by any material standard. But the duty of the mother to minor children is that of nurture, and of intellectual, moral, and physical training, such as, when obtained from others, must be for financial compensation. In such a case it has been held that the deprivation is such as to admit of definite valuation, if there be evidence of the fitness of the parent, and that the child has been actually deprived of such advantages. Tilley v. Hudson River R. Co. and Lett v. St. Lawrence & O. R. Co. both cited above. If the case at bar had been of such a character, the loss of "care and advice" might have been a proper matter for compensation.

Neither "care" nor "advice," as used by the court below, can be regarded as synonymous with "support" and "maintenance," for 74]the court said it was a deprivation *to be measured over and above support and maintenance. It is not beyond the bounds of supposition that by the death of the intestate his widow may have been deprived of some actual customary service from him, capable of measurement by some pecuniary standard, and that in some degree that service might include as elements "care and advice." But there was neither allegation nor evidence of such loss of service, care, or advice; and yet, by the instruction given, the jury were left to conjecture and speculation. They were told to estimate the financial value of such "care and advice from their own experiences as men." These experiences, which were to be the standard, would, of course, be as various as their tastes, habits, and opinions. It plainly left it open to the jury to consider the value of the widow's loss of the society and companionship of her husband.

In this part of the charge the court erred. The assignments of error are otherwise overruled. But for this error the judgment must be reversed and a new trial ordered.

Mr. Justice Holmes concurs in the result.

---

WALTER B. GRANT and R. E. Burlingame, Appts. and Plffs. in Err.,
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 74–80.)

Appeal — mode of review — criminal contempt.

1. A judgment fining a person for contempt in disobeying a subpœna duces tecum directing the production before the grand jury of certain books and papers in his possession is reviewable only by writ of error, the case being one of criminal contempt.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. d, 21, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — who may bring error — party.

2. Neither the appearance before the grand jury of the alleged owner of certain books and papers called for in a subpœna duces tecum directed to his attorney, nor an order appointing a referee to take testimony as to the rights and privileges claimed by the attorney, and as to the ownership of such books and papers, makes the former a party to the proceedings to punish the attorney for contempt in disobeying the subpœna, and he therefore has no standing to sue out or join in a writ

---

NOTE.—Distinction between appeal and writ of error—see note to Miners' Bank v. Iowa, 13 L. ed. U. S. 867.

On refusal to produce books or papers in response to subpœna, upon ground that they contain private matter—see note to Re Bolster, 29 L.R.A.(N.S.) 716.

On compulsory production of books and papers as unreasonable search or seizure—see note to Consolidated Rendering Co. v. Vermont, 52 L. ed. U. S. 327.

As to particularity required in description of documents in subpœna duces tecum—see note to Ex parte Gould, 31 L.R.A. (N.S.) 835.

As to constitutional protection against being forced to furnish evidence to be used against one's self in a civil case—see note to Levy v. Superior Court, 29 L.R.A. 811.

On the right of officer of a corporation to refuse to turn over its books to a receiver, upon the ground that they have a tendency to incriminate him—see note to Manning v. Mercantile Securities Co. 30 L.R.A.(N.S.) 725.

of error to review the final judgment in such proceedings.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, IV. a, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Witnesses — privileged communications — production of client's documents — self-crimination.

3. Whether or not an attorney may refuse to obey a subpœna duces tecum calling for the production of his client's books and papers before a grand jury because they may tend to incriminate the client depends upon the client's constitutional rights, irrespective of any question of professional privilege.

[For other cases, see Witnesses, V. c; Evidence, X. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Witnesses — self-crimination — production of corporate books.

4. A stockholder in a defunct corporation cannot invoke his constitutional privilege against self-crimination to justify his refusal to produce before the grand jury, under a subpœna duces tecum, the corporate books and papers in his possession, although the legal title to such books and papers may be in him.

[For other cases, see Witnesses, V. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Searches and seizures — production of corporate books.

5. The enforced production before the grand jury under a subpœna duces tecum of the books and papers of a defunct corporation covering a period of three years, which are in the possession of a former stockholder who claims title, does not violate any constitutional protection against unreasonable searches and seizures.

[For other cases, see Search and Seizure, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 831.]

Argued and submitted January 6, 1913. Decided January 20, 1913.

APPEAL from and IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a judgment fining an attorney for contempt in disobeying a subpœna duces tecum calling for the production of the books and papers to which his client asserts title. Appeal dismissed. Judgment affirmed on writ of error.

See same case below, 198 Fed. 708.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. William A. Keener submitted the cause for appellants and plaintiffs in error. Mr. Dallas Flannagan was on the brief:

The title to the books and letters called for by the subpœna, being in Burlingame personally, the case of Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 55 L. ed. 771, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558, has no application to the case at bar.

The same protection which the Constitution extends to Burlingame against the forced production of his books and letters which would tend to incriminate him also extends to his attorney when such books and letters are in his attorney's possession as attorney.

Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 630, 29 L. ed. 746, 751, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524.

Solicitor General Bullitt argued the cause, and, with Mr. Loring C. Christie, filed a brief for the United States:

The appeal here should be dismissed because a contempt proceeding such as this is sui generis, is in its nature criminal, and a person adjudged in contempt must review the order by writ of error, and not by appeal.

Bessette v. W. B. Conkey Co. 194 U. S. 324, 338, 48 L. ed. 997, 1006, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 665; Alexander v. United States, 201 U. S. 117, 122, 50 L. ed. 686, 688, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 356; Nelson v. United States, 201 U. S. 92, 50 L. ed. 673, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358; Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 55 L. ed. 771, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Sessions v. Gould, 11 C. C. A. 550, 26 U. S. App. 368, 63 Fed. 1001.

Burlingame has no standing in this court and his writ of error must be dismissed.

Ex parte Cockcroft, 104 U. S. 578, 26 L. ed. 856; Bayard v. Lombard, 9 How. 530, 551, 13 L. ed. 245, 254; Payne v. Niles, 20 How. 219, 221, 15 L. ed. 895, 896.

This is a noncapital criminal case. There can be no review of it here unless a constitutional question is involved.

Rakes v. United States, 212 U. S. 55, 53 L. ed. 401, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 244; Nelson v. United States, 201 U. S. 92, 98, 50 L. ed. 673, 674, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358.

The court held as a fact that Grant had the books solely for safe-keeping, and not as attorney. This finding will not be reviewed on writ of error.

Behn v. Campbell, 205 U. S. 403, 407, 51 L. ed. 857, 858, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502; Bessette v. W. B. Conkey Co. 194 U. S. 324, 48 L. ed. 997, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 665.

If the constitutional question considered below is involved, it is covered by Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 55 L. ed. 771, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558.

Since Burlingame would have been bound to produce the books, Grant, even assuming that he holds them as Burlingame's attorney, is likewise bound to produce them, since they are documents independently pre-existing, and their production, therefore, is not a disclosure of the attorney's knowledge at all.

4 Wigmore, Ev. § 2307.

The subpœna is suitably specific, and, in any event, such an objection does not affect the validity of the order below.

Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 375, 376, 55 L. ed. 777, 778, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Consolidated Rendering Co. v. Vermont, 207 U. S. 541, 554, 52 L. ed. 327, 335, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 178, 12 Ann. Cas. 658.

Mr. Justice Hughes delivered the opinion of the court:

Walter B. Grant and E. E. Burlingame seek, both by appeal and by writ of error, a review of a judgment of the district court by which Grant was adjudged to be guilty of contempt.

Burlingame was indicted by a Federal grand jury in the southern district of New York on August 30, 1911, and again on March 15, 1912, the latter indictment being found against him in connection with the Ellsworth Company, a corporation, J. D. Smith, and others. Walter B. Grant was one of Burlingame's attorneys. On March 13, 1912, a subpœna duces tecum was served upon Grant, directing him to appear before the grand jury to testify in regard to an alleged violation of the statutes of the 77] *United States by J. D. Smith, and to produce certain books and papers of the Ellsworth Company for the years 1907, 1908, 1909. In response to the subpœna, Grant appeared before the grand jury but did not produce the documents demanded. On being asked whether he had received from Burlingame any box of books or papers, he declined to answer further than to say that he had received nothing from Burlingame save in his capacity as attorney for the purpose of professional consultation and of preparing for the defense of his client. He said that he had not opened any box received from Burlingame, and he refused to open any such box in order to ascertain whether or not it contained the books or papers called for, upon the ground that to do so for the purpose of disclosing the result of his examination would violate his duty and his client's privilege.

The grand jury thereupon presented Grant for contempt. Burlingame appeared in court, set up that the books and papers required to be produced were his individual property, and that to produce them or to disclose their contents or whereabouts would tend to incriminate him. The court appointed a referee to take evidence as to the rights and privileges claimed by Grant, and as to the ownership of the books and papers, together with such other evidence as might be relevant to the questions raised, and to make report to the court, with his conclusions. Much testimony was taken before the referee, wh submitted an elaborate report upon th facts and the law, embracing the followin conclusions: That Burlingame had at s times been the sole stockholder of the Ell worth Company which, on December 3 1909, had ceased to do business; that th legal title to the books and papers was the corporation, and not in Burlingam that if the title had passed to Burlingam prior to the service of the subpœna, neve theless they would not be privileged, f the reason that they were corporate character; *that in August or Septem-[7 ber, 1911, Burlingame had delivered tw packages and a box to Grant, which the la ter had in his possession; that the packag and box were delivered to Grant for saf keeping in his office, and were not deliver to him in his professional capacity as a torney, or for the purpose of consultati with him in such capacity; that their co tents were not privileged, and that Gra should have searched therein for the bool and papers, should have produced them found, and should have answered the que tions put to him before the grand jur and, finally, that by reason of his refusa he was in contempt.

Exceptions were filed to the report, whi was confirmed by the court save as to th finding that the legal title to the bool and papers was in the corporation. Gra was thereupon adjudged to be in contem for failing to examine the contents of th box and packages for the purpose of a certaining whether they contained the p pers specified in the subpœna, and for fa ing to answer the questions put to him co cerning them by the grand jury. It w provided that he might purge himself the contempt by making the examinati and by answering such questions and pr ducing the papers, if found, in response a fresh subpœna. In punishment, he w fined a sum equal to the expenses of th reference.

The appeals, both of Grant and Burli game, from this judgment must be di missed. The case was one of crimin contempt reviewable only by writ of erro Bessette v. W. B. Conkey Co. 194 U. 324, 336–338, 48 L. ed. 997, 1005, 1006, Sup. Ct. Rep. 665; Bucklin v. United Stat 159 U. S. 681, 40 L. ed. 304, 16 Sup. C Rep. 182; Gompers v. Bucks Stove & Ran Co. 221 U. S. 418, 444, 55 L. ed. 797, 80 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 874, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 49 Re Merchants' Stock & Grain Co. 223 U. 639, 56 L. ed. 584, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33

In the writ of error, Burlingame has a tempted to join. The subpœna was not d rected to him, and he was not charged w contempt. It is true that he appe before the court when Grant was presented 79]by the grand jury, *and stated his claim to the books and papers. In the subsequent inquiry, the purpose of the court manifestly was to ascertain all the facts in order that it might properly decide the question with respect to the alleged contumacy of Grant. Neither Burlingame's appearance before the court, nor the order of reference, made Burlingame a party to the proceeding, which was in its nature criminal, and was instituted and conducted to the final judgment against Grant alone. Burlingame had no standing to sue out a writ of error. Bayard v. Lombard, 9 How. 530, 551, 13 L. ed. 245, 254; Payne v. Niles, 20 How. 219, 221, 15 L. ed. 895, 896; Ex parte Cockcroft, 104 U. S. 578, 26 L. ed. 856. And the writ must be dismissed as to him.

The judgment is attacked by Grant upon the ground that there has been a denial of constitutional right. It is contended by the government that the writ should also be dismissed as to Grant because the facts are not open to review, and it was found by the court below that he had not received the box and packages in his professional capacity as attorney or for purposes of consultation. While this suffices to show that the questions put to the witness did not invade the professional privilege, the finding does not control the decision of the case with respect to the requirement of the production of the books and papers if in Grant's possession. See 4 Wigmore, Ev. § 2307. These were independent documents. Even if they had been received by Grant as attorney for purposes of consultation, they could not be regarded as privileged communications. And, assuming that they were left with him merely for safe-keeping, they would still be held by Grant as Burlingame's agent. The inquiry thus remains whether in these circumstances Grant could refuse their production if they would tend to incriminate his principal.

Although the merits of the constitutional question are thus before us, it does not require extended discussion in view of the recent decisions of this court. The books 80] *and papers called for by the subpœna were corporate records and documents. Whether or not the title to them had passed to Burlingame when the Ellsworth Company ceased to do business, their essential character was not changed. They remained subject to inspection and examination when required by competent authority, and they could not have been withheld by Burlingame himself upon the ground that they would tend to incriminate him. Nor was there any unreasonable search or seizure. Wheeler v. United States, decided January 6, 1913 [226 U. S. 478, ante, 309, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158]; Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 55 L. ed. 771, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558.

It follows that Grant, from any point of view, was not justified in his refusals, and the judgment is affirmed.

---

NORMAN H. DAVIS and Charles H. Phillips, Appts.,

v.

LAS OVAS COMPANY, Incorporated.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 80–87.)

Corporations — promoters — secret profits.

1. A corporation may recover the secret profits made by some of its promoters without the knowledge of their associates in the purchase of a tract of land for the proposed corporation, and may require them to surrender for cancelation the shares of stock issued to them for their services as promoters, although such recovery may inure to the benefit of the guilty as well as to the innocent.

[For other cases, see Corporations, VIII., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Parties — necessary defendants — suit against promoters of corporation.

2. All the promoters who may have shared in the secret profits made in the purchase of a tract of land for the proposed corporation are not necessary parties defendant to a suit by a corporation to recover such profits, together with the shares of stock issued to them for their services as promoters, but the corporation may sue any or all of those who received such profits.

[For other cases, see Parties, II. a, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 87.]

Argued December 16, 1912. Decided January 20, 1913.

APPEAL from the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia to review a decree which, reversing in part a decree of the Supreme Court of the District, ordered the entry of a decree for the recovery by a corporation of secret profits made by its

---

NOTE.—Liability of promoter for secret profits on sale to corporation of property on which he holds option.

The confidential or fiduciary relation to the corporation and its members, in which the promoter is universally regarded as standing, is enough to require him to disgorge any secret profits of the character under consideration.

promoters, and the surrender for cancelation of the shares of stock issued to them for their services as promoters. Affirmed.

See same case below, 35 App. D. C. 372.

Messrs. J. K. M. Norton and Samuel A. Putman argued the cause and filed a brief for appellants:

Can the company in such a case as this, where the syndicate put the property in its name and took it back in the form of all its stock, bring suit for a deception upon some members by other members of the syndicate when the public was not only not brought in, but could not be brought in, as the company had no stock to sell the public?

Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 210 U. S. 206, 52 L. ed. 1025, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 634; Morawetz, Priv. Corp 2d ed. § 292.

When directors issue the whole stock o the company for property worth less tha the par amount, no one is injured in th least.

Blum v. Whitney, 185 N. Y. 232, 77 N E. 1159; Cook, Corp. 6th ed. § 651.

When all the stock of the company i turned into another company in exchang for the stock of the latter, and the pro moters are the only ones interested, thoug the stock is afterwards sold, the promoter cannot be held.

Cook, Corp. § 651, p. 1888; Stratton' Independence v. Dines, 126 Fed. 968, a firmed in 68 C. C. A. 161, 135 Fed. 449.

When all the stock of a corporation i

---

Promoters will not, said the court in Mangold v. Adrian Irrig. Co. 60 Wash. 286, 111 Pac. 173, be permitted to profit secretly at the expense of investing stockholders in the sale of property to the corporation on which such promoters held merely an option.

One who, while acting as promoter of a corporation, obtains an option on lands which he sells to the corporation when formed, at an advance, concealing from the company the fact that he is making a profit, will not be allowed to derive any advantage from such sale. Johnson v. Sheridan Lumber Co. 51 Or. 35, 93 Pac. 470.

Where persons who had an option to purchase property for $20,000 represented to the subscribers that the option would cost $90,000, and after securing the subscription and the money thereon, paid the $20,000, and converted $70,000 to their own use, it was held that an action on behalf of the corporation to recover the $70,000 was maintainable. Pittsburg Min. Co. v. Spooner, 74 Wis. 307, 17 Am. St. Rep. 149, 42 N. W. 259, 17 Mor. Min. Rep. 226.

Where a promoter of a corporation for the purchase of certain real estate is not the owner thereof at the time he begins to organize such corporation, but has only an option thereon, but subsequently obtains a deed and then sells at a profit to the company without making known to it fully his interest therein, he is liable in damages to the company for the amount of his secret profit. Exter v. Sawyer, 146 Mo. 302, 47 S. W. 951.

Promoters cannot close an option and sell at an advance in price the land covered by it to a corporation organized by them while the option was unexercised, unless the corporation has the fullest and most complete knowledge of the transaction and consents thereto; and, if they do, they may be required to account for the secret profits. Caffee v. Berkely, 141 Iowa, 344, 118 N. W. 267.

Promoters of a corporation are bound to the exercise of good faith toward all the stockholders; and when they have secured options on property which they intend to sell to the corporation, it is their duty t disclose all the facts relating to the prop erty; and they are precluded from takin a secret advantage. See v. Heppenheime 69 N. J. Eq. 36, 61 Atl. 843.

A corporation may secure the cancelatio of stock which was paid for out of the secre profits made by the subscribers in the sal to the corporation of property on whic they had secured an option, and to purchas which they had organized the corporatio the management of which, at the consum mation of the transaction, was completel under their control. Yeiser v. United State Board & Paper Co. 52 L.R.A. 724, 46 C. C A. 567, 107 Fed. 340.

In Wills v. Nehalem Coal Co. 52 Or. 7 96 Pac. 528, a promoter obtained an optio on land for $12,000, paying thereon $40 obtained from a subscriber in payment o his shares; she paid her subscription fo 750 shares, of the par value of $75,00 which was half the stock of the compan by selling the land to the company, whos board of directors she controlled, for $87,00 receiving the note of the company, whic was subsequently paid, for the balanc $12,000. It was held that the promoter di not merely sell the corporation at an un fair price property that lawfully belonge to her, but that the corporation had through a colorable and circuitous transfe of the title, been compelled to pay $87,00 for land that it was legally and equitabl entitled to purchase for $12,000; and tha her stock would be regarded as unpaid o partly unpaid, and she would be compelle to pay the difference to the corporation, o her stock would be canceled, as should ap pear to the court most equitable.

A trust mortgage which represents th secret profits of the promoters on the sal through a third person to the corporation o real property on which such promoters hel an option is void and invalid as against th corporation, although the property actuall may have been worth the increase in pric Midwood Park Co. v. Baker, 128 N. Y. Supp 954, affirmed without opinion in 144 A Div. 939, 129 N. Y. Supp. 1135.

issued in payment for property, the vendor cannot be held liable for misrepresentations as to the value of the property.

Foster v. Seymour, 23 Fed. 65; McCracken v. Robison, 6 C. C. A. 400, 13 U. S. App. 547, 57 Fed. 375; Du Pont v. Tilden, 42 Fed. 87; Wood v. Corry Water Works, 12 L.R.A. 168, 44 Fed. 146; Bank of Fort Madison v. Alden, 129 U. S. 373, 32 L. ed. 725, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 332; Barr v. New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. 125 N. Y. 273, 26 N. E. 145; Seymour v. Spring Forrest Cemetery Asso. 144 N. Y. 333, 26 L.R.A. 859, 39 N. E. 365; Thornton v. Wabash R. Co. 81 N. Y. 467; Parsons v. Hayes, 14 Abb. N. C. 434; King v. Barnes, 109 N. Y. 268, 16 N. E. 332; Insurance Press v. Montauk Fire Detecting Wire Co. 103 App. Div. 472, 93 N. Y. Supp. 134; Higgins v. Lansing, 154 Ill. 301, 40 N. E. 362; Spaulding v. North Milwaukee Town Site Co. 106 Wis. 488, 81 N. W. 1064; Garretson v. Pacific Crude Oil Co. 146 Cal. 184, 79 Pac. 838; St. Louis, Ft. S. & W. R. Co. v. Tiernan, 37 Kan. 633, 15 Pac. 544; Walburn v. Chenault, 43 Kan. 356, 23 Pac. 657; Arkansas River Land Town & Canal Co. v. Farmers' Loan & T. Co. 13 Colo. 587, 22 Pac. 954; Tompkins v. Sperry, 96 Md. 583, 54 Atl. 254; Swift v. Smith, 65 Md. 435, 57 Am. Rep. 336, 5 Atl. 534; Merchants & M. Sav. Bank v. Burlington Coal & Coke Co. 51 W. Va. 60, 41 S. E. 390; Clark v. American Coal Co. 86 Iowa, 436, 17 L.R.A. 561, 53 N. W. 291; Divine v. Universal Sewing Mach. Motor Attachment Co. — Tenn. —, 38 S. W. 93; Re Ambrose Lake Tin & C.

---

Where a realty company had contracted to buy for $350,000 property which it the next day sold for $640,000 to the trustees of a syndicate formed by it to purchase the property, and which was later incorporated, the realty company representing that the purchase price was $550,000, and taking a mortgage for the remaining $90,000 for its services in procuring the property and its expenses in forming the syndicate, such mortgage will be canceled, the realty company being called upon to act in good faith, and being prohibited from making a secret profit out of the transaction. Crowe v. Malba Land Co. 76 Misc. 676, 135 N. Y. Supp. 454.

Bonds issued to promoters in payment for options on the property of competing companies of small and uncertain prospective value are void under a Constitution which provides that no corporation shall issue stock or bonds except for money, labor done, or money or property actually received, and that all fictitious increase of stock or indebtedness shall be void. Wiegand v. Albert Lewis Lumber & Mfg. Co. 85 C. C. A. 430, 158 Fed. 608, affirming Re Wyoming Valley Ice Co. 153 Fed. 787.

The law will not approve a transaction by which property is purchased by a promoter of a corporation with money solicited in substantial part from associates by representations that he intends to form a corporation with a specified capitalization, and sell the property to it for a certain amount of stock, followed by its actual sale to the corporation for a much larger sum, the settlement with the associates at the price agreed upon, and the retention by the promoter of the difference as a secret profit, taking cash subscriptions from the general public, who understand that the corporation is organized under a statute which requires property to be taken for stock only at its true value. Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. Bigelow, 203 Mass. 159, 40 L.R.A.(N.S.) 314, 89 N. E. 193, affirmed in 225 U. S. 111, 56 L. ed. 1009, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641.

In Walker v. Pike County Land Co. 71 C. C. A. 593, 139 Fed. 609, defendant, who held an option to purchase certain land for $67,500, represented to certain prospective buyers that the lowest sum for which it could be obtained was $80,000, and joined with them in forming a corporation to hold the title to the same, and himself became a subscriber. It was held that "as a joint purchaser he stood in a fiduciary relationship to his associates, and was bound to the utmost good faith in his dealings with them. The law demanded of him not only that he should not be guilty of positive fraud, but that he should not conceal from them any fact material to the transaction. Any profit which he secured by violating this legal duty he was bound to account for to them." Hence a judgment for the amount of the secret profits, in favor of the corporation, was sustained.

Even though a promoter of a corporation to purchase certain land obtained an option thereon and paid part of the purchase price before beginning to organize the corporation, yet he has no right to conceal or misrepresent his connection with and interest in the thing about which he is proposing to deal with the corporation; and if he does, he may be compelled to account to it for his secret profit in the sale. Wiano Land & Improv. Co. v. Webster, 75 Mo. App. 457.

It was held in Richardson v. Graham, 45 W. Va. 134, 30 S. E. 92, that, where the holder of an option on oil lands for $6,000 organizes a corporation to purchase and develop the same, and on each subscription paper states that he holds an option on said lands and will sell them for $8,500 to the company when organized, but says nothing about what they cost him, and the company, when organized, votes to buy the same, such holder is guilty of no deceit, and may retain his profit, since he is the owner of the lands, and may sell them for what he can get for them.

And on the general subject of the duty and liability of promoters to the corporation and its members, see notes to Lomita Land & Water Co. v. Robinson, 18 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1106, and Yale Gas Stove Co. v. Wilcox, 25 L.R.A. 90.

Min. Co. L. R. 14 Ch. Div. 395, 49 L. J. Ch. N. S. 457, 42 L. T. N. S. 604, 28 Week. Rep. 783; Salomen v. Salomen & Co. L. R. [1897] A. C. 22, 65 L. J. Ch. N. S. 35, 75 L. T. N. S. 426, 45 Week. Rep. 193.

There is no legal difference between the holder of an option and a full owner of land.

Densmore Oil Co. v. Densmore, 64 Pa. 49, 3 Mor. Min. Rep. 569; Cummins v. Beavers, 103 Va. 230, 106 Am. St. Rep. 881, 48 S. E. 891, 1 Ann. Cas. 986.

The syndicate agreement was wholly between the parties thereto.

Hutchinson v. Simpson, 92 App. Div. 382, 87 N. Y. Supp. 369; Blum v. Whitney, 185 N. Y. 241, 77 N. E. 1159.

Equity looks at the substance, and not at the form of things. There is nothing here for the company to sue for.

Thomp. Corp. 3d ed. § 3997.

Herbert and Micou should have been made parties.

Thomp. Corp. § 473; Shields v. Barrow, 17 How. 130, 15 L. ed. 158; Jessup v. Illinois C. R. Co. 36 Fed. 738.

Equity will surely not allow the plaintiff purposely to leave out some and make victims of a part without good reason.

Thomp. Corp. §§ 465, 473; Shields v. Barrow, 17 How. 130, 15 L. ed. 158; Barney v. Baltimore, 6 Wall. 280, 18 L. ed. 825; Jessup v. Illinois C. R. Co. 36 Fed. 738.

The measure of the recovery in equity is only the net secret profits.

McElhenny's Appeal, 61 Pa. 188.

In estimating secret profits allowance must be made for all expenses incurred.

Emma Silver Min. Co. v. Grant, L. R. 11 Ch. Div. 918, 40 L. T. N. S. 804.

The company must be consistent. It cannot leave out Herbert and Micou, thus treating them as innocent, and at the same time hold Davis and Phillips for all the secret profits, some of which was certainly received by Herbert and Micou, through Micou.

7 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 22; Littell v. Julius Lansburgh Furniture Co. 96 Va. 540, 32 S. E. 63.

All the cases negative the idea that a court of equity can penalize and fine in such cases by taking away what was openly agreed to be given.

Thomp. Corp. §§ 459, 463, 8287; McElhenny's Appeal, 61 Pa. 188; Emma Silver Min. Co. v. Grant, L. R. 11 Ch. Div. 918, 40 L. T. N. S. 804.

Parties are not allowed to take inconsistent positions in legal proceedings.

7 Am. & Eng. Enc. Law, 22; Littell v. Julius Lansburgh Furniture Co. 96 Va. 540, 32 S. E. 63.

Mr. J. J. Darlington argued the caus and filed a brief for appellee.

*Memorandum opinion by direction of[8 the court, by Mr. Justice Lurton:

This is a bill by the appellee to recove from appellants secret profits made by them as promoters of the Las Ovas Company i the purchase of a part of a tract of lan known as Las Ovas, in the Republic o Cuba, and also for the cancelation of cer tain shares of stock issued to them as pro moters.

The facts essential to judgment are no in serious dispute. They are found clearl and fully stated in the opinion of Mr Justice Gould for the supreme court of th District of Columbia, and again in th opinion of the court of appeals of the Dis trict by Mr. Justice Robb.

From the facts found by both courts i appears:—

a. That the appellants and certain othe persons, not parties to this suit, signe an agreement on March 19, 1904, by whic they agreed to purchase for a corporatio which they were to organize a specified par of a tract of land in Cuba called the La Ovas plantation, for the price of $34,000 to which it was later agreed to add anothe small parcel at an additional price o $1,000.

b. It was further agreed that they shoul organize a corporation, of which they shoul be the incorporators, with a capital stoc of $150,000, and that 40 per cent of th shares should be issued to them for servic as promoters and that the remaining stoc should be subscribed for by them. For thi subscribed stock they were to pay a amount sufficient to cover the purchas money of $35,000 and to create an expens fund of $5,000.

c. It was agreed that the property should when acquired, be placed in the hands o one of the group of promoters until th formation of the company, and then con veyed to it.

d. The scheme was one originated an engineered by the appellants, who, at[8 the time of this agreement, had already se cretly secured an option for themselves fo the purchase of this property at the price o $20,000. To conceal the true consideratio from their associates they caused the prop erty to be conveyed by the vendor to on Escalante, a stranger selected by them. Th deed to Escalante recited the true consid eration. Later, in pursuance of the pro moters' agreement, they caused Escalant to convey to the member of the syndicat selected to hold the title until organizatio reciting a consideration of $35,000.

The corporation was organized as planned. The promoters' shares were duly issued and the remaining shares taken by the promoters upon the agreed terms, its officers and directors being composed exclusively of the members of the syndicate. Thereupon the property was transferred to the company and paid for, through appellants, out of the proceeds of the subscribed stock.

The result of the transaction was that the corporation was required to pay to those who had assumed to act for and represent it, a secret profit of $15,000 and also to compensate them for their services in buying the land and organizing the company by issuing to each of them $15,000 in nonassessable shares of its stock.

The decree below required the appellants to account for the profits realized by them, in part traced to certain shares in their hands, and to surrender for cancelation the shares issued to them as promoters.

It is now said that the corporation was "a mere convenient receptacle for the property, erected for the convenience of the syndicate." That the property was bought by the syndicate for their own advantage, and that the corporation included only the members of the syndicate. That the stock of the company was all taken by the syndicate, who, for property which was their own, agreed *to pay enough to cover the purchase price and create a small expense fund. [86]

Upon this contention it is urged that the corporation has no right to the relief sought, as the whole transaction was a mere form adopted by the parties for their own convenience as owners of the property and owners of the corporation. It is then said: "If we admit, for the purposes of this point, that appellants did deceive some of the syndicate, what has the company to do with it? For this they cite Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, 210 U. S. 206, 52 L. ed. 1025, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 634, where it was held that a subordinate fraud practised by some of the promoters of a corporation upon some of their associates was a matter wholly between them and the syndicate, which gave rise to no corporate right of action in the absence of innocent incorporators or stockholders.

But that is not this case. Some of those, if not all, interested by appellants in the property and in its purchase for a proposed consideration were ignorant of the real price which they were to pay for it, and were not, therefore, in complicity with their scheme to make a secret profit. Their innocent members of the syndicate became stock subscribers and directors of the company, as did appellants. The buyers and sellers were not the same. Those of the syndicate assuming to act for the corporation in acquiring the property were under obligation to disclose the truth and deal openly. In the absence of such disclosure the corporate assent was obtained on false grounds. The wrong was done when those members of the syndicate not in complicity with appellants subscribed to the stock of the company and aided their guilty associate managers in the corporate action necessary to the corporate acquisition of the property at the exaggerated price placed upon it by those who were to realize a secret profit. Thus, the original fraud practised upon some of those associated with them in the promoters' arrangement became operative against the corporation itself. The standing of the *corporation [87] results from the fact that there were innocent and deceived members of the corporation when the property was taken over by it.

Neither is the corporate right of action defeated by the fact that the recovery will inure to the guilty as well as to the innocent, nor is the fact that all of the parties who may have shared in the secret profits are not sued fatal to the case. The corporation may well sue either one or all of those who received secret profits. There is no want of necessary parties because all are not here sued.

The distinction between a case in which all of the owners of the property and all of the members of the buying corporation are the same persons, and participate in the profit realized, and the case here presented, is fully recognized in Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. v. Lewisohn, as well as in New Sombrero Phosphate Co. v. Erlanger, L. R. 5 Ch. Div. 73, 46 L. J. Ch. N. S. 425, 36 L. T. N. S. 222, 25 Week. Rep. 436, and in the well-considered opinion of Judge Severens in Yeiser v. United States Board & Paper Co. 52 L.R.A. 724, 46 C. C. A. 567, 107 Fed. 340.

There was no error in canceling the shares issued to the plaintiffs in error for promotion of the corporation. They and the other members of the syndicate received these shares upon the assumption that they had in good faith served the corporation in the procurement of the property. Obviously appellants were serving themselves to the detriment of the corporation and innocent subscribers to its stock. In such a situation the corporation may recover the shares.

The decree will be affirmed.

88] *INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION and the United States, Appts.,

v.

LOUISVILLE & NASHVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 88–100.)

Interstate Commerce Commission — review of order fixing rates — commerce court.

1. An order of the Interstate Commerce Commission reducing railway rates, made in the exercise of its power under the Hepburn act of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288), § 4, to set aside rates if, after a hearing, the "Commission shall be of the opinion that the charge was unreasonable," may be reversed by the commerce court if there was no substantial evidence to sustain the order, in view of the provisions of the act of March 2, 1889 (25 Stat. at L. 861, chap. 382, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3168), § 6, for methods of procedure before the Commission that "conduce to justice," and of the express declaration in the act of June 18, 1910 (36 Stat. at L. 551, chap. 309), § 12, that such orders "may be suspended or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction."

[For other cases, see Interstate Commerce Commission, 8–14, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Interstate Commerce Commission — review of order fixing rates — commerce court.

2. The lack of formal proof at the hearing essential to sustain an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission reducing rates cannot be supplied by indulging a presumption that its findings were supported by the information which the Commission is required by the act of February 10, 1891 (26 Stat. at L. 743, chap. 128, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3163), § 12, to obtain in order to enable it to perform the duties and carry out the objects for which it was created.

[For other cases, see Interstate Commerce Commission, 8–14, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Interstate commerce commission — review of order fixing rates — facts.

3. An order of the Interstate Commerce Commission restoring an old local rate which had been raised by the carrier in order to make the sum of the locals equal the through rate, and making a corresponding reduction in such through rate, cannot be said to have been made without any substantial evidence to support it, where there was conflicting evidence as to the justice of the new rates in themselves and by comparison with others, and as to the reasonableness of the old rates, which had remained in force for some years after the water competition originally compelling them had disappeared.

[For other cases, see Interstate Commerce Commission, 8–14, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 600.]

Argued October 17 and 18, 1912. Decided January 20, 1913.

APPEAL from the United States Commerce Court to review a decree which annulled an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission reducing rates. Reversed.

See same case below, 195 Fed. 541.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Assistant to the Attorney General Fowler argued the cause, and, with Mr. Blackburn Esterline, Special Assistant to the Attorney General, filed a brief for the United States:

The decisions of this court prior to the case of Interstate Commerce Commission v. Union P. R. Co. 222 U. S. 541–546, 56 L. ed. 308–310, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108, sustain the view that the evidence before the Commission cannot be reviewed by the courts.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Stickney, 215 U. S. 98, 54 L. ed. 112, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 66; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 470, 54 L. ed. 280, 287, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 216 U. S. 531, 54 L. ed. 605, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 415; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Northern P. R. Co. 216 U. S. 538, 54 L. ed. 608, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 417; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 218 U. S. 88, 108, 110, 111, 54 L. ed. 946, 957, 958, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 651; Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 433, 55 L. ed. 283, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 288; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 220 U. S. 235, 251, 55 L. ed. 448, 456, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 392.

If the action of the Commission in determining whether or not a rate is reasonable is judicial in its nature, the evidence upon which it acts is not reviewable.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. 167 U. S. 479, 499, 501, 42 L. ed. 243, 253, 254, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 896, 998; Harlan v. McGourin, 218 U. S. 442, 444. 447, 54 L. ed. 1101, 1103, 1105, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 44, 2 Ann. Cas. 849; Hilton v. Merritt, 110 U. S. 97, 107, 28 L. ed. 83, 86, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 548; Muser v. Magone, 155 U. S. 240, 247, 39 L. ed. 135, 137, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 77.

When an act is partly judicial and partly administrative, as numerous acts performed by the heads of departments, the evidence upon which the action is had is not subject to consideration.

American School v. McAnnulty, 187 U. S. 94, 107, 109, 47 L. ed. 90, 95, 96, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33; Burfenning v. Chicago, St. P. M. & O. R. Co. 163 U. S. 321, 323, 41 L. ed. 175, 176, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1018; Bates

& G. Co. v. Payne, 194 U. S. 106, 110, 48 L. ed. 894, 895, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595; United States ex rel. Riverside Oil Co. v. Hitchcock, 190 U. S. 316, 324, 47 L. ed. 1074, 1078, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 698.

The action of the Commission in determining that the existing rates were unreasonable, and in fixing maximum reasonable rates, was legislative, and therefore the commerce court has no control whatever over the same if regularly passed and within the power of the Commission.

Prentis v. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. 211 U. S. 210, 227, 53 L. ed. 150, 159, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Babcock, 204 U. S. 585, 598, 51 L. ed. 636, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 326.

The reasonableness of a rate is a question of fact for the Commission.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 218 U. S. 88, 54 L. ed. 946, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 651; Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 433, 55 L. ed. 283, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 288.

The determination by the Commission whether a rate is reasonable, and the determination by the courts whether a rate when fixed is unconstitutional, because confiscatory, are governed by entirely different principles.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Eubank, 184 U. S. 27, 46 L. ed. 416, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 277; Smyth v. Ames, 169 U. S. 466, 42 L. ed. 819, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 418; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. Gill, 156 U. S. 649, 39 L. ed. 567, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 484; Minneapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Minnesota, 186 U. S. 257, 267, 46 L. ed. 1151, 1157, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 900; Willcox v. Consolidated Gas Co. 212 U. S. 19, 53 L. ed. 382, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 192, 15 Ann. Cas. 1034; San Diego Land & Town Co. v. National City, 174 U. S. 739, 43 L. ed. 1154, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 804. See also San Diego Land & Town Co. v. Jasper, 189 U. S. 439, 47 L. ed. 892, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 571; Stanislaus County v. San Joaquin & K. River Canal & Irrig. Co. 192 U. S. 201, 48 L. ed. 406, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 241.

Mr. P. J. Farrell argued the cause and filed a brief for the Interstate Commerce Commission:

The commerce court erred in substituting its own judgment for the judgment of the Commission concerning the reasonableness of the rates involved.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 452, 54 L. ed. 280, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Union P. R. Co. 222 U. S. 541, 56 L. ed. 308, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108; Procter & G. Co. v. United States, 225 U. S. 282, 56 L. ed. 1091, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 761.

Mr. Helm Bruce argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Henry L. Stone and Albert S. Brandeis, filed a brief for appellee:

An order of the Interstate Commerce Commission lowering rates, entered without substantial evidence to support it, is void.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Union P. R. Co. 222 U. S. 541, 547, 56 L. ed. 308, 311, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108.

In a suit to enforce or enjoin an order of the Interstate Commerce Commission there is jurisdiction to take evidence upon the merits of the original controversy.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Alabama Midland R. Co. 168 U. S. 144, 174, 42 L. ed. 414, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 45; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 218 U. S. 88, 110, 54 L. ed. 946, 957, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 651; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Union P. R. Co. 222 U. S. 541, 547, 56 L. ed. 308, 311, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108.

There is no presumption of wrong arising from a change of rate by a carrier.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 209 U. S. 108, 119, 52 L. ed. 705, 712, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has no power to fix rates for the future until the existing rates have been shown to be unreasonable.

Interstate Commerce Commission v. Northern P. R. Co. 216 U. S. 538, 544, 54 L. ed. 608, 609, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 417.

Mr. Justice Lamar delivered the opinion of the court:

The New Orleans Board of Trade, in October and November, 1907, brought three separate proceedings against *the Louis-[90 ville & Nashville Railroad, asking the Commerce Commission to set aside as unfair, unreasonable, and discriminatory certain class and commodity rates (local) from New Orleans to (1) Mobile, to (2) Pensacola, and (3) through rates, via those cities, to Montgomery, Selma, and Prattville. The railroad answered. A hearing was had, the issue as to commodity rates was adjusted by agreement, and on December 31, 1909, the Commission made a single order in which it found the class rates complained of to be unreasonable, directed the old locals to be restored, and a corresponding reduction made in the through rates. The railroad thereupon, on January 26, 1910, filed a bill in the United States circuit court for the western district of Kentucky, praying that the Commission be enjoined from enforcing this order, which it alleged was arbitrary, oppressive, and confiscatory, and deprived the company of its property and right to make rates, without due process of law.

After a hearing before three circuit court judges, the carrier's application for a temporary injunction was denied. 184 Fed. 118. Testimony was then taken before an examiner. Later the suit was transferred to the newly organized commerce court,—the United States being made a party. There, in addition to the evidence in the circuit court, the railroad exhibited all that had been introduced before the Commission, as a basis for the contention that this evidence utterly failed to show that the rates attacked were unreasonable. This view was sustained by the commerce court, which in a lengthy opinion held (one judge dissenting) that the order was void because there was no material evidence to support it.

On the appeal here, the government insisted that while the act of 1887 to regulate commerce (24 Stat. at L. 379, §§ 14-16, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1284) made the orders of the Commission only prima facie correct, a different result followed from the provision in the Hepburn act of 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, § 4, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. 91]Sup. 1911, p. 1297), *that rates should be set aside if after a hearing the "Commission shall be of the opinion that the charge was unreasonable." In such case it insisted that the order based on such opinion is conclusive, and (though Interstate Commerce Commission v. Union P. R. Co. 222 U. S. 547, 56 L. ed. 311, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108, was to the contrary) could not be set aside, even if the finding was wholly without substantial evidence to support it.

1. But the statute gave the right to a full hearing, and that conferred the privilege of introducing testimony, and at the same time imposed the duty of deciding in accordance with the facts proved. A finding without evidence is arbitrary and baseless. And if the government's contention is correct, it would mean that the Commission had a power possessed by no other officer, administrative body, or tribunal under our government. It would mean that, where rights depended upon facts, the Commission could disregard all rules of evidence, and capriciously make findings by administrative fiat. Such authority, however beneficently exercised in one case, could be injuriously exerted in another, is inconsistent with rational justice, and comes under the Constitution's condemnation of all arbitrary exercise of power.

In the comparatively few cases in which such questions have arisen it has been distinctly recognized that administrative orders, quasi judicial in character, are void if a hearing was denied; if that granted was inadequate or manifestly unfair; if the finding was contrary to the "indisputable character of the evidence" (Tang Tun v. Edsell, 223 U. S. 681, 56 L. ed. 610, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 359; Chin Yow v. United States, 208 U. S. 13, 52 L. ed. 370, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 201; Low Wah Suey v. Backus, 225 U. S. 468, 56 L. ed. 1167, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 734; Zakonaite v. Wolf, 226 U. S. 272, ante, 218, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 31), or if the facts found do not, as a matter of law, support the order made (United States v. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. 226 U. S. 14, ante, 104, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 5, Cf. Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. North Carolina Corp. Commission, 206 U. S. 20, 51 L. ed. 942, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 585; Wisconsin, M. & P. R. Co. v. Jacobson, 179 U. S. 301, 45 L. ed. 201, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 115; Washington ex rel. *Oregon R.[92 & Nav. Co. v. Fairchild, 224 U. S. 510, 56 L. ed. 863, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 535; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois C. R. Co. 215 U. S. 470, 54 L. ed. 287, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 155; Southern P. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 433, 55 L. ed. 283, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 288; Muser v. Magone, 155 U. S. 247, 39 L. ed. 137, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 77).

2. The government's claim is not only opposed to the ruling in Interstate Commerce Commission v. Union P. R. Co. 222 U. S. 547, 56 L. ed. 311, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 108, and the cases there cited, but is contrary to the terms of the act to regulate commerce, which in its present form provides (25 Stat. at L. 861, § 6, chap. 382, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3168), for methods of procedure before the Commission that "conduce to justice." The statute, instead of making its orders conclusive against a direct attack, expressly declares that they may "be suspended or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction." 36 Stat. at L. 551, § 12, chap. 309. Of course, that can only be done in cases presenting a justiciable question. But whether the order deprives the carrier of a constitutional or statutory right, whether the hearing was adequate and fair, or whether for any reason the order is contrary to law,—are all matters within the scope of judicial power.

3. Under the statute the carrier retains the primary right to make rates, but if, after hearing, they are shown to be unreasonable, the Commission may set them aside and require the substitution of just for unjust charges. The Commission's right to act depends upon the existence of this fact, and if there was no evidence to show that the rates were unreasonable there was no jurisdiction to make the order. Interstate Commerce Commission v. Northern P. R. Co. 216 U. S. 544, 54 L. ed. 609, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 417. In a case like the present the courts will not review the Commission's conclusions of fact (Interstate Commerce Commission v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. 220 U. S. 251, 55 L. ed. 456, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 392) by passing upon the credibility of witnesses or conflicts in the testimony. But the legal effect of evidence is a question of law. A finding without evidence is beyond the power of the Commission. An order based thereon is contrary to law, and must, in the language of the statute, be "set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction." 36 Stat. at L. 551, chap. 309.

93] *4. The government further insists that the commerce act (26 Stat. at L. 743, chap. 128, U. S. Comp. Sat. 1901, p. 3163) requires the Commission to obtain information necessary to enable it to perform the duties and carry out the objects for which it was created; and having been given legislative power to make rates it can act, as could Congress, on such information, and therefore its findings must be presumed to have been supported by such information, even though not formally proved at the hearing. But such a construction would nullify the right to a hearing,—for manifestly there is no hearing when the party does not know what evidence is offered or considered, and is not given an opportunity to test, explain, or refute. The information gathered under the provisions of § 12 may be used as basis for instituting prosecutions for violations of the law, and for many other purposes, but is not available, as such, in cases where the party is entitled to a hearing. The Commission is an administrative body and, even where it acts in a quasi judicial capacity, is not limited by the strict rules, as to the admissibility of evidence, which prevail in suits between private parties. Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 48 L. ed. 860, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563. But the more liberal the practice in admitting testimony, the more imperative the obligation to preserve the essential rules of evidence by which rights are asserted or defended. In such cases the Commissioners cannot act upon their own information, as could jurors in primitive days. All parties must be fully apprised of the evidence submitted or to be considered, and must be given opportunity to cross-examine witnesses, to inspect documents, and to offer evidence in explanation or rebuttal. In no other way can a party maintain its rights or make its defense. In no other way can it test the sufficiency of the facts to support the finding; for otherwise, even though it appeared that the order was without evidence, the manifest deficiency could always be explained on the theory that the Commission had before it extraneous, unknown, but *pre-[94 sumptively sufficient information to support the finding. United States v. Baltimore & O. S. W. R. Co. 226 U. S. 14, ante, 104, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 5.

As these contentions of the government must be overruled, it is necessary to examine the record with a view of determining whether there was substantial evidence to support the order.

5. The Louisville & Nashville railroad ran from New Orleans to Mobile and to Pensacola. From both of these cities it also had lines extending to Montgomery. When the road from Mobile to New Orleans was completed, about 1871, there was in operation a boat line carrying freight from the latter city to Mobile and Pensacola. In order to meet this water competition a low rail rate was compelled, and was put in force by the rail carrier.

In 1887 the through rate from New Orleans to Montgomery was adjusted so as to conform to an award by Judge Cooley, under which rates from certain Ohio river points to Montgomery were to be the same, irrespective of any difference in distance. Rates to Montgomery from Kentucky points on the Mississippi were to be 2 cents lower, and rates to Montgomery from Memphis, Vicksburg, and New Orleans were to be 2 cents lower still. With the exception of a change made necessary by the construction of a short line from Memphis to Birmingham, the class rates in that territory were, as a rule, maintained in conformity with the Cooley award, though, from time to time, commodity rates were made to meet special conditions.

Changes in rates from New Orleans to Mobile, to Pensacola, and from those cities to Montgomery, were made in 1907. The carrier insists that the situation at Pensacola was not the same as at Mobile. But the controlling principle is applicable to the rates at all the points involved. And in order to prevent a treble discussion of the three cases the rates from New Orleans to Mobile to Montgomery *may be[95 regarded as typical. The increase in class rates varied from 1 to 13 cents per 100 pounds. The increase in class 3 was greatest, and it will therefore be taken as affording the best concrete example of the situation before and after the change of 1907.

Under the Cooley award the tariff on class 3 had been fixed as follows:

New Orleans to Mobile (local.....25
Mobile to Montgomery (local).....30
—
Combination of locals .....55

But while these locals aggregated only 55 cents, there was, at the same time, a through rate:

New Orleans to Montgomery .....68

The carrier's filed tariffs contained a provision that wherever the rate between two points on its line was greater than the sum of the locals between the same places, the combination of the two locals should be collected. There was nothing to indicate that shipments from New Orleans to Montgomery were not entitled to this combination rate; but it seems that the privilege was rarely, if ever, granted to New Orleans merchants, who, in order to get the advantage of the low locals (25), were obliged to ship to Mobile, there unload, reload, and rebill to Montgomery at the 30 cent rate. By this inconvenient method they could secure the 55-cent rate to Montgomery. Otherwise, they paid the rate of 68 cents on the same goods, over the same line, between the same points.

The carrier was notified that this practice was in violation of the Commission's ruling that, except in special cases, the through rate must not exceed to the sum of the locals. An enforcement of this rule would have compelled the carrier to reduce the through rate (68) to the sum of the locals (55), and so, in less proportion, as to all other class rates involved in this case.

96] *The company, however, met the situation by increasing the local, instead of reducing the through rate. For example, the rate on class 3 from New Orleans to Mobile was raised from 25 to 38, so that, when added to the 30-cent rate from Mobile to Montgomery the combination 68 equaled the existing through rate of 68 cents from New Orleans to Montgomery. Similar action was taken as to all other rates between New Orleans and Mobile and New Orleans and Pensacola and thence to Montgomery.

At the hearing the facts thus recited were established. The reports of the carrier, showing its earnings and expenses in detail, were in evidence. Its tariffs and those of other railroads were offered, as a basis for comparing the rates under attack with those charged by this and other companies for similar and longer distances. Numerous merchants from New Orleans testified that since the increase of August 13, 1907, they had been unable to sell in Mobile and Pensacola and that the through rate to Montgomery made it impossible to deal in that city. In its report the Commission found that the rates to Mobile, Pensacola, and Montgomery from other and more distant points were actually or relatively lower than those for the shorter distance from New Orleans; that the ton-mile rate on the average of the first six classes was greater from New Orleans to Montgomery than from Memphis; that many departures had been made from the Cooley award; that the company's tariff contained a provision that the through rates should not exceed the sum of the locals; that while increasing the local on eastbound freight from New Orleans to Mobile and Pensacola no corresponding increase had been made on the westbound freight from those points to New Orleans; that the old low local out of New Orleans had been so long in force as to create a presumption that it was reasonable and compensatory. It concluded by entering an order adjudging that the rates in the tariff filed August 13, 1907, were unreasonable, and *directing the carrier to[97 restore the old class rates (local) from New Orleans to Mobile and to Pensacola, and to make a corresponding reduction in the through rates from New Orleans to Montgomery, Selma, and Prattville.

This order was attacked generally and specially by a bill which, at length and in minute detail, assailed each specific fact stated in the report on the ground, either that the fact found was without evidence to support it, or that it was irrelevant to the issue involved, and furnished no basis whatever for the order which followed.

The commerce court rendered a lengthy and elaborate opinion in which it reviewed all of the matters referred to in the Commission's report, and held that the findings were irrelevant, or without evidence to support them, or contrary to the uncontradicted testimony; that the fact that rates from more distant points to Montgomery, Pensacola, and Mobile were actually or relatively lower than from New Orleans to the same points, furnished no basis for the order, unless it was shown that the conditions were similar, while it affirmatively appeared that these lower rates were compelled by water competition; that no conclusion could be drawn from the fact that such rates to Montgomery from other points were lower on the ton-mile basis, in view of the universal rule that the longer the haul the lower the rate. That the departures from the Cooley award related only to commodity rates, which were not involved in this hearing, and that the complaints of the merchants as to inability to sell in Mobile, Pensacola, and Montgomery were referable only to commodity rates, and not to class rates. It found that no legal inference could be drawn from the fact tnat the low locals had been maintained on westbound shipments after the carrier, on August 13, 1907, raised the locals on eastbound shipments from New Orleans to Mobile and Pensacola, inasmuch as there is no legal objection to having lower rates in one direction than in another. It found that the 98]sole ground *for making the order was the fact that the carrier had raised rates after they had been in force for more than twenty years; although the presumption of reasonableness disappeared in view of the uncontradicted testimony that the old rates had been compelled by water competition.

6. It is unnecessary in this case to review each of the matters discussed, ruled, and found by the Commission in its report, and only the more salient facts will be mentioned. For the validity of the order does not necessarily depend upon the correctness of each of these findings, so that the breaking of one or many links by disproof would destroy the chain upon which the order depended. These findings are collateral, and if correct might be confirmatory of the ruling, which, however, might still be sustained if some of these statements were eliminated. The question is whether there was substantial evidence to support the order.

7. The pleadings charged that the new rates were unjust in themselves and by comparison with others. This was denied by the carrier. The Commission considered evidence and made findings relating to rates which the carrier insists had been compelled by competition and were not a proper standard by which to measure those here involved. The value of such evidence necessarily varies according to circumstances, but the weight to be given it is peculiarly for the body experienced in such matters and familiar with the complexities, intricacies, and history of rate making in each section of the country. So, too, the fact that a commodity rate is low may cast some light on the reasonableness of the higher rate on the class from which that commodity was taken or to which it might legally be restored.

It is true that the old low locals from Mobile (west) to New Orleans were maintained, while those from New Orleans (east) to Mobile were raised is not conclusive against the reasonableness of new 99]tariff put in force in 1907. But it *was a fact tending to support the conclusion, unless the difference was shown to have been warranted by proper rate-making rules. Of the sufficiency of the explanation, including the extent of the difference in empty-car movement, the Commission was authorized to judge. It also had before it the company's financial statement and general tariff sheets,—against which was the testimony for the carrier, tending to prove that the rate to New Orleans was low in fact, and by comparison with those in force over other parts of the carrier's system, and on other lines in the same territory, even though this particular part of the road ran through a sparsely settled country, with expensive trestles and bridges, frequently damaged by storms from the Gulf, and expensive to maintain.

8. But these facts did not stand alone. It appeared that for many years prior to 1907 the carrier had maintained low locals from New Orleans to Mobile and Pensacola. When first put in force they were abnormally low because compelled by water competition, and therefore furnish no just standard of reasonableness. And if when that competition disappeared the rates had been advanced, no inference adverse to the railroad could have been drawn from the increase. Interstate Commerce Commission v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 209 U. S. 108, 52 L. ed. 705, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 493. The answer of the railroad company admits that this water competition had ceased to exist. The date is not definitely stated, but it is fairly inferable that the water competition was not potential for some years before the increase in rates in 1907. When made, the increase was not because of the absence of water competition, but to make the sum of the locals correspond with the through rates. Under the circumstances the maintenance of these low rates after the water competition disappeared tends to support the theory that by an increase of business or other cause they had become reasonable and compensatory.

9. From the appellee's standpoint, probably a principal *objection to the or-[100 der complained of is that it will upset the Cooley award, under which rates have been adjusted throughout a large section. But that, too, was a matter for consideration by the Commission, which by this order has not lost power to restore the old rates, or to make changes in the new if it shall be found that those put in force unjustly discriminate in favor of New Orleans against other cities.

The order of the Commission restoring a local rate that had been in force for many years, and making a corresponding reduction in the through rate, was not arbitrary, but sustained by substantial, though conflicting, evidence. The courts cannot settle the conflict, nor put their judgments against that of the rate-making body, and the decree is reversed.

---

GUARDIAN ASSURANCE COMPANY OF LONDON, Limited, Plff. in Err.,
v.
DOMINGO QUINTANA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 100–108.)

Appeal — affirmance on motion — frivolous question — discretionary matters.

1. The sole asserted error raised on a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court to the district court of the United States for Porto Rico cannot be said to be so wholly frivolous and unsubstantial as to require an affirmance of the judgment below on motion, where it is grounded upon the refusal of defendant's request to continue a cause set for trial on the fourth day after a mistrial, he basing such request upon the physical impossibility of bringing back in time to be heard the witnesses who, in reliance upon what is claimed to be a long-established practice to put such cases over the term, have been discharged and permitted to depart for their homes, since such assertion presents a substantial question of the abuse of the trial court's discretion.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VII. g; VIII. 1, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — bill of exceptions — settlement — death of trial judge.

2. A controversy over the settlement of a bill of exceptions in a case tried before a judge of the district court of the United States for Porto Rico, the hearing of which was continued because of his illness, and which remained unacted upon at his death, is governed by the provisions of U. S. Rev. Stat. § 953, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 696, conferring authority upon and making it the duty, if possible, of any judge of a court in which a case was tried, or the successor in office of the trial judge, to allow and sign a bill of exceptions, where the trial judge was, by reason of death, sickness, or other disability, unable to allow and sign such bill.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, V. a, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — dismissal — delay in settling bill of exceptions.

3. A motion to dismiss a writ of error to the district court of the United States for the district of Porto Rico for the want of a bill of exceptions was denied without prejudice to a renewal of the motion in case of further unreasonable delay, where the trial judge, after continuing the hearing of a controversy over the settlement of the bill because of his illness, died without further acting, and where neither party thereafter, and after an order of the Federal Supreme Court overruling a prior motion to dismiss, took any steps to have the bill settled by the trial judge's successor in office, and where the dismissal might occasion injustice.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VII. 1, 6, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 280.]

Argued January 6 and 7, 1913. Decided January 27, 1913.

IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to review a judgment entered upon a verdict in favor of plaintiff in an action on a policy of fire insurance. Motion to dismiss or affirm denied without prejudice.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Frederic D. McKenney argued the cause, and, with Messrs. J. Spalding Flannery and William Hitz, filed a brief for plaintiff in error:

Where a party without laches on his part loses the benefit of his exceptions through the death or illness of the (trial) judge, a new trial will be granted.

Hume v. Bowie, 148 U. S. 245, 253, 37 L. ed. 438, 440, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 582.

With respect to errors apparent on the record, no formal or technical bill of exceptions is necessary to enable the appellate court to exercise its powers.

Moline Plow Co. v. Webb, 141 U. S. 616, 622, 623, 35 L. ed. 879, 881, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 100; Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Sixth Presby. Church, 91 U. S. 127, 23 L. ed. 260; Bennett v. Butterworth, 11 How. 669, 675, 13 L. ed. 859, 862; Young v. Martin, 8 Wall. 354, 357, 19 L. ed. 418, 419; Clinton v. Missouri P. R. Co. 122 U. S. 469, 474, 30 L. ed. 1214, 1215, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1268.

To mulct a person, natural or artificial, by the judgment or decree of a court without having first afforded such person opportunity to be heard in defense is contrary to fundamental principles for the administration of justice, and constitutes a denial of due process of law as understood and practised in civilized and enlightened communities.

Roller v. Holly, 176 U. S. 398, 44 L. ed. 520, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 410; Hovey v. Elliott, 167 U. S. 409, 42 L. ed. 215, 17 Sup. Ct.

---

NOTE.—On the disposition of appeal where, without fault of appellant, the record is lost or incomplete—see note to Bailey v. United States, 25 L.R.A.(N.S.) 860.

On the appellate jurisdiction of Federal Supreme Court over Porto Rico courts—see id. & L. ed.

note to Garrozi v. Dastas, 51 L. ed. U. S. 369.

On the practice and procedure governing the transfer of causes to the Federal Supreme Court on writ of error or appeal—see note to Wedding v. Meyler, 66 L.R.A.

Rep. 841; McVeigh v. United States, 11 Wall. 259, 20 L. ed. 80.

Mr. Clement L. Bouvé argued the cause, and, with Mr. Hector H. Scoville, filed a brief for defendant in error:

The presence or absence of rules in the supreme court of Porto Rico governing the settlement of bills of exceptions in no way affected the situation which confronted the plaintiff in error when Judge Jenkins died leaving the bill unsettled. Such proceedings are to be regulated by acts of Congress, or, when they are silent, by methods derived from the common law, or from the rules and practice of the courts of the United States.

Ex parte Chateaugay Ore & Iron Co. 128 U. S. 544, 553, 555, 32 L. ed. 508, 511, 512, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 150; Nudd v. Burrows, 91 U. S. 426, 23 L. ed. 286; Indianapolis & St. L. R. Co. v. Horst, 93 U. S. 291, 23 L. ed. 898.

Defendant's right to settle being extended until the following term, it is idle to contend that the death of the judge who ordered the continuance could leave the defendant in the position of having no remedy except a new trial, as is argued here. Another judge was appointed before whom the matter should in due course have been taken up, who, as the successor of his predecessor, could exercise the same powers and had the right to act upon every case that remained undecided upon the docket as fully as his predecessor could have done (Life & F. Ins. Co. v. Wilson, 8 Pet. 292, 300, 8 L. ed. 949, 953); and for cases holding that a succeeding judge can settle and sign a bill of exceptions left unsettled by his predecessor, see Bowden v. Wilson, 21 Fla. 168; Ketcham v. Hill, 42 Ind. 70.

An affidavit offered in a case is not part of the record unless brought up by an agreed statement of facts, special verdict, or bill of exceptions.

Clune v. United States, 159 U. S. 590, 40 L. ed. 269, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 125; Nelson v. Flint, 166 U. S. 276, 41 L. ed. 1002, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576; Evans v. Stettnisch, 149 U. S. 605, 37 L. ed. 866, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 931.

All that is before the court is that the defendant below moved for a continuance, which was denied by the trial court. This is but the exercise of the ordinary discretionary powers of a trial court, and therefore does not per se constitute error on the face of the record. Abuse of these powers is not to be presumed; the only way to show such abuse is to incorporate the facts substantiating it in the record in the methods provided by law. As this was not done, the question is not presented here.

Pickett v. United States, 216 U. S. 456, 460, 54 L. ed. 566, 569, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 265.

The writ of error was taken for purposes of delay only.

West Wisconsin R. Co. v. Foley, 94 U. S. 100, 24 L. ed. 71; Hennessy v. Sheldon, 12 Wall. 440, 20 L. ed. 446; Nelson v. Flint, 166 U. S. 276, 41 L. ed. 1002, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 576.

Mr. Chief Justice White delivered the opinion of the court:

In 1911 defendant in error moved under rule 9 to docket and dismiss the writ of error for failure to file the record. Plaintiff in error opposed because a bill of exceptions was yet unsettled in the hands of the court below, and the motion was, on April 3, 1911, denied "without prejudice to a renewal of same if case is not docketed within a reasonable time after the bill of exceptions is settled." Shortly thereafter, on May 3, 1911, there was filed as a transcript a paper containing the pleadings and certain journal entries and other documents purporting "to relate to[102] proceedings had in the cause in the court below, and to certain steps stated to have been taken concerning a bill of exceptions, there being, however, no such bill in the record. Putting out of view the statements made exhibiting the facts and circumstances which gave rise to the reserving of an exception, and the preparation of a bill of exceptions, and the effort to settle the same, and looking only at the pleadings and journal entries properly embraced in the record, the following is shown:

The suit, on November 29, 1910, was tried, resulting in a failure of the jury to agree. On December 2, 1910, the case was set for retrial at 10 A. M. on the following day. When the case was called for trial, defendant asked a postponement "on account of the short time at his disposal to prepare the defense in the case." On this request being denied an exception was taken and the counsel for the defendant withdrew. After the introduction of evidence for the plaintiff, the jury, as instructed by the court, returned a verdict for the plaintiff, upon which judgment was entered. It is to this judgment that the writ of error is directed, it having been allowed by the trial judge shortly after the trial, a supersedeas bond having been also approved about the same time. The assignment of errors was based solely on error asserted to have been committed in refusing the request to continue the case. It appears also from the record that a bill of exceptions was tendered to the court for approval, which bill presumably contained a statement of facts connected with the refusal of the continuance which were relied upon to sustain the assignment of error made on that subject.

The matter is again before us on a motion to dismiss because there is nothing within our jurisdiction to review, as there is no bill of exceptions, or to affirm, because of the wholly frivolous and unsubstantial character of the ground of error relied upon; that is, the failure of the court below to grant a continuance.

103] *It is obvious that these propositions, inherently considered, rest upon an identical foundation (Deming v. Carlisle Packing Co. decided December 2, 1912 [226 U. S. 102, ante, 140, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 80); and we come to dispose of them in that aspect, considering first the more far-reaching of the two; that is, the asserted frivolous character of the error relied upon. We must, of course, approach the subject upon the assumption that it is urged upon the hypothesis that the record is in such a state as to justify us in disposing of the matter. This assumption must be indulged, because if it is not, there would be no way of testing the merits of the contention, and it would consequently resolve itself into a mere change in the form of stating the proposition that because there was no bill of exceptions, there was nothing for consideration. Coming to test the question of the frivolity of the error relied upon in the light of the assumption just stated, we deem it necessary merely to outline the facts which it is insisted would have been disclosed had a bill of exceptions been settled, as follows: After the failure of the jury to agree, in reliance upon what was asserted to be a practice which had prevailed from the organization of the court, where there had been a disagreement of the jury, to carry a case over for trial before another venire at the following term, the witnesses for the defendant were discharged and allowed to depart for their homes; and on the assigning of the case for a retrial, the request for continuance was based on the physical impossibility of bringing the witnesses back in time to be heard, and to enable that purpose to be accomplished a continuance of five days was prayed and refused. Under this assumed state of facts we content ourselves with saying that there is no room for holding that the assertion of error based upon the refusal to continue was so devoid of foundation as to be merely frivolous in character. We say this because, while the elementary rule is that the granting or refusing of a continuance is within the discretion of a 104]trial court,—a discretion *which will not be lightly interfered with,—it is equally elementary that where it is manifest that there has been a plain abuse of discretion the duty to correct arises.

This brings us to the motion to dismiss; and its determination depends on the facts concerning the alleged bill of exceptions, and whether there has been such laches on that subject as to require a dismissal.

The mistrial, the assignment for a retrial, the application for a continuance, and its refusal and the reserving of an exception, the verdict and judgment and the allowance of the writ of error and the tendering of a bill of exceptions on the subject for settlement, as shown by the record, have already been stated in detail and we need not repeat those statements. Certain is it that the bill remained unsettled in the hands of the court when the previous order of this court, declining to dismiss for want of filing of the record, was entered. Indeed, it is shown by the record that on the 4th of April, 1911, the day after the previous application to dismiss because of the want of a bill of exceptions was by this court denied, the court below entered the following order:

"In view of the illness of the judge of this court it is hereby ordered that the allowance and approval of the bill of exceptions in the above-entitled cause, heretofore under consideration, is hereby continued over to the approaching April term of this court."

It is conceded by counsel for both parties that Judge Jenkins, who thus continued the hearing of the controversy, never further acted upon the matter, because shortly after he left Porto Rico for the United States, where he remained until his death in the following June. It is likewise conceded that the successor in office to Judge Jenkins—Judge Charlton—was appointed and held the court from August 14, 1911, until October 7, 1911, and a further term from October 9, 1911, until April 13, 1912. There is also a certificate of the clerk contained *in the motion papers to the[105 effect that no steps were taken by anyone to procure action by Judge Charlton looking to the settlement of the bill of exceptions. And it is the neglect during the time stated to press for a settlement of the bill of exceptions by Judge Charlton which forms the basis of the laches which it is insisted requires a dismissal of the writ of error. While insisting on laches, it is admitted (citing Hume v. Bowie, 148 U. S. 245, 253, 37 L. ed. 438, 440, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 582) that if there was no legal possibility of having the bill of exceptions settled, and the right thereto was lost without any fault on the part of the plaintiff in error, the duty would obtain to grant a new trial.

Passing the consideration of whether the provisions of § 219 of the Code of Civil Procedure of Porto Rico, copied in the margin,† are applicable to the district court of the United States for Porto Rico (see Ex parte Chateaugay Ore & Iron Co. 128 U. S. 544, 32 L. ed. 508, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 150), and whether, if applicable, the adoption of rules on the subject was essential to give it full efficacy, we are of opinion that § 953 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 696), also copied in the margin,† 106]conferred authority *and made it the duty, if possible, of any judge of the court below, successor in office to Judge Jenkins, to consider and settle the controversy concerning the bill of exceptions. Although of this opinion, we do not think our duty exacts under the circumstances of this case that we dismiss for the want of a bill of exceptions. On the contrary, we are of opinion that our duty is to afford an opportunity to the parties to avail of the provisions of Rev. Stat. § 953, so that the record may be completed, to the end that the merits of the writ of error may be disposed of. Briefly stated, we reach this conclusion for the following reasons: (1) because we think there is no just ground for treating our previous order as an affirmative direction to seek the settlement of the bill of exceptions from the successor in office of Judge Jenkins, because at the time that order was entered Judge Jenkins was discharging his duties, and in fact the order, continuing over the term the settlement of the bill of exceptions, was made by him while the previous motion to dismiss was here under consideration; (2) because there was some reason for considering that the provision of the Porto Rican Code to which we have referred did not apply to proceedings in the court below, and there was also some *room for reasonable[107 doubt as to whether the provisions of Rev. Stat. § 953, governed the matter in hand, thereby rebutting the inference that the mere failure to apply to the successor of Judge Jenkins for a settlement of the bill of exceptions was either a waiver of the writ of error or an election to stand upon the imperfect record as filed in this court, without reference to the settlement of the bill of exceptions; (3) because the delay in the settling of the bill of exceptions obviously, in part, at least, arose from the objection of defendant in error, plaintiff below, who, equally with plaintiff in error, took no steps after the order of this court overruling the prior motion to dismiss and the death of Judge Jenkins, to have the bill settled by his successor; (4) because the failure of the court to instruct a verdict on the first trial and this disagreement of the jury all serve to indicate that the defense may not have been wholly devoid of merit; and (5) because if the facts stated extraneous to the record concerning the bill of exceptions, which we have noticed for the purpose of the motion to affirm, be taken as true, it might result that a dismissal for want of a settlement of the bill of exceptions would occasion injustice, amounting to a possible condemnation without a reasonable opportunity to be heard. Indeed, the admonition which arises from this last consideration is cogently re-enforced when the subject-matter to which the bill of exceptions related, the mere refusal to grant a continuance, is †A judge or judicial officer may settle and sign a bill of exceptions after as well as before he ceases to be such judge or judicial officer. If such judge or judicial officer, before the bill of exceptions is settled, dies, is removed from office, becomes disqualified, is absent from said island, or refuses to settle the bill of exceptions, or if no mode is provided by law for the settlement of the same, it shall be settled and certified in such manner as the Supreme Court may by its orders or rules direct. Judges, judicial officers, and the Supreme Court shall respectively possess the same power, in settling and certifying statements, as is by this section conferred upon them in settling and certifying bills of exceptions.

‡That a bill of exceptions allowed in any cause shall be deemed sufficiently authenticated if signed by the judge of the court in which the cause was tried, or by the presiding judge thereof if more than one judge sat at the trial of the cause, without any seal of the court or judge annexed thereto. And in case the judge before whom the cause has heretofore been or may hereafter be tried is, by reason of death, sickness, or other disability, unable to hear and pass upon the motion for a new trial, and allow and sign said bill of exceptions, then the judge who succeeds such trial judge, or any other judge of the court in which the cause was tried, holding such court thereafter, if the evidence in such cause has been or is taken in stenographic notes, or if the said judge is satisfied by any other means that he can pass upon such motion and allow a true bill of exceptions, shall pass upon said motion and allow and sign such bill of exceptions; and his ruling upon such motion and allowance and signing of such bill of exceptions shall be as valid as if such ruling and allowance and signing of such bill of exceptions had been made by the judge before whom such cause was tried; but in case said judge is satisfied that, owing to the fact that he did not preside at the trial, or for any other cause, that he cannot fairly pass upon said motion, and allow and sign said bill of exceptions, then he may in his discretion grant a new trial to the party moving therefor taken into view, and the long delay and presumed hesitancy which followed in settling the bill of exceptions are borne in mind.

We shall therefore refuse the motion both to dismiss and affirm, without prejudice, however, to the right to renew the same unless plaintiff in error within a reasonable time applies to and diligently seeks the settlement of the bill of exceptions at the hands of the successor in office of Judge Jenkins, or any judge empowered by as-108]signment *or otherwise to discharge the duties of a judge of the court below.† And we further direct that the bill of exceptions when settled shall be promptly included in a supplementary transcript of record, or the reasons for a failure to settle the bill, if the judge below finds it impossible to do so, be certified to this court.

Motion to dismiss or affirm denied without prejudice.

---

FREDERICK DEBARY & COMPANY,
Plffs. in Err.,
v.
STATE OF LOUISIANA.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 108–111.)

Commerce — in intoxicating liquors — sales in original packages — Wilson act.

Sales within a state in the original packages of intoxicating liquors imported from foreign countries may be subjected to a state license tax imposed in the exercise of the police power, in view of the provisions of the Wilson act of August 8, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 313, chap. 728, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3177), subjecting to laws so enacted "all" intoxicating liquors arriving in the state to the same extent as liquors produced therein.

[For other cases, see Commerce, IV. b, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 696.]

Submitted January 10, 1913. Decided January 27, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana to review a judgment which, reversing a judgment of the Civil District Court for the Parish of Orleans, enforced a state license tax upon sales in the original packages of intoxicating liquors imported from foreign countries. Affirmed.

See same case below, 130 La. 1090, 58 So. 892.

Messrs. J. D. Rouse, William Grant, and William B. Grant submitted the cause for plaintiffs in error:

The operation of the Wilson act is confined to liquors, the subject of interstate commerce.

Delamater v. South Dakota, 205 U. S. 93–98, 51 L. ed. 724–728, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 447, 10 Ann. Cas. 733.

The words "imported" and "importation" each have a distinct and well-settled meaning in law, "importation" being defined as "the act of bringing goods and merchandise into the United States from a foreign country;" and "an imported article is one brought or carried into the country from abroad."

Bouvier's Law Dict. Rawle's Rev. American Steel & Wire Co. v. Speed, 192 U. S. 500, 520, 48 L. ed. 538, 546, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 365; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678; Woodruff v. Parham, 8 Wall. 123, 19 L. ed. 382.

The right to sell the imported article is not limited to the place of importation. The importer may sell the same when and where he pleases without becoming liable to any state or municipal tax.

State ex rel. Gelpi v. Bd. of Assessors, 46 La. Ann. 145, 49 Am. St. Rep. 318, 15

†See the act of Congress approved January 7, 1913, entitled, "An Act to Provide for Holding the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico During the Absence from the Island of the United States District Judge, and for the Trial of Cases in the Event of the Disqualification of or Inability to Act by the Said Judge."

NOTE.—As to the validity generally of state regulation of the sale of intoxicating liquors—see notes to Rhodes v. Iowa, 42 L. ed. U. S. 1089, and Foster v. Kansas, 28 L. ed. U. S. 696.

On the power of the state to prohibit solicitation of orders for intoxicating liquors by mail sent from another state—see note to R. M. Rose Co. v. State, 36 L.R.A.(N.S.) 443.

On shipping liquor C. O. D. from one state into another without previous order as interstate commerce—see note to Adams Exp. Co. v. Com. 5 L.R.A.(N.S.) 630.

As to what is sufficient to terminate interstate transportation of intoxicating liquor—see notes to State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 11 L.R.A.(N.S.) 550; State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1020, and State v. Intoxicating Liquors, 29 L.R.A. (N.S.) 745.

On the right of prohibition as limited by the Federal Constitution—see note to State v. Durein, 15 L.R.A.(N.S.) 923.

On the original-package doctrine—see note to Postal Teleg. Cable Co. v. Adams, 39 L. ed. U. S. 311.

As to what constitutes original or unbroken package—see note to State v. Maire, 39 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1051.

So. 10; Brown v. Maryland, 12 Wheat. 419, 6 L. ed. 678.

Mr. R. G. Pleasant, Attorney General of Louisiana, submitted the cause for defendant in error. Messrs. William W. Westerfield and Edward Rightor were on the brief.

Memorandum opinion, by direction of the court, by Mr. Chief Justice White:

DeBary & Company seek the reversal of a judgment for the amount of a license tax (act No. 176 of 1908, Session Acts of that year, p. 236) for engaging "in the business of disposing of alcoholic liquors in less quantities than 5 gallons." It was conceded below that the business for which the license was exacted consisted only in the sale in the original packages of foreign wine or liquor, some of which was imported through the port of New York and some through the port of New Orleans, a portion of that which was brought into the port of New York having been stored and subsequently shipped to New Orleans. The court below held, first, that imposing the license was an exertion by the state not only of its revenue powers, but of its police authority, brought into play for the purpose of regulating the sale of liquor. In consequence of the provisions of the act of Congress known as the Wilson act (26 Stat. at L. 313, chap. 728, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3177), and the decisions of this court interpreting and applying the same, it was therefore held that the sale of imported liquor in the original packages was subject to state regulation and hence the license was valid; second, that even if the Wilson act did not concern liquor imported from a foreign country, nevertheless the license was valid because 110] *some of the liquor sold had been shipped to Louisiana from the state of New York after its importation from a foreign country.

Without considering the second proposition, we think the construction given to the Wilson act, upon which the first proposition rests, was so obviously the result of the text of that act as interpreted by the decisions of this court as to leave no room for controversy. Pabst Brewing Co. v. Crenshaw, 198 U. S. 17, 49 L. ed. 925, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 552; American Exp. Co. v. Iowa, 196 U. S. 133, 49 L. ed. 417, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 182; Vance v. W. A. Vandercook Co. 170 U. S. 438, 42 L. ed. 1100, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 674; Rhodes v. Iowa, 170 U. S. 412, 42 L. ed. 1088, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 664; Re Rahrer, 140 U. S. 545, 35 L. ed. 572, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 865. It is true that the controversies which were passed upon in the cited cases concerned not liquors imported into the United States from foreign countries, but only liquors which had been brought in from one state to another. But this fact cannot be held to distinguish this case from the previous decisions without giving effect to a distinction without a difference. To hold that liquors brought into a state from a foreign country do not become subject to the state police power until sold in the original packages would certainly conflict with the command of the statute that "all" liquors "transported into any state or territory, or remaining therein for use, consumption, sale, or storage therein, shall, upon arrival in such state or territory, be subject to the operation and effect of the laws of such state or territory . . . as though such liquids or liquors had been produced in such state or territory, and shall not be exempt therefrom by reason of being introduced therein in original packages or otherwise." The word "all" causes a consideration of the point of origin of the liquors transported to be wholly negligible, and this irresistible conclusion as to the meaning of the text is rendered if possible clearer by a consideration of the intent of Congress in enacting the Wilson law. In reason it is certain that the purpose which led to the enactment of the law was to give the several *states power to deal with all liquors[111 coming from outside their limits upon arrival and before sale, thus rendering the state police authority more complete and efficacious on the subject,—a purpose which would be plainly set at naught by exempting liquors brought into a state from a foreign country from the operation of the statute. Indeed, to adopt the construction urged would not only give rise to the contradictions which the analysis of the contentions thus make plain, but would compel us to say that Congress intended by the Wilson law to confer upon foreign producers of liquor a right which was specifically denied to liquor of domestic production.

Affirmed.

---

TEXAS & NEW ORLEANS RAILROAD COMPANY, Texarkana & Fort Smith Railway Company, and United States Fidelity & Guaranty Company, Plffs. in Err.,

v.

SABINE TRAM COMPANY.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 111-130.)

Commerce — local or foreign — continuity of transportation — state regulation.

A shipment of lumber destined by the purchaser for export, made by the seller under a local bill of lading from an interior point in Texas to a Texas Gulf port, at which the lumber was unloaded without delay by the purchaser's order into slips or docks, in reach of ship's tackle, and was then loaded into chartered ships, by which it was carried to foreign ports,—such shipment not being an isolated one, but typical of many others,—constitutes foreign commerce, and as such is governed by the tariffs on file with the Interstate Commerce Commission to the exclusion of the rates established by the state railroad commission, although the seller had no connection with the lumber after it reached the railway terminus, and had no concern with its destination after it came into the hands of the purchaser, and no knowledge thereof, and although the lumber had no definite foreign destination at the time of the initial shipment.

[For other cases, see Commerce, I. b; III. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 93.]

Argued December 17 and 18, 1912. Decided January 27, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Court of Civil Appeals for the First Supreme Judicial District of the State of Texas to review a judgment which modified, and, as modified, affirmed, a judgment of the District Court of Jefferson County, in that state, for the recovery from a carrier of excessive freight charges, with statutory penalties for such overcharge. Reversed and remanded for further proceedings.

See same case below, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 121 S. W. 256.

Statement by Mr. Justice McKenna:

The question in the case is whether shipments of lumber on local bills of lading from one point in Texas to another point in Texas, destined for export under the circumstances presently to be detailed, were intrastate or foreign commerce.

The action was brought by defendant in error, here called the Sabine Company, against the railroad companies (we shall so designate them unless it be necessary to distinguish them), to recover the sum of $1,788.33, alleged to be due for overcharges in freight on thirty-three cars of lumber shipped by the Sabine Company from Ruliff, in the state of Texas, to Sabine, in the same state, the shipments moving from the initial point to Beaumont over one of the roads, and from Beaumont to Sabine over the other. It was alleged that the legal rate applicable to the shipments under the orders of the Railroad Commission of Texas was 6½ cents per hundred pounds, and that the railroad companies collected, over the protest of the Sabine Company, 15 cents per hundred pounds under tariffs filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission, amounting to an illegal charge of 8½ cents per hundred *pounds. Recovery was also[113 prayed for penalties for extortion under the laws of the state in the sum of $16,500, the maximum penalty of $500 per carload, upon the assumption that each car was a separate act of extortion, or the sum of $13,000, if shipment on different days should be adjudged to be separate acts.

The railroad companies defended on the ground that the shipments were foreign commerce and subject to a charge of 15 cents per hundred pounds, and that such rate had been established by them and regularly filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission in accordance with the act to regulate commerce.

The trial court charged against the defense, and also that the freight charges collected having been paid in five separate payments, there were five distinct acts of extortion for which the Sabine Company was entitled to recover penalties in the sum of not less than $625 nor more than $2,500; that is, not less than $125 nor more than $500 for each act.

The jury returned a verdict for $1,788.33 as overcharges, with interest at 6 per cent per annum from January 1, 1907, and $1,785 penalties. Judgment was entered on the verdict. A motion for a new trial was denied, and the case was then taken to the court of civil appeals. There was a cross assignment of errors by the Sabine Company, complaining of the ruling of the trial court in finding that the company was only entitled to five penalties. It consented that if the assignment of errors be sustained, the court could render judgment for the lowest penalty, $125. The court sustained the assignment and modified the judgment of the trial court, and rendered judgment for penalties in the sum of $125 for twenty-four shipments, aggregating $3,000. A writ of error to review the judgment of the court of civil

NOTE.—On local transportation of goods as part of interstate or foreign shipment—see notes to Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Texas, 51 L. ed. U. S. 540, and Missouri P. R. Co. v. Sherwood, T. & Co. 17 L.R.A. 643.

As to when the transit of goods commenced in another state may be deemed to have terminated or to have been definitely interrupted so as to subject the goods to local taxation—see notes to General Oil Co. v. Crain, 52 L. ed. U. S. 755, and Merchants' Transfer Co. v. Board of Review, 2 L.R.A. (N.S.) 662.

appeals was denied, and the judgment thereby becoming final, this writ of error was prosecuted.

114] *The facts were found by the court of civil appeals and are not in dispute:

"At the date of the transaction in question the Sabine Tram Company was engaged in the manufacture of lumber at its mill at Ruliff, a station in Texas on the line of the Texarkana & Fort Smith Railway Company. W. A. Powell Company, Limited, was engaged in buying lumber for export to different points in Europe, through the ports of Sabine and Port Arthur, both in the state of Texas. On August 28, 1906, having made sales to customers for future delivery in Europe of large amounts of heavy pine lumber, for the carriage of which steamships had in part already been chartered, to fill such contracts, W. A. Powell Company bought of the Sabine Tram Company 500,000 feet of heavy pine lumber of certain dimensions, to be delivered during the months of September and October. The contract provided for delivery either in the water at Orange, Texas, or f. o. b. cars at Sabine, Texas, at the option of the seller. The seller exercised the option to deliver at Sabine, a station on the line of the Texas & New Orleans Railway. During the months of September and October the lumber purchased was delivered to the Texarkana & Forth Smith Railroad at Ruliff, to be by it transported to Beaumont, the terminus of its line, and thence by connecting carrier, the Texas & New Orleans Railway, to Sabine, and delivery to the Sabine Tram Company. There were twenty-four several shipments of the lumber on as many different days, the shipments embracing thirty-three cars, for which thirty separate bills of lading were executed by the Texarkana & Fort Smith road, for delivery at Sabine to the Sabine Tram Company, 'Notify W. A. Powell Company, Limited.' No other contract or arrangement was made by the Sabine Tram Company for the carriage of the lumber except that evidenced by the bills of lading aforesaid. Waybills accompanied the shipments, upon which were 115]marked in pencil 'for export,' *but the Sabine Tram Company had no connection with, or knowledge of, the making of these waybills, which was the act of the railway company alone. According to the course of dealing between the parties these bills of lading were indorsed by the Tram Company and sent through [a bank] to W. A. Powell Company, Limited, at New Orleans, Louisiana, attached to a draft for the price of the lumber, which being paid, the bills were delivered to Powell Company and by them transmitted to their agent, Flanagan, at Sabine. In case of most of the shipments in question the bills of lading reached Flanagan at Sabine before the arrival of the lumber for which they were given. The lumber was carried under the shipping contracts or bills of lading aforesaid, by the Texarkana & Fort Smith road to Beaumont, and there delivered to the Texas & New Orleans road, by which it was carried to Sabine. Upon arrival at the station of Sabine it was, by direction of the agent of Powell Company, carried without delay about a quarter of a mile beyond the station to the dock, where the lumber was to be unloaded. The lumber was unloaded from the cars into water of the slip in reach of ship's tackle, ready for loading onto the ships. The Sabine Tram Company had no connection with this further carriage or switching of the lumber to the docks after its arrival at the station of Sabine, but this was done solely at the instance and under the direction of the agent of Powell Company. The transportation from Ruliff to Sabine was entirely within the state of Texas.

. . . . . .

"When the lumber had been switched to the docks, W. A. Powell Company, through their agent, presented the bills of lading and demanded the lumber, offering to pay the freight charges, which, according to the course of dealing between the parties, they were to pay for the Sabine Tram Company, who owed the same, and which *it was to repay to Powell[116 Company. The Texas & New Orleans Company, acting for itself and the Texarkana & Fort Smith Company, demanded the Interstate Commission rate of 15 cents per hundred pounds, having been previously instructed by the Texarkana & Fort Smith Company that 10 cents per hundred pounds was its rate from Ruliff to Beaumont. This Powell Company, under instructions of the Sabine Tram Company, at first refused to pay, but after communicating with the Tram Company, finally paid the freight at this rate under protest, in order to get possession of the lumber.

"For switching from Sabine to the docks, the rules and orders of the Texas Railroad Commission would allow a switching charge of $1.50 per car on domestic shipments, and if foreign or interstate shipments, the Interstate Commerce Commission tariffs would allow a switching charge of $2.50 per car, had not the charge for this service been absorbed in the 15-cent rate established as aforesaid.

"Upon shipment of freight not for export, only forty-eight hours free time was allowed for unloading cars, after which demurrage was charged, and if not removed from railroad premises when unloaded, a storage charge was made in addition. No such charge was made upon any of the lumber involved in this suit.

"W. A. Powell Company, Limited, regarded the shipments in controversy as export shipments, and demanded, expected, and received the use of terminal facilities, additional free time, and other privileges accorded to shippers of export freight under export tariffs.

"The railway company knew, when the freight charges were collected, that the lumber was to be placed in its slips and exported to Europe on incoming ships, and the freight was believed by the officers and agents of the railroad company at the time the charges were collected to constitute foreign commerce, and to both permit and require the application of the rate 117]fixed by the tariff on file *with the Interstate Commerce Commission, and this rate was applied.

"All the lumber in question was in fact unloaded from the cars by W. A. Powell Company, Limited, into the Texas & New Orleans Railroad Company's slips, or upon its docks, in reach of ship's tackle, and loaded into the ships previously chartered for the purpose by W. A. Powell Company, Limited, which steamships carried same thence direct to Europe, where this lumber was applied upon contracts for sale in Europe, made before the lumber began to leave Ruliff, and made in fact before the lumber was purchased from the Sabine Tram Company, and before it was sawed, and before the logs from which it was sawed left the state of Louisiana for the Sabine Tram Company's mill at Ruliff, in the state of Texas. One of the ships actually waited at the docks at Sabine for the arrival of part of the lumber, which constituted a portion of its cargo.

"The ship which carried the last of this lumber from Sabine to Europe was chartered by W. A. Powell Company, Limited, for this purpose after these lumber shipments began to arrive at Sabine, but before all of the shipments had left Ruliff.

"None of this lumber remained in the slip at Sabine, or on the docks, except for the time necessary to await the arrival of the particular ship which had previously been chartered for the purpose and designated by W. A. Powell Company as the ship which was to carry that particular lumber from the port of Sabine to Europe.

"Any shipment of lumber intended for export to Europe, and in fact shipped from any point in Texas, to and through Sabine as its port of transhipment, could be contracted for, billed to and from Sabine, shipped, transported, and handled in every particular just as was this lumber.

"W. A. Powell Company, Limited, before this lumber began to arrive at Sabine, took out a blanket policy of insurance, *protecting same against loss, from[118 the time this lumber should come into the possession of W. A. Powell Company, Limited, at Sabine, until its final delivery by W. A. Powell Company, Limited, in European ports.

"At the time this lumber was shipped, it was destined by Powell Company for export to some foreign port, but the particular destination of any particular portion of the lumber was not fixed, although the destination of all the lumber to certain foreign ports was known and fixed. The Sabine Tram Company had no concern with the destination of the lumber after it came into the hands of Powell Company, and had no particular knowledge thereof. It supposed from the fact that it was known that Powell Company were exporters of lumber, from the character of lumber, which was such as was intended for export, from the fact that Sabine was an unimportant place at which very little lumber was used, and from other facts and circumstances, known to millmen generally, that the lumber was intended for export, but gave that matter no concern, being only concerned with the delivery of the lumber to Powell Company at Sabine station, and paying the freight thereon. What was done by the Texas & New Orleans Railroad Company after the arrival of the lumber at Sabine, in the way of switching to the docks, allowance of certain privileges allowed only to export freight, was done at the instance and for the benefit of Powell Company, with which the Tram Company had no concern

. . . . . .

"Upon the freight bills was a charge for wharfage against the Tram Company, which was paid by Powell Company as a proper charge against them, and not against the Tram Company. Export freight was entitled to seven days' free time for unloading, and thirty days' free storage on the docks, or in the slips, which privileges were availed of by Powell Company in this lumber.

*"The freight bills were made out[119 against the Sabine Tram Company, and defendants knew that Powell Company were paying the freight for the Tram Company.

"The defendants, in charging the export rate, acted under the advice of their attorneys, that the facts constituted the lumber an export shipment and subjected it to the Interstate Commission Commerce rate."

On motion the court modified its findings as follows:

"Powell & Company purchased lumber from other mills in Texas, with which to supply its said sales in part; it did not know when any particular car or stick of lumber left Ruliff, into which ship or to what particular destination it would ultimately go, or on which sale it would be applied; this not being found out until its agent, Flanagan, inspected the invoice mailed to, and received by, him after shipment. Upon inspection of the invoice, he determined from the character of the lumber described whether it was suited for one cargo or the other. The lumber remained, after arrival, in the slips or on the dock from one to thirty days until a ship chartered by Powell & Company arrived, when that company selected out the lumber suited for that cargo, and shipped it forward to the destination for which Powell & Company intended it.

"We withdraw our finding that rules and orders of the Texas Railroad Commission would allow a switching charge of $1.50 per car on domestic shipments. The only testimony we can find on this point is that of witness Beard, General Freight Agent of the Texas & New Orleans Railroad Company, that 'the Texas rate for switching these cars would have been $1.50 per car, —that is, if Powell Company owned the docks,—if it was shipped to the warehouse owned by consignees or his place of business.' This testimony does not authorize the general finding on this point made by us.

"The freight rate due under the tariff on file with the Interstate Commerce Com-120]mission and collected on these *shipments was 15 cents per hundred pounds, and under this rate, the services rendered without other charge included switching from Sabine station to the docks, seven days' free time, exclusive of Sundays, within which to unload the lumber from the car, and thirty days free storage of the lumber upon the docks at the wharves or in the slips belonging to the Texas & New Orleans Railroad Company. W. A. Powell & Company, Ltd., availed itself of all these services and privileges which were stipulated for by the Interstate Commerce Commission tariff and included in the 15-cent rate charged on export freight.

"There is not now and was not, at the time these shipments moved, any local market for lumber at Sabine, the population of which place does not exceed fifty in number. Appellees have never done any local business at that point. For the year 1905 there was exported through the port of Sabine 14,667,670 feet of lumber; for the year 1906, 39,554,000. The shipments in controversy, together with other shipments of lumber to Sabine and Sabine Pass, constitute a large and constantly recurring course of foreign commerce passing out through the port of Sabine." [— Tex. Civ. App. —, 121 S. W. 258.]

Messrs. Hiram Glass and H. M. Garwood argued the cause, and, with Mr. Maxwell Evarts, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

The shipments in question constituted foreign commerce to which the rates prescribed by the Railroad Commission of Texas did not apply.

Houston Direct Nav. Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. A. 89 Tex. 1, 30 L.R.A. 713, 59 Am. St. Rep. 17, 32 S. W. 889; State v. Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. — Tex. —, 44 S. W. 542; Gulf, W. T. & P. R. Co. v. Barry, — Tex. Civ. App. —, 45 S. W. 814; State v. Southern Kansas R. Co. — Tex. Civ. App. —, 49 S. W. 252; State v. International & G. N. R. Co. 31 Tex. Civ. App. 219, 71 S. W. 994; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Fort Grain Co. — Tex. Civ. App. —, 72 S. W. 419; Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wood, Hagenbarth Cattle Co. — Tex. —, 146 S. W. 538; Railroad Commission v. Worthington, 225 U. S. 101, 56 L. ed. 1004, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 653, 110 C. C. A. 85, 187 Fed. 965; Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498, 55 L. ed. 310, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 279; Railroad Commission v. Texas & P. R. Co. 75 C. C. A. 226, 144 Fed. 68; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 183 Fed. 1005; The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. 557, 19 L. ed. 999; Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 524, 29 L. ed. 717, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; General Oil Co. v. Crain, 209 U. S. 211, 52 L. ed. 754, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Cutting v. Florida R. & Nav. Co. 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 665, 46 Fed. 641; Re Tariffs on Export & Import Traffic, 10 Inters. Com. Rep. 55; Cosmopolitan Shipping Co. v. Hamburg American Packet Co. 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 266; Baer Bros. Mercantile Co. v. Missouri P. R. Co. 13 Inters. Com. Rep. 329; Re Advances on Cotton & Cotton Linters, 23 Inters. Com. Rep. 404; Denver & R. G. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 195 Fed. 968; Re Transportation of Sugar, 22 Inters. Com. Rep. 558; Shepard v. Northern P. R. Co. 184 Fed. 765; Meredith v. St. Louis Southwestern R. Co. 23 Inters. Com. Rep. 31.

Messrs. S. W. Moore, H. M. Garwood, and Hiram Glass also filed a brief for plaintiffs in error.

Mr. George C. Greer argued the cause and filed a brief for defendant in error:

The shipments were intrastate, and therefore the local state rate applied; and the plaintiffs in error became liable to pay the penalties and suffer the consequences that the Texas laws prescribed for charging a higher rate.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Texas, 204 U. S. 403, 51 L. ed. 540, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 360, 97 Tex. 274, 78 S. W. 495; Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 524, 29 L. ed. 717, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; New York ex rel. Pennsylvania R. Co. v. Knight, 192 U. S. 27, 48 L. ed. 327, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 202; Diamond Match Co. v. Ontonagon, 188 U. S. 94, 47 L. ed. 399, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 266; Wabash, St. L. & P. R. Co. v. Illinois, 118 U. S. 572, 30 L. ed. 249, 1 Inters. Com. Rep. 31, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 4; Houston Direct Nav. Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. A. 89 Tex. 6, 30 L.R.A. 713, 59 Am. St. Rep. 17, 32 S. W. 889: The Daniel Ball, 10 Wall. 565, 19 L. ed. 1002.

After stating the facts as above, Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

If we may regard the essential character of the shipments, we can have no hesitation in pronouncing them to have been in interstate commerce. This conclusion seems indeed to be determined by the last finding of fact. It is there declared that "the shipments in controversy, together with other shipments of lumber to Sabine and Sabine Pass, constitute a large and constantly recurring course of foreign commerce passing out through the port of Sabine."

If the shipments were foreign commerce it is hardly necessary to make explicit the principle that the national dominion over them was supreme; and, conversely, if the shipments were not of that character, they were subject to the regulating power of the state.

123] *The shipments having the character of foreign commerce when they passed "out through the port of Sabine," when did they acquire it? We have had occasion to express at what point of time a shipment of goods may be ascribed to interstate or foreign commerce, and decided it to be when the goods have actually started for their destination in another state or to a foreign country, or delivered to a carrier for transportation. Coe v. Errol, 116 U. S. 517, 29 L. ed. 715, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498, 527, 55 L. ed. 310, 320, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 279.

The Sabine Company, while not denying this general test, urges a more special one as applicable to the case at bar. The company contends that the supreme test is, "Was the lumber when it left Ruliff actually launched on its journey to a point in Europe? that is to say, was it committed, by the contract or by any arrangement, between the shipper and the railroad company, or provided for by either, to a common carrier for transportation on its continuous final journey to a destination beyond Sabine, Texas?" Answering this question in the negative, it is contended that the contract of shipment did not contemplate, provide for, or even intend, that the freight should go beyond Sabine "through the agency of that shipment." Nor, it is further contended, were there any means or arrangements for its movement beyond that point, that being left to an intervening third party and a subsequent act after it was delivered to Powell Company, as it was intended to be, at Sabine; and "it took the intervention of a new and independent shipment, arrangement, or contract, to move it beyond that point." Fortifying the contentions, it is said that the existence of the conditions expressed is made the test of foreign commerce by the interstate commerce law, its 1st section reading: "That the provisions of this act shall apply . . . to the transportation. . . of property shipped from any place in the United States to a foreign country, and carried *from[124 such place to a port of transhipment, or shipped . . . from a port of entry either in the United States or an adjacent foreign country." [24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1284.] Freight is never shipped, in the sense of the law, it is further contended, until it is launched upon its final continuous trip to a foreign country. These contentions would seem to be tantamount to saying that a local bill of lading determined the character of the commerce, but counsel especially exclude this conclusion. They admit "that there may be some additional or outside arrangement for a continuous final movement to a destination beyond that named in the bill of lading, or the bill of lading may itself note a forward continuous movement beyond the destination named." It appears, therefore, that continuity of movement is the chief insistence and test of the Sabine Company; not necessarily, it is explained, in point of time or free of delays, but "an unbroken movement, proceeding under the original arrangement or shipment."

The elements of the contentions are somewhat difficult to estimate. So far as they depend upon the character of a bill of lading, and that it had not provision for carriage beyond the local destination, they are answered by Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 219 U. S. 498, 55 L. ed. 310, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 279, and Railroad Commission v. Worthington, 225 U. S. 101, 56 L. ed. 1004, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 653. They are also answered by the following Texas cases: State v. Southern Kansas R. Co. — Tex. Civ. App. —, 49 S. W. 252; State v. International & G. N. R. Co., 31 Tex. Civ. App. 219, 71 S. W. 994; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Fort Grain Co. — Tex. Civ. App. — , 72 S. W. 419; Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Fort Grain Co. — Tex. Civ. App. —, 73 S. W. 345.

That there must be continuity of movement we may conceive, and to a foreign destination intended at the time of the shipment. Indeed, all of the elements of the contentions of the Sabine Company are well illustrated by Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission and Railroad Commission v. Worthington, supra.

125] *In the former case we cited Coe v. Errol, and decided that its principle was not defeated by the fact that the shipments were not made on through bills of lading. The case is instructive as well in its facts as in its principle. The product involved was cotton seed cake and cotton seed meal accumulated at the wharves of the Terminal Company at Galveston, and the cake there manufactured into meal. The cake and meal were purchased in Texas and neighboring states, but chiefly in Texas, and shipped on bills of lading and waybills to the purchaser and manufacturer, showing the point of destination to be Galveston. The purchases were made for export, there being no consumption of the products at Galveston. The sales to foreign countries were sometimes for immediate and sometimes for future delivery, irrespective of whether the product was on hand at Galveston. At times it was on hand. At other times orders had to be filled from cake purchased in the interior and then in transit, which, upon reaching Galveston, had to be ground into meal and sacked, and for the meal thus ground and sacked or thus bought ships' bills of lading were made. It was contended that the transit of the cake and meal absolutely ended at Galveston, that point being their final point of concentration and manufacture, the cake being there manufactured and sacked for export. The contention was rejected by the application of the principle which we have expressed. The points of resemblance between that case and the one at bar are obvious. Are the points of difference essential? In both cases the article was intended for export, but had no definite foreign destination, nor had it been "committed to a common carrier for its final continuous voyage to a foreign point." In the Terminal Case the manufacturer and exporter of the products purchased them at interior points and had them shipped to himself at Galveston. In the present case the Sabine Company was the manufacturer and shipped them to the Powell Company, *the purchaser, who[126 paid the freight charges for the Sabine Company. Upon the arrival of the lumber at Sabine it was carried without delay beyond and unloaded into the water in reach of ship's tackle. The continuity of the shipment was not as much broken as in the cited case. There there was a delay for manufacturing; here there was only such delay as was incident to transhipment from rail carriage to water carriage, and to the nature of the traffic. It is said, however, that the Sabine Company had no connection with the lumber after its arrival at Sabine, and had no concern with its destination after it came into the hands of Powell Company, and had no particular knowledge thereof. Like circumstances undoubtedly existed in Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission. It did not prevail there and cannot prevail here. The determining circumstance is that the shipment of the lumber to Sabine was but a step in its transportation to its real and ultimate destination in foreign countries. In other words, the essential character of the commerce, not its mere accidents, should determine. It was to supply the demand of foreign countries that the lumber was purchased, manufactured, and shipped, and to give it a various character by the steps in its transportation would be extremely artificial. Once admit the principle, and means will be afforded of evading the national control of foreign commerce from points in the interior of a state. There must be transhipment at the seaboard; and if that may be made the point of ultimate destination by the device of separate bills of lading, the commerce will be given local character, though it be essentially foreign.

That it is the nature of the traffic, and not its accidents, which determines its character, is illustrated by Railroad Commission v. Worthington, supra. A rate of 70 cents a ton was imposed by the Commission on what was called "Lake-cargo coal" from a coal field in eastern Ohio to the ports of Huron and Cleveland, Ohio, on Lake Erie, *for carriage thence by lake[127 vessels. The shipper transported the coal ordinarily upon bills of lading to himself, or to another for himself, at Huron, and it appeared that the coal might be accumulated in large quantities at Huron, and only taken out of the accumulated lots from time to time for the purpose of shipment out of the state. The rate of 70 cents, however, covered not only the transportation of the coal to Huron, but placing it on the vessels and trimming it for its interstate journey. It was held that its transportation to Huron was an interstate carriage.

Much stress was laid in the argument upon the fact that the coal was billed only to Huron. Replying to the contention the court said that the billing of the coal was not necessarily determinative, citing Southern P. Terminal Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, supra.

Gulf, C. & S. F. R. Co. v. Texas, 204 U. S. 403, 51 L. ed. 540, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 360, is urged as sustaining all of the contentions of the Sabine Company, and the case was considered so apposite and controlling that the supreme court of the state rested its decision entirely upon it. It demands, therefore, a careful review. Its facts were as follows: The Hardin Grain Company, doing business in Kansas City, Missouri, having made a contract with parties at Goldthwaite, Texas, for the delivery of two carloads of corn at that place, in order to comply with their undertaking, contracted to purchase of the Harroun Commission Company, who were also doing business at Kansas City, Missouri, and had an agent at Texarkana, Texas, the same quantity of corn, to be delivered at the latter point. The corn with which the Harroun Commission Company proposed to fulfil their contract was shipped from South Dakota to Texarkana, Texas, through Kansas City, Missouri. It was delivered at Texarkana, Texas, in accordance with the agreement, to the Hardin Grain Company, who thereupon shipped it in the same cars, without 128]breaking bulk, *over the Texas & Pacific Railway and its connecting lines to Goldthwaite, Texas. Commenting on these facts the supreme court of the state, when the case was before it, said: "Since the contract of the Hardin Grain Company with the initial carrier at Texarkana was a contract for transportation wholly within this state, the question resolves itself into the inquiry whether the facts just stated change the character of the transportation and make the carriage from Texarkana to Goldthwaite a part of an interstate shipment." The court decided that the carriage from Texarkana to Goldthwaite "should be deemed independent of and wholly disconnected from its transportation to Texas from South Dakota, or Kansas City." [97 Tex. 284, 285, 78 S. W. 495.] In other words, the court divided the commerce into two parts: one, the carriage from South Dakota and Kansas City to Texarkana, terminating by the delivery of the corn there to the Hardin Grain Company; and, one, which the court regarded as independent of and disconnected from the other, from Texarkana to Goldthwaite upon a bill of lading by which the railway company acknowledged the receipt from the Hardin Grain Company at Texarkana with orders to deliver to Saylor & Burnett at Galveston, Texas. This carriage, being wholly within the state, was pronounced to be a local shipment.

This court affirmed the judgment, and decided that the contract between the Hardin Grain Company and the Harroun Commission Company was completed in accordance with its terms when the corn was delivered to the Hardin Company at Texarkana. "Then, and not till then," it was said, "did the Hardin Company have full title to and control of the corn, and that was after the first contract of transportation had been completed." Then, and not till then, we may say, did the Hardin Company acquire the means of fulfilling its contract with Saylor & Burnett; and then, and not till then, did it start to fulfil its contract with Saylor & Burnett. *This was the de-[129 termining circumstance both in the supreme court of Texas and in this court. It caused the supreme court of Texas to decide that the carriage of the corn from Texarkana to Goldthwaite should be deemed independent of and wholly disconnected from its transportation to Texas from South Dakota, or Kansas City. It caused this court, in effect, to adopt that ruling and to consider the corn not at any time to be that of Saylor & Burnett until it was started from Texarkana to Goldthwaite. It appeared that the corn remained five days in Texarkana, and, considering the bearing of this fact and the other facts, it was said: "The Hardin Company was under no obligation to ship it further. It could in any other way it saw fit have provided corn for delivery to Saylor & Burnett, and unloaded and used that car of corn in Texarkana. It must be remembered that the corn was not paid for by the Hardin Grain Company until its receipt in Texarkana. It was paid for on receipt and delivery to the Hardin Grain Company. Then, and not till then, did the Hardin Grain Company have full title to and control of the corn, and that was after the first contract of transportation had been completed."

It is manifest that these facts were the determining ones, and the history of the corn prior to its arrival at Texarkana was put aside as irrelevant, and the controlling fact decided to be that corn belonging to the Hardin Grain Company was shipped from Texarkana to Goldthwaite, a strictly local shipment. This was the view taken of the case in Railroad Commission v. Worthington, 225 U. S. 101, 56 L. ed. 1004, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 653. It was there urged to sustain the contention that the manner of billing was controlling of the character of the commerce. The contention was rejected, and, distinguishing the case and speaking of its facts, the court said: "The facts showed that the corn was carried upon a bill of lading from Hudson [South Dakota] to Texarkana, and that after-130]wards, some five days later, *it was shipped from Texarkana to Goldthwaite, both points in the state of Texas. This was held to be an intrastate shipment, unaffected by the fact that the shipper intended to reship the corn from Texarkana to Goldthwaite, for, as this court held, the corn had been carried to Texarkana upon a contract for interstate shipment, and the reshipment five days later upon a new contract was an independent intrastate shipment." Distinguishing the case, it was said: "It is evident from this statement of facts that the case is quite different from the one under consideration. There a new and independent contract for intrastate shipment was made, the interstate transportation having been completely performed."

The facts in the case at bar are different. The lumber was ordered, manufactured, and shipped for export. And we say "shipped," for we regard it of no consequence that the Sabine Company had no concern or connection with it after it reached Sabine. Its relation to the shipment was a perfectly natural one, and did not change the relation of the Powell Company to it, and make the lumber other than lumber purchased at Ruliff, and started from there in transportation to a foreign destination. The findings are explicit and circumstantial as to this. And the shipment was not an isolated one, but typical of many others, which constituted a commerce amounting in the year 1905 to 14,667,670 feet of lumber, and in the year 1906, 39,554,000 feet. Nor was there a break, in the sense of the interstate commerce law and the cited cases, in the continuity of the transportation of the lumber to foreign countries by the delay and its transhipment at Sabine. Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276. Nor, as we have seen, did the absence of a definite foreign destination alter the character of the shipments.

Judgment reversed and case remanded for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

*CHARLES R. HEIKE, Petitioner,[131
v.
UNITED STATES.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 131–145.)

Criminal law — self-crimination — statutory immunity.

1. An officer of a sugar refining company whose testimony before a Federal grand jury engaged in investigating alleged violations by the corporation of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200), consisted chiefly of documentary evidence drawn from the corporation's books and papers, and produced by him in obedience to a subpœna, cannot defeat a prosecution for a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by effecting entries of raw sugars at less than their true weights, by a claim of immunity founded on the proviso to the act of February 25, 1903 (32 Stat. at L. 904, chap. 755, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1314), that no person shall be prosecuted or be subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he may testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, in any proceeding, suit, or prosecution under the interstate commerce and anti-trust acts, where the evidence given in the former proceeding does not concern the present one in any substantial way, and has no such tendency to incriminate him as to have afforded a ground for refusing to give it, even apart from the statute and the fact that it came from the corporation's books.

[For other cases, see Criminal Law, III. b, 2; Witnesses, V. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — review — discretion below — separate trial.

2. The denial of a separate trial to one of several persons jointly indicted will not be revised on appeal by the Federal Supreme Court, unless such denial amounted to an abuse of the trial judge's discretion.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. i. 6, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Conspiracy — against United States — guilt of substantive offense.

3. A person cannot escape liability for a conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States because he may have committed the substantive offense at which the conspiracy aims.

[For other cases, see Conspiracy, II., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Evidence — documentary — memoranda.

4. Books in which were entered the weights of importations of sugar by city

Note.—On statutes prohibiting use of self-incriminating testimony against the witness—see notes to Re Buskett, 14 L.R.A. 407; United States v. James, 26 L.R.A. 418, and Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 48 L. ed. U. S. 860.

On the constitutional protection against self-crimination—see note to Levy v. Superior Ct. 29 L.R.A. 811.

weighers are admissible in evidence without calling such weighers on a prosecution of the officers of a sugar refining company for conspiracy to commit an offense against the United States by effecting entries of raw sugars at less than their true weights, where the weights shown by such entries, which were the higher ones, and were introduced as evidence of discrepancies, were accepted by the company and were checked by the company's tallymen who did testify.

[For other cases, see Evidence, IV. p; IV. r, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Evidence — relevancy — similar acts.

5. Testimony that the same course of conduct was going on long before the date in the indictment when it was alleged that the defendants conspired to commit an offense against the United States by effecting entries of raw sugars at less than their true weights is admissible on the trial under such indictment.

[For other cases, see Evidence, XI. k, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 520.]

Argued January 9, 1913. Decided January 27, 1913.

ON WRIT of Certiorari to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit to review a judgment which affirmed a conviction in the Circuit Court for the Southern District of New York of conspiring to commit an offense against the United States. Affirmed.

See same case below, 112 C. C. A. 615, 192 Fed. 83.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. John B. Stanchfield argued the cause, and, with Messrs. George S. Graham and Frederick Allis, filed a brief for petitioner:

The immunity statute is an act of general amnesty, and therefore should operate as a pardon from the government.

Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 591, 40 L. ed. 819, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 369, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Burrell v. Montana, 194 U. S. 572, 578, 48 L. ed. 1122, 1123, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 787; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 67, 50 L. ed. 652, 662, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; United States v. Price, 96 Fed. 962; United States v. Armour & Co. 142 Fed. 808; United States v. Swift, 186 Fed. 1002; State v. Murphy, 128 Wis. 201, 107 N. W. 470; American Tobacco Co. v. Werckmeister, 207 U. S. 293, 52 L. ed. 215, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 72, 12 Ann. Cas. 595.

The authorities cited by the government for its contentions, or those of the court below, are not in point, if the immunity statute be treated as a statute of amnesty.

United States v. Burr, Fed. Cas. No. 14,692e; Ex parte Irvine, 74 Fed. 960; United States v. Kimball, 117 Fed. 156; United States v. Price, 96 Fed. 960; Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U. S. 547, 35 L. ed. 1110, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 816, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 195; Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 610, 40 L. ed. 825, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Burrell v. Montana, 194 U. S. 572, 48 L. ed. 1122, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 787; Jack v. Kansas, 199 U. S. 372, 50 L. ed. 234, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 73, 4 Ann. Cas. 689; American Lithographic Co. v. Werckmeister, 221 U. S. 603, 611, 55 L. ed. 873, 878, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 73, 50 L. ed. 665, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Foot v. Buchanan, 113 Fed. 156; United States v. Armour & Co. 142 Fed. 808; United States v. Swift, 186 Fed. 1002; State v. Murphy, 128 Wis. 201, 107 N. W. 470.

The word "concerning" should receive the broadest possible construction.

Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 623, 40 L. ed. 830, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 369, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Counselman v. Hitchcock, 142 U. S. 562, 564, 35 L. ed. 1113, 1114, 3 Inters. Com. Rep. 816, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 195; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 67, 50 L. ed. 662, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Boyd v. United States, 116 U. S. 616, 629, 631, 632, 29 L. ed. 746, 751, 752, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 524; American Lithographic Co. v. Werckmeister, 221 U. S. 603, 611, 55 L. ed. 873, 878, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; People ex rel. Taylor v. Forbes, 143 N. Y. 228, 38 N. E. 303.

Whether or not the immunity statute should receive a broad application is a political question, and the policy adopted by Congress is final and binding on all.

Pennsylvania v. Wheeling, & B. Bridge Co. 18 How. 440, 15 L. ed. 441; Rhode Island v. Massachusetts, 12 Pet. 737, 738, 9 L. ed. 1265, 1266; Luther v. Borden, 7 How. 42, 12 L. ed. 599; William v. Suffolk Ins. Co. 13 Pet. 420, 10 L. ed. 228; Foster v. Neilson, 2 Pet. 253, 7 L. ed. 415; Head Money Cases (Edye v. Robertson) 112 U. S. 598, 28 L. ed. 803, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 247; United States v. Rauscher, 119 U. S. 418, 419, 30 L. ed. 428, 429, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 234.

The learned court of appeals erred in holding that petitioner was entitled to no immunity because he was subpœnaed and testified as an officer of the corporation under investigation at the anti-trust proceeding, where he gave the evidence he now relies on.

State v. Nowell, 58 N. H. 314; Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 602, 40 L. ed. 823, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 369, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 69, 70, 50 L. ed. 663, 664, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 55 L. ed. 771, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v.

Interstate Commerce Commission, 221 U. S. 612, 55 L. ed. 878, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 621; American Lithographic Co. v. Werckmeister, 221 U. S. 611, 55 L. ed. 878, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Baird, 194 U. S. 25, 48 L. ed. 860, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563.

The learned court below erred in denying the motion of the defendant Heike for a separate trial. He was unlawfully prejudiced by being tried together with the other defendants.

White v. People, 81 Ill. 338; State v. Oxendine, 107 N. C. 783, 12 S. E. 573; United States v. Matthews, Fed. Cas. No. 15,741b; Krause v. United States, 78 C. C. A. 642, 147 Fed. 444; O'Connell v. Pennsylvania Co. 55 C. C. A. 483, 118 Fed. 991; Morrow v. State, 14 Lea, 483; Watson v. State, 16 Lea, 604; State v. Desroche, 47 La. Ann. 651, 17 So. 209.

It is a dreadful abuse to suffer the conviction of a prisoner for conspiracy to commit an offense, when the same evidence, if sufficient for any purpose, ought to prove the offense itself; and this is the opportunity to correct it.

United States v. Kissel, 173 Fed. 828.

The learned trial court committed reversible error in admitting in evidence the so-called "pink books."

Chicago Lumbering Co. v. Hewitt, 12 C. C. A. 129, 22 U. S. App. 646, 64 Fed. 314; Kent v. Garvin, 1 Gray, 148; Gould v. Hartley, 187 Mass. 561, 73 N. E. 656; Norwalk ex rel. Fawcett v. Ireland, 68 Conn. 13, 35 Atl. 804; Swan v. Thurman, 112 Mich. 416, 70 N. W. 1023; People v. Mitchell, 94 Cal. 550, 29 Pac. 1106; Price v. Standard L. & Acci. Ins. Co. 90 Minn. 269, 95 N. W. 1118; Chaffee v. United States, 18 Wall. 516, 21 L. ed. 908.

The admission of this hearsay evidence, in addition to the ordinary error, violated the right of the accused to be confronted with the witnesses against him.

Motes v. United States, 178 U. S. 458, 44 L. ed. 1150, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 993; Kirby v. United States, 174 U. S. 47, 43 L. ed. 890, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 574, 11 Am. Crim. Rep. 330; Cooley, Const. Lim. 7th ed. p. 451; People v. Bromwich, 200 N. Y. 385, 93 N. E. 933; State v. Thomas, 64 N. C. 74; United States v. Angell, 11 Fed. 43; People v. Goodrode, 132 Mich. 542, 94 N. W. 14.

The trial court committed reversible error in allowing in evidence acts and declarations of a co-conspirator thirteen years prior to the conspiracy.

Logan v. United States, 144 U. S. 263, 36 L. ed. 429, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 617; Brown v. United States, 150 U. S. 93, 37 L. ed. 1016, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 37; Train v. Taylor, 51 Hun, 217, 4 N. Y. Supp. 492; State v. Crofford, 121 Iowa, 403, 96 N. W. 889; Williams v. Dickenson, 28 Fla. 90, 9 So. 847; Wilson v. People, 94 Ill. 299; People v. Irwin, 77 Cal. 494, 20 Pac. 56; State v. Moberly, 121 Mo. 604, 26 S. W. 364.

Assistant Attorney General Denison argued the cause, and, with Messrs. Henry L. Stimson and Felix Frankfurter, filed a brief for respondent:

The immunity statute, being legislation in derogation of the sovereign powers to punish for crime and to elicit the truth in the administration of justice, is not to be extended by construction beyond the purpose for which it was enacted, namely, to serve as a substitute for the constitutional privilege against self-incrimination. It therefore does not make gratuitous grants of immunity merely because of testimony which never was privileged, and which, irrespective of any immunity statute, never could have been withheld.

Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 69, 50 L. ed. 663, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 591, 40 L. ed. 819, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 369, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; United States v. Swift, 186 Fed. 1002; United States v. Armour & Co. 142 Fed. 808; 5 Wigmore, Ev. § 2281a, pp. 240, 241; State v. Murphy, 128 Wis. 201, 107 N. W 470; Warner v. State, 13 Lea. 62; Re Kittle, 180 Fed. 946; United States v. Kimball, 117 Fed. 156.

The immunity provisions are statutes in derogation of essential governmental powers, and as such should not be extended beyond the purpose of their enactment.

Charles River Bridge v. Warren Bridge, 11 Pet. 420, 543–554, 9 L. ed. 773, 822–826; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Kentucky, 161 U. S. 677, 685, 40 L. ed. 849, 853, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 714; Re Kittle, 180 Fed. 948; United States v. Burr, Fed. Cas. No. 14,692e; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 73, 50 L. ed. 652, 665, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; American Lithographic Co. v. Werckmeister, 221 U. S. 603, 55 L. ed. 873, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676.

The purpose of the immunity statutes, is shown by their structure and their historical evolution, was to prevent the obstructions of the specified prosecutions by the exercise of the constitutional privilege. This purpose was accomplished by an exchange of immunity for the privilege. There is nothing either in the terms of the act or its history to indicate any intention of granting a bonus in addition to this exchange.

United States v. Swift, 186 Fed. 1016; Wigmore, Ev. § 2192; Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 610, 40 L. ed. 825, 5 Inters. Com.

Rep. 369, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; American Lithographic Co. v. Werckmeister, 221 U. S. 603, 611, 55 L. ed. 873, 878, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676; Foot v. Buchanan, 113 Fed. 156; Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S. 43, 50 L. ed. 652, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 370; United States v. Armour & Co. 142 Fed. 808; United States v. Kimball, 117 Fed. 163; Jack v. Kansas, 199 U. S. 372, 50 L. ed. 234, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 73, 4 Ann. Cas. 689.

No possible public policy calls for an extension of the immunity statute to the giving of innocent evidence not protected by the constitutional privilege.

State v. Murphy, 128 Wis. 218, 107 N. W. 470.

None of the evidence adduced by Heike was incriminating, and none of it could have been withheld by him under the constitutional privilege.

United States v. Burr, Fed. Cas. No. 14,962e; Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 591, 599, 40 L. ed. 819, 821, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 369, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Reg. v. Boyes, 1 Best & S. 321, 2 Fost. & F. 157, 30 L. J. Q. B. N. S. 301, 7 Jur. N. S. 1158, 5 L. T. N. S. 147, 9 Week. Rep. 690, 9 Cox, C. C. 32; Ex parte Irvine, 74 Fed. 960; Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 55 L. ed. 771, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 558; Dreier v. United States, 221 U. S. 394, 55 L. ed. 784, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 550; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 221 U. S. 612, 55 L. ed. 878, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 621; United States v. Burr, Fed. Cas. No. 14,692e.

The admission of the so-called "pink books" on the trial of the plea of not guilty was not error.

First. An unnecessarily complete foundation was laid for these books.

Chicago Lumbering Co. v. Hewitt, 12 C. C. A. 129, 22 U. S. App. 646, 64 Fed. 314.

Second. The pink books would have been sufficiently authenticated without all this complicated, difficult, and cumbersome proof of every figure they contained. It would have sufficed to prove the routine by which they were kept.

Mississippi River Logging Co. v. Robsen, 16 C. C. A. 400, 32 U. S. App. 520, 69 Fed. 773; Greene v. United States, 85 C. C. A. 251, 154 Fed. 414; Kerrch v. United States, 96 C. C. A. 258, 171 Fed. 369; Grunberg v. United States, 76 C. C. A. 51, 145 Fed. 91; Bacon v. United States, 38 C. C. A. 37, 97 Fed. 40, 175 U. S. 726, 44 L. ed. 339, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1022; Morse v. United States, 98 C. C. A. 321, 174 Fed. 555, 20 Ann. Cas. 938; Wigmore, Ev. § 1521, pp. 1888, 1889, § 1530, pp. 1895, 1896; Continental Nat. Bank v. First Nat. Bank, 108 Tenn. 374, 68 S. W. 497.

The admission on the main trial of the testimony of Spitzer concerning the early history of the conspiracy was not error.

Wood v. United States, 16 Pet. 342, 360, 361, 10 L. ed. 987, 994, 995; Bottomly v. United States, 1 Story, 135, Fed. Cas. No. 1,688; United States v. 36 Barrels of High Wines, 7 Blatchf. 473, Fed. Cas. No. 16,469; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; 3 Greenl. Ev. 16th ed. § 93; State v. Walker, 98 Mo. 95, 9 S. W. 646, 11 S. W. 1133.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

The petitioner was indicted for frauds on the revenue; and, in the sixth count, under Rev. Stat. § 5440 (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3676), for a conspiracy to commit such frauds by effecting entries of raw sugars at less than their true weights by means of false written statements as to the same. Rev. Stat. § 5445, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3678. Act of June 10, 1890, chap. 407, § 9, 26 Stat. at L. 131, 135, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, pp. 1886, 1895. He pleaded in bar that, in 1909 and 1910, answering the government's subpœna, he had testified and produced documentary evidence before a Federal grand jury investigating alleged breaches of the Sherman anti-trust act [26 Stat. at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200], that the testimony and documents concerned the subject-matter of [140] the present indictment, and that therefore he was exempted from liability by the act of February 25, 1903, chap. 755, 32 Stat. at L. 854, 904, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1313, as amended June 30, 1906, chap. 3920, 34 Stat. at L. 798, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1319. There was a replication; issue was joined; a trial was had upon the plea, in which the court directed a verdict for the government (175 Fed. 852); leave was given to plead over; a premature attempt was made to bring the case before this court (217 U. S. 423, 54 L. ed. 821, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 539), and then there was a trial on the merits in which the petitioner was found guilty on the sixth count. The circuit court of appeals affirmed the judgment (112 C. C. A. 615, 192 Fed. 83). Whereupon a writ of certiorari was granted by this court.

The investigation in which the petitioner testified concerned transactions of the American Sugar Refining Company. See Pennsylvania Sugar Ref. Co. v. American Sugar Ref. Co. 92 C. C. A. 318, 166 Fed. 254. The petitioner was summoned to produce records of the American Sugar Refining Company and to testify. He appeared produced the records, and testified that he was the person to whom the subpœnas were addressed, secretary of the New York corporation, and secretary and treasurer of the New Jersey corporation of the same name. He summed up what the books produced showed as to the formation of the New York company. He identified his signature to four checks of the company in a transaction not in question here,—the Kissel-Segal loan mentioned in United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 608, 54 L. ed. 1168, 1178, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124. These checks were not used in the present case. He testified as to the ownership of the Havemeyer and Elder Refinery in Brooklyn. Finally he produced a table showing how many pounds of sugar were melted each year, from 1887 to 1907, in each refinery; this table, of course, not purporting to represent the petitioner's personal knowledge, but being a summary of reports furnished by the company's different employees, and, the government contends, volunteered by him.

141] *The act of February 25, 1903, chap. 755, 32 Stat. at L. 904, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1314, appropriates $500,000 for the enforcement of the interstate commerce and anti-trust act, "Provided, that no person shall be prosecuted or be subjected to any penalty or forfeiture for or on account of any transaction, matter, or thing concerning which he may testify or produce evidence, documentary or otherwise, in any proceeding, suit, or prosecution under said acts; Provided further, that no person so testifying shall be exempt from prosecution or punishment for perjury committed in so testifying." (This last proviso was added only from superfluous caution and throws no light on the construction. Glickstein v. United States, 222 U. S. 139, 143, 144, 56 L. ed. 128, 130, 131, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 71.) By the amendment of June 30, 1906, chap. 3920, 34 Stat. at L. 798, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1319, immunity under the foregoing and other provisions "shall extend only to a natural person who, in obedience to a subpœna, gives testimony under oath, or produces evidence, documentary or otherwise, under oath."

The petitioner contended that, as soon as he had testified upon a matter under the Sherman act, he had an amnesty by the statute from liability for any and every offense that was connected with that matter in any degree; or, at least, every offense towards the discovery of which his testimony led up, even if it had no actual effect in bringing the discovery about. At times the argument seemed to suggest that any testimony, although not incriminating, if relevant to the later charge, brought the amnesty into play. In favor of the broadest construction of the immunity act, it is argued that when it was passed there was an imperious popular demand that the inside working of the trusts should be investigated, and that the people and Congress cared so much to secure the necessary evidence that they were willing that some guilty persons should escape, as that reward was necessary to the end. The government, on the other hand, maintains that the statute should be limited as nearly as may *be by the boundaries of[142 the constitutional privilege of which it takes the place.

Of course there is a clear distinction between an amnesty and the constitutional protection of a party from being compelled in a criminal case to be a witness against himself. Amendment 5. But the obvious purpose of the statute is to make evidence available and compulsory that otherwise could not be got. We see no reason for supposing that the act offered a gratuity to crime. It should be construed, so far as its words fairly allow the construction, as coterminous with what otherwise would have been the privilege of the person concerned. We believe its policy to be the same as that of the earlier act of February 11, 1893, chap. 83, 27 Stat. at L. 443, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3173, which read: "No person shall be excused from attending and testifying," etc. "But no person shall be prosecuted," etc., as now, thus showing the correlation between constitutional right and immunity by the form. That statute was passed because an earlier one, in the language of a late case, "was not coextensive with the constitutional privilege." American Lithographic Co. v. Werckmeister, 221 U. S. 603, 611, 55 L. ed. 873, 878, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 676. Compare act of February 19, 1903, chap. 708, § 3, 32 Stat. at L. 848, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1312. To illustrate, we think it plain that merely testifying to his own name, although the fact is relevant to the present indictment as well as to the previous investigation, was not enough to give the petitioner the benefit of the act. See 3 Wigmore, Ev. § 2261.

There is no need to consider exactly how far the parallelism should be carried. It is to be noticed that the testimony most relied upon was the summary made from the books of the company by its servants, at the petitioner's direction, and simply handed over by him; that apart from the statute the petitioner could not have prevented the production of the books or papers of the company, such as the summary was when made, or refused it if *he[143 had the custody of them, and that the decisions that established the duty to produce go upon the absence of constitutional privilege, not upon the ground of statutory immunity in such a case. Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S. 361, 377, et seq, 55 L. ed. 771, 778, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 538, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 558; Dreier v. United States, 221 U. S. 394, 400, 55 L. ed. 784, 785, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 550; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Interstate Commerce Commission, 221 U. S. 612, 623, 55 L. ed. 878, 884, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 621; Wheeler v. United States, Jan. 6, 1913 [226 U. S. 478, ante, 309, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 158]; Grant v. United States, Jan. 20, 1913 [227 U. S. 74, ante, 423, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190]. But this consideration does not stand alone, for the evidence given in the former proceeding did not concern the present one, and had no such tendency to incriminate the petitioner as to have afforded a ground for refusing to give it, even apart from the statute and the fact that it came from the corporation books. Taking all these considerations together we think it plain that the petitioner could take nothing by his plea.

The evidence did not concern any matter of the present charge. Not only was the general subject of the former investigation wholly different, but the specific things testified to had no connection with the facts now in proof much closer than that all were dealings of the same sugar company. The frauds on the revenue were accomplished by a secret introduction of springs into some of the scales in such a way as to diminish the apparent weight of some sugar imported from abroad. The table of meltings by the year had no bearing on the frauds, as it was not confined to the sugar fraudulently weighed, and it does not appear how the number of pounds was made up. The mere fact that a part of the sugar embraced in the table was the sugar falsely weighed did not make the table evidence concerning the frauds. The same consideration shows that it did not tend to incriminate the witness. It neither led nor could have led to a discovery of his crime. So the admission of his signature to certain checks, although it furnished a possible standard of the peti-[144]tioner's handwriting if there had *been any dispute about it, which there was not, in the circumstances of this case, at least, had neither connection nor criminating effect. When the statute speaks of testimony concerning a matter it means concerning it in a substantial way, just as the constitutional protection is confined to real danger, and does not extend to remote possibilities out of the ordinary course of law. Brown v. Walker, 161 U. S. 591, 599, 600, 40 L. ed. 819, 821, 822, 5 Inters. Com. Rep. 369, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644. See 5 Wigmore, Ev. § 2281, p. 238. Other questions would have to be dealt with before the petitioner could prevail upon his plea; but as we consider what we have said sufficient, we shall discuss it at no greater length. There was no dispute as to the facts, and a verdict upon it for the government properly was directed by the court.

The other matters complained of would not have warranted the issue of the writ of certiorari, and may be dealt with in few words. The petitioner was denied a separate trial, and this is alleged as error. But it does not appear that the discretion confided to the trial judge was abused. United States v. Ball, 163 U. S. 662, 672, 41 L. ed. 300, 303, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1192. Again it is said that if the evidence proved the petitioner guilty of a conspiracy, it proved him guilty of the substantive offense. It may be that there has been an abuse of indictment for conspiracy, as suggested by Judge Holt in United States v. Kissel, 173 Fed. 823, 828, but it hardly is made clear to us that this is an instance. At all events, the liability for conspiracy is not taken away by its success,— that is, by the accomplishment of the substantive offense at which the conspiracy aims. Brown v. Elliott, 225 U. S. 392, 56 L. ed. 1136, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 812; Reg. v. Button, 11 Q. B. 929, 18 L. J. Mag. Cas. N. S. 19, 12 Jur. 1017, 3 Cox, C. C. 229; Rex v. Spragg, 2 Burr. 993, 999.

An objection is urged to the admission of certain books, called the pink books, in evidence,—they being the books in which were entered weights given by one set of weighers,—the city weighers,—the weighers not having been called. These weights were the higher ones and were introduced as evidence of the discrepancy. They appear *to have been accepted by the com-[145]pany, were checked by the company's tallyman, who testified, and if other evidence than that of the men who made the entries was necessary, it was produced. See 2 Wigmore, Ev. §§ 1521, 1530. Another objection to evidence concerned the admission of testimony that the same course of conduct was going on long before the date in the indictment when it is alleged that the defendants conspired. The indictment, of course, charged a conspiracy not barred by the statute of limitations, but it was permissible to prove that the course of fraud was entered on long before and kept up. Wood v. United States, 16 Pet. 342, 360, 10 L. ed. 987, 994; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 176, 55 L. ed.

619, 651, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912D, 734. The acts and directions of earlier date tended to show that the same conspiracy was on foot. The petitioner was there. The time of his becoming a party to it was uncertain. The longer it had lasted the greater the probability that he knew of it, and that his acts that helped it were done with knowledge of their effect. We think it unnecessary to discuss the suggestion that the evidence did not warrant leaving the case to the jury, or to add further to the discussion that the case received below.

Judgment affirmed.

---

AMERICAN RAILROAD COMPANY OF PORTO RICO, Plff. in Err.,

v.

FEDERICO DIDRICKSEN et ux.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 145-150.)

Master and servant — safety-appliance act — applicability to Porto Rico.

1. The safety-appliance act of March 2, 1903 (32 Stat. at L. 943, chap. 976, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1314), which provides that the former acts of which it is amendatory shall be held to apply to "common carriers by railroad in the territories and the District of Columbia," is in force in Porto Rico, where, under the Foraker act of April 12, 1900 (31 Stat. at L. 80, chap. 191), § 14, "the statute laws of the United States not locally inapplicable," except the revenue law, have the same force and effect as in the United States.

[For other cases, see Master and Servant, II. a, 2, d, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Damages for death — pecuniary benefit.

2. The loss to the parents of the society and companionship of a son is not a pecuniary loss, and therefore is not an element of the damages recoverable in an action brought against a railway carrier under the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908 (35 Stat. at L. 65, chap. 149, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1322), for the benefit of the parents of an employee killed in the carrier's service.

[For other cases, see Damages, VI. j., in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Trial — instructions — damages.

3. The court should not instruct the jury that, in estimating the damages recoverable in an action brought against a railway carrier under the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908, for the benefit of the parents of an employee killed in the carrier's service, they may take into consideration the loss of any "care and consideration he might take of them or have for them during his life," where there is no allegation of any such loss, nor any evidence relating to the subject, or from which its pecuniary value may be estimated.

[For other cases, see Trial, VII. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 72.]

Submitted December 2, 1912. Decided January 27, 1913.

IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to review a judgment against a carrier in an action brought under the Federal employers' liability act. Reversed and remanded for a new trial.

See same case below, 5 Porto Rico Fed. Rep. 401; on motion for new trial, 5 Porto Rico Fed. Rep. 427.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. N. B. K. Pettingill and F. L. Cornwell submitted the cause for plaintiff in error.

No brief was filed for defendants in error.

Mr. Justice Lurton delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action under the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908 (35 Stat. at L. 65, chap. 149), before its amendment by the act of April 5, 1910 [36 Stat. at L. 291, chap. 143, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1324]. The plaintiffs were the surviving parents of Pedro Didricksen, an employee of the American Railroad of Porto Rico, who died from an injury sustained while in its service.

1. Many errors have been assigned. One assigned, but not noticed in the brief of plaintiff in error, goes to the capacity of the plaintiffs to maintain the action.

"That the deceased left neither wife[147] nor children is not denied. That the plaintiffs were, therefore, as his surviving parents, the sole beneficiaries under the statute, is also conceded.

One of the defenses made by the answer was that the plaintiffs had not been appointed administrators, as required by law, and had therefore no right to maintain this suit under the liability act of 1908. This was met after the jury had been summoned, by a motion, as shown by the plaintiffs' bill of exceptions, "to amend the complaint by making the following interlineation: 'That plaintiffs are the duly appointed personal representatives of the deceased, appointed by the district court of the Island of Porto Rico,' which leave is granted by the court." To this amendment the defendant excepted. A journal entry of the same date shows that, in support of the motion, the plaintiffs produced a certain certificate from the district court of Porto Rico, and that the complaint was amended by interlining the words, after the word "support,"—"they were further the only personal representatives of the deceased."

NOTE.—On the measure of recovery for death caused by negligence—see note to Morgan v. Southern P. Co. 17 L.R.A. 71.

This certificate is not in the transcript, and we have no way of knowing its sufficiency as an appointment. The case went to the jury upon the issue of the capacity of the plaintiffs to sue, as well as upon the other issues. The court neither gave nor refused any instruction upon this point, and there was a general verdict for the plaintiffs.

2. The evidence upon the merits of the case, though obscure and meager as to the circumstances of the accident, was such as to justify its submission to the jury.

3. The complaint averred that the cars composing the train in charge of the deceased as conductor were not equipped as required by the safety appliance act of March 2, 1903 (32 Stat. at L. 943, chap. 976, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1314). There was some evidence tending to show that one or more of the couplers were not in 148]repair, and some evidence tending *to show that this had a causal connection with the accident. The court instructed the jury that the safety appliance act applied to Porto Rico. Was this error?

The acts of March 2, 1893 (27 Stat. at L. 531, chap. 196, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3174), and April 1, 1896 (29 Stat. at L. 85, chap. 87, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3175), related only to railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce. The traffic wholly confined to a territory of the United States was therefore not within either. But the act of March 2, 1903, amended the former acts and extended their provisions to "common carriers by railroad in the territories and the District of Columbia."

That the employers' liability act of April 22, 1908 (35 Stat. at L. 65, chap. 149, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1322), does apply to Porto Rico, is plain, since it, on its face, extends to the District of Columbia, the territories, the Panama Canal Zone, and other "possessions" of the United States. That it did extend to Porto Rico was expressly decided in American R. Co. v. Birch, 224 U. S. 547, 56 L. ed. 879, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603. The question as to whether the safety appliance act extended to that Island was reserved in the Birch Case.

We are of opinion that the act does extend to Porto Rico. It is true that the term, "possessions" of the United States is not used as in the liability act. The act does, however, provide that the former acts of which it is amendatory "shall be held to apply to common carriers by railroad in the territories and the District of Columbia," etc. Though for all purposes the Island of Porto Rico has not been fully incorporated into the United States, it obviously is not foreign territory, nor its citizens aliens. Gonzales v. Williams, 192 U. S. 1, 15, 48 L. ed. 317, 322, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 177. Its organization is in most essentials that of those political entities known as territories. It has a territorial legislature and a territorial system of courts. By the 14th section of the Foraker act of 1900 (31 Stat. at L. 80, chap. 191), "the statutory laws of the United States not locally inapplicable . . . have the same *force and effect in[149 Porto Rico as in the United States, except the internal revenue laws."

In New York ex rel. Kopel v. Bingham, 211 U. S. 468, 53 L. ed. 286, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190, Porto Rico was held to be a territory within the meaning of § 5278, Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3597), providing for the surrender of fugitive criminals by governors of territories.

It is not easy to see how effect can be given to the employers' liability act of 1908 in Porto Rico, without concluding that this act of 1903 is also in force there, since the former, as pointed out in the Birch Case (224 U. S. 555, 56 L. ed. 881, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603), provides in its 3d section, "that no such employee who may be injured or killed shall be held to have been guilty of contributory negligence in any case where the violation by such common carrier of any statute enacted for the safety of employees contributed to the injury or death." The 4th section contains a like provision concerning assumption of risk.

These considerations lead to the conclusion that the court below did not err in ruling that the act extended to Porto Rico.

4. There was error in the rule for measuring the damages recoverable.

The cause of action which was created in behalf of the injured employee did not survive his death, nor pass to his representatives. But the act, in case of the death of such an employee from his injury, creates a new and distinct right of action for the benefit of the dependent relatives named in the statute. The damages recoverable are limited to such loss as results to them because they have been deprived of a reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefits by the wrongful death of the injured employee. The damage is limited strictly to the financial loss thus sustained. The court below went beyond this limitation by charging the jury that they might, in estimating Federal rights, privileges, or immunities.

Scott v. McNeal, 154 U. S. 34, 45, 38 L. ed. 869, 901, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1108; Houston & T. C. R. Co. v. Texas, 177 U. S. 66, 77, 44 L. ed. 673, 680, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 545; St. Paul Gaslight Co. v. St. Paul, 181 U. S. 142, 147, 45 L. ed. 788, 791, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 575; Ballard v. Hunter, 204 U. S. 241, 259, 260, 51 L. ed. 461, 473, 474, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 261; Polk v. Wendell, 5 Wheat. 293, 306, 5 L. ed. 92, 95; 4 Harvard L. Rev. 311; Thayer, Legal Essays, 141; 14 Am. L. Rev. 211; 23 Am. L. Rev. 190; Pepper, Borderland of State & Federal Decisions," p. 17; Gray, Nature & Sources of Law.

The plaintiff in error was justified in reposing upon the decision of the highest court of Oregon in the case of Baker v. Williams Bkg. Co. 42 Or. 213, 70 Pac. 711, as declaring and fixing the law.

Harris v. Jex, 55 N. Y. 424, 14 Am. Rep. 285; Olcott v. Fond du Lac County, 16 Wall. 678, 690, 21 L. ed. 382, 387.

The Constitution has the same meaning and intent with which it spoke when it came from the hands of its framers, and was voted on and adopted by the people of the United States; any other rule of construction would abrogate the judicial character of this court, and make it the mere reflex of the popular opinion or passion of the day.

Scott v. Sandford, 19 How. 393, 426, 15 L. ed. 691, 709; South Carolina v. United States, 199 U. S. 437, 449, 50 L. ed. 261, 264, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 110, 4 Ann. Cas. 737.

Mr. A. M. Crawford, Attorney General of Oregon, and Mr. Martin L. Pipes submitted the cause for defendant in error. Mr. George J. Cameron was on the brief:

The Supreme Court has no jurisdiction to review the decision of a state court except upon a Federal question specially set up or claimed in the state court.

Mutual Ins. Co. v. McGrew, 188 U. S. 291, 47 L. ed. 480, 63 L.R.A. 33, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 375; Michigan Sugar Co. v. Michigan (Michigan Sugar Co. v. Dix) 185 U. S. 112, 46 L. ed. 829, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 581; F. G. Oxley Stave Co. v. Butler County, 166 U. S. 648, 41 L. ed. 1149, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 709.

The construction given to a statute or Constitution of the state by the highest court of such state is regarded as part of the statute or Constitution, and is as binding as the text upon the Supreme Court of the United States.

Leffingwell v. Warren, 2 Black, 599, 17 L. ed. 261; Russell v. Ely, 2 Black. 575, 17 L. ed. 259; Oaks v. Mase, 165 U. S. 363, 41 L. ed. 746, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 345; Stone v. Wisconsin, 94 U. S. 181, 24 L. ed. 102; Sumner v. Hicks, 2 Black, 532, 17 L. ed. 355; Adams v. Nashville, 95 U. S. 19, 24 L. ed. 369; Nobles v. Georgia, 168 U. S. 398, 42 L. ed. 515, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 87; New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. v. Pennsylvania, 158 U. S. 431, 39 L. ed. 1043, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 896; Baltimore Traction Co. v. Baltimore Belt R. Co. 151 U. S. 137, 38 L. ed. 102, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 294; Olcott v. Fond du Lac County, 16 Wall. 678, 21 L. ed. 382; Missouri, K. & T. R. Co. v. McCann, 174 U. S. 586, 43 L. ed. 1096, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 755; Waters-Pierce Oil Co. v. Texas, 177 U. S. 28, 44 L. ed. 657, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 518; Tullis v. Lake Erie & W. R. Co. 175 U. S. 348, 44 L. ed. 192, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 136; Aicardi v. Alabama, 19 Wall. 635, 22 L. ed. 215; Fairfield v. Gallatin County, 100 U. S. 47, 25 L. ed. 544; Morley v. Lake Shore & M. S. R. Co. 146 U. S. 162, 36 L. ed. 925, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 54; Louisiana v. Pilsbury, 105 U. S. 294, 26 L. ed. 1095.

The construction of the state court that a statute under which a person has been convicted is prospective only will be followed in the Federal court on the question whether or not the statute is an ex post facto law.

Jaehne v. New York, 128 U. S. 190, 32 L. ed. 399, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 70; Re Jaehne, 35 Fed. 357.

An ex post facto law is one which imposes a punishment for an act which was not punishable at the time it was committed, or imposes additional punishment to that then prescribed.

Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386, 1 L. ed. 648; Mallett v. North Carolina, 181 U. S. 590, 45 L. ed. 1015, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730, 15 Am. Crim. Rep. 241.

The constitutional provision against ex post facto laws applies only to criminal or penal statutes.

Ogden v. Saunders, 12 Wheat. 213, 6 L. ed. 606; League v. Texas, 184 U. S. 161, 46 L. ed. 481, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 475; Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386, 1 L. ed. 648; Locke v. New Orleans, 4 Wall. 172, 18 L. ed. 334.

The constitutional provision that no state shall pass an ex post facto law refers to a legislative enactment, and not to a judicial decision.

Bacon v. Texas, 163 U. S. 207, 41 L. ed. 132, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1023; New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana Sugar Ref. Co. 125 U. S. 18, 31 L. ed. 607, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 741; Central Land Co. v. Laidley, 159 U. S. 103–109, 40 L. ed. 91–93, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 80; Turner v. Wilkes County, 173 U. S. 461, 43 L. ed. 768, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 464.

A contract can only be impaired within the meaning of the United States Constitution so as to give this court jurisdiction on writ of error to a state court by some subsequent statute of the state which has been upheld or given effect by the state court.

Bacon v. Texas, 163 U. S. 207, 41 L. ed. 132, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1023; New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana Sugar Ref. Co. 125 U. S. 18, 31 L. ed. 607, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 741; Central Land Co. v. Laidley, 159 U. S. 103-109, 40 L. ed. 91-93, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 80; Turner v. Wilkes County, 173 U. S. 461, 43 L. ed. 768, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 464.

The Federal Supreme Court will not hold a state statute void on the ground that it impairs the obligation of contracts unless it impairs the obligation of the particular contract which is involved in the controversy.

Lehigh Water Co. v. Easton, 121 U. S. 388, 30 L. ed. 1059, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 916.

Mr. Justice Van Devanter delivered the opinion of the court:

This was a criminal prosecution in the state of Oregon, instituted by an information charging the defendants, of whom the plaintiff in error was one, with having converted to their own use a large sum of money belonging to the state's irreducible school fund, agricultural college fund, and university fund, collectively spoken of as educational funds, then held for safe-keeping in a bank of which the defendants were in control as its officers and directors. Upon a separate trial of the plaintiff in error he was convicted and sentenced to a term of imprisonment and to pay a fine. An appeal to the supreme court of the state resulted in the elimination of the fine and 156]in the *affirmance of the judgment in other respects. 55 Or. 450, 42 L.R.A.(N.S.) 601, 104 Pac. 596, 106 Pac. 1022. The plaintiff in error then brought the case here, claiming that rights secured to him by the Constitution of the United States, and specially set up in the supreme court of the state, were denied by the judgment of affirmance.

Briefly outlined, the case, as we must take it to be, is as follows: In June, 1907, the bank became an "active depository" under a statute of the state presently to be mentioned, and thereupon an account was opened with the bank as such depository in the name of the state treasurer, with the added designation, "educational." The deposits going into the account consisted of checks and drafts belonging to the state's educational funds, and the money collected by the bank on these checks and drafts, less what was drawn out by the state, amounted on November 6, 1907, to $288,426.87. On that day the bank failed, and it was then disclosed that on August 21 the total cash in the bank was $296.19 short of the amount called for by the account, and that this shortage had continued and increased until the day of the failure, when it reached $274,882.73. The defendants had not literally appropriated any of the money to their personal use, but, knowing that it belonged to the state's educational funds, and was received and held by the bank as an active depository, had permitted it to be commingled with other deposits and funds, and had sanctioned its use in paying liabilities of the bank.

The prosecution was founded upon § 1807 of Bellinger & Cotton's Anno. Codes & Statutes of Oregon, which declares: "If any person shall receive any money whatever for this state, . . . or shall have in his possession any money whatever belonging to such state, . . . and shall in any way convert to his own use any portion thereof, . . . such person shall be deemed guilty of larceny."

*By an act taking effect May 26,[157 1907, Laws of 1907, chap. 135, p. 248, the legislature of the state provided for the designation of "state depositories for the purpose of receiving on deposit funds of this state, and paying out the same on order or checks of the state treasurer" ( §§ 1, 2); made it the duty of the treasurer to "deposit and at all times keep on deposit" in such depositories the "money in his hands belonging to the several funds in the state treasury," excepting a reserve of not to exceed $100,000 with which to pay current obligations (§ 3); required each depository to pay interest on deposits of such funds at not less than 2 per cent per annum (§§ 3, 4), and to give approved security "for the payment of such deposits and the interest thereon" (§ 5); and made the following declaration relating to educational funds (§ 16): "The word 'funds,' used in this act, shall apply to all funds in the state treasury except the common school,† agricultural college, and university funds."

The same act authorized the designation of "an active depository for the collection of any drafts, checks, certificates of deposit, and coupons that may be received by him [the treasurer] on account of any claim due the state" (§ 6); required such depository to give approved security "for the prompt collection of all drafts, checks, certificates of deposit, or coupons that may be delivered to such active depository by the state treasurer for collection; also, for the safe-keeping and prompt payment on the state treasurer's order of the proceeds of all such collections" (§ 7); and in that connection provided (§ 8): "The state treasurer, on receipt of any draft, check, or certificate of deposit, on account of state dues, may place the same in such active depository for col-[158] lection, and it shall be the *duty of such active depository to collect the same without delay, without charge for its services for such collection, or for exchange, and to notify the state treasurer when collected. The compensation to be paid by such active, depository shall be fixed by the state treasurer upon the best terms obtainable for the state." The words "funds" particularly defined in § 16, as before quoted, was not used in any of the sections having special relation to the active depository.

†The common school fund and the irreducible school fund appear to have been identical. Or. Const. art. 8, § 2; Or. Law 1907, chap. 117, § 36.

Before the passage of the depository act the supreme court of the state had occasion to consider and determine, in Baker v. Williams Bkg. Co. 42 Or. 213, 222-225, 70 Pac. 711, whether, in view of § 1807 of Bellinger & Cotton's Anno. Codes & Statutes (then § 1772, Hill's Anno. Laws), the state treasurer lawfully could make a general deposit in a bank of money of the state belonging to its educational funds, and it was held that he could, the court saying:

"It is made a felony by statute for any person having in his possession any money belonging to the state, county, town, or other municipality to convert to his own use or loan the same, with or without interest (Hill's Anno. Laws, § 1772); and while a mere deposit in a bank for safekeeping is not inhibited by this provision, it is manifest that, in case of the failure of the bank, the officer is not entitled to interest in his own right on the fund so deposited, whatever the right of the state or municipality might be in the premises. If, therefore, the claims are in fact for public money, as the objectors allege, no interest should be allowed thereon. A public officer may not loan, with or without interest, any part of the public funds in his possession, without being guilty of a felony; but he is required to keep such funds safely, and for that purpose may deposit them in a bank, provided they are at all times subject to his order, and there is no fixed period during which he has no right to demand their return. . . . The deposit is made on his [159] own personal responsibility, *however; and if, in case of the failure of the bank, he makes the loss good, the money deposited must necessarily become his property, and thereafter be considered and treated as such."

After that decision, and before the transactions here in question, the depository act was passed and put in force, but its construction and operation were not determined by the supreme court of the state until it passed upon the case at bar. It was then held (a) that the act made provision for general depositories, wherein moneys of the state, not belonging to the educational funds, were to be placed as general deposits, with the right in the depository to commingle them with other deposits and to loan them in the usual course of business, and with an absolute obligation on the depository to pay interest on them at not less than 2 per cent per annum; (b) that the act also made provision for an active depository for the collection of checks, drafts, and the like, belonging to any state fund, whether educational or otherwise, and the safe-keeping of the proceeds, subject to the treasurer's order, but with no right in the depository to commingle them with other deposits or to loan them, and with no specific or absolute obligation on the depository to pay interest thereon; (c) that by contrasting the provisions relating to general depositories with those relating to the active depository it was evident that deposits in the latter, unlike deposits in the former, were to be special, the title not passing to the depository, but remaining in the state; and (d) that the act operated, and the legislature intended, to take the educational funds out of the custom or right of the treasurer to make general deposits which was recognized in Baker v. Williams Bkg. Co. supra. Then, coming to apply the act, as so construed, together with § 1807, to the facts of the case as reflected by the verdict of the jury, it was further held (1) that the bank held the money as a special deposit, the title being in the state; (2) that the *defendants, being in con-[160] trol of the bank as its officers and directors, and knowing of the deposit, were to be regarded as having the money in their possession within the meaning of § 1807; (3) that the commingling of the money with other deposits and the using of it in paying liabilities of the bank constituted an unlawful appropriation of it; (4) that as the defendants, as controlling officers and directors of the bank, sanctioned that appropriation, knowing that the money belonged to the educational funds of the state and was held by the bank as an active depository, they thereby converted the money to their own use within the meaning of § 1807, even although the appropriation was for the benefit of the bank, and not of themselves personally.

It will be perceived that, but for the depository act, as so construed, the deposit would have been a general one, merely creating the relation of debtor and creditor between the bank and the state, and the commingling and use of the money in the manner shown would not have been a crime under § 1807.

The record shows that the plaintiff in error contended in the supreme court of the state that the depository act was not reasonably susceptible of the construction ultimately adopted, and that to put such a construction upon it would be violative of the prohibition in the Constitution of the United States against ex post facto state laws. Both phases of the contention were denied, the second necessarily failing with the first, and the plaintiff in error now assigns error upon that holding, and complains that it deprived him of a right secured by the Constitution.

Bearing in mind what has been said, and especially that the depository act and § 1807 were both in force at the time of the alleged offense, it will be perceived that the real complaint which we are asked to consider is not that the supreme court of the 161 ]state in any wise *rested its judgment upon a statute passed after the time of the alleged offense, but only that it misconstrued a pre-existing statute to the disadvantage of the plaintiff in error, and that such a decision is an ex post facto law within the meaning of article I, § 10, of the Constitution, which declares: "No state . . . shall pass any bill of attainder, ex post facto law, or law impairing the obligation of contracts."

But that provision of the Constitution, according to the natural import of its terms, is a retraint upon legislative power, and concerns the making of laws, not their construction by the courts. It has been so regarded from the beginning. In Calder v. Bull, 3 Dall. 386, 1 L. ed. 648, one of the first cases in which the provision was considered, it was spoken of as reaching legislative, but not judicial, acts; and in Fletcher v. Peck, 6 Cranch, 87, 138, 3 L. ed. 162, 178, Chief Justice Marshall said of it: "In this form the power of the legislature over the lives and fortunes of individuals is expressly restrained." True, neither of those cases turned upon the question whether the words "no state shall pass a law" embrace a decision of a court construing a statute, but that question was both presented and decided in Commercial Bank v. Buckingham, 5 How. 317, 12 L. ed. 169. There the supreme court of Ohio, in an action upon a contract, had put upon two pre-existing statutes of the state a construction which was claimed to be unreasonable and to impair the obligation of the contract, and it was sought to have that decision reviewed by this court on the ground that it denied a right secured by the Constitution of the United States. But the writ of error was dismissed for want of jurisdiction, because, as was said in the opinion (p. 342): "If this court were to assume jurisdiction of this case, it is evident that the question submitted for our decision would be not whether the statutes of Ohio are repugnant to the Constitution of the United States, but whether the supreme court of *Ohio has[162 erred in its construction of them. It is the peculiar province and privilege of the state courts to construe their own statutes; and it is no part of the functions of this court to review their decisions or assume jurisdiction over them on the pretense that their judgments have impaired the obligation of contracts. The power delegated to us is for the restraint of unconstitutional legislation by the states, and not for the correction of alleged errors committed by their judiciary." A like question was presented, and similarly disposed of, in New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana Sugar Ref. Co. 125 U. S. 18, 30, 31 L. ed. 607, 612, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 741, where it was said: "In order to come within the provision of the Constitution of the United States which declares that no state shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts, not only must the obligation of a contract have been impaired, but it must have been impaired by a law of the state. The prohibition is aimed at the legislative power of the state, and not at the decisions of its courts, or the acts of administrative or executive boards or officers, or the doings of corporations or individuals." And in Brown v. Smart, 145 U. S. 454, 458, 36 L. ed. 773, 775, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 958, where a decision of the court of appeals of Maryland, expounding a statute of that state, was challenged as impairing the obligation of a contract made after the statute came into existence, it was held that the decision "was not a law" within the meaning of the provision against the impairment of contractual obligations by state laws. Many other cases give effect to this ruling, but it will suffice to cite, from among them, Central Land Co. v. Laidley, 159 U. S. 103, 109, 40 L. ed. 91, 93, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 80; Bacon v. Texas, 163 U. S. 207, 220, 41 L. ed. 132, 137, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1023; Hanford v. Davies, 163 U. S. 273, 278, 41 L. ed. 157, 159, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 105]; Turner v. Wilkes County, 173 U. S. 461, 43 L. ed. 768, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 464; Cross Lake Shooting & Fishing Club v. Louisiana, 224 U. S. 632, 638, 56 L. ed. 924, 927, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 577.

But whilst thus uniformly holding that the provision is directed against legislative, but not judicial, acts, this court, with like uniformity, has regarded it as reaching *every form in which the legislative[163 power of a state is exerted, whether it be a constitution, a constitutional amendment, an enactment of the legislature, a by-law or ordinance of a municipal corporation, or a regulation or order of some other instrumentality of the state exercising delegated legislative authority. New Orleans Waterworks Co. v. Louisiana Sugar Ref. Co. 125 U. S. 18, 30, 31 L. ed. 607, 612, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 741; St. Paul Gaslight Co. v. St. Paul, 181 U. S. 142, 148, 45 L. ed. 788, 791, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 575; Davis & F. Mfg. Co. v. Los Angeles, 189 U. S. 207, 216, 47 L. ed. 778, 780, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 498; Grand Trunk R. Co. v. Railroad Commission, 221 U. S. 400, 403, 55 L. ed. 786, 787, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 537. Of course, the ruling here in question was by an instrumentality of the state; but as its purpose was not to prescribe a new law for the future, but only to apply to a completed transaction laws which were in force at the time, it is quite plain that the ruling was a judicial act, and not an exercise of legislative authority. As was said in Prentis v. Atlantic Coast Line Co. 211 U. S. 210, 226, 53 L. ed. 150, 158, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67: "A judicial inquiry investigates, declares, and enforces liabilities as they stand on present or past facts and under laws supposed already to exist. That is its purpose and end. Legislation, on the other hand, looks to the future, and changes existing conditions by making a new rule to be applied thereafter to all or some part of those subject to its power."

The plaintiff in error cites the cases of Kring v. Missouri, 107 U. S. 221, 27 L. ed. 506, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 443; Muhlker v. New York, & H. R. Co. 197 U. S. 544, 49 L. ed. 872, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 522; Louisiana v. Pilsbury, 105 U. S. 278, 26 L. ed. 1090; Gelpcke v. Dubuque, 1 Wall. 175, 17 L. ed. 520, and Butz v. Muscatine, 8 Wall. 575, 19 L. ed. 490, as holding that a judicial decision may be a law in the sense of the constitutional provision which he invokes. But none of those cases, when rightly considered, sustains that position. The first was a criminal case in which a provision in a new constitution was held to be an ex post facto law as to an offense theretofore committed; the second presented the question whether a state statute of 1892 impaired contractual 164]obligations *created by deeds of a much earlier date; the third and fourth were explained in Central Land Co. v. Laidley, 159 U. S. 103, 111, 112, 40 L. ed. 91, 94, 95, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 80; Bacon v. Texas, 163 U. S. 207, 221-223, 41 L. ed. 132, 137, 138, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1023, and Turner v. Wilkes County, 173 U. S. 461, 43 L. ed. 768, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 464, and were there shown not to be in conflict with other cases on the subject, and the fifth is in no wise distinguishable from the fourth.

We conclude that no Federal right was involved in the ruling respecting the construction of the depository act.

The prosecution was instituted by an information conformably to a law of the state in force at the time. Bellinger & C. Anno. Codes & Statutes, § 1258. Following the judgment of conviction, and while the case was pending on appeal, a constitutional amendment was adopted, declaring: "No person shall be charged in any circuit court with the commission of any crime or misdemeanor defined or made punishable by any of the laws of this state, except upon indictment found by a grand jury." [Or. Const. art. 7, § 18.] The plaintiff in error thereupon advanced the contention that the constitutional amendment worked a repeal of the statute under which the information was filed, and made it impossible to enforce the judgment against him without depriving him of his liberty without due process of law, contrary to the 14th Amendment to the Constitution of the United States. The state court ruled that the amendment to the state Constitution was prospective and did not affect pending cases. Error is now assigned upon that ruling. But it involved nothing more than the construction of the constitutional amendment, which was a question of local law, and its decision by the state court is not reviewable here.

As the record presents no Federal question, we are without jurisdiction to review the judgment, and therefore cannot enter into the merits of the questions that were presented and determined in the state court.

Writ of error dismissed.

---

*UNITED STATES, Appt., [165
v.
HARVEY STEEL COMPANY. (No. 615.)

MIDVALE STEEL COMPANY, Appt.,
v.
HARVEY STEEL COMPANY. (No. 616.)

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 165-172.)

Patents — royalties — liability of United States.

1. The Harvey process of treating armor plate, and not merely the method described in the patent for such process, was covered by a contract by which the United States agreed to pay a royalty on all armor plate treated by the Harvey process and used by the United States, although the process is also identified in the contract as a patented one.

NOTE.—On patent royalties, see note to Dalzell v. Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. 37 L. ed. U. S. 749.

[For other cases, see Patents, XIII. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Patents — royalties — use of process — liability of United States.

2. The United States cannot escape liability under a contract to pay a royalty on all armor plate treated by the Harvey process and used by it because the use of the sand or other noncarbonaceous material which the Harvey process, as described in the patent, contemplated should be packed on the side of the plate which was not to be carbonized, had been discontinued as unnecessary, where the United States was not only entitled by the contract to a disclosure of the inventor's process, but to his instructions and assistance in the practical application of the patent, and was at liberty to use any part or all of the process.

[For other cases, see Patents, XIII. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Patents — royalties — use of process — liability of United States.

3. The obligation of the United States under a contract to pay a royalty on all armor plate treated by the Harvey process and used by the United States arises whenever armor plate used by the United States was hardened by the Harvey process, although the makers may not have been specifically required by their contracts with the United States to use that process, where, under some of such contracts, the maker was permitted to use the Harvey process, if desired, while under the other contracts the process used was required to be satisfactory to the Navy Department, and under all the contracts the United States had the right to inspect the process used.

[For other cases, see Patents, XIII. e, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[Nos. 615 and 616.]

Submitted January 6, 1913. Decided February 3, 1913.

APPEALS from the Court of Claims to review a judgment awarding royalties under a contract for the use by the United States of the Harvey process of treating armor plate. Affirmed.

See same case below, 46 Ct. Cl. 298.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Assistant Attorney General Thompson and Mr. Philip M. Ashford submitted the cause for the United States.

Messrs. Frederic D. McKenney, Frank S. Busser, and A. H. Wintersteen submitted the cause for the Midvale Steel Company.

Mr. James R. Sheffield submitted the cause for appellee. Mr. James J. Cosgrove was on the brief.

*Mr. Chief Justice White delivered[166 the opinion of the court:

These appeals are from a judgment in favor of the Harvey Steel Company and against the United States for $123,467.23. This was the amount of royalty found to be due to the Harvey Steel Company under a contract, dated April 12, 1893, to pay royalty on all armor plate treated by the Harvey process and used by the United States. The armor plate under which the royalty in question was allowed was manufactured for the United States under four contracts with the Midvale Steel Company. 46 Ct. Cl. 298. The Midvale Steel Company, for the protection of its interests under the contracts, was permitted to intervene, and it was also allowed to appeal from the judgment. The case is before us on a motion to affirm under paragraph 5 of rule 6.

The questions for decision involve the construction of the contract between the United States and the Harvey Steel Company. As the meaning of that contract was passed upon by this court in a previous case between the same parties (196 U. S. 310, 49 L. ed. 492, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 240), and the construction then given to the contract is here either authoritatively controlling or conclusively persuasive, we recur to that case and what was decided in it as the most direct means of not only analyzing and disposing of the issues here presented for decision, but, moreover, of causing it to be apparent that whatever may have been the original force of the contentions relied on, they are, in the light of the previous decision, "so frivolous as not to need further argument."

Following tests of armor plate treated by the Harvey process an option was given to the government, at the request of the Navy Department, for the purchase of the right to use the process upon vessels the construction of which had at that time been authorized by Congress. The *option[167 was given on March 3, 1891, and the patent for the process—No. 460,262—did not issue until September 29, 1891. The Harvey Steel Company, appellee, became the owner of the patent on October 7, 1891. The process was defined in the patent as follows:

"1. The herein-described method of producing a decrementally hardened tenacious armor plate, which consists of inclosing a low steel plate between a mass of noncarbonaceous material on one side and a mass of granular carbonaceous material firmly packed upon the other side, contained in a compartment formed within the heating chamber of a suitable furnace, and in maintaining the said heating chamber for a predetermined period of time at a temperature above the melting point of cast iron, and in subsequently chilling said plate, whereby a stratum of steel of prescribed thickness upon the side of the plate against which said carbonaceous material has been pressed is made to acquire a heterogeneous crystalline structure and a condition of excessive hardness upon its exposed surface and a condition of gradually diminishing hardness as the depth from said surface increases."

After further tests the United States entered into an agreement on March 21, 1892, with the Harvey Steel Company, to purchase the right to employ the Harvey process in Harveyizing—as it is sometimes called—the armor for twelve designated vessels. Subsequently, on October 8, 1892, the Harvey process was definitely and formally adopted by the Navy Department; and, as said in the opinion in 196 U. S. p. 314, in pursuance of the contract of March 21, 1892, "the Navy Department required and received from Harvey a revelation of the secret processes and improvements" used in the treatment of armor plate by the Harvey process. Subsequently, at the request of the United States, the contract of March 21, 1892, was abrogated and in its stead a contract was entered into on April 12, 1893. By this contract, the United 168]States was *granted the right to use for the treatment of armor plate for its vessels the "Harvey process" and any and all improvements made by the Harvey Steel Company upon such process, and to use and employ the armor plates manufactured according to said process. The United States agreed to pay the Harvey Steel Company a royalty of ½ cent per pound on the finished plate.

The case in 196 U. S. was brought to recover royalties alleged to be due to the Harvey Steel Company under the contract of April 12, 1893, calculated on the weight of armor supplied to the United States by the Bethlehem Iron Company and the Carnegie Steel Company. The Harvey Steel Company obtained judgment in the court of claims, and that judgment was affirmed by this court. The questions presented and decided were (a) whether, under the contract of 1893, the United States could set up the invalidity of the patent as a defense; and (b) whether the United States ought to have been allowed to show that it had not used the patent, properly construed, although it had used "the process communicated to it, and known in common speech as the Harvey process." After answering the first of these propositions in the negative, the court came to consider the claim asserted under the second proposition, viz.: "That at the time of the contract it was supposed that the heat required for the process was greater than that actually used, that the patent was valid only for a process with the greater heat, and that the contract covers no more than the patent." In deciding against this contention, the court said (p. 317):

"But the fact that the parties assumed that the process used and intended to be used was covered by the patent works both ways. It shows that they thought and meant that the agreement covered and should cover the process actually used. We think that this can be gathered from the agreement itself, apart from the mere supposition of the parties. The contract dealt with a process 'known as *the[169 Harvey process.' It imported the speech of the parties and the common speech of the time into the description of the subject-matter. The words, Harvey process, commonly are put in quotation marks in the first contract, thus emphasizing the adoption of common speech. They mean the process actually used. The contract states that it is dealing with the same thing that had been the subject of the former agreement. That agreement further identified that subject as a process which was tested at the Naval Ordinance Proving Ground. It also identified it, it is true, as a patented process; but, if the incompatibility of the two marks is more than trivial, as it was regarded by the court which found the facts with which we have to deal, the identification by personal familiarity and by common speech is more pungent and immediate than that by reference to a document couched in technical terms, which the very argument for the United States declares not to have been understood. It is like a reference to monuments in a deed. As we have said, this identification by personal experiment and by common speech is carried forward into the contract in suit. The latter contract manifests on its face that it is dealing with a process actually in use, which requires the communication of practical knowledge, and which further experience may improve."

In concluding the opinion it was observed (pp. 318, 319):

"But the fuller the statement should be made, the more fully it would appear that the United States was dealing with a matter upon which it had all the knowledge that anyone had, that it was contracting for the use of a process which, however much it now may be impugned, the United States would not have used when it did but for the communications of the claimant, and that it was contracting for the process which it actually used,—a process which has revolutionized the naval armor of the world."

*This decision plainly refutes the[170 contention now again urged, that the Harvey process of the contract of 1893 is limited and strictly confined to the method of the patent, and it is here controlling. Furthermore, in no possible view do the findings in the present case present facts which even suggest the possibility of a different construction of the contract than that heretofore given. Those findings may be thus summarized: The method described in the patent for "producing a decrementally hardened tenacious armor plate" consisted in "inclosing a low steel plate between a mass of noncarbonaceous material on one side and a mass of granular carbonaceous material firmly packed upon the other side, contained in a compartment formed within the heating chamber of a suitable furnace," etc. The noncarbonaceous material actually used in the "Harvey process" consisted of sand packed at the back of the plate to protect the same from the carbonaceous material and excessive heat, of which the government was advised by the patentee by an exhibition of the process with the use of sand prior to the contract of April 12, 1893.

The use of sand was gradualy discontinued, because the same result could be accomplished without it, and some of the companies manufacturing plates were so advised late in 1893. Since 1904 no sand or other noncarbonaceous material has been used by the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies manufacturing armor plate.

The process used by the Midvale Steel Company in the manufacture and production of armor plate was as follows: The plate to be carbonized was mounted, face up, on brick piers about 18 inches high, resting on the car bottom, about 1 foot apart. A row of bricks, 2 high, was then placed around the plate, and the carbonizing material was put inside of these bricks on the face of the plate, and raised about three fourths of an inch above the bricks. Mortar was edged up on the sec-171 ]ond bricks. Then the *second plate was placed on the carbonizing material, face down. The plates were then run into the furnace and the fire started.

The brick box containing the carbonaceous material prevented the same from reaching the back and sides of the plates, thus accomplishing the same result as with the sand which was used to protect the back of the plate from the carbonaceous material and excessive heat, as aforesaid.

The contention of the appellants on this branch of the case was thus stated by the court below in its opinion:

"In the present case the contention of the defendants and the intervener is that in the hardening or Harvey process referred to, one of the elements required was the use of sand, a noncarbonaceous material packed in the back of the plates, and that if not so used it cannot be contended that the Harvey process was applied by the Midvale Steel Company in the process which it used in hardening the plates under its several contracts with the United States though in other respects it concedes that the Harvey process was substantially used. Its contention is that it did not use sand. That is to say, that it accomplished the same result without, as had been accomplished with, sand; and it may be added that the same result was accomplished without the use of any noncarbonaceous material in the back of the plates by confining the carbonaceous material within the brick box, as set forth in the findings."

In view of the construction given to the contract of 1893 by the previous decision, we are of opinion that the court below did not err in deciding as it did that the circumstance that sand was used in the back of the plates in the various tests made by the government to which reference has been made, and was also employed in the treatment of the armor plate which was the subject of the suit decided in 196 U. S., while in the treatment of the armor plate involved in this suit neither sand nor any *other noncarbonaceous material was[172 packed on the side of the plate which was not to be carbonized, did not entitle the United States to claim that the Harvey process of the contract of 1893 was not used. As said by the court below, the government received all it had bargained for, since it was not only entitled by the contract to a disclosure of the inventor's process, but to his instructions and assistance in the practical application of the patent, and was at liberty to use the process, little or much, in whole or in part.

The unsoundness of the remaining contention becomes apparent from its mere statement. The proposition is that even although the armor plate made for the United States by the Midvale Steel Company was hardened by the Harvey process, the obligation to pay royalty as to such armor does not exist, because the United States had not, by its contracts with the Midvale Company, specifically required that company to use the Harvey process. But under the terms of two of the contracts with the Midvale Company, that company was permitted to use the Harvey process if desired, while under the other contracts the process used was required to be satisfactory to the Navy Department, and under all the contracts the United States had the right to inspect the process used. Under the contract of April 12, 1893, the right was conferred upon the United States to use and employ the "aforesaid 'Harvey process' in the treatment of armor plates for vessels which have been, since July 18, 1892, or which may hereafter be, authorized by Congress, and to use and employ armor plates for such vessels manufactured according to such process, paying therefor to the party of the first part the royalty of ½ of 1 cent per pound of the finished plate." We think the plain meaning of the contract was that the government should pay royalty when it used armor plate treated according to the Harvey process of the contract.

Affirmed.

---

173]*JOHN E. C. ROBINSON,† John Beckfelt, George A. Fay, and B. C. Finnegan, Appts.,

v.

JOHN E. LUNDRIGAN.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 173–180.)

Statutes — departmental construction.

1. Departmental practice in the administration of a statute will control the courts only when such practice is reasonable.

[For other cases, see Statutes, II. e, 2, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Public lands — soldier's additional homestead — right of assignee of invalid right — intervening adverse claim.

2. The assignee of a soldier's additional homestead right cannot, when his application, made under U. S. Rev. Stat. § 2306, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1415, has been disallowed because his assignor was not entitled to an additional homestead entry, substitute in support thereof a valid right in place of the one rejected, and give his application precedence over an intervening adverse claim of a railroad company.

[For other cases, see Public Lands, I. e, 3; I. f, 1, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 108.]

Argued December 19 and 20, 1912. Decided February 3, 1913.

APPEAL from the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the Circuit Court for the District of Minnesota, dismissing the bill in a suit to have defendant adjudged trustee of certain lands patented from the United States. Affirmed.

See same case below, 101 C. C. A. 590, 178 Fed. 230.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. C. D. O'Brien argued the cause, and, with Mr. P. H. Seymour, filed a brief for appellants:

An invalid entry of public land is, so long as it remains of record, an absolute segregation of the land embraced in it.

Re Watkins, 17 Land Dec. 148; Berry v. Towner, 21 Land Dec. 434; Re California & O. Land Co. 33 Land Dec. 598; Germania Iron Co. v. James, 32 C. C. A. 348, 61 U. S. App. 1, 89 Fed. 811; Hastings & D. R. Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357, 33 L. ed. 363, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 112; McMichael v. Murphy, 197 U. S. 304, 49 L. ed. 766, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 460.

The matter of "substitution" was not a new thing in the Land Department, but had its origin in the administration of the law regarding the location of military bounty land warrants.

Hussman v. Berry, 6 Land Dec. 375; Hussman v. Durham, 165 U. S. 144, 41 L. ed. 664, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 253.

An applicant, after due notice that a soldier's additional homestead right, upon which his application is based, is for any reason illegal or invalid, may substitute another soldier's additional homestead right as a basis for his original application without waiving any rights acquired by virtue of such original application.

Re White, 30 Land Dec. 63.

A claim asserted to land entered or applied for, which had its inception during the time that the entry was intact, or the application to enter was still pending, cannot be held to be an adverse claim within the meaning of the confirmatory acts of March 3, 1893, and August 18, 1894.

Stanton v. Constantine, 19 Land Dec. 163; Mee v. Hughart, 20 Land Dec. 3; Raymond v. Redifer, 21 Land Dec. 228.

In the administration of such large and varied interests as are intrusted to the Land Department, matters not foreseen, equities not anticipated, and which are therefore not provided for by express statute, may sometimes arise, and therefore the Secretary of the Interior is given that superintending and supervising power which will enable him, in the face of these unexpected contingencies, to do justice.

Williams v. United States, 138 U. S. 514, 524, 34 L. ed. 1026, 1031, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 457; Caha v. United States, 152 U. S. 211, 221, 38 L. ed. 415, 419, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 513; Cosmos Exploration Co. v. Gray Eagle Oil Co. 190 U. S. 301, 47 L. ed. 1064, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 692; Roughton v. Knight, 219 U. S. 537, 55 L. ed. 326, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 297; Knight v. United Land Asso. 142 U. S. 161, 178–181, 35 L. ed. 974, 980, 981, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 258.

---

†Death of John E. C. Robinson, one of the appellants herein suggested, and the appearance of Hedwig Robinson as a party appellant in this cause in the place of John E. C. Robinson, deceased, filed and entered on December 19, 1912.

In this particular case the application of the railroad company to select was made with notice that it was subject to the soldier's additional homestead application of Robinson, and with consequent notice of all the rights that he had under the regulations and decisions of the Land Department. The Federal courts have been prompt in such cases as this to protect the equities of the prior applicant.

Shepley v. Cowan, 91 U. S. 330, 338, 23 L. ed. 424, 427; Sturr v. Beck, 133 U. S. 541, 33 L. ed. 761, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 350; Witherspoon v. Duncan, 4 Wall. 210, 218, 18 L. ed. 339, 342; Chotard v. Pope, 12 Wheat. 586, 588, 6 L. ed. 737, 738; Hastings & D. R. Co. v. Whitney, 132 U. S. 357, 366, 33 L. ed. 363, 367, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 112; United States v. Detroit Timber & Lumber Co. 200 U. S. 321, 337–339, 50 L. ed. 499, 505–507, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282.

Rights acquired in conformity with rules and regulations in force at the time are protected from the effects of any subsequent change of rule.

Oliver v. Thomas, 5 Land Dec. 289; Sandy v. Bullock, 37 Land Dec. 23; Re Weaver, 35 Land Dec. 553; Oliver v. Bates, 36 Land Dec. 427; Germania Iron Co. v. James, 32 C. C. A. 348, 61 U. S. App. 1, 89 Fed. 811; Howe v. Parker, 111 C. C. A. 466, 190 Fed. 757.

Messrs. Luther C. Harris and William E. Culkin argued the cause and filed a brief for appellee:

The Department has always permitted the substitution of valid for invalid rights, and has allowed defects and irregularities in entries to be cured, but always upon the condition that they did not conflict with adverse rights already pending.

Re Edens, 7 Land Dec. 229; Kelly v. Quast, 2 Land Dec. 627; Mann v. Huk, 3 Land Dec. 452; Ayers v. Brownlee, 15 Land Dec. 550; Bagley v. Mitchell, 19 Land Dec. 419.

It is not denied that the Department has the power to establish rules affecting questions of practice and procedure. But the Department cannot, under the guise of such authority, either enlarge or diminish the rights created by statute.

Hartman v. Warren, 22 C. C. A. 30, 40 U. S. App. 245, 76 Fed. 162.

Moss v. Dowman, 176 U. S. 413, 44 L. ed. 526, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429, contains many points of similarity to the case at bar.

174] *Mr. Justice McKenna delivered the opinion of the court:

Bill in equity by appellants, who were complainants in the circuit court, and we shall so refer to them, and to the appellee as defendant, to adjudge defendant trustee for complainants of the S. W. ¼ of the S. E. ¼ of section 13, township 55 north, range 26 west of the principal meridian, and to compel a conveyance to them. The Santa Fe Railroad Company was impleaded with defendant, but it filed a disclaimer and the suit proceeded against him alone.

The rights of complainants are based upon an application for the lands as unappropriated public lands of the United States by Robinson, one of the complainants, as assignee of one James Carroll. The application was duly entered of record upon the tract and plat book in the local land office, and proof of the claim of Carroll for an additional homestead entry was transmitted to the General Land Office for examination and action. Upon investigation the Land Department decided that Carroll was not entitled to make such entry, and held Robinson's application for rejection, and ordered a hearing to be had on June 29, 1905. Robinson did not appear and a decision was rendered, holding that Carroll was not entitled to an additional homestead entry under § 2306 of the Revised Statutes (U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1415). Robinson was notified of this action and that he had a right to appeal therefrom.

On the 27th of July, 1905, Robinson filed with the local land office for transmission to the General Land Office an application for leave to substitute, in support of his application for entry of the land, another soldier's additional homestead right in lieu of that of Carroll. In his application he said he appealed from the order, canceling Carroll's entry, and excused himself for not appearing at the hearing on June 29, 1905, on account *of the sudden and [175 serious illness of his mother, which prevented his attendance at the hearing, and also prevented him from providing a representative thereat. He disclaimed a desire to incommode the Department, and expressed a willingness to aid it in the adjustment of all matters in which he should be interested. He further said that he was deeply sensible and appreciated the seriousness of defaulting at the hearing, and that he did not want the case reopened. He requested a delay of thirty days, and asked that the decision of the register and receiver of the land office be amended so as to grant him a reasonable time within which to perfect his entry.

An order was made allowing him thirty days after notice to file a proper substitute for the right of Carroll. On October 4, 1905, he, Robinson, filed the additional homestead right of one Justin F. Heath.

On February 15, 1906, the Commissioner of the General Land Office accepted the substitute, and directed the local land office that, upon the payment by Robinson of the legal fees and commissions within sixty days, they should allow the entry mad by him. He paid the fees as required, and thereupon final certificate No. 715, Cass lake, Minnesota, series, was issued to him.

On July 11, 1905, that is, prior to the filing by Robinson of the homestead right of Heath, the Santa Fe Railroad, through the defendant Lundrigan, its attorney in fact for that purpose, filed in the local land office under the act of Congress of June 4th, 1897 [30 Stat. at L. 11, chap. 2], its application to select the land. The application was received subject to final action on Robinson's application. Upon the allowance of Robinson's application and the issue to him of a final certificate, the local land office rejected the application of the railroad company, from which action the latter appealed to the Commissioner of the General Land Office. The Commissioner held that the application of the railroad company constituted a valid intervening 176]adverse right such as to *bar the substitution by Robinson of the additional homestead right of Heath. On February 25, 1907, the Secretary of the Interior affirmed the decision of the Commissioner. Upon motion for review the decision was affirmed May 13, 1907; and, on petition for rereview, reaffirmed July 18, 1907.

In pursuance of this decision Robinson's entry was canceled, and a patent for the land was issued to the railroad company. The railroad company subsequently conveyed the land to defendant.

The above facts are not denied. It is alleged by complainants that for many years immediately preceding the decision holding Robinson's application for cancelation there was a rule, regulation, and settled practice prevailing in the Department providing that upon the rejection of a soldier's additional homestead right, surrendered by the assignee thereof in support of an application under § 2306 of the Revised Statutes, such applicant might substitute in support thereof a valid additional homestead right in place of that rejected.

The existence and validity of the rule is in dispute between the parties, and also the legality of the decision of the Interior Department against Robinson's application.

The circuit court dismissed the bill, and its decree was affirmed by the circuit court of appeals by a divided court. 101 C. C. A. 590, 178 Fed. 230.

The question in the case is very direct. Robinson's application had no legal foundation, Carroll, upon whose rights it was made, not being entitled to make an additional homestead entry. The question then is, could Robinson substitute another right, and give his application precedence over the intervening claim of the railroad company? An affirmative answer is contended for by complainants upon the practice of the Land Office. The defendant denies the existence of the practice, and contends, besides, that, if it be established, it is destitute of legal effect.

*We have seen that Robinson was[177 given an opportunity to avert the rejection of his application and support it by proof of a right in Carroll. He defaulted; but he did not ask to reopen the case and establish a legal foundation for his application, but that he be given thirty days to "rescript" the land. To this the Commissioner of the Land Office responded, affirming the decision of the local land office rejecting the application, and pronouncing "the case closed." He was, however, given thirty days to "file a proper substitute for the right" rejected, and, if he failed to do so, the local office was directed to hold the tract "subject to entry from that time by the first qualified applicant."

On October 4, 1905, he filed as a substitute the right of Justin F. Heath, but on July 11, 1905, the railroad company had selected the lands as lieu lands. The local land office rejected the application of the railroad company on account of conflict with Robinson's entry, subject, however, to the right of appeal. An appeal was taken and Robinson moved to dismiss it. The motion was denied on the authority of the departmental decision in the case of the Southern P. R. Co. v. Maginnis, in which it was decided, the facts being substantially the same, "that a substitution could not be allowed in the face of an intervening adverse right." The decision was affirmed by Secretary Hitchcock, and successively upon review and re-review by Secretary Garfield and Acting Secretary Woodruff.

Against these rulings complainants urge previous departmental practice. This practice Robinson urged in his petition for review, and cited in support of it the case of Germania Iron Co. v. James, 32 C. C. A. 348, 61 U. S. App. 1, 89 Fed. 811. To the contention and the case the Acting Secretary replied as follows: "In that case the court held that a just and reasonable rule of administration adopted and applied by the Department became a rule of property, and could not be *altered to the[178 prejudice of those who had initiated rights under such practice. But the rule contended for by counsel as governing the case is neither reasonable nor just. Robinson attempted to initiate a right by relying upon the invalid claim of another; and insists that even though the Department would be unwarranted in recognizing such claim, he could be allowed to perfect the right thus asserted, to the prejudice of a valid intervening right, of which he had notice, by the substitution of another and different right. The simple statement of the facts destroys all of the argument in support of such practice. There is neither reason nor equity in it. Had Robinson been clothed with a right in himself, independent of any right claimed through his assignor, another question might be presented. But such is not the case, as he was relying solely upon the rights obtained by the assignments, and of these the first was worthless, and prior to the assertion of the second the right of another had attached. The arbitrary destruction of this intervening right in the manner contended for by counsel would be wholly unwarranted."

Little need be added to this reasoning. We are not disposed to review the cases by which it is contended the practice is established. It could only prevail if it were a reasonable administration of the statute. Webster v. Luther, 163 U. S. 331, 342, 41 L. ed. 179, 182, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 963.

Under § 2304 of the Revised Statutes every private soldier and officer who had served in the Army or Navy of the United States during the War of the Rebellion is entitled to enter under the homestead laws 160 acres of land. We omit the qualifying conditions. Section 2306 provides that every person mentioned in § 2304, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 1413, who has entered under the latter section less than 160 acres "shall be permitted to enter so much land as, when added to the quantity previously entered, shall not exceed one hundred and sixty acres." This provision [179] is the foundation of Robinson's *rights. In Webster v. Luther, supra, these sections were considered, and it was decided that the right given by § 2306 was intended as compensation and was assignable. When assigned, however, it is the right of the soldier which is transferred and which must be used to make an entry. Necessarily the right must exist before it can be exerted either by him or his assignee. Or, to put it in another way, a baseless or fraudulent claim cannot initiate or sustain a right. Hence the distinction made by Acting Secretary Woodruff between a right in Robinson and right in his assignor, and the observation that "had Robinson been clothed with a right in himself, independent of any right claimed through his assignor, another question might be presented." Hence, also, the decision of Secretary Garfield that "no right of entry is gained by the filing of an invalid application to enter, and upon the rejection thereof the rights of subsequent applicants attach in the order in which they are asserted. By admitting the rights of substitution, irrespective of the intervening rights, the mere filing of an individual soldier's additional application would in effect amount to a segregation of the land." And again: "The refusal of the Department to adopt such a practice does not prejudice the holder of a valid right. The only value of such right lies in the power of the holder to enter thereunder any land subject to it at the date of filing his application. This right is not denied in the present case, as the land there involved was subject thereto only in event there were no prior adverse claims asserted upon which entry should be allowed. The right itself is not destroyed by refusing to allow entry thereunder of this particular tract. The purchaser still has all that he bargained for, and the mere fact that his purchase may have been made upon the mistaken idea that he would be entitled as a matter of right to exercise it upon a particular tract of land does not entitle him to equitable consideration as against a prior, and therefore superior, right of another."

*The ruling was right. Each appli- [180] cation must depend upon its particular basis. And it cannot be kept open for the substitution of another right than that upon which it was made. If one substitution can be permitted, successive substitutions can be permitted, and there might arise the condition of things condemned in Moss v. Dowman, 176 U. S. 413, 44 L. ed. 526, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 429. In that case successive formal entries under the homestead law and successive relinquishments of the entries of a tract of land were made. Dowman, who was not a party to the manipulating process, about one month prior to the last relinquishment settled upon the land. It was held that his right attached immediately upon the filing of the last relinquishment and before the last entry, though the latter was made on the same day the relinquishment was filed. It was recognized that the entry which was given up had segregated the land, and that no right could be initiated while it stood of record; but it was decided that the instant its relinquishment was filed in the local office the right of Dowman, the settler on the land, attached, and the Moss entry could not defeat it. And so in the case at bar,—the instant that Robinson's application was rejected as having no legal foundation, the land became subject to appropriation by another. No right, therefore, of Robinson was devested by the ruling of the Department, as contended by complainants, for no right had attached. His application, based on the right of Carroll, was not an entry of the land, and is not within the ruling of McMichael v. Murphy, 197 U. S. 304, 49 L. ed. 766, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 480 that an entry valid on its face segregates the lands from the public domain, and precludes their appropriation by another so long as it remains undisturbed.

Decree affirmed.

---

181] *RAFAEL GUTIERREZ DEL ARROYO, Doña Dolores Gutierrez del Arroyo and Francisco Robledo, Appts.,

v.

ROBERT GRAHAM.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 181-184.)

Vendor and purchaser — contract of sale — option — revocable agency.

1. An agreement signed by both parties by which the owner "compromised himself to sell" certain parcels of land to be paid for in cash, and another parcel to be paid for "in instalments during the two years following the delivery of the document," and the other party agreed to execute a mortgage to secure the payment, the contract to be "extended in a public document" as soon as a "deal" then pending should be "ultimated," failing which the contract should be void,—is a binding contract of sale, and not a mere option agreement, and was not converted into a revocable agency to sell by a supplemental agreement by which "the contracting parties" agreed that any excess in price which which should be obtained on a sale to a third party should be equally divided.

[For other cases, see Vendor and Purchaser, I.; Contracts I. d, 4, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Estoppel — inconsistent positions — tenant and purchaser.

2. The acceptance of a lease does not estop the acceptor from attempting to enforce specific performance of the lessor's alleged contract to sell the land, where the lease recognized an outstanding dispute as to such land, and provided that it should not affect the rights of either side.

[For other cases, see Estoppel, III. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 129.]

Submitted January 21, 1913. Decided February 3, 1913.

APPEAL from the District Court of the United States for Porto Rico to review a decree for the specific performance of a contract for the sale of land. Affirmed.

See same case below, 5 Porto Rico Fed. Rep. 544.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Francis H. Dexter and Frederic D. McKenney submitted the cause for appellants.

Mr. N. B. K. Pettingill submitted the cause for appellee.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a bill for the specific performance of a contract to sell land, made by the defendants Gutierrez. The defendant Robledo claims under a lease from the vendors, made since the contract, and found to have been taken with notice. The district court entered a decree for the plaintiff, and the defendants appealed. There is also a motion to dismiss on the ground that the principal appellants have accepted a part of the purchase money paid into court in pursuance of the decree; but we shall not deal *with this because we are of opin-[182 ion that the decision was right, and therefore there is no need to consider whether the appellants are estopped by doing what they say they were compelled to do upon penalty of being held in contempt. The motion to dismiss did not go to the jurisdiction, but raised another question on the merits.

The contract was as follows, according to the translation, the original not being in the record:

Memorandum.

In the city of San Juan, Porto Rico, the 5th day of July, 1906, Don Rafael Gutierrez del Arroyo and Mr. Robert Graham agreed: 1st, Don Rafael Gutierrez del Arroyo compromised himself to sell to Mr. Robert Graham a parcel of his estate in Pueblo Viejo, which both parties have already fixed the boundaries of, and which may extend up to 70 or 75 cuerdas, at the price of $40 per cuerda. 2d, he also compromised himself to sell to him another small extension of land, which they also fixed the boundaries of, and which may have an extension, approximately, of 14 cuerdas, at the price of $50 per cuerda. 3d, he also compromised himself to sell to him the other 200 or 300 cuerdas of the same estate, in that part of which, which they have also already designated, at the price of $55 per cuerda. 4th, the parcels indicated in Nos. 1 and 2 shall be paid in cash. The parcel indicated in the 3d number shall be paid in instalments during the two years following the delivery of the document. Mr. Graham shall not pay any interest for the extended time of payment; but Mr. Arroyo shall remain in possession and usufruct of the part of the estate sold and not paid for until the payment shall be made. Mr. Graham shall execute a mortgage on the estate to secure the payment. 5th, this contract shall be extended in a public document as soon as Mr. Graham will have ultimated the deal which *is now pending with Doña[183 Felicia Fernandez about the purchase of an undivided part in the same estate. In case that deal should not be carried to effect, this contract will also remain without virtue and effect.

6th, this contract is also subjected to the condition that Don Rafael Gutierrez del Arroyo could rescind the contract of lease which he now has with Don Eleuterio Landrau.

Robert Graham,
Rafael Gutierrez del Arroyo.

The answer admits and it is found that this agreement was made by Rafael Gutierrez on behalf of himself and his sister, the other principal defendant.

Subsequently the following addition was made:

On the 27th of April, 1908, the contracting parties make addition to the 3d clause of this contract in the sense that the excess of price which Mr. Graham may obtain over the $55 per cuerda shall be divided between him and Mr. Arroyo at 50 per cent each.

Robert Graham,
Rafael Gutierrez del Arroyo.

The burden of the argument for the appellants is that this document only gave an option, which expired by time, and that the addition converted the option into a revocable agency to sell. But it appears to us that the argument is answered by reading the instruments. They are signed by both parties. First and second parcels "shall be paid in cash"—the third "shall be" paid for as indicated—Mr. Graham "shall execute a mortgage"—"this contract" shall be extended in a public document as soon, etc. The parties recognized the original agreement as a contract, imposing obligations upon Graham as well as upon Gutierrez, and not merely a promise by the latter. So the addition speaks of "the 184]contracting parties," implying *that both contract, and is simply an undertaking by Graham to pay more in a certain event. There is no suggestion of agency in it, but, on the contract, an assumption that Graham is acting on his own behalf. The answer, although setting up the second point, as to the effect of the addition, also recognizes the original agreement as a contract of sale, and shows very plainly that calling it an option is an afterthought.

The condition as to the lease to Landrau is admitted not to be material now. Graham was ready to perform the conditions imposed upon him. On August 10, 1909, he accepted a lease of parcels one and two, and this is set up as an estoppel against him; but it is enough to answer that the instrument recognized an outstanding dispute as to the land, and provided that the lease should not affect the rights on either side. So far as the defenses urged go, they point rather to unwillingness to carry out a bargain than to any reasonable doubt. The most plausible ground for hesitation is the indefiniteness of the boundaries. But no such point was taken. It seems to be a common characteristic of such agreements in Porto Rico (see Veve y Diaz v. Sanchez, 226 U. S. 234, 241, ante, 201, 204, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 36), and with the aid of local knowledge the surveyor employed by the court seems to have had no difficulty in fixing the line.

Decree affirmed.

---

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND, & PACIFIC RAILWAY COMPANY and Martin A. Barrett, Plffs. in Err.,
v.
ALBERT H. SCHWYHART, Harry L. Reed, and Frank Novak.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 184–194.)

Error to state court — scope of review — joint liability.

1. The joint liability of the defendants under the pleadings is a matter of state law, upon which the decision of the highest court of the state before which the question could come will not be revised by the Federal Supreme Court on a writ of error to the state court, presenting the question

---

NOTE.—On what questions the Federal Supreme Court will consider in reviewing the judgments of state courts—see note to Missouri ex rel. Hill v. Dockery, 63 L.R.A. 571.

As to questions of local practice and procedure on writ of error from Federal Supreme Court to state court—see note to Texas & N. O. R. Co. v. Miller, 55 L. ed. U. S. 789.

On writs of error to state court where removal to Federal court was sought—see note to Williams v. First Nat. Bank, 54 L. ed. U. S. 625.

As to removal of causes in cases of separable controversy—see notes to Miller v. Clifford, 5 L.R.A.(N.S.) 50; Robbins v. Ellenbogen, 18 C. C. A. 86; Mecke v. Valleytown Mineral Co. 35 C. C. A. 153; Pollitz v. Wabash R. Co. 100 C. C. A. 4; Sloane v. Anderson, 29 L. ed. U. S. 899; Merchants Cotton Press & S. Co. v. Insurance Co. of N. A. 38 L. ed. U. S. 195; Butler v. National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers, 36 L ed. U. S. 346, and Torrence v. Shedd, 36 L. ed. U. S. 528.

On fraud in joining a resident as codefendant with a nonresident defendant for the purpose of preventing a removal to the Federal court on the ground of diverse citizenship—see note to Boatman's Bank v. Fritzlen, 22 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1235.

whether the joinder was fraudulently made to prevent a removal of the cause to a Federal court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2072–2123, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Removal of causes — separable controversy — fraudulent joinder.

2. The motive of plaintiff in joining impecunious resident railway employees as codefendants with the nonresident railroad corporation in a negligence suit is not material upon the question of the right of the latter to remove the cause to a Federal court if such defendants are jointly liable under the local law.

[For other cases, see Removal of Causes, IV. c, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — removal of causes.

3. Whether or not the declaration stated a cause of action against a resident joined as codefendant with a nonresident is a matter of local law which is not open on a writ of error from the Federal Supreme Court, presenting the question whether the joinder was fraudulently made for the purpose of preventing a removal to a Federal court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2072–2123, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Error to state court — scope of review — fraudulent joinder to prevent removal.

4. The Federal Supreme Court, on a writ of error to a state court, presenting the question whether a joinder of resident with nonresident defendants was fraudulently made to defeat the removal of the cause to a Federal court, can only consider whether there was a real intention to secure a joint judgment, and whether there was a colorable ground for it shown as the record stood when the removal was denied.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, 2227–2256, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 132.]

Argued January 21 and 22, 1913. Decided February 3, 1913.

IN ERROR to the Kansas City Court of Appeals of the State of Missouri to review a judgment which affirmed in part a judgment of the Circuit Court of Daviess County, in that state, in favor of plaintiff in an action against a foreign railway company and its employees, which the corporate defendant had attempted to remove to a Federal court. Affirmed.

See same case below, 145 Mo. App. 332, 130 S. W. 388.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. Paul E. Walker argued the cause, and, with Mr. F. C. Dillard, filed a brief for plaintiffs in error:

The controversy between plaintiff below and the removing defendant was separable.

1. No cause of action was stated against either of the resident defendants.

Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Bailey, 151 Fed. 891; Central R. Co. v. Keegan, 160 U. S. 259, 40 L. ed. 418, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 269; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Robertson, 115 Ky. 858, 74 S. W. 1061; Davis v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 116 Ky. 144, 75 S. W. 275; Gustafson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 128 Fed. 85; Nelson v. Hennessey, 33 Fed. 113; Potter v. New York C. & H. R. R. Co. 136 N. Y. 77, 32 N. E. 603; Slaughter v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. 28 Ky. L. Rep. 1195, 91 S. W. 744; Schwyhart v. Barrett, 145 Mo. App. 332, 130 S. W. 388.

2. The statute of Missouri prohibited the joinder of the several causes of action.

Barnes v. Metropolitan Street R. Co. 119 Mo. App. 303, 95 S. W. 971; Blackmer & Post Pipe Co. v. Mobile & O. R. Co. 137 Mo. App. 497, 119 S. W. 1; Beattie Mfg. Co. v. Gerardi, 166 Mo. 142, 65 S. W. 1035; Enos v. Kentucky Distilleries & Warehouse Co. 111 C. C. A. 74, 189 Fed. 342; Fernandez v. LaMothe, 147 Mo. App. 644, 127 S. W. 408; Gardner v. Robertson, 208 Mo. 605, 106 S. W. 645; Hunter v. Wethington, 205 Mo. 284, 103 S. W. 543, 12 Ann. Cas. 529; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Sheegog, 215 U. S. 308, 54 U. S. 208, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 101; Liney v. Martin, 29 Mo. 28; Mann v. Doerr, 222 Mo. 1, 121 S. W. 86; Martinowsky v. Hannibal, 35 Mo. App. 70; Mertens v. Loewenberg, 69 Mo. 208; McAllister v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 198 Fed. 660; Nicholas v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 115 C. C. A. 601, 195 Fed. 913; O'Riley v. Diss, 48 Mo. App. 62; Scott v. Taylor, 231 Mo. 654, 132 S. W. 1149; Southworth Co. v. Lamb, 82 Mo. 242.

3. The removing defendant was liable, if at all, under the terms of a Missouri statute; the resident defendants were liable, if at all, only under the rules of the common law. The causes of action were therefore separable.

Alaska Treadwell Gold Min. Co. v. Whelan, 168 U. S. 86, 42 L. ed. 390, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 40; Baltimore & O. R. Co. v. Baugh, 149 U. S. 368, 37 L. ed. 772, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 914; Beutler v. Grand Trunk Junction R. Co. 224 U. S. 85, 56 L. ed. 679, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 402; Central R. Co. v. Keegan, 160 U. S. 259, 40 L. ed. 418, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 269; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Stepp, 151 Fed. 908; Henry v. Illinois C. R. Co. 132 Fed. 715; Jackson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 102 C. C. A. 159, 178 Fed. 432; Lockard v. St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. 167 Fed. 675; Martin v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 166 U. S. 399, 41 L. ed. 1051, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 603, 1 Am. Neg. Rep. 747; Northern P. R. Co. v. Hambly, 154 U. S. 349, 38 L. ed. 1009, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 983; Northern P. R. Co. v. Peterson, 162 U. S. 346, 40 L. ed. 994, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 843; Northern P. R. Co. v. Dixon, 194 U. S. 338, 48 L. ed. 1006, 24 Sup.

Ct. Rep. 683, 16 Am. Neg. Rep. 645; New England R. Co. v. Conroy, 175 U. S. 323, 44 L. ed. 181, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 85, 7 Am. Neg. Rep. 182; Prince v. Illinois C. R. Co. 98 Fed. 1; Swarts v. Siegel, 54 C. C. A. 399, 117 Fed. 13; St. Paul, M. & M. R. Co. v. Sage, 17 C. C. A. 558, 36 U. S. App. 340, 71 Fed. 40; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Bourman, 212 U. S. 536, 53 L. ed. 641, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 319; Union P. R. Co. v. Wyler, 158 U. S. 285, 39 L. ed. 983, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 877; Webber v. St. Paul City R. Co. 38 C. C. A. 79, 97 Fed. 140.

4. Under the decisions of the Missouri courts the defendants were not jointly liable to the plaintiff.

McHugh v. St. Louis Transit Co. 190 Mo. 85, 88 S. W. 853; Stanley v. Union Depot R. Co. 114 Mo. 606, 21 S. W. 832; State ex rel. Iba v. Mosman, 231 Mo. 474, 133 S. W. 38; Veariel v. United Engineering & Foundry Co. 197 Fed. 877.

5. The resident defendants were charged solely with acts of nonfeasance, and, under the decision of the Missouri courts, were not personally liable. The only controversy in the petition was between the plaintiff and the removing defendant.

American Bridge Co. v. Hunt, 64 C. C. A. 548, 130 Fed. 302; Bell v. Catesby, 1 Rolle, Rep. 78, pl. 20; Bryce v. Southern R. Co. 125 Fed. 958; Cameron v. Reynolds, Cowp. pt. 1, p. 403; Gustafson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 128 Fed. 85; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Stepp, 151 Fed. 908; Clark v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 194 Fed. 505; Davenport v. Southern R. Co. 124 Fed. 983, 68 C. C. A. 444, 135 Fed. 960; Ewell's Evans, Agency, p. 438; Feltus v. Swan, 62 Miss. 415; Floyt v. Shenango Furnace Co. 186 Fed. 539; Henshaw v. Noble, 7 Ohio St. 226; Horner v. Lawrence, 37 N. J. L. 46; Jewell v. Kansas City Bolt & Nut Co. 231 Mo. 176, 140 Am. St. Rep. 515, 132 S. W. 703; Kelly v. Chicago & A. R. Co. 122 Fed. 286; Lane v. Cotton, 12 Mod. 488, 4 Taunt. 628; Marsh's Case, Leon, pt. 1, p. 146; Murray v. Usher. 117 N. Y. 542, 23 N. E. 564; McGinnis v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 200 Mo. 347, 9 L.R.A.(N.S.) 880, 118 Am. St. Rep. 661, 98 S. W. 590, 9 Ann. Cas. 656; Prince v. Illinois C. R. Co. 98 Fed. 1; Scheller v. Silbermintz, 50 Misc. 175, 98 N. Y. Supp. 230; Story, Agency, 9th ed. § 308; Steinhauser v. Spraul, 127 Mo. 541, 27 L.R.A. 441, 28 S. W. 620, 30 S. W. 102; Shaffer v. Union Brick Co. 128 Fed. 97; Southern R. Co. v. Miller, 217 U. S. 209, 54 L. ed. 732, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 450.

The decisions of this court do not establish principles in conflict with the contentions of the plaintiffs in error.

Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 50 L. ed. 441, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 57 L. ed.

161, 4 Ann. Cas. 1147; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Dixon, 179 U. S. 131, 45 L. ed. 121, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Willard, 220 U. S. 413, 55 L. ed. 521, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 460; Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. v. Martin, 178 U. S. 245, 44 L. ed. 1055, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 854; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Bohon, 200 U. S. 221, 50 L. ed. 448, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 166, 4 Ann. Cas. 1152; East Tennessee, V. & G. R. Co. v. Grayson, 119 U. S. 240, 30 L. ed. 382, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Sheegog, 215 U. S. 308, 54 L. ed. 208, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 101; Johnson v. St. Joseph Terminal R. Co. 203 Mo. 381, 101 S. W. 641; Lanning v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 196 Mo. 647, 94 S. W. 491; Little v. Giles, 118 U. S. 596, 30 L. ed. 269, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 32; Louisville & N. R. R. Co. v. Ide, 114 U. S. 52, 29 L. ed. 63, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 735; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wangelin, 132 U. S. 599, 33 L. ed. 474, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 203; Pirie v. Tvedt, 115 U. S. 41, 29 L. ed. 331, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1034, 1161; Plymouth Gold Min. Co. v. Amador & S. Canal Co. 118 U. S. 264, 30 L. ed. 232, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1034; Powers v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 169 U. S. 92, 42 L. ed. 673, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 264; Sloane v. Anderson, 117 U. S. 275, 29 L. ed. 899, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 730; Southern R. Co. v. Carson, 194 U. S. 136, 48 L. ed. 907, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609; Southern R. Co. v. Miller, 217 U. S. 209, 54 L. ed. 732, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 450; Stone v. South Carolina, 117 U. S. 430, 29 L. ed. 962, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 799; Stotler v. Chicago & A. R. Co. 200 Mo. 107, 98 S. W. 509; Torrence v. Shedd, 144 U. S. 527, 36 L. ed. 528, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 726; Whitcomb v. Smithson, 175 U. S. 635, 44 L. ed. 303, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 248.

The allegations of fact contained in the petition for removal matters for the exclusive determination of the Federal court.

Burlington, C. R. & N. R. Co. v. Dunn, 122 U. S. 513, 30 L. ed. 1159, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1262; Carson v. Hyatt, 118 U. S. 279, 30 L. ed. 167, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1050; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. McCabe, 213 U. S. 207, 53 L. ed. 765, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 430; Crehore v. Ohio & M. R. Co. 131 U. S. 240, 33 L. ed. 144, 9 Sup. Ct. Rep. 692; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Sheegog, 215 U. S. 308, 54 L. ed. 208, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 101; Kansas City, Ft. S. & M. R. Co. v. Daughtry, 138 U. S. 298, 34 L. ed. 963, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 306; Kansas City Suburban Belt R. Co. v. Herman, 187 U. S. 63, 47 L. ed. 76, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 24; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wangelin, 132 U. S. 599, 33 L. ed. 474, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 203; Madisonville Traction Co. v. St. Bernard Min. Co. 196 U. S. 239, 49 L. ed. 462, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 251; Schwyhart v. Barrett, 145 Mo. App. 332, 103 S. W. 388;

47

Stone v. South Carolina, 117 U. S. 430, 29 L. ed. 262, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 799; Texas & P. R. Co. v. Eastin, 214 U. S. 153, 53 L. ed. 946, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 564; Wecker v. National Enameling & Stamping Co. 204 U. S. 176, 51 L. ed. 430, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 184.

Apart from the allegations of negligence with which the resident defendants were charged, the petition contained another and distinct controversy between the plaintiff and the removing defendant.

Adderson v. Southern R. Co. 177 Fed. 571; Barney v. Latham, 103 U. S. 205, 26 L. ed. 514; Batey v. Nashville, C. & St. L. R. Co. 95 Fed. 368; Beuttel v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 26 Fed. 50; Boatmen's Bank v. Fritzlen, 68 C. C. A. 288, 135 Fed. 650; Fritzlen v. Boatmen's Bank, 212 U. S. 364, 53 L. ed. 551, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 366; Chicago & A. R. Co. v. New York, L. E. & W. R. Co. 24 Fed. 516; Connell v. Smiley, 156 U. S. 335, 39 L. ed. 443, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 353; Elkins v. Howell, 140 Fed. 157; Fergason v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 63 Fed. 177; Fraser v. Jennison, 106 U. S. 191, 27 L. ed. 131, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 171; Geer v. Mathieson Alkali Works, 190 U. S. 428, 47 L. ed. 1122, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 807; Gudger v. Western North Carolina R. Co. 21 Fed. 81; Gustafson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 128 Fed. 85; Harter Twp. v. Kernochan, 103 U. S. 562, 26 L. ed. 411; Hartshorn v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 77 Fed. 9; Henry v. Illinois C. R. Co. 132 Fed. 715; McGuire v. Great Northern R. Co. 153 Fed. 434; Nichols v. Chesapeake & O. R. Co. 115 C. C. A. 601, 195 Fed. 913; Southern R. Co. v. Edwards, 115 Ga. 1022, 42 S. E. 375; Wheeling Creek Gas, Coal & Coke Co. v. Elder, 170 Fed. 215.

Messrs. Kendall B. Randolph and Boyd Dudley argued the cause, and, with Mr. J. A. Selby, filed a brief for defendants in error:

This case is not removable. The state court properly retained jurisdiction.

Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Dixon, 179 U. S. 131, 45 L. ed. 121, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 50 L. ed. 441, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161, 4 Ann. Cas. 1147; Cincinnati, N. O. & T. P. R. Co. v. Bohon, 200 U. S. 221, 50 L. ed. 448, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 166, 4 Ann. Cas. 1152; Southern R. Co. v. Miller, 217 U. S. 209, 54 L. ed. 732, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 450; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Willard, 220 U. S. 413, 55 L. ed. 521, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 460.

The right of removal is wholly statutory, and the state court is not ousted of its jurisdiction unless the cause is properly removable

Hanford v. Davis, 163 U. S. 273, 41 L. ed. 157, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1051; Börs v. Preston, 111 U. S. 252, 28 L. ed. 419, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 407; Mansfield & L. M. R. Co. v. Swan, 111 U. S. 379, 28 L. ed. 462, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 510; Grace v. American Cent. Ins. Co. 109 U. S. 278, 27 L. ed. 932, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; National S. S. Co. v. Tugman, 106 U. S. 118, 27 L. ed. 87, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 50 L. ed. 441, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161, 4 Ann. Cas. 1147; Southern R. Co. v. Carson, 194 U. S. 138, 48 L. ed. 909, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 609.

All doubts are to be resolved in favor of the jurisdiction of the state court.

Mexican Nat. R. Co. v. Davidson, 157 U. S. 208, 39 L. ed. 675, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 563; Hanrick v. Hanrick, 153 U. S. 192, 38 L. ed. 685, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 835; Shaw v. Quincy Min. Co. 145 U. S. 444, 36 L. ed. 768, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 935.

The necessary jurisdictional facts must appear on the face of the pleadings, to justify a removal.

18 Enc. Pl. & Pr. 297, note 11.

The question as to whether there is a separable controversy is to be determined by the condition of the record in the state court; and the facts necessary to give jurisdiction to the Federal court must appear upon the face of the plaintiff's petition. The petition for removal cannot supply them unless fraud be sufficiently and specifically averred and proved.

Arkansas v. Kansas & T. Coal Co. 183 U. S. 189, 46 L. ed. 146, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 47; Mountain View Min. & Mill. Co. v. McFadden, 180 U. S. 535, 45 L. ed. 656, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 488; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 50 L. ed. 441, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161, 4 Ann. Cas. 161; Central R. Co. v. Mills, 113 U. S. 257, 28 L. ed. 951, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 456; Tennessee v. Union & Planter's Bank, 152 U. S. 460, 38 L. ed. 513, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 654; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Willard, 220 U. S. 413, 55 L. ed. 521, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 460.

The allegations of the petition of the plaintiff below are taken as confessed in determining whether the controversy is separable on application for removal.

Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wangelin, 132 U. S. 602, 33 L. ed. 476, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 203; East Tennessee, V. & G. R. Co. v. Grayson, 119 U. S. 240, 30 L. ed. 382, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 190; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 50 L. ed. 441, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161, 4 Ann. Cas. 1147.

In the case at bar the allegations of fraud in the petition for removal are insufficient and present no issuable fact.

Little York Gold-Washing & Water Co. v. Keyes, 96 U. S. 199, 24 L. ed. 656; Provident Sav. Life Assur. v. Ford, 114 U. S. 635, 29 L. ed. 261, 5 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1104; Louisville & N. R. Co. v. Wangelin, 132 U. S. 599, 33 L. ed. 474, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 203; Chesapeake & O. R. Co. v. Dixon, 179 U. S. 131, 45 L. ed. 121, 21 Sup. Ct. Rep. 67; Carson v. Dunham, 121 U. S. 421, 30 L. ed. 992, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1030; Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Willard, 220 U. S. 426, 55 L. ed. 526, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 460; Plymouth Consol. Gold Min Co. v. Amador & S. Canal Co. 118 U. S. 264, 30 L. ed. 232, 6 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1034; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. McBride, 141 U. S. 127, 35 L. ed. 659, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 982; Alabama G. S. R. Co. v. Thompson, 200 U. S. 206, 50 L. ed. 441, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 161, 4 Ann. Cas. 1147.

In the interpretation of state statutes the United States courts are bound by the decisions of the state court of last resort, and will form an independent judgment as to their meaning only when no such construction has been had.

Enfield v. Jordan, 119 U. S. 680, 30 L. ed. 523, 7 Sup. Ct. Rep. 358; Merchants & M. Nat. Bank v. Pennsylvania, 167 U. S. 461, 42 L. ed. 236, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 829; Hartford F. Ins. Co. v. Chicago, M. & St. P. R. Co. 175 U. S. 91, 44 L. ed. 84, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 33; McCain v. Des Moines, 174 U. S. 177, 43 L. ed. 939, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 644; Orr v. Gilman, 183 U. S. 283, 46 L. ed. 200, 22 Sup. Ct. Rep. 213; Sioux City Terminal R. & Warehouse Co. v. Trust Co. of N. A. 173 U. S. 107, 43 L. ed. 631, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 341.

No question of pleadings can arise and be determined in removal proceedings. Any question as to the sufficiency of the petition is a question on the merits, to be determined by the court which tries the case. Even if no cause of action were stated, it would furnish no ground for removal, and would in no wise affect the jurisdiction of the state courts.

St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. McBride, 141 U. S. 127, 35 L. ed. 659, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 982; Hax v. Caspar, 31 Fed. 499; Evans v. Fulton, 96 Fed. 176; Broadway Ins. Co. v. Chicago G. W. R. Co. 101 Fed. 507; Fogarty v. Southern P. Co. 123 Fed. 973; St. Louis & S. F. R. Co. v. McBride, 141 U. S. 127, 35 L. ed. 659, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 982; Thomas v. Great Northern R. Co. 77 C. C. A. 255, 147 Fed. 86.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is an action for personal injuries, brought by Schwyhart against the railway company and those of its servants to whose immediate negligence the injuries were alleged to have been due. There was a verdict and judgment against the company and the defendant Barrett, but at the proper time a petition had been filed by the railway company for the removal of the action to the circuit court of the United States, and it now contends that all subsequent proceedings in the state courts were void. 145 Mo. App. 332, 130 S. W. 388.

The declaration alleged that the plaintiff was employed by the company as hostler under Barrett as foreman; that it was his duty under Barrett's direction to uncouple the air brake and signal hose from between the ends of the cars on a specified train; that Barrett ordered him to do so, and that while he was between the cars, owing to their proceeding in an unusual manner that is stated, he was crushed; and further, that Barrett negligently ordered him into the dangerous situation without giving him warning of the danger, and by his order and presence assured plaintiff that the work could be proceeded with safely when, by the exercise of ordinary care on Barrett's part, the injury could have been avoided. After the petition *for[192 removal had been overruled the declaration was amended by inserting as to Barrett, "although he well knew of plaintiff's danger and the unusual way by which the said Pullman car was to be switched."

The defendants other than the railway were residents of Missouri, and the petition for removal charged that they were joined for the sole and fraudulent purpose of preventing a removal. The grounds stated for the charge of fraudulent joinder were that the declaration disclosed no cause of action against those defendants, that the company and they were not jointly liable, and that they were persons of little or no property, while the company was fully able to pay. It will be sufficient to consider these grounds with reference to Barrett alone, the party that ultimately was held.

The joint liability of the defendants under the declaration as amended is a matter of state law, and upon that we shall not attempt to go behind the decision of the highest court of the state before which the question could come. Southern R. Co. v. Miller, 217 U. S. 209, 215, 216, 54 L. ed. 732, 735, 736, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 450. That court might hold that the declaration averred the plaintiff to have been led by Barrett into a trap that was set and snapped by the company, the latter being also liable for Barrett's share in the deed. Again, the motive of the plaintiff, taken by itself, does not affect the right to remove. If there is a joint liability, he has an absolute right to enforce it, whatever the reason that makes him wish to assert the right. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. v. Willard, 220 U. S. 413, 427, 55 L. ed. 521, 527, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 460; Illinois C. R. Co. v. Sheegog, 215 U. S. 308, 316, 54 L. ed. 208, 211, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 101. Hence the fact that the company is rich and Barrett poor does not affect the case.

The remaining justification for the charge of fraudulent intent is that no cause of action was stated against Barrett. That again is a question of state law, and that the plaintiff had such a cause of action in fact 194]must be taken *now to be established. The suggestion that mere nonfeasance is alleged is shown to be unfounded by the statement that we have made. It is true that the declaration was amended after the petition to remove had been denied, but the amendment, if not unnecessary, merely made the original cause of action more precise. On the question of removal we have not to consider more than whether there was a real intention to get a joint judgment, and whether there was a colorable ground for it shown as the record stood when the removal was denied. We are not to decide whether a flaw could be picked in the declaration on special demurrer. As the record stood, Barrett was alleged negligently to have ordered the plaintiff into a dangerous place, and by his conduct to have assured the plaintiff of safety, when, if Barrett had used ordinary care, the plaintiff need not have been hurt. To add that Barrett knew the specific source of the danger is merely to make plainer what evidently was meant before.

Judgment affirmed.

---

BROOKLYN MINING & MILLING COMPANY, Appt.,
v.
CHARLES C. MILLER, George B. Lasbury, Ada M. Miller, Charles C. Miller No. 2, and George Miller.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 194–202.)

Appeal — from territorial supreme court — findings of fact — concurrence with trial court.

1. Findings of fact by the trial court, accepted by a territorial supreme court on appeal, are conclusive upon the Federal Supreme Court.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, VIII. 1, 3, e; VIII. 1, 5, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Stipulation — not to plead judgment.

2. A party may bind itself by a stipulation in open court that, in consideration of the adverse party's consent to a continuance, no judgment which might be obtained in a pending suit in another jurisdiction should be pleaded.

[For other cases, see Stipulation, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 144.]

Argued January 23 and 24, 1913. Decided February 3, 1913.

APPEAL from the Supreme Court of the Territory of Arizona to review a decree which affirmed a decree of the District Court for the County of Yavapai, in that territory, dismissing a suit for specific performance. Affirmed.

See same case below, 13 Ariz. 217, 108 Pac. 471.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Mr. F. S. Howell argued the cause, and, with Messrs. A. W. Jefferis, Thomas C. Job, and John J. Hawkins, filed a brief for appellant:

Under the issues presented, and the findings of both lower courts that no sale had been consummated of the West Brooklyn claim to the United Verde Copper Company by defendants prior to January 1, 1908, the plaintiff was entitled to specific performance of the contract in suit, without regard to whether it prevented such consummation or not.

Philip Schneider Brewing Co. v. American Ice Mach. Co. 23 C. C. A. 89, 40 U. S. App. 382, 77 Fed. 142; Kahnweiler v. Phenix Ins. Co. 14 C. C. A. 485, 32 U. S. App. 230, 67 Fed. 483; Micks v. Stevenson, 22 Ind. App. 475, 51 N. E. 493; Beardsley v. Beardsley, 138 U. S. 262, 34 L. ed. 928, 11 Sup. Ct. Rep. 318; Phillips, Code Pl. § 354; First Nat. Bank v. Root, 107 Ind. 224, 8 N. E. 105; Keenan v. Sic, 91 Neb. 582, 136 N. W. 841; Columbia Nat. Bank v. German Nat. Bank, 56 Neb. 803, 77 N. W. 346.

Where time is not of the essence, the failure of a party to perform a condition will not defeat specific enforcement.

Pom. Const. Law, p. 462, § 390; Whiteman v. Perkins, 56 Neb. 181, 76 N. W. 547.

If time be not of the essence of a portion of the contract, performance of such things as are not controlled by time may be at any time before decree.

Seaver v. Hall, 50 Neb. 878, 70 N. W. 373; King v. Gsantner, 23 Neb. 797, 37 N. W. 654; Story, Eq. Jur. 777.

This court will look into the evidence.

Ward v. Sherman, 192 U. S. 168, 48 L. ed. 391, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 227; Southern Pine Lumber Co. v. Ward, 208 U. S. 126, 52 L. ed. 420, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 239; Halsell v. Renfrow, 202 U. S. 287, 50 L. ed.

NOTE.—As to review by the United States Supreme Court of territorial decisions—see note to Miners' Bank v. Iowa, 13 L. ed. U. S. 867.

1032, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 610; 6 Ann. Cas. 189.

Two defenses irreconcilably inconsistent may not be enforced, and the position assumed by the party prior to the suit relative to the facts and circumstances involved in the transaction drawn into question will prevail.

Columbia Nat. Bank v. German Nat. Bank, 56 Neb. 803, 77 N. W. 346.

The court erred in refusing to give effect to the Nebraska decree. It constituted an adjudication of the rights of the plaintiff and certain of the parties defendant by a court of competent jurisdiction, and was therefore conclusive in this case as to such rights and parties as were involved therein.

Bigelow v. Old Dominion Copper Min. & Smelting Co. 225 U. S. 111, 56 L. ed. 1009, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 641; Butterfield v. Nogales Copper Co. 9 Ariz. 212, 80 Pac. 345; Heinze v. Butte & B. Consol. Min. Co. 63 C. C. A. 388, 129 Fed. 274; The J. R. Langdon, 90 C. C. A. 18, 163 Fed. 472; Estill County v. Embry, 50 C. C. A. 573, 112 Fed. 882; Southern P. R. Co. v. United States, 168 U. S. 1, 57 L. ed. 355, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 18; Niles v. Lee, 169 Mich. 474, 135 N. W. 274; Deposit Bank v. Frankfort, 191 U. S. 499–514, 48 L. ed. 276–282, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 154; Fayerweather v. Ritch, 195 U. S. 276, 301, 49 L. ed. 193, 211, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 58; Northern P. R. Co. v. Slaght, 205 U. S. 122, 131, 51 L. ed. 738, 741, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 442; Hilton v. Guyot, 159 U. S. 113, 170, 40 L. ed. 95, 110, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 139; Harris v. Balk, 198 U. S. 215, 49 L. ed. 1023, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 625, 3 Ann. Cas. 1084.

Mr. T. G. Norris argued the cause, and, with Messrs. E. J. Mitchell, Reese M. Ling, and John M. Ross, filed a brief for appellees:

The findings of the district court, adopted by the supreme court in its judgment of affirmance, brought here as a statement of facts in the nature of a special verdict, present the sole question for determination, apart from exceptions duly taken to rulings on the admission or rejection of evidence,—Do the findings of fact support the judgment?

Stringfellow v. Cain, 99 U. S. 610, 25 L. ed. 421; Neslin v. Wells F. & Co. 104 U. S. 428, 26 L. ed. 802; Eilers v. Boatman, 111 U. S. 356, 28 L. ed. 454, 4 Sup. Ct. Rep. 432, 15 Mor. Min. Rep. 471; Idaho & O. Land Improv. Co. v. Bradbury, 132 U. S. 509, 33 L. ed. 433, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 177; Mammoth Min. Co. v. Salt Lake Foundry & Mach. Co. 151 U. S. 450, 38 L. ed. 229, 14 Sup. Ct. Rep. 384; Haws v. Victoria Copper Min. Co. 160 U. S. 303, 40 L. ed. 436, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 282; Gildersleeve v. New Mexico Min. Co. 161 U. S. 573, 40 L. ed. 812, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 663; Bear Lake & River Waterworks & Irrig. Co. v. Garland, 164 U. S. 18, 41 L. ed. 334, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 7; Harrison v. Perea, 168 U. S. 323, 42 L. ed. 482, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 129.

The Nebraska decree could not control the court in Arizona.

Ellenwood v. Marietta Chair Co. 158 U. S. 105, 107, 39 L. ed. 913, 914, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 771; Fall v. Eastin, 215 U. S. 11, 54 L. ed. 70, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3, 17 Ann. Cas. 853; Watts v. Waddle, 6 Pet. 389, 8 L. ed. 437; Watkins v. Holman, 16 Pet. 25, 10 L. ed. 873; Enos v. Hunter, 9 Ill. 214; Wilson v. Braden, 48 W. Va. 196, 36 S. E. 367; Wimer v. Wimer, 82 Va. 890, 3 Am. St. Rep. 126, 5 S. E. 536; Lindley v. O'Reilly, 50 N. J. L. 636, 1 L.R.A. 79, 7 Am. St. Rep. 802, 15 Atl. 379; Bullock v. Bullock, 52 N. J. Eq. 561, 27 L.R.A. 213, 46 Am St Rep. 528, 30 Atl. 676.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

This is a suit by the appellant for the specific performance of a contract made between it and C. C. Miller, A. V. Miller, now deceased, and G. B. Lasbury, hereafter called the vendors, for the sale by the latter parties, on certain conditions and terms, of 175,000 shares of stock in the appellant, or, in the alternative, of all their interest in the West Brooklyn and certain other mining claims. The bill alleges the failure of the condition referred to, and seeks a conveyance of the interest in the mining claims and an account. It was dismissed by the court below and the plaintiff appealed.

The facts found, abridged, are these. The vendors owned the mining claims and had given an option to purchase the West Brooklyn claim and another, not concerned here, to the United Verde Copper Company, which was extended and kept in force up to January 1, 1908. In 1906 a stockholder in the appellant had begun a suit on behalf of himself and others, afterwards amended so as to make the appellant plaintiff, to have the Millers and Lasbury, also stockholders, declared trustees for the appellant of the mining claim now in question. Miller, on the other hand, had sued the appellants for work done upon the Brooklyn claim. By way of compromise the present contract was made. It recited the two suits and the conditional sale of the West Brooklyn claim to the United Verde Copper Company, and provided, in consideration of the dismissal and settlement of the foregoing *causes of ac-[199

tion, that if the sale to the United Verde Company was consummated by January 1, 1908, the above-mentioned transfer of stock should be made, etc., but that if, for any reason, the sale should not be consummated, then the conveyance now sought for should take place.†

200] *The suit by Miller was dismissed and a dismissal of the company's action was requested, but it was declined. Then on January 2, 1908, the vendors, alleging consummation of the contract with the United Verde Company, tendered performance, which was declined on the ground *that[201 it did not comply with the terms of the present agreement, and there was a second refusal to dismiss the company's suit. On February 15, however, it did dismiss that suit, and ten minutes later began the present one. This was tried in March, 1909, and the court found that the sale to the United Verde Company had not been con-

†The contract in full is as follows:

Whereas, an action is now pending in the district court of Yavapai county, Arizona, entitled Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company et al. v. Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury, which action relates to the title of the West Brooklyn, East Brooklyn, and South Brooklyn mining claims located in said county and territory, and relates to an accounting for ores and minerals taken therefrom; and

Whereas, the said Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury have made a conditional sale of the above-named West Brooklyn mining claim for the sum of $10,000 to the United Verde Copper Company; and

Whereas, an action is pending in the district court of Yavapai county, Arizona, entitled Charles C. Miller v. Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company, for several thousand dollars claimed to be due and owing to the said Charles C. Miller for services performed by him and Alonzo V. Miller for the said Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company; and

Whereas, it is the desire of the parties connected with the foregoing causes of action to settle the same, and to adjust the matters of difference between the parties in connection therewith;

Therefore, in consideration of the dismissal and settlement of the foregoing causes of action it is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company and Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury that if the sale of the West Brooklyn mining claim to the United Verde Copper Company is consummated on or before the 1st day of January, 1908, the said Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury are to transfer and deliver to the said Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company one hundred and seventy-five thousand shares (175,000) of stock in said Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company, free and clear of all liens and encumbrances whatsoever; it being understood that said transfer of stock is to include all of the holdings of said Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury in the Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company, and the said parties are to receive therefor the sum of 3 (three) cents per share for said stock; and in addition thereto Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury are to pay to the Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company the sum of eight thousand, five hundred dollars ($8,500) out of the proceeds derived from the sale of the said West Brooklyn mining claim; in addition thereto the said Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury are to convey all of their right, title, and interest in and to the East Brooklyn, South Brooklyn, North Brooklyn, Empress, and Midway mining claims, and said transfer shall contain the warranty that the assessment work has been done for the year 1907 upon the Empress, Midway, and North Brooklyn, and the said Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company shall pay the said assessment work at its reasonable value. The said Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury agree to do the assessment work for the year 1907, on the East and South Brooklyn mining claims, and said assessment work so to be performed is to be paid for by the Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company at its reasonable value. It is further stipulated and agreed by and between the parties hereto that if for any reason the sale of the West Brooklyn claim to the United Verde Copper Company by the said Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury shall not be consummated on or before the 1st day of January, 1908, then the said Charles C. Miller, Alonzo V. Miller, and George B. Lasbury are to convey to the Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company all of their right, title, and interest in and to the West Brooklyn, East Brooklyn, South Brooklyn, North Brooklyn, Empress, and Midway mining claims, and the assessment work on the North Brooklyn, Empress, and Midway claims for the year 1907 is to be paid by the said Brooklyn Mining Company at its fair and reasonable value.

It is understood by and between the parties hereto that the foregoing does not concede or admit any of the allegations contained in the pleadings of said causes of action, but the agreement is entered into for the purpose of adjusting the matters of difference between said parties, and avoiding further costs and expenses to the parties hereto.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands this 27th day of August, A. D. 1907.

C. C. Miller.
A. V. Miller.
G. B. Lasbury.
Brooklyn Mining & Milling Company.
By Chas. W. Pearsall, President.

summated, and that the failure was caused by the refusal of the plaintiff to dismiss its former above-mentioned suit, which, it will be remembered, impeached the title of the vendors. (The vendors were not estopped by earlier having alleged consummation.)

The court, however, instead of dismissing the bill outright, made an alternative decree that it be dismissed if the plaintiff did not assent within thirty days to certain terms looking to a carrying out of the sale to the United Verde Company. The plaintiff refused its assent, and the Supreme Court, accepting the finding of the court below, affirmed the dismissal of the bill. This disposes of the case except in one particular to be mentioned. Harrison v. Perea, 168 U. S. 311, 323, 42 L. ed. 478, 482, 18 Sup. Ct. Rep. 129.

On January 28, 1908, the appellant brought a suit in Nebraska for specific performance of the same agreement now sued upon here, and on February 8, 1909, it was decided that the vendors must convey their interest in the West Brooklyn claim, as against Ada M. Miller, grantee of A. V. Miller, and Lasbury, the only parties served, and a master appointed by the court executed a conveyance accordingly. The appellant sought to avail itself of this decree and conveyance. But on December 23, 1908, it was agreed in open court, in consideration of the defendants allowing a continuance of the present Arizona cause, that no judgment that might be obtained in Nebraska should be pleaded. The court properly held the appellant to its agreement. There was a cross complaint by the appellees in the answer to which the decree and conveyance were pleaded, but the 202]Supreme Court, after referring *to Fall v. Eastin, 215 U. S. 1, 54 L. ed. 65, 23 L.R.A.(N.S.) 924, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 3, 17 Ann. Cas. 853, disposed of the matter by noticing that no relief was given on the cross complaint, and that specific performance was denied on other grounds.

Judgment affirmed.

---

UNITED STATES, Plff. in Err.,
v.
SIDNEY W. WINSLOW, Edward P. Hurd, George W. Brown, William Barbour, and Elmer P. Howe.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 202–218.)

Appeal — by government in criminal case — scope of review.

1. The district court's construction of the indictment must be accepted by the Federal Supreme Court when reviewing, under the act of March 2, 1907 (34 Stat. at L. 1246, chap. 2564), a judgment sustaining a demurrer to certain counts in the in dictment, which is based upon the construc tion of the Federal statute upon which th indictment is founded.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. c in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Monopoly — restraint of trade in pat ented articles.

2. The union in one corporation of thre companies, each manufacturing a differen noncompeting group of patented machine collectively used for making shoes, is no forbidden by the prohibitions of the Sher man anti-trust act of July 2, 1890 (26 Stat at L. 209, chap. 647, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901 p. 3200), against combinations in restrain of interstate trade, although a large per centage of all the shoe machinery busines may thus have been put into a single hand

[For other cases, see Monopoly, II. b, in Di gest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Appeal — by government in crimina case — repeal.

3. The criminal appeals act of March 1 1907, was not repealed by the Judicial Cod of March 3, 1911 (36 Stat. at L. 1087, chap 231, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 128) since the former act is not mentione among the statutes expressly repealed b § 297 of the Code, is not superseded by an other regulations of the matter, and is special provision.

[For other cases, see Appeal and Error, I. c Statutes, III. b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 620.]

Argued January 10, 1913. Decided Febru ary 3, 1913.

IN ERROR to the District Court of th United States for the District of Massa chusetts to review a judgment sustainin a demurrer to certain counts in an indict ment charging violations of the Sherma anti-trust act. Affirmed.

See same case below, 195 Fed. 578.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Solicitor General Bullitt argued th cause and filed a brief for plaintiff in error

The criminal provisions of the Sherma anti-trust act are constitutional.

Northern Securities Co. v. United State 193 U. S. 197, 401, 48 L. ed. 679, 726, 2 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; Standard Oil Co. v United States, 221 U. S. 1, 69, 55 L. ed 619, 648, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 54 L. ed

---

NOTE.—On illegal trusts under moder anti-trust laws—see note to Whitwell v Continental Tobacco Co. 64 L.R.A. 689.

On restraint of trade in patented article —see note to E. Bement & Sons v. Nationa Harrow Co. 46 L.ed. U. S. 1058.

On review by government in crimina cases—see note to United States v. Stev son, 54 L. ed. U. S. 153.

1168, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; United States v. Swift, 188 Fed. 92.

The lower court's construction of the indictment is not open to review here.

United States v. Biggs, 211 U. S. 507, 53 L. ed. 305, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 181; United States v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 53 L. ed. 230, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 54 L. ed. 1168, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124.

Individuals are criminally liable for acts done through the instrumentality of a corporation, which they actively procure to be done.

Balliet v. United States, 64 C. C. A. 201, 129 Fed. 689; Crall v. Com. 103 Va. 855, 49 S. E. 638; Fitzsimmons v. United States, 13 L.R.A.(N.S.) 1095, 84 C. C. A. 287, 156 Fed. 477; Foster v. United States, 101 C. C. A. 485, 178 Fed. 165; La Société Anonyme v. Panhard-Levassor Motor Co. [1901] 2 Ch. 513, 70 L. J. Ch. N. S. 738, 50 Week. Rep. 74, 85 L. T. N. S. 20, 17 Times L. R. 680, 18 R. P C. 405; People v. Clark, 8 N. Y. Crim. Rep. 179, 14 N. Y. Supp. 645; People v. Detroit White Lead Works, 82 Mich. 471, 9 L.R.A. 722, 46 N. W. 735; People v. Duke, 19 Misc. 292, 44 N. Y. Supp. 336; State v. Great Works Mill. & Mfg. Co. 20 Me. 41, 37 Am. Dec. 38; United States v. Swift, 188 Fed. 92; United States v. MacAndrews & F. Co. 149 Fed. 823; United States v. Durland, 65 Fed. 408; Durland v. United States, 161 U. S. 306, 40 L. ed. 709, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 508.

The combination of from 70 per cent to 80 per cent of all the shoe-machinery business of this country into one hand is in itself so great a proportion of the entire business as to constitute a restraint of trade within the meaning of the Sherman anti-trust law.

Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 75, 55 L. ed. 619, 650, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502; Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20, ante, 107, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 9; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 226 U. S. 61, 470, ante, 124, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 53, 162; United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 398, 56 L. ed. 810, 815, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; United States v. Reading Co. 226 U. S. 324, ante, 243, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90.

Messrs. Charles F. Choate, Jr., and Frederick P. Fish argued the cause, and, with Mr. Malcolm Donald, filed a brief for defendants in error:

This court is limited to a consideration of the particular construction of the Sherman act on which the district court's decision was based.

United States v. Bitty, 208 U. S. 393, 52 L. ed. 543, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 396; United States v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 53 L. ed. 230, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; United States v. Mason, 213 U. S. 115, 53 L. ed. 725, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 480; United States v. Mescall, 215 U. S. 26, 54 L. ed. 77, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19; United States v. Stevenson, 215 U. S. 190, 54 L. ed. 153, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 35; United States v. Kissel, 218 U. S. 601, 54 L. ed. 1168, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 124; United States v. Barber, 219 U. S. 72, 55 L. ed. 99, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 209; United States v. Miller, 223 U. S. 599, 56 L. ed. 568, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 323.

This court must accept the district court's construction of the indictment, and is limited to the question of the application of the Sherman act to the indictment as so construed.

United States v. Biggs, 211 U. S. 507, 53 L. ed. 305, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 181; United States v. Miller, 223 U. S. 599, 56 L. ed. 568, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 323.

Only such questions as to the construction of the Sherman act are presented to this court as it is affirmatively shown form the basis of the district court's decision.

Grace v. American Cent. Ins. Co. 109 U. S. 278, 27 L. ed. 932, 3 Sup. Ct. Rep. 207; Ex parte Smith, 94 U. S. 455, 24 L. ed. 165; Robertson v. Cease, 97 U. S. 646, 24 L. ed. 1057; De Saussure v. Gaillard, 127 U. S. 216, 32 L. ed. 125, 8 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1053; Brown v. Atwell, 92 U. S. 327, 23 L. ed. 511.

The merger of the three companies was not unlawful under the Sherman act, but, on the contrary, was lawful and proper.

Lowe v. Lawlor, 208 U. S. 274, 52 L. ed. 488, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 301, 13 Ann. Cas. 815; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502; Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 568, 43 L. ed. 259, 287, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 616, 43 L. ed. 300, 306, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50.

Because each of the three concerns had such a lawful monopoly over its own machines, and could at its own pleasure exclude each of the other concerns from manufacturing such machines, the three concerns were fully justified in combining in order to produce, market, and keep in repair in an efficient and economical manner a complete line of all the machines.

United States v. American Bell Teleph. Co. 167 U. S. 224, 42 L. ed. 144, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 809.

Assuming that some additional power resulted from the merger, it is clear that the mere acquisition of a power incidentally resulting from the pursuance of a normal and natural trade policy cannot be illegal, because it conceivably might be used to restrain trade. The acquisition of such a power so acquired would have too remote a connection with its oppressive use to constitute a restraint of trade, or give rise to any dangerous probability that a restraint of trade would result.

Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Com. v. Peaslee, 177 Mass. 267, 59 N. E. 55.

If any restraint of trade could result from the merger it would be purely incidental to the accomplishment of a lawful purpose.

Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 94 C. C. A. 13, 167 Fed. 721; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Field v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co. 194 U. S. 618, 48 L. ed. 1142, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502; Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25.

The criminal appeals act of 1907, under which the present writ of error was brought, was repealed by the Judicial Code (chap. 231, Act of Congress, 1911), and for this reason this court has no jurisdiction of the present case.

The Habana, 175 U. S. 677, 44 L. ed. 320, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 290; McLish v. Roff, 141 U. S. 661, 667, 35 L. ed. 893, 895, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 118; Lau Ow Bew v. United States, 144 U. S. 47, 36 L. ed. 340, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 517; Interstate Commerce Commission v. Atchison, T. & S. F. R. Co. 149 U. S. 264, 37 L. ed. 727, 4 Inters. Com. Rep. 347, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 837; United States v. Rider, 163 U. S. 132, 41 L. ed. 101, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 983; United States v. Allen, 163 U. S. 499–502, 41 L. ed. 242, 243, 16 Sup. Ct. Rep. 1071; Tracy v. Tuffly, 134 U. S. 206, 222, 223, 33 L. ed. 879, 884, 885, 10 Sup. Ct. Rep. 527.

Mr. William A. Sargent also filed a brief for defendants in error:

The determination of a question of general law has nothing to do with the construction of the Sherman act, and is not within the classes named in the statute (criminal appeals act) giving a right of review in this court.

United States v. Keitel, 211 U. S. 370, 53 L. ed. 230, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 123; United States v. Mason, 213 U. S. 115, 53 L. ed. 725, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 480; United States v. Mescall, 215 U. S. 26, 54 L. ed. 77, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 19; United States v. Stevenson, 215 U. S. 190, 54 L. ed. 153, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 35.

The organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company by said defendants together, and the turning over by said groups of defendants to and the taking over by the United Shoe Machinery Company of the stocks and business of the three corporations, was not, and is not, a combination in restraint of defendants' own trade, nor a conspiracy in restraint of trade of the shoe manufacturers in shoe machinery.

United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632.

By the organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company there was no restriction of competition. The three groups of defendants, prior to the organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company, were not engaged in competition with each other. Their business related to a different commodity.

Kokomo Fence Mach. Co. v. Kitselman, 189 U. S. 8, 47 L. ed. 689, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 521; Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; Northern Securities Co. v. United States, 193 U. S. 197, 48 L. ed. 679, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 436; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 55 L. ed. 502, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 865, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; Continental Wall Paper Co. v. Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Chapelle, 212 Mass. 467, 99 N. E. 289; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; United States v. John Reardon & Sons Co. 191 Fed. 454; Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. v. United States, 226 U. S. 20, ante, 107, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 9; United States v. Union P. R. Co. 226 U. S. 61, ante, 124, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 53: United States v. Terminal R. Asso. 224 U. S. 383, 56 L. ed. 810, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 507; United States v. Reading Co. 226 U. S. 324, ante, 243, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90.

By the organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company the defendants, taken individually, or in groups, or together, did not agree to restrain such trade as they had in different commodities, or in any manner to restrain their own trade.

Addyston Pipe & Steel Co. v. United States, 175 U. S. 211, 44 L. ed. 136, 20 Sup. Ct. Rep. 96; W. W. Montague & Co. v. Lowry, 193 U. S. 38, 48 L. ed. 608, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 307; Shawnee Compress Co. v. Anderson, 209 U. S. 423, 52 L. ed. 865, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 572; Continental Wall Paper Co.

Louis Voight & Sons Co. 212 U. S. 227, 53 L. ed. 486, 29 Sup. Ct. Rep. 280; Ellis v. Inman, P. & Co. 65 C. C. A. 488, 131 Fed. 182; Standard Oil Co. v. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A.(N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502; Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734; United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; Blount Mfg. Co. v. Yale & T. Mfg. Co. 166 Fed. 555; United States v. Trans-Missouri Freight Asso. 166 U. S. 290, 41 L. ed. 1007, 17 Sup. Ct. Rep. 540; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 49 L. ed. 518, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276; Dr. Miles Medical Co. v. John D. Park & Sons Co. 220 U. S. 373, 55 L. ed. 502, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 376; United States v. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. 191 Fed. 172; Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 94 C. C. A. 13, 167 Fed. 721.

The combination created by the organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company was purely an economic arrangement, not in violation of any rule in restraint of trade at common law, or which has been announced by the Supreme Court.

United States v. Joint Traffic Asso. 171 U. S. 505, 43 L. ed. 259, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 25.

The combination of businesses, each dealing with a different commodity, into one corporation, has never been held a restraint of trade either at common law or under the Sherman act.

United States v. American Tobacco Co. 221 U. S. 106, 55 L. ed. 663, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 632; United States v. Reading Co. 226 U. S. 324, ante, 243, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 90; Union P. Coal Co. v. United States, 97 C. C. A. 578, 173 Fed. 737; United States v. Standard Oil Co. 173 Fed. 177.

That the district court was right in the only construction of the Sherman act now before this court, to wit, in holding that the organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company was not within the purview of the Sherman act, is further apparent from the fact that such organization of the United Shoe Machinery Company had no direct or immediate effect upon interstate commerce. If it had any effect at all upon interstate commerce, such effect was accidental, secondary, remote, and not even probable.

Bigelow v. Calumet & H. Min. Co. 94 C. C. A. 13, 167 Fed. 721; Anderson v. United States, 171 U. S. 604, 43 L. ed. 300, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 50; Field v. Barber Asphalt Paving Co. 194 U. S. 618, 48 L. ed. 1142, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 784; Standard Oil Co. United States, 221 U. S. 1, 55 L. ed. 619, 34 L.R.A. (N.S.) 834, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 502, Ann. Cas. 1912 D, 734.

Mr. Justice Holmes delivered the opinion of the court:

*This is a writ of error to determine[215 whether two counts in an indictment, as construed by the district court, charge offenses under the Sherman act of July 2, 1890, chap. 647, 26 Stat. at L. 209, U. S. Comp. Stat. 1901, p. 3200. They were held bad, on demurrer, by the district court. 195 Fed. 578. The two counts allege substantially the same facts; the first laying them as a combination in restraint of the trade of the defendants themselves, the second, as a conspiracy in restraint of the trade of others, shoe manufacturers.

The facts alleged are as follows: For the last twenty-five years practically all the shoes worn in the United States have been made by the help of machines, grouped as lasting machines, welt-sewing machines, and outsole-stitching machines, heeling machines and metallic fastening machines, there being a large variety of machines in each group. (These machines, of course, are not alleged to do all the work of making finished shoes.) There is a great number of shoe factories, and because the machines are expensive and the best of them patented, the manufacturers have had to get them principally from the defendants. Before and up to February 7, 1899, the defendants Winslow, Hurd, and Brown, through the Consolidated and McKay Lasting Machine Company, under letters patent, made 60 per cent of all the lasting machines made in the United States; the defendants Barbour and Howe, through the Goodyear Shoe Machinery Company, in like manner made 80 per cent of all the welt-sewing machines and outsole-stitching machines, and 10 per cent of all the lasting machines; and the defendant Sterrow (against whom the indictment has been dismissed), through the McKay Shoe Manufacturing Company, made 70 per cent of all the heeling machines and 80 per cent of all the metallic fastening machines made in the United States. The defendants all were carrying on commerce among the states with such of the *shoe manufacturers[216 as are outside Massachusetts, the state where the defendants made their machines.

On February 7, 1899, the three groups of defendants above named, up to that time separate, organized the United Shoe Machinery Company, and turned over to that company the stocks and business of the several corporations that they respectively controlled. The new company now makes all the machines that had been made in different places, at a single new factory at Beverly, Massachusetts, and directly, or through subsidiary companies, carries on all the commerce among the states that had been carried on independently by the constituent companies before. The defendants have ceased to sell shoe machinery to the shoe manufacturers. Instead, they only let machines, and on the condition that unless the shoe manufacturers use only machines of the kinds mentioned, furnished by the defendants, or if they use any such machines furnished by other machinery makers, then all machines let by the defendants shall be taken away. This condition they constantly have enforced. The defendants are alleged to have done the acts recited with intent unreasonably to extend their monopolies, rights, and control over commerce among the states; to enhance the value of the same at the expense of the public; and to discourage others from inventing and manufacturing machines for the work done by those of the defendants. The organization of the new company and the turning over of the stocks and business to it are alleged to constitute a breach of the Sherman act.

It is to be observed that the conditions now inserted in the leases are not alleged to have been contemporaneous with the combination, or to have been contemplated when it was made. The district court construed the indictment as confined to the combination of February 7; that, is, simply to the merger of the companies, without regard to the leases subsequently made (195 217]Fed. 592, 594); *and we have no jurisdiction to review this interpretation of the indictment. United States v. Patten, January 6, 1913 [226 U. S. 525, ante, 333, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 141]. Hence the only question before us is whether that combination, taken by itself, was within the penalties of the Sherman act. The validity of the leases, or of a combination contemplating them, cannot be passed upon in this case.

Thus, limited, the question does not require lengthy discussion, and a large part of the argument addressed to us concerned matters not open here. On the face of it the combination was simply an effort after greater efficiency. The business of the several groups that combined, as it existed before the combination, is assumed to have been legal. The machines are patented, making them is a monopoly in any case, the exclusion of competitors from the use of them is of the very essence of the right conferred by the patents, Paper Bag Patent Case (Continental Paper Bag Co. v. Eastern Paper Bag Co.) 210 U. S. 405, 429, 52 L. ed. 1122, 1132, 28 Sup. Ct. Rep. 748, and it may be assumed that the success of the several groups was due to their patents having been the best. As, by the interpretation of the indictment below (195 Fed. 591) and by the admission in argument before us, they did not compete with one another, it is hard to see why the collective business should be any worse than its component parts. It is said that from 70 to 80 per cent of all the shoe machinery business was put into a single hand. This is inaccurate, since the machines in question are not alleged to be types of all the machines used in making shoes, and since the defendants' share in commerce among the states does not appear. But taking it as true, we can see no greater objection to one corporation manufacturing 70 per cent of three noncompeting groups of patented machines collectively used for making a single product than to three corporations making the same proportion of one group each. The disintegration aimed at by the statute does not extend to reducing all manufacture to isolated units of the lowest degree. *It is as lawful for one[218 corporation to make every part of a steam engine, and to put the machine together as it would be for one to make the boilers and another to make the wheels. Until the one intent is nearer accomplishment than it is by such a juxtaposition alone, no intent could raise the conduct to the dignity of an attempt. See Virtue v. Creamery Package Mfg. Co. Jan. 20, 1913 [227 U. S. 8, ante, 393, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 202]; Swift & Co. v. United States, 196 U. S. 375, 396, 49 L. ed. 518, 524, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 276.

It was argued as an afterthought that the act of March 2, 1907, chap. 2564, 34 Stat. at L. 1246, under which the United States took this writ of error, was repealed by the Judicial Code of March 3, 1911 chap. 231, 36 Stat. at L. 1087, 1168, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, pp. 128, 244. But it is not mentioned among the statutes expressly repealed by § 297 of the latter act it is not superseded by any other regulations of the matter, it is a special provision, and on principles similar to those discussed in Ex parte United States, Jan. 6 1913 [226 U. S. 420, ante, 281, 33 Sup. Ct. Rep. 170], it must be held not to have been repealed. See further, Johnson v. United States, 225 U. S. 405, 419, 56 L. ed. 1142, 1147, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 748; Petri v. F. E. Creelman Lumber Co. 199 U. S. 487, 497, 50 L. ed. 281, 286, 26 Sup. Ct. Rep. 13

Judgment affirmed.

ST. LOUIS SOUTHWESTERN RAILWAY COMPANY OF TEXAS, Plff. in Err.,
v.
ROBERT ALEXANDER.

(See S. C. Reporter's ed. 218–228.)

Writ and process — service on foreign corporation — resident director.

1. Service of process upon a resident director of a foreign corporation doing business in the state is valid under the New York statute, in the absence of the other designated officials, if the corporation is doing business in the state, and the cause of action arose therein.

[For other cases, see Writ and Process, III. c, 2, b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Writ and process — service on foreign corporation — doing local business — Carmack amendment.

2. An initial carrier, when a foreign corporation, is not made liable to suit on the contract of shipment in a state in which it was not carrying on business in the sense which has heretofore been held necessary to confer jurisdiction because of any agency of a connecting carrier within that state, effected by the provisions of the Carmack amendment of June 29, 1906 (34 Stat. at L. 584, chap. 3591, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1288), to the act of February 4, 1887 (24 Stat. at L. 379, chap. 104, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 1284), requiring the initial carrier receiving freight for transportation in interstate commerce to obligate itself to carry to final destination, using the lines of connecting carriers as its agencies.

[For other cases, see Writ and Process, III. c, 2, b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

Writ and process — service on foreign corporation — doing business.

3. A foreign railway company is doing business within the state, so far as the question of its amenability to service of process there is concerned, where its local representative undertakes to act for and represent it, negotiating for it, and in its behalf declining to adjust a claim made against it.

[For other cases, see Writ and Process, III. c, 2, b, in Digest Sup. Ct. 1908.]

[No. 738.]

Submitted December 2, 1912. Decided February 3, 1913.

IN ERROR to the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York to review a judgment in favor of plaintiff in an action against a foreign railway company. Affirmed.

The facts are stated in the opinion.

Messrs. Lawrence Greer and F. C. Nicodemus, Jr., submitted the cause for plaintiff in error:

The requirements of due process of law forbid that a corporation be held amenable to service of process in a foreign jurisdiction unless engaged in business therein of such character and in such a manner and to such an extent as to bring itself within the jurisdiction, so that service of process upon an agent directly representing the authority of the corporation would constitute reasonable notice to the corporation to appear and defend.

Lafayette Ins. Co. v. French, 18 How. 405, 15 L. ed. 451; St. Clair v. Cox, 106 U. S. 350, 27 L. ed. 222, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 354; Mexican C. R. Co. v. Pinkney, 149 U. S. 194, 37 L. ed. 699, 13 Sup. Ct. Rep. 859; Connecticut Mut. L. Ins. Co. v. Spratley, 172 U. S. 602, 43 L. ed. 569, 19 Sup. Ct. Rep. 308; Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Meyer, 197 U. S. 407, 49 L. ed. 810, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 483; Green v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 205 U. S. 530, 51 L. ed. 916, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595.

No act of Congress, either expressly or by implication, undertakes to burden such interstate commerce by subjecting the carrier engaged therein to the jurisdiction of a court foreign to its domicil, and until Congress itself speaks its silence must be deemed equivalent to a declaration that in this aspect interstate commerce shall remain free and untrammeled.

Hall v. DeCuir, 95 U. S. 485, 24 L. ed. 549; Pullman Co. v. Adams, 189 U. S. 420, 47 L. ed. 877, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 494; Allen v. Pullman's Palace Car Co. 191 U. S. 171, 181, 48 L. ed. 134, 139, 24 Sup. Ct. Rep. 39.

Mr. Phelan Beale submitted the cause for defendant in error:

The cause of action herein arose within the state of New York, and certain acts were to be performed there which bring the case within the purview of Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Meyer, 197 U. S. 407, 49 L. ed. 810, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 483; therefore the service herein must be sustained.

Illinois C. R. Co. v. Beebe, 174 Ill. 13, 43 L.R.A. 210, 66 Am. St. Rep. 253, 50 N. E. 1019; Waldron v. Canadian P. R. Co. 22 Wash. 253, 60 Pac. 653; Union Nat. Bank v. Chapman, 169 N. Y. 538, 57 L.R.A. 513, 88 Am. St. Rep. 614, 62 N. E. 672; Scudder v. Union Nat. Bank, 91 U. S. 406, 413, 23 L. ed. 245, 249; Coghlan v. South Carolina R. Co. 142 U. S. 101, 111, 35 L. ed. 951, 954, 12 Sup. Ct. Rep. 150; Connecticut Mut. Life Assur. Co. v. Cleveland, C. & C. R. Co. 23 How. Pr. 180; Burckle v. Eckhart, 3 N. Y.

NOTE.—As to who may be served with process in suit against foreign corporation—see note to Foster v. Charles Betcher Lumber Co. 23 L.R.A. 490.

132; Hiller v. Burlington & M. River R. Co. 70 N. Y. 224; Strawn v. Edward J. Brandt-Dent Co. 71 App. Div. 236, 75 N. Y. Supp. 698, affirmed in 175 N. Y. 463, 67 N. E. 1090; Childs v. Harris Mfg. Co. 104 N. Y. 480, 11 N. E. 50; Ellis v. Willard, 9 N. Y. 529.

The decision in the case of Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186, 55 L. ed. 167, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 7, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164, et al., construing the Carmack amendment to the Hepburn act, shows conclusively that the plaintiff in error was actually engaged in doing business within the state of New York.

See also Galveston, H. & S. A. R. Co. v. Wallace, 223 U. S. 481, 56 L. ed. 516, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 205.

Mr. Justice Day delivered the opinion of the court:

The defendant in error, Alexander, filed his complaint against the plaintiff in error, 222]St. Louis Southwestern Railway *Company of Texas, a Texas corporation, in the supreme court of New York county, to recover damages for loss sustained by him, arising from the alleged negligence of the railway company in failing to properly ice and re-ice certain poultry shipped from Waco, Texas, to New York city, under a bill of lading given by the railway company to the shipper, the Texas Packing Company. Upon the petition of the railway company the case was removed to the circuit court of the United States for the southern district of New York. That court denied a motion to vacate and quash service of summons and to dismiss for want of jurisdiction, and upon trial judgment was entered for the defendant in error. The district court, succeeding to the jurisdiction of the circuit court, allowed a writ of error, and certified to this court the question of jurisdiction under § 238 of the Judicial Code. 36 Stat. at L. 1087, chap. 231, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, p. 128.

When the plaintiff in error received the poultry from the Texas Packing Company at Waco on November 25, 1910, for shipment to New York city, it delivered to the packing company a through bill of lading in which it acknowledged receipt of the property, and agreed to carry the freight "to its usual place of delivery at said destination, if on its road, otherwise to deliver to another carrier on the route to said destination," and in which was set out, among others, the following conditions:

"Sec. 2. In issuing this bill of lading this company agrees to transport only over its own line, and except as otherwise provided by law, acts only as agent with respect to the portion of the route beyond its own line.

"Sec. 3. Claims for loss, damage, or delay must be made in writing to the carrier at the point of delivery or at the point of origin, within four months after delivery of the property. . . . Unless claims are so made, the carrier shall not be liable."

The route, as shown by the bill of lading, was "Cotton *Belt to East St. Louis,[223 care of Big 4 E. St. Louis, care of Nickel Plate Route." On December 5, 1910, the freight was delivered in a damaged condition to the defendant in error, to whom the bill of lading had been indorsed.

Alexander brought suit on July 10, 1911, against the plaintiff in error in the supreme court of New York county, and caused summons to be served upon Lawrence Greer, one of the directors of the plaintiff in error, residing in New York, in accordance with the laws of New York. Subsequently the case was removed to the United States circuit court on the ground of diversity of citizenship. The plaintiff in error filed a motion to vacate and quash the attempted service of summons, and to dismiss the cause "for want of jurisdiction over the person of St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company of Texas, for the reason that said St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company of Texas is a foreign corporation, organized and existing under the laws of the state of Texas, is not doing business within the state of New York, is not found within said state, and is not amenable to service therein, and has not waived due service of summons herein by voluntary appearance or otherwise." The circuit court denied the motion, holding that the service was in accordance with the New York laws, provided the action arose in that state, and that the action did so arise, for, although the contract was made in Texas, it called for delivery in New York, and the bill of lading required that the claim be presented to the carrier at the point of delivery; and holding further that, upon the authority of Atlantic Coast Line R. Co. v. Riverside Mills, 219 U. S. 186, 55 L. ed. 167, 31 L.R.A.(N.S.) 7, 31 Sup. Ct. Rep. 164, and Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Meyer, 197 U. S. 407, 49 L. ed. 810, 25 Sup. Ct. Rep. 483, under the Carmack amendment to the Hepburn act (34 Stat. at L. 584, 595, chap. 3591, § 7, U. S. Comp. Stat. Supp. 1911, pp. 1288, 1307), the plaintiff in error was doing business in the state of New York to the extent that the Federal courts acquired *jurisdiction of[224 a removed cause in which summons had been served in accordance with the state law

After an answer had been filed by the plaintiff in error, trial was had in the district court (the Judicial Code having become effective), the plaintiff in error duly renewing, at the opening of the trial and subsequent stages, its motions to vacate and quash the service and to dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction, which was denied upon the authority of the prior order. After final judgment had been entered upon the verdict for the plaintiff, the district court certified to this court the question of jurisdiction.

The record discloses the following facts in regard to the relationship existing between the plaintiff in error and the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company and their activities in the state of New York: The St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company, a Missouri corporation, and the plaintiff in error, comprise what is commonly known as the "Cotton Belt Route." running from St. Louis, Missouri, through the states of Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, Arkansas, and Louisiana into Texas, with nearly one half of the mileage in Texas. A map of the two roads contained in their "Official List," showing the route of the system, makes no distinction whatsoever between the trackage routes of the two lines.

All the stock of the plaintiff in error, save qualifying shares, is owned by the Missouri company, and the funded debt, mortgages, and other obligations and assets of the plaintiff in error are owned and controlled by the Missouri company. In a certain application to the New York Stock Exchange, requesting it to list securities of the Missouri company, made by the secretary of that company, it was stated that the proceeds were to be used for equipping and extending certain branches of the plaintiff in error. Certain banks and trust companies in New York city act as registrars, trustees, transfer agents, and 225]agents *for the two companies, the obligations being secured by mortgages upon the properties of both corporations.

The general officers and agents of one company hold similar positions with the other. The annual report of the plaintiff in error and the Missouri company are combined, and the Texas company referred to as a part or division of the Missouri corporation. Throughout the report reference is made to the "entire system," and in various respects the two lines are treated as one system.

It further is shown that upon the door of an office in New York city there appears the sign "Cotton Belt Route," which words are also found on the stationery of the plaintiff in error and the Missouri company, and that beneath the symbol appears "St. Louis Southwestern Lines," and underneath the names of P. H. Coombs, General Eastern Freight and Passenger Agent, and C. W. Braden, Traveling Freight Agent. In official pamphlets of the two roads the names of the plaintiff in error and the St. Louis Southwestern Railway Company are bracketed together to show that they constitute the Cotton Belt Route.

Before the action was commenced the defendant in error had considerable correspondence in regard to the claim with P. H. Coombs, of the New York office, in which the defendant in error stated that the plaintiff in error was the initial carrier, and as such would be held liable for the amount of the damage. Replies were received to all such letters, acknowledging receipt, and showing the attention and investigation which the claim was receiving, and stating that all claims were handled by the general offices at either St. Louis or Tyler, Texas, and that the letters were being sent to the St. Louis office of the Missouri company, and that it was hoped a satisfactory reply from the St. Louis office would be received at an early date. One letter was forwarded to S. C. Johnson, auditor of the Missouri Company, Freight Claim Division, and general *adjuster of all freight claims of[226 the Cotton Belt Route, who replied that he would review the matter and write fully regarding the company's position.

In this class of cases, where it is undertaken to hold a corporation personally liable in a foreign jurisdiction, two questions ordinarily arise: the first, Was the corporation within the jurisdiction in which it is sued? the second, Was process duly served upon an authorized agent of the corporation? As to the latter question, there is little difficulty in this case. The cause of action having accrued in New York by the failure to keep the contract for the safe delivery of the goods there, the service could be properly made under the New York statute, in the absence of other designated officials, upon the resident director. Pennsylvania Lumbermen's Mut. F. Ins. Co. v. Meyer, supra.

The other question as to the presence of the corporation within the jurisdiction of the court in which it was sued raises more difficulty. A long line of decisions in this court has established that in order to render a corporation amenable to service of process in a foreign jurisdiction it must appear that the corporation is transacting business in that district to such an extent as to subject it to the jurisdiction and laws thereof. Lafayette Ins. Co. v. French.

18 How. 404, 15 L. ed. 451; St. Clair v. Cox, 106 U. S. 350, 27 L. ed. 222, 1 Sup. Ct. Rep. 354; Goldey v. Morning News, 156 U. S. 518, 39 L. ed. 517, 15 Sup. Ct. Rep. 559; Conley v. Mathieson Alkali Works, 190 U. S. 406, 47 L. ed. 1113, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 728; Geer v. Mathieson Alkali Works, 190 U. S. 428, 47 L. ed. 1122, 23 Sup. Ct. Rep. 807; Peterson v. Chicago, R. I. & P. R. Co. 205 U. S. 364, 51 L. ed. 84, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 513; Green v. Chicago, B. & Q. R. Co. 205 U. S. 530, 51 L. ed. 916, 27 Sup. Ct. Rep. 595; Mechanical Appliance Co. v. Castleman, 215 U. S. 437, 54 L. ed. 272, 30 Sup. Ct. Rep. 125; Herndon-Carter Co. v. James N. Norris Son & Co. 224 U. S. 496, 56 L. ed. 857, 32 Sup. Ct. Rep. 550.

